The one disappointing thing about "The Big Easy" was its hesitancy to take a stand. Several times it came close to making a poignant commentary on corruption, only to back away at the last instant.

Another dim point for the film was the incredibly abrupt ending. Granted, all the questions had been answered, all the loose ends were tied. Yet, the audience wasn't given even a brief moment to reflect and think about what they had witnessed during the fast-paced, action-filled scenes that preceded the credits.

However, the general buzz surrounding "The Big Easy" — and one scene in particular — is favorable. "The Big Easy" delivers this summer's (if not the entire year's) most provocative bedroom scene. The truly remarkable thing about the segment, though, is that both Quaid and Barkin remain almost fully clothed, and not one bit of sizzle is lost. In fact, it works even better than if flesh tone was the predominant color on the screen.

All in all, "The Big Easy" was indeed easy to like.

SRS recovers money from overpayments

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The state Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services' anti-fraud program has recovered $1.117 million in fraudulent overpayments to welfare recipients during the fiscal year ending June 30.

SRS Secretary Winston Barton said that figure represents a 15 percent increase in overpayment collections from the previous year.

The department identified 2,274 cases of suspected fraud during the year and referred 271 of those to Kansas prosecutors, resulting in 159 convictions.

The department also filed 445 civil actions and obtained 348 civil judgments against people who received overpayments.

In addition, the Early Detection and Prevention Program, which involves investigators making field reviews to verify questionable information on applications for assistance, saved the state $382,999 by either closing or denying 1,126 cases. Benefits were reduced in another 128 cases.

This program has offices in the Topeka, Wichita and Kansas City areas.

SRS also received 2,097 fraud-related calls on the welfare hotline during the year. Those calls resulted in 154 cases being closed, 29 assistance benefit reductions and 59 fraud referrals, with a cost savings of $176,184.

Sunbelt prepares to greet Pope

By The Associated Press

The Sunbelt cities that will greet Pope John Paul II bustled with activity Tuesday, as Miami's archbishop blessed a rosary dangling from a skyscraper, workers spruced up the streets of Columbia, S.C., and crews decorated a huge outdoor altar in San Antonio, Texas.

Everywhere along the pontiff's route, plans were being completed for the tightest possible security. Police, National Guardsmen and Secret Service agents were arranging to divert rush-hour traffic, weld manholes shut, station sharpshooters on roofs and even make airliners change course.

"This will certainly be the biggest combined law enforcement effort in South Florida's history," said Jack Kippenberger, special agent in charge of Miami's Secret Service office.

The pope arrives in Miami on Thursday afternoon for a 10-day tour of nine cities. From Miami, he flies to Columbia, then New Orleans, San Antonio, Phoenix, Ariz., Los Angeles, Monterey, Calif., and San Francisco. His final U.S. stop is in Detroit, but before heading back to Rome, he will visit Fort Simpson in Canada's Northwest Territories on Sept. 20.

In Miami on Tuesday, Archbishop Edward A. McCarthy blessed the rosary draping the Falls, a downtown office building just north of the route the pope's bulletproof car will follow Thursday.

Earlier in the day, Cuban exile activists delivered a parchment petition with replicas of 70,000 signatures to the archdiocese. Roberto Pimental of Cubanos Desterrados (Cubans without a home) said the petition urges the pope to lash out at Cuban President Fidel Castro's persecution of the Roman Catholic Church.

While in Miami, the pope, who survived a May 1981 assassination attempt in St. Peter's Square in Rome, will be protected by 2,000 Dade police officers, 1,000 Miami officers, 2,400 National Guardsmen, 900 state troopers, scores of Secret Service agents and a contingent from the Vatican's own Swiss Guard. They'll be equipped with high-powered rifles, bomb-sniffing dogs, 9mm semiautomatics and pistol-grip grenade launchers.

In Columbia, city workers have trimmed trees, cut grass and repaved streets along the pope's motorcade route from the airport to the University of South Carolina football stadium. City spokesman John Spade said that for the next two days, workers would concentrate on sweeping the streets.

Spade said the city also was building a force of business, license and zoning inspectors to enforce the ban on the sale of souvenirs along the motorcade route. "We're going to crack down on that," he said.

Contra information withheld from Bush

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Aides to Vice President George Bush received a stream of clues indicating Lt. Col. Oliver L. North was "chairman of the board" of a secret effort to resupply Contra rebels in Nicaragua but they never told Bush, according to depositions and documents made public Tuesday.

One Bush associate, Army Col. Samuel J. Watson, said the vice president was not told of allegations that a group of corrupt profiteers with unsavory connections was overcharging the Contras for weapons and supplies because the information was unproven and "not mature."

The words "resupply of the Contras" appear in a memo prepared for Bush by his staff to describe the purpose of a meeting he and his aides were to have with former CIA agent Felix Rodriguez seven months before the Iran-Contra affair became public last year.

But Watson and Donald Gregg, Bush's national security adviser, told the congressional Iran-Contra investigating committees, in sworn statements taken last May and June, it is a mystery to them how the words got into the document, which was released Tuesday along with transcripts of their testimony.

Hart

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

he expected Hart to get back in the race this fall. A national poll in July had shown Hart still the choice of more Democrats for the nomination than any of the seven active candidates.

Hart, vacationing in Ireland at the time, denied the report through an aide but did not comment directly.

A Gordon Black poll for USA Today on Tuesday said Americans split on whether Hart should re-enter the race — 42 percent said yes, and 48 percent said no. The poll based on interviews with 805 adults has an error margin of 4 percentage points.

Edelaine's
421 Poyntz
776-4498

- Wedding Gowns
- Tuxedo Rental
- Alter Free Wain
- Dryable Shoes
- Gloves & Handbags
- Rhinestone Jewelry

10-8 M-F
10-6 Sat., 1-5 Sun.

---

HUNAM EXPRESS
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

Aggie Hair Shapers

professional hair styling for men & women

COUPON

$3 off cut & style
or $5 off perm
by one of our new creative stylists: Julie, Kim or Daneen exp. 9/26/87

COUPON

Open: 1201 Laramie
Mon.-Sat. & Evenings 776-3600

Bobby J's Restaurant and Fundrinkery

Wednesdays (EVERY)

16 oz. T-Bone $4<sup>99</sup> or 6 oz. Filet $3<sup>39</sup>
All the works included
5:30-10 p.m.

3240 Kimball—Candlewood Shopping Center
Across from Cico Park

GOODSON AUTO TRIM

Tailor Made Seat Covers
Tanneau Covers
Boat Covers
Window Tinting
Convertible Tops
Vinyl Tops
Complete Auto, Truck & Boat Upholstery
201 Sarber Lane
(behind Wal-Mart)
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
Phone 776-7679 Res. 776-7614

Lafene Health Center

"Your Medical Facility"

- Outpatient Clinic
- Lafemme (GYN) Clinic
- Allergy Clinic
- Mental Health Clinic
- Laboratory
- Physical Therapy Department
- Pharmacy
- X-Ray Department
- Dietary Counseling
- Sports Medicine Clinic
- Wart Clinic

• Clinic Hours: 8-11:30 a.m., 1-4:30 p.m.
• 24 hours, 7 days a week health care services

"We Care" about your health

532-6544

Finally, a great pizza delivered.

1118 Laramie 539-5303

GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special $10.99/$8.99 plus tax LARGE MEDIUM COMBO PIZZA or up to 4 toppings Original Crust Plus FREE 20 oz. drink! 4 drinks with large 3 drinks with medium Offer good Monday through Wednesday only. Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery (no added delivery charge). Not valid with other promotional offers. Limited Delivery Area. Offer Expires 10/07/87	Large Pizza for a Medium Price Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for the price of a medium. Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on refillable jug offer. On Sunday your choice: either use this coupon or take advantage of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one. Offer Expires 10/11/87	2 for $12 Super Pepperoni or Four Topper (The Super Pepperoni with more pepperoni than ever before or The Four Topper with sausage, pepperoni, onions, and green peppers) Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1.00 for delivery. Limited Delivery Area. Offer Expires 10/11/87	Hot Slice™ 2 for $2 Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas by the slice for $2! Combo or Pepperoni Dine-in or Carryout Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. Offer Expires 10/09/87
--	---	---	---

Campus Briefly

K-State faculty wins awards

Eight K-State faculty members have won Extension Educational Aids Blue Ribbon Awards from the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

The awards were based on projects submitted which exhibited "outstanding effort and achievement in the development of noteworthy educational aids."

K-State's ASAE blue-ribbon winners are James P. Murphy, Extension state leader; David A. Nichols, assistant professor, animal sciences and industry; Joseph P. Harner III, Extension agricultural engineer; Ekramul Haque, associate professor, K-State Food and Feed Grain Institute; John W. Slocumbe, assistant professor, agricultural engineering; Clarence W. Swallow, associate professor, agronomy; Dennis K. Kuhlman, Extension agricultural engineer, pesticide application; and David A. Pacey, Extension agricultural engineer.

ASAE is an 11,000-member, worldwide professional and technical organization for those interested in advancing engineering knowledge and technology for agriculture, associated industry and related resources.

Grants hit $22 million mark

K-State added about $22 million to the state's economy this year with extramural grants it attracted for research and sponsored programs.

This amount represents an 11.5 percent increase over similar activities in 1986.

1987 is the third consecutive year extramural funding has increased at K-State.

K-State President Jon Wefald said the figures are "heartening evidence of our determination to increase the University's role as an active and effective partner in the development of the state's economy."

The 1987 extramural funding figures include grants and contracts to support research and other special projects in areas such as teaching, cooperative extension service, equipment, continuing education and public service.

Engineer of the year retires

William "Bill" Johnson, K-State's Engineering Experiment Station director, retired Friday.

Johnson was director of the EES since 1981 and has been responsible for coordinating research activities of engineering faculty and for administering research funds from government and private sources.

Johnson leaves K-State after a career filled with professional achievements and honors. He was named 1987 Engineer of the Year by the Kansas Engineering Society for his "substantial career contributions to the profession, to the community and to mankind."

His other accomplishments include about 100 professional publications, a patent, several overseas assignments, consulting activities and assignments in the area of institutional and public service. He is a recognized authority on soil-plant-machine dynamics and harvesting.

Man saves lost boy from building fire

By The Associated Press

SHREVEPORT, La. — A confused boy returned to his burning second-floor apartment just after his mother threw him out a window to safety, but a man got a friend to boost him into a window to rescue the boy a second time.

"I put my head into the window, it was full of smoke, I couldn't see anything, then I heard a little boy's voice calling for help," said Thelonious Nichols, 23.

He got 7-year-old Jessie Edwards back out of the apartment from which his mother, Lilly Pearl Edwards, had just thrown him to safety.

Nichols said he was visiting his girlfriend just before midnight when they noticed fire in the nearby building.

Animals suffer affliction

Reported footrot cases increase

By Brett Hacker
Collegian Reporter

Cases of animal footrot are up marginally in the Manhattan area, while other areas, which received more rainfall, are experiencing a dramatic increase.

Footrot is a general term used to describe hoof afflictions and diseases in animals when the wet ground makes the hoof softer allowing bacterial organisms to grow, said Mark Spire, associate professor of surgery and medicine.

The problem is compounded when the soft ground has an underlayer of rock, he said. When the animals' hooves are exposed to the rock fragments, the injury becomes more traumatic and predisposes them to footrot.

Blue tongue virus is a type of footrot spread by Culicoides, a type of biting nat, Spire said. It affects sheep by cutting off the blood's circulation around the tongue, causing a bluish tint. The virus also causes blood vessel damage and swelling in the sheep's hooves.

The nats breed in brackish water from April through October, and when the temperature rises above 55 degrees, there is a greater chance this nat will spread the disease, he said.

Another main cause of footrot is fusobacterium which grows in bruised areas on animals, Spire said.

The development of methods to prevent footrot has been slow, although a vaccine is being tested with limited results, he said.

Antibiotics and feed additives are two other preventative measures. Spire said the most frequently used antibiotics at K-State are tetracycline, aureomycin and sulfa compounds.

One of the best ways of preventing footrot problems in confinement units is redesigning cattle walkways and alley ways, he said. The units should be constructed so that barriers are away from the pathway to prevent the animals from stumbling and causing foot injuries.

Feedlots and confinement units feed animals zinc sulfate daily, which hardens the hoofs to prevent injuries that allow the advancement of footrot, Spire said.

Horseflys are a prominent means of transmitting a blood parasite that causes anaplasmosis, a disease prevalent in cattle and deer.

The disease causes an inability to gain weight and decreased milk production. It also causes anemic and pregnant cattle to abort, he said. Its season peaks in September and October.

"Anaplasmosis is a big disease, and we had such warm weather this year that we started seeing cases of the disease a lot earlier than we usually do," Spire said.

Horsefly travel great distances to feed off cattle and are hard to control because spraying just drives them off temporarily, Spire said.

Kansas hoping for improved tourism picture

By The Associated Press

The final count is not in, but Kansas officials are hoping that the state's tourism picture improved this summer compared to the previous year.

Travel in the state in 1986 was held down by sluggish economic conditions, particularly in agriculture and oil.

Kansas is spending about $400,000 on tourism promotion, according to the Tourism Division of the Kansas Department of Commerce in Topeka.

The state's "Linger Longer" campaign, kicked off on Memorial Day, has helped attract visitors to the state this summer, officials said.

The campaign urges out-of-state travelers to stop at information centers, participating chambers of commerce, and at convention and visitors bureaus across the state to pick up a coupon book that can be used to get a free Coleman jug at participating outlets.

About 1,900 jugs have been given out so far, said Ron Peters, assistant director of the Tourism Division. The campaign will run through Dec.

31.

Sonya Woertz, marketing director for the program, said "Linger Longer" has been more successful than expected. State officials initially expected 2,500 books would be completed by Dec. 31 — but she estimated today that 3,000 to 3,500 of the books would be completed by year's end.

"Many people have written us and said had it not been for the program, they would not have stayed as long as they did," she said.

Top attractions in Kansas include the Sedgwick County Zoo in Wichita, the Kansas Cosmosphere and Space Center in Hutchinson, the Eisenhower Center in Abilene and the old frontier town of Dodge City.

Rain, particularly in August, hampered summer attendance at the Sedgwick County Zoo, said Connie Dillon, administrative assistant.

Attendance in June, July and August was 131,898, down from 140,197 a year earlier.

About 60,000 visitors passed through Dodge City this summer, said Jim Sherer, executive director of the Boot Hill Museum.

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Alpha Chi Omega,
Alpha Delta Pi, Off Campus

Sept. 10: Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Gamma Delta, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Juniors & Seniors Psssssssst

NOW! YOU CAN RECEIVE IN EXCESS OF $1,000 PER MONTH, PROVIDED YOU CAN QUALIFY FOR A PRESTIGIOUS POSITION WITHIN THE UNITED STATES NAVY, WHILE YOU'RE STILL IN SCHOOL. THIS IS NOT A ROTC PROGRAM; NO HAIRCUTS OR UNIFORMS . . .

***QUALIFICATIONS***

- * 1 YEAR OF CALCULUS AND CALCULUS BASED PHYSICS.
- * GPA OF 3.4 IN A TECHNICAL MAJOR.
- * BE IN GOOD PHYSICAL HEALTH.
- * HAVE GOOD COLOR VISION.

FOR MORE INFORMATION STOP BY AND TALK TO SENIOR CHIEF MIKE ABBOTT AT THE ENGINEERING/COMPUTER SCIENCE CAREER FAIR ON 16 SEP. OR CALL 1-800-821-5110.

NAVY OFFICER.

LEAD THE ADVENTURE.

UPC UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

Let's Talk About It . . .

CAMPUS
PARKING

Noon
Thursday, September 10
CATSKELLER

k-state union
upc issues & ideas

OPUS BAND COMPETITION

September 25, 1987
KSU Union north lawn

Watch bands compete for over $600 in Prizes!

Band applications are due September 11 at SM Hanson Music.

Sponsored by:

k-state union
upc eclectic entertainment

S.M. Hanson Music

k-state union
special events & U.A.B.

ACTIVITIES CARNIVAL

Get to know campus clubs & organizations!

K-State Union

Sunday, September 13, 5-8 p.m.

All UPC Committees will be accepting applications for a limited number of spaces for this year. So, come find out how to get involved!

In this dramatic thriller laced with humor and suspense, Mel Gibson stars as Martin Riggs, a volatile Viet Nam vet (and registered "lethal weapon") now a cop in L.A. Don't miss this action-packed movie!

Rated R.

FRIDAY and SATURDAY,
7 & 9:30 p.m. Forum Hall.

k-state union
upc feature films

k-state union
upc feature films

An awesome look into today's fast, funny, friendly and frantic life styles. Join the teens at Ridgemont High as they struggle through one year at high school . . . love, pizza, cruising and most importantly, their experiences with the opposite sex.

Rated R.

FRIDAY and SATURDAY,
Midnight, Forum Hall.

UPC MOVIES—

All features $1.75—Sat. Matinee & Sun. Shows $1.50
KSU I.D. required.

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

"IT IS A JOY!"

—Judith Crist, New York Magazine

They met at the funeral of a perfect stranger. From then on, things got perfectly stranger and stranger.

Paramount Pictures Presents

HAROLD and MAUDE

Color by Technicolor® A Paramount Picture

WEDNESDAY, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall &
THURSDAY, 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre,
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall

Rated PG.

FANTASTIC IN 3-D

RICHARD CARLSON-JULIA ADAMS

In this classic monster movie from the '50s, an amphibious prehistoric man-monster inhabits the depths of a mysterious tropical lagoon, undisturbed until a team of scientists intrude upon his domain.

SHOWN IN 3-D1

GLASSES PROVIDED!
SATURDAY, 2 p.m. Little Theatre &
SUNDAY, 2 & 7 p.m. Forum Hall

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

FoodWednesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, September 9, 1987 ■ Page 7

Say what you will about chicken. Say it's boring, bland and about as exciting as, well, a chicken.

But ask any cook, and they'll most likely tell you that one of our finest feathered friends has gotten a bum rap.

Don't believe it? How many ads have you seen lately that insist: "Chicken — Real Food for Real People?" Thought so.

Nonetheless, today's cooks will tell you the chicken — which has been painted as everything from a disease on a platter to a tasteless lump — really isn't so bad. Furthermore, they'll tell you that chicken can be as exciting as beef.

After all, your grandmother knew that, and you wouldn't argue with her about anything.

■ Reason No. 1 for Eating Chicken: Versatility. The biggest thing going for chicken is its adaptability. It can be served roasted or fried, baked or broiled, elaborately sauced, hot or cold, in soups or salads, in sandwiches or casseroles.

It is undoubtedly the most popular poultry today. It's sold everywhere, during every season.

Figures released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture show a decrease in the number of Americans eating red meat but an increase in poultry consumption. Total consumption of poultry has increased by 25 percent between 1976 and 1984, and some experts predict it may surpass beef.

Take that, all you real people.

■ Reason No. 2 for Eating Chicken: Good health. Chicken is appealing to an increasing number of health-conscious Americans.

Adults receive more than 40 percent of their recommended daily allowance of protein in 3½ ounces of chicken. It is also rich in iron and B vitamins and low in cholesterol. Dark meat, which contains twice as much zinc and vitamin A, is more nutritious than white meat. However, white meat has less fat.

■ Reason No. 3 for Eating Chicken: It's cheap. According to a brief survey of Manhattan grocery stores, the average price for a pound of chicken is 71 cents compared to $1.26 a pound for ground beef.

■ Reason No. 4 for Eating Chicken: It's really not a salmonella-breeding factory. True, salmonella is a type of bacteria found in all kinds of meat, including chicken. It is estimated to be present in 37 percent of all fresh chicken. However, it doesn't affect the appearance, smell or taste of the meat. Salmonellosis symptoms are similar to those of food poisoning, and they can appear six to 72 hours after the bacteria are ingested. Symptoms include nausea, vomiting and abdominal pain.

But that information needn't concern the careful chicken cooker. When buying chicken, look for the USDA Grade A inspection stamp. This assures that the carcass is meaty, that it was healthy and free of defects when it was slaughtered, and that both the chicken and the plant where it was processed were inspected. The chicken's skin should not be too loose.

Be sure to smell the chicken package, which should be virtually free of odor. There should be a minimum of liquid in the bottom of the package, since this is where bacteria is found.

A few safeguards can prevent the possibility of salmonella organisms growing in chicken.

■ CHICKEN ■ Food for Real People

Place setting and accessories courtesy of Functions, 1123 Moro.

First, thaw the chicken in the refrigerator rather than on the counter. Wash the cutting board and all utensils thoroughly in hot, soapy water. Before cooking the chicken, rinse it off well under cold, running water.

The chicken should be thoroughly cooked immediately after thawing. Never partially cook chicken and plan on finishing the job later on, because salmonella bacteria can grow in chicken left at room temperature for very long. Finally, do not store the cooked meat for more than three days.

Fresh chicken tastes best if it is cooked within 24 hours of purchase. It should not be kept in the refrigerator for more than three days without being frozen. Frozen chicken will store safely for up to six months.

■ Reason No. 5 for Eating Chicken: It's tasty. Consider:

BAKED SESAME CHICKEN

1 egg
2 tablespoons of soy sauce
¼ cup dry bread crumbs
¼ cup sesame seed
¼ teaspoon ginger
1½ pounds boneless, skinless, chicken thigh
3 tablespoons butter, melted
Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In a shallow bowl, beat egg with soy sauce. In another bowl combine bread crumbs, sesame seed and ginger. Dip chicken in egg mixture, then in crumbs. Place on a wire rack in baking pan. Drizzle with butter. Bake 20 minutes. Serve with stir-fried vegetables.
Serves 4.

CHICKEN SALAD

3 whole chicken breasts (each weighing approximately one pound)
1 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon white wine or tarragon vinegar
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 tablespoon dried tarragon
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons milk (if needed)
½ cup slivered, toasted almonds
Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Rinse chicken and pat dry with paper towels. Place chicken in a shallow baking pan. Bake 30 to 45 minutes, or until tender. Be careful not to overcook.
When cool enough to handle, carefully remove meat in large pieces from bones. Discard skin, fat and bones. Cut chicken into bite-size cubes. Place in large bowl and set aside.
In medium bowl mix mayonnaise, vinegar, parsley, tarragon and pepper. Stir in 1 or 2 tablespoons of milk if mixture seems too thick.
Toss almonds with chicken. Spoon mayonnaise over chicken mixture and mix gently, but thoroughly.
Chill salad for 15 minutes before serving, or place the salad in the refrigerator and remove 1 hour before serving.
Serves 6.

Story by Julie Key
Photo by Jim Dietz

Barbecue — culinary cuisine for men

I hope everyone had a safe and relaxing Labor Day weekend. I bet barbecues everywhere were gassed and fired-up to feed families and friends on the last weekend of the summer.

Speaking of barbecues, isn't it funny how whenever it is time to barbecue, the men are always the first to take over the cooking duties? Any other time you need help in the kitchen, "it is no place for a man," they say.

Mention barbecue, and the men will have the grill fired-up, their "kiss the cook" apron on, and they will pester you to get the meat ready to go.

Once they get the burgers on the grill, the men come running back to the kitchen, hunting for a squirt bottle to put out the "little flames" they say have emerged from underneath the meat.

I remember one family get-together when my brother-in-law was in charge of the grill. I was in the kitchen looking out the window when I saw flames leaping from the grill. My brother-in-law runs for the garden hose, turns it on full force and douses the grill, hamburgers and all.

Now there's a barbecue cook who knows what to do in an emergency.

Then they bring the black "lumps of coal" into the house saying the burgers are done. I'd say they met their maker a long time ago.

One member of the family exclaims how juicy the hamburgers are. If she only saw what I did.

My husband doesn't like to barbecue because he says there are always too many cooks around telling him what to do. (He doesn't like people telling him what to do anyway.)

And I've seen it happen before: Get six men together, put beers in their hands and all of a sudden they're barbecue experts. So my husband says.

Remember this phenomenon at your house when you announce dragging out the grill. See who volunteers to cook, and then who doesn't when it is time to do dishes.

Practical Pointers

Have a loaf of bread or rolls that are hard enough to be used for doorstops? There is a way to correct this problem. Wrap the bread in a damp dish towel and refrigerate overnight then heat before serving. Another quick way is to wrap it in a paper towel and pop it in the good old microwave for 40 seconds.

***

Rubbery eggs will not be a problem if you wait to salt the eggs after they are cooked.

Food for Thought

SUSAN
STAGGENBORG
Features
Editor

Tourism hurting South Pacific area, professor reports

By Allison Neely
Staff Writer

International vacationers are wreaking havoc in several southern Pacific countries, according to a report released by Linda Richter, associate professor of political science.

Richter recently spent a three-month sabbatical lecturing about the politics of tourism. She spoke in Canberra and Melbourne, Australia, and Wellington, New Zealand.

Tourism is having several unexpected political and social implications for these countries, she said.

Her topic was the consequences to cities, population groups, and the environment when there is a marked increase in the number of people visiting a country, and what governments can do to solve those problems.

Hordes of tourists visit Australia annually. Unlike Europe, hijackings, bombings and kidnappings are not a threat, Richter said. Another attraction is that the official language is English.

"The land down under is in people's minds from movies like 'Crocodile Dundee,' and the 'I'll put another shrimp on the barbie...' commercials with Paul Hogan," Richter said.

Because tourism by citizens of industrialized nations is rising so rapidly, the individual cultures are no longer self-determining, Richter said.

Little consideration is given as to how fast the country is advancing. The southern Pacific governments are now just beginning to propose legislation dealing with preservation of the cultures.

However, policy-making is based on trial and error. Since they are small countries, they have made and will continue to make mistakes, she said.

On the northeastern coast of Australia, developers are pressuring the government to allow catering to tourists by changing the reef formations. Seeing the coral reef is neither the experience it once was nor as nice as tourists expect, she said. Developers want to change it for aesthetic reasons.

As a preventive measure, the Australian government has reserved several areas for research and wildlife preserves.

The government has not yet developed measures to protect the aborigines from the tourists. Curious visitors often disrupt their lifestyle.

"No one likes to live in a fishbowl. However, those aborigines who do want to participate in tourism activity should be able to do so. They want some control over the tourism industry as it affects them," Richter said.

New Zealand, another southern Pacific country, is also experiencing a large influx of tourists. Like Australia, the official language is English.

Little political tension has been present in New Zealand since 1985 when foreign ships carrying nuclear weapons were banned from the ports.

Ecological and environmental changes are another source of concern. With an increased interest in natural phenomenon came the "ruin" of Cairns, a small, isolated Australian coastal town.

Hundreds of tourists wishing to see the Great Barrier Reef, the largest coral reef in the world and only natural phenomenon that can be seen from the moon, have made Cairns a vacation hot spot, Richter said.

"The flavor of the town changed. It's not the same. Land values jumped and the residents can't afford to pay property taxes any more," she said.

On all the islands, tourism has created an entire illiterate generation. Young children leave school and beg in the streets. They can earn more money per week than their parents do laboring in the fields, Richter said. When the beggars are too old to be cute, they find themselves with no trade and no money.

The islanders view their situation as exploitation. The rich westerners are served by non-westerners.

"What the islanders do not understand is that the tourists had to work to get their money," Richter said.

Soviet emigration discussed

Human rights issues top agenda

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Soviet Union are discussing an overhaul of Soviet emigration rules to make them "less arbitrary," Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Tuesday.

"We're looking to see if there aren't some procedures that could be worked through that would make this process work better, be more humane and understandable," Shultz said in an interview.

He and other State Department officials welcomed reports from Moscow that mathematician Iosif I. Begun and a handful of other Jewish dissidents would be granted exit visas.

Referring to a possible U.S.-Soviet summit, Shultz said "people all ascribe it to the imminence of a meeting of some kind." But, he said, "that's not a good way to handle these things."

He said human rights were at the top of the agenda for the talks he will hold here next week with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

Shultz made these additional points as he talked for 20 minutes with two reporters from The Associated Press and United Press International after a four-week vacation:

—The United States is insisting the Soviets reduce their intermediate-range nuclear missiles at a faster clip as part of a treaty banning the weapon. "We certainly don't want to get down to zero before they do," Shultz said. The Soviets have more than twice as many deployed, 683 to 332.

—Still, Shultz said, the treaty "is undoubtedly the strongest of any arms control agreement we've ever had" because of the verification procedures being drafted to insure the missiles are dismantled.

—The United States is prepared to respond to a request from Vietnam for artificial limbs and other assistance for war victims. But there will be no other humanitarian aid or trade concessions in exchange for increased information on more than 2,400 missing American servicemen. "Absolutely not," Shultz said.

—American inspection of Soviet military maneuvers last month under a Stockholm agreement to reduce tensions in Europe "went off very smoothly." If the Soviets made a reciprocal request to observe Western maneuvers "I'm sure it will go smoothly."

Shultz was generally upbeat on the state of the superpower relationship as he began preparations for his talks Sept. 15-17 with Shevardnadze.

"There certainly is a great contrast between now and what I observed when I became secretary of state" in July 1982, Shultz said. "...There has been a great growth in the amount of things we are discussing in a businesslike and straightforward manner, and so in a sense, the relationship is a better relationship." And yet, Shultz said, "it is full of strains and difficulties."

He said the Soviets continued to insist that 72 U.S. warheads atop West German Pershing 1-A missiles be included in the treaty to ban U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range weapons.

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl offered last month to dismantle the missiles after the treaty is implemented. "So far as I can see there shouldn't be a problem," Shultz said. "The Soviets are acting as though there is still a problem. I don't know what it is."

Shultz said Reagan administration would submit the treaty to the Senate for ratification next year if it is completed. He said he did not know how some conservatives could claim the United States was too conciliatory in the negotiations since "where we are winding up is pretty much what President Reagan proposed back in 1981."

Johnson County motorists to obey signals when crossing Burlington Northern tracks

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Motorists driving roads which cross the Burlington Northern tracks as they wind through Johnson County had better obey crossing gates and flashing red light signals Thursday — or they're likely to be arrested.

The Kansas Corporation Commission, whose jurisdiction includes railroad crossing safety, announced Tuesday the Kansas Highway Patrol and local law enforcement agencies will combine forces in the second phase of the "trooper on the train" program aimed at reducing crossing violations by drivers.

The first trooper program was staged last February in Wichita.

"Officers will take appropriate action against persons who go around crossing gates or fail to stop at the flashing red lights at signal crossings," the KCC said in a public statement.

State law requires drivers to stop when a clearly visible electric or mechanical signal gives warning of the approach of a train. It is against the law to run the red lights or to drive around crossing gate arms.

The "trooper on the train" program is part of Kansas Operation Lifesaver, sponsored by 10 railroads operating in Kansas and several government agencies and aimed at reducing grade crossing accidents.

To publicize the program, state and local officials will hold a news conference at 9 a.m. Thursday at the Lenexa depot of the Burlington Northern, 13445 Santa Fe Drive.

A Kansas Highway Patrol trooper will ride a Burlington Northern freight train eight miles from Merriam to 151st Street in Olathe, using a portable radio to alert officers on the ground when he sees crossing violations. Officers will issue citations to the drivers.

In addition, troopers and policemen from Merriam, Lenexa and Olathe will be stationed at the Burlington Northern crossings to watch for violations.

The KCC said there were 131 accidents at grade crossings in Johnson County between 1969 and 1985, with 19 fatalities. During the same period, there were 344 accidents with 45 fatalities at crossings in Sedgwick County.

Reagan vows to help Nicaraguan friends

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, vowing "we will not abandon our friends in Nicaragua," said Tuesday that the Contra rebels should be guaranteed help from the United States if a newly signed Central American peace accord fails.

"In recent weeks the issue in Central America seems at times to have become confused — who is proposing what, how many likely votes are there on Capitol Hill for this or that," Reagan said in a speech to political appointees.

"But the real issue has never changed: the real issue is peace and democracy in Central America and the national security of the United States," he said.

The president used his address to outline priorities for his final 16 months in office.

He said "it's going to be a tough fight" to win Senate confirmation of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court, but he predicted victory. He said critics are wrong when they claim Bork is "some kind of right-wing ideologue."

Reagan also criticized the congressional budget process as "not reliable or credible" and called anew for a balanced budget amendment and new veto authority over spending.

The president devoted a single sentence to superpower relations, saying negotiations were under way on medium-range nuclear missiles that "hold out the hope of actually cutting both sides' nuclear arsenals."

At his first day back at work after a 25-day vacation, Reagan stumbled several times in his speech, saying at one point his administration had just six more months in office.

Power tools for the classroom.

The TI-74 offers BASIC programming with a 113 BASIC keyword set. There's 8K Constant Memory and subroutine capability for advanced programming flexibility.

The TI-95 offers powerful 7200-step keystroke programming and features our exclusive Power Windows,™ which provide easy access to the functions and flexible file management system.

TI programmable calculators have all the right functions and enough extra features to satisfy your thirst for power.

To all you science and engineering majors unsatisfied with mere calculators, TI has good news. Your power tools are here. The TI-95 PROXALC™ is keystroke programmable and the TI-74 BASICALC™ is BASIC language programmable. Each has a full range of scientific, mathematical and statistical functions, and plenty of power extras.

Both have optional equipment such as Solid State Software™ modules, including math, statistics and chemical engineering, and a module with an additional 8K Constant Memory. Additional power accessories include a separate portable printer and cassette interface.

So if you're into power, look for the display in your bookstore for a demonstration of our power tools. They build such a strong case for themselves, our competition doesn't know what to make of them.

TEXAS
INSTRUMENTS

Speech Unlimited excels on national level

Members' goal this year is top 10

By Jeff Stead
Collegian Reporter

Traveling across the Midwest and giving speeches sounds like a nightmare to most beginning speech students. But to the members of Speech Unlimited, K-State's competitive speaking team, it's a fun way to spend a weekend.

Jon Mertz, president, said he has gotten a lot out of Speech Unlimited. It has helped him to get over his shyness and helped with his everyday conversation.

"I enjoy speaking in front of people and competing, and this lets me do both."

Mertz said there are 11 events divided into two categories in competitive speaking: public speaking and interpretive speaking. Speeches are judged in two or three rounds. They are ranked from first to fifth and given a score between 25 and 50, with 25 being the highest.

Speech Unlimited was organized in 1975, said Lynne Ross, speech instructor and head coach. It was organized "to emphasize the individual speaker."

As more tournaments were held, more teams were organized across the country, she said. Now there are 120 to 130 schools represented at the national tournament.

"The schools we compete against vary in size from small schools with a couple of thousand (students) to big schools like Nebraska," Mertz said. The team is open to anyone. "It's definitely not just for speech people," he said. "We try to have fun and enjoy ourselves."

Although most of the students on the team are from Arts and Sciences,

Ross said almost all of the University's colleges are represented.

Speech Unlimited has done well on the national level over the past years. Their best effort came in 1982 with a second place finish. One team member, Vincent Bly, who graduated last spring, was last year's national champion in the dramatic interpretation event.

The team is planning to travel 15 times during the next two semesters. Its first competition of the year will be Sept. 18-19 in Ames, Iowa.

"The thing about this tournament," Mertz said, "is there will be two types of people. The experienced people, who have one or two things worked up, and the others who are just testing themselves to see if they want to stay."

The team will be hosting a tournament Oct. 17-18.

"If anyone wants to see what forensics is all about they can stop by Denison and Eisenhower halls," Ross said.

The coaches of Speech Unlimited are very excited about this year's team, she said.

"We have 30 new freshman and 15 returning experienced members this year, and that's very exciting."

Ross said it is hard to tell how the team will do this year because of all the new people. Their goal is to once again make the program one of the 10 best in the nation.

Anyone interested in joining should stop by Room 102 in Nichols Hall during regular business hours or Room 311 in Nichols on Monday, Wednesday or Friday at 3:30 p.m.

Soviets open radar system

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Three congressmen who visited a Soviet radar system said Tuesday they were unable to conclude if the unit violates the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty but they praised the Soviets for permitting access to the secret facility.

"This was an extraordinary step in confidence-building, an extraordinary visit for arms control," said Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., in a statement echoed by Reps. Jim Moody, D-Wis., and Bob Carr, D-Mich.

They spent a day last week inspecting the Soviet radar system at Krasnoyarsk, a facility in the central Soviet Union which has been the focus of a superpower dispute.

The Reagan administration contends the radar is designed to track incoming enemy nuclear missiles, a purpose known as battle management, and is thus banned by the 1972 treaty limiting such systems. The Soviets argue that the radar is for tracking of objects in deep space, which would not be a violation.

At the State Department, spokesman Charles Redman said: "We see no evidence in the information available now which would alter our conclusion that the radar under construction at Krasnoyarsk constitutes a violation of the ABM treaty."

Redman called the visit "a small but welcomed step toward increased openness in the Soviet Union," and said the Soviets allowed it at a time when they are seeking to generate "maximum positive publicity" as Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze prepares to visit Washington next week.

In a report to House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, the three congressmen concluded, "based on what we saw, we judge the probability of Krasnoyarsk functioning as a battle-management radar to be extremely low."

But they also said, "we are unable to form a clear judgment on the question of early-warning vs. spacetrack."

In any case, the report said, the system will not be operational for at least two years.

"Whether the installation is early-warning or spacetrack, it clearly is not deployed," said the report. "Thus, we judge it to be not a violation of the ABM treaty at this time. However, due to its ambiguous nature, we would no longer be able to make that statement if the project were carried through to completion."

The three legislators are critics of President Reagan's arms control policies. In their report, they said U.S. national security would be well served by the House insisting on its arms control positions, stands which are opposed by the White House.

The visit to the radar facility was part of a week-long trip to the Soviet Union that the three House members took during the congressional summer recess. With Congress returning Wednesday, nuclear arms control issues are expected to be one of the prime topics.

The congressmen said westerners previously had not been permitted to visit the Krasnoyarsk facility, which includes an 11-story transmitter and an 30-story radar receiver.

On their visit Saturday, they were accompanied by several electronics experts from the House Armed Services Committee. Also present was Thomas Cochran, a physicist with the Natural Resources Defense Council, a private group which helped organize the trip.

Anthony Battista, a member of the committee staff and an expert on Soviet military systems, said the group was permitted to take more than 1,000 pictures.

The report said, "our access to Krasnoyarsk was dramatic and extensive. At no point were our notes, tapes or photographs censored or even examined by Soviet officials in any way."

But it continued, "nevertheless, access was not absolutely unfettered ... internal examination may have been subject to some restrictions."

The facility has several radars operating together with a radar beam that is steered electronically instead of by a movable dish.

State Board of Education asks for an additional $40 million

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The state Board of Education Legislative Committee, in the shadow of a special session that failed to produce a comprehensive highway bill because of potential tax increases, Tuesday put the finishing touches on a budget proposal calling for a $40 million increase in state aid to schools.

Board members see it as a way to spell "relief" for local property taxpayers.

"The concern is that the property tax burden is almost at its limit in most school districts," said board member Connie Hubbell of Topeka.

Board members want to shift that burden away from the property tax, and believe it can be done by using the anticipated revenues from the federal income tax reform windfall to increase state aid to education.

The proposed budget will increase state school equalization aid by $40 million and increase the overall general fund budget by 6 percent, part of which is due to an increase in student enrollment.

The state would increase its funding by 10.3 percent over current levels under the proposed budget.

The state currently contributes $456 million in general aid to the state's 305 local school districts. The board wants to increase that figure to $496 million.

The increase in state equalization aid is intended to eliminate substantial increases in property taxes and permit school districts to increase teachers' salaries to a level comparable to the national average. Teachers' salaries have been stable in Kansas, Hubbell said, but have not been increased in two years.

Board member Richard Robl of Hutchinson, while supporting the proposal, said it will take aggressive salesmanship to persuade lawmakers to increase the state's aid to local schools.

"Anytime you ask for money, our Legislature will review it very carefully," said Dale Dennis, assistant education commissioner. "I think the Legislature might be sympathetic to holding down the property tax to a reasonable level."

The board also will recommend that area vocational-technical schools receive $2 million in state capital outlay to maintain facilities and equipment on campus.

The area vocational-technical schools have not received funds for building maintenance or equipment in the last two years, Hubbell said.

A number of the area school facilities are older than 20 years and in need of repair, said Dennis. Roof repair will be given a high priority, he added.

The board is expected to formally act on the proposed budget at its Wednesday meeting and send it to Gov. Mike Hayden later this month.

Hubbell said the state Board of Education will advocate that money from the windfall tax, funds the state will receive because of changes in the federal income tax, be used to pay at least a portion of the state's funding. The state will receive an estimated $135 million in windfall.

PAZAZZ
hair designs

Peggy — our newest Pazazz designer — welcomes all former clients to call or stop by.—
For your personal appointment call Peggy soon!

1140 Westloop 537-9825

WE'RE LOOKING FOR A FEW GOOD PEOPLE!

Student Governing Association Elections Committee

Ambitious students needed to fill the positions of: Vice-Chair, Publicity, Campaign Materials, Data Processing, Equipment, Expenditures and Poll Workers.

Applications Available in the SGS office

SGA Applications Due
Sept. 14 at 5 p.m.

For more information call SGA Hotline 532-7777

NO PAIN, NO GAIN?
THAT'S INSANE!

Slender You® takes the work out of your workout. In just one hour, our special six-machine, high-repetition exercise program can help you accomplish the same thing it would take half the day to struggle through on your own. With your very first session, you'll start losing inches and recharge your vitality and zest for life.

Try Slender You—where the work out won't work you over.

Slender You®
Fitness for the Rest of Us!

3232 Kimball Candlewood Center 776-3308

© 1987, Slender You, Inc.

CHALLENGE YOUR ROOMMATE TO A GAME OF PUTT PUTT

TANS TO GO
1214-C Moro—In Aggieville
—OPENING SPECIAL—
Buy 5 get 1 free
776-7874

LAFEMME
(GYN/Family Planning)
CLINIC:

Available Services

- * Birth Control Information & Prescriptions
- * Pregnancy Counseling & Referrals
- * Pregnancy Testing
- * Routine Gynecological Exams
- * Self Breast Exam Instruction
- * Sexuality Information
- * Sexually Transmitted Disease Information

LAFENE
HEALTH CENTER
"Your Medical Facility"
532-6554

Robes of Calif.

The robe you'll always reach for whether you're running down the hall or packing for a weekend trip. 75% cotton 25% poly

ONLY $26

UNDERCOVER
1224 Moro, Aggieville
Free Gift Wrap
Open 7 Days

Wendy's

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Take This Coupon To Wendy's

Wendy's

$1.99

"SINGLE COMBO MEAL"

• 1/2 lb. hamburger • Regular fries • Medium drink

Offer expires Sept. 20, 1987

Good only at the Manhattan Wendy's. Limit one coupon per customer. Not valid with any other coupon. Cheese and tax extra.

412 N. 3rd Street 3006 Anderson

ERIKSEN SPORTS MEDICINE
CLINIC

- * Evaluation, Diagnosis, Treatment, Rehabilitation of sports related injuries and problems
- * Determine Body Fat Percentages
- * Heat Stress Information
- * Information and advice on Fitness, Injury Prevention, Health Effects of Exercise
- * MUCH, MUCH MORE

Walk-in Clinic
8-9:30 a.m. Mon.-Fri.
1-2:30 p.m. Mon.
1-2 p.m. Tues., Thurs., Fri.

For Appointments
532-7880

Lafene Health Center

UPC's travel committee offers variety

By Brett Hacker
Collegian Reporter

For those students who have either seen all there is to see on campus or who just want to see some other part of the nation, the Union Program Council's travel committee has just the ticket.

Michael Penner, first-year program adviser, said the committee has planned three one-day trips and one major trip for K-State students so far for this year. He said more "mini-trips" are expected for the spring semester.

Penner said UPC's travel planning committee and resource center has three major functions. The committee, consisting of six students and one chairperson, decides which trips UPC will sponsor.

Secondly, the center makes available international student identification cards, which can be purchased for $10. These cards allow a student to receive discounts on items such as airplane tickets, lodging and food when traveling internationally.

Thirdly, the committee maintains the center, located on the third floor of the Union in the UPC office. The center provides free pamphlets and information sheets about all 50 states, as well as materials on international travel.

"Students can come up here (to the resource center), if they are going some place, and pick up some information for their trip."

—Michael Penner

"Students can come up here (to the resource center), if they are going some place, and pick up some information for their trip," Penner said.

The first mini-trip sponsored by UPC will be to the Renaissance Festival in Bonner Springs on Sept. 19. Penner said space is limited to 21 people for the trip; 10 students have already signed up. The cost for this trip is $15.

Other trips include a horse racing excursion to Lincoln, Nebr. on Oct. 10 and a shopping trip to the Plaza in Kansas City, Mo. for the Christmas season on Dec. 5.

Penner said the annual ski trip has been canceled due to the lack of student support. He said he plans to try to have one next year.

He said the main reason for the ski trip cancellation was because students had to sign up earlier for the ski trip than for other trips.

This year's major trip is scheduled during spring break, March 11-20, to Padre Island, Texas. There will be room for 64 people. The trip costs $198 per student. This charge covers a student's hotel accommodations.

Transportation will not be provided for this trip. Students will meet at Padre Island. Penner said there has been great support for this trip in the past. He said students appreciate the flexibility in the transportation.

Students can sign up for these trips in the activities center.

Venezuelan floods leave 1,000 hurt, 20,000 homeless

By The Associated Press

MARACAY, Venezuela — Civilian volunteers joined troops and civil defense units Tuesday in the search for survivors of a 10-foot-deep tide of mud that swept hundreds of cars off a mountain road.

No official casualty figures have been released. Unofficial reports said there were 150 known dead in the mudslide and floods, 250 missing, 1,000 people injured and 20,000 homeless.

The mudslide roared down the mountain Sunday after torrential rains, wiping out three miles of the road.

Col. Hector Vargas, who was involved with the army rescue effort, pointed into the mountains in the direction of the road and said: "It is a very ugly disaster. There must be plenty of dead still up there."

Army helicopters carried food and medical supplies to the stricken area.

Families were caught returning home from outings when tons of mud, boulders and uprooted trees swept across the highway that runs through the mountains between Maracay and the beach resort of Ocumare de la Costa on Venezuela's central coast.

Luis Mora, a survivor, said a crowded bus was swept over the edge as people tried to squirm through its windows and a woman he was trying to save was torn from his grasp.

"I saw arms sticking out of the mud from some of the buried cars," he said. An estimated 200 cars and several buses were buried or trapped by the mudslide.

Giuseppe Morello said: "Trees started falling and you could see the mud arriving. I saw dead people all over."

Carlos Tablante, who is a member of the national congress and survived the slide, said long lines of vehicles had been created by the collapse of a bridge.

During heavy rain at about 4 p.m., he said, the earth shook and "a slide of clay and rocks rushed down from the top of the mountain and crashed against the cars in the highway."

Another survivor said: "A tree flattened my car. My family and I left quickly and found ourselves with hundreds of people trying to escape the highway. It was like a pilgrimage through hell."

Many survivors said about 3,000 people were at the scene of the landslide. They estimated that 1,000 were rescued. Others reached high ground and were being rescued by helicopters, officials said.

President Jaime Lusinchi visited El Limon and El Progreso, two devastated neighborhoods of Maracay, and ordered an immediate relief effort.

Fight against forest fires making steady progress

By The Associated Press

Firefighters made slow but steady progress Tuesday against huge forest fires still burning out of control in the West, but a "gray murk" of smoke sickened some of them, kept trucks from hauling their gear and grounded aircraft.

About 1,000 people were still unable to return to their homes in California because of fire danger. Army infantrymen traded rifles for hoes and shovels to mop up fires in Oregon.

More than 1,000 square miles of brush and timber have burned in eight Western states since lightning began setting hundreds of fires on Aug. 28.

"We've always been thankful we don't have hurricanes, tornadoes or stuff like that," said Jim Baxter, a timber sales administrator for national forests at Weaverville, Calif. "But now we got our own homegrown natural disaster."

More than 1,000 fires had burned over 519,000 acres in northern California, and nearly 111,000 acres were blackened in southern Oregon.

Combined with 30,000 acres charred in Idaho, and smaller fires in Arizona, Montana, South Dakota, Washington and Wyoming, fires had blazed across 670,700 acres, or 1,048 square miles.

In addition to the Western fires, 10,000 acres of grass and trees had burned on the island of Hawaii in Hawaii Volcanoes National Park. Some firefighters from California were sent to help halt that fire.

All but 186 of about 1,250 lightning-sparked fires in California had been contained but huge groups of fires were still out of control in the Klamath, Shasta, Trinity, Stanislaus and Mendocino national forests. Fourteen major fires were still out of control in Oregon, said Barbara Kennedy, a spokeswoman for firefighting agencies.

Despite fires that nearly surrounded the northern California town of Hayfork and were as close as a mile away, children went to school as usual Tuesday and played outside in the smoky air while crews finished constructing fire lines to protect the town.

A battalion of 650 soldiers from Fort Ord, Calif., took over mop-up work on a 10,000-acre fire near Takilma, Ore.

"What we are doing here is protecting the American people and the American homeland without M-16s and bayonets," said Capt. Andy Buchanan. "This time we are doing it with hoes and shovels."

The Army effort allowed some of the 9,300 professional firefighters on the job in Oregon to shift their attention to two other fires in the Siskiyou National Forest, said Ron DeHart, a spokesman for the Oregon Unified Coordinating Group in Salem, which oversees the state's firefighting effort. The two fires have blackened 32,600 acres.

"We're making some big headway, finally," said Ms. Kennedy.

Some of the 13,000 firefighters at work in California, many of them from other states across the nation, had been allowed to go home but others were forced to the sidelines by fatigue and smoke.

"People are starting to show the effects in health-related ways, with dizziness and disorientation," said John Garland of the Forest Service.

Few air tankers or other firefighting aircraft joined the fire battle because of the dense smoke, said Mike Milosch of the U.S. Forest Service.

Be FREE
of Laundry
this semester!
at Fremont Laundry,
304 Fremont,
We do it like mom did!
a $90 value for Only $5.25 for a full semester
(16 weeks).
Bring in your laundry and get your coupon book today.
Pick up your freshly laundered clothes
24 hours later!

STUDENTS ONLY

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Series

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nathan's Towers—Aggieville

Don't Worry
About Your Weight...
Do Something
About It

Ask About Our Weight Control
Classes

Fall Schedule:

Monday

3:30-4 p.m.

Wednesday

3:30-4 p.m.

(Classes begin

Sept. 14 & 16)

Lafene Health Center

Room 122

For more information
call 532-6544

"CAREER OPPORTUNITIES AS AN OFFICER OF MARINES"

An informative 15-minute slide presentation followed by a question-answer session describing the Platoon Leaders Class (PLC) Officer Commissioning Program and how it can benefit you. September 8, 9, 10, 1987, 3 p.m. at the K-State Union Rm. 208. P.L.C.

Wichita Family Planning Inc.

Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services

Free Pregnancy Testing

Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.

3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

Movie Quik is here

Movie Rentals $1.99

Video Players $4.99

OPEN 24 HOURS

1445 ANDERSON

Firestone

PRE-MALL OPENING COUPON LUBE, OIL & FILTER MAINTENANCE ANALYSIS

Lubricate your vehicle's chassis, drain old oil, and add up to five quarts of new oil and install a new oil filter.	Reg. Price $15.95	14-point check on the condition of your car's brakes, suspension, exhaust, belts, hoses, battery, fluid levels and tires.	Reg. Price $9.95
---	------------------------------	---	-----------------------------

Both for only $14.88

Coupon Expires Sun., Sept. 12, 1987

90 DAYS SAME AS CASH on revolving charge at Firestone stores and many dealers. Minimum monthly payment required. All finance charges refunded when paid as agreed. We also honor VISA, MasterCard, Discover Card, American Express, and credit plans shown on available at Firestone Stores. See your independent dealers for their prices and credit plans. See starred (*) locations for MasterCard service.

Across from Dillards—Town Center Mall

Mon.-Fri. 7:30-5:30

307 N. 3rd. Sat. 8:00-4 p.m. Ph. 776-4849

SAFEWAY

222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson
539-3226 776-5202

New Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

Specials Sept. 9-15

Pepsi, Diet Pepsi, Pepsi Free
2 liter bottle 99¢

Budweiser
12, 12 oz. cans $4.89

Nabisco Oreo Cookies
20 oz. package $1.99

Mrs. Wrights Sandwich Bread
20 oz. package 2 for $1

Check cashing with student I.D.

Bud's Mystery of the Week:

The Search for Caren Concern

Authorities are sending a plea to the good citizens of the KSU community for the safe capture of Caren Concern. Ms. Concern is wanted for failing to previously volunteer for the FONE Crisis Center. She has been described as a caring individual with a desire to help others in need.

Please help Bud (pictured at left) in his search by calling 532-6565 if you know anyone who fits this description.

ATTENTION

Make Reservations for Organization Group Pictures
for the Royal Purple

NOW

thru September 18.

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through Nov. 6, but you need to make reservations now.

Cut 'n Care

Cut'n Class Collection!

Get back to school, and back to work, with a collection of the newest hairstyles. Then use Roffler professional hair products to help repair summer damage and maintain your new hair fashion. It's the Cut 'n Care, Fall Cut'n Class Collection, only at your Roffler Family Hair Center.

RAY'S HAIR MAXIM
622 N. Manhattan—Aggieville

M-F 8-8
SAT. 8-5, SUN. 1-5
Walk Ins Welcome
537-8620

ROFFLER
FAMILY HAIR CENTER

Kelley Carlson and Shawnee Call block a spike during K-State's victory over Oral Roberts University Tuesday.

Spikers remain unbeaten

'Cats get past ORU

By Jeff Rapp
Sports Editor

As the season continues, competition gets tougher, wins get harder to come by and margins of victory get smaller. But so far, the K-State women's volleyball team has come out on top.

After easily capturing three-game match victories over the University of Missouri at Kansas City and Drake University to open the season, the Wildcats had to play at a higher level to defeat Oral Roberts University 15-9, 12-15, 15-12, 15-12, in Ahearn Field House Tuesday night.

When the 'Cats jumped to a 7-1 lead in the first game, things looked as though they would follow the pattern of the season-opening thrashings of lesser opponents. Those matches lasted 47 minutes and 50 minutes, respectively. The match against ORU took almost two hours — longer than the previous match times combined.

K-State Head Coach Scott Nelson said the Lady Titans were the best competition thus far for K-State and a victory over them was "just what the doctor ordered."

"(ORU) was by far our best competition of the year," Nelson said. They have such a dynamic offensive attack that they come at you from probably seven or eight different ways from the front row, plus I saw them attack really well from the back row.

"This was a good volleyball match. It was just what we needed to test ourselves and our self-confidence, and measure us to see where we are at heading into the rest of the season," Nelson said.

Nelson said his team may have slipped into a mindset after its easier victories.

"The problem is you start to expect just to win. In our first two matches, we played so flawlessly I think we put a reverse pressure on ourselves and just expected to come out and play well. Each match gets tougher and challenges us mentally a little bit more," Nelson said.

"Each match has been more of a challenge and it seems like we've found a way to win each time. This time we were challenged all the way through and now the competition will get much tougher," he said.

One major force behind K-State's victory was Shawnee Call. The junior standout — who is just coming off a shoulder injury and is being worked back into the starting lineup — collected a team-high 19 kills and 17 digs. Nelson was pleased with Call's progress.

"My idea was that (Call) needs time to work back into the lineup and into our offense and defense, and she hadn't (previously) had any quality playing time yet. Tonight was the first opportunity for her. I was going to bring her in regardless of whether we were ahead or behind," Nelson said.

When Call did finally come in for the second game, she never left the match. It was her play that sparked the team to the win.

"(Call staying in for three games) really surprised me. I expected her to come out (of the match)," Nelson said. "I thought both Shawnee and Lynda (Harshbarger) dominated offensively."

Harshbarger, a 5-foot-10 sophomore, had 15 kills — the second-highest tally for the Wildcats.

One problem the 'Cats battled that may have made the match harder to win was serving errors. Nelson said the team has been working on that area.

"I'm trying to get them to serve tough," he said. "The serves that irritate me are the ones that are easy and still go into the net. I don't care if they mess up the tough ones."

ORU coach Jim Giacomazzi looks forward to playing K-State each time the opportunity arises. He said because the teams are evenly matched, the competition always proves to be exciting.

"This is one I always get pumped for, because the teams are so evenly matched," Giacomazzi said. "We always play tough with each other, so it's a lot of fun to see the improvement throughout the course of the year."

The visiting coach also praised the play of the youthful Wildcats.

"(K-State has) a young team that's playing really well and they're improving steadily, so they should do really well in the Big Eight. The momentum that they're getting right now with some early wins gives the team a lot of confidence and I look for them to be real tough," Giacomazzi said.

The Wildcats next see action this weekend.

Strike deadline set; talks will continue

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The NFL Players Association said Tuesday it will strike on Sept. 22, after the second week of the season, unless there is considerable progress toward a new contract with the owners.

"Management left us no choice but to set a strike deadline," Gene Upshaw, the executive director of the players association, said after the 24-4 vote by the player representatives of the 28 teams.

"We're willing to bargain, but we can only do that at the bargaining table. And by setting a deadline, we hope to get management to talk with us," Upshaw said.

Jack Donlan, executive director of the Management Council, said in a statement released by spokesman John Jones that the sides would set a date for resumption of negotiations Friday, the day after the owners meet in Chicago to discuss the situation. Upshaw said he hoped the talks could resume on that day.

The two sides have met for just 4½ hours since Aug. 14 and the contract expired Aug. 31. Each side has accused the other of not wanting to bargain face-to-face.

"Right now we know what the deadline is," Upshaw said. "Jack and I have to work against that deadline, and if we don't meet that deadline the next step will be taken, which is a strike."

Asked if the strike deadline was firm, Upshaw replied: "At this point the date is there, but everything is negotiable."

The current deadline is the same as it was five years ago, when the players struck after the second week of the regular season. The walkout lasted 57 days, eliminating seven games of the 16-game regular season.

In fact, the last four negotiations with the union have resulted in strikes, the previous ones during the exhibition season.

The announcement of the strike date came following a meeting between the NFLPA executive board and most of the league's player representatives.

KC's rookie hot

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kansas City rookie Gary Thurman has always impressed with his legs, but it was his arm and then his bat that opened eyes at Royals Stadium last weekend.

Thurman, called up Sept. 1, stole 57 bases this season for Class AAA Omaha and has the exceptional speed particularly suited for the expansive, artificial surface at Royals Stadium.

Chicago baserunners found out about his arm when he threw out one runner at the plate Friday night, then caught another at third base and another at home again Saturday.

"I think they know I'm just up here," said Thurman, whose perfect throw from left field cut down Pat Keedy with the tying run in a 5-4 Kansas City win over the White Sox Saturday. "They know I'm a rookie. They just wanted to test me, to see what I could do."

"Maybe now they won't send anyone on me. If they do, maybe I'll continue to be lucky and they'll stop sending them."

Thurman also made a long, running catch of a line drive Saturday night to "save another run."

"I guess there is luck in everything," he said. "I knew it was deep and I knew I'd have to get back on it. When you're throwing, you know it has to be right on line. You can't be a foot inside, or a foot outside."

Left field has been a glaring weakness for the Royals. Bo Jackson's speed did not always compensate for his inexperience and inability to get good jumps on fly balls. Lonnie Smith has been a notoriously bad outfielder.

Thurman played center field at Omaha, but has put in extra work in left.

"It's hard for me to learn a new position," he said.

Struggling at the plate, Thurman broke out of a slump Sunday with a two-for-four day while starting in his natural centerfield in place of Willie Wilson. He has six hits in his 24 at-bats since being called up to move his average to .250 with a double.

Big Eight QB spots seem fairly solid

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The most vital position on any football team seems to fairly solid at most Big Eight schools heading into the 1987 season.

Colorado's veteran wishbone operative, Mark Hatcher, has cleared up his academic problems and will start Sunday when the Buffs open the season against Oregon. Coach Bill McCartney had professed plenty of confidence in Hatcher's backups in the event that his only experienced wishbone quarterback was unavailable. But McCartney was not at all hesitant when asked Tuesday if Hatcher is his starter.

"You bet he is," McCartney said in the Big Eight's weekly telephone news conference with head coaches.

Second-ranked Nebraska, which hosts No. 3 UCLA Saturday in the colleges' game of the week, will be under the direction of junior Steve Taylor, whose 157 yards rushing last week against Utah State set a school record.

Missouri's new wishbone will also be in capable hands, assures Coach Woody Widenhofer.

"Ronnie Cameron has been playing the best football of his life," in pre-season practice," Widenhofer said. Cameron, a quick, sturdy junior, has been injury-prone since he arrived at Missouri, however.

"But so far he's been injury-free, and he's playing very, very well," Widenhofer said. But if Cameron should falter — or even if he doesn't — the Tigers may well see SMU transfer John Stollenwerck running their new offense.

"Cameron is probably a little quicker in the open field and his passing arm is probably a little stronger," said Widenhofer, whose Tigers open their season at home Saturday against Baylor. "But Stollenwerck is probably a little more accurate as a passer. He has proven to us that he's a very good football player."

Iowa State and Kansas insist they have two quarterbacks apiece. Iowa State Coach Jim Walden said Tuesday he will start the season against Tulane Saturday with Brett Sadek under center.

"But only because he's a fifth-year senior," said Walden, this year's only newcomer to the Big Eight's head coaching ranks. Fourth-year junior Derek DeGennaro will also see action, Walden said.

"They both will play and they both will play quite a bit," he said.

Even though he's settled upon underclassman Kelly Donohoe as his starting quarterback Saturday against Auburn, Kansas Coach Bob Valesente insists that senior Mike Orth will be heard from.

"We don't have a No. 1 and a No. 2 quarterback," Valesente said. "We have a No. 1 and a No. 1-A. I feel very comfortable with our quarterback situation. It's nice to know that there will be a quarterback with me along the sideline who's capable of going in there and turning the game around."

Walden, Valesente and Widenhofer are no doubt hoping that one quarterback will step smartly to the fore and claim the position the way Gary Swim did Saturday for Kansas State. Replacing Tim Hanson starting the second half, Swim, a junior college transfer, threw three touchdown passes to John Williams, rallying the Wildcats from a 16-0 deficit to a 22-19 lead in a game they eventually lost to Austin Peay 26-22.

"Gary Swim and John Williams were great for us in that second half," said K-State Coach Stan Parrish, promising that Swim will start in two weeks when the Wildcats host Army. "Williams showed the potential we've always felt he had."

Oklahoma is still under the direction of all-conference wishbone wizard Jamelle Holieway, the only freshman ever to lead a team to the national championship. But Coach Barry Switzer says it's nice to know there are people like Charles Thompson waiting in the wings. In the 64-14 crushing of North Texas State Saturday, Thompson rushed for three touchdowns and passed for another.

"Charles Thompson is going to be a very good player for us. We are certain of that," Switzer said.

Oklahoma State running back Thurman Thomas, in his quest to erase Mike Rozier's Big Eight career rushing record, is exactly 18 inches ahead of schedule. The smooth-running senior came into the year with 2,982 yards, needing to average 163.5 to overtake the 4,780 Rozier piled up for Nebraska. In Oklahoma State's season-opening victory over Tulsa Saturday, Thomas got 164.

If Thomas stays healthy and productive, O-State's promotional machinery will go into high gear in its Heisman hype.

"I think it's pretty obvious that Thurman is one of the best running backs in the nation," said Cowboy Coach Pat Jones.

Preseason optimism down drain; 'new and improved' team falters

It may take more than a Willie Nelson concert to bring people back to KSU Stadium to watch football after this one.

Austin Peay State 26, K-State 22. So much for the preseason optimism. So much for all the talk of four or five wins. If K-State can't beat Austin Peay, a NCAA Division I-AA member of the Ohio Valley Conference, just who can they beat?

Good question. With the promise of bigger, stronger, faster players, most of the 23,000 in the stands thought they were going to see a new and improved K-State team Saturday night. The kind of team that takes teams like Austin Peay, batters them into unconditional submission, scores at least 35 points and leaves the field cocky and asking for fresh meat.

What they got was the same kind of team K-State has fielded for most of the last two decades. A loser. Only a slightly improved version of the team that lost to Northern Iowa the past two seasons.

At least this loss wasn't quite as hard to stomach as some of the losses of the past two years; humiliations at

Mid-week Commentary

TOM PERRIN
Sports Columnist

the hands of Wichita State, North Texas State and, of course, Northern Iowa. At least this time, people knew how to take it. In past years, the average K-State fan reacted with shock and disgust. This year the mood was more "Oh well, it's nothing I haven't seen before. That's what I get for coming to K-State."

You asked for it. You got it. Basketball season is just around the corner. Ahearn ought to be rockin'.

It would seem K-State would have learned a lesson from its failures against I-AA competition in the past few years. Games against I-AA teams are no-win situations. If you win, it's no big deal. All you've done is beaten a team you were supposed to — one with a program that has less money to work with and gives 25 less scholarships.

Furthermore, these teams enter the games in no-lose situations. They know they aren't supposed to win, so they come in relaxed and psyched up and go out and cause problems. K-State's only win against I-AA competition in the past three years came in last year's season opener against Western Illinois.

One consolation is that for the rest of the season, and in the future, K-State will be playing all I-A competition. Future schedules include games with schools such as Arizona State, Ohio State and other top teams.

Another consolation is the performance of the Wildcat offense in the second half, particularly quarterback Gary Swim and wide receiver John Williams. The Swim to Williams connection accounted for three touchdowns, and looks as if it will be tough to deal with for opposing teams the rest of the year. Swim's passing performance of 8-of-15 for 143 yards and three touchdowns earned him a starting job.

Tim Hanson may have had a great stretch of practices to earn the starting job, but Swim looked like far the superior quarterback.

Even though Parrish has said Tony Jordan is the centerpiece of the Wildcat offense, it's going to be awfully difficult to resist passing more with Swim at quarterback and Williams' blazing speed at wide receiver.

As good as Swim and Williams looked though, remember it was against Austin Peay, supposedly the worst team K-State will face this year. The next two games will see the Wildcats face Army (two bowl trips in the last three years) at KSU Stadium a week from this Saturday and Big Ten Conference powerhouse Iowa at Iowa City the following week. Teams such as Oklahoma, Nebraska and Colorado loom in the future.

It may not be time for K-State to fold up the tent just yet. Beatable opponents like Tulsa, Missouri, Kansas and Iowa State still remain on the schedule. But if the Austin Peay debacle is any indication, that time might be coming very, very soon.

Pope's chair 'designed for the 2100s'

Garnett man constructs unique church furniture

By Staff and Wire Reports

GARNETT — When Pope John Paul II seats himself Sept. 19 in Michigan's Silverdome, he'll have Don McAfee to thank.

McAfee's Garnett Church Furnishings company is building the chairs, altar, pulpit, candlesticks and processional staff the pope will use during the Michigan part of his U.S. tour.

"I would say the pope is the biggest customer we've ever had," McAfee said Wednesday in his factory in Garnett, a town of about 3,300 people some 70 miles south of Kansas City. "We usually just sell to churches."

Architect Gunnar Birkerts of Birmingham, Mich., was hired to design furniture for the pope and sought help from McAfee, whom he knew from their work on a church in Columbus, Ind.

Despite the interest of priests and the chamber of commerce, McAfee, 67, considers the order just another job for the company his family started in 1879.

"We're hoping to be pretty much finished up this weekend — if nothing goes wrong," he said while surveying progress on the 18 pieces of furniture, including a 12-foot-long altar and a 6-foot-tall chair for the pope.

With McAfee's company averaging $1.5 million worth of work each year, employees have seen church furniture change over the years from elaborate moldings, carvings and cut-outs to plain, modern designs.

But they had never seen furniture as modern as the pope's.

McAfee describes the angular cherry furniture, which looks suited for the chapel of the Starship Enterprise, as "designed for the 2100s."

"It's kind of odd, really, but I guess that's the way they wanted it," McAfee said. "It was quite a challenge to build. Everything's all angles, so there was no way you could just sit down and build it. It took a lot of time."

Birkerts said he designed pieces that would have a sense of movement and that would accommodate the pope's habits, such as leaning on his left arm when seated.

"It's kind of odd, really, but I guess that's the way they wanted it. It was quite a challenge to build. Everything's all angles, so there was no way you could just sit down and build it. It took a lot of time."

—Don McAfee

Most of the pieces will be used when the pope celebrates Mass at the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich. Two smaller "pope's chairs" will be used at appearances in Detroit at Hart Plaza on the riverfront and in a Polish neighborhood.

McAfee will not say how much he is being paid for his works. Birkerts said the furniture will be bought for an undisclosed sum by Tom Monaghan, chief of the Domino's Pizza chain.

McAfee has invited the public in Garnett to look but not to touch the pope's furniture during an open house at his factory Sunday.

"I wouldn't mind letting people sit in the pope's chair, but that's just asking for trouble," he said.

Suburban homes costly purchase

Survey studies most affluent communities in U.S.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — For sale: nice house and yard, good neighborhood, convenient commute to city, $1.2 million.

That's no typo, according to a nationwide survey of 50 exclusive suburban communities released Tuesday. It found $1.2 million is the average price of a single-family home in the most expensive U.S. suburbs.

That distinction is shared by the New York bedroom communities of Greenwich, Conn., in lower Fairfield County northeast of New York City, and Mill Neck, N.Y., a tiny town at the northern tip of Nassau County on New York's Long Island.

The survey also found it takes at least $500,000 to buy a home in any of the country's top 40 suburban neighborhoods.

Montville, a tiny community in northern New Jersey, was at the bottom of the list, with an average home price of $440,000.

The Relo Broker Network, a Chicago-based residential broker referral organization that serves more than 13,000 communities nationwide, conducted the survey. Relo said figures were based on summer sales prices in what it described as "active, upscale real estate markets" served by the organization's 1,100 members.

"We're dealing with the most affluent buyers in America, so price and interest rates often become secondary considerations," Benjamin A. Rowe, president of the group and chairman of Preferred Properties Inc. of Greenwich, said in a statement accompanying the survey.

"If a potential buyer falls in love with a house in this marketplace, he often pays whatever it takes to make a deal, and that's why prices for luxury homes are skyrocketing nationwide," Rowe said.

The report said New York led all states with 18 suburbs in the top 50, followed by New Jersey with 12 and California with 10.

Connecticut's lower Fairfield County had three in the top 10, with Greenwich at $1.2 million, and New Canaan and Darien at $800,000 each. New Jersey's Bergen County had two $1 million-dollar suburbs, Alpine at $1.18 million and Saddle River at $1.15 million.

The survey did not specify what the buyer gets for the money. But Peter Helie, who runs the William Pitt Inc. real estate brokerage in Fairfield County, said that in Greenwich, $1.2 million would buy "four beds."

Otters relocated at new isle home to revive species

By The Associated Press

SAN NICOLAS ISLAND, Calif. — A second group of otters captured in an effort to revive the threatened species' population has been released at its new island home, officials said.

The 21 otters were released Sunday from pens where they had rested since Friday to adjust to their new environment, said Dian Hoobler, spokeswoman for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The new group joins 21 otters that survived last month's transfer from central California water to the island 75 miles southwest of Los Angeles. Five died during that transfer.

Hoobler said none of the otters transferred Sunday to San Nicolas Island have died.

History

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

ner that night," Reagan said. He estimated that the lecture of Jose Napoleon Duarte was the most expensive — close to $20,000.

Reagan expects the lecture by Nancy Landon Kassebaum to be the easier one of two to coordinate this month. Hers is the 76th lecture in the series — given in honor of her father's 100th birthday.

"I have tried to schedule the year's first lecture on Sept. 9 (Landon's birthday) since I've been chairman,"

Reagan said.

He said the lecture of Costa Rican President Oscar Arias, scheduled for Sept. 21, will require a greater time commitment to handle all the security details.

Reagan said he's already made "a hundred phone calls" and will meet several times with secret service agents before flying to Miami to meet the Arias party.

Reagan recounted the foul-up at the airport with President Duarte. The Secret Service agents were scheduled to arrive by separate jet in Manhattan ahead of Duarte.

"We assumed the first jet was the Secret Service, and we were just goofing around when who steps off the plane but President Duarte," Reagan said. "Then we stood there for 20 minutes waiting for security to arrive."

Flinchbaugh also told about being stuck at the airport, wondering if Sen. John Connally would show up. Connally had just dropped out of the presidential race, and Flinchbaugh had trouble locating him once Connally's staff had disintegrated.

"I finally got a woman to answer the phone at his ranch in Texas," Flinchbaugh said. "She said, 'He's out on the range sulking, but if he told you he'd be there then he'll be there.'"

TV Listings

By TV Data

WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 9, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KLDH	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	My Little Pony Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00		TBA		Bullwinkle Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Heathcliff	SportsLook Scuba World	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	She Ra G.I. Joe	Who's Boss M.T. Moore	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Auto Racing: Formula One	Movie: "No Man of Her"
10:00	Jeopardy! Lose or Draw	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Green Acres Leave It to	Body Electric Write Course	Waltons	Grand Prix of Italy	Own
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Chance Ask Dr. Ruth	Beaver Make Room	Communi. Focus/Society	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News Days of Our	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Andy Griffith I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	CFL Football: Edmonton at	Movie: "Crash"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Munsters	Nova	Major League Baseball	Calgary
2:00	Santa Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobelle Zoo	Tenko	Pittsburgh Pirates at Chi-	Auto Racing	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Ghostbusters Spooky Doo	Teddy Ruxpin Smurfs	Cooking On Aerobics	cago Cubs	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00	Facts of Life	Dallas	Jetsons P. Court	Reading Eight Is En-	3-2-1 Contact	Transformers	Karate: WKA Karate	Munsters Major League
5:00	3's Company	News CBS News	News ABC News	ough Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsCenter Sports	Baseball: San Diego Padres
6:00	News	News CBS News	Taxi M*A*S*H	Facts of Life Good Times	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Benson Soap	at Atlanta Braves
7:00	Billy Graham	New Mike Hammer	P. Strangers Head of Class	Star Trek	Natl. Geographic Spcl.	Movie: "Deja Vu"	Karate: WKA Karate	Movie: "Dixie Dynamite"
8:00	Bronx Zoo	Magnum, P.I.	AIDS in Kansas: A Town	Movie: "Drawl"	AIDS in Kansas: A Town		AWA Championship
9:00	St. Elsewhere	Equalizer	Hall Meeting		Hall Meeting	News INN News	Wrestling	Billy Graham Crusade
10:00	News	News	News M*A*S*H	Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	Darkside Trapper John	Tractor Pull SportsCenter	Movie: "Shaft in Africa"
11:00	Ent. Tonight	T.J. Hooker	Benson Nightline	Movie: "Caravan"	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D. Movie: "Tony"	SportsLook Speedway
12:00	Late Night	700 Club	Hot Shots	Sign-Off	Rome	Magic Years Bill Dance	"The Stepford Wives"

FALL PERFORMANCES NOW ON SALE

Roger Miller

"King of the Road and Showmanship" — Tulsa World

Guest Artist: Tom Chapin

Friday, September 25

General Public: $19, 17, 15

Students/Seniors: $16, 14, 12

The Children's Theatre Company/Little Women

"The finest children's theatre in the country." — L.A. Times

Wednesday, October 7

General Public: $12, 10, 8

Students/Seniors: $8, 6, 5

The Central Philharmonic Orchestra of China*

Jian Wang, cello soloist

North American debut tour

Tuesday, October 27

General Public: $20, 18, 16

Students/Seniors: $16, 14, 12

The Canadian Brass*

A special Christmas Program by the ensemble cheered by millions from Carnegie Hall to the China Wall

Sunday, December 6

General Public: $18, 16, 14

Students/Seniors: $14, 12, 10

*This program is presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

*This performance is part of a tour being made possible by a grant from Hallmark Cards, Inc.

Call 532-6428 to charge tickets on MasterCard or VISA.

Box Office open 12 noon to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday.

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1-15	16-25	26-35	36-45	46-55	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16-25	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
26-35	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
36-45	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
46-55	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20
21	22	23	24	25
26	27	28	29	30

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

K-STATE STUDENTS & FACULTY Welcome To Manhattan

AND TO

Prices Effective
Thru
Sept. 29, 1987.

Dillon Potato Chips & Snacks

8 oz. Plain, Rippled, BAR-B-Q, Sour Cream, No Salt, 7.5 oz. Thick Cut, 8 oz. Baked Cheese Puffs, Fried Cheese Krisps, Nacho Flavored Tortilla Chips or 10 oz. Corn Chips

FREE!

With
Coupon

Rocky Top Pop

Asst.
Flavors
2 Liters

39¢

With
Coupon

12 Pack Coors, Coors Light, Coors Extra Gold, Budweiser, Bud Light, Miller High Lite, Miller Lite, Miller Genuine Draft, 15 Pack Stroh or Stroh Light

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

Any 12" Deli Pizza

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

One Whole 8 Piece Golden Fried Chicken or One Whole WonderRoast Chicken

$1.00

OFF With Coupon

Del Monte

Golden Ripe Bananas

Lb.

19¢

With
Coupon

Any 6" Blooming or Foliage Plant or 8" Hanging Basket

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

Rent One Video Tape
Get One
FREE! WITH COUPON
BELOW!

—Dillon Coupon—

Rent One Tape Get One

FREE!

WITH THIS
COUPON

WRITE AMOUNT HERE

Limit 1 Tape With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

Dillon Potato Chips & Snacks

8 oz. Plain, Rippled, Bar-B-Q, Sour Cream, No Salt, 7.5 oz. Thick Cut, 8 oz. Baked Cheese Puffs, Fried Cheese Krisps, 8 oz. Nacho Flavored Tortilla Chips or 10 oz. Corn Chips

FREE!

With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Pkg. With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

Rocky Top Pop

Assorted Flavors, 2 Liter

39¢

With
This
Coupon

Limit 2 Btls. With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

12 Pack Coors, Coors Light, Coors Extra Gold, Budweiser, Bud Light, Miller High Lite, Miller Lite, Miller Genuine Draft, 15 Pack Stroh or Stroh Light

$1.00

OFF With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Pack With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

12" Deli Pizza

$1.00

With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Pizza With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

One Whole 8 Piece Golden Fried Chicken or One Whole WonderRoast Chicken

$1.00

With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Chicken With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

Dillon Coupon—

Golden Ripe Bananas

Del Monte

19¢

With
This
Lb. Coupon

Limit 1 Lb. With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

Any 6" Blooming or Foliage Plant or 8" Hanging Basket

$1.00

With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Plant With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

Auction Treasures

Oliver Hagg, Salina, goes to farm auctions "not looking for anything special." See Page 7.

Weather

Partly cloudy today with a 40 percent chance of late afternoon thunderstorms, high in low 80s.

For Matt Garver, starting offensive tackle for the K-State football team, weekdays can be very long. See Page 11.

Thursday
September 10, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 13

Kansas State Collegian

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., views photographs of past Landon Lecturers before giving the 76th address in the series on public issues named in honor of her father, Alf Landon. Kassebaum's speech Wednesday in McCain Auditorium marked Landon's 100th birthday.

Changes will test U.S., senator says

Speech honors Alf Landon's 100th birthday

By Jim Dietz
Collegian Reporter

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., delivered the 76th Landon Lecture on Public Issues Wednesday, speaking about "The Challenge of Change." She spoke in honor of her father Alf Landon's 100th birthday.

Related Stories/Page 6

Kassebaum spoke about the changes her father, the United States and the world have faced in the past 100 years. She remarked on the many ways life and the American people's experiences have changed over time.

"The past century has brought both a drastic shrinkage of time and distance and an explosion of knowledge," she said.

She said this change has affected both Americans' lives and the way they think.

"Even though our knowledge has increased, our perspective has narrowed," she said.

Americans "must work constantly to build and maintain a broader perspective on our world," she said.

In preparing her speech, Kassebaum said she went over the speech her father delivered in the first Landon Lecture in December 1966.

"I was struck not only by his specific observations, but by what he saw as the flow of events," she said.

She said the one-time GOP nominee for president predicted that nationalistic problems in Vietnam could spread to other regions of the world. He also urged for the need to normalize relations with the People's Republic of China.

Kassebaum said both of these observations came to pass and the world is still struggling with these challenges today.

The junior senator from Kansas also discussed changes occurring in both the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and in the People's Republic of China. Reforms in these countries seem to be primarily aimed at increasing the efficiency of their economies, she said.

■ See SPEECH, Page 12

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., presents the 76th Landon Lecture Wednesday on the 100th birthday of her father, Alf Landon.

Aquino Cabinet forced to resign

By The Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — The Cabinet resigned Wednesday under pressure from pro-business members seeking reorganization and stronger leadership after the coup attempt last month.

President Corason Aquino was grim-faced after an emergency Cabinet meeting. She gave no indication of which resignations would be accepted or when she would announce a new government, and she snapped at reporters: "You will know!"

Presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno said the 25 Cabinet members and three officials of the Commission on Good Government handed in hurriedly written letters of resignation during the 15-minute emergency meeting.

Among those resigning was Joker Arroyo, Aquino's executive secretary and closest adviser. Senior military officers, congressmen, prominent businessmen and church groups had sought his dismissal since the coup attempt by mutinous soldiers Aug. 28.

Officials said the pressure for resignations began after Arroyo alleged Tuesday in testimony before the House of Representatives that business leaders were undermining the government.

In Washington, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters: "We support Cory Aquino personally in her attempt to strengthen that government and to establish a rule of law and as much normalcy as possible in the existing circumstances."

It was the second mass resignation since Aquino came to power when former President Ferdinand E. Marcos fled the country Feb. 26, 1986.

Most ministers were retained in that reorganization, after a coup attempt Nov. 23 by followers of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, but Enrile was fired. He now is a senator and leads the political opposition.

Arroyo's remarks Tuesday also included accusations of disloyalty by the military. His three-hour speech brought into the open bitter Cabinet divisions and distrust between civilian authorities and the military.

Conflicts have increased since the Aug. 28 uprising because of the government's apparent inability to detect the plot in advance.

NAACP still awaiting Hayden's response

By Staff and Wire Reports

The NAACP complained Wednesday that it has not received a complete response from the Kansas governor's office to eight points raised last month during a private meeting with Gov. Mike Hayden.

Timothy Sullivan, a spokesman for the Kansas National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the governor has made just a partial response to the concerns discussed Aug. 24 during a meeting in Hayden's office.

Sullivan said Hayden promised the NAACP Steering Committee Coalition headed by Louisa Fletcher, also the state NAACP president, that he would have a response "in a couple of weeks."

He said the two weeks are up and that NAACP officials have received responses to just a few of the points raised at the meeting. He said Joe de la Torre, public liaison to the governor for minority affairs, told him Tuesday he could not give a timetable for the governor's response.

The Rev. Joseph S. Spence, president of the Manhattan branch of the NAACP, said he had given Hayden a time frame by the end of which he hoped to get a positive response to the issues raised by the group. However, that time frame elapsed Tuesday.

Sullivan said Wednesday that NAACP officials are not seeking another meeting or making demands. But they would like a response, he said.

Kathy Peterson, Hayden's press secretary, said the governor was willing to work with Fletcher and other NAACP officials if they are not satisfied with the response they have received.

"We'll just keep working with them. We've been willing to work with them anytime. We very much have an open-door policy," Peterson said.

Sullivan said De La Torre responded in a letter to an NAACP steering committee member to a question about the number of blacks in state government, but Sullivan said he had not seen the letter.

He said a letter to Fletcher apparently responded to a question about

■ See NAACP, Page 12

Iraqi raids claim 105 Iranians

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraq said its warplanes attacked Iranian cities, power plants, factories and oil centers Wednesday in retaliation for attacks on Kuwait and to force Iran to accept a U.N.-sponsored cease-fire.

Iraq said it shot down three Iraqi jets and captured one pilot when groundfire hit his French-built Mirage over the western city of Arak. Iraq acknowledged losing one plane.

Shipping executives worried that Iranian commandos in speedboats might stage another round of retaliatory raids on foreign merchant ships in the Persian Gulf, where U.S. warships have been guarding Kuwaiti tankers against attack by Iran.

"Iraq today avenged Iranian attacks on Kuwait in a series of powerful and destructive strikes staged by large numbers of Iraqi fighter jets on 13 different targets deep in Iran," said military communiques quoted by the official Iraqi News Agency, monitored in Cyprus.

The communiques said Iraq will "continue its attacks ... until the Iranian regime accepts to live with the people of the region in peace and puts an end to the war" in accordance with the July 20 U.N. cease-fire resolution.

Kuwait last week accused Iran of firing a Chinese-made Silkworm missile at its southern coast on Friday and appealed for urgent U.N. action. No casualties were reported.

INA said the Iraqi warplanes bombed 11 cities and two other industrial targets. It said later that Iran shelled the southern city of Basra and the northern border town of Khanaqin with long-range artillery.

Iraq's air force, which outnumbers Iran's depleted air force by around 8-1, flew 122 combat missions and helicopter gunships flew 43 more during the "day of revenge," INA said.

INA earlier said Iraqi planes hit two unidentified "large maritime targets," Tuesday night near Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal in the northern gulf. Iraq employs the term "maritime target" to describe commercial vessels, usually tankers.

Gulf-based shipping executives said they could not confirm the strikes, but said preliminary reports indicated two tugboats were hit and that one may have sunk.

Iraq's Islamic Republic News Agency, also monitored in Cyprus, acknowledged attacks on the western cities of Arak, Doroud and Bakhtaran and the village of Razgari near Piranshahr in northwest Iran. It said 105 civilians were killed or wounded.

■ See GULF, Page 12

Memory expert informs students about tactics for retention in reading

By Paula Selby
Collegian Reporter

A student who also happens to be listed in the "Guinness Book of World Records" for having the best memory of all mankind shared his memorization secrets Wednesday night.

Rajan Srinivasen Mahadevan, graduate student in psychology, spoke to a group of about 40 students at Erker Library in Edwards Hall on memorization and how it can be mastered.

Mahadevan set the new world record for memorizing the most digits of pi, a random number representing the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter. According to the "Guinness Book," he memorized 31,811 places in three hours and 49 minutes at the rate of 156.7 digits per minute.

He set the record in 1981 at the age of 23. He arrived in the United States from India on July 16, 1987, to begin his graduate studies.

"I'm very happy to be here (at K-State). It is a conservative place where people do a lot of good work," Mahadevan said. Mahadevan's "secrets" included four fundamentals of memory.

In order to remember something, he

■ See MEMORY, Page 12

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Hart trying to re-establish clout

NEW YORK — Gary Hart, receiving praise and sympathy for his soul-baring interview on national television, embarked Wednesday on a campaign to re-establish himself as a key player in the nation's political arena without joining the race for the White House.

Hart traveled to New York for a private luncheon meeting with two other prominent non-candidates, New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and Arkansas Gov. William Clinton, and arranged to deliver a foreign policy speech Thursday in Philadelphia.

"We didn't say anything surprising," Cuomo said after lunch at a restaurant atop the World Trade Center in Manhattan. Cuomo added that the subject of Hart's former candidacy did not come up.

The former Colorado senator was the front-runner for the 1988 Democratic nomination until he was driven from the race last spring amid questions about his relationship with Miami model Donna Rice.

He apologized for his actions in the 60-minute interview Tuesday night, and confessed he had also committed adultery during his 29-year marriage, although he refused to discuss whether Rice was involved.

Wedtech managers implicated

WASHINGTON — Former managers of Wedtech Corp. and ex-White House political director Lyn Nofziger unloaded $10 million of stock in a possible insider trading scheme, Wedtech's recently hired outside legal counsel testified Wednesday.

The scandal-plagued Bronx, N.Y., defense contractor's top officers, including founder John Mariotta, also "looted" the corporate treasury and set up a slush fund to exploit a Small Business Administration program aimed at helping minority contractors, Martin Pollner told the Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee on oversight of government management.

Relying on records supplied by Pollner, the panel said Nofziger, his lobbying partner Mark Bragg, and five Wedtech executives sold 1 million shares of Wedtech stock for $10 million on March 26-27 and April 9-10, 1986, before it was announced SBA had finally cut the contractor out of the so-called 8a program.

The revocation by SBA, because the company was no longer owned by minorities, sent the company's stock prices plummeting. The SBA 8a minority set-aside program provided almost all of Wedtech's business. Under it, the company had been awarded some $250 million in government work without competitive bidding.

Ford to recall 4.3 million autos

WASHINGTON — Ford Motor Co. on Wednesday announced a voluntary recall of 4.3 million 1986-88 cars, trucks and vans to correct problems that potentially could cause engine or fuel system fires.

The recall is the auto industry's largest since 1981.

It covers 2.3 million cars and 1.8 million light trucks with fuel-injected engines across Ford's product line, including the popular Mercury Sable and Ford Taurus models as well as Aerostar vans, company officials said.

Another 200,000 Econoline vans were recalled in a separate action so that a heat shield can be installed to prevent the fuel tank from overheating, causing gasoline to spurt out when opened.

Mecham 'disappointed' in strip

TUCSON, Ariz. — Gov. Evan Mecham said Wednesday he considers cartoonist Garry Trudeau's depiction of him in "Doodlesbury" comic strips appearing this week in newspapers nationwide as "brutish and grotesque."

But the governor said he doubts he will sue for libel.

Mecham, asked by reporters whether he was bothered by the strips, said, "It always disappoints me for anybody to tell things about me that aren't true. That disappoints me about anybody."

Monday's strip showed Mecham patting a black child on the head and saying, "My! What a cute little pickaninny." Tuesday's pictured him as blaming an effort to recall him on "queers and pickaninnies."

Wednesday's strip had Mecham boasting that a motorcycle gang wants to hold its convention in Arizona now that he has rescinded the state's Martin Luther King holiday.

Mecham was blasted earlier this year for refusing to criticize a reference to black children as "pickaninnies" in a book by his political mentor. He also drew fire when he rescinded a paid King holiday for state employees.

Opponents have begun a petition drive to force a recall election in the spring.

The governor said he found no humor in the "Doodlesbury" strips, calling them "brutish and grotesque."

Added Mecham: "I'll leave the issue in the comics where it belongs."

Upon hearing that Mecham probably won't sue, Bob Duffy, vice president for sales at the Universal Press Syndicate, which syndicates "Doodlesbury," said, "My understanding is that it would be almost impossible to libel the Arizona governor."

Lunden to host fall talk show

NEW YORK — Joan Lunden, on pregnancy leave from ABC's "Good Morning America" for a year, will be host of a new, one-hour syndicated talk show next fall, Paramount Domestic Television announced Wednesday.

Lunden, however, has no plans to leave her position as co-host of "Good Morning America." She has been on pregnancy leave since last summer and is due back in October. But with only one year left on her "GMA" contract, there is speculation she might leave the show permanently.

Former "GMA" news anchor Kathleen Sullivan has been substituting for Lunden. Her rapport with co-host Charles Gibson has sparked rumors that she might succeed Lunden.

The Paramount talk show will be produced by Lunden's husband, Michael Krauss.

New England foliage brilliant

MONTPELIER, Vt. — The annual show of brilliant fall foliage has opened early in northern New England, and foresters suspect dry conditions are responsible for the splashes of color.

But tourism officials said Wednesday the colors that draw an estimated 3 million "leaf peepers" to the region will last as long as usual — mid-October in southern parts — even with the early start.

Vermont and New Hampshire have had an unusually dry summer, which foresters say puts additional stress on trees and could be a factor in bringing out the color a week or two ahead of schedule. Maine, which has had fewer reports of early foliage, has had an average amount of rain this year.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

1987 Oozeball Tournament Entry Forms are available at the Hollis House and at the Information desk in the Union. Deadline for registration is Friday, Sept. 18.

TODAY

ICTHUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 8 p.m. in Union 212.

GAY AND LESBIAN RESOURCE CENTER meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 205.

SAILING CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 208.

PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213.

TAU BETA PI meets at 6:30 p.m. in Durland 152 for officer elections.

TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP QUESTION-AND-ANSWER SESSION FOR ALL SOPHOMORES meets at 3:30 p.m. in Union 203.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Ahmad Alwan Al-Madhagi at 10 a.m. in Bluemont 257. The dissertation topic is the "Development of a K-12 Environmental Education Program and Evaluation Instrument to Measure Environmental Education Knowledge and Attitudes of Yemen Arab Republic High School Students."

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Eric Laurence Trump at 3 p.m. in Willard 115. The dissertation topic is "New Analytical Reagents for the Determination of Sulfur Dioxide and Carbon Monoxide."

PI SIGMA EPSILON PLEDGE MEETING at 6 p.m. in Union 203.

ENGINEERING AMBASSADOR EXECUTIVES meet at 6:15 p.m. in Durland 152.

TAU BETA PI meets at 6:30 p.m. in Durland 152.

WILDLIFE SOCIETY meets at 7 p.m. in Acker 221.

SENATE INTERNS meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union Big 8 room.

MORTAR BOARD. Applications for the Mortar Board Scholarship may be picked up in the Union Activities Center and are due Friday, Sept. 18.

AG AMBASSADORS meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137.

SOCIETY FOR ADVANCEMENT OF MANAGEMENT meets at 9 p.m. in Union, main floor.

CAREER PLANNING AND PLACEMENT will conduct placement orientation meetings for seniors in biology, fisheries and wildlife biology, life sciences, and microbiology at 3:30 p.m. in Eisenhower 15; foods and nutrition at 11:30 a.m. in Holtz Hall and general home economics at 4:15 p.m. in Holtz Hall.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF BLACK ENGINEERS meets at 6 p.m. in Durland 161.

45 Years Serving America's Children

Support the March of Dimes

The Station

THUR. BIG "C" NIGHT (that famous mexican beer with a lime on top)

BIG "C" MEXICAN BEERS 99¢

DRINKS (ANY BRAND) - $1.50

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

The Ranch SALOON

Country Swing Lessons
Monday, Sept. 14
8 p.m.
$10 per couple
Every Monday night for 6 weeks
A Class B Private Club
3 mi. East Highway 24
539-4989

AGGIEVILLE FLOWERS
12th and Laramie

Watch for our Weekly Cash
and Carry Specials

537-9549
10-5 Mon.-Sat.

WORLD WRESTLING FEDERATION PRESENTS
FRI, SEPT. 11 8PM
SPECIAL RETURN
STEEL CAGE MATCH!
INTERCONTINENTAL CHAMPIONSHIP

HONKY vs. JAKE
TONK MAN "THE SNAKE" ROBERTS

TAG TEAM ACTION!
KILLER BEES VS. KAMALA & SIKI

WWF WOMENS CHAMPIONSHIP
SENSATIONAL SHERRI MARTELL vs. VELVET MCINTYRE

DANGEROUS DANNY DAVIS vs. KOKO B. WARE
PLUS MUCH, MUCH MORE!

Card is subject to change.

KTPK 107
Presented by KTPK Country 107.
Tickets available Expo/Ente Box Office and Tapes - Mother Earth, Lwings West and Lwings North, Budget Tapes and Records, Lawrence - Lwings, Emporia - Your Hollywood Connection, Ft. Riley - ITT Office, Manhattan - Varney's Book Store.

TAE KWON DO KARATE
Open-Free Demonstration
Fri., Sept. 11, 6:30-7:30 p.m.
Ahearn Gymnasium

★Women: self defense, lose and control weight, self-discipline
★Children: self defense, coordination, self confidence
★Men: self confidence, top physical conditioning, self defense, agility, and coordination

Instructed by Master Chae
Sun Yi
7th degree
Black Belt

Tuesday & Friday
Classes Fee $43
6:30-8:30 p.m.
1 UG credit optional

Register NOW!
call 532-5566

Community Education
Division of Continuing Education
Umberger Hall 317

BREW & BBAMB
THURSDAY

$1.50 MIXED DRINKS (ANY BRAND)

FREE COVER

$1.25 BBAMB BURGERS, BURGERS AND MORE BURGERS, $1.25 BURGERS 5-11

KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE
619 N. 12th, Aggieville Open To Public

FISHWACKERS

TONIGHT
Calendar girl
Signing party
9-11 p.m.
All Mixed Drinks
$1.50

Phi kappa tau
LITTLE SISTER RUSH PARTY

The men of Phi Kappa Tau cordially invite the Women of K-State to a little sister rush party to be held at our house at 1606 Fairchild

FRIDAY SEP. 11
8:00

for questions, escorts, or rides
call 539-7416

Lottery allegations Official: Funds mismanaged

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A Democratic legislator accused Kansas Lottery officials Wednesday of not managing the agency's budget prudently and of trying to recruit churches and schools to sell lottery tickets. Director Larry Montgomery disputed the allegations.

Rep. Robin Leach, D-Linwood, said a church and a school official in Meriden, in his district, received letters recently from the agency, urging them to become retail outlets for lottery ticket sales. He said the letters showed the agency needed to be more "sensitive" in its recruiting tactics.

Leach also accused the agency of "failure to spend money wisely," saying the Kansas Lottery offices are "perhaps the plushiest in the state" and are like a "Taj Mahal."

"There needs to be some questions asked on where the Lottery is going," Leach said. "Something is amiss in the Kansas Lottery and we need to find out what is going on and stop it now."

"When the citizens of Kansas approved a lottery there was no intention of the state having a lottery salesman at the collection plate on Sunday or trying to entice grade school children to gamble their lunch money on lottery tickets."

Montgomery said the agency mailed 40,000 "Dear Retailer" letters to various retail stores and businesses about two weeks ago. He said if any churches or schools received the letters it was by accident and that the agency does not intend to ask them to sell tickets.

The agency had the state Department of Revenue handle the mailing and use a list of businesses that had paid sales taxes, Montgomery said. However, because state laws require that taxpayer information be kept confidential, the lottery officials never saw the mailing list.

Montgomery said some schools probably received letters because their cafeterias are listed as "restaurants" for tax purposes. Churches might receive letters if they sponsored bingo games or held charity sales events.

"Obviously they wouldn't respond," Montgomery said.

Leach also said, "Creditors are knocking on the door and the Lottery is telling them 'We can't pay our bills.'" He was not more specific.

Montgomery said the agency was not yet paying a Wichita marketing and advertising firm it hired or a Georgia company that will print its instant game tickets because the two contracts don't call for payment until the state starts receiving revenues from the lottery.

"That is the way it is done in other states," Montgomery said.

Montgomery also said the lottery's offices may look impressive, but that's because all of the furnishings are new. The agency purchases the same furniture other agencies do, Montgomery said.

Leach also charged that "the only the thing (lottery officials) have been successful in doing is running out all the people who worked on the Lottery in the beginning."

"The current administration (of Gov. Mike Hayden) is using Lottery jobs as payoffs for its political friends," Leach said.

Kathy Peterson, Hayden's press secretary, called the charge "partisan poppycock." She and Montgomery said many of the employees who started with the agency in its infancy were on loan from the Department of Revenue or other state agencies and returned to those agencies.

Federal tax windfall tapped; budget increase aids schools

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Kansas Board of Education, with little fanfare or discussion, Wednesday approved its budget request that includes a $40 million increase in state school equalization aid.

The board, which is attempting to hold down increases in local property taxes which support school districts by raising the level of general state assistance, adopted the budget proposal on unrecorded voice vote.

The board's proposal now goes to Gov. Mike Hayden's budget office.

The state's contribution to the 305 school districts in Kansas would increase from the current level of $456.1 million to $496.1 million under the proposal.

Board member Connie Hubbell of Topeka said the board will urge the Legislature and the governor to use money from the federal income tax windfall for the state's school equalization aid. The money comes from changes in the federal income tax.

Kansas is expected to receive $135 million.

The board's proposed overall budget of $720.9 million is 10.3 percent higher than the current appropriation of $653.5 million. The general fund would increase by 6 percent.

The Board of Education has been working on the budget for three months with an eye toward easing the local property tax burden, which Hubbell said has reached its limit in many school districts.

Board member Richard Robl of Hutchinson said the increase was too high, but his motion to limit the increase to 7 percent failed on a voice vote.

"We're trying to get back to the levels six years ago," said board member Mildred G. McMillon of Tonganoxie. "We're trying to catch up to the level of the past."

The board actually passed three budget proposals for the governor's consideration. The preferred budget has a 10.31 percent increase, another has a .01 percent increase and a third, the most austere proposal, has a 1.28 percent decrease.

The additional $40 million in general state aid would be used to give Kansas teachers pay raises, Hubbell said. Salaries for teachers in the state are below the national average. Local school boards determine teachers' salaries.

The budget includes a hefty hike in general state aid to 19 community colleges over a five-year period, which would increase state aid from the current level of $250,000 to $1.469 million for the upcoming fiscal year.

Community colleges would reap additional benefits by the proposal that the percentage of the state's contribution to the schools' combine operating budget be increased from the current 22 percent to 40 percent.

At the same time, the board wants to eliminate over a five-year period the out-district tuition currently paid by each county for students who attend a community college in another county.

Weather fuels forest fires

By The Associated Press

Thick smoke and changing weather hindered efforts Wednesday to contain the last big forest fires still burning in the West, where more than 1,000 square miles are charred, and some fires were spreading again.

"It's sad to see Mother Nature doing this," lamented California National Guardsman Dennis Berry.

A layer of cool, humid air that had been holding dense smoke close to the ground and not fanning the flames in northern California and southern Oregon appeared to be lifting, with temperatures climbing, said California fire information officer Steve Smith.

There was a chance of thunderstorms in Oregon, which would kick up wind, said Kathy Aplin of the Oregon Unified Coordinating Group.

In Washington, steep terrain allowed burning logs to roll past fire breaks on the Olympic Peninsula.

In California, 76 firefighters have been injured, dozens suffering from smoke inhalation, said Art Wirtz at the Sacramento fire command center. An additional 30 firefighters had been injured in Oregon. Three have died in vehicle accidents, two blamed on the dense smoke.

Smoke continued to prevent the use of aircraft to drop water and fire retardant in Oregon, fire spokesman Ron DeHart said. Fog grounded water-dumping aircraft Wednesday in Washington.

The smoke was so bad in some parts of northern California that doctors equated breathing to smoking more than three packs of cigarettes a day, said Art Wirtz of the Sacramento Fire Command Information Center.

The force of nearly 22,000 firefighters on duty is "the greatest mobilization of firefighters that we have ever had in this country," George M. Leonard, associate chief of the Forest Service, said Tuesday at a news conference in Washington, D.C.

Since lightning began setting hundreds of fires on Aug. 28, 530,000 acres have burned in California and 112,500 acres have been blackened in Oregon.

Student fined for false report

By The Collegian Staff

A K-State student pleaded guilty in Riley County District Court Wednesday to falsely reporting a crime.

On Aug. 22, Tobie Timkin, freshman in environmental design, reported his car had been stolen, said Bill Kennedy, Riley County District Attorney.

Riley County police then filed an attempt-to-locate report, and Timkin's car was found in a ditch near Tuttle Cove, he said.

According to a report from Kennedy's office, Timkin said he was told the "best" way to get his car back was to report it stolen.

By doing this, Timkin could avoid paying any towing charges, Kennedy said.

Timkin was arrested Sept. 8 by the Riley County Police Department.

Falsely reporting a crime is a misdemeanor, Kennedy said.

Timkin was fined $75 and $89 court costs, he said.

Kennedy said Timkin was told he ought to be more careful about taking advice from his friends.

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—
I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Shakes
OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nauticus Towers—Aggieville

IMPORT BEER
NIGHT
50¢ off
All Imports
All Day
THURSDAYS
LAST CHANCE
1215 MORO, AGGIEVILLE
HOME OF THE
AROUND the WORLD
BEER CLUB
Open To Public!

BREADEAUX PISA
FRENCH STYLE PIZZA TO GO
1800 Claflin Road at Denison - Suite 120
MANHATTAN
2 For 1
That's right! Buy one, get one free!
PHONE: (913) 776-5577
(Price based on the largest pizza with most toppings.)

Dark Horse
619 N. Manhattan
Come Party at Aggieville's
Largest Beer
Garden
THURSDAY
$1.25 PITCHERS
$1.00 KAMIS
Bar Office
539-9081 776-6638

Scrumptillyishusland
Dairy Queen
"LET'S ALL GO TO THE DAIRY QUEEN"
1015 N. 3rd St.
Manhattan
12th & Moro
Aggieville
*U.S. Pat. Off., Am. D.O. Corp. Copyright 1987
Am. D.O. Corp., Mpls., Minn. Printed in U.S.A.

CHARLES
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
ESTABLISHED 1983
SPUDS PRESENTS LIVES
PARTY
Sat. Sept. 12th
—Starring SPUDS MACKENZIE
—Stupid Human Tricks Contest
GRAND PRIZE: Neo Neon Sign
—SPUDS TANK TOPS
with purchase of a pitcher plus 1/4 while supplies last Sponsored by Budweiser
TONIGHT $DAZE$
1800 Claflin 539-9619

"The Davis Sisters"
FRIDAY & SATURDAY
9:30-1:30 a.m.
Cover charge $1 (members)
$2 (guests)
SATURDAY
Benefit Dance for Cystic Fibrosis
$2 for members
$3 for guests
The Ranch SALOON
3 miles east of Manhattan
on Highway 24
A Class B Private Club

Broune's
323 POYNTZ
4th Annual COAT SHOW AND SALE
Thursday, September 10, 9 A.M.-9 P.M.
ALL COATS 30% OFF
use our interest-free Layaway
FEATURING COLLECTIONS FROM: MACKINTOSH, TOTES, LONDON FOG & CUSTOM FURS
(including Mink, fox, beaver, coyote & racoon)

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, September 10, 1987 ■ Page 4

Alcohol use warning applies to everyone

Overindulging in anything is dangerous, but overindulging in alcohol can be deadly.

That fact was brought to light last week when one student was taken to a local hospital and treated for alcohol poisoning after drinking too much at a little sister rush party sponsored by a fraternity.

Thomas J. Frith, director of Housing, warned women in residence halls to be wary of fraternities encouraging the use, or excessive use, of alcohol.

Nobody knows how often people are endangered as a result of alcohol. Only when those circumstances are discovered in flashes of tragedy does society take notice.

Frith was correct in warning people about the dangers of alcohol.

However, that warning should be extended to everyone, not just to females in residence halls. And it should not be just about fraternities. People should heed the warnings about the dangers of alcohol whenever they stop at their favorite bar for a drink or pop open a cool one at home.

There are no drinking laws, law enforcement activities or any other outside forces that will keep society or alcohol users safe from abuses of this drug. Responsibility for the consumption of alcohol lies in the hands of those doing the consuming.

Only common sense and a respect for the effects of alcohol on the individual will keep alcohol-related tragedies from happening.

Memorial appropriate for Vietnam veterans

The winning entry in the Vietnam Memorial design contest would make a fine addition to the campus.

Not only is the memorial aesthetically appealing, but it is also an appropriate reminder of the 38 K-State students who died in the Vietnam War.

The only thing standing between the design and reality is approval by the Board of Regents, which should be encouraged to OK the project.

Now that nearly a 15-year cushion exists between the war and today, U.S. citizens are more able to accept the war for what it was and the impact it had on the United States. One indication of this acceptance is the increased attention given Vietnam veterans.

The most obvious indication of this is seen through the mass media, where it is now fashionable to detail the plight of the Vietnam vet.

Movies like "Platoon," "Full Metal Jacket" and "Gardens of Stone" have confirmed the message — as if we didn't already know it — that the war was hell and the men who served in it suffered a grave injustice from America's people.

While that's fine and puts dollars into producers' pockets, memorials somehow personalize the war and underscore the commitment made by the soldiers in a way no other thing can.

If the memorial is approved, K-State may finally put the Vietnam War to rest.

Women, men should work to end wage gap

It's true that women are earning more money now, but is 70 percent of what men earn enough? Or, more simply put: Is it fair that for every $1 a man earns a woman earns only 70 cents?

The answer is an unequivocal no. Yes, the earnings gap has narrowed from 62 percent in 1979, but an 8 percent increase (less than 1 percent a year) is less than satisfactory for a society that supposedly prides itself on equality.

The earnings gap between men and women is the smallest for workers in their 20s, presumably because these younger women and men have had access to similar education and job opportunities.

But women have traditionally earned less than men for the following reasons: differences in education, career choices and work history of women. Women traditionally take time off to bear children, rear children and nine times out of 10 it's the mother who takes the day off to stay home with the sick child.

This, of course, results in a work history for women which is hardly enticing for employers. When given the choice of hiring a man who will not leave in two years for a 3-month or longer maternity leave or a woman who says she is not planning children immediately — but who could show up to work and request maternity leave any day — the logical choice would be the man.

Thus, women are in involved in a never-ending battle. They stay home to have and care for the children in order to perpetuate society and as a result are a higher risk for employers.

To compound the wage gap problem, women have traditionally chosen lower-paying fields such as teaching and nursing. It is only in the last 20 years that women have begun to infiltrate male-dominated fields.

Thus, with proper encouragement, it is possible for women to survive and shine in such fields as engineering, medicine and law.

The wage gap is a problem both men and women should be concerned with. Women working the same job as men should be paid equally, and employers looking to hire a competent person should not consider women as risks.

Women are worth as much as men and should be paid as much.

Letters

Football attitudes

Editor,

On the night of Sept. 5, I was set to go to the K-State-Austin Peay State football game and cheer for the 'Cats. This is exactly what I did, which is more than I can say for any of the other students in attendance. Shouting obscenities and booing our team is a very poor way to show our support. First, acting this way makes the students look very bad to the alumni, parents and others in attendance. Secondly, the crowd is supposed to help get the team fired up.

When the team is feeling down, there isn't anything more uplifting than to hear a screaming crowd cheer them on. If all the team hears are boos, then the team feels worse and will in turn usually play worse. Whereas if we show some support, they will pick themselves up and play better. I know we go to games to have fun, but just because our team isn't winning is not an excuse to give up on our team.

I feel our team needs our support now more than ever before. So I strongly urge each and every student to go to the games and show our team, and our school, that we really do care and support them.

Steven C. Posler
junior in business

Bork defense

Editor,

Robert Bork's conservative record does not make him unfit for service on the Supreme Court, it simply makes him disliked by liberals.

Mike Nichols, a Collegian columnist, accuses Bork of refusing homosexuals their rights under our Constitution. As the document is based on natural law, an argument can be made that homosexuals — when demanding their unnatural (not found in nature and thus reality) tendencies be expressed publicly — do indeed lose their rights. This idea, shared by Bork and all who believe in objective truths (contained in our Constitution), should be allowed a voice in the Supreme Court.

Should not you, Nichols — and all liberals — be more tolerant of others' views?

Jean Dutton
sophomore in journalism and mass communications

Arias' questions

Editor,

I was pleasantly surprised to learn that Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez will be visiting K-State as a Landon Lecturer. Since I am unfortunately unable to attend, I would hope that someone would take this opportunity to ask Arias about an incident that occurred Sept. 9, 1986.

According to the Tower Commission Report, after Costa Rican authorities had discovered a secret airstrip in Costa Rica — an airstrip the United States and "shadow government" (Secord, Singlaub, Rodriguez, etc.) used to carry out the Contra war — the Costa Rican government attempted to shut down this operation. On Sept. 9, Elliot Abrams, assistant secretary of state, Lewis Tambs, former ambassador to Costa Rica, Alan Fiers, CIA Central American Task Force Chief, and Lt. Col. Oliver North made a conference call to Arias in which North threatened to cut off all U.S. assistance to Costa Rica if Arias went through with a plan to publicize the existence of the airstrip. Although this was clearly not a decision North was authorized to make, former National Security Council adviser John Poindexter wrote to North: "You did the right thing, but let's try to keep it quiet."

In light of this, as well as other events, should Arias agree to a question-and-answer session, I would hope that someone would ask him to what degree Central American countries are controlled by U.S. embassies. After which, I would hope that U.S. citizens would ask themselves whether Arias' answer is consistent with the so-called "Atlantic Charter," in which the United States promised to respect "the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live."

Scott Miller
K-State exchange student in West Germany

Story facts

Editor,

I am writing in regard to your feature in the business section on agricultural software. By drawing this technology to your reader's notice, you have provided a valuable service. The service would have been more valuable, however, if the article were completely accurate. I wish to correct three points which you've associated directly or indirectly with me but which are not factual.

First, I did not say that the computer would never replace pen and paper. I did say that while it takes as long to type data into a computer as to write it in a ledger, the subsequent analysis possible by computer exceeds anything feasible by hand. In the time that a pencil-and-paper manager can look at one or two potential problem solutions, a producer with a computer might well look at 20.

Second, while I did not discuss the origin of the FINPACK program with your reporter, the article says that it was developed at K-State. This is false. Farm management economists in many states have made contributions to what is now FINPACK beginning during the 1970s. The current version was coded and is distributed by the University of Minnesota. Kansas Extension and Farm Management personnel have used the program to assist hundreds of farmers in this state with their planning activities.

Finally, the protog software, which did originate at K-State, is not an addition to FINPACK but can very usefully be combined with it.

These comments aside, I felt that yours was a very timely article and I wish, again, to commend you for undertaking it.

Stephen Welch
Computer Systems Coordinator

Sexist language

Editor,

On Feb. 2, President Jon Wefald issued a brief listing of guidelines for nonsexist communication. In his letter, Wefald said, "Sexist language is an unconscious form of discrimination and is not condoned by Kansas State University." The guide goes on to explain that the false use of the "generic man" and the pronoun "he" to include both sexes should be avoided.

Unfortunately, Collegian columnist Mike Krueger has completely disregarded this idea. In his column, "Humans terrorize world communities," he repeatedly referred to Homo sapiens and humans as "man," "mankind," "he" and "his." Not only does such language violate a campus policy, but it also reflects irresponsible journalism.

A primary goal of a journalist should be to clearly and precisely relate information to readers. The use of false generics causes unnecessary ambiguity and confusion and the message received by the reader is usually misinterpreted. When Krueger says "man is the only creature that organizes armies exclusively for mass homocides," is he including women in his "men"?

It would seem so, due to the fact that his opening paragraph asserts, "Unfortunately, the world would be better off without Homo sapiens." Obviously, his column is meant to be about human beings although he curiously insists on calling them "men." In addition to being ambiguous, such language tends to enforce a traditional, male-centered view of the world.

Thus, I would suggest to Krueger — who does not stand alone — that in order to comply with campus policies and to be a responsible journalist, avoid sexist language in the future.

Leigh Ann Wheeler
junior in history

Disappointment

Editor,

I am a freshman at K-State who has just witnessed my first Wildcat game. Although I was disappointed in the final result, it disturbed me even more to see the Austin Peay players and coaches running on the field taunting the crowd.

But not only did they do that, they also were break dancing on the 50-yard line over the KSU symbol. I have never seen worse sportsmanship from a team. This was a team effort, because not only players were involved.

I don't mind celebrations after the game, but this team stayed on the field a good five minutes after the contest was over to act like jerks. The worst part about it is that it was on our field!

They should show their emotions in the locker room where all other visiting teams do. This team, Austin Peay, has no class and I would be ashamed to even be associated with such a school.

Ken Allen
Freshman in architecture

Cats applause

Editor,

As a bred-from-the-crib cat lover, and owner of 11 — yes, 11 — house cats at my parents' home near Council Grove, I have to agree with Judd Annis' "Cats lose personality" column.

Forcing cat owners to walk their pets on a leash is absolutely ridiculous. Cats generally balk when forced to wear a collar and leash, then have to be carried where you want them to go. One of the most admired traits of cats — and there are many — is their independence, something that is horribly restricted by a leash.

As for vaccinations, I do believe they should be required, if only to protect the cat from its environment — like rabid dogs. Owners who want to keep their pets safe will find the KSU Veterinary Clinic has relatively inexpensive vaccinations for cats and dogs.

Lori Tegtmeyer
sophomore in pre-veterinary medicine

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR
Christine Doll
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Judd Annis, Kirk Caraway, Jenny Chaulk, Christine Doll, Michael Krueger, Deron Johnson, Candy Leonard, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Allison Neely, Michael Nichols, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291-020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Lafene meets conditions to gain reaccreditation

By The Collegian Staff

After maintaining accreditation for more than 10 years, Lafene Student Health Center was reaccredited Sept. 3 by the Joint Commission of Accreditation of Hospitals.

"Accreditation is recognition of the quality of your program," said Eric Muehleisen, administrative officer at Lafene. "Recognition by people who know what to base their opinion on."

It is uncommon to see a college health-care facility accredited by the JCAH. In the Big Eight Conference, only one or possibly two other schools have been accredited, he said.

A team of surveyors picked by the JCAH evaluated the center, Muehleisen said. All but one of the surveyors were from universities, and one was from a large San Francisco hospital.

leisen said. All but one of the surveyors were from universities, and one was from a large San Francisco hospital.

"Accreditation is recognition of the quality of your program."

—Eric Muehleisen

The team inspected the building and evaluated the center based on standards set by the American Medical Association and other institutions concerned with quality health care, he said. They also checked the record-keeping system and the process for releasing patients' information.

Furthermore, the team checked

Lafene's services to see if they are definitely needed, Muehleisen said.

To be accredited, the health center must request evaluation.

Muehleisen said it is expensive to get accredited because there is an application fee and Lafene pays all the expenses for the surveying team, but it is a significant achievement.

"It assures the best possible care for the patient," Muehleisen said.

Accreditation also helps insurance companies identify legitimate organizations, he said.

When an insurance company sees a facility is accredited, it pays the bill readily, Muehleisen said. If a facility is not on the list of accredited centers, the insurance company may have to investigate the validity of the facility before paying the bill, he said.

AIDS issue discussed Morals, ethics of concern

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The moral and ethical issues confronting the nation in dealing with AIDS are as difficult as the scientific and medical ones, Surgeon General C. Everett Koop told a presidential commission Wednesday.

One of those problems, he told the opening session of President Reagan's AIDS commission, is the growing minority of doctors and dentists refusing to treat patients who have AIDS.

"The good conduct of the majority does not in any way release us from facing the unprofessional conduct of a fearful and irrational minority," declared Koop.

He contended that "such conduct threatens the very fabric of health care in this country. What shall we do to prevent that from happening? We need some answers before this deadly virus further weakens the ethics of medical practice in the United States."

Perhaps the most potentially serious social problem, he said, is related to the fact that AIDS "is becoming the particular scourge of people who are young, black and Hispanic."

"How tragic that is for them, but also how tragic that is for America."

This country is only now emerging from two decades of turmoil during which we have tried to correct the social injustices of the past.

"We have finally extended to all Americans — regardless of race, creed, color, ethnic origin, religion, sex or age — the birthright to freedom that is theirs."

"Will AIDS by itself reverse this trend of history?" he asked. "I certainly hope and pray that that does not occur, but hopes and prayers may not be enough. We will need courageous leadership at all levels of government and throughout the social and political institutions of America to reinforce those hopes and prayers."

Koop did not offer solutions, only questions for the commission to address. Reagan has instructed the group to make a preliminary report by the end of October and a final report in a year.

Earlier, Otis R. Bowen, secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, defended previous government activity on AIDS and challenged critics to offer constructive suggestions.

"Americans would have had to be on the moon, a desert island or in solitary confinement not to have heard about AIDS, how it is contracted and how to avoid it," said

Bowen.

He gave a chronology of government action since the first AIDS cases were reported in 1981 and said, "To criticize this effort is counterproductive and mean-spirited and tends to tarnish what is a solid record of accomplishment in modern medical science and health policy."

Bowen, a physician and two-time governor of Indiana, said that in his 40 years in medicine, he had never witnessed such a dedicated effort by health professionals and government.

"I shall disregard any further criticism of what we have done, but I will listen to suggestions on what we can do in the future. And I will certainly heed the cries for help of the people with AIDS," he said.

The remainder of the opening session of the 13-member panel was devoted to briefings from various government scientists on the status of research — a presentation defined as "dazzling" by one commissioner, John Cardinal O'Connor of New York.

The commission chairman, Dr. William Eugene Mayberry, head of the Mayo Foundation, defended the administration's record on battling AIDS.

Widow reimburses commission

By The Associated Press

MCPHERSON — The widow of a former McPherson County treasurer gave about $20,000 to the county commission Wednesday to reimburse questionable business expenses claimed by her husband.

Former county treasurer Richard Cobb, who committed suicide Aug. 6, spent a total of $20,314 of a motor vehicle fund he controlled without having proper documentation, according to an audit by the attorney for the county commission, Gary Flory, and county administrator Ann Gottberg. The audit's findings were released Aug. 31.

On Wednesday, Flory presented a cashier's check on behalf of Cobb's widow, Judy Cobb, to the commission to reimburse the questioned expenses.

The motor vehicle fund, which amounts to about $56,000 annually, is used to cover travel and other expenses.

In a letter to the commission Sept.

2 that was made public Wednesday, Mrs. Cobb said her husband would have reimbursed the undocumented expenses.

"If Richard was with us today, there is no doubt in my mind that he would have reimbursed the county for any business travel expenses which did not fall within county guidelines," the letter said. "With your permission, I wish to voluntarily undertake that obligation out of respect for both this county and my husband's desire."

Before you choose a long distance service, take a close look.

You may be thinking about choosing one of the newer carriers over AT&T in order to save money.

Think again.

Since January 1987, AT&T's rates have dropped more than 15% for direct-dialed out-of-state calls. So they're lower than you probably realize. For information on specific rates, you can call us at 1 800 222-0300.

And AT&T offers clear long distance connections, operator assistance, 24-hour customer service, and immediate credit for wrong numbers. Plus, you can use AT&T to call from anywhere to anywhere, all over the United States and to over 250 countries.

You might be surprised at how good a value AT&T really is. So before you choose a long distance company, pick up the phone.

The right choice.

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS

egg roll & fried rice $1.25

1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

LAFEMME
(GYN/Family Planning)
CLINIC:
Available Services

- * Birth Control Information & Prescriptions
- * Pregnancy Counseling & Referrals
- * Pregnancy Testing
- * Routine Gynecological Exams
- * Sexually Transmitted Disease Information

LAFENE HEALTH CENTER
"Your Medical Facility"
532-6554

THE JEAN STATION
FEATURING
ESPIRIT

REGISTER NOW TO WIN A $500 DREAM WARDROBE FROM JEAN STATION AND KOLA 104

open daily 10-6, Thurs. till 8:30, Sun. 1-5

1987-88 LANDON LECTURE SERIES ON PUBLIC ISSUES

Landon exhibit unveiled

By Kathy Winkhofer
Collegian Reporter

To commemorate Alfred M. Landon's 100th birthday, K-State is having a month-long campus exhibit and is publishing a 368-page book about the Landon Lecture Series on Public Issues.

The exhibit features photographs and posters of the 75 previous lecturers. Photographs were selected to reveal the speaker's personality whenever possible.

Notable selections are El Salvador President Jose Napoleon Duarte lecturing at a blackboard on the auditorium stage and former President Gerald Ford speaking to a political science class.

The lecture series was inaugurated by Landon on Dec. 13, 1966, said Anthony R. Crawford, of the University archives. Lectures on topics of national and international importance have been delivered.

President Ronald Reagan, Ambassador Shirley Temple Black and astronaut Alan Shepard are among the diverse group of world-renowned figures who have honored Landon by their presentations, Crawford said.

Each lecturer has been remembered again through the exhibit.

The exhibit was assembled by Crawford and will be on display through Oct. 2 in the McCain Auditorium Galleries.

The book, "The Landon Lectures: Perspectives from the First Twenty Years," contains speeches and commentary from 22 major lecturers. Among them are former Presidents Richard Nixon and Ford, former Vice Presidents Hubert Humphrey and Walter Mondale, Sen. Robert Kennedy and Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani.

The book was edited by Charles Reagan, lecture series chairman and assistant to University President Jon Wefald, and William Richter, former lecture series chairman and head of the political science department.

The book was published jointly by the Friends of the KSU Libraries and the Landon Lecture Patrons. The book is scheduled to be available to the public Oct. 23. It will also be distributed to members of the sponsoring groups.

"The lecture series is a tribute to Gov. Landon's statesmanship," Richter said.

Bork nomination prompts picketing

By The Collegian Staff

Chants of "just say no to Bork" mixed with the singing of "He's got the little bitty babies in his hands" as the local chapter of the National Organization for Women and Manhattan Right to Life picketed outside the north entrance to McCain Auditorium Wednesday morning.

Both groups hoped to influence Sen. Nancy Kassebaum's vote on President Reagan's nomination of Judge Robert Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court. Kassebaum passed by the groups as she entered the auditorium to deliver the 76th Landon Lecture.

As those attending Kassebaum's address passed by, 18 NOW members marched in a circle chanting and carrying picket signs. About a dozen Right to Life picketers stood in a group singing "He's got the whole world in his hands" and "America." Six small children also held picket signs as part of the protest.

One woman bent over, pointed out the NOW marchers to her daughter and said, "See those people? They don't like babies."

One NOW marcher said she was glad to see the side-by-side protest. "That's the American way," Marlene Howell said. "We welcome that kind of thing."

Kassebaum to back Bork's nomination

By Janette Poole
Collegian Reporter

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said she will vote for Robert Bork's nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Speaking at a news conference preceding her Landon Lecture address Wednesday, Kassebaum said she will affirm Bork's nomination to the Supreme Court unless any "faltering testimony" is presented against him.

While she does not agree with all of his views, she respects him for his knowledge of the Constitution and understanding of the law, she said.

Besides the Bork nomination, other key issues facing lawmakers during Congress' new session include Nicaraguan peace plans and the federal budget, Kassebaum said. She is a budget committee member.

"The deficit is going to haunt us and is one of two important challenges we (Congress) face," she said.

Kassebaum said she foresees no sign of change or economic bind through 1988 unless a crisis develops that cannot be seen now.

In reference to congressional matters, she said the "1988 presidential politics will be very much a factor."

Kassebaum said she agrees with fellow Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., in that this session of Congress could be more political and less productive.

When questioned about the possibility of her own involvement in the presidential race, she answered with a firm "no" and said she has no interest in the presidential ticket.

Kassebaum said she thinks society has made life difficult for those in the presidency.

Watch This Space!

TONITE
Come party with Plain Jane and kick off
Brother's Shot Bar
It's gonna be crazy!
(now a private club)

aluminum bats • flashbulbs • reloaders • funny hats • candles • ugly plastic burger alarm • insulated camouflage coats • stickers • strange books sheet launcher • scimitar • umbrella stand • tool boxes • gun cases

Cash Pawn & Gun Inc.
Has LOW Prices
L'oreal Preference (reg. $7.65) now $1.91
Other health & beauty aids 75% off
Browning compound bows: $120
Mag wheels: $125 for 4
Remote Control Color TVs: $150 to $400
New 8-track tapes: 50¢
Lawn Chairs: $3.50
K2 Skis with bindings & poles: $55
Misc. Stereo Equipment: Misc. low prices

Cash Pawn & Gun Inc.
1917 Ft. Riley Blvd.
913/776-3332
Monday-Saturday 9-6:30
"You ain't seen nothin' yet!"

flowers • Christmas ornaments • motorcycles • guns • jewelry • silver • gold

ATTENTION
Make Reservations for Organization Group Pictures
for the Royal Purple
NOW
thru September 18.

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

Prices Effective: Thursday, Sept. 10—Sunday, Sept. 13

ALCO
DISCOUNT STORE

28.88 REG. 36.88
DRAFTING TABLE
Designed for many uses with a butcher block finish. Infinite angle adjustments.

12.88 REG. 19.97
10" FLOOR PLANTS
Your choice of beautiful exotic plants to decorate any room. Large Selection.

22.99 REG. 29.88
STURDY DESK TOP
Make a desk out of one 29" high 2 or 3 drawer file cabinet. Easy!

32.99
TOP OPENING WOOD FILE
Use as a lateral or horizontal file. Lower storage shelf. No 623. ALCO Reg. 42.88.

99¢ 22 oz. bottle
JOY LIQUID
Joy dishwashing liquid for shiny, clean dishes.

78¢ REG. 99
FACIAL TISSUE
Puffs now softer than ever. Stock up. 175 count.

4.99 REG. 7.47
DOOR MIRROR
Distortion free float glass. Walnut look frame.

4.99 REG. 7.57
BULLETIN BOARD
Cork face with solid wood frame. 18"x 24" size.

Daily 9-9, Sunday 11-6 ALCO 3007 Anderson Ave.

Falsetto's
PIZZA
539-3830

Falsetto's Pizza Price Buster!
The Best For Less
Two Pizzas
$5.99

MENU

	Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
	TWO 10"		10" & 14"	TWO 14"
Cheese	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 Item	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 Items	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 Items	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 Items	9.79	12.99	14.59
Deluxe	9.79	12.99	14.59
Veggie	9.79	12.99	14.59
Supreme	10.74	14.24	15.99
Each Additional Item	.95	1.25	1.40

1127 Moro - In Aggieville

InFocusThursday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, September 10, 1987 ■ Page 7

One Man's Treasure... 'Operation Accumulation'

Hagg visits with a neighbor.

An auctioneer stands on a hayrack amid piles of farm equipment, parts and tools. He holds up a tractor part, calls out for a starting bid, and receives a call back from the crowd. The bidding continues, builds, then ebbs. The auctioneer turns and looks at an old man who is intently watching the auction and asks for a bid from him.

The 80-year-old man, wearing an olive-green hat and dressed in white-and-blue overalls with a No. 9 card hanging out of his pocket, nods his head "yes."

The auctioneer receives a different bid, then turns back to the old man.

"How about you, Oliver? Give $3 for this?" he asks.

The old man thinks for just a second, then shakes his head "no."

Oliver Hagg of Salina goes to farm auctions "not looking for anything special."

"I come out to the sale for the entertainment," Hagg said. "And I get to talk to the people. I know a lot of people — don't know their names sometimes — but I know their faces."

Hagg peers across the hayrack at the next item up for bids. The auctioneer looks in his direction, and Hagg nods his head.

"Sometimes I can only use one piece from the whole pile," he said. "People won't bid, so they (auctioneers) throw something else on the pile to make them bid."

Hagg bids a few more times and ends up buying a frame of an old tractor seat.

Hagg goes to some auctions and buys so many odds and ends that he'll buy the hayracks, too, just to haul the items home on.

"I just let it all stack up," Hagg said. "I call it 'Operation Accumulation.'"

Oliver Hagg was born in 1907 in the Salina house he lives in now.

"I've farmed ever since I could carry water to the field," Hagg said proudly. "Back then we used horses to plow."

A smile crosses his tanned, weather-worn face.

"Farms kept boys busy. Out of mischief."

Hagg said he used to go to sales when he was little. "Liked to hear the talkers, kinda Swedish," he said.

Oliver Hagg, Salina, watches the bidding on farm equipment at a farm auction west of Salina. The 80-year-old Hagg is a familiar face at local auctions, sometimes buying a trailer load of tools and parts.

In 1942, he was drafted into the Army during World War II. While working in the Army motor pool, Hagg said he saw a lot of England, France and Germany. When the war ended, he returned home to Salina to farm.

Hagg said he never married, but rather "just stayed home and took care of my parents." Today he owns 2,500 acres of land. He farms 100 acres himself and leases the remaining parcels out to other farmers.

The auctioneer turned the crowd's attention to a large tank. The crowd is quiet, no one bidding.

"No one wants to buy those," Hagg said. "They can blow up when you start cutting into them."

The auctioneer comes over to Hagg and asks, "Will you give me $5 for that big tank?"

"Yeah, I'll give you five," Hagg replies. He then walks over to the tank and, using welding chalk, marks "OHagg, #9" on its side.

During the winter, Hagg said he used to spend his time taking care of cattle. But he has turned that chore over to his renters also.

"Now I just work on equipment," he said.

Hagg said he rebuilds the machinery he buys, using the parts he picks up at auctions. He has several pieces of each type of equipment on hand at his farm. He uses most of them himself and allows his renters to borrow needed equipment.

He said he needs all the equipment because with "farming, you work in a hurry," he said. "You're working against time."

"New equipment is so high priced. A lot of people are starting to fix up equipment instead of buying new."

Hagg also spends his free time writing editorials for "Grass and Grain" and the "Salina Journal." He said he writes about anything from farm equipment safety to the use of chemicals in farming.

"He writes to the Grass and Grain," said Everett Sjogren, a local farmer of Salina. "He writes editorial comments. They make a lot of sense, too."

The auction turned to bidding on an International grain truck.

"Never bought a new truck," Hagg said. "Never bought a used car. If I wanted a used car, I'd drive the one I got."

Hagg is through bidding for the day and decides to go pay his bill. The total comes to $9.

"Oliver always seems to have a big truckload going home," said Debbie Johnson, auction secretary.

Johnson said she sees Hagg at all the auctions she works. She said he's well-known in the farming community and in his church.

"He'll buy things that his church needs and put it on his tab," she said. "He's a nice man. Sharper than most people give him credit for."

"He's well-repected," Sjogren said.

Hagg drives his orange Chevy pickup over to his pile of purchased merchandise. He slowly loads the items into the back of his cluttered truck.

"Busy putting in waterways," Hagg said as he headed for home.

ABOVE: Auctioneer Roger Johnson calls for bids on a hayrack. The auction is a social gathering place for farmers as well as an opportunity to bid on needed equipment.

RIGHT: Hagg piles his purchases on the ground beside a hayrack as the auctioneer takes bids on the next sale item.

Story by Lori
Lindstrom

Photos by Brad
Fanshier

From small farm to dean

Staff/Brett Hacker

Don Good, professor and head of the department of animal sciences and industry, relaxes in his office while eating a bowl of ice cream from the dairy unit sales counter. Good has been associated with K-State for 40 years and is planning to retire within the next two months.

Good plans to retire after 40 years

By Jill Conger
Collegian Reporter

Livestock pictures, colored ribbons and shiny plaques decorate the walls of Don Good's office. But, after his 40-year association with K-State, that memorabilia will soon come down.

Good, professor and department head of animal sciences and industry, is planning to retire either Sept. 17 or Nov. 17.

His first exposure to agriculture was on his father's small farm in Van Wert County, Ohio. Even as a young boy, Good said, he always knew that he wanted a career in agriculture.

"Being involved in 4-H and FFA really encouraged me to excel in agriculture, and it helped me realize how much I really enjoyed working with people," Good said.

He went to college to pursue a degree in animal science and also to participate in two college sports: wrestling and baseball. Shortly after graduating from Ohio State University with a bachelor's degree in animal sciences and industry, Good joined the K-State faculty. "I came to K-State in 1947 with the understanding that I would teach while working on my master's degree," Good said.

After receiving his master's degree in animal sciences and industry, Good left K-State to obtain a doctorate in the same field at the University of Minnesota. He received it in 1954.

Over the years, Good has been admired for his ability to develop strong student/professor relationships.

Fred Germann of Dwight, Kan., is one of Good's former students.

He graduated from K-State in 1949 with a bachelor's degree in animal sciences and industry and remembers Good as an excellent coach and instructor.

"As a livestock judging team coach, Don was an inspiration, and he was always good at helping the students to overcome their weakness in any area," Germann said. "As an instructor, he had the ability to make the class interesting, he knew the right time to laugh and joke, and he also knew when to get tough. He was an easy instructor to respect."

Miles McKee, professor of animal sciences and industry and a co-worker of Good's since 1947, said, "As a member of K-State's faculty, Good was always encouraging the faculty to give their best for K-State."

"Don is an example of a wonderful, sincere and honest person," he said. "His belief in life seemed to rub off on you. He expected a lot from a person, and he made you want to give nothing but 100 percent of yourself. He is one of the finest men I have ever worked with."

Good believes the best contribution he ever gave K-State was his teaching and involvement with selecting superior staff members in the Department of Animal Sciences and Industry.

His contribution to the students of K-State is his self-motivation. "If I stimulated a student to succeed through my teaching and advising, then that is the best contribution I have ever given a student of K-State," Good said.

Good will be honored by the Saddle and Sirloin Club Nov. 15 in Louisville, Ky.

Bakkers wage feud, accuse attorney of conflict of interest

By The Associated Press

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Jim and Tammy Bakker were waging a personal vendetta when they accused PTL ministry attorney Roy Grutman of a conflict of interest, one of PTL's attorneys argued in documents prepared for Wednesday's bankruptcy court hearing.

Lawyers were arguing whether Grutman should continue to represent PTL; whether 19-year-old Kevin Whittum, a handicapped relative of defrocked PTL founder Bakker, should be evicted from an 11-room house at Heritage USA and moved to smaller quarters; and whether one of the ministry's main creditors has sufficient collateral.

Federal Bankruptcy Court Judge Rufus Reynolds was hearing motions filed in the case of the Fort Mill-based television ministry, which is $68 million in debt and is under bankruptcy court protection from creditors while it reorganizes.

Bakker's lawyers say Grutman should be disqualified because he represents the private interests of the Rev. Jerry Falwell, the television ministry's current chairman, and at one time gave Bakker the impression that he represented Bakker.

Grutman has denied representing Bakker and said no conflict exists.

James Paul, one of PTL's attorneys, said the conflict-of-interest charge is either a personal vendetta against Grutman or an effort to disrupt reorganization of the ministry.

In a related development, Grutman said Wednesday that PTL leaders "held off as long as we could" before filing a complaint in U.S. Bankruptcy Court against Roe Messner, PTL's chief building contractor.

PTL charged the Wichita, Kan., businessman with trying to skim millions of dollars from ministry donors and diverting funds to Bakker.

Looking for an apartment?
Check Collegian Classifieds

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Gamma Delta, Off Campus

Sept. 11: Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Gamma Rho, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

ERIKSEN SPORTS MEDICINE ***** CLINIC *****

- * Evaluation, Diagnosis, Treatment, Rehabilitation of sports related injuries and problems
- * Determine Body Fat Percentages
- * Heat Stress Information
- * Information and advice on Fitness, Injury Prevention, Health Effects of Exercise
- * MUCH, MUCH MORE

Walk-in Clinic

8-9:30 a.m. Mon.-Fri.

1-2:30 p.m. Mon.

1-2 p.m. Tues., Thurs., Fri.

For Appointments

532-7880

Lafene Health Center

ACUTE HAIR CLINIC

WELCOMES YOU!!!

HIS & HERS
PROFESSIONAL HAIR STYLING SALON

•COUPON•
BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIAL
★CUT & BLOW DRY STYLE $8
reg. $10
★PERMS-$29 $35-45 value
-OR-
★ONE FREE HEX TANNING
SESSION WITH REGULAR PRICE
SERVICE (First Time Users Only)

Handi-Corner 1106 Laramie
in Aggieville

SPECIALIZING IN:

- CUT & BLOW STYLE
- PERMS
- COLORING
- HEX TANNING

8 Stylists to Serve You

OPEN:

Mon.-Fri. 8-8

Sat. 8-6

Sun. Noon-5

WALKINS

WELCOME

539-6699

Walnut Valley Festival

16th National Flat-Picking Championships

Featuring in Person:

- Doc Watson
- Hot Rize, with guest artists
- Red Knuckles & The Trailblazers
- Mike Cross
- New Grass Revival
- Berline, Cray & Hickman
- Good Ol' Persons
- Walt Michael & Co.
- Chameleon Puppet Theatre
- John McCutcheon
- Foster Family String Band
- Alleen & Elkin Thomas
- Horse Sense
- The Wood's Tea Co.
- Hoofin' High Cloggers
- Last Kansas Exit

- Tim Henderson & The Beltbuckle Band
- Full Circle
- Stevie Beck
- Total Strangers
- Spontaneous Combustion
- Neal Hellman
- Kim Robertson
- Harvey Reid
- Becky Blackley
- Lindsay Haisley
- Linda Allen

Workshops

Arts & Craft Fair

4 Stages in Operation

Well-policed Grounds

No Animals, No Beer or

Alcohol, No Drugs

and

No Motorcycles

(due to noise)

8 Contests

$23,000 Cash Prizes,
Trophies & Instruments
Contests are limited to 50
contestants per contest.

Winfield Fairgrounds

Winfield, Kansas

September 17, 18, 19, 20, 1987

For more information
Write or call walnut valley

association, inc.

P. O. Box 245N Winfield, KS 67156

(316) 221-3250

Ticket Information:
Special Advance 4-day Weekend: $39 (Fri. $13; Sat. $13; Sun. $13)

2 days $22—Specify Fri.-Sat. or Sat.-Sun.

Children under 12 admitted free with parent.

At Gate: 4-day Weekend: $35 (Fri.-Sat. $15; Sat.-Sun. $10)

2 days $25 Specify Fri.-Sat. or Sat.-Sun.

Children Under 12 Free with Adult

(Admission to Thursday show is for weekend ticketholders only)

Deadline for advance tickets is Sept. 11th. Mail orders postmarked Sept. 11th will receive the advance price. All orders received Sept. 4th or after will be held at the gate.

NO REFUNDS Ticket gate open 24 hours

This will be the BEST FESTIVAL IN THE U.S. this year!!!!

He's Back Again...

Jim Newton
Songweaver

Thurs., Sept. 10
7:30 p.m.

KSU Union Catskellar

Free Concert

"More than just an entertainer—
You will be glad you came!"

Sponsored by these campus ministries:
American Baptist, Ecumenical Christian Ministries, Lutheran Campus Ministry,
and St. Isidore's Catholic Center

Communications center nears finish

By Debbie Whitson
Staff Writer

Picture a small grade school in western Kansas, a group of third-graders and a large video screen. No, the children aren't watching cartoons, but if all goes well within the next two years, they will be receiving a telecast from the Kansas Educational Communications Center.

At this time there is no center, but with a lot of work and ideas from educators across the state, and the help of director Melvin Chastain, it will soon be a reality.

"Right now we have a lot of people with high hopes and aspirations," Chastain said. "I know we can get an excellent program, but the physical aspect is all that is underway right now."

Chastain is currently the director of Educational Broadcast Services and Associate Professor of Educational Technology at Texas A&M University. He commutes back and forth between states right now, but in January he will become a permanent Kansas resident and take over the director's duties full time.

"Right now I am planning on spending about 10 or 11 days here out of each month until January," he said. "I submitted my resignation to A&M, and I'm really looking forward to getting started up here."

Chastain, a Kansas native, has been with Texas A&M for about 20 years. He started the educational center there, and the fact Kansas was starting from the ground up attracted him to the position.

"My wife and I were in the process of renovating our house, and we had just about gotten our kids finished with college," he said. "We weren't really looking to move but one thing led to another, and here I am."

The center is being established by the Kansas Board of Regents and will be available to all Regents schools.

"We are primarily interested in the higher education aspects of the center," he said. "But we are planning to cover the elementary schools, high schools, and anywhere problems exist in the educational system."

He said although there are a number of programs planned, the center will start small and work up to a larger scale.

"Right at first we will be concentrating on higher education, but eventually we will become much more diverse," he said.

Chastain plans to include business and industry recertification in the programs, which will help large corporations introduce new technology and developments.

He said early in the planning stages of the building, the decision was made to include studios which can be utilized by the journalism department. This would help students by allowing them a "hands on" experience in television and radio production.

"I taught at the graduate and undergraduate level for several years at A&M, and I taught script writing for radio and television," he said. "It helped to have access to the local stations."

Chastain will have an associate professorship in the journalism department. He said there was a successful placement program for the students who graduated from A&M in the journalism department, including some at the national level with magazines like "Time" and "Newsweek." In addition, there are some foreign correspondents who have graduated from there.

One reason for the good placement, he said, is the students' access to the excellent equipment available through the Texas A&M center, including close to $1 million worth of newly installed equipment.

Chastain said his interest lies primarily with the television aspect of the center, although there will be radio involved as well.

"At A&M I was in charge of contract productions in television, which included production for individual departments," he said. "We also did the coaches show, and the journalism students taped events throughout the year, condensed them into hour-long videos and sold them as video yearbooks."

Since 1985, there has been a committee planning the programs that will be available through the center. This will enable the center to start immediately when the building is completed.

Chastain said during the next 2-2½ years it will take to complete the building, the committee will continue to prepare the programs and identify where the critical needs of the system are.

At present, the plan is to build the center next to Umberger Hall, but Chastain said several other locations are under consideration.

■ See CHASTAIN, Page 12

Staff/Gary Lytle
Melvin Chastain, the new director of the Kansas Educational Communications Center, reviews plans in his office in Fairchild Hall. Chastain hopes to begin broadcasting within two years.

New New New
CAR WASH
FOUR BAYS
619 N. 3rd St.
Across from Pizza Hut
Brand new and no waiting

AUCTION
Used ranch oak furniture
Good apt. and dorm
complementary pieces.
Sun., Sept. 13
1:30 at Weber Arena
Terms Cash
Proceeds go to the
Block & Bridle Club Library

An invitation to
A Country Christmas Open House
Capture the warmth and spirit of an old fashioned Christmas at the Country Gift Shop. For decorating your home and for gift giving, shop early while selection is best.
• COLLECTIBLE DOLLS • POLK DOLLS • TEDDY BEARS
• FIGURINES • MUSIC BOXES • ORNAMENTS
OPEN HOUSE: September 11, 12, 13
Mon.-Sat. 10:530
Thurs. 10:830
Sunday 1:500
COUNTRY GIFT SHOP
"East of Hollome"
2206 Ft. Riley Blvd.
539-3854

CONDOMS BY MAIL!
All nationally advertised brands
Imagine getting 100 condoms in a single package by mail! Adam & Eve, one of the most respected retailers of birth control products, offers you a large selection of men's contraceptives. Including TROJANS, RAMSES, LIFESTYLES and MENTOR plus SUMS—the condom that is 5% smaller for a snugger fit and TEXTURE PLUS, featuring hundreds of "pleasure dots." We also offer your choice of the best Japanese brands—the most finely engineered condoms in the world! Our famous condom sampler packages ($6.00 and $9.95) let you try top quality brands and choose for yourself. Or for fantastic savings why not try the "Super 100" sampler of 100 leading condoms—16 brands (a $50 value for just $19.95)! Here is our guarantee: If you do not agree that Adam & Eve's sampler packages and overall service are the best available anywhere, we will refund your money in full, no questions asked.
Send check or money order to:
Adam & Eve PO Box 800, Dept. CN
Carboro, NC 27510
Please rush in plain package under your money-back guarantee:
☐ #1 4.25 Condom Sampler $ 6.00
☐ #1 4.48 Condom Sampler $ 9.95
☐ #1 8 Super 100 Sampler $19.95
Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Power tools for the classroom.

The TI-74 offers BASIC programming with a 113 BASIC keyword set. There's 8K Constant Memory and subroutine capability for advanced programming flexibility.

The TI-95 offers powerful 7200-step keystroke programming and features our exclusive Power Windows™ which provide easy access to the functions and flexible file management system.

TI programmable calculators have all the right functions and enough extra features to satisfy your thirst for power.

To all you science and engineering majors unsatisfied with mere calculators, TI has good news. Your power tools are here. The TI-95 PROCALC™ is keystroke programmable and the TI-74 BASIC™ is BASIC language programmable. Each has a full range of scientific, mathematical and statistical functions, and plenty of power extras.

Both have optional equipment such as Solid State Software™ modules, including math, statistics and chemical engineering, and a module with an additional 8K Constant Memory. Additional power accessories include a separate portable printer and cassette interface.

So if you're into power, look for the display in your bookstore for a demonstration of our power tools. They build such a strong case for themselves, our competition doesn't know what to make of them.

TEXAS INSTRUMENTS

Soviets to launch American satellites

Attorney mediates contracts' details

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A Houston lawyer says he has contracts with the Soviets to launch American satellites into space and hopes to convince the State Department that the venture poses no risk to U.S. security. Aerospace attorney Arthur Dula, just back from his third trip to Moscow to discuss the project, said the Soviets' ability to launch at an appealingly low price could help Western satellite owners get their satellites off the ground while the United States develops a private-launch industry. "It's in the interests of both countries for this kind of commercial activity to take place," Dula said in a telephone interview Tuesday. "They're in the business to earn hard currency. They've got the rockets and hopefully we've got some use for it."

The launch crunch for Western satellite owners began with the January 1986 Challenger accident that grounded the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's space shuttles. In August 1986, President Reagan announced that commercial spacecraft would no longer fly on the shuttle, a decision that was aimed at spurring the private sector to develop its own launch capacity.

Since then, three major U.S. companies have agreements to launch private satellites, but not until 1989 at the earliest. The other major Western launch service, the French-based Arianespace, has booked its eight flights a year through the beginning of 1991.

The Soviets, however, are flying large rockets with the capacity to ease the backlog, Dula said. He added that the efficiencies they gain from firing so many rockets — 90 last year, about 10 times as many as the United States launched — shaves $10 million to $20 million off the cost of Western launches, which he estimated at between $35 million and $110 million.

Dula declined to specify how many contracts his company, Space Commerce Corp., has with the Soviets or what companies have signed them.

The hitch, however, will likely be in the United States, at the State Department, which has said that sending U.S. satellites to the Soviet Union for launching would violate export restrictions.

"It's in the interests of both countries for this kind of commercial activity to take place."

—Arthur Dula

In answer to Soviet inquiries about launch prospects, the State Department in July said it told Soviet officials "no change is contemplated in this policy, nor are we seeking a waiver to existing laws, regulations or policies."

Dula, however, said he expects to apply for an export license before the end of the year and sees none of the technology-transfer problems the U.S. government envisions.

"We're just buying transportation services," said Dula, emphasizing that he's not an agent for the Russians but merely a middleman in the deals. "We have some strong guarantees out of the Soviets that they won't touch the things," he said.

The State Department's position "is a matter of national pride," he said. "We don't have any rockets right now, but we're too proud to use Russian rockets."

In Sunday's New York Times, the head of the main Soviet space agency, Aleksandr I. Dunayev, was quoted: "There are very many customers for these services in the world. The potential of international cooperation on the basis of commercial contracting is almost limitless."

The shortage of Western launch capacity will be a problem only until U.S. private-launch services establish themselves, Dula said, "but those few years can mean a lot of money to those companies with satellites on the ground."

In the meantime, McDonnell Douglas Corp., which is marketing the Delta rocket, has signed contracts to launch four commercial satellites in 1989 and 1990. Another U.S. company, General Dynamics, has reservations for two launches aboard its Atlas Centaur rockets in 1990. The third major U.S. launcher, Martin Marietta, which is marketing the Titan rocket, has signed a contract with the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization for launches in 1989 and 1990.

Staying single gaining popularity

Percentage of unmarried Americans aged 30-34 doubles

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The percentage of Americans in their early 30s who have never married has more than doubled since 1970, increasing the prospects that a growing minority will stay single all their lives, the Census Bureau reported Wednesday.

Among men between the ages of 30 and 34, those who had never married totaled 23.1 percent, according to estimates made last March. That was up from 9.4 percent in a 1970 Census Bureau report.

Among women in the 30-34 age group, 14.6 percent had never been married, according to the 1987 report, compared with 6.2 percent in 1970.

In other age groups, 61 percent of women aged 20 to 24 had not married in 1987, compared with 36 percent in 1970. For women aged 25 to 29, the figure was 29 percent in 1987 against

"The vast majority, however, eventually are likely to marry."

—Census Bureau report

11 percent in 1970.

For men, 61 percent aged 20 to 24 had not married this year, compared with 36 percent in 1970. Among men in the 25-29 age group, 42 percent were not married, compared with 19 percent in 1970.

"The percentage that remains single throughout their lifetime is likely to be higher than in the past in view of the increases in never-marrieds among today's young adults," the report said. "The vast majority, however, eventually are likely to marry."

Steve Rawlings of the Census Bureau said that historically all but 5 percent of Americans have been married at least once by the time they reach age 50. He said that figure is likely to double to 10 percent, based on the trends on delayed marriages observed over the past two decades.

In 1987, the median age for an American bride was 23.6 years, compared with 20.3 years in 1950. The median age means that half the women have married by this age. The 1987 figure was the highest age since recordkeeping began in 1890.

For men, the median age for the first marriage climbed to 25.8 years this year, the highest it has been since 1900, when it was 25.9 years.

The median age at first marriage had been declining for most of this century until the 1960s, when it started to rise as the post-war Baby Boom generation chose to pursue educations and careers, postponing marriage and family obligations.

The statistics on marriage were contained in the Census Bureau study "Marital Status and Living Arrangements: March 1987."

Among other findings of the report:

■ There were 89.5 million households in March 1987, an increase of 8.7 million since 1980.

■ Married-couple families with children under the age of 18 declined to 27.5 percent of all households in 1987, compared with 40.3 percent of all households in 1970. The report attributed this decrease to postponement of marriage and child-bearing and increases in divorce rates.

■ The number of Americans living alone accounted for 23.6 percent of American households in March 1987, up from 17.1 percent in 1970, but the increase in this category has slowed dramatically during this decade.

Glickman urges Dole to reject airline merger

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., urged the Transportation Department on Wednesday to reject a proposed merger of USAir and Piedmont airlines unless smaller airlines are given more access to airports in Washington and New York City.

Glickman, in a letter to Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, warned that communities like Wichita would be hurt by the merger unless the government took steps to preserve competition of service.

He suggested the merger be approved only if smaller airlines are assigned some of the landing and takeoff authority at Washington National and New York LaGuardia airports now held by Piedmont and USAir.

Without that action, Glickman said, more than half of the operating slots at the two airports will be controlled by two large airlines — USAir and Texas Air Corp., which has acquired Eastern Airlines and People Express.

"The evidence suggests that this type of concentration inevitably leads to reduced competition," said Glickman.

"These facts are extremely problematic as I am hoping to see direct, non-stop, low cost service begin between Wichita and Washington National and LaGuardia in the near future. If slots are so heavily concentrated in the hands of a few carriers, this may not ever be a possibility for Wichita or any other less heavily traveled area."

USAir and Piedmont reached agreement last March.

Gain Real World Experience

Volunteer for the FONE CRISIS CENTER

—It Provides—

- Maturity
- interpersonal relations
- experience to deal with pressure situations

Volunteer Training
Sept. 12, 9 a.m.
Union 204
For more info 532-6565

WE'RE LOOKING FOR A FEW GOOD PEOPLE!

Student Governing Association Elections Committee

Ambitious students needed to fill the positions of: Vice-Chair, Publicity, Campaign Materials, Data Processing, Equipment, Expenditures and Poll Workers.

Applications Available in the SGS office

Applications Due
Sept. 14 at 5 p.m.

For more information call SGA Hotline 532-7777

$3.00 OFF

Tropical Houseplant

includes

4ft. tall Rubber Tree,

Weeping Fig, & Peace Lily

Eastside or Westside Market

east on Hwy. 24 • west on Hwy. K-18

Limit 1 per plant. Expires 9/30/87

UPC

UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

Let's Talk About It ...
CAMPUS PARKING

12 p.m.
September 10, Thursday
Catskeller

A panel of students and administrators will answer your questions.

ACTIVITIES CARNIVAL

K-State Union
Sunday, September 13
5-8 p.m.

Get to know campus clubs and organizations. All UPC committees will be accepting applications for a limited number of spaces for this year. So, come find out how to get involved!

k-state union
special events

In this dramatic thriller laced with humor and suspense, Mel Gibson stars as Martin Riggs, a volatile Viet Nam vet (and registered "lethal weapon") now a cop in L.A.

LETHAL WEAPON

Friday, September 11 and Saturday, September 12, 7 & 9:30 p.m. All shows in Forum Hall. $1.75; KSU ID Required; Rated R

Friday, September 11 and Saturday, September 12, Midnight All shows in Forum Hall. $1.75; KSU ID Required; Rated R

SHEER STARK TERROR GRIPS YOU IN UNDERWATER

CREATURE FROM THE BLACK LAGOON

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

In this classic monster movie from the '50s, an amphibious, prehistoric man-monster inhabits the depths of a mysterious tropical lagoon, undisturbed until a team of scientists intrude upon his domain. Shown in 3-D. Free 3-D glasses provided!

Saturday, September 12, 2 p.m. Little Theatre Sunday, September 13, 2 & 7 p.m. Forum Hall All shows $1.50; KSU ID Required; Rated G

k-state union
upc feature films

DON'T MISS IT!!!

ART RENTALS

Sept. 14 - 15 10am - 3pm
K-State Union Courtyard

Only $1 - $3/semester

k-state union
upc arts

THE CURE
To complement "The Golden Age of Comedy" is this short silent film by the great Charlie Chaplin. Monday, September 14 and Tuesday, September 15, 7 p.m. All shows in Forum Hall $1.75; KSU ID Required; Unrated

"IT IS A JOY!"

They met at the funeral of a perfect stranger. From then on, things got perfectly stranger and stranger.

SILENT FILM SPECIAL: THE GOLDEN AGE OF COMEDY

With an obvious love for his subject, director Robert Youngson has compiled a wonderfully funny tribute to the great silent comedies. Featured are scenes by Laurel and Hardy, Will Rogers, Joan Harlow, Carole Lombard, Ben Turpin and the Keystone Cops.

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

Today, 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall. Stars Ruth Gordon and Bud Cort. It's a classic! $1.75; KSU ID Required; Rated PG

JOIN ORC

For Outdoor Awareness Day!
Wednesday, September 16, 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Union Pedestrian Island

Learn about the outdoor businesses, organizations and trips offered in the Manhattan area.

k-state union
upc outdoor rec.

EXPERIENCE RAPPELLING TUTTLE CREEK LAKE

September 26 or 27
INFORMATION MEETING: September 15, Union Rm. 207, 7:00 p.m.

SIGN-UP: September 16-24, Union Activities Center

Sept. 16: Sign-up open to K-State students only.

Sept. 17-24: Sign-up open to all $7.00 includes: Equipment, Demonstration, and Refreshments.

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, September 10, 1987 ■ Page 11

Garver hits books, opposing linemen

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

For Matt Garver, starting offensive tackle for the K-State football team, weekdays can be very long. Very long, indeed.

The average day for Garver, a senior in veterinary medicine, usually starts at around 6:30 in the morning, just waking up. By 7:30 he's in class. He'll have a break in the day for lunch, maybe. That's if he doesn't have a test that afternoon.

By the time four o'clock rolls around he'll make a mad dash to the football stadium, get his ankles taped up, climb into his pads and attend the final hour of practice.

Sounds hectic, huh?

"It can make for some very long days," Garver said. "It's what I want to do, though."

"I don't know what it's going to be like late in the semester when the really big tests start coming around."

Don't get him wrong. What he wants to do is someday be a part of a veterinary firm — not a part of the professional football ranks.

"The thought of playing professional football hasn't even entered my mind," he said. "I know the class work is a big load, but I'm enjoying what I'm doing now."

His wife, Julie, agreed that at times the days do get a little hectic.

"I try and make sure that he keeps going," she said. "Later on in the semester it'll get more hectic with the tests coming into the scene. I'm sure he can do it."

The time away from the team is the most difficult for Garver to handle right now, though.

"Missing the first hour to an hour-and-a-half of practice makes me feel like I'm not a part of the team," he said. "Somedays I don't even get to practice until five o'clock. By the time I get to the practice fields, there's about a half-hour left in practice."

As far as coach Stan Parrish is concerned, Garver's missing practice is something he doesn't mind.

"Matt is a one-in-a-million kind of guy," Parrish said. "He's got a tremendous academic responsibility, he's married and has a commitment to the team. Anyone who can handle that kind of schedule is showing a lot of maturity."

"His time away from practice hasn't really affected him that much," Parrish added. "He meets with (offensive line) coach (Mike) Deal everyday after practice. He's an intelligent player and knows the plays. We have to meet some responsibility on our end and help him out in any way that we can."

Tony Jordan, the starting tailback for the 'Cats, stated earlier that this year's offensive line is one of the better lines he has had a chance to play behind. And in Garver's mind, Jordan is a plus to the offensive line.

As for the change to the run-oriented offense, it's a change that Garver welcomes.

"Blocking for the run is so much easier," he said. "Last year we went through a complete offensive change. It was hard to pick up the pass blocking techniques. Now we're back to what we know best."

Staff/Andy Nelson

Matt Garver, senior in veterinary medicine, has a hectic daily schedule that normally begins around 6:30 a.m. and ends after football practice.

Garver is dedicated to the team but wants someday to be a part of a veterinary firm — not a part of the professional football ranks.

Talks still on hold

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — With the players union having made the first move in the chess game called the NFL labor negotiations, talks remained on hold Wednesday while the owners pondered their response — likely to be a decision to field teams even if there is a strike.

Negotiations are expected to resume by this weekend at the latest.

The players voted Tuesday to strike Sept. 22, the day after the second week of the season ends, unless there is significant progress toward a new contract to replace the one that expired Aug. 31.

That is the same week the players struck in 1982, when they stayed out for days.

The 28 owners meet in Schaumburg, Ill. Thursday to discuss their plans in the event of a walkout.

While some teams seem dubious about trying to play with non-roster players, others say they are ready and willing — in hopes, some owners say privately, of attracting those regulars who are less than enthusiastic about striking.

A number of teams, in fact, have already paid $1,000 to players they cut to get them to return in the event of a strike. Others, like the New York Giants and Los Angeles Raiders, say they haven't.

Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys, said Wednesday that he had re-signed an undisclosed number of recently-released players in hopes of using them if there is a strike.

"I don't really think we have any alternative," he said. "I know we'll field a team if it comes to a strike. This is a union that's struck us every time we've bargained."

Schramm conceded, however, that the teams would have to return money to both the fans and the television networks even if they did play. And some players have suggested that rather than luring them back, playing with non-roster players would cause them to harden their resolution to strike.

Despite the hard-line rhetoric, both sides said Wednesday they were ready to resume bargaining.

Evert's 'Sweet 16' sour

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Chris Evert's "sweet 16" streak at the U.S. Open tennis championships ended Wednesday when she was upset by Lori McNeil in the quarterfinals.

Evert, a six-time Open winner and third seeded this year, had reached the Open semifinals for the past 16 years — the first time at age 16.

Now 32, she thinks age may have cost her the streak.

"I didn't have control over any of my shots," Evert said after losing 6-3, 2-6, 6-4 at the National Tennis Center. "I guess that happens when you get older. You have a few more bad days. And today was a bad day."

Joining McNeil in the semifinals was top-seeded Steffi Graf, who beat No. 5 Pam Shriver 6-4, 6-3.

In men's play, No. 2 Stefan Edberg, No. 3 Mats Wilander, No. 5 Miloslav Mecir and unseeded Ramesh Krishnan moved into the quarterfinals.

Evert's loss marked only the second time in 50 Grand Slam events that she failed to make the semifinals. She was beaten by Kathy Jordan in the third round at Wimbledon in 1983.

'87 B-ball tab slated

By Staff and Wire Reports

Four non-conference teams that saw postseason play last season plus a rugged round-robin Big Eight Conference slate highlight the 1987-88 Kansas State men's basketball schedule announced today.

The 27-game slate includes 12 home games and a return to Kansas City's Kemper Arena on Jan. 3, 1988, when the Wildcats host the Marquette Warriors.

Top non-conference contests include home dates with NCAA Tournament participants Wichita State and Southwest Missouri State plus National Invitation Tournament post-season champion Southern Mississippi. The Golden Eagles, members of the Metro Conference, will also entertain K-State later.

Top non-conference road contests include a season-opening tournament at Fresno (Calif.) State and single games at Creighton and Purdue — also a participant in last year's NCAA Tourney.

The season opens on Nov. 27 when K-State meets San Diego State in the first round of the Ninth Annual Sun Met Classic in Fresno, Calif. The 'Cats' home opener is set for Nov. 30 against Cal State-Northridge. Big Eight Conference play starts on Jan. 16, 1988, when the Oklahoma Sooners visit Manhattan.

"More than half of our games will be played against teams that were involved in some sort of post-season play last year," K-State Head Coach Lon Kruger said.

1987-88 KSU MEN'S BASKETBALL SCHEDULE:

Capital letters denote home games.
November: 27-28 Ninth Annual Sun Met Classic at Fresno, Calif.; 30 CAL STATE-NORTHBRIDGE.

December: 2 MISSOURI-KANSAS CITY; 5 at Creighton; 8 SOUTHWEST MISSOURI STATE; 17 SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI; 20 at Purdue; 31 at Utah State.

January: 3 MARQUETTE at Kansas City, Mo.; 11 at Southern Mississippi; 16 OKLAHOMA; 19 WICHITA STATE; 23 at Oklahoma State; 27 at Colorado; 30 at Kansas.

February: 3 IOWA STATE; 6 NEBRASKA; 9 at Missouri; 13 at Oklahoma; 16 COLORADO; 18 KANSAS; 22 NORTHERN ILLINOIS; 24 at Iowa State; 27 OKLAHOMA STATE.

March: 2 at Nebraska; 5 MISSOURI; 11-13 Big Eight Conference Post-Season Tournament at Kansas City, Mo.

Statistics say football team up in numbers

By Jeff Rapp
Sports Editor

The K-State football team was touted to be a much improved group in 1987 because of more talent, size, speed and strength among its ranks.

After losing its season-opener, some may have forgotten about the team's current stature, but the fact remains that the 'Cats are much bigger than last year's squad.

First-year K-State strength coach Jerry Palmieri knows there are limits to every athlete and those limits are higher or lower, depending on one thing: potential.

"One thing that is obvious is the recruiting," Palmieri said. "If you don't recruit athletes that can potentially become big, there's nothing I can do, or any other strength coach in the country can do. So the credit must go to the coaches (for the good recruiting season)."

Palmieri's praise is backed up with statistics.

This year, the starting offensive unit for the 'Cats as a whole is 11 inches taller and 70 pounds heavier. Center Paul Yniguez outweighs last year's center, Gary Harshberger, by 50 pounds. Senior guard Matt Garver is 25 pounds heavier than he was last year at 285 pounds, while starting ball carriers Tony Jordan and Rick Lewis have both increased their weight.

Jordan now weighs 10 pounds more, at 220 pounds, and Lewis — although he switched back from last year's noseguard position — weighs 225 pounds. That is five pounds heavier than he weighed last season. Starting quarterback Gary Swim,

Staff/Sieve Rasmussen

Blaine Crocker, K-State linebacker, works out in the newly remodeled weight room at KSU Stadium. Strength coach Jerry Palmieri says this year's team is bigger and stronger than the 1986 squad. He credits this to a combination of recruiting and weight training.

at 180 pounds, may be 25 pounds lighter than last year's starter Randy Williams, but Williams never had three touchdown passes in one game, either.

At 6-foot-3, Swim's height may make up for his lack of baby fat. The starting defensive unit collectively is 75 pounds heavier this year and stands seven inches taller. Almost everything about this year's team is bigger.

One glaring example of this is starting right defensive tackle Tim MacDonald.

MacDonald, a 6-foot-3 senior, has not only gained 25 pounds since last season, but he is bench-pressing a team-high 494 pounds, and his total lift gets higher as the days go by.

MacDonald's numbers are impressive, but Palmieri said the legs and hips are the key areas in strength training.

"If you want to increase weight and size in an athlete, you have to work the hips and legs. Our program centers on the hips and legs," Palmieri said. "We do upper-body training, but if we're going to prioritize anything, it's got to be the hips and legs."

Excelling in that area is senior Matt Wallerstedt. A 5-foot-10, 220-pound inside linebacker, Wallerstedt squat lifts 621 pounds.

To gain all this weight and to maintain it is no easy chore, Palmieri said.

"We encourage them to eat just as much as they can and even more," he said. "Sometimes, they look like pigs eating, but they have to (eat more)."

The average athlete — between running, lifting, practicing and going to school — might expend as much as 6,000 calories per day."

Dole's Contra remarks draw criticism

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole drew fire from a political rival on Wednesday who said the Kansan undermined support for Contra aid by remarks suggesting a "little three-day invasion" of Nicaragua.
"This time right now is a critical period for aid to the Contras and any kind of loose talk about a U.S. invasion does not help that cause," said John Buckley, a spokesman for Republican presidential contender Jack Kemp of New York.
Dole, an unannounced candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, said Wednesday he "was just expressing an opinion" with the invasion remark to emphasize the unpopularity of Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega among the people of his country and neighboring Central American nations.
"It wasn't a quip," Dole said. "It was a very serious interview" with reporters from the Milwaukee Sentinel, which published his remarks on Saturday.
Dole visited Nicaragua during the August congressional recess and met with Ortega, leader of the leftist Sandinista government.
In the interview, Dole suggested that Ortega was so disliked by other Central American leaders that Costa Rican President Oscar Arias wouldn't object "if somebody came down there and sort of blew him (Ortega) away."
According to the newspaper, the "three-day invasion" remark came while Dole was trying to explain the phrase "blew him away."
"I don't mean kill him," Dole said in the interview.
He continued, "I've got a feeling a little three-day invasion wouldn't make anybody unhappy down there, if you just overthrew Ortega. But that's just my guess."
Later in the interview, Dole said he was "not even suggesting" military action in Nicaragua as a solution to the problems in Central America, but was trying to highlight the importance of the Contras because of the lack of support for Ortega.
Asked about the invasion comment on Wednesday, Dole declined to repeat it.
"I just said some people would not find that too offensive," Dole said. "The point is that people don't like communism in Central America."
"It's my observation that Ortega doesn't have too many friends down there," said Dole. "Ortega's not a popular figure."
Kemp, who is vying with Dole and other GOP contenders for conservative supporters in the party, was returning Wednesday from a trip to Central America. He made no stop in Nicaragua. Kemp and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., are proposing $310 million in aid to the Contras.

'Just an opinion,' senator replies

'Pope McKenzie' shirts halted

By The Associated Press
SAN ANTONIO, Texas — Anheuser-Busch Inc. has won a court order halting sales of a Pope John Paul II T-shirt that the brewery says too closely resembles its beer-hawking pooch.
State District Judge Raul Rivera halted the sale of "Pope McKenzie-The Original Vatican Animal" T-shirts after Anheuser-Busch claimed the shirts infringed on their trademark, "Spuds MacKenzie."
Rivera issued a restraining order Tuesday, prohibiting Warren Borror and Buckaroo Brothers from selling the T-shirts until a hearing on Sept. 17, four days after the pope's visit to San Antonio.

The shirts have been sold here since April. Buckaroo Brothers' telephone has been disconnected.
Spuds MacKenzie is an English bull terrier with a black eyespot over one eye that is used in Bud Light commercials and promotions.
The character on the T-shirts wears a papal robe and miter with one paw raised. The dog's name is spelled differently on the pope souvenir T-shirts — "McKenzie" instead of the dog's "MacKenzie" — and its eyespot is on the opposite side.
Houston attorneys Peter J. Shurn and Michael L. Lynch, who filed the suit for the St. Louis-based brewery, claimed the "Pope McKenzie" image would cause confusion among the public if associated with the Budweiser product.
Included in the suit are copies of articles in national publications that refer to the Pope McKenzie promotion.
Advertising Age magazine carried an article quoting a man named Warren, who refused to give his last name or that of his brother, Terry, as being owners of Buckaroo Brothers.
Warren was quoted in the article as saying, "We were trying to raise $2,000 so we could go to Hawaii. We're not trying to make fun of the pope, we're just making fun of the commercialization of the pope. You know, art for the masses."

added, however, that if there is even marginal progress, a stronger Soviet Union will pose a completely different challenge to the West.
Kassebaum said the United States must work with the Soviet Union and "seek to build an era of active cooperation between the superpowers."
A new arms control agreement could be the first step in an improved and perhaps markedly different relationship, she said.
Domestically, Kassebaum attributed the bulk of the U.S. budget deficit to the irresponsible borrowing of billions of dollars from foreign countries to purchase consumer goods.
"We can afford to borrow some from abroad," she said. "What we cannot afford, however, is to continue the current trends indefinitely."
Kassebaum said the upcoming year would hold many changes and challenges. "(These are) challenges my father has always been confident the American people could meet," Kassebaum said.

Speech

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
"The success or failure of these efforts, particularly in the Soviet Union, will have profound and far-reaching effects on the United States and all of the West," Kassebaum said.
She believes that if reform programs in the Soviet Union fail, the country will fall further behind the West in economic progress. She

Chastain

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9
"There are good and bad aspects to all the sites under consideration, but what we are trying to get is a location that is convenient for the students," he said. "We also need a place that is accessible to traffic, but that may be

Memory

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
said a student must know not only what is to be learned and why it is being learned, but also the relationship between the student and the subject. Furthermore, the student should know how he will be asked to recall the information.
Mahadevan also said there are three characteristics of good memory: observation, interest and association.

"You will automatically observe what interests you, and (in order) to memorize what you observe, associate it with something you already know," Mahadevan said.
He explained two methods of improving memory. One is the Joci Method, when a person mentally places articles he wants to remember in various locations that he knows harder than it sounds.

"Once we identify what needs work, we'll need to decide what the best method of delivery would be," he said. "We also need to make sure every program is accredited by either the government or the school board or whoever is involved."
Chastain said several of the people on the developing committee are helping him establish contacts at a state level. There are representatives from every college on campus, as well as from the continuing education center and cooperative extension.
"I think it's important that everyone has a voice in this," he said. "The most impressive thing I've seen is the commitment of the people to this project. I think they really feel the need to get it going."

Gulf

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
Tehran's War Information Headquarters vowed immediate retaliatory bombardments "with full intensity" and warned Iraqis to evacuate areas near industrial and military targets.
The air raids, breaking a three-day undeclared truce in the gulf, surprised diplomats who expected the two sides to halt hostilities for Perez de Cuellar's mission.

Iran's acting foreign minister, Ali Mohammad Besharati, said Iran was ready to talk to the U.N. chief without any limitations, IRNA reported.
The Paris magazine Paris-Baghdad quoted Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz as saying Iraq is willing to have the International Court in The Hague decide who started the war in September 1980.
Diplomatic sources said this appeared to suggest movement toward a compromise with Iran.

NAACP

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
ways to increase black membership on the lottery commission, other state commissions and the corrections department. The letter asked the NAACP to submit names for appointment to the Kansas Civil Rights Commission.

Collegian Classifieds
Cheap, but Effective

"CAREER OPPORTUNITIES AS AN OFFICER OF MARINES"
An informative 15-minute slide presentation followed by a question-answer session describing the Platoon Leaders Class (PLC) Officer Commissioning Program and how it can benefit you. September 8, 9, 10, 1987, 3 p.m. at the K-State Union Rm. 208.
P.L.C.

Learn to Square Dance
with
K-Laires
7-10 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 13
K-S-U Rooms, 2nd floor Union
NO PARTNER NEEDED Experienced dancers welcome

Reminder:
To all Catholic students
Meet your Catholic faculty
MASS & RECEPTION
7 p.m. St. Isidore's Chapel
Tonight

Senate to hear Holton proposals

By The Collegian Staff
Student Senate will hear two proposals for the renovation of Holton Hall during their meeting tonight in the Union Big Eight room, said Michelle Benoit, Student Senate chairwoman.
Students and faculty interested in discussing the Holton Hall renovation proposals met in the Union Big Eight room Wednesday afternoon.

Discussion of moving the Counseling Center to the Lafene Student Health Center was also discussed in the meeting.
With a possible closing of the inpatient services at Lafene, the vacated space could then be used to house the Counseling Center. The space available for the Counseling Center is better than their present facilities, said Robert Krause, vice president of institutional advancement.

"Though there are a few areas that need to be changed, the counseling center is ready to move to Lafene," Krause said. "You could pick up that operation now and you could put a key on it tomorrow."
The two proposals before Senate consist of a plan to spend $780,000 and a plan to spend $1.069 million for the renovation of Holton Hall.

TV Listings

By TV Data

THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 10, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KLDH	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	My Little Pony Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00	TBA		Bullwinkle Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Heathcliff	SportsLook Racing	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00 Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	She Ra G.I. Joe	Who's Boss M.T. Moore	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Quarter Horse Racing	Movie: "Chubasco"
10:00 Jeopardy! Lose or Draw	Price is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Green Acres Leave It to Beaver	Body Electric Congress	Waltons	Billiards
11:00 Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Chance Ask Dr. Ruth	Beaver Make Room	Psychology Summer	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00 News Days of Our	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Andy Griffith I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Top Rank Boxing (Orlin Alone Survived)	Movie: "And I Lived"
1:00 News Special	News Special	News Special	B. Hillbillies Munsters	Silicon Valley	Rhoda Phyllis	Norris vs. Jesse Ferguson
2:00 Santa Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobles Zoo	Kansas: The Movie Palaces	Kotter Bugs Bunny	Tractor Pull NFL Yearbook	Flintstones Flintstones
3:00 Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Ghostbusters Scooby Doo	Teddy Ruxpin Smurfs	Cooking On Aerobics	Ghostbusters Smurfs	AWA Wrestling	Munsters Laverne
4:00 Facts of Life	Dallas	Thundercats P. Court	Jetsons Eight is En-ough	Reading 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe Transformers	SportsLook Horse Mag.	Alice Carol Burnett
5:00 3's Company	News	News	News	Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SpeedWeek Sanford
6:00 News	News	News	News	Good Times	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Benson Soap	Movie: "The Chase"
7:00 Cosby Show	Scarecrow and Mrs. King	S. Hammer Charmings	Star Trek	Fair Game!	Movie: "Apache"	Powerboat Racing	Movie: "The Chase"
8:00 Cheers	CBS News Special	ABC Closeup	Movie: "The Brotherhood"	Mystery: Coper Beeches		Surfer Mag. Water Skiing
9:00 L.A. Law	CBS Reports: The in the	20/20	of the Bell	New Image TBA	News INN News	Windsurfing
10:00 News	News	News	Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	Darkside Trapper John	Scuba World SportsCenter	Movie: "Destination Tokyo"
11:00 Ent. Tonight	Tennis: U.S. Hot Shots	Benson Nightline	Andy Griffith Movie: "The 700 Club"	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D. Movie: "Capri-corn One"	SportsLook Sports	Auto Racing "A Place in the Sun"
12:00 With David	Hot Shots			Sign-Off

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)
The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75
Over 30 words

Classified Categories

- 01 Announcements
- 02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished
- 03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished
- 04 Automobiles for Sale
- 05 Automobile Rentals
- 06 Card of Thanks
- 07 Child Care
- 08 Computers
- 09 Employment
- 10 Financial Services
- 11 Garage and Yard Sales
- 12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent
- 13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale
- 14 Lost and Found
- 15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
- 16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
- 17 Musical Instruments
- 18 Personals
- 19 Pets and Pet Supplies
- 20 Professional Services
- 21 Rentals
- 22 Resume/Typing Services
- 23 Roommate Wanted
- 24 Situation Wanted
- 25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
- 26 Sublease
- 27 Welcome
- 28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____
Address _____ Student ID # _____
1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____
6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____
11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____
16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____
21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____
26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____
Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____
Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Kedzie 103

ClassAds

532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication, noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

$10-$360 WEEKLY/UP. Mailing Circulars! No quotas/bosses. Information: Rush self-addressed envelope. CM/NA-CDE, POLB 7730, Rockford, IL 61126. (1-15)

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST YOU? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11-1)

OPEN AIR food and craft fair in Aggieville, Oct. 10. For information on booths, write Box 1804 in Manhattan by Sept. 25. (2-19)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken, 539-9469. (2-27)

DOMESTIC AND imported cheeses at Co-op prices. Available at People's Grocery Co-op, 811 Colorado. Open to everyone Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. (10-14)

LOOKING FOR me? Peggy (formerly of A Cut Above) is now working at Pazzazz Hair Designs, 537-9825. (11-14)

MAIDENFORM'S BUY-TWO, get-one-free sale now on at Undercover, 1224 Moro, Aggieville. (12-16)

LITTLE SISTERS of houses participating in this year's Pi Kappa Alpha Little Sister Olympics. Sign up now for your 1987 Little Sis Olympics T-shirt at the house for which you are a Little Sis. (12-13)

THE FONE Crisis Center will be holding volunteer training Sept. 12 and 13 in Union 204. All interested persons are encouraged to call 532-6565 to register. (12-14)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

ROCK CLIMBING CLUB

Learn to climb
No experience necessary
Professional Instruction
Thurs., Sept. 7, Union Rm. 207

K-LAIRE'S first visitation Saturday 12th to Wagon Wheel Whirlers ice cream dance 8 p.m. Marlett School. Meet for rides at 7:30 Union. Don't forget Sunday 6 p.m. Activities Carnival, lessons following. (13-14)

ENGINEERING WOMEN, MINORITIES, SENIORS

Attend the KSU Engineering Industry Recognition Banquet! This is your chance to dine with the company of your choice, and the company pays for half the meal price. Get your ticket Thursday or Friday 10:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. at the Durland Information Circle, or 8 a.m.-5 p.m. in Durland 144. Industry Recognition Banquet is Monday, Sept. 14, 6:30 p.m. at the Manhattan Holiday Inn. Ticket is $7 for a $14 meal. Advance purchase only.

WOMEN OF K-State—You are cordially invited to attend our Little Sis Rush Party/Banana Split Party tonight at 8 p.m. —The Men of Triangle. (13)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (71)

THREE MALE students to share basement apartment. $120 month each, all bills paid. Call 537-1442. (9-19)

ONE-BEDROOM spacious and comfortable, close to campus, water, gas, trash paid. $230. Call 776-0203. (10-17)

LIKE NEW! One-bedroom upstairs apartment. Next to campus. $265, includes most utilities. 537-4851 after 5 p.m. (10-14)

ONE-BEDROOM apartment, furnished, across from Putnam Hall, 1310 N. Manhattan. $205/month, call 776-7045. (10-14)

SEMI-FURNISHED apartment. One bedroom. Must see to appreciate. $250. Call 539-4214, leave message. (12-14)

LARGE BASEMENT apartment, four blocks south of campus. No children or pets. $270, plus electric. 776-6396. (13-17)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

THREE-BEDROOM, two baths. Very near campus. Ideal for three students or small family. 539-8324. (12-14)

LARGE TWO-BEDROOM, fireplace, close to campus, Aggieville, City Park. Phone weekdays. 537-9064. (12-16)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE

1984 SCIROCCO, fuel injected, sunroof, real nice. 539-6997. (10-13)

FORD PICKUP 1984, six-cylinder, 56,000 miles, model 150. Very clean, three-speed. 539-9536. (12-14)

1983 BUICK Century, priced to sell, 776-3751. (13-16)

1978 PONTIAC Firebird: T-top, four-speed, 14,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Call 539-4134 evenings. (13-19)

1978 FORD Granada, 53,000 miles, automatic, power steering, power brakes, air conditioning, excellent condition. 539-3833. (13-15)

1978 AUDI Fox, good condition, only $1,000. Call 539-9315 anytime. (13-17)

FOR SALE: 1983 Ford Ranger 4 x 4, 62,000 miles, air conditioner, power steering, looks sharp. 537-1789. (13-15)

FOR SALE: 1970 Chrysler Newport, great shape. $650. 430 Moro Street. (13-14)

COMPUTERS

EXCELLENT BUY—Atari 520ST computer, color monitor, double-sided disk drive and software. $900. Call 539-1101 after 5 p.m. (13-17)

EMPLOYMENT

PROGRAMMER POSITIONS available. The Kansas Cooperative Extension Service has openings for several student computer programmers. Work schedules can be arranged around class times. Applicants should be familiar with one of the following languages: Pascal, C, Cobol, or Assembler. For more information, contact Mary Knapp or Sherri Thompson, Computer Systems Office, Room 211, Umberger, Phone: 532-7019. Applications are available from the above individuals or in the Computer Science Office. Applications will be accepted through Sept. 10, 1987. (4-13)

EARN $HUNDREDS weekly in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full- and part-time openings. Apply in person. (8-17)

$10-$660 WEEKLY/UP mailing circulars! Rush self-addressed envelope: Dept. AN-7CC-CU, 9300 Wilshire, Suite 470, Beverly Hills, CA 90212. (8-16)

BARTENDERS EXPERIENCED only, part-time, professional attitude. Apply in person, the Cotton Club. (9-13)

SALES/SERVICES. Must be motivated and self-starter. Wages plus commission. High earning potential. 776-1271. (10-14)

HELP WANTED!

Now accepting applications for full and part time help. Experience preferred. Please call 776-4117 for interview app.

DAIRY QUEEN

1015 N. 3rd, ask for Mr. Frye

THE CITY of Manhattan is seeking to fill part-time fall and winter positions in its Recreation Division. Various instructors are needed in pre-school, arts and crafts, bowling, gymnastics, dance, aquatics, and youth theatre. Positions are also available in flag football, volleyball, softball, basketball, and facilities supervision. Applicants should be at least 16 years old for most positions. To review the complete listing of available positions, and to apply, come to the Personnel Office, City Hall, 11th and Poyntz, by Sept. 16, 1987. EOE—M/F/H. (11-14)

WANTED: LPN to work 3-11 p.m. Excellent benefits. 456-9482 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. (11-15)

GODFATHER'S PIZZA now hiring delivery drivers. $3.50 per hour. Must use own car and have less than three moving violations in three years. 1118 Laramie. (11-14)

WANTED: CAMPUS representatives to promote Christmas and Spring Break ski and beach trip packages. Earn free trips and cash! Call Sunchase Tours 1-800-321-5911. (11-13)

STUDENT PROGRAMMER. Administrative User Services is recruiting to fill one student programmer position, starting immediately. Programming experience with COBOL and OS/VSJCL in an IBM 4381 MVS environment required. Position involves administrative applications programming. Applicable experience, grade point average, and longevity potential will be used to evaluate applicants. Contact Debbie Hyde, Anderson 21, 532-6281, by Sept. 11, 5 p.m. to apply. (12-14)

WORK STUDY eligible student, clerical assistant in student-life office—10 hours per week—submit letter of application to Deb in Holton Hall, room 102 by 5 p.m., Friday, Sept. 11. (12-13)

TEMPORARY PART-TIME Saturday, Sunday, Thursday evenings. Apply at Wildcat Spirit, 716 N. Manhattan. (121)

WANTED: SOMEONE to computerize a retail mailing list. 537-0876. (13-16)

PYRAMID PETE wants you to join our team of highly dedicated and fun-loving pizza drivers and counter-help. Pay is good and the work is a blast. If you can work late nights and have lots of free time, come to Pyramid Pizza and apply today. 707 N. 12th, in Aggieville. (13-15)

LOCAL SNACK food company seeks responsible individuals for Dorm housing representatives commission. Reply P.O. 1764, Manhattan, KS 66502. (13-17)

PART-TIME POSITIONS. Ideal for interior design student. Apply in person at Decorating Center, 627 Pecan Circle. (13-15)

WORK AT health center: Light maintenance. Experience preferred. Monday through Friday to work anytime. For more information, contact Warren Walter at 532-6544. (13-17)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT

MULTI-BEDROOM HOUSE, stove, refrigerator, central air, fireplace, laundry hookups, garage. Call 537-8389. (11)

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31)

THREE BEDROOM unfurnished house, close to campus, fenced yard, garage. No pets. Call 537-1234, Trust Department. Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. (41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE

1980 Commodore, 14 x 70, three-bedroom, two-bath, washer, dryer, stove, refrigerator, Colonial Gardens. $12,500. Call 776-2261. (8-17)

12 x 90 COMMADORE includes appliances, washer, dryer, central air, new storage shed. 776-1809. Cost $6,000. (11-16)

LOST AND FOUND

FOUND ON Aug. 29 at corner of Thurston and Juliette. Set of keys on a "J" key ring. Call 539-4272 to claim. (11-13)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Mary's Surplus Sales, St. Mary's, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

C.D. PLAYER, turntable and speakers with stands. All top quality. $500. 539-6661, after 5 p.m. (11-15)

LIGHT TABLE, excellent condition. $70 or best offer. Call 776-3477 between 5:30 and 9:30 p.m. (12-14)

Dinner Buffet Specials

M—Chicken & Ribs
T—Spaghetti & Meat Balls
W—Chicken Stir Fry & Egg Rolls
U—Fish & Chips

includes salad bar
All You Can Eat $5.99

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Beach Party
50¢ H.P. Burgers
$1.50 Screw Drivers
$1.50 Guzz Naveles
$1.50 Fizz and Tonic
4-7 p.m.

LEE'S WESTERN WEAR
913-776-6715

☆Lee ☆Levi's
☆Wrangler Jeans ☆Justin ☆Dan Post
☆Abilene Boots
☆Stetson
☆Resistol Hats
☆Levi's Jean Jackets
☆Karman
☆Panhandle
☆Slim Shirts
2 mi. east of K-Mart
Hwy. 24
Manhattan, Kan. 66502
776-6715
Mon.-Sat. 9-5:30
Thurs. 9-8:30

Enjoy Our Weekly Buffet Specials
11:30 a.m.-2 p.m.
M—Texas Western BBQ
T—Italian
W—Oriental $4.95
U—Mexican
F—Cajun
includes salad bar
or call for carry-out

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

COMPACT DISC player, discs, cleaning kit, brand new. Must sell. Call 776-1502 after 6 p.m. $150. (13-15)

CLOTHES WITH CLASS
SPELLbinders
Candlewood Center • 3230 Kimball Avenue
Manhattan, Kansas

MON-SAT 10-5

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE

TWO TREK 500 series, 12-speed bikes. 20 inch and 18 inch. Never ridden. Call Craig at 239-9872 or 784-5298. (11-15)

1978 HONDA Hawk 400, good condition, $375 or best offer. 537-9307 or 532-6883, ask for Govinda. (11-13)

1983 RED Yamaha scooter Riva 50, low mileage, $300. Call 539-2591 after 4 p.m. (12-16)

1981 RED Vespa moped, great gas, low mileage, excellent condition, negotiable price, 537-1395 or 537-3797. (12-18)

26" SCHWINN Sprint, 10-speed. Clean. Almost new, recently turned-up. $120 or best offer. 539-4518. (13-15)

SIMPSON MODEL 30 full helmet, silver, size 7 3/8. Mustang sport/touring boots, size 10 1/2. Both excellent condition. Call Dave, 537-1505. (13-16)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

GIBSON ES 335-TD electric guitar for sale. Good condition. $450 with case. 776-0973. (11-14)

PERSONALS

SN V5306 BLAZER, Thanks for making ride home Friday interesting. Luv, K.U. snob. (13)

KATHY—THE day is here, the birthday girl is finally 21. Party! Hope you have a fun-filled day, you've been waiting so long for this. I love you, Mike. (13)

TRI-DELT KARIN: Mirabile Dictu filiola amabilis. Tu es nunc 21. Quantum placet bibere—at facere—Pange lingua gloriosi Te amamus, Mom and Dad (come and see us sometime). (13)

NEW LIL: Sia's of SAE, Happier to have you couldn't be. With a semester full of parties and fun, we know our little sisters are #1. SAE's. (13)

RHONDA C., Happy Birthday Love, Tim. (13)

CHI-O VOLLEYBALLERS practice was fun, and together as one, we'll reach for the top, and we will stop, our team so bold, as we go for the gold. Good Luck, Love, your Coaches. (13)

KARIN B.—Happy 21st birthday, we love you! Naval and Leese. (13)

PETS AND PET SUPPLIES

FOR SALE: baby boas. Tame, great no hassle pets. Accepted by residence halls. Call 537-7865. (9-13)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11)

RENTALS

SUPPLIES: PRINTER/typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville. 539-7931. (11)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE

PAPERS, RESUMES, cover letters, theses and dissertations entered, stored and completed to your specifications. Letter-quality printer. Come see us. Ross Secretarial Services, 614 N. 12th (across from Kites) 539-5147. (6-14)

EXPERIENCED TYPIST: computer, disc storage, letter-quality printer, $125/pace. Ask for Dorinda. 537-9205. (11-19)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro. 537-7294. (12-14)

ROOMMATE WANTED

NON-SMOKING FEMALE. Own room. $115 plus one-fourth bills. One block from campus. 539-7598. (10-14)

ROOMMATE WANTED: No smoke, no drink, no drugs. Call Dennis, 776-1784. (11-13)

MALE ROOMMATE to share two-bedroom apartment. Very close to park, Aggieville, and campus. $130/month plus electric. Call 539-1879. (12-13)

MALE ROOMMATE needed immediately. One-room apartment, gas, balcony, rent is $142.50 month. Lease runs until August 1988. Utilities run about $30 a month. Call Tonia at 539-7491, leave message. (13-19)

SPORTING/RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT

FOR SALE: Two-piece wetsuit, 120-150 pounds, $75. 5.4 square meter tri-radii sail, $75. 6' fixed F2 boom, $45. Talk to Greg or leave a message. 776-1767. (10-13)

RECREATION

SCUBA WITH your friends. Open water certification usually $175, save $50 each for groups of ten or more! Grab nine friends and call 539-DIVE. (11-15)

SCUBA DIVING

MEET THE colorful and exotic rare inhabitants of our unique lower world! For certification and one credit hour join our adventurous scuba diving class today! Class starts Sept. 19, only $180. Call 532-5566 to register or stop by 317 Umberger. If you have any questions call 532-5570, act now! (11)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Attired dog

5 Slalom maneuver

8 Sign of things to come

12 Catcher's place

13 "Raven" writer

14 Unadulterated

15 Cain's victim

16 Actress Lupino

17 Man, e.g. fabric

18 Like some cars

20 On the agenda

22 Fire: colloq.

23 Schedule abbr.

24 Money for the needy

27 Summoned

32 Debt reminder

33 Ending for royal or loyal

34 Newsmen

35 Groucho's trademark

38 Nick's dog

39 Washing machine fore-runner?

40 Mont Blanc, e.g.

42 Played a trumpet

45 Drank, dog-style

49 Chain part

50 Scoundrel

52 Fancy fabric

53 Goat

54 Bat wood

55 Devilish

56 "Rider" (movie)

57 Path

58 Act the vendor

DOWN

1 Burn

2 Brain section

3 Church response

4 River areas

5 Wide-spread

6 Turf

7 Red and Dead

8 Narcotic

9 Dion products

10 Author Gardner

11 Requisite

19 Former spouse

Solution time: 26 mins.

21 "— It Be"

24 Goal

25 Singer Reed

26 Wild horses

28 Do theater work, for short

29 Moving quietly

30 Corrode

31 Genetic stuff

36 Bad movie

37 Actor Vigoda

38 Jonathans, e.g.

41 Scale note

42 "— Moon" (1934 song)

43 Italian bread?

44 Gun-fighter's order

46 Do road work

47 Actor Jannings

48 Valley

51 "Cool" cucumber

CRYPTOQUIP

9-10

H R U . A M R Q N E V Q X S

S R J R V Q R A R D J D E D T N

Management-employee buyout possible

ICC obtains plans to sell Southern Pacific

By The Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz. — Employees of the Southern Pacific Transportation Co. will meet with its general manager, and management, union and investment banking representatives Friday to discuss a possible management-employee buyout of the railroad.

Richard Foley, a Southern Pacific conductor and chairman of a group known as the American Employees Stock Ownership Association, said the public meeting also will include representatives of the Rail Labor Executives Association, the United Transportation Union and Kansas City Southern Industries Inc.

The Interstate Commerce Commission in June ordered Santa Fe Southern Pacific Corp., the holding company for the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railroads, to divest itself of one of the two lines, after rejecting a merger of the two rail operations.

The merger was turned down because of fears that the combined entity would enjoy an unfair advantage over competitors in the Southwest and California.

The holding company last week gave the ICC plans to sell part or all of the Southern Pacific.

Foley said the purchase price has been estimated at $1.2 billion. A spokesman for the company said analysts' price quotes have ranged from $300 million to $1 billion, but added, "I've never seen any official price."

Foley said options available to the holding company also include selling:

- to its employees, or management, or jointly, through a leveraged buyout;
- to another railroad company in whole or part;
- to a non-railroad company;
- or "dividing the shares" to shareholders of the holding company, creating a separate stock entity.

He said Friday night's meeting would be the first meeting with management and organized labor to explore the possibility of employee purchase, and that he hopes others will follow.

A spokesman for the Southern Pacific in San Francisco, Jim Loveland, said general manager R.D. Brenden would attend on behalf of the company. The association initiated the meeting, Loveland said.

Also scheduled to attend will be David Cooper of the Rail Labor Executives Association; Glynn Gallagher, general chairman, and George Perkins, retired vice president, of the United Transportation Union, and a representative of Freeman and Associates, a Washington-based investment counseling firm representing the union.

The RLEA recently announced that it has retained the investment banking firm of Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. and a financial advisor, and intends to make an offer, Loveland said.

Kansas City Southern Industries also has begun talks with the holding company, he said.

The employees' association, established a year ago, is based in Tucson, where it has more than 100 of its 150 paying members, said Foley. He added that each of the Southern Pacific's approximately 24,000 employees is considered an automatic member.

Foley said he believes "the best alternative" would be a joint employee-management buyout, and that he understood "plans are being worked in that direction now."

He added, "Of course, it would need to be a mutual thing. We must have the operating knowledge, skill that management has to operate the business."

A divestiture plan must be submitted by Sept. 30 to the ICC and sale must be finalized within two years. Santa Fe Industries and the Southern Pacific Co. merged in December 1983, but the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railroads have been operated and managed independently. The Southern Pacific has more than 13,000 miles of track in 14 states.

Highway officials refinance roadwork

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rep. Jan Meyers, R-Kan., said Wednesday that federal highway officials have agreed to restore $6 million in financing initially disallowed for the construction of a new interchange in Olathe.

The decision, which reverses a Federal Highway Administration ruling made last month, means that the government will pay for its full $20 million share of the proposed interchange at 119th Street and Interstate 35. The project is projected to cost $26 million.

Meyers made the announcement after meeting with Ronald Heinz, associate administrator for engineering and program development in the Federal Highway Administration. Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., had written a letter to the agency urging it to provide the full $20 million.

"After reviewing the file and the project and hearing from Sen. Dole and from us, they have said that they will build that entire project," said Meyers.

The money for the project was provided in highway legislation enacted earlier this year by Congress over President Reagan's veto. State and local governments were required to pay a share of the cost.

However, the Federal Highway Administration denied financing for improvements.

Blood seeping in house puzzles authorities

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Human blood seeping from the floors of an elderly couple's home has authorities puzzled.

The blood, which was found in the bathroom, kitchen, living room, bedroom and halls of the six-room brick house belonging to William Winston and his wife, Minnie Clyde, was identified as human Wednesday by the State Crime Lab, said police Lt. Horace Walker.

Police spokesman Kevin Forier said investigators could not immediately solve the mystery but that it is unlikely they will go so far as tearing up the floors to find the source of the blood.

Homeowner William Winston undergoes kidney dialysis at a clinic, and may have other medical problems, Forier said. In dialysis, blood is run through a machine to cleanse it as a kidney normally does.

But Winston said: "I'm not bleeding. My wife's not bleeding. Nobody else was here."

Forier said police expected to learn the blood type Thursday.

Homicide Detective Steve Cartwright said there is nothing to indicate any wrongdoing at the home, but it was declared a crime scene to keep reporters and curiosity-seekers away.

"It's an extremely strange situation," Cartwright said. "I've been on the force 10 years, and I've never seen anything like this."

"I don't know what the stuff is," said Winston, 79. "My wife is upset because she doesn't know where it's come from. Me, I'm not bothered by it because I'm in bad enough shape as it is."

Minnie Clyde Winston, 77, said she discovered the blood shortly before midnight Tuesday after stepping out of the bathtub to find a floor covered with blood.

"I didn't get scared, because I didn't know where it was coming from. It didn't look like blood and it didn't smell like blood," she said.

Toshiba blames French for Soviet sale

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Toshiba Corp., seeking to quell U.S. anger over a subsidiary's sale of submarine technology to the Soviet Union, issued a report Wednesday suggesting that a French company may have sold similar equipment to the Soviets first.

The report, prepared by the U.S. accounting company Price Waterhouse and two law firms, said the Soviets may have purchased as many as 10 advanced submarine propeller milling machines from the French company of Forest Line in the mid-1970s.

At least one of the Forest Line machines was seen by employees of Toshiba Machine in 1983 and 1984 when they were installing their own equipment in a Baltic factory in the Soviet Union, according to the report.

U.S. officials have claimed that the illegal sale by Toshiba Machine of eight of the sophisticated machines to the Soviet Union in 1983-84 enabled the Soviets to make quieter-running submarine propellers, thus making it harder for the subs to be detected electronically.

Disclosure of the sale last spring prompted the resignation of Toshiba Machine's president.

CLIP, KEEP
& SAVE
ALL WEEK

JOYCE'S HAIR PERMERS

PERM SALE

Gals	Reg.	Now
Apple Pectin	$40	$30
Axiom	$45	$35
Warm & Gentle	$48	$38
Assorted Perms		$25

Guys

Curly	$25
Body	$28
Partial	$20

404 Humboldt

All Perms Include Cut and Style

539-TAME or 539-8601

Expires 9/10/87

7 ELEVEN

Movie Quik is here

Movie Rentals $1.99

Video Players $4.99

OPEN 24 HOURS 1445 ANDERSON

10% OFF

GENTLEMEN'S DAY TODAY!

Thursday, Sept. 10

Today, men receive 10% off & FREE GIFT WRAP, too!

UNDERCOVER

Lingerie

1224 Moro Aggieville

Open til 8 p.m.

10% OFF

Speedy FREE Delivery

ONE LARGE TWO TOPPING PIZZA + 4 FREE COKE

$10.50

539-4888

"We Pile It On!"

MARK FRANK MBBE
President, Pyramid Pizza

Now Accepting Visa & MasterCard

Now Serving Thin Crust

PYRAMID PIZZA

Speedy FREE Delivery

ONE MEDIUM TWO TOPPING PIZZA + 3 FREE COKE

$7.50

539-4888

"We Pile It On!"

MARK FRANK MBBE
President, Pyramid Pizza

Now Accepting Visa & MasterCard

Now Serving Thin Crust

PYRAMID PIZZA

SECOND SET OF PRINTS FREE!

Bring your color print film for developing and get a second set of prints free! Disc, 110, 126 and 35 mm. Not valid with any other offer.

Camera America

2700 Anderson
Manhattan, KS 66502

Mon.-Sat. 9 a.m.-9 p.m. 539-2519

Sun. 12-6 p.m.

Expires 9-30-87

DEVELOPING 1/3 OFF!

This coupon is good for 1/3 off developing on 110, 126, and 35 mm color film. Not valid with any other offer.

(C-41)

Camera America

2700 Anderson
Manhattan, KS 66502

Mon.-Sat. 9 a.m.-9 p.m. 539-2519

Sun. 12-6 p.m.

Expires 9-30-87

BACK TO SCHOOL SPECIAL

$1 OFF PASSPORT PHOTOS

Save $1 on a set of instant passport photos. No appointments no waiting. Only one coupon per visit. Exp. Date 9/17/87

kinko's

Great copies. Great people.

Mon.-Thur. 7:30-Midnight
Fri. 7:30-7
Sat. 9-5
Sun. 10-Midnight

1110 Laramie
537-7340

IMPRESSIONS Hair care center

1/2 OFF HAIRCUTS

For Men & Women
Styling Extra
1st Time Visitors Only

537-1332

411 Poyntz
Lower Level
M-F 9-6
Th 9-8
Sat. 8-5

TANNING BED

12 sessions for $25
Care Free Curl
EBONY SERVICE

10% OFF

exp. Oct. 31

Cut'n Care

Cut'n Class Collection!

Get back to school, and back to work, with a collection of the newest hairstyles. Then use Roffler professional hair products to help repair summer damage and maintain your new hair fashion. It's the Cut'n Care. Fall Cut'n Class Collection, only at your Roffler Family Hair Center.

RAY'S HAIR MAXIM

622 N. Manhattan-Aggieville

M-F 8-8
SAT. 8-5, SUN. 1-5
Walk Ins Welcome

537-8620

ROFFLER FAMILY HAIR CENTER

Spuds Mackenzie

Spuds Mackenzie Pool Party!

TODAY 3-7

Poolside at University Inn
Porta Party DJs from KQLA

Lots of Spuds giveaways!

Get your jams on "let's party!"

BUD LIGHT

"Faces of Death"

"Faces of Death" is a documentary detailing the investigation of a medical examiner, into the numerous ways life ends. See Page 7.

Weather

Partly cloudy today, high mid- to upper 70s. Winds northerly 10 to 20 mph. Partly cloudy tonight, low 50 to 55. Mostly sunny Saturday, high around 75.

...big change is the pitchers," baseball coach Mike Clark said. See Page 9.

Friday

September 11, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 14

Kansas State Collegian

Man files lawsuit against K-State

By Jennifer Dorsch
Staff Writer

A Manhattan man has filed a lawsuit for more than $1 million against K-State, the Kansas Board of Regents and others, claiming racial discrimination.

Thomas Woodruff, a black Vietnam veteran, claims he was denied employment as a K-State police sergeant because of his race. He also says he was not given the employment benefits entitled to him under the Vietnam Era Veteran's Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974.

According to the Act, institutions that apply for and receive federal funds under the Act should take "affirmative action to employ and advance in employment qualified...veterans of the Vietnam era."

Woodruff was one of 21 persons who applied for the job of police sergeant in September 1985. The person hired was a white male who was not a veteran.

In addition to the University and the Regents, other defendants in the case include William Brock, Secretary of the United States Department of Labor; Jerry Blakmore, the director of the United States Office for Contract Compliance; Jane Rowlett, K-State director of Affirmative Action; Charles Beckom, K-State Police Chief; and members of the police sergeant interview and selection committee.

On one count, Woodruff charges that K-State and the Regents have a "practice, pattern and custom of excluding black persons" and that the University has "failed to implement its Affirmative Action Program of recruiting black applicants for the position of police sergeant and other positions with the police department."

However, Beckom said there are currently two blacks serving in the department, including one in a supervisory position.

Charles S. Scott of Topeka, Woodruff's attorney, said Woodruff has a "long history of law enforcement in the military and has been to several training sessions inclusive of his military experience."

Woodruff has been employed as a line officer for the Riley County Police Department since March 1986.

Dorothy Thompson, associate University attorney, said an important element of the case would be to determine the relative qualifications of the applicants.

Members of the interview and selection committee declined to comment about why Woodruff was not recommended for police sergeant.

The answer period for the defendants in the suit, which was filed in the U.S. District Court in Topeka on Aug. 25, ends Tuesday.

Laid back

Karin Dell'Antonia, undeclared freshman, found a quiet place in a familiar piece of artwork near Holton Hall Thursday afternoon to study her French. Today's weather will continue to be partly cloudy with a high in the mid- to upper 70s.

Collegian/Neal Hinkle

Willie Nelson concert a financial flop Farm Aid unlikely to see any benefit

By Julie Key
Collegian reporter

The Willie Nelson concert following the Sept. 5 football game against Austin Peay was promoted as a benefit for Farm Aid, but it is doubtful the farm relief program will see any revenue.

"Farm Aid didn't get anything," said Mike Jones, athletic business manager. Furthermore, revenue projections indicate that the project — which was sponsored by the athletic department, Wrangler, and Projects West — won't even make enough money to cover its costs.

The contract states that K-State will receive $115,000, the same amount it made on last year's season opener against Western Illinois, Jones said.

After paying Nelson $75,000 and Projects West between $20,000 and $25,000, it is unlikely there will be a profit to give Farm Aid. Although final figures are not in, it appears the promoter will lose money on the concert, Jones said.

"We (the sponsors) didn't hit the break-even point," said Jones. In order for Farm Aid to have received any revenue from the ticket sales, an additional 3,000 tickets needed to be sold. At that point Farm Aid would have received $2 from each subsequent sale.

Jones estimated that 17,000 tickets were sold.

Jones had understood that after the failure of last year's Starship concert, the University would not sponsor any concerts this year.

The concert was something the athletic department could provide for the students, and at the same time increase attendance at the Austin Peay game, Jones said.

"If I increased the revenue any more than what it would have been by just playing Austin Peay, then I have been successful," Jones said.

Only 5,000 student tickets were sold for the game and concert, and for every student ticket sold, three to four adult tickets were sold, said Jones.

Jones attributed the low ticket sales to two factors.

"Every wide spot in the road has a Labor Day softball tournament," Jones said. It also was the last long weekend for people to go to the lake, he said.

And second, Railroad Days in Topeka held three concerts that weekend, including one by country western singer Lee Greenwood.

"If they (students) think it's a waste of time, that's a good indicator not to do it again," Jones said. But he also said that if the students liked it, the athletic department will try again next year.

If they try it again, Jones said they would avoid Labor Day and try a different style of performer. He urged students to write or call and let him know how they liked the concert.

Jones is considering booking the Beach Boys for next October's Louisiana Tech game, but he is waiting for student feedback on this event first.

Pope launches second U.S. tour Religious leader comes as 'friend of all Americans'

By The Associated Press

MIAMI - Pope John Paul II, prepared for dissent but claiming the support of a "silent majority" of Catholics, launched his second U.S. tour Thursday as "a friend of America and all Americans."

President Reagan, who had come from Washington to welcome the pontiff on a clear, 90-degree afternoon, made a pointed reference to Central America as he portrayed himself as a supporter of human freedom.

Said the pontiff: "I come as a friend — a friend of America and of all Americans: Catholics, Orthodox, Protestants and Jews, people of every religion, and all men and women of good will."

"I come as a friend of the poor and the sick and dying; those who are struggling with the problems of each day; those who are rising and falling and stumbling on the journey of life; those who are seeking and discovering, and those not yet finding, the deep meaning of 'life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.'"

Many in the exuberant welcoming crowd of 4,500 held up yellow-and-white papal flags to flap in a breeze which blew the pontiff's white skullcap off his head. The pope did not kiss the ground on this visit, because it was his second tour of the United States.

"I come as a friend — a friend of America and of all Americans: Catholics, Orthodox, Protestants and Jews, people of every religion, and all men and women of good will."

—Pope John Paul II

Security was intense in Miami, and a 53-year-old construction worker was arrested after he was found carrying a gun and knife at Tamiami Park, where the pope will celebrate Mass on Friday. Police said they did not believe the incident was related to the papal visit.

Reagan came to Miami with Nancy Reagan to head the receiving line.

"In Europe and elsewhere, we continue to place our might on the side of human dignity," Reagan said. "In Latin America and Asia, we are supporting the expansion of human freedom, in particular, the powerful movement toward democracy."

The president's aides had said privately that Reagan intended to make an obvious reference to his support for the Contra rebels, though he did not mention Nicaragua specifically.

As his Alitalia 747 headed to Miami, the pope said he anticipated protests in the nine cities he will visit. "It would not be quite normal not having them, especially in America," he said.

"Of course it (dissent) is a serious problem" he added, "but the other question is, if that is the dissent of many, many faithful people, or if it is a dissent of some very pronounced theologians or publishers, writers, perhaps journalists."

Making his first public statement on his decision to receive Austrian President Kurt Waldheim, a decision which outraged Jews, John Paul said he had not made a mistake.

"It was necessary. It's necessary to show the same appreciation, the same esteem, for every people," the pope said during a 45-minute exchange. "He came as a president, democratically elected, of a people, of a nation."

As for homosexuals, John Paul said: "The homosexuals, like all people who suffer, are inside the church. Not inside the church, they are in the heart of the church."

The arrival of pope and president were arranged so that Air Force One from Washington would touch down minutes before the pontiff's plane from Rome.

From the air, the Bishop of Rome and the President of the United States could see the 90-foot high, 30-ton steel cross erected at Tamiami Park, where 500,000 worshippers were expected.

Reflecting the city's strong Hispanic flavor, many people carried the blue, white and red flags of their native Cuba.

Attacks continue in Gulf; U.N. official begins peace trip

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraqi warplanes bombed industrial centers and an Iranian speedboat rocketed a supertanker Thursday, the day before the U.N. secretary-general begins a peace mission to both nations.

Javier Perez de Cuellar left New York on Thursday and, after an overnight stop in Paris, is due in Tehran on Friday. He said he remained hopeful that his week-long mission will bring a truce in the 7-year-old Persian Gulf war.

On Wednesday, Perez de Cuellar said he hoped for an "early comprehensive settlement which will satisfy the demands of justice and honor."

Iraq said its air raids would continue until Iran complies with the July 20 cease-fire resolution passed unanimously by the U.N. Security Council. The Iraqis have said they will accept the truce if the Iranians do, but Iran has not given a definitive answer.

Salvage executives based in the gulf said Iranian commandos in one, or perhaps two, speedboats attacked the Cypriot-flag supertanker Haven with rocket-propelled grenades, causing some damage but no casualties.

A six-week lull in the "tanker war" on commercial shipping in the Persian Gulf followed the Security Council action, but attacks resumed two weeks ago.

The official Iraqi News Agency quoted a war communique Thursday as saying: "Iraq will continue striking further blows until the Iranian regime finds that its only option that can be accepted and conforms with the interests of the region's people is peace." It called the air raids "legitimate deterrence."

■ See GULF, Page 5

Briefly

By The Associated Press

'Mr. Rogers' to visit Moscow

PITTSBURGH — Fred Rogers, host of one of the longest-running children's television shows, says he's departing his neighborhood for Moscow so he and a Soviet counterpart "can build a little bridge in behalf of children."

Rogers and his crew are scheduled to leave for Moscow for a 12-day visit Sept. 13 to appear on "Good Night, Little Ones" as part of an exchange program with the show's host, Tatiana Vedeneeva.

Vedeneeva, meanwhile, is tentatively scheduled to be in Pittsburgh from Nov. 15 to Nov. 21 to tape a one-day show on Rogers' public television show, "Mr. Rogers' Neighborhood," Rogers' spokeswoman, Lisa Belcher Hamilton, said Thursday.

"Children all over the world need to know they can be loved just as they are," Rogers said in Pittsburgh, where his daily program is entering its 20th season on the Public Broadcasting System.

Astronaut denounces ark's find

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Former Apollo astronaut James Irwin says the boat-shaped object that the Turkish government claims is Noah's ark is really a huge mud cake, but he still believes the ark can be found on Mount Ararat.

Irwin, just returned from his seventh expedition in search of the ark, said that although the object had dimensions similar to the biblical description of the ark, he thinks it is only mud shaped by erosion.

"They put a sign by the highway — 'This is Noah's Ark.' I still think that if the ark had come to rest that low, it would have not been lost all those years," said Irwin, who walked on the moon in 1971 as a member of the Apollo 15 crew.

Irwin believes the ark is located at the 15,000-foot level of Ararat, a mountain in eastern Turkey where the Bible says the ark came to rest after 40 days and nights of rain.

Area teachers vie for awards

TOPEKA — The state Board of Education recognized during its monthly meeting which ended Thursday Blue Valley Middle School in Overland Park and six teachers who were selected as Kansas' representatives to compete for presidential awards.

Blue Valley Middle School in Unified School District 229 was selected as the state's outstanding secondary school in the national secondary school recognition program sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education. About 270 schools were cited nationally. The school is located at 7500 W. 149th Street in Johnson County.

The three mathematics teachers selected to compete for national honors in the presidential competition are Shirley A. Barnett of Dodge City Sacred Heart Elementary School, Barbara Corpstein of Tipton High School and Nick Dolloff of Minneapolis High School.

The Kansas science teachers picked for the national competition are Paul Osgood of Trailridge Middle School at 75th and Quivira Road in the Shawnee Mission School District, Donna Cooper of Hays High School and Geary Engemann of Wathena.

One math and one science teacher in each state will be selected as national winners, to be announced later this month by the White House. They will be recipients of expense-paid trips to Washington to be recognized later this fall, and their schools will each receive $5,000 grants from the National Science Foundation.

Dog catcher nets buffalo

ROYAL PALM BEACH, Fla. — Village mechanic James Mayo was buffalooed on his first call as a substitute dog catcher.

Mayo, dog-catcher's net in hand, responded to an animal complaint Wednesday and found a missing 2,000-pound buffalo instead of a stray mutt.

The buffalo, Romanoff, formerly an attraction at the Dreher Park Zoo, had knocked down his pen in West Palm Beach on Monday and had since been on the loose. His owner, contractor Rodney Lewis, estimated the buffalo roamed 20 miles in his 2½-day trek.

Lewis took Romanoff and his then-pregnant mate Ruby in November when the zoo no longer wanted them. Lewis said he raises cattle for a hobby and "figured that they'd be something that other people around here didn't have."

Danny McFarland, cowhand from Okeechobee, was finally called in Wednesday to catch the beast in a wooded area and take him back home.

"This was the first time that I've roped a buffalo," McFarland said afterward. "But it was about the same as any of the other things that I've roped."

4 plead innocent in stabbing

OTTAWA — One of four people charged in the July 25 stabbing death of former Kansas State University basketball player Jari Wills pleaded innocent Thursday in Franklin County District Court.

Michael E. Hicks, 35, of rural Wellsville, pleaded innocent to aiding and abetting second-degree murder. Judge Jules V. Doty set a jury trial date of Dec. 8. Hicks remained free under $100,000 bond.

The three other defendants, all jailed under $100,000 bond, were scheduled to make court appearances on Friday. They are Donald L. Burgess, 39, and his wife, Sherrell, 24, both of Ottawa, and Charles E. Tevis, 33, of Scranton.

Wills, 29, who played basketball at KSU from 1978 to 1980, was jumped by several people and stabbed shortly after entering the Saddleback Lounge in Ottawa.

Wills, a former assistant basketball coach at Ottawa University who played professional basketball overseas after leaving KSU, died later at Ransom Memorial Hospital.

County Attorney Wendell Barker has said authorities are uncertain who actually stabbed Wills. All four suspects have been charged with aiding and abetting second-degree murder.

Andy Gibb files for bankruptcy

MIAMI — Pop singing star Andy Gibb of Miami, younger brother to the three Gibbs who make up the Bee Gees, has filed for bankruptcy under Chapter 7 of the federal bankruptcy code.

Gibb said in a petition filed Wednesday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court here that he estimates his debts at more than $1 million and his assets at less than $50,000.

Gibb, who in 1981 and 1982 co-hosted TV's "Solid Gold," had six hit records in the late 1970s, including, "I Just Want to Be Your Everything," "Thicker Than Water," and "Shadow Dancing."

He is the younger brother of Bee Gees Maurice, Barry and Robin Gibb.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

1987 Oozeball Tournament Entry forms are available at the Hollis House and at the Information desk in the Union. Deadline for registration is Friday, Sept. 18.

Mortar Board Scholarship Applications are available in the Union Activities Center and are due Sept. 19.

TODAY

DELTA TAU DELTS meet at 8 p.m. at the Delta Tau Delta house.

INSTITUTE OF INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERS meets at 4 p.m. for a picnic at Cottonwood Shelter. Pay $2 in the Industrial Engineering office. Attendance is required.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213.

MINORITY ENGINEERING PROGRAM meets at 6:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn Regency Ballroom for an Industry Recognition Banquet. Tickets are on sale for $7 in Durland 144.

WOMEN'S RESOURCE CENTER meets at noon in Union 206.

FOOD SCIENCE CLUB picnic at 6:30 p.m. at City Park pavilion.

SATURDAY

SOCIAL WORK ORGANIZATION meets at 9 a.m. in Dutchmaid parking lot on Poyntz Avenue for car wash.

AGE ECONOMICS CLUB picnic at 2 p.m. at Tuttle Creek Shelter 4. Let Marcia in Waters 342 know by noon Friday if you are attending.

K-LAIRES EXPERIENCED DANCERS meet at 8 p.m. at Marlatt school.

SUNDAY

ALPHA GAMMA RHO LITTLE SISTERS meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Alpha Gamma Rho house.

STUDENT FOUNDATION meets at 8 p.m. in Union 213.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA LITTLE SISTERS meet at 5:30 p.m. at the Alpha Tau Omega house.

DELTA UPSILON LITTLE SISTERS meet at 9 p.m. at the Delta Upsilon house.

FREE TGIF
BAR-B-QUE
TONITE
PLAIN
JANE

SPUDS LIVES
PARTY
Sat., Sept. 12th
T.G.I.F.—FREE SANDWICH BAR
Sunday Pizza Pound
all you can eat $2.99
plus drinks

1800 Glaffin 539-9619

Mayer Retail Liquor

We Want To Be YOUR Liquor Store
Come see us for all of your partying needs.

- Cold Kegs in Stock
- Plenty of Sale Items
- Chilled Beer, Wine & Wine Coolers

521 N. 12th

539-5267

1 block S. of Kites — Next to Southern Sun

A health care product that's right for today!

It's called SHARED PAY COMPREHENSIVE and it's designed to provide top protection on the big end of hospital and doctor bills...with rate control front end shared pay features.

SHARED PAY COMPREHENSIVE is a product for the times. It's quality protection with students assuming reasonable out-of-pocket responsibility.

Students share in the cost of services. Students pay 50% of the bill until $250 is paid out for a single contract and $500 for a family contract. Once the shared pay maximum has been paid out, then Blue Cross and Blue Shield pays 100% for covered services.

Services provided at Lafene Student Health Center are covered 100%.

It's competitively priced, and it's from Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kansas.

Find out about it firsthand. Contact Lafene Student Health Center, Student Government Office, or the local Blue Cross and Blue Shield office.

Effective date of coverage will be August 24, 1987. Final enrollment will be September 14, 1987.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kansas

Carry the Caring Card

The card that cares for the U.S. Olympic Team™

An equal opportunity employer
© Registered Marks Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association

David McKee
District Representative
(913) 539-4861
2314 Anderson, Suite 205
Manhattan, Kansas 66502

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Gamma Rho, Alpha Kappa Lambda, Off Campus

Sept. 14: Alpha Kappa Lambda, Alpha Tau Omega, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

DON'T FORGET

For your added convenience
LAFENE HEALTH CENTER
is expanding their service hours
Effective Monday, Sept. 14
New Clinic Hours—8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

•limited staffing over noon hour•

TAE KWON DO KARATE

Open-Free Demonstration
Fri., Sept. 11, 6:30-7:30 p.m.
Ahearn Gymnasium

- ★Women: self defense, lose and control weight, self-discipline
- ★Children: self defense, coordination, self confidence

- ★Men: self confidence, top physical conditioning, self defense, agility, and coordination

Tuesday & Friday
Classes Fee $43
6:30-8:30 p.m.
1 UG credit optional

Register NOW!
call 532-5566

Instructed by Master Chae
Sun Yi
7th degree
Black Belt

Community Education
Division of Continuing Education
Umberger Hall 317

Phi kappa tau

LITTLE SISTER
RUSH PARTY

The men of Phi Kappa Tau cordially invite the Women of K-State to a little sister rush party to be held at our house at 1606 Fairchild

FRIDAY SEP. 11

8:00

for questions, escorts, or rides
call 539-7416

Parking poses problems

More spaces constructed by fall '88

By Alison Neely
Staff Writer

Criticism of the campus parking situation abounded Thursday at the first meeting of the "Let's Talk About..." series. The central issue discussed was the severe lack of available space.

"I think it is generally understood that the parking is inadequate," said Larry Garvin, chairman of the University ad-hoc committee on parking utilization.

Several factors attribute to the overcrowded conditions, he said. The ad-hoc committee has been analyzing the situation in an attempt to find solutions.

The most immediate problem is visitor parking. Last spring the Council on Traffic Parking and Police Operations attempted to impose a $2-a-day fee for conference attendees but the measure failed, said John DeVore, operations committee chairman. The fee will be included in this year's agenda.

The number of parking spaces has not kept pace with the long-term rise in enrollment. More faculty and students are driving to campus now than in the past, Garvin said.

"Fifteen years ago there were 6,200 parking spaces. Last year there were 7,800 available spaces," he said.

Expansion is planned to add 400 spaces before next fall. This will be done by paving the parking lot north of Weber Hall and redesigning the West Stadium parking lot, Garvin said.

No other immediate improvements can be made because of the parking program structure. Being a self-supporting entity, no money may be borrowed to start projects. All improvements are paid for by money already collected from parking fees.

"Anything we do to increase parking right now will increase the price we pay," Garvin said.

Shuttle parking has been considered. The cost of the space would remain the same but the fee would be raised to cover the shuttle expenses.

A parking structure poses several problems, Garvin said. The cost for construction of one on-ground parking space is $1,000. For a parking structure the same space would cost $7,000.

Location is another factor in the parking structure dilemma.

"It is clear that if we're going to provide parking in the most desirable place, it would be the Union," Garvin said.

However, no plans have been made regarding the possibility of building the structure.

Of the existing 9,700 parking spaces on campus, 4,200 are designated for commuters, 2,700 for residence hall students and 1,000 for restricted time zone and 24 hour reserved. Oversubscription of permits by the campus police is 33.3 percent for the faculty and 50 percent for students.

The parking permits are permission to park on campus, not a guarantee of finding a parking space, Garvin said.

"What we have is a hunting license instead of a permit. We hunt for a parking space in the most desirable place."

Senate hears two proposals for Holton Hall renovation

By Jim Dietz
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate heard from two architects about the feasibility of proposals for the renovation of Holton Hall Thursday.

Mike Blasky, architect for the renovation project, and Larry Garvin, university architect, brought three proposals before Senate for consideration, including a $1.069 million plan, a $780,000 plan and a $914,313 plan for the renovation.

"The essential distinction between the two plans, the $1.069 million plans and the $780,000 set of plans, is the basement remains undeveloped and the quality of the rest of the construction is substantially diminished (in the $780,000 plan)," Garvin said.

He explained that the $914,313 plan considers finishing the first two floors in the same manner as the $1.069 million plan, but the basement of Holton Hall would remain unfinished.

The $1.069 million plan calls for gutting the interior — except for floors and structural walls — and all three floors would be renovated.

"The $780,000 plan shouldn't even be considered," Blasky said. "The project could be done for $780,000, but the quality is sacrificed," he said.

Garvin agreed with his point, adding that "to get the quality you have to spend more money."

Another issue of concern was whether the Counseling Center would be moved to Lafene Health Center.

Mike Lynch, director of academic assistance, said that in a meeting Wednesday with Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement, Krause said that the Counseling Center could stay in Holton Hall, but it could not be accommodated there under the $780,000 plan. Lynch added that there were a number of reasons that the Counseling Center was being considered for a move to Lafene.

"One of the attractive aspects is that it does take pressure off of Holton Hall," he said.

If the Counseling Center was not moved out of Holton Hall, the plan to consider is the original renovation proposal presented last April, Garvin said.

Senators also expressed concern because no one came to them in 1985 after the project had been revised and a cost increase was expected.

Blasky said that after people realized the project was going to be delayed, it just got shelved. He noted that building codes had changed requiring an elevator that adds $100,000 to the expense.

In other business, Senate heard from Bill Arck, director of Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service, about the construction of a memorial to the 38 K-Staters who were killed in the Vietnam War.

The memorial, already approved by President Jon Wefald, would require funding from students, student organizations and private donations to be completed.

Forced resignation brought sympathy, documents indicate

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — After National Security Adviser John M. Poindexter confessed to President Reagan last Nov. 25 of his involvement in the most damaging incident in Reagan's political career, there was no scolding or reprimand, just sympathy from the president and those around him.

According to documents and transcripts released Thursday by the congressional Iran-Contra committees, Poindexter said he was merely told by the president and his men they were sorry he had to resign.

In private testimony taken in four separate sessions last May, June and July in preparation for Poindexter's televised testimony in mid-July, the Navy rear admiral also said he was never particularly bothered by the idea of swapping arms to Iran for Americans held hostage in Lebanon.

Although Reagan has said repeatedly he never intended to approve such a swap, Poindexter told the committees: "I frankly don't find that distasteful."

"I think that we live in a very imperfect world, a very dangerous world, and sometimes you don't have the best options or the ideal option, and you've got to do what's necessary," Poindexter said.

Two months before he testified in public, Poindexter was telling the congressional investigators he had deliberately decided not to tell the president that he had adopted a proposal made by Lt. Col. Oliver L. North to divert money from the arms sales to Iran and use it to benefit the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

He said he kept the president uninformed because the plan was obviously controversial and "would cause a ruckus if it were exposed."

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

Learn to Square Dance
with
K-Laires
7-10 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 13
K-S-U Rooms, 2nd floor Union
NO PARTNER NEEDED Experienced dancers welcome

Manhattan Milling Co.
Compare our prices on:
• pet foods
• horse feed
• lawn fert
• grain seed
• water softener salt
Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

TGIF & Celebrity Bartender
DAN WEIR
Featuring
$1 Draws
$2.50 Pitchers
60¢ Tacos
'60s Music
4-7 p.m.
at
THE COTTON CLUB

BUD-DAY TWO
The Search for Caren Continues
Caren Concern is still missing.
Ms. Concern is wanted for failing to previously volunteer for the FONE Crisis Center.
The search has become urgent as training is tomorrow
August 29 at 9 a.m.
Please help Bud (pictured, left) by calling 532-6565
if you know anyone who fits this description.

Top O' the Morning Kappa Sigma
Where we went, you're not quite sure, packed our bags gone in a blur. Three of you have gone with us, let it be known they made no fuss. Off to Madison without a sound, us bags have gone left no one around.

Wild Bill	Air Biscuit	Ward
Slim	Slick	Lumpy
Cheech	Booger	Bean Poll
Speedy	Z-Man	Smiley
Moonie	Piston	Papa Smurf
Spanky	Jethro	Tex
Doerfman	Whimpy	Klinger
Hermey	Spike	Eddie
George	Teach	Biff
	Spud

7 ELEVEN
SUPER BIG GUP
+1 or 59¢
Movie Quik is here
Movie Rentals $1.99
Video Players $4.99
OPEN 24 HOURS 1445 ANDERSON

TGIF
FREE
Hors d'oeuvres
Don't miss
Comedy Invasion
every Monday
& Tuesday
at 9 p.m.
Billy J.
with
Brian Burgess
FISHWALKERS
— THE FLORIDIAN —

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES
MOVIE INFORMATION 538-1281
IN JUNCTION CITY CALL 762-4084
CAMPUS
HEART OF A DOG
Daily at 7 and 9:15 p.m.
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2:30 and 4:45
STAKEOUT
Daily at 4:30-7:30 p.m.
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2:00
WESTLOOP CINEMA 6
Westloop Center
Dirty Dancing PG-13
Daily at 4:30-7:30 p.m.
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2:00
HOUSE II: THE 2ND STORY PG-13
Daily at 4:40-7:10-9:20 p.m.
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2:10
AMERICAN NINJA II R
Daily at 4:45-7:15-9:25 p.m.
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2:20
MASTERS
Daily at 4:45-7:15-9:25 p.m.
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2:20

SETH CHILDS CINEMAS
Seth Childs At Farm Bureau Rd.
Times Good Starting Friday
Can't Buy Me Love
(PG-13)
Daily 7:20, 9:20
Sat. & Sun. Matinee 2, 4:35
Untouchables (R)
M-Th 7, 9:25 Fri. 9:25 only
Sat. & Sun. 2, 4:20, 7, 9:25
Sneak Preview Friday 7 p.m.
The Principal
Born in East LA (R)
Daily 7:15, 9:25
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:10, 4:40
No Way Out (R)
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 1:50, 4:15
The Lost Boys (R)
Daily 7:30, 9:45
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:30, 4:45
The Big Easy (R)
Daily 7:05, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Matinee 2:20, 4:30
MOVIE INFORMATION
776-9886 or 762-4094

SPAGHETTI SUNDAY

ALL YOU CAN EAT SPAGHETTI AND GARLIC BREAD!! ONLY $3.25
SERVING 5-8 p.m.
SUNDAY LUNCH TOO
MIKITE'S
BAR AND GRILLE
619 N. 12TH, Aggieville

Finally, a great pizza delivered.
1118 Laramie 539-5303
GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special $10.99/$8.99 plus tax LARGE MEDIUM COMBO PIZZA or up to 4 toppings Original Crust Plus FREE 20 oz. drink! 4 drinks with large 3 drinks with medium Offer good Monday through Wednesday only. Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery (no added delivery charge). Not valid with other promotional offers. Limited Delivery Area. Offer Expires 10/07/87 GODFATHER'S PIZZA KSU	Large Pizza for a Medium Price Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for the price of a medium. Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on reliable jug offer. On Sunday your choice, either use this coupon or take advantage of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one. Offer Expires 10/11/87 GODFATHER'S PIZZA KSU	2 for $12 Super Pepperoni or Four Topper (The Super Pepperoni with more pepperoni than ever before or The Four Topper with sausage, pepperoni, onions, and green peppers) Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1.00 for delivery. Limited Delivery Area. Offer Expires 10/11/87 GODFATHER'S PIZZA KSU	Hot Slice™ 2 for $2 Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas by the slice for $2! Combo or Pepperoni Dine-in or Carryout Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. Offer Expires 10/09/87 GODFATHER'S PIZZA KSU
---	---	---	---

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, September 11, 1987 ■ Page 4

Behind the boundaries in East Berlin

Daily life disguises harshness

One place I have difficulty describing to Americans is East Berlin. Like the German Democratic Republic (East Germany) in which it lies, "East Berlin" is a phrase that conjures up stereotypes numerous and powerful in the minds of most U.S. citizens.

On one hand, there are many good aspects to life in the capital of East Germany, and I want to describe them without defending the overall political system found there. On the other hand, I need to clarify the bad points of life on the other side of the wall, but not reinforce the sort of "anti-commie" Cold War ignorance that leads to arming terrorists and calling them "Freedom Fighters."

With these thoughts in mind, let's begin to explore the mystery and fascination called East Berlin.

The center of old Berlin is a section of the city full of famous bridges, streets, monuments and buildings, including the old Berlin Rathaus, Cathedral, Opera and University.

Fortunately, this beautiful urban landscape is not divided by the wall, but lies entirely in East Berlin and so is not cluttered up by the commercialism found in West Berlin. Then again, the difference between having a McDonald's next to the Rathaus, or a sign on the Rathaus proclaiming "LONG LIVE THE INTERNATIONAL PROLETARIAT" is perhaps not so great.

Parts of East Berlin reflect the different conditions under which East Germany has suffered since World War II. Close to the center, one finds an area of rather uncoordinated apartment complexes, described by one observer as "...a museum of Socialist architectural fashion: hulking Stalinist apartments followed by the post-Stalinist functionalist boxes followed by a rediscovery of the Prussian past."

Commentary

DAN OWENS
Collegian Columnist

Because less post-war construction has taken place in East Berlin than in West Berlin, a trip away from what the tourists found downtown provides a glimpse of what pre-war Berlin looked like. Other surprises are in store for the adventurous. On side streets, I've seen "Star Trek II" playing, communal piles of coal used for private heating and cooking, and once I even found a used Commodore 64 computer for sale — at a price of $3,700.

The price of that computer — and most other goods normally found in East Berlin — is consistent with Soviet Socialist ideology; necessities are generally plentiful and cheap, but what luxuries there are can be unbelievably expensive. A subway ride costs five cents and a loaf of bread 23 cents, but a new 25-inch TV will run you a cool $3,000.

Westerners visiting East Berlin often complain of not finding anything worth spending their money on, but quality products can be found, often at great prices. You can spend your money fast on excellent Rumanian wine or Russian vodka. Great jazz and classical records can be had for a song, and books, if you can find some interesting ones, are really cheap. I picked up hardback biographies of F.D.R. and Thomas Jefferson for about $5.50 each.

If you get past the coldness found in any big city, the people, like people everywhere, will be friendly if you show a little kindness.

I heard some East Berliners brag about their country, others complained about their country, some told me to go home and others invited me into their homes. Once two friends and I tried to befriend a group of schoolkids and got nowhere until we told them we were Americans. Then they mobbed us with questions (such as "Do you have a horse?") and left us with a large pile of their candy.

The most important thing to remember when visiting East Berlin is you are most likely comparing it with West Berlin, one of the richest cities in the world. If you were coming out of Mexico City or perhaps Lagos, Nigeria, East Berlin might look pretty good. Similarly, East Germany looks pretty poor when you compare it to West Germany, but as far as economic well-being and personal security are concerned, I'd certainly rather live in East Germany than, say, Chile.

But some things aren't to be compared in a relative sense, and the absolute evil found in East Berlin is the lack of personal freedoms, most importantly freedom of speech. I watched a couple of kids exchange some pop music cassettes from the West with the guarded paranoia you'll find at a drug deal in this country.

The Berlin Wall itself is perhaps the best symbol of the political differences between East and West Berlin. The West Berlin side of the wall is covered with colorful and creative graffiti, both political and non-political. The other side of the wall is white and barren. If you try to paint something on it, you'll most likely get shot.

But the day-to-day life in East Berlin seems to disguise this harshness somewhat. The streets are not only full of policemen, but also fashionably dressed people, tourists and workers. The operas, plays and museums are certainly on par with those in the West I've seen.

Everyone responsible for terminating hazing

It's just good, greek fun: hazing. Of course, this is now an outdated attitude, but it was held by many people up until the past few years when the dangers of hazing have become evident throughout the college world.

Last year, the Kansas legislature enacted legislation making hazing a misdemeanor. Hazing is considered to be acts that recklessly endanger the physical or mental health of a student or prospective member of an organization.

This legislation only serves to enforce the positive attitudes taken by the greek system at K-State. Each year, members and pledges are read a non-hazing policy issued by Greek Affairs. The statement is an in-depth view of what is accepted behavior by members and pledges toward one another.

Of course, reading a statement to a group does not ensure that hazing will not occur at K-State. It does help to reinforce the attitude that hazing can in no way be considered "harmless fun."

Hazing is dangerous. In the last decade alone, 39 students across the nation have died from hazing, according to a watchdog group. Hundreds more have been degraded mentally, or physically abused.

Hazing, it must be realized, does not build unity or weed out the "wimp." Hazing is not something done to test the stamina of the pledge or to amuse the bored active. Hazing is dangerous and wrong.

Of course, since this is the beginning of the semester the greek houses are brimming with new pledges. Hazing will be tempting to many members, especially later in the semester when traditional "Hell Weeks" begin. But the temptations must not be given into.

Of course, if hazing occurs, it will most likely never be reported. So it is up to members of greek organizations to make sure it never occurs.

And it is pledges' responsibility to not allow themselves to be hazed. If hazing does occur it should be reported — it may save someone's life.

Hazing should no longer be an accepted part of campus life.

Lottery officials need to improve relations

Kansas Lottery officials have a strange way of promoting their product.

Saturating the marketplace is one thing, but mailing form letters asking churches and schools to join in the selling of lottery tickets is quite another.

Recently, about 40,000 Kansans received these letters. While some looked at them as a joke, others were outraged. As they should be.

Larry Montgomery, executive director of the lottery, explained that the mailing wasn't meant to insult anyone. He said to save money, the lottery sent the letters to the Kansas Department of Revenue and had tax officials mail the letters to those on their sales tax list. The list included convenience stores, bars, schools and churches. Using the list made the "best economic sense," Montgomery said.

The "best economic sense" may turn out to be their worst mistake. Not only has the act enraged church and school officials, it has cast a negative spell on the overall view of the lottery.

While the lottery could be beneficial to the state, the attitude used in promoting it is not. Instead of infuriating the public, officials should be informing them as to when and where the lottery is to take place. Little, if any, work has been done in this area.

Lottery officials need to get their act together. The lottery is already starting out with a negative reputation. That, in combination with the "ho-hum" promotion approach currently in use, could spell disaster.

Stories help sleepless

Once upon a time there was...

Dear Jeff,

I have only been at school a few short weeks and I already feel behind. I just never had a chance to get organized, or to prepare my mind for a semester of stress. Worst of all, I have been losing sleep. How can I get myself back on track so that I can get a good night's sleep?

signed,
A Near Dead Coed

Dear Coed,

You have your problems turned around. You are stressed because you are not getting enough sleep, it is not the other way around. I bet you have a problem with "wake up whiplash" (when you catch yourself falling asleep and jerk your head back into an upright position) during lectures. You need to develop a strategy for enjoying a longer, deeper sleep.

Whenever I have trouble going to sleep I always tell myself a bedtime story. Here are two of my favorites.

—Once upon a time there was an evil professor who carried a tenure stick. All day long he would sit in his office/castle and count his published articles. If anyone objected to what he did, he would laugh at them, and threaten them with his tenure stick.

Then one day a student/peasant, who was tired of his cruel master, wrote a letter to the editor, and it got published in the Collegian/town crier.

The mighty Giant of Public Opinion turned against professor, and went to visit him disguised as a poor student/peasant in need. The professor told the disguised giant to go away, for he was busy publishing, and had no time to bother with his kind.

This made Public Opinion very angry. He threw off his costume, and took the tenure stick away from the professor. Without his stick, the evil professor got thrown out of his office/castle, and was sentenced to Farrell Library. Now he spends many lonely hours roaming the stacks, looking for people who have illegally brought in food or drink.

Everyone else lived happily ever after.

—Once upon a time there lived a frog, who sat around all day watching old reruns of Gilligan's Island on his lilly pad. Then one day the inevitable happened, a big wave came along and his television fell into the water.

After he buried all the fish who were electrocuted, he went shopping for another television.

The little frog was so shocked by the cost of new television sets that he almost wet himself. He decided that he must obtain a loan in order to purchase a color set with remote control and a VCR. So he went back to the pond, polished his warts and hopped to the nearest savings and loan institution.

His loan officer was a nice young lady named Patty Black. He thought she was attractive for a human. This was Patty's first day on the job, and she was very nervous. Especially when she realized that her first customer was a frog.

As far as she knew, the bank had no procedures regarding the granting of loans to animals, but the frog was very clean and seemed nice enough, so she excused herself to go and have a word with her supervisor.

The supervisor was very upset with Patty. "This bank does not give loans to animals, because animals do not have jobs and thus cannot pay back the loans. Tell the frog to go away, and don't come back another day," the supervisor said.

Now it was Patty's turn to be upset. She had to think of a way to turn the frog down nicely. She never could stand to see a little frog cry. So she went back to the frog and said, "I'm sorry, but I can't give you a loan unless you can show me some collateral."

The frog pulled out a cluster of diamonds and rubys on a nugget of gold, and said, "How's this?" Patty was so shocked that she almost wet herself. She took the cluster of gold and jewels back to her supervisor's office.

Now it was the supervisor's turn to almost wet herself. Patty asked the supervisor what this clump of gems was. The supervisor thought for a moment and said, "It's a nickname, Patty Black, give the frog a loan!"

If these don't put you to sleep, then you are beyond help.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR
Christine Doll
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Judd Annis, Kirk Caraway, Jenny Chaulk, Christine Doll, Michael Krueger, Deron Johnson, Candy Leonard, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Michael Nichols, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116 or mailed.

Shelter construction begins

Completion date set for February

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

Despite muddy ground and muddy shovels, the groundbreaking ceremony took place Thursday for the T. Russell Reitz Regional Animal Shelter on Levee Drive in northeast Manhattan.

"The new animal shelter is a cornerstone of the Quality of Life bond issue," said Gene Klingler, mayor of Manhattan.

He said the shelter is significant because of its importance to the community, and the amount of work, cooperation and effort put into the planning by individual citizens.

The Sunset Zoo can now be enlarged and accredited, Klingler said, because of the shelter's relocation.

Plans for the new animal shelter began in 1977, said Su Bacon, vice president of the Riley County Humane Society. She said the facility will serve not only the city of Manhattan, but also Riley and Pottawatomie counties.

"I'm grateful to the voters of Manhattan for the Quality of Life bond issue," Bacon said. "I'm grateful to Russell Reitz and the many others who made the shelter a reality."

Reitz contributed $15,000 to the shelter project, kicking off a Humane Society fundraising campaign that generated more than $26,000.

"I'm looking forward to the great future of this shelter," said Reitz, former mayor and city commissioner. He said he appreciated the "quality of life that is a part of Manhattan." He referred back to the similar issues of his tenure, including the repair work on Anderson Avenue and building the fire station at Kimball and Denison avenues.

"I spoke for the quality of the project (building the fire station) rather than the 'goodbye' of the project," Reitz said.

He admitted he did not know that building the present animal facility inside the zoo grounds would hurt the zoo's chances of accreditation. But, he said he is "glad we're getting out of that business."

The increase in quality, size and equipment will make it a "first grade animal shelter," Reitz said.

Seven city commissioners from Riley and Pottawatomie counties joined Bacon and Reitz in digging the first shovelful of dirt, marking the official beginning of the animal shelter construction.

Terry DeWeese, director of parks and recreation, said the new animal shelter is a combined effort of the Quality of Life bond issue, the Riley County commissioners, the Pottawatomie County commissioners, the Humane Society and the Riley County-Manhattan Health Department.

DeWeese said the new shelter was designed by Bruce McMillan, assistant professor of environmental design. The $167,000 shelter will be built by Riley Construction of Manhattan and should be completed in February.

University life chronicled in book

'AWAKS' available at State Fair

By Ann Iseman
Collegian Reporter

Kansans attending the 75th annual State Fair in Hutchinson Sept. 10-20 will have an opportunity to order the "A Week at Kansas State" book.

"They came, they focused and they snapped," says the front flap of the book. The book contains about 250 photographs of life at K-State taken by 44 former and present K-

State photographers during the week of Oct. 12-19, 1986.

Orders for the 10 inch by 14 inch book have already exceeded 1,500, and more than 800 copies have been paid for. Two-thirds of the book's 168 pages are full color and one-third are black-and-white.

Photographs from the book will be exhibited at the K-State booth at the fair, and order forms will be available for anyone wanting to purchase the book.

Dave Adams, director of Student Publications Inc. and publisher of the book, said, "We have arranged to air freight a few copies at considerable expense so people will see exactly what they are buying at the fair."

"It is one of a kind. Everybody who likes Kansas will be pleased with it," Adams said.

The K-State booth will be located in the center aisle of the Industrial Building. In addition to the AWAKS exhibit, the booth will offer information from the eight colleges and the graduate school.

Maribeth Gottschalk, pre-admissions counselor and organizer of the K-State booth, said, "Taking turns staffing the booth will be alumni, admissions people, financial aid people, athletic department representatives, student government representatives and current students."

The purpose of the K-State booth is to answer questions and to "create a K-State presence at the fair," Gottschalk said.

For those who are unable to attend the fair, the AWAKS book will be available at malls throughout the state, the K-State Union and the Student Publications Inc. office in Kedzie Hall by mid-October.

The Manhattan Arts Council and FirstBank, 701 Poyntz Ave., will sponsor a grand opening of the official traveling AWAKS photography exhibit on Sunday, Sept. 27.

Adams said the AWAKS project may be done again in 10 years and possibly every decade if the book makes a profit. Depending on the amount of money made, "profits will be used to endow a photojournalism scholarship at K-State, endow a major photojournalism seminar every other year and to have 'seed' money to do the project again in 10 years."

Gulf

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

It said all aircraft returned safely from the attacks in western Iran on Shahabad, Garand, Maragha, Doroud and Bakhtaran, formerly called Kermanshah.

An earlier dispatch from Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency said Iraq jets bombed several industrial centers in Bakhtaran province Thursday, killing or wounding "several civilians." It did not give details.

Reports from the salvage executives said the 232,164-ton Haven was hit by grenade and machine-gun fire shortly after midnight in the southern Persian Gulf, off the United Arab Emirates.

Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Unit in London said the attack may have come from an Iranian frigate firing a 4.5-inch gun that "might have missed," followed by machine guns.

An officer on the Haven told Associated Press photographer Greg English when the ship anchored off Dubai, however, that attackers in a "gunboat" used shoulder-fired grenades and machine guns. Most of the speedboats are manned by Revolutionary Guards.

Attacks by Iranian speedboats had been expected since Iraq ended a three-day recess in the war on shipping with attacks Tuesday night near Iran's Kharg Island oil export terminal in the northern gulf.

The Security Council had requested a suspension of attacks in the gulf during Perez de Cuellar's visit.

He is to spend two days in Tehran meeting with President Ali Khamenei, Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati and Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of Iran's parliament, before flying to Baghdad.

There are no plans for him to see Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Campus Briefly

University names new heads

Several University departments have new academic and administrative heads this fall. They are:

Maj. Richard Brown, 39, aerospace studies; Stan Clark, 56, agricultural engineering (acting head); Allen C. Cogley, 47, mechanical engineering; Kenneth Gowdy, engineering technology (interim head); Robert Grindell, 54, English; Doris Grosh, 62, industrial engineering (acting head); Robert Helgesen, 44, KSU Cooperative Extension Service (acting associate director); Ted Hopkins, 58, entomology (acting head); James Legg, 50, physics; Duane Nellis, 33, geography; Lester R. Pinkerton, 46, forestry; and Joe Smith, 49, pathology.

Centennial Alumnus chosen

Russell I. Thackery, former K-State department head of journalism and mass communications and dean of administration, has been selected as the University's Centennial Alumnus.

President Jon Wefald said centennial alumni are selected by the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges on the basis of their character and outstanding contributions to their academic discipline and higher education.

Thackery graduated from K-State in 1927 with a bachelor's degree in journalism. He headed K-State's journalism and mass communications department from 1940-1944. He took a leave of absence in 1943-44 to serve with the Naval Reserves.

Upon his return to campus, he was appointed dean of administration, director of summer school and director of veterans' affairs by University president Milton Eisenhower.

Thackery served as NASULGC's executive director from 1947-1970. He will be recognized Nov. 10 in Washington.

Professor gets $10,000 grant

A K-State distinguished professor has been awarded a $10,000 stipend to further his research in applied sciences.

Liang-tseng Fan, chairman of the department of chemical engineering, received the Irvin Youngberg Award at the 1987 Higuchi/Endowment Research Achievement Awards at the University of Kansas Aug. 24.

Fan is one four professors who received awards. Faculty at all Kansas Board of Regents institutions are eligible to receive them. The awards are named for people who have worked through the Kansas University Endowment Association to further the university's overall research program.

Fan's major research areas are in particulate technology, biotechnology, process systems engineering and chemical reaction engineering.

AUCTION
Used ranch oak furniture
Good apt. and dorm
complementary pieces.
Sun., Sept. 13
1:30 at Weber Arena
Terms Cash
Proceeds go to the
Block & Bridle Club Library

ST. FRANCIS
EPISCOPAL CAMPUS MINISTRY

Sundays:
5 p.m.—Evening Service at Danforth Chapel
6 p.m.—Dinner at St. Francis House
537-0593 1402 LeGore Lane

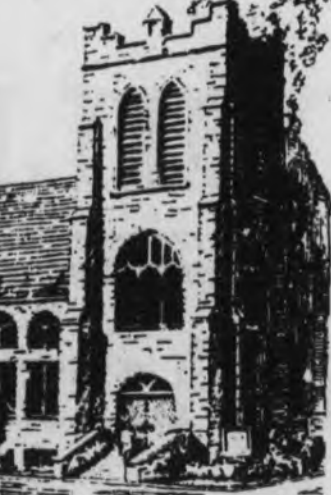

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAN EXPRESS
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Sticks
OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Menthol Towers—Aggieville

The Station
TGIF

FREE TGIF TERRIFIC
BUFFET,
JOIN MANHATTAN'S
TGIF TRADITION!
No membership needed
For restaurant & bar!
Open To Public!
1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

BIBLE STUDY AND SPIRITUAL GROWTH SUNDAYS, 9:45 a.m. DANFORTH CHAPEL
THE ROAD LESS TRAVELED - PECK
September 13 - Discipline and Pain
September 20 - What is Love?
September 27 - Understanding God's Grace
THE BIBLE AS LIBERATING WORD - ANDERSON
October 4 - Bible Through the Eyes of Poor - Base Communities
October 11 - Why People are Poor - Oppression
October 18 - Good News for the Poor - Liberation Theology
October 25 - The Way of the Christian - Solidarity and Justice
SPONSORED BY LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY, 1021 DENISON, 539-4451

aluminum bats • flashbulbs • reloaders • funny hats • candles •
Cash Pawn & Gun Inc.
Has LOW Prices
L'oreal Preference (reg. $7.65) now $1.91
Other health & beauty aids 75% off
Browning compound bows: $120
Mag wheels: $125 for 4
Remote Control Color TVs: $150 to $400
New 8-track tapes: 50¢
Lawn Chairs: $3.50
K2 Skis with bindings & poles: $55
Misc. Stereo Equipment: Misc. low prices
Cash Pawn & Gun Inc.
1917 Ft. Riley Blvd.
913/776-3332
Monday-Saturday 9-6:30
"You ain't seen nothin' yet!"
flowers • Christmas ornaments • motorcycles • guns • jewelry • silver • gold

First Presbyterian Church
Calling K.S.U. Students

We hope you'll share
Fellowship, Bible Study, and Christian Fellowship with us
every Tuesday at 5:30
in the K-State Union
Room 204.
Join us for C.O.R.
every Tuesday
Worship 8:30 & 11:00 a.m.
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
We have a great class
for K-State Students
801 Leavenworth 537-0518

619 N. Manhattan
Bar Office
539-9081 776-6638
TGIF
Wine Coolers $1.25
Drink of the Week $1.50
Come in and
Check it out

What Difference Can One Person Make?
Come And Find Out At The
STRATEGY WORKSHOP for PUBLIC POLICY ADVOCACY
For people who want to make a difference on hunger, war, farm policies, Central America, and other issues of peace and justice ... Sept. 14, 6:30 p.m.
When - Monday, Sept. 14, 6:30 p.m.
Where - ECM, 1021 Denison Ave.
Sponsored by - United Campus Ministry
Coalition for a New Foreign Policy
For more information call 539-4281

ATTENTION
Make Reservations for Organization Group Pictures
for the Royal Purple
NOW
thru September 18.
Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

Bluemont Bicycle Club offers variety of rides, distances for all bikers

By Jan Schwartz
Collegian Reporter

Tired of trudging alone on those long and boring bike rides by yourself? Would you like to have a bicycling buddy?

The Bluemont Bicycle Club, perhaps the only bicycle club in Manhattan, could be the answer.

"The main purpose of the B.B.C. is to get people together that like to ride," said Jason Lilly, senior in electrical engineering and president of the club. "It's more fun to ride with a group."

"It's kind of a 'rejuvenated club,'" said Amber Owen, senior in industrial psychology and treasurer of the club.

"The club began in the early 1970s and has been on and off ever since," Lilly said. "The last time the club was officially active was in 1984. We had enough people interested in biking this year to start it up again."

"The B.B.C. acts as a sounding board for people who like to bike to find other people to ride with," Lilly said.

The club provides members with the opportunity to ride three times a week; Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. All rides start at 6 p.m. at the corner of Manhattan and Thurston.

"Tuesday nights are the time trials," Lilly said. "This is a good chance to test yourself and compare your time with the other members."

Wednesdays are the 10-20 mile rides at a slow pace, and Thursdays offer a more challenging 20-40 mile ride at a moderate to fast pace for the more serious bicyclist.

Lilly said Wednesdays are designed for almost anybody to come out and ride, but on Thursdays the group is biking at an average of 24 m.p.h. and some people might find it hard to keep up.

The club also sponsors other bicycling activities such as the 'Moonlight Madness Mountain Bike Ride' held last Monday at 10 p.m. and the 'Yogurt Ride' sponsored last Wednesday. Owen said the club usually gets a group together by word-of-mouth and goes on a breakfast ride on Sunday mornings to Wamego as well.

Nancy von Hellens, a member of the B.B.C., said she really enjoys the club.

"I think it's really great how Jason (Lilly) offers a lot of different things for a lot of different people," von Hellens said.

Currently the club has 32 memberships. A membership costs $5 for an individual or for a family. As a member, you receive a five percent discount on purchases at the Pathfinder in Aggieville.

The B.B.C. is having an informal meeting Sept. 13 at 1221 Thurston St. in the fireplace room at 7:30 p.m. Anyone interested is invited to attend, or pick up a membership application at the Pathfinder.

Immigration denies visas Needed language teachers wait

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Immigration and Naturalization Service has denied visas for Belgian teachers needed in Kansas City, setting up a bureaucratic wall against the school district's attempts to meet a federal court-ordered desegregation plan, attorneys said Thursday.

The visas were denied because Immigration determined the teachers had inadequate educational backgrounds, although they had been licensed by the state and the school district had provided evidence they were veteran teachers who had been educated in an intensive two-year program.

An appeal to be filed this week, the first week of classes, could take a month or more for action, said attorneys Hope Frye and Howard Eisberg.

"...You have failed to establish that the position is a profession or that persons of distinguished merit and ability are needed," Immigration said in denying the visa applications Sept. 2.

"Additionally, you have failed to establish that the beneficiaries have at least a bachelor's degree or its equivalent, or are of renown or are preeminent in their field of endeavor."

Immigration, whose own guidelines describe elementary teachers as professionals, did not appear to have reviewed evidence submitted by the school district and issued its decision "in a hodge-podge of computer forms," Eisberg said.

"It looks as if they sat around and said 'We need an answer to this, so let's push buttons 2, 12, 16 and 64 and there is the answer'," Eisberg said.

The Belgians were hired because there are few American teachers qualified to teach a foreign language on the elementary level.

Frye, a Cincinnati attorney who specializes in such cases, said visas for foreign teachers are frequently refused, but that she had taken this case for a reduced fee because "never have I seen so much evidence on the side of the school district and so little on the side of the government."

Frye said she hoped the case would set a precedent.

"When you think of the extensive amount of effort that went into this (making applications) and you read the paucity of the denial, you are overwhelmed by the stupidity of it and the clear lack of attention that was paid to it," Frye said.

School children enrolled in foreign language magnet schools, established in part in the desegregation plan to attract white suburban children to the predominantly black school district, were receiving a limited instruction in French instead of the intensive course the Belgians were hired to provide, said Donald Waldrup, assistant superintendent.

"One federal agency is trying to frustrate the efforts of another agency of the federal government that has performed a much more extensive study," Eisberg said. "Quite understandably, the school district and the people of Kansas City are frustrated."

Visa applications for eight German teachers were approved. The school district has yet to apply for visas for Argentinian teachers hired to teach Spanish.

"You can see the inconsistency of it," Frye said.

The school district had sought an H-1 visa for Belgians, a visa for an alien to live in the United States temporarily to "perform services of an exceptional nature requiring merit and ability."

All of the teachers, some with 20 years experience, had been educated in a system in which they attend classes "eight hours a day, five days a week, 12 months a year for two years," said Bonnie Sims, who handles personnel for the district. "It's beyond a bachelor's degree in that country."

The Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education had certified the teachers.

"These are not the dregs," Frye said of the teachers. "These are the cream of the crop. They are hand-picked by their government and are well respected in their country."

Death is forever.

Heart disease
doesn't have to be.

THE AMERICAN HEART
ASSOCIATION
MEMORIAL PROGRAM

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart
Association

This space provided as a public service.

Woman's decomposed body found

By The Associated Press

LAWRENCE — A woman's decomposed body was found Wednesday night in a wooden box in a shed near the mobile home she shared with her husband, police said.

Authorities said Thursday that a preliminary autopsy didn't reveal a cause of death for Judy Kemp, 32. Ron Olin, assistant police chief, said she appeared to have been dead for at least a week.

Douglas County Prosecuting Jim

Flory said Kemp's husband, Carl Kemp, 39, was taken into custody by police.

No charges were filed Thursday, but Flory said Carl Kemp remained in police custody at a Lawrence hospital.

ATTENTION Organization Pictures for the Royal Purple are being taken in FAIRCHILD 202

6th Annual Business Career Day

All Students Welcome

Visit with Representatives from

40 Companies State and Nationwide

Tuesday, September 15
9 a.m.-4 p.m.

K-State Union Ballroom

The College of Business Administration
K-State Marketing Club

Now the Best Pizza in Town Has the Best Price!

Two Pizzas for Only $5.99!

Now you can have two delicious 10" pizzas for the price of one. They're custom-made with your choice of toppings on each; they don't have to be the same! And we use only the freshest ingredients and 100% real cheese.

You're not seeing double. It's just our latest way to say that Domino's Pizza Deliverers. And we deliver at no additional charge in 30 minutes or less. That's the Domino's Pizza guarantee.

No coupon necessary.

Call Us!
Manhattan
539-0561
517 N. 12th Street

Hours:
4pm-1am Sun.-Thurs.
4pm-2am Fri.-Sat.

COKE® AVAILABLE
in 16 oz. bottle 75¢ each.

Domino's
Pizza
Delivers®
Doubles.

Prices do not include tax.
Our drivers carry less than $20.00.
Limited delivery area.

	PEPPERONI MUSHROOMS GROUND BEEF	SAUSAGE BLACK OLIVES ONIONS	HAM GREEN PEPPER PINEAPPLE	JALAPENOS EXTRA THICK CRUST EXTRA CHEESE
Menu
CHEESE	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 ITEM	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 ITEMS	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 ITEMS	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 ITEMS	9.79	12.99	14.59
DELUXE*	9.79	12.99	14.59
VEGI	9.79	12.99	14.59
EXTRAVAGANZZA	10.74	14.24	15.99
EACH ADDITIONAL ITEM	.95	1.25	1.40

*DELUXE—5 items for the price of 4. Pepperoni, Sausage, Mushrooms, Onions & Green Peppers.

**VEGI—5 items for the price of 4. Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Black Olives & Extra Cheese.

***EXTRAVAGANZZA—A special blend of 9 items for the price of 5. Pepperoni, Ham, Ground Beef, Sausage, Black Olives, Green Peppers, Onions, Mushrooms & Extra Cheese.

Entertainment Friday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, September 11, 1987 ■ Page 7

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

Doctors in surgical gowns and masks bend over a patient in an operating room. The beep, beep, beep of a heart monitor is heard along with the mumbled conversation of surgeons performing open heart surgery. Finally, the heart is seen. In slow motion it beats and beats and beats, then stops.

Next, the body lies on a different sort of operating table. It is stainless steel, slanted with a drain at the bottom. Another doctor is again operating on the body. He opens the chest cavity and removes internal organs. He cuts the flesh from the skull. He then uses a small circular saw to remove the top of the skull to reveal the brain.

The coroner leaves the examination room and returns to his office. Along the way, he removes his gown and gloves. In his office, he looks into the camera: "When medical science fails in its attempts to prolong life and death occurs, my expertise is required. I am a forensic pathologist," he says.

So begins "Faces of Death."

"Faces of Death" is a video documentary, distributed nationally by MPI Home Video, detailing the investigation of Dr. Francis B. Gross, a medical examiner, into the numerous ways people and animals die.

Gross, portrayed in the video by Micheal Carr, first became interested in all violent forms of death because of a recurring dream he had. Gross' dream is recreated in the documentary. In it, a casket is carried to a grave. The camera rests on the coffin as it is lowered into the ground. A priest stands over the grave and crosses himself.

To free himself from the dream, Gross searched the world to discover the violent forms of death.

"Along the way I've compiled a library of the faces of death," Gross says in the film.

In the beginning of his search, Gross lives with a tribe of Indian head-hunters in the Amazon jungle. Watching the Indians stalk their main food staple — monkey — Gross makes this observation: "Death becomes a mandate for survival. There is no shelter for the weak in the jungle."

Gross next turns his attention from the use of violence for food and clothing to the use of violence for profit. Gross examines the work of a professional assassin.

Staff Illustration/Brad Fanshier

First, he shows the audience a sample of the assassin's work. A bearded politician rises to speak to an audience. He is shot in the chest. The assassin escapes and is next seen perfecting his craft by taking target practice with a hunting rifle and scope at an undisclosed desert location.

Wearing a ski mask and holding the rifle, the assassin explains his lack of feeling about his work or his victims. He makes it clear he will kill anyone for the right price.

Throughout "Faces of Death,"

Gross shows and examines one violent act after another. Richard J. Harris, K-State professor of psychology, examines the effects that seeing continual violent deaths has on audiences.

"Well, in terms of films of graphic violence, there is desensitization. In desensitization, violence just ceases to trouble you. You're less affected by it. You begin to view it as normal," Harris said.

He said watching violent material can also make a person more fearful.

"There is also cultivation of paranoid responses. People who watch violent material repeatedly develop a lot of fearful attitudes. They take TV as a reflection of reality."

Harris said viewing violent films repeatedly can break down the inhibitions which hold our feelings of violence in check. If that happens, we may then commit an act of violence, he said.

"Faces of Death" carries no rating because it was released directly to video stores without first appearing in movie theaters. Parents' groups have voiced the concern that unrated films will be rented by children.

Kim Franz, manager of Cinemagic Video, 2030 Tuttle Creek Blvd., said her store's policies prevent children from renting "Faces of Death."

"You have to be 18 and have a membership to rent 'Faces of Death,'" Franz said.

Diane Gerlaugh, manager of Campus Rental, 1122 Laramie St., said similar policies are in effect at her store.

"Our company doesn't rent to anyone under 18," Gerlaugh said.

Gerlaugh also said children could rent "Faces of Death" if their parents called the store and authorized the children to rent the film.

"Most all of our good customers send a note or call ahead. Otherwise we won't rent to someone under 18," Gerlaugh said.

MPI Home Video no longer markets "Faces of Death," according to the switchboard operator at its office.

'Fourth Protocol' distinguished from typical espionage movies

By Chad L. Sanborn
Campus Editor

There are a few new spy movies out this summer. The latest is "The Fourth Protocol" starring Michael Caine and Pierce Brosnan (the dude from "Remington Steele"). It's kind of slow, but it puts some new twists into an old scenario.

Film Review

Deep down inside, every guy wants to be a spy. There is not a man in the Western Hemisphere who wouldn't like to divert a few funds or start a small coup on a South Pacific island. But, alas, the world needs ditch diggers too. So some of us fellas, and you gals also, have to live vicariously through spy movies.

Most spy movies are boring and predictable. They have the hero who hits the sheets with anything which walks upright at least part of the time. The villain is always an all-or-nothing "ruskie" trying to either conquer or destroy the world. Titles need not be listed, but does the number 007 ring a bell?

In "The Fourth Protocol," the hero, Caine, is a single parent and proud of it. The movie never lets on as to what happened to his wife. She may have died, or she may have run away with the jamoke next door. It doesn't matter, because Caine loves his son and misses the missus.

Caine is a strange mixture of a spy. Though stable and family oriented, he is viewed as somewhat a rebel by his superiors. He may well be a rebel, but only if it is what it takes to get the job done. He steers clear of hedonism and lives on calculated recklessness. Who says all heroes have to bag babes along the way?

Besides, there really haven't been any good spy movies since Dean Martin stopped doing "Matt Helm" flicks. Anybody who has ever seen one of these classics knows he is the only movie-spy who could believably defuse a bomb, seduce a broad and drink two fingers of scotch all at the same time.

But to make a spy movie there has to be some deep, meaningless lust somewhere. This time the active hormones belong to the bad guy, and what a bad guy he is. Brosnan is the evil ruskie, and he has a style all his own. No metal teeth here, just plain weirdness.

He is a brutal assassin. Whether he's offing a homosexual or taking out a fellow commie, he is bloody original.

The movie succeeds in a way that many spy movies don't. It doesn't tell the audience everything to the story; it leads them along, allowing them to put the plot together.

This movie has what it takes for a spy movie: good guys and bad guys, though no one is sure who is which; cool guys, hot babes; and surprisingly, some depth to the characters. It is worth seeing, but there is no loss in waiting for the video tape. Though it is a good movie, it lacks an unidentifiable ingredient to make it a great movie. Maybe it just needs Deano.

Campus activities coordinated by UPC

By Jackie Wendt
Collegian Reporter

Each year, K-State students are provided with art gallery shows, dances, films, trips and other activities through an organization called Union Program Council.

UPC has been a part of the K-State Union since its opening in 1956, and its members are all student volunteers.

Sylvia Scott, UPC program director, said the organization is composed of nine separate committees. Each committee works on providing activities for one certain area of campus entertainment. For example, there is a feature films committee, a special events committee, a travel committee and an outdoor recreation committee.

Each committee has a chairperson and each committee chairperson is a member of UPC's executive council,

Scott said.

It is the executive council that makes UPC's policies and decisions and pulls all the committees together.

The executive committee also has a president who is not a member of a committee. John Miller, senior, is this year's executive council president.

Advisers for UPC are Scott, two other program advisers and one graduate assistant.

"Students involved with UPC have an opportunity to get experience in real-life decisions," said Scott. "They select a program, plan it, promote it and then see it through. Afterward, they evaluate the program with an evaluation form."

More than 600 events were sponsored by UPC last year, and the number is growing each year.

Scott said the most difficult activities UPC sponsors are the major

■ See UPC, Page 8

Spotlight

EXHIBITS

An exhibit featuring photographs from the first 75 Landon Lectures will be on display in the McCain Auditorium Galleries through Oct. 2.

"Contemporary Woodcuts in Color," in K-State Union Art Gallery through Sept. 18.

"Ceramic Sculpture by Jeaneane Johnson," K-State Union 2nd Floor Showcase through Sept. 25.

EVENTS

"Flint Hills Chamber Orchestra Concert," 8 p.m., Sept. 11, Chapel Auditorium.

"Craft Fair and Volksmarch," 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Sept. 12, Main Post, Fort Riley.

"Kansas State Fair," Sept. 11-25, Hutchinson.

"Opus Band Competition," Sept. 25 in area between Union and Seaton Hall. To enter, submit tapes to Lydee Hawkins, Union Activities Center, third floor in Union.

FILMS

Union

"Lethal Weapon," (R), 7:30 p.m. and 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday,

Union Forum Hall.

"Creature from the Black Lagoon," (3-D), (G), 2 p.m., Saturday; 2 p.m. and 7 p.m., Sunday, Union Little Theatre.

"Fast Times at Ridgemont High," (R), midnight, Friday and Saturday, Union Forum Hall.

"The Golden Age of Comedy" and "Cure" (Silent Film Special), 7 p.m., Sept. 14 and 15, Union Forum Hall.

"28 Up," (Not Rated), 7:30 p.m., Sept. 16, Union Forum Hall; 3:30 p.m., Sept. 17, Union Little Theatre and 7:30 p.m., Sept. 17, Union Forum Hall.

Campus

"Stakeout," (R), daily at 7 and 9:15, Saturday and Sunday, 2:30 and 4:45.

Westloop Cinema 6

"Dirty Dancing," (PG-13), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday, 2:10.

"Fourth Protocol," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday, 2 p.m.

"House II: The 2nd Story," (PG-13), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday, 2:10.

"The Fat Boys are ... Disorder-lies," (PG), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday, 2:10.

"American Ninja II," (R), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday, 2:20.

"Masters of the Universe," (PG), daily at 4:45, 7:15 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday, 2:20.

Seth Childs Cinemas

"Can't Buy Me Love," (PG-13), daily at 7:20 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday, 2 and 4:35.

"Untouchables," (R), Monday through Thursday, 7 and 9:25; Friday, 9:25; Saturday and Sunday, 2, 4:20, 7 and 9:25.

"Born in East L.A.," (R), daily 7:15 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday, 2:10 and 4:40.

"No Way Out," (R), daily 7:10 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday, 1:50 and 4:15.

"The Lost Boys," (R), daily 7:30 and 9:45; Saturday and Sunday, 2:30 and 4:45.

"The Big Easy," (R), daily 7:05 and 9:35; Saturday and Sunday, 2:20 and 4:30.

"The Principal," sneak preview, Friday, 7 p.m.

Shultz backs Contras

Continued support only choice

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, arguing that the alternative is a "communist victory" in Nicaragua, said Thursday the administration will ask Congress for $270 million in aid to the Contra rebels for an 18-month period.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Shultz said additional aid to the Contras is the best insurance that Nicaragua will comply with terms of the Central American peace agreement it signed last month in Guatemala.

The announcement drew immediate criticism from a number of congressional Democrats and is certain to produce another round of heated debate on Capitol Hill over the administration's Central America policy.

Shultz said, "If the Guatemalan agreement is to be implemented in a way that secures a negotiated cease-fire, a democratic opening in Nicaragua, and accommodation of basic national security interests ... the United States must continue to furnish support to the freedom fighters."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters the aid request will "keep pressure on the Sandinistas as we go through the peace process and let them know the president is serious in his commitment not to desert the resistance."

The Guatemala agreement, among other steps, calls on the Sandinista government to arrange a cease fire and implement democratic reform measures by Nov. 7 — about five weeks after the current Contra aid allotment expires. It also calls on the United States to cease funding the Contras.

House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, who has played an increasingly influential role in the Central America issue, said it was inappropriate for the administration to make a request for more Contra money while the peace process was under way.

"Such a request would anticipate the failure of the peace process. I don't anticipate the failure of the peace process. I anticipate success," he said.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., an outspoken critic of administration policy in Central America, told Shultz during Thursday's hearing that a Contra aid request at this time "is the worst possible signal you could send."

He said the administration may be embarked on a "significant, profound, historical mistake."

In a similar vein, Nicaragua's ambassador to the United States, Carlos Tunnermann, said the request "shows total disregard for the commitment of the leaders of the region to achieve peace."

"This attitude shows contempt for the leaders of the region who in the Guatemala accord called upon the United States to stop waging war against Nicaragua," Tunnermann said.

Shultz, alluding to the five-week gap between the expiration of Contra aid and the implementation of the peace agreement, said, "the Guatemala calendar will play out entirely in favor of the communists. At some point, the resistance will be facing advanced Soviet weaponry and Cuban advisers with rapidly dwindling resources and no further help from us."

"And as their resources disappear, the helicopter gunships and armored personnel carriers and rocket launchers that the Soviet Union is continuing to supply will guarantee a communist victory," he said.

Shultz declined to say when he believes the renewed funding for the Contras — if approved — should be spent. He noted that the Contra leadership has suggested that any new funds be held in escrow until Nov. 7 to allow a determination as to whether the Sandinistas are abiding by the peace agreement.

Shultz said the issue of timing should be worked out in consultation with the Congress.

Shoppers tune to KMTC

Town Center mall gets radio station

By The Collegian Staff

"Hey, you crazy shoppers, keep your radio tuned to KMTC for upcoming sales and contests. Don't touch that dial!"

That may sound a little weird, but the newest radio station in town will be located at the Manhattan Town Center, which is scheduled to open Oct. 26. The radio station will begin broadcasting in late September in order to work out any complications in the system before the mall's opening.

The low-power radio station will be located in the mall and will be heard in the parking areas and in the general vicinity of the center. But the mall shoppers will not be able to hear the broadcast as they shop, said Mickey Thompson, marketing director for the Center.

Radio broadcasts only for a shopping center's parking lot were started at a mall in Florida, said Thompson.

"Air time will begin one-half hour before the mall opens and end when the mall closes. The mall is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 12 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday," Thompson said. The station will broadcast on AM frequency 1580.

An independent research firm found the average length of time it takes a shopper to park their car and walk to an entrance. It showed that, on the average, it takes a shopper eight minutes. During the holiday rush, it takes longer at 13 minutes.

KMTC will broadcast tapes of these lengths, which will run continually throughout the day. Advertisements from mall merchants will make up 80 percent of the scripts.

The Center will use the other 20 percent to promote upcoming mall events and contests. Merchants will have the opportunity to change their spots weekly.

The station will be installed and operated by KMAN and KMKF, two local radio stations. They will oversee all operations and write the scripts, Thompson said.

Although the station uses the lowest wattage possible for operation, the Center had to apply to the Federal Communications Commission for call letters, she said. The "MTC" in the call letters stands for Manhattan Town Center.

"We're very excited about this unique way to promote the mall and its merchants, and to inform the public about events going on at Manhattan Town Center," Thompson said.

Hispanic population increases

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The population of Hispanics, the nation's fastest-growing minority, has risen by 30 percent since 1980, with almost one-fourth of the increase coming from illegal aliens, the Census Bureau said Thursday.

The bureau said Hispanics, the second-largest minority in the United States after blacks, totaled 18.8 million in March, an increase of 4.3 million since 1980.

While the Hispanic population was growing by 30 percent between 1980 and 1987, the total population of the country was rising by 7.3 percent.

Hispanics now comprise 7.9 percent of the total U.S. population. A Census Bureau study last year forecast that this percentage will continue to rise, with Hispanics expected to account for 12 percent of the population by the year 2020. It forecast that the Hispanic population could double in 30 years and triple within 60 years.

The new figures are included in a report, "The Hispanic Population in the United States: March 1986 and 1987," which for the first time included estimates of illegal immigrants in the United States based on Census Bureau surveys and information provided to the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Jorge Del Pinal of the Census Bureau said the agency estimates that 23 percent of the 4.3 million increase in Hispanics between 1980 and 1987 came from illegal immigrants entering the country.

Hispanics who trace their origins to Central and South America grew the fastest of any group from 1982 to 1987, rising by 40 percent to total 2.1 million, the report said.

Hispanics from Mexico remained the largest group with a population of 11.8 million, 63 percent of the total and up 22 percent in the past five years.

UPC

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

concerts.

"Part of the problem is that the athletic department has control of Ahearn," said Scott. "From Oct. 15 until March 15 is basketball practice, and this allows only two dates — Parent's Day and Homecoming — for us to schedule anything."

Scott said that it is tough to get an act to come in on only one particular date.

"You either have to pay an arm and a leg to get an act, or get lucky enough to get someone who just happens to be touring in the area," Scott said. "We would really like to do more concerts, but it is so hard to pick and choose on those two dates we really can't be flexible."

Because of the large financial loss of the Starship concert last year, Scott said the only way UPC would sponsor another major concert is if it were able to get a promoter show, where the promoter of an act would bear the financial risk.

"We're not saying we're not going to do concerts anymore, but we're just being dormant," Scott said. "We're putting an emphasis on other things for now."

UPC is funded through the K-State Union and also receives some income from its own committees, specifically the feature films committee. However, UPC is an organization that is budgeted to lose money, said Scott. It is considered a student service.

Scott said this year UPC has $26,000 to divide among its nine committees. How much each committee receives to spend, however, varies upon need.

Each year UPC makes goals, and Scott said this year's goals include talking to all of the University living units about UPC.

HUNAM
Restaurant
1304 Westloop 539-8888
(10 % off with KSU ID)

TAKE A CLASSY DATE
TO A CLASSY PLACE
PUTT PUTT GOLF COURSE

TANS TO GO
1214-C Moro—In Aggieville
—OPENING SPECIAL—
Buy 5 get 1 free
776-7874

Falsetto's PIZZA

539-3830

Falsetto's Pizza Price Buster!
The Best For Less
Two Pizzas
$5.99

MENU

	Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
	TWO 10"	10"	10" & 14"	TWO 14"
Cheese .....	5.99		7.99	8.99
1 Item .....	6.94		9.24	10.39
2 Items .....	7.89		10.49	11.79
3 Items .....	8.84		11.74	13.19
4 Items .....	9.79		12.99	14.59
Deluxe .....	9.79		12.99	14.59
Veggie .....	9.79		12.99	14.59
Supreme .....	10.74		14.24	15.99
Each Additional Item .....	.95		1.25	1.40

1127 Moro - In Aggieville

New Hardee's Supremes.
So good. But only for so long.

Tender Roast Beef, Chicken Fillet or Ham 'N' Cheese, surrounded by a multi-grain bun, crisp lettuce, fresh tomato and creamy mayonnaise.
Supreme Specialty™ Sandwiches at Hardee's.
One limited-time offer bound to go scrumptiously fast.

Hardee's
©1987 Hardee's Food Systems, Inc.
At participating Hardee's restaurants

We're out to win you over.

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, September 11, 1987 ■ Page 9

Baseball team begins era

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

It's just about time for the Mike Clark era to begin at K-State.

Clark, who last year inherited a program built entirely by former coach Gary Vaught, is making his presence known as he prepares to lead the Wildcats' baseball team for a second season.

A strong believer in quality pitching, the differences Clark has instilled in K-State's program are already evident as 14 hurlers are on the roster heading into the fall season opener Saturday against Cloud County Community College.

Game time is 1 p.m. at Frank Myers Field.

"It's too early to tell many differences from last year's team, but the big change is the pitchers," Clark said. "We went through the Big Eight Conference season last spring with five."

"We don't care whether we win or lose ball games (this fall). We're not interested in that. We do care that by the time fall is over, we're heading in the right direction."

—Mike Clark

Though it's the season opener, Clark and his coaching staff aren't looking to rack up an impressive win. Instead, it's a time to evaluate, develop strengths and eliminate weaknesses, find out who's No. 1 at what position and instill a winning attitude in the players.

"We don't care whether we win or lose ball games (this fall). We're not interested in that. We do care that by the time fall is over, we're heading in the right direction," Clark said.

Heading in the right direction is exactly what K-State was doing when the spring season ended in May. The 'Cats prevented Nebraska from claiming the Big Eight title by winning three of four from the Cornhuskers, defeated nationally ranked Oral Roberts and finished at 28-24 overall — their first winning record since 1982.

K-State's strong finish brought credibility to the program, Clark said.

"Speaking around the state, it was really amazing the response I got for having a winning record and beating an established program like Nebraska," he said. "It was something Kansas State fans could kind of hang their hat on."

To repeat or top last year's performance, Clark must find replacements

K-State first baseman David Chadd, left, practices hitting from a tee as outfielder Kent Gleason steps up in the batting cage during practice Thursday at Frank Myers Field. The Wildcats begin their fall schedule Saturday with a 1 p.m. game against Cloud County Community College.

for offensive standouts Jeff Turtle, Mike Hinkle, Otto Kaifes, Leo Seiler and Tom Parsons. Top players returning include shortstop Scott Spangenberg, third baseman Jim Donohue, first baseman David Chadd, Russ Ringgenberg and Tony Braddock.

Heading the pitching corps are Zack Kimbell, Jeff Peterson — who was redshirted last year with a broken thumb — and Darryl Rowley.

To get instant help, especially in the pitching department, Clark hit the junior college ranks hard in the offseason. For the K-State coach, it was a do or die situation.

"We'd much rather recruit a lot of high school kids because we have a very, very small recruiting budget. Next year, for instance, we lose half our squad because coach Vaught recruited junior college kids," Clark said.

"It's tough to recruit 12 or 13 kids with our budget. It would be a lot easier if we could get it down to seven or eight a year," he added.

K-State is scheduled to play 10 times this fall, and all games will be played at Frank Myers Field. The season is scheduled to conclude Oct. 23 against Creighton, the only non-junior college opponent on this fall's slate.

K-State Fall Baseball Schedule (all games at Frank Myers Field)

Sept. 12 — Cloud County, 1 p.m.
Sept. 26 — Butler County, 1 p.m.
Oct. 3 — Iowa Western, 7:30 p.m.
Oct. 4 — Kansas City, 11 a.m.; Barton County, 1:30 p.m.
Oct. 8 — Allen County, 3 p.m.
Oct. 10 — Labette County, noon.
Oct. 11 — Pratt, 1:30 p.m.
Oct. 13 — Neosho County, 1:30 p.m.
Oct. 23 — Creighton, noon.

Strike up in air

By The Associated Press

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. — NFL owners voted unanimously Thursday to continue the season even if the players strike, using already discarded free agents and "whatever players are available to play."

At the same time, however, Jack Donlan, executive director of the Management Council, announced that negotiations with the NFL Players Association will resume Saturday at a site still to be determined.

He also disclosed that Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFLPA, had met Wednesday night with Commissioner Pete Rozelle and flew to Chicago Thursday morning to meet with the Management Council's executive committee.

The two sides have met for just 4½ hours since Aug. 14. Talks on Sept. 2 were broken off over the issue of protection for player representatives. The contract expired Aug. 31 and the players have voted to strike Sept. 22, after the second week of the season, unless substantial progress is made toward resolution of the dispute.

The major issue remains free agency.

The players are seeking a system that would allow players to move from team to team without any kind of compensation or right of first refusal.

The owners are willing only to liberalize the current system, which requires a team signing a free agent to provide compensation. Just one player in 10 years has changed teams under that system.

None of the owners present would characterize the meeting with Upshaw or discuss Upshaw's meeting with Rozelle, who was not present at Thursday's session.

But Hugh Culverhouse, owner of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and the chairman of the Management Council's executive committee, termed Upshaw's presence "worthwhile."

"I'm the eternal optimist," he added.

"I think the fact that Gene took the time to come here and see us is a good sign," said Dan Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Steelers and another executive committee member. "I believe that Gene doesn't want a strike."

Donlan said that 19 of the 28 teams had already signed players for use in the event of a strike. And while he said he wasn't preoccupied with that issue — "I want to find a settlement," he said — he felt the union had forced the owners' hand.

Some teams gave players who were cut a $1,000 retainer to be available should they be needed in the event of a strike.

The first two strikes were in preseason. The last was in 1982.

Alcohol banned

By Staff and Wire Reports

No possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages will be allowed in KSU Stadium during athletic events.

K-State Athletic Director Larry Travis said some confusion may exist among Wildcat fans as a result of the decision to allow fans to bring small, non-breakable thermoses into the stadium.

The small containers will be subject to a check of the content and will be confiscated if they are found to contain alcohol.

"In addition, individuals possessing alcohol in the stadium will be evicted from the event," Travis said.

Ruggers hit road for games

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

K-State's rugby squads are in for a full weekend of action.

All three divisions of the squad will be in action this Saturday, with the A-side playing a team from Columbia Missouri at Kansas City in Swope Park, the B-side traveling to Lawrence to take on the Kansas Jayhawks B-squad and the C-side playing a squad from Central Missouri State University, also in Swope Park.

Dave Todd, president of the club said the A-side will play the most important match of the day.

"The Columbia game is extremely important to us. It is a Division I merit table match and how we finish up the year in the club side standings will depend on whether or not we win," Todd said.

He said the K-State club will be at a slight disadvantage where muscle is concerned, but the 'Cats should have a marked advantage in team mobility.

"Our wing forwards are going to play an extremely important role in this match. We are going to try to keep the ball away from their bigger, stronger guys. We are really going to have to do things quick," Todd said.

Although the Columbia club was a member of Division II last year, they finished high enough to be bumped up into the first division.

The B-squad, which will be heading to Lawrence this weekend, will be strongly favored to win.

"Our B-side is pretty experienced. We have so much depth this year as a team that we are able to field some guys on our B-team that would otherwise be playing on the A-side," Todd said.

He mentioned the tremendous amount of experience the B-side has in the pack, with the only lack of experience coming on the backline.

The C-side, which will be playing its first full 80-minute contest, will play Central Missouri State University at Swope Park.

"(The game) ought to be a really good experience for our rookies. They will be playing Central Missouri's A-side (which plays in Division III). Those guys are going to know more about rugby than our rookies and it should be a learning experience for them."

Todd also said the alumni game, which was held last Saturday and is scheduled mainly as a fundraiser, was extremely successful.

Tourney awaits volleyball squad

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

In 1987 we should increase our overall competitiveness, cohesiveness and consistency to the point where we will win our share of close matches," K-State volleyball coach Steve Nelson said before the start of the 1987 season.

So far, Nelson has been right. K-State trounced its first two opponents, and came out on top Wednesday in a nip and tuck, four-game match against Oral Roberts University.

This weekend will challenge the Wildcats' ability to remain poised and confident against stiff competition in the Colorado State Holiday Inn Classic at Fort Collins, Colorado. Three worthy opponents — Colorado State University, University of Arizona and Purdue University — will be out to spoil the Wildcats' perfect 3-0 mark.

K-State opens tournament play Friday night at 6:30 p.m. as they face the Arizona Wildcats. Then on Saturday the 'Cats will meet Colorado State at 1 p.m., and finally K-State clashes with Purdue at 6:30 p.m. in their last match.

"At Fort Collins, we are going to see three very good volleyball teams," Nelson said. "They're talented, well-coached and have winning traditions. This will be a great challenge for our team, but we look forward to it. We've had three confidence-building matches leading up to this tournament."

It may take more than confidence to win the tournament.

Last year the Colorado State Rams compiled a 27-12 season mark and tied for second in the High Country Athletic Conference. Five starters and six letter-winners have returned from last year's squad.

Arizona may not have had as good a record, 14-15, but there are five starters and nine letter-winners returning. Last year, Arizona placed sixth in the Pacific Coast Conference.

K-State has ten letter-winners returning, including two players that Nelson thinks could be the best in the Big Eight Conference.

Mary Kinsey has returned to the squad after missing most of last year because of an injury. Kinsey possesses the triple-threat capabilities of kills, aces, and digs.

A shoulder injury kept Shawnee Call out of the lineup for the first two matches, but she returned to the court in the second game against Oral Roberts and led the team with 19 kills and 17 digs.

"In Mary and Shawnee I think we have two of the conference's premiere athletes," Nelson said.

Kristi Jacquot and Leslie Kull dominate the Lady Wildcats in serving aces. In the season opener, Jacquot served a record high eight aces.

Mary Mignano, junior in civil engineering, and Lynda Harshbarger, sophomore in psychology, block a spike from another team member during a practice session Wednesday afternoon in Ahearn Field House.

Federal researchers say fewer smokers

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — The cigarette smoking rate in the United States has reached the lowest level ever reported, with less than 27 percent of adult Americans lighting up in 1986, federal health researchers said Thursday.

That's down nearly 4 percentage points from a 1985 survey and down nearly 14 points in two decades.

The first Adult Use of Tobacco Survey, taken by the national Centers

Fewer than 27 percent lighting up for Disease Control, questioned more than 13,000 adult Americans late last year. It found that 26.5 percent of them smoked — 29.5 percent of the men and 23.8 percent of the women.

Those numbers were down from a National Health Interview Survey of 1985, which found that 30.4 percent of its survey group smoked — 33.2 percent of the men and 27.9 percent of the women.

Some of the difference may be due to differences between the two studies, but "our survey is (also) a large survey," said Ron Davis, director of the CDC's U.S. Office on Smoking and Health. "We consider our data to be very reliable."

The nation's smoking rate has fallen dramatically since 1964, the year of the U.S. surgeon general's landmark warning about smoking and cancer, heart disease and other health problems. At that time, 40 percent of the adult population smoked — 53 percent of men and 32 percent of women.

The CDC noted that while "much progress has been achieved," an estimated 47 million American adults are still smokers — people who have in their lifetimes smoked at least 100 cigarettes and who reported that they currently smoke.

The CDC survey found that an estimated 24.6 percent of the U.S. adult population — those 17 and over — are former smokers, including 30.4 percent of men and 19.3 percent of women.

Now, one of the nation's 1990 health goals — a national smoking rate of less than 25 percent — "has almost been met," the Atlanta-based CDC said. And the surgeon general's announced goal of "a smoke-free society" by 2000 may also become a reality, Davis said.

"With the trend today toward restricting or banning smokers... we may have a situation in the year 2000 where smokers can only smoke in the privacy of their own homes or outside, where non-smokers won't be affected," he said.

Davis predicted — "and it's no more than a guess" — that smoking will level off at between 10 percent and 15 percent of the U.S. population who are "very stubborn smokers."

The nation's smoking rate should then continue to decline at a slower pace as older smokers die and younger people don't take up the habit, he said.

Among blacks, the smoking rate was 28.4 percent — 32.5 percent for black men and 25.1 percent for black women. Whites' smoking rate was 26.4 percent — 29.3 percent for white men and 23.7 percent for white women.

The CDC cautioned that the rates for blacks may be off somewhat, since blacks made up only about 1,100 of the people included in its 1986 phone survey. For example, a 1985 study using a larger sample of black Americans listed a smoking rate for black men of 40.6 percent — more than 8 percent higher than the new CDC study.

Aids test cheaper, easier, better

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Researchers said Thursday they have developed an AIDS diagnostic test that readily can be tailored to detect new strains of the disease virus and is easier, cheaper and more accurate than existing tests.

Scientists at the Research Institute of Scripps Clinic in La Jolla, Calif., and the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta said that the test appears to be superior to the so-called Western Blot test widely used to confirm infection by the AIDS virus.

Health authorities typically screen blood and test people for AIDS infections using what is called an ELISA test, which detects antibodies developed against proteins coating human immunodeficiency virus or HIV.

Because current ELISA tests can give false positive readings — sometimes indicating an infection when none is present — scientists verify positive findings with the Western Blot, a more time-consuming and difficult-to-perform test to detect core proteins to the virus.

In a report to be published Friday in the journal Science, scientists say they have developed a very specific type of ELISA test that does not produce the false positives or false negatives sometimes seen in the other two tests.

In addition, they say, the new test can be modified easily to detect other strains of the HIV virus. This means that if new disease-causing strains of HIV are discovered, tests for them can be produced quickly, they added.

TV Listings

By TV Data

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 11, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KLDH	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	My Little Pony Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00	TBA		Bulwinkle Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Heathcliff	SportsLook Tractor Pull	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00 Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	She Ra G.I. Joe	Who's Boss M.T. Moore	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Drag Racing	Movie: "Funny Face"
10:00 Jeopardy! Lose or Draw	Tennis: U.S. Open Tennis	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Green Acres Leave It to Beaver	Body Electric U.N. Day Con	Waltons	Muscle Mag.
11:00 Password Wheel-Fortune	Midday Tennis	Chance Ask Dr. Ruth	Beaver Make Room	cert	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00 News Days of Our		All My Children I Love Lucy	Andy Griffith	Sesame Street	News	Formula One Grand Prix of	Movie: "Lucan"
1:00 Lives Another World		One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Munsters	Mystery: Copper Beches	Major League Baseball	Italy Water Skiing	WomanWatch
2:00 Santa Barbara	Tennis Cont.	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoolite Zoo	Kitchen Painting	Montreal Expos at Chi-	PGA Tour	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00 Oprah Winfrey	To Be Announced	Ghostbusters Scooby Doo	Teddy Ruxpin Smurfs	Cooking On Aerobics	cago Cubs	Senior PGA Golf: Paine	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00 Facts of Life	Dallas	Thundercats P. Court	Jetsons Eight Is En-	3-2-1 Contact	Transformers	Webster World Invitational	Munsters Laverne
5:00 3's Company NBC News	News CBS News	News ABC News	ough Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsLook Racing	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00 News Wheel-Fortune	News WKRP	Taxi M*A*S*H	Facts of Life Good Times	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Soap	SportsCenter Magic Years	Andy Griffith Major League
7:00 Billy Graham	CBS Summer Playhouse	Webster Mr. Belvedere	Star Trek	Wash. Week Wall St. Wk.	Movie: "The Incredible	College Football Kickoff	Baseball: Los Angeles Dodg-
8:00 Miami Vice	Dallas	Max Headroom	Movie: "The In-Laws"	Moneybags McLaughlin	Shrinking Woman	Pro Boxing	ers at Atlanta Braves
9:00 Crime Story	Adderly	Good Evening America		Innovation Market	News INN News		Portrait of America
10:00 News Tonight Show	News Dating Game	News M*A*S*H	Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	Darkside Trapper John	Harness Race SportsCenter	Night Tracks: Power Play
11:00 Ent. Tonight	Tennis: U.S. Lifestyles	Benson Nightline	Movie: "Inn of the Frightened	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D. Movie: "God-	SportsLook Australian	Night Tracks
12:00 Late Night with David	Subversion Club Patrol	700 Club	People	Sign-Off	zilla vs. Mega-ton	Rules Football: Touna-	Night Tracks

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 12, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTKA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Gummi Bears Smurfs' Ad-	Muppets Pee-wee Play.	Movie: "The Wind in the Willows"	Tom & Jerry LovelyLocks		Farm Report World Tom.	SportsCenter Fishing	Bonanza
8:00 ventures	Movie: "The Muppets Take Manhattan"	Popples Get Along	Adventure Adventure	Charlando People-People	Tom Mann Bill Dance	National Geographic Ex-	plor-
9:00 Fraggle Rock Alvin	Pet Monster Ghostbusters	Gidget Puttin' on Hits	Kansas: The Old House	Minority Busi-	Racing Surfer Mag.	NWA Super Bouts
10:00 ALF Tom & Jerry	Flintstones Bugs	Solid Gold	Motorweek Animals	Incredible Hulk	Sportscenter
11:00 Dream Goes On	Jem	The Hugga Bunch	Painting Garden	One Step Lead Off Man	Saturday Auto Racing	Pre-Game College Foot-	ball: Tennes-
12:00 All American Futurity	W'kend Sp Kansas illus.	Lost in Space	Sesame Street	Major League Baseball	Mid-Ohio 200	ball: Tennes-	see at Missis-
1:00 Major League Baseball	Tennis Contin-	WWF Wres-	Incredible Hulk	Frugal Gour. Justin Wilson	Montreal Expos at Chi-	Senior PGA Golf: Paine
2:00	Coll. Football College Foot-	Bionic Woman	Tennis: 1987 Kansas Dis-	cago Cubs	Webster World Invitational
3:00	ball: Notre Dame at Michi-	Battlestar Gal-actica	Trict Closed Invitational Ten-	Soul Train	College Football Kickoff	Bonanza
4:00 Hee Haw	Tennis Contin-	gan	Buck Rogers	Focus/Society Focus/Society	Music Big Family	College Football: UCLA at	H's Heroes H's Heroes
5:00 Wild Kingdom NBC News	CBS News	ABC News	Matt Houston	Natl. Geo-graphic Spcl.	Charles It's a Living	Nebraska Wrestling	World Championship
6:00 Coll. Football College Foot-	Mama Crook	TBA	Throb Big Family	Sentimental Swing	What Country At the Movies
7:00 ball: Arizona State at Illi-	College Football: Alabama	Animal Crack-Elton Burstin	Werewolf Beans Baxter	Tommy Dorsey	Movie: "True Confessions"	Football	Movie: "Bend of the River"
8:00 nois (09/12/87)	at Penn State	Hotel	Down and Out Karen's Song	Grand Ole Opry Live		Cheerleading: Coll. Champ.
9:00			Rich & Famous		News INN News	Bodybuilding	PUSH Basket-ball Classic
10:00 News Saturday	TBA News	News Movie: "Deja Vu"	Darkside Movie: "Par-	adise Alley"	Elvis -- That's the Way It Is	cArthur	Sportscenter Wrestling
11:00 Night Live	Solid Gold						Pro Boxing
12:00 Happy Days Muppets	It's a Living At the Movies	News	Solid Gold	Sign-Off			Chartbusters Night Tracks

SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 13, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTKA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 James Kennedy	Jerry Falwell	Jimmy Swag-	Superfriends		R. Schuller Heritage-Faith	SportsCenter PGA Tour	Tom & Jerry and Friends
8:00 L. Lundstrum Robert	Discovery Herald-Truth	Kenneth Copeland	All Star Wrestling	Sesame Street	Sunday Mass Porky Pig	SpeedWeek Scuba Week	Cont'd Andy Griffith
9:00 Schuller Jimmy Swag-	Oral Roberts Larry Jones	It is Written Week With	Wild, Wild West	Mister Rogers Special	Bugs Bunny Jem	NFL Yearbook This Week in	Good News Movie: "The Elder"
10:00 gart Your Skin	CBS News Sunday Morn-	David Brinkley Business	Black Sheep Squadron	Sesame Street	Cisco Kid Lone Ranger	Sportscenter	Sons of a
11:00 World Tom. NFL Live	ing NFL Today	All Star Wrestling	Star Trek	Reading Rain-bow	Rawhide	Sunday Super B'w'l
12:00 NFL Football: Regional Cov-	NFL Football: Dallas Cow-	Movie: "Giant"	Movie: "Flight of the Lost	Wash. Week Wall St. Wk.	Major League Baseball	Senior PGA Golf: Paine	Major League Baseball: Los
1:00 erage	boys at St. Louis Cardi-		Balloon	Adam Smith Computer	Major League Baseball	Senior PGA Golf: Paine	Major League Baseball: Los
2:00	nals		Movie: "Cinderella"	Presidency & Constitution	Montreal Expos at Chi-	Webster World Invitational	Angels Dodg-ers at Atlanta
3:00 NFL Football: Regional Cov-	Tennis: U.S. Open	Generation		Blacks & Const.	cago Cubs	Auto Racing Auto Racing	Braves
4:00 erage	Weight Loss Taxi	Movie: "The Diary of Anne Frank"	Movie: "The Diary of Anne Frank"	Vintage Years Vistas	Kung Fu	Auto Racing: IMSA GTP	Sanford Championship
5:00	News Football		Frank	Creating Family	Puttin' on Hits	Series	Wrestling Leave/Beaver
6:00 Our House	60 Minutes	"Disney Sunday Movie"	21 Jump Street	TBA Nature	Fame	NFL Prime Time	Movie: "The Villain"
7:00 Family Ties	Murder She Wrote	Spenser: For Hire	With Children Duet	Nature	Rich & Famous	NFL Theatre
8:00 Private Eye	Movie: "No-body's Child"	Movie: "Bluf-ting It"	Mr. President Tracey Ullman	Masterpiece Theatre	Star Search	Sunday Show-case	Cousteau's Rediscovery
9:00			It's a Living B. Buddies	Evening at Pops	News INN News		of the World
10:00 News Wheel-Fortune	News Magnum P.I.	News Movie: "Draw!"	Debut TV Classics	Debut TV Classics	Darkside Dempsey & Makepeace	Sportscenter Sunday	Sports Page Jerry Falwell
11:00 Entertainment This Week	Big Family	Charge of the Light Bri-	Veck Tony Brown	Sign-Off	What Country At the Movies	NFL Prime Time	World Tom.
12:00 Gene Scott	Sign-Off	Fame	Sign-Off	Sign-Off	Fame	NFL's Grea-test Moments	Jimmy Swag-gart

Religious Directory

American Baptist Campus Ministry

Evening Gathering
Sundays - 7 p.m.

Baptist Campus Center
1801 Anderson 539-3051

- Study Sessions
- Social issues resources
- Personal consultations

Campus Minister - Dave Stewart

Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan

former Luckey High School
Juliette St. and Pierre

Worship 9 a.m.
Sunday School 10:15 a.m.
Nursery provided
776-0259 537-8526

The Assembly

Manhattan's Best Assembly of God

Sunday Praise Hours
10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m.

- Sunday School — 9:30 a.m.
- Collegiate Bible Class
- Transportation available

Office ..... 537-7633
Seth Childs Rd. at Gary Ave.
Mike Wall, Pastor. 537-7967

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

801 Leavenworth
537-0518

Worship 8:30 & 11 a.m.
Church School 9:30 a.m.

- College Outreach (Tuesdays, K-State Union)
- Weekend programs for youth
- Nursery available

Senior Minister
Rev. Dr. Philip S. Gittings III

GREAT COMMISSION

Church of Manhattan

Campus Bible Study
Sunday Worship
10:30 a.m. Sundays
at University Inn

Trinity Presbyterian Church

Church School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.

- Nursery Provided
- Handicap Accessible
- Rides Available

Pastor James Cramer
1110 College Ave. 539-3921

COME SHARE THE SPIRIT!

Lutheran Campus Ministry

Worship 11 a.m. Study 9:45 a.m.
Sundays Danforth Chapel (campus)
Lutheran Student Movement 5 p.m.
Sunday - Lutheran Student Center
Don Fallon, Pastor
1021 Denison 1539-4451

WESTVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH

WORSHIP 8 and 10:30 a.m.
College Class 9:30 a.m.
Kennedy's Choir side entrance
Sun. Eve. Worship 6 p.m.
1st, 3rd and 5th Sundays
CARE CELLS (Small Groups)
6 p.m. 2nd and 4th Sundays
Office at 2607 Allison Ave.
3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173

MANHATTAN FREE METHODIST CHURCH

9:45 a.m. — Sunday School
11 a.m. & 6:30 p.m. — Worship
7 p.m. Wed. — Bible Study and Prayer

1231 Poyntz 539-7706

FAITH BAPTIST CHURCH

Independent, Fundamental

2615 Allison Avenue

Sunday School 10 a.m.
Sunday Service
11 a.m. & 7 p.m.
Wednesday Service 7 p.m.
For information, call... 537-8963

FLINT HILLS FULL FAITH CHURCH

Sunday School 9:15-10 a.m.
Worship 10:15-Noon
Home Group Bible Studies
217 Seth Childs—Church Location
(Bmt. of Raoul's Escondido)
809 Houston... 537-0256

Manhattan Mennonite Fellowship

Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
KSU Student Group 6:30 p.m.
Dorothy Nickel Friesen, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4079

BLUE VALLEY MEMORIAL UNITED METHODIST

Sunday School 9:15 a.m.
Morning Worship 10:30 a.m.
835 Church Ave. 539-8790

St. Isidore's

Catholic Student Center
Sunday Mass
9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 5 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Daily Mass 4:30 p.m.
711 Denison 539-7496

Crestview Christian Church

Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m.
Collegiate Sunday School 9:30
776-3798
4301 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
(on Hwy. 24, across from State Park)

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH

Worship at 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Sunday School — 9:45 a.m.
(Collegiate Class)
10th & Poyntz 537-8532

ST. LUKE'S LUTHERAN CHURCH

WORSHIP Sat. 6 p.m.
Sun. 8 and 10:45 a.m.
SUNDAY SCHOOL 9:30 a.m.
COLLEGIATE GROUP Sun. 6 p.m.
539-2604 330 N. Sunset

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Church School—9:45 a.m.
Worship—8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.
Disciples of Christ
115 Courthouse Plaza 776-8790

CHRISTIAN CAMPUS MINISTRY

A Ministry Of The Church Of Christ
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Classes 9:30 a.m. & Wed. 7:30 p.m.
2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581

Kedzie 103

Class Ads

532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication. FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not affect the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.95 per inch. Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch. Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch. Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial call Floris Taylor: 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (11-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin: 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11-1)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

$10-$360 WEEKLY/UP. Mailing Circulars! No quotes/bosses. Information: Rush self-addressed envelope. CM/NA-CDE. POLB 7730. Rockford: IL 61126. (11-15)

ENGINEERING WOMEN, MINORITIES, SENIORS

Attend the KSU Engineering Industry Recognition Banquet! This is your chance to dine with the company of your choice, and the company pays for half the meal price. Get your ticket Thursday or Friday 10:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. at the Durland Information Circle, or 8 a.m.-5 p.m. in Durland 144. Industry Recognition Banquet is Monday, Sept. 14, 6:30 p.m. at the Manhattan Holiday Inn. Ticket is $7 for a $14 meal. Advance purchase only.

OPEN AIR food and craft fair in Aggieville, Oct. 10. For information on booths, write Box 1804 in Manhattan by Sept. 25. (12-19)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken: 539-9469. (2-27)

DOMESTIC AND imported cheeses at Co-op prices. Available at Peoples Grocery Co-op, 811 Colorado. Open to everyone Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. (10-14)

LOOKING FOR me? Peggy (formerly of A Cut Above) is now working at Patz Hair Designs: 537-9825. (11-14)

MAIDENFORM'S BUY two, get one free sale now on at Undercover, 1224 Moro, Aggieville. (12-16)

THE FONE Crisis Center will be holding volunteer training Sept. 12 and 13 in Union 204. All interested persons are encouraged to call 532-6565 to register. (12-14)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1494-2388. seven minutes east. (13-32)

K-LAIRE'S first visitation Saturday 12th to Wagon Wheel Whirlers ice cream dance 8 p.m. Mariatt School. Meet for rides at 7:30 Union. Don't forget Sunday 8 p.m. Activities Carnival. lessons following. (12-14)

PI KA! PA Phi—Get psyched for Spiketacular! We'll blow 'em away! Good luck! Your coaches, Fran, Beth, Julie, Kim. (14)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (71)

THREE MALE students to share basement apartment. $120 month each, all bills paid. Call 537-1442. (10-17)

ONE BEDROOM spacious and comfortable, close to campus, water, gas, trash paid. $230. Call 776-0203. (10-17)

ONE BEDROOM apartment, furnished, across from Putnam Hall, 1310 N. Manhattan, $205/month. Call 776-7045. (10-14)

SEMI-FURNISHED apartment. One bedroom. Must see to appreciate. $250. Call 539-4214. leave message. (12-14)

LARGE BASEMENT apartment, four blocks south of campus. No children or pets. $270, plus electric. 776-6396. (13-17)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

THREE BEDROOM, two baths. Very near campus. Ideal for three students or small family. 539-8324. (12-14)

LARGE TWO-bedroom, fireplace, close to campus. Aggieville, City Park. Phone weekdays. 537-9064. (12-16)

ONE-BEDROOM, spacious living room and kitchen. Washer hookup. Refrigerator, stove, air conditioner and trash pickup provided. Available October. $230. 537-1676. (14-15)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE

FORD PICKUP 1984, six-cylinder, 56,000 miles, model 150. Very clean, three-speed. 539-9536. (12-14)

1983 BUICK Century, priced to sell. 776-3751. (13-16)

1978 PONTIAC Firebird, Top, four-speed, 14,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Call 539-4134 evenings. (13-19)

1978 FORD Granada, 53,000 miles, automatic, power steering, power brakes, air conditioning, excellent condition. 539-3833. (13-15)

1978 AUDI Fox, good condition, only $1,000. Call 539-9315 anytime. (13-17)

FOR SALE: 1983 Ford Ranger 4 x 4, 62,000 miles, air conditioner, power steering, looks sharp. 537-1789. (13-15)

FOR SALE: 1970 Chrysler Newport, great shape. $650. 430 Moro Street. (13-14)

1979 PLYMOUTH Horizon, $350. 1974 Buick Apollo, $200. Bodies rough, but both run well. 539-1002. (14)

COMPUTERS

EXCELLENT BUY—Atari 520ST computer, color monitor, double-sided disk drive and software. $900. Call 539-1101 after 5 p.m. (13-17)

Give.

American Heart Association

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

EMPLOYMENT

EARN THUNDREDS weekly$ in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed stamped envelope to U.S.A. 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full- and part-time openings. Apply in person. (8-17)

$10-$660 WEEKLY/UP mailing circulars! Rush self-addressed stamped envelope. Dept. AN-7CC-CU, 9300 Wilshire, Suite 470, Beverly Hills, CA 90212. (8-16)

SALES/SERVICES. Must be motivated and self-starter. Wages plus commission. High earning potential. 776-1271. (10-14)

THE CITY of Manhattan is seeking to fill part-time fall and winter positions in its Recreation Division. Various instructors are needed in pre-school, arts and crafts, bowling, gymnastics, dance, aquatics, and youth theatre. Positions are also available in flag football, volleyball, softball, basketball, and facilities supervision. Applicants should be at least 16 years old for most positions. To review the complete listing of available positions, and to apply, come to the Personnel Office, City Hall, 11th and Poyntz, by Sept. 16, 1987. EOE—M/F/H. (11-14)

WANTED: LPH to work 3-11 p.m. Excellent benefits, 456-9482 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. (11-15)

GODFATHER'S PIZZA now hiring delivery drivers. $3.50 per hour. Must own own car and have less than three moving violations in three years. 1118 Laramie. (11-14)

STUDENT PROGRAMMER. Administrative User Services is recruiting to fill one student programmer position starting immediately. Programming experience with COBOL and OS/VSJCL in an IBM 4381 MVS environment required. Position involves administrative applications programming. Applicable experience, grade point average, and longevity potential will be used to evaluate applicants. Contact Debbie Hyde, Anderson 21, 532-6281, by Sept. 11, 5 p.m. to apply. (12-14)

WANTED: SOMEONE to computerize a retail mailing list. 537-0876. (13-16)

PYRAMID PETE wants you to join our team of highly dedicated and fun-loving pizza drivers and counter-help. Pay is good and the work is a blast. If you can work late nights and have lots of free time come to Pyramid Pizza and apply today. 707 N. 12th in Aggieville. (13-15)

LOCAL SNACK food company seeks responsible individuals for Dorm housing representatives commission. Reply P.O. 1764, Manhattan, KS 66502. (13-17)

PART-TIME POSITIONS. Ideal for interior design student. Apply in person at Decorating Center, 627 Pecan Circle. (13-15)

WORK AT health center: Light maintenance. Experience preferred. Monday through Friday to work anytime. For more information, contact Warren Walter at 532-8544. (13-17)

VALENTINO'S IS now accepting applications for daytime hostesses and evening pizza table. Applications accepted between 2:30 and 4 p.m. on Monday. (14-15)

STUDENT HELP wanted. $3.35/hour. Monday, Wednesday, Friday mornings. Must have office experience, prefer computer experience. Call Pat or Sandy. 537-7050. (14-15)

EVENING HOURS for a student who has good communication skills, can work independently and is attentive to detail. 3:30-9:30 p.m. shift; approximately 4 shifts/week; Tuesday and Friday required. Duties include beverage preparation, customer assistance, and closing and cleaning beverage area. Food Handler's Card required. Apply in K-State Union Food Service Office. (14-18)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, omelets, waffles, waffles and more! Bring in your fall class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. We prefer to hire work study students and students who are eligible to work 30 hours per week. Food Handler's Card a must. (14-18)

GARAGE AND YARD SALES

GARAGE SALE, Saturday, Sept. 11, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., 1724 Denholm. Dishwasher, exercise bike, clarinet, books, clothes, and miscellaneous. (14)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT

MULTI-BEDROOM HOUSE, stove, refrigerator, central air, fireplace, laundry hookups, garage. Call 537-8389. (11)

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus. No pets. 537-8389. (31)

THREE BEDROOM unfurnished house, close to campus, fenced yard, garage. No pets. Call 537-1234. Trust Department. Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. (41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE

1980 Commodore, 14 x 70, three-bedroom, two-bath, washer, dryer, stove, refrigerator, Colonial Gardens. $12,500. Call 776-2261. (8-17)

12 x 60 COMMODORE includes appliances, washer, dryer, central air, new storage shed. 776-1809. Cost $6,000. (11-16)

LOST AND FOUND

FOUND: WATCH and ring in Union. Contact Pat at 776-6003. (14-18)

BLACK CAT with potbelly. Lost in vicinity of Dickens and Cedar Crest around Aug. 19. $100 reward if returned. Phone 539-3965. (14-18)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE

COMPACT DISC player, discs, cleaning kit, brand new. Must sell. Call 776-1502 after 6 p.m. $150. (13-15)

1983 HONDA 500 Shadow, excellent condition, must sell. Call 539-7561, ask for Reed. (14-18)

1986 RALEIGH bicycle Technum 440, 12-speed, 26-inch. $250. After 5 p.m., call 537-2072. (14-18)

CROSSWORD

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS 1 Pend 38 Syrian leader 57 Shaky clear of 10 Steer 11 "Do, —" 17 Take a breath 19 Perch 21 Period 22 "Heater" 24 Greek cross 26 Deli offering 28 Smart — 30 Topper 32 Dada 33 Bill's partner 34 Swift plane 36 Stylist's work 38 Make fit 39 Detect 40 Become prevalent 42 Like a bathroom floor 45 Poison 46 Juarez youngster 48 Child's card game 50 Halder dash 51 Crafty

DOWN 1 One of Mickey's exes 2 Take first 3 Immune system activator 4 Computer picture 5 Belief 6 Marine plankton 7 Vases 8 Vampire 9 Brimless hat

Solution time: 27 mins.

CLAD LESS WOMEN HOME POE PURE ABEL IDA ISLE RENTED ISLATE TAKE ETA ALMS MUSTERED LOU IST DAN MUSTACHE ASTA TUB ALP BLARED LAPPED LINK RAT LAME URGE ASH EVIL EASY WAY SELL

Yesterday's answer 9-11

C.D. PLAYER, turntable and speakers with stands. All top quality. $500. 539-6661, after 5 p.m. (11-15)

LIGHT TABLE, excellent condition. $70 or best offer. Call 776-3477 between 5:30 and 9:30 p.m. (12-14)

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS. Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

Enjoy Our Weekly Buffet Specials

11:30 a.m.-2 p.m.

M—Texas Western BBQ

T—Italian

W—Oriental $4.95

U—Mexican

F—Cajun

includes salad bar or call for carry-out

University Club

17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Buy a Student Semester or Year Membership and receive 5 FREE TANNING SESSIONS

The Candlewood Center

3236 Kimball

776-1750

offer expires Sept. 12, 1987

Dinner Buffet Specials

M—Chicken & Ribs

T—Spaghetti & Meat Balls

W—Chicken Stir Fry & Egg Rolls

U—Fish & Chips

includes salad bar

All You Can Eat $5.99

University Club

17th & Anderson, 539-7531

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE

TWO TREK 500 series, 12-speed bikes, 20 inch and 18 inch. Newer rider. Call Craig at 539-9872 or 784-5298. (11-15)

1983 RED Yamaha scooter Riva 50, low mileage, $300. Call 539-2591 after 4 p.m. (12-16)

1981 RED Vespa moped, great gas, low mileage, excellent condition, negotiable price. 537-1395 or 537-3797. (12-18)

26" SCHWINN Sprint, 10-speed. Clean. Almost new, recently tuned-up. $120 or best offer. 539-4518. (13-15)

SIMPSON MODEL 30 full helmet, silver, size 7 3/8. Mustang sport/touring boots, size 10 1/2. Both excellent condition. Call Dave. 537-1505. (13-16)

1982 HONDA FT500 "Ascot" with racing headers. Great shape! Call 539-9173. (14-17)

MUST SELL 1982 Honda XR 500, new chain and sprockets. Nearly new clutch. 776-3785. (14-18)

1984 YAMAHA XT600, on/off road, many options, excellent condition, $1,500 or best offer. 776-7323. (14-19)

1983 HONDA 500 Shadow, excellent condition, must sell. Call 539-7561, ask for Reed. (14-18)

1986 RALEIGH bicycle Technum 440, 12-speed, 26-inch. $250. After 5 p.m., call 537-2072. (14-18)

CRYPTOQUIP

9-11

EPS ZAP GPR JCKGY TYSM

CAJGYQM JHPTD QPRJQ

SKTY HYAREJTCM CEY

DAJZYGKTY

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: YES, THE MILD-MANNERED METEOROLOGIST HAD MANY DEGREES

Today's Cryptoquip clue: T equals N

Origin of blood in home still mystery

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Human blood found on the floors and walls of a house was not the same type as that of an elderly dialysis patient who lives there, but authorities still don't know where it came from, a State Crime Lab official said Thursday.

"It could be a homicide, it could be a hoax," said Larry Howard, the lab's director.

Police, however, were not calling

Police rule out possibility of hoax

it either.

Detective Steve Cartwright said investigators had found no evidence of a crime, and police spokeswoman Marion Lee said officers were not assuming it was a hoax.

"I'm sure they (detectives) wouldn't still be investigating it" if they believed that was the case, she said.

Police were called early Wednesday to the home of William Winston, 79, and his wife, Minnie Clyde Winston, 77, who reported finding blood on the floors and walls of the house they have rented for 22 years. Lab tests Wednesday confirmed it was human blood.

Howard said Thursday that test results showed the blood was type O, while Winston has type A. He said more samples from Winston and his wife would be tested, however.

Winston, whose blood is cleaned by dialysis machine at a clinic because of kidney problems, said he didn't know where the blood came from.

"I'm not bleeding. My wife's not bleeding. Nobody else was here," he said.

Mrs. Winston said Thursday she was weary of all the attention the bizarre discovery had brought.

"I still don't know where the blood came from, and I'm tired of all these people asking me all these questions," she said. "If anybody comes here today, I'm not going to open my door."

She said the six-room brick house in southwest Atlanta was besieged with calls and visits Wednesday from those intrigued by the mystery.

"The phone rang all night, people asking me questions," she said. "I'm fed up with all this."

She said she has not found any new spots of blood.

Mrs. Winston told police she stepped out of the bathtub late Tuesday to find the floor covered with blood. She said she called her husband to "come look at all this red stuff coming out of the floors."

Police said blood was found in the bathroom, kitchen, living room, bedroom and halls.

Although initial reports mentioned pools of blood, The Atlanta Journal said one of its reporters who examined the living room saw splashes of blood ranging in size from a dime to a silver dollar. The reporter also saw a red spot on the back door.

High school students less knowledgeable in science, study says

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — U.S. elementary and high school students, especially girls, know less about science than their counterparts did in 1970 and trail both English and Japanese pupils in physics, chemistry and biology, according to an international study.

English students topped even the Japanese in the first study in 17 years to compare how students in 24 nations perform in science.

The first phase of the study by the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement (IEA) took place in 1983. A second phase of testing was conducted in the United States in 1986 and involved more than 20,000 5th, 9th and 12th graders in over 1,000 schools.

One example of the decline in science knowledge: more than eight out of 10 U.S. 5th graders and nine out of 10 9th graders in 1970 correctly answered a multiple choice question on how long it takes to travel to the moon. But in 1986, only 47 percent of the 5th graders and 55 percent of the 9th graders chose the correct answer: "a few days."

Preliminary test results, made available to The Associated Press, contained findings for only the United States, England, Japan and partial data comparing male and female students in Sweden and Israel. A 55-page summary is to be presented at a meeting of the IEA at Columbia Teachers College, where the research organization is based.

Results from the remaining countries won't be released until later this year because they have not been made public by those countries, said Columbia University natural sciences professor Willard J. Jacobson, who coordinated the IEA study.

The findings were based on tests, part multiple choice and part lab work, designed to be hard enough so that the average student at each grade level would only get approximately 50 percent correct.

By that measure, U.S. students, even those taking advanced courses, were subpar in every category tested. First-year biology and physics students averaged 34 percent, and first-year chemistry students 27 percent. Second-year students improved to 44 percent in biology and physics and 41 percent in chemistry.

English secondary school pupils, by contrast, scored well above average in all categories: 73 percent in chemistry, 71 percent in biology, and 58 percent in physics.

Among Japanese secondary school students, the averages were 62 percent correct in chemistry, 59 percent in physics, and 48 percent in biology.

"We thought advanced American students would do well. But compared to Japanese and English students, that is not so," Jacobson said in an interview.

Fifth grade U.S. students did better in 1983 than their counterparts in 1970. But students tested in 1986 scored about the same as 1970 students.

Ninth graders tested in 1983 scored higher than 1970 students, but children tested in 1986 actually scored lower than youngsters 16 years earlier.

Weekends
at

The Chef

FRIDAY

Fried Chicken,
Spaghetti & Meat Sauce
& Salad Bar

All you can eat $3.95

SATURDAY

Steak Night

Rib-eye or Top Sirloin
$4.95

SUNDAY

Breakfast Specials $1.99

open 8 a.m.

111 S. 4th, Downtown

AGGIEVILLE
FLOWERS

12th and Laramie

SWEETHEART
ROSES

$6 Dozen
cash and carry

537-9549

10-5 Mon.-Sat.

LEGAL EAGLES

Robert Redford, Debra Winger and Daryl Hannah court love, laughs and the law in a lighthearted mystery/thriller.

HBO

MANHATTAN CABLE TV
610 Humboldt 776-9239

Looking for an apartment?
Check Collegian Classifieds

SUNDAY SUPPER
Sept. 13

5:30 p.m.

PROGRAM

Faith Development

by Al Zimmerman

(50¢ donations or free if needed)

1021 Denison

The building with the two red front doors

Sponsored by
CUMENICAL
CHRISTIAN
MINISTRIES

Mortar Board Scholarship

- Junior or Senior Standing
- 3.3 g.p.a.
- Financial need

Anyone interested in applying for the 1987-1988 Mortar Board Scholarship can pick up an application and information sheet in the Union Activities Center.

Deadline for applications is Friday, September 18.

Power tools for the classroom.

The TI-74 offers BASIC programming with a 113 BASIC keyboard set. There's 8K Constant Memory and subroutine capability for advanced programming flexibility.

The TI-95 offers powerful 7200-step keystroke programming and features our exclusive Power Windows™ which provide easy access to the functions and flexible file management system.

TI programmable calculators have all the right functions and enough extra features to satisfy your thirst for power.

To all you science and engineering majors unsatisfied with mere calculators, TI has good news. Your power tools are here. The TI-95 PROCALC™ is keystroke programmable and the TI-74 BASICALC™ is BASIC language programmable. Each has a full range of scientific, mathematical and statistical functions, and plenty of power extras.

Both have optional equipment such as Solid State Software™ modules, including math, statistics and chemical engineering, and a module with an additional 8K Constant Memory. Additional power accessories include a separate portable printer and cassette interface.

So if you're into power, look for the display in your bookstore for a demonstration of our power tools. They build such a strong case for themselves, our competition doesn't know what to make of them.

TEXAS
INSTRUMENTS

Polishing Up

Light fixtures in Willard Hall began to get their spring cleaning last April after 50 years of neglect. See Page 12.

Weather

Partly cloudy Monday with a 30 percent chance for thunderstorms, high in low to mid-80s. Wind south-east 10 to 20 mph. Partly cloudy Monday night and Tuesday.

*****5 DIGIT 66612

164 8/10/87 ** 7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Nitin: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

Completed the grooming room to finish the competition. See Page 9.

Monday

September 14, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 15

Kansas State Collegian

K-State team wins

Staff/Brett Hacker

Carl Perkins and Richard Harmon paddle for Brenda Allen as she gives a sign of relief. The group's canoe was nearing checkpoint No. 4 in the KSU-ARH sponsored canoe race for residence halls of K-State and the University of Kansas. The team, representing Goodnow Hall first and second floors, unofficially came in 14th place.

Canoe race involves 600

By The Collegian Staff

K-State's Association of Residence Halls walked away with a victory against the University of Kansas this weekend, winning the overall trophy at the K-State-KU canoe race on Saturday. The trophy was awarded to the school with the lowest combined time of its top three teams.

Thirty co-ed teams competed in the 44.5 mile race with 26 teams from K-State and four teams from KU entering the race. Lara Montulli, KSUARH committee chairperson, said about 600 to 700 people took part in the event.

The canoes were put into the Kansas River at the bridge east of "The race is a fun way to promote interaction between the two rival schools."

—Lara Montulli

K-Mart at 8 a.m. and were timed at a series of eight checkpoints, finishing the race at a bridge south of St. Marys. Prizes were awarded at the end of the race and the winning teams from each school received a free dinner from Pyramid Pizza.

The winning K-State team was K.A. All-Staff. Team members' names will be engraved on a plaque and posted at Pyramid Pizza. KU's Best was the winning KU team; a plaque for them will be posted at Pyramid Pizza in Lawrence.

"The race is a fun way to promote interaction between the two rival schools, and participants had the opportunity to meet students at another university and see how their residence halls compare," Montulli said. "Many KU/KSU jokes were passed around in good humor."

Todd Stritzke, president of KSUARH, said although KU had few teams competing, they are looking forward to hosting next year's event starting at St. Mary's and ending in Lawrence.

Sponsors of the event were Pyramid Pizza, Ballard's, Campbell Distributors Inc. and KSKT-FM.

Bork's foes, supporters prepare for Senate fight

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — To his supporters, Robert H. Bork would give the Supreme Court a lasting conservative legacy. To his liberal foes, he would end three decades of progress for women, blacks and civil libertarians.

After waging an ideological struggle through rival news conferences, studies and letter writing, the rival camps will move their battleground Tuesday to the place where it counts: the Senate Judiciary Committee.

More than 100 potential witnesses have asked to testify in support or opposition to the 60-year-old Bork, whose fate is now held by a large group of undecided senators on a political hotseat.

Much is at stake in these televised proceedings, because according to both sides, the court has reached a turning point following the retirement of Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. It can move toward moderation or strict conservatism.

For that reason, lobbying groups from both sides have been spending freely to whip up their members and convince senators they are right.

Conservatives want a justice who would protect the rights of the unborn, be tough as nails on criminals and put religion back in the schools.

Liberals want a swing vote on the court who, when it counted, would prolong a string of pro-civil rights-civil liberties rulings that began with the 1954 decision outlawing school segregation.

Senators and viewers will hear concerns about free speech, privacy, segregation, antitrust, respect for Supreme Court precedent, and the 1973 "Saturday Night Massacre" — when then-Solicitor General Bork fired Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox, after Attorney General Elliott Richardson and Deputy Attorney General William French Smith refused to do so.

"Judge Bork got the highest possible rating from that panel of lawyers for the ABA committee by a two-thirds margin, and I'll take two-thirds any day of the week."

—Howard Baker

Yet Richardson is one of the prominent witnesses scheduled to testify in favor of Bork. Another is retired Chief Justice Warren Burger, who said previously that Bork "has got it all."

White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker said Sunday he is optimistic Robert H. Bork will win confirmation to the Supreme Court, but members of the Senate Judiciary Committee said Bork faces an uphill battle.

"I think that what we have is a distinguished jurist who is widely supported, and I'm hopeful will be confirmed, I think will be confirmed by the U.S. Senate," Baker said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

But Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said Bork has "a battle ahead of him."

Baker said he was pleased with the American Bar Association's decision this week in which its Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary, in a divided vote, said Bork is "well qualified" to be on the high court.

"Judge Bork got the highest possible rating from that panel of lawyers for the ABA committee by a two-thirds margin, and I'll take two-thirds any day of the week," Baker said of the 10 "well qualified" votes, four "not qualified" and one "not opposed."

But Metzenbaum said the confirmation vote on Bork, who was named to replace retiring Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., will turn on the ABA vote as well as a number of other issues.

"It will turn on the matter of his views. We know that many of his views are off the mainstream," Metzenbaum said on the NBC program. "It will turn on the fact that the ABA failed to give him a unanimous recommendation. It will turn on the illegality of his firing Archibald Cox (the former Watergate special prosecutor)."

Metzenbaum said there are a number of undecided votes in the Senate, and "I think Judge Bork has a battle ahead of him. And nobody can predict with certainty that he will or will not be confirmed."

■ See BORK, Page 7

Financial aid delays affect 500

Procedural alterations are blamed

By Michelle Engemann
Collegian Reporter

Changes in financial aid procedures have caused delays in the distribution of loan and grant checks for more than 500 students, said Larry Viterna, director of financial aid.

Before students' applications for financial aid can be processed, they are required to complete a family financial statement form, Viterna said.

"A lot of students thought they could come in a few weeks before school started and fill out a loan application and (the check) would be here for registration. Now we have to have a FFS filled out before we can even process the application," he said.

He said of the $1 million in emergency student loans that were taken out this semester, 75 percent was to cover late checks. The remaining 25 percent was for usual circumstances such as sponsor checks that had not arrived for international students.

"We are doing everything we can to help students. We have quit writing emergency student loans, however, except in extreme emergency situations. Usually an emergency loan can only cover two-thirds of tuition, but we did allow the full amount in some cases," Viterna said.

Viterna said financial aid applications were up 20 percent from last year, but they are being handled by the same size of staff. The increase in applications means more verification forms for the office to process. Viterna said the financial aid office is trying to hire extra people to help handle the reception area.

Student loans processed by the Higher Educational Assistance

Foundation have increased by about 110 percent from last year, he said.

Larry Rector, director of financial aid at The Wichita State University, said many of their checks had not been received from HEAF.

"(HEAF) has been very slow getting them back out," Rector said.

Emporia State University also had problems with late checks. Scott Davidson, assistant director of financial aid, said, "I think they're late everywhere. The procedures were not ironed out very well."

Jerry Rogers, director of financial aid at the University of Kansas, doesn't believe the problem is any worse than it was in past years.

"We verify everyone when they apply so there isn't any need to go back later and fill out more paperwork," Rogers said.

Viterna said some checks have been received but are waiting on verification. He said students who have not yet received their checks should check with the office to make sure all of their verification is completed.

University's future hinges on proposal, Wefald says

By Jennifer Dorsch
Staff Writer

In his State of the University address Friday, President Jon Wefald highlighted the positive start of the academic year and the goals for the Margin of Excellence proposal. Wefald spoke to about 150 faculty members at a special meeting of Faculty Senate.

Wefald emphasized this fall's enrollment of 1,000 new students — up 25 percent from last year — the 37 National Merit Scholars and 104 Governor's Scholars in the current freshman class as positive aspects of the intensive recruiting program.

"This freshman class may well be the best ever at K-State," Wefald said.

He also lauded the $22 million in grants and contracts K-State professors received in 1986-87, and he noted that K-State has the highest participation of alumni donations in the Big Eight.

Analysis

"Kansas State University is the people's university here in Kansas. We have great support in every county," Wefald said. "Even people who have never been to this University love KSU."

Wefald said he is optimistic about the 1987-88 school year. Much of the optimism lies in the $117 million Margin of Excellence proposal that will be decided upon during the next session of the Kansas legislature.

The proposal, which was presented to and approved by the Kansas Board of Regents in June, is a 3-year plan to "more satisfactorily and adequately fund education in Kansas," Wefald said.

Wefald stressed the importance of getting the proposal approved by the legislature to end the crisis of higher education in Kansas. He said the administration has outlined a strategy to get the plan approved.

"We're putting on a full-court press to get it passed," he said. "There is no plan B or C — this is it."

Kansas State University has to have this Margin of Excellence proposal. "The proposal was reviewed very enthusiastically by the Board of Regents," Wefald said. "If Kansas is not going to be in the backwaters of the states of the 21st century, they (legislature) had better approve it."

Over three years, the plan would provide $47 million in addition to normal operating expenses. Of that, $6 million would be allocated specifically for faculty salaries.

"The No. 1, 2 and 3 goals (of the plan) have to be faculty salaries," Wefald said.

K-State currently falls 7.2 percent behind its peer institutions (Oregon State, Colorado State, Iowa State, North Carolina State and Oklahoma State) in faculty salaries and 17.3 percent behind a national sample of land grant universities, Wefald said.

The plan outlines four major areas of emphasis for K-State:

■ Play a major role in the state's economic development.

■ Strengthen the undergraduate instructional programs.

■ Provide improved access to University services.

■ Strengthen the University's

■ See WEFALD, Page 6

1985-86 AVERAGE FACULTY COMPENSATION
(Adjusted for Cost of Living and After All Taxes)

P1= Oregon State
P2= Colorado State
P3= Iowa State
P4= NC State- Raleigh
P5= Oklahoma State

Collegian graph

Briefly

By The Associated Press

'Wizard of Oz' producer, 86, dies

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Oscar-winner Mervyn LeRoy, who produced "The Wizard of Oz" and directed scores of films including "Mister Roberts" and "Babes in Arms," died of heart failure Sunday, his manager said. He was 86.

LeRoy died in his sleep at his Beverly Hills home, said his business manager, Given Eaton. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

"I would say he was one of Hollywood's greats," said Eaton. LeRoy won a best director Oscar in 1942 for the film "Random Harvest," an honorary Oscar in 1945 for the short subject film, "The House I Live In," starring Frank Sinatra, and the Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award in 1975.

Born Oct. 15, 1900, in San Francisco and educated in public schools, LeRoy began his career as an actor in 1912, then got behind the lens as an assistant cameraman in 1919-20.

He directed such movies as "Little Caesar," "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," and "Tugboat Annie."

He was associated with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios in 1938 and organized his own production company, Arrowhead Productions, in Burbank, Calif., in 1944.

He produced such movies as "Stand Up and Fight," "Babes in Arms," "Madame Curie," "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," and "Little Women."

LeRoy married his first wife, Doris Warner, on Jan. 2, 1933, and had two children by her. He married again in 1946 to Kathryn Spiegel, who was with him when he died.

It was LeRoy who introduced Ronald Reagan to Nancy Davis. The president and Nancy Reagan, in a White House statement Sunday, said "we always referred to him as our Cupid."

"Mervyn LeRoy was a special part of our lives," the Reagans said. "It was he who introduced us. And he was always a precious friend."

They also described him as "one of the pillars of the entertainment industry, responsible for some of the finest motion pictures ever" and said he knew "just what to say to get his actors to make it right."

NBC nabs 16 technical Emmys

PASADENA, Calif. — Computer comic "Max Headroom" and the madcap detective series "Moonlighting" took three technical category Emmy Awards apiece to lead winners in the non-televised presentations Saturday night.

The two ABC-TV shows helped the network edge up to the nation's No. 1 television network, NBC-TV, which won 16 technical Emmys to ABC's 15. Public Broadcasting System won eight and CBS was awarded four.

"Max Headroom," whose star is a computer-generated character of the same name, collected awards for sound mixing, sound editing and art direction for its episode "Blipverts."

"Moonlighting" won for editing, hairstyling and costume design for its episode "Atomic Shakespeare."

Only one award, for art direction, went to NBC's hit legal series "L.A. Law," which received 20 Emmy nominations and is favored to win the bulk of trophies at the 39th Annual Emmy Awards presentations Sept. 20 at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium.

The Academy of Television Arts and Sciences' technical awards show Saturday at the Pasadena Civic was hosted by "Growing Pains" star Alan Thicke.

Prison rioters return to cells

SANTAREM, Portugal — Prisoners who staged a 22-hour demonstration on the roof of a military jail returned peacefully to their cells Sunday, officials said.

Three inmates were injured when a guard opened fire during the protest over food and hygiene at the jail in Santarem, about 40 miles north of Lisbon.

An army official said 47 of the 59 inmates broke through an attic and went onto the jail roof Saturday.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the prisoners went back to their cells on their own and without incident.

Officers lasso llama on the lam

DALLAS — In the land of horses and cattle roundups, sheriff's officers had to use a patrol car and an ambulance to chase down and lasso a llama on the lam.

An ambulance crew noticed Sugar Ray Llama outside his fence Saturday at the Sunnyvale home of John Aston and told the Dallas County sheriff's department, giving deputies their first "llama in progress" call, said deputy Joe Collard.

Collard and cowhands from eastern Dallas County set out after the South American beast of burden and finally pinned him against a pasture fence until a volunteer firefighter threw a rope around his neck.

CBS goes blank for 6 minutes

NEW YORK — Anchorman Dan Rather angrily left the set of the CBS Evening News when he found that the network's tennis coverage would delay his program, causing CBS television to go blank for about six minutes.

Rather walked from the set in Miami at 6:30 p.m. Friday, but when the close U.S. Open match between Steffi Graf and Lori McNeil in New York ended shortly afterward, the tennis broadcasters did a quick wrap and signed off around 6:33.

Rather, who had gone to an office a few doors away, returned when he was informed the network had "gone black," CBS sources said. A truncated version of the news went on at 6:39.

According to CBS sources, Rather was angry about the intrusion of sports into news time, but he left because he believed the tennis would continue to air through the Evening News' half hour.

Pope regrets not seeing river

NEW ORLEANS — Pope John Paul II had two regrets about his trip to New Orleans — he couldn't talk to everyone he saw and he didn't get to see the Mississippi River, Archbishop Philip Hannan said Sunday.

"When we got to the lake (Pontchartrain), he said, 'Mississippi?' I said, 'No, Your Holiness, it's a lake. No Mississippi River this trip,'" Hannan recounted at a news conference after John Paul's departure.

He said the Rev. Roberto Tucci, the chief organizer for papal trips, told him, "In western Europe, we all read about the Mississippi. Everybody knows about Huck Finn. We all have a great desire to see the Mississippi."

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

QUESTION AND ANSWER SESSION for all sophomores wishing to apply for the $28,000 Truman Scholarship at 3:30 p.m. in Union 203.

THE 6TH ANNUAL Business Career Day at 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Union Ballroom.

TODAY

ALPHA PHI OMEGA meets at 7 p.m. in Union 204.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS meets at 7:30 p.m. in Durland 152. Alan Leard from Amoco research will present a program on "Fuel Supplies-Looking Back, Looking Ahead."

ALPHA KAPPA PSI meet at 8:30 p.m. at Charlie's Bar. All sophomores and juniors majoring in business or economics are invited to attend the informal meeting.

GYMNASTICS CLUB meets at 9 p.m. in the Natatorium 4.

GRADUATE STUDENT COUNCIL meets at 4:30 p.m. in Call Hall 140.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI meets at 8 p.m. in Union 207.

ENGINEERING STUDENT COUNCIL meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 213.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF PROFESSIONAL ENGINEERS meets at 3:30 p.m. in Durland 173.

KANSAS COMMUNITY SERVICE ORGANIZATION meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 205.

COLLEGE OF HUMAN ECOLOGY COUNCIL meets at 5:15 p.m. in Justin Hall 254.

STUDENT HUMAN ECOLOGY ASSOCIATION meets at 4 p.m. in Justin Hall 341.

Take a Break
Play Putt Putt Golf!

LAST CHANCE
1213 MORO, AGGIEVILLE
776-0451

CHEAP
MONDAYS &
TUESDAYS!

80¢

DRAFT BEERS

★
$2.50 PITCHERS

★★
PLUS ... $1.55
IMPORT BEER
OF THE WEEK!!!

The Station
STADIUM
NIGHT
MONDAY

$1 STADIUM
BEERS
(32 oz!)

25¢ BAR
BURGERS
OR 6 FOR $1.39, 5-10pm

MONDAY NIGHT
FOOTBALL ON THE BIG SCREEN

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

GUITAR LESSONS

*KSU's Department of Music, in cooperation with Community
Education, offers
Group Guitar Lessons.

*Classes begin Tuesday, Sept. 22 and continue every Tuesday til Dec. 8th

6-7:30 p.m. Register NOW! Students need 1 undergraduate Call 532-5566 own guitars credit optional

Information call 532-5740

Community Education
Division of Continuing Education
Umberger Hall 317

The first step to professionalism, is to become a professional,
and the first step to becoming a professional is Alpha Kappa Psi.

Join the Professional Business Fraternity
Alpha Kappa Psi.

Informational Pledge/Active Smoker
Charlie's Neighborhood Bar,
Monday, September 14 at 8:30
Those interested will be admitted

A BREAKFAST BREAKTHROUGH

99¢ BISCUIT
SANDWICH

No time to fix breakfast?
No problem. Swing by Vista and start off your busy day the easy way with our hearty Vista biscuit sandwich. Now just 99¢ each—with your choice of ham, sausage or bacon. Vista's big biscuit sandwiches are breakfast pleasers!

Ham, sausage or bacon biscuit sandwiches. 99¢ each for a limited time. Cheese and egg extra.

Vista
RESTAURANTS

1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

"WE CARE" about your health

- *Outpatient Clinic
- *Lafemme (GYN) Clinic
- *Allergy Clinic
- *Mental Health Clinic
- *Laboratory
- *Physical Therapy Department
- *Pharmacy
- *X-Ray Department
- *Dietary Counseling
- *In-patient Hospital
- *Sports Medicine Clinic
- *Wart Clinic

*Clinic Hours: 8-11:30 a.m. 1-4:30 p.m.

*24 hour, 7 days a week health care services

*Time-saving Appointment System

Call 532-6544 for an appointment

LAFENE HEALTH CENTER

"Your Medical Facility"

ARTCARVED
CLASS RINGS

THIS WEEK ONLY!

Now is the time to make your choice. Because every ArtCarved college ring — from handsome traditional to contemporary styles — is on sale now! You'll be impressed with the fine ArtCarved craftsmanship that's backed by a Full Lifetime Warranty. And you'll appreciate the savings.
Don't miss out!

The Quality:
The Craftsmanship:
The Reward You Deserve.

SAVE UP TO $60 ON GOLD RINGS!

September 14-17 10a.m. to 4p.m.
K-STATE UNION BOOKSTORE

1. 1987 ArtCarved Class Rings.

Deposit Required

Student wins lighting design contest

Art museum basis for winning entry

By Chuck Homer
Collegian Reporter

Turning electric lights on and off is something most people take for granted, provided their electric bill is paid.

Members of the Illuminating Engineering Society, the recognized authority in North America on lighting, target their technical and creative energies toward ensuring the light people take for granted is both effective and aesthetically pleasing.

The Heart of America Section of the IES, a professional engineering organization, sponsors a lighting design contest for university students in conjunction with its regional conference in Kansas City, Mo.

Ryan Schroeder, senior in architectural engineering, won the $250 first prize in competition against entries from other universities in the five-state midwest region. States included in the region are Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa and Illinois.

Schroeder described his entry as two 24-inch by 24-inch design layouts, a design description, and the life-cycle cost analysis.

Schroeder's design was based on a conceptual K-State art museum design developed by Michael Hessman, senior in architectural engineering.

"I took the project one step further by developing the illumination design," Schroeder said.

Schroeder said he was made aware of the competition about two months in advance by Clarence Waters, instructor in architectural engineering and construction science, and adviser to the K-State chapter of the IES.

"I got a late start on the project because of finals," Schroeder said, "but I had previously completed much of the requisite research."

"During the 24 hours immediately following finals, a sympathetic cohort and I assembled the project while simultaneously consuming voluminous quantities of pizza to help us stay awake," Schroeder said. "I had to be in Kansas City by 1 p.m. on May 17, and I didn't finish the project until 9 a.m. on that day."

Schroeder credits Waters' efforts and the "degree of difficulty" of his design for his win.

"Clarence Waters has been instrumental in getting the IES chapter started, and promoting K-State with the IES," Schroeder said.

Schroeder credits the complexity of his design, with its ability to illuminate art objects without harming them, for giving his design an advantage over other entries.

The Illuminating Engineering Society's diversified membership of engineers, architects, designers, educators, contractors, scientists, physicians and manufacturers gives student-members the opportunity to interact with other professionals, receive product development information and the chance to win cash, Schroeder said.

When asked what he planned to do with the prize money, Schroeder said, "Already spent, sustaining the soul."

Pope greets Texas crowd

By The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — Pope John Paul II, greeted in this heavily Hispanic city Sunday by the largest crowd yet of his current tour, lauded the "courage and generosity" of those who aid Latin American immigrants to the United States.

At a sun-beaten, open-air Mass attended by an estimated 300,000 people, the pontiff saluted those who have worked "on behalf of suffering brothers and sisters arriving from the south."

"They have sought to show compassion in the face of complex human, social and political realities," the pope, garbed in green robes symbolic of hope and growth, told the crowd at a 144-acre site in this city 140 miles from the Mexican border.

"Here human needs, both spiritual and material, continue to call out to the church with thousands of voices, and the whole church must respond" in concert with other Christian denominations, he said.

The pope did not mention sanctuary by name, but he appeared to be referring to that movement which assists Latin Americans who enter the United States illegally. Two Roman Catholic priests and a nun were among eight sanctuary activists convicted in a six-month federal trial in Arizona last year.

In Texas, the diocese of Brownsville operates Casa Oscar Romero, a shelter for illegal aliens named after the murdered archbishop of San Salvador, El Salvador. Two former directors and a former volunteer have been convicted on charges related to transporting illegal aliens.

The Hispanic-American community, as expected, was the focal point of the pope's stop in San Antonio, the fourth stop on a nine-city, 10-day U.S. tour that began Thursday.

Many of the readings and songs of the Mass were in Spanish, and the pope spoke in Spanish when he called upon the Hispanic community "to respond to its own needs, and to show generous and effective solidarity among its own members."

After rain-drenched services in Miami and New Orleans, Sunday's Mass was celebrated under sunny skies.

As temperatures climbed into the 90s during the long service, 500 people took refuge from the heat under Red Cross tents at the site and 22 others were taken to hospitals for treatment of heat exhaustion.

In the course of a 23-hour visit to Texas, the pope also was to visit the predominantly Hispanic parish of Our Lady of Guadalupe for an address in Spanish.

The pope's day also included a speech to seminarians and was to end with a visit with parishioners from Panna Maria, Texas, the nation's oldest permanent Polish settlement.

In an address to representatives of Catholic charities at the municipal auditorium, John Paul said that those who help the poor must also speak up for them, and try "to reform structures which cause or perpetuate their oppression."

"We must realize that social injustice and unjust social structures exist only because individuals and groups of individuals deliberately maintain or tolerate them," the pope said, but he warned against "ideologies that use force to carry out their programs and impose their vision."

That was reminiscent of statements in Latin America in which the pope enjoined priests and religious to identify with the poor but to keep politics, especially Marxist theories, out of the church.

Northeast experiences flooding

By The Associated Press

Rain fell across much of the Northeast on Sunday, causing scattered flooding, and thunderstorms developed over Texas and the lower Appalachians.

Severe thunderstorm warnings were issued for parts of western Pennsylvania and southeastern Texas.

Heavy rain closed roads and flooded hundreds of basements in central and eastern Pennsylvania. Carbon County in the eastern part of the state got 4.8 inches of rain overnight. Albrightsville, Pa., had received 4.9 inches of rain from Saturday morning to Sunday afternoon.

About 150 people in Perry County, Pa., were evacuated from a mobile home park where high water damaged roads, sidewalks and over 25 trailers, said John Comey of the state Emergency Management Agency. He said most of the people were able to return home in the afternoon.

Carbon County emergency coordinator Nelson Norwood said the Lehigh River was expected to crest at 2 to 3 feet above flood stage and officials notified about 200 families in Lehigh and Weissport during the afternoon to be ready for evacuations.

A flood warning was issued for northern New Jersey's Morris, Passaic, eastern Sussex, eastern Warren and northwestern Bergen counties, where up to 4.5 inches of rain fell from midmorning to midafternoon.

In New York state, a flood warning was issued for Ulster County where heavy rain sent small streams out of their banks, the National Weather Service said.

A flood watch for potential flooding was posted through the night for all of northern New Jersey and for Westchester and Rockland counties of southeastern New York.

Notice

Lafene Student Health Center is extending its clinic hours beginning today.

New clinic hours will be 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. with limited professional staffing on duty over the noon hour Monday through Friday.

After-hours medical care is available from 4:30 p.m. to 8 a.m. Monday through Friday and 24 hours Saturday and Sunday.

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!

—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!

Frozen Yogurt Sweets

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily

Noon-11 p.m. Sundays

Nautilus Towers—Aggieville

CLARK'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
ESTABLISHED 1955

POOL TOURNAMENT
TOMORROW
OPEN TOURNAMENT
Both Singles and Doubles
Starts at 8 p.m.

COME IN TONIGHT
for the Bears and Giants on our
BIG SCREEN
1800 Claflin 539-9619

619 N. Manhattan
Bar Office
539-9081 776-6638

Join The Professional Couching Staff
at Dark Horse for Monday Night Football!

$2.00 Pitchers
$1.50 Wells

SNACKS PROVIDED

PROFESSIONAL COUCHING
★ STAFF ★

TINA'S
Studio 32
FOR HAIR

is proud to introduce

JUDY and LOLA

two top hair designers and perm artists
who are joining our team of professionals.

Judy and Lola will be giving 50% off (reg $18) cuts with styling as a get acquainted offer through Sept. 26

Call 776-8830 Candlewood Shopping Center

AL-BASHA الباشا GREEK & MEDITERRANEAN FOOD

TRY
THE GREAT TASTE OF
GYROS
A delicious sandwich made with selected meats and served on fluffy Pita bread with fresh onions, tomatoes and a tangy cucumber sauce.

50¢ OFF!

Offer expires 9/20/87

1209 Laramie -Catering- 537-7533

INSTANT
REPLAY
MONDAY

2-FER
STEINS

99¢ LATE
NITE NACHOS
(REGULAR), 11-12

MONDAY NITE FOOTBALL ON 5 TV's

619 N. 12th, Aggieville

SOUTHERN
SUN

the TANNING CENTER

$2 tans

776-8060

Must be used by Nov. 1st

- COMPLETELY PRIVATE, CLEAN, SOUNDPROOF ROOMS
- FEATURING THE WOLFF SYSTEM TANNING BEDS
- FEATURING WOLFF'S BELLARIUM "S" SUN BULBS
- MOST TANNING ACCELERATOR

Buy All You Want

519 N. 12th

(next to Domino's)

GRAND OPENING

All Week Sept. 14-19

- 10% Discount on all purchases over $20
- $3 off on Tune Ups
- FREE Bicycle Water Bottle with $10 purchase service all makes

aggie Bike Station

776-2372

612 N. Manhattan
(behind Hardees)

Finally,
a great pizza
delivered.

1118 Laramie

539-5303

GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special
$10.99/$8.99 plus tax

LARGE MEDIUM COMBO PIZZA
or up to 4 toppings
Original Crust

Plus FREE 20 oz. drink!
4 drinks with large
3 drinks with medium

Offer good Monday through
Wednesday only.
Dine-in. Carryout or Delivery (no added delivery charge) Not valid
with other promotional offers.
Limited Delivery Area.

Offer Expires 10/07/87
GODFATHER'S
PIZZA KSU

Large Pizza for a Medium Price

Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for
the price of a medium.
Dine-in. Carryout or Delivery
Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on refillable jug of offer. On Sunday your choice, either use this coupon or take advantage of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one.

GODFATHER'S
PIZZA

Offer Expires 10/11/87 KSU

2 for $12

Super Pepperoni or Four Toppings
(The Super Pepperoni with more pepperoni than ever before or The Four Toppings with sausage, pepperoni, onions, and green peppers)

Dine-in. Carryout or Delivery
Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1.00 for delivery. Limited
Delivery Area.

GODFATHER'S
PIZZA

Offer Expires 10/11/87 KSU

Hot Slice™

2 for $2
Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas
by the slice for $2!
Combo or Pepperoni

Dine-in or Carryout
Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

GODFATHER'S
PIZZA

Offer Expires 10/09/87 KSU

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, September 14, 1987 ■ Page 4

Ronald Reagan maims, distorts truth

"Newspeak" was the term George Orwell used to describe how the government in his book "1984" was able to bend falsehoods into truth. Today, we have our own version of newspeak in the form of a second-rate actor living in Washington, D.C.

Ronald Reagan, backed by his staff of public relations wizards (read "bull artists") has done what the founding fathers would have thought impossible — lie to the public and get away with it. At last count, there are three separate books chronicling the lies of Reagan from the time he was governor of California to present.

But it is not just the lies that should worry us. The Reagan administration has also shown a distinctive knack for twisting not-so-wonderful realities into "Reaganspeak."

One of the more familiar examples of this is Reagan's quest for a balanced budget amendment. He has been calling for a balanced budget, while at the same time doubling defense spending and cutting taxes to stimulate the economy. He has never even submitted a balanced budget, much less OK'd one.

For more examples of Reaganspeak, let us go now to the president's much touted "Kill a baby for democracy" policy in Central America. For years, Reagan has been trying to destroy that "totalitarian" regime in Nicaragua, the one blemish on an otherwise democratic Central America.

But a few months ago, we learned there was trouble brewing in Panama. It seems that an army general named Noriega has been in control of the country since he put a bomb on the former president's plane in 1981. When

Commentary

KIRK CARAWAY
Collegian Columnist

his involvement in this and other incidents became public, he closed down the newspapers and threw a few political figures in jail. What happened? Reagan said this was a democracy.

Since the Iran-Contra scandal, the president has had to figure out some new tactics to get his way in Central America. He is now proposing a peace plan for the region, which calls for cease-fires in Nicaragua, Guatemala and El Salvador; peace talks between the governments and rebel groups in these countries; and internationally supervised elections.

But what kind of elections will satisfy Reagan? Nicaragua had internationally supervised elections in 1984, with the Sandinistas getting 67 percent of the votes. Reagan ignored the findings of the international observers and continues to call their government a dictatorship. Will he do the same thing again? Is his peace plan just a way to secure aid to the Contras?

Reagan's peace plan also calls for democratic reforms in El Salvador and Guatemala. Just a few months ago, he was proclaiming these countries as "shining examples of democracy in the region." What happened? Did democracy suddenly vanish overnight? You see, the problem with lies is you have to keep telling more lies to cover up your earlier lies. You also better have a good memory so you can remember the lies you told, which Reagan has proven he doesn't have. He let the truth slip out about the authoritarian hell holes he called democratic.

It is not just that the president lies to us, but that we believe him. Part of this is that the American people are too dumb and lazy to find out the truth. However, the president and his gang of public relations guys make sure we stay that way.

They have limited access to the president to the point that reporters have to shout questions at him while he boards his helicopter. He has held fewer news conferences than any other president this century, mostly because he is terrible without a script, and his staff always has to issue retractions afterward. With this lack of access to the president, it is hard to get the truth because you can't question him directly. This leads to misunderstandings on both sides.

Not only are Reagan's meetings with the press few in number, but they are also heavily structured. He will only meet with certain reporters and will accept questions at news conferences according to a pre-arranged order. If any of you are lucky enough to live to see Reagan's next news conference, make a bet with a friend that the first person he picks to ask a question is from either The Associated Press or United Press International. You can't lose.

But then Reagan seems to be losing his touch. He no longer appears to be the strong, intelligent leader he was in 1980. He is now seen as being the senile, old grandfather who is struggling with reality and his fading memory. The whole country is going down the tubes, and he can find the time to take a month's vacation. Maybe we should start paying our presidents by the hour so we get our money's worth. After all, it's our country, too.

Hayden makes costly mistake with session

One-hundred-eighty-thousand dollars is a lot of money to most people.

That much money could buy 9,000 pieces of bubble gum, at least (less tax of course). Or it could buy nine new Chevrolet Corvettes, or 100 1974 Ford Granadas.

On a statewide spending scale it might not seem to buy as much, but it could fund educational programs in several Kansas public schools and maybe even provide some extra instructors at certain state universities with increasing enrollments.

What that much money bought a couple of weeks ago was nothing — that is if hopes and dreams for better roads in Kansas do not count.

Gov. Mike Hayden called a special session of the Kansas Legislature because he had formulated a plan that would improve the state's road system and bring prosperity to parts of the state where the construction would take place.

He even had a way to pay for it.

Calls were sent out by the governor and his secretary of transportation to avoid provincialism and partisanship. Hayden said his plan was the best plan, and rather than wait for the regular legislative session to debate it, the governor decided Kansas needed action immediately.

What Hayden did not count on — and considering his many years as Speaker of the House of Representatives he should have experienced this before — is that other people around the state had their own ideas as to what a comprehensive road plan should include.

He should have known mere warnings about provincialism would not be enough when almost $2 billion in road construction was at stake. Or when some long-awaited road projects were included and others were not.

When it became evident that support was lacking in the legislature for the road plan, Hayden took his proposal on the road to drum up grassroots support. If this was successful, it was not apparent in the voting during the special session.

As the special session opened, at least seven plans prepared by other legislators emerged. Everybody thought their plan was the best for the state and especially their constituencies.

One plan even included the addition of Washburn University into the regents system.

Hayden emphasized leadership abilities and experience in the legislature during his campaign for the office, but his planning for the special session did not show either of those qualities.

When he called for the special session he should have known what to expect. He should have had the support already lined up.

Special sessions should be just that: special. They should be reserved for resolving crises or other topics that demand the immediate attention of the state and its leaders, not for programs that are better left to regular session debate.

Had this been the case, the pork barrel additions by some legislators could have been eliminated, more support could have been gained, and Kansas might have had a comprehensive road plan instead of a $180,000 hole in its budget.

It still is not too late for the Kansas Legislature to come up with a road plan that could be accepted by most Kansas voters. All Hayden has to do is be patient and let the legislative process do its job.

Amnesty advocates freedoms

"When the first two hundred letters came, the guards gave me back my clothes. Then the next two hundred letters came, and the prison director came to see me. When the next pile of letters arrived, the director got in touch with his superior. The letters kept coming and coming: three thousand of them. The President was informed. The letters still kept arriving, and the President called the prison and told them to let me go."

—A released prisoner of conscience from the Dominican Republic.

The above quote is only one of many that can be found in an Amnesty International pamphlet. Other quotes include mentions of torture and varieties of inhumane treatment imposed upon individuals whose only crime was the expression of their personal beliefs. This pamphlet, or similar versions, can be found in seventy-eight countries throughout the world. Locally, it was available, along with other literature, at a table in the K-State Union last Thursday and Friday.

"Oh, yeah," you may say, "Amnesty International is that group that fills up concert stadiums, sponsored by big rock bands like U2 or The Police." That's true, but Amnesty does much more than concert tours or T-shirt sales.

Amnesty International is a worldwide organization of concerned individuals who act on the conviction that governments must not deny their citizens basic human rights. Amnesty has three basic goals: to release prisoners of conscience (men, women and children imprisoned for their beliefs, color, sex, ethnic origin, language or religion, provided they have neither used nor advocated violence); fair and prompt trials for all political prisoners; and an end to torture and execution in all cases.

It is an independent organization, subscribing to no governments, political factions, ideologies, economic interests or reli-

Commentary

MICHAEL NICHOLS
Collegian Columnist

gious creeds. Amnesty International does not accept contributions from any government, and operates only on donations from its members and supporters.

Members of Amnesty International send letters, cards and telegrams to foreign government officials on behalf of individual prisoners. They also organize public meetings, collect signatures for petitions, and arrange publicity events to attract awareness of human rights violations.

Special projects are also worked on, such as the Campaign to Abolish Torture.

Locally, the Manhattan chapter worked diligently over previous semesters to ensure the death penalty would not return to Kansas. The campaign was a success.

On a larger scale, Amnesty sometimes sends missions to countries to appeal in person for the protection of human rights.

Since its founding in 1961, Amnesty International has worked on behalf of more than 25,000 prisoners of conscience around the world. Skeptics may argue that letter-writing and fund-raising events do little to aid prisoners, but last year 150 of them adopted by groups in the United States alone were released.

No effort is in vain, no letter, card or telegram futile. Amnesty believes that a released prisoner is not merely a number to be computed in statistical logs, but a human being deserving of special attention. Amnesty cares, and asks that you do the same.

Each chapter adopts a prisoner of conscience in a foreign nation.

The Amnesty group at K-State acts on behalf of Ismet Kasumovic, a metallurgist sentenced to ten years of imprisonment for commenting on the restriction of religious freedoms in Yugoslavia. His sentence was reduced on appeal to eight years, but local members are working on an immediate release.

Funds have been raised to help support his wife, and many letters have been written to government officials in Yugoslavia. Unfortunately, though, the Amnesty's representation in this community is small and in dire need of greater student participation.

Why is awareness of human rights violations practically unnoticeable at this university?

People are comfortable; they personally know no one being beaten in a dark prison cell or refused their constitutional rights. This is America, land of freedom, and we don't put up with that nonsense around here. However, it goes on all around the world, and from what better place to defend human rights than America?

We constantly brag about the freedoms our people enjoy, and our government claims that it attempts to spread democracy throughout the world. What better way than to join a humanitarian group with absolutely no political ties?

Amnesty International needs your participation. A little bit of time, maybe some letters, or showing up at one of the meetings is all it is asking. If interested, you may obtain more information by contacting Amnesty at the Union Activities Center in the K-State Union. There are no rewards, no written commendations, just the assurance that you may be helping to save a human life.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR

Deron Johnson

MANAGING EDITOR

Becky Lucas

NEWS EDITOR

Jeff Bielzer

EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR

Christine Doll

PHOTOGRAPHICS EDITOR

John Thelander

CAMPUS EDITORS

Jenny Chalk

Chad Sanborn

SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR

Judy Lundstrom

FEATURES EDITOR

Susan Staggberg

AGRI-BUSINESS EDITOR

Janet Swanson

GOVERNMENT EDITOR

Candy Leonard

ARTS/ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR

Becky Howard

SPORTS EDITOR

Jeff Rapp

COPY EDITORS

Peggy Archibald

Betsy Edwards

Lori Siegert

STAFF WRITERS

Tom Denzel

Jennifer Dorsch

Lori Lindstrom

Alison Neely

COLUMNISTS

Judd Annis

Kirk Caraway

Doug Folk

REVIEWER

Gary Leffler

SPORTS WRITERS

Chase Clark

Bill Lang

SPORTS COLUMNISTS

Tom Perrin

David Svoboda

PHOTOGRAPHERS

Jim Dietz

Brad Fanshier

Brett Hacker

Gary Lytle

GRAPHIC ARTIST

Mary Ward

ADVERTISING GRAPHIC ARTIST

Alexa Menz

EDITORIAL BOARD

Jeff Bielzer

Kirk Caraway

Christine Doll

Deron Johnson

ADVERTISING MANAGER

Judy Goetz

ASST. ADVERTISING MANAGER

Jada Allenheiligen

REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVE

Bill Sherbert

CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER

Barry Steffen

SALES REPRESENTATIVES

Donna Adelhardt

Stacey Darrell

Cathy Doud

CLASSIFIED SALES REPS

Tracy Mayhew

Jackie Clements

Jessie Dennis

DIRECTOR

Dave Adams

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR

Gloria Frosland

NEWS ADVISER

Connie Fulkerson

GRAD. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR

David Svoboda

ADV. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR

Wanda Haynie

ADVERTISING MANAGER

Judy Goetz

ASST. ADVERTISING MANAGER

Jada Allenheiligen

REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVE

Bill Sherbert

CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER

Barry Steffen

SALES REPRESENTATIVES

Donna Adelhardt

Stacey Darrell

Cathy Doud

CLASSIFIED SALES REPS

Tracy Mayhew

Jackie Clements

Jessie Dennis

DIRECTOR

Dave Adams

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR

Gloria Frosland

NEWS ADVISER

Connie Fulkerson

GRAD. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR

David Svoboda

ADV. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR

Wanda Haynie

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of K-State Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, K-State Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Card provides students' sex education

By The Associated Press

RALEIGH, N.C. — You may not be able to include everything an adolescent needs to know about sex education on a laminated pocket card, but author Carole Marsh hopes the card would be enough to convince a teen-ager not to have sex — or at least have it safely.

"If we can't get them to read (books), then let's give them something 2 inches by 3 inches and see if we can get them to read this," said Marsh of Bath, N.C., who has written a series of 35 sex education materials for children, teachers and parents. "It's just a good reminder."

One side of the card has "Six Super Smart Sex Steps" for the child who wants to say no; the second side has sex "musts" for protection against pregnancy and disease.

"If you communicate to (fourth-, fifth- or sixth-graders) that waiting is really a good idea, they'll take that to heart," said Marsh, who has written children's books for about 10 years. "We'll not have a lot of luck with teen-agers necessarily. It also encompasses the reality that some kids will be sexually involved."

In addition to the laminated card, the material includes books, parent and teacher guides, posters and newsletters. It is published by Gallopade Publishing Group, which is run by Marsh and her husband, Bob Longmeyer, and publishes only Marsh's books.

Marsh said some of the material had been ordered by national bookstore chains. She has received inquiries on it from around the country and has an international wholesaler.

"It (sex education) is on people's minds right now," Marsh said in a telephone interview. "There's a lot of interest around the world. So I wrote it with that in mind without any American prejudices in it."

Lois Chenault is an elementary school teacher in Bath who describes herself as conservative. But Chenault, who reviewed the material as a favor to Marsh, said she had been impressed by what she read.

"She didn't preach," Chenault said, adding that Marsh teaches children how to say no and what to do when they say yes. "Carole knows all kids are not going to say no, and those that don't need to know what to do."

Her explanations "are brief, not long, not drawn out — this is the way it is, these are the facts," Chenault said.

A set of "Smart Sex Stuff" workbooks, which include quizzes and games, has been prepared for use in the home or classroom. And three books have been especially prepared for parents: "Like a Virgin: How to Convince Your Child to Abstain from Sex"; "How to Get Your Kid

Out of School — Without AIDS, a Disease or a Baby"; and "Could Your Child Die Laughing?: AIDS and Today's Adolescents."

"I don't mince any words," Marsh said. "The facts are enough; you don't have to make the facts any scarier than they are. The one thing I really try to do...is really cover a child's lifetime of sex. Most things for children about sex focus on adolescent things that are so traumatic. They harp on don't get pregnant; now they harp on AIDS."

"Like money, there will always be something to worry about. And sex is just the same way. I'm hoping that will be a little bit reassuring. That's just the facts of life. There are good things and bad things and that goes for sex too. Sex is a good thing; you don't want to scare kids to death."

For parents who have doubts, Marsh urges them in her introduction to tear out pages that disturb them. And although some of the material is meant for children, she reminds parents that they can keep the books in their possession.

"They can keep control of the books and show the parts they want to," she said. "I definitely think the parents should be in control. If they object to something, tear the page out."

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

Wefald

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
contribution of scientific research and development.

A combination of the first and fourth emphasis areas would provide an important role through outreach activities by promoting the economic health of the agricultural sector in Kansas, diversifying the Kansas economy, and establishing communication links between the University and the private sector, Wefald said.

Areas of targeted interest include increasing the processing of agricultural products in Kansas and thereby providing the value-added concept to the state's economy, working to improve the dryland cropping techniques through soil and water conservation in western Kansas where the water table has dropped significantly, improving the forage-based livestock system, and continuing to conduct research in wheat genetics.

Wefald said the University contributes $500 million to the state's economy through research and development such as improved wheat varieties, yet K-State receives only $106 million in state appropriations.

To establish a communication link with the private sector, the plan includes extending the DIRECT service and offering consultative assistance to communities seeking economic development.

In the second emphasis area, the Margin of Excellence plan would provide resources to improve lower division instruction, expand student options, improve the curriculum depth and provide both students and faculty with appropriate supplies.

Specifically, resources would be used to establish basic skills labs to better deal with the wide range of students at K-State, and to personalize the social science classes by making small recitation units available.

The student options in the programs of hotel/restaurant management and computer engineering would be enhanced as would the curriculum depth in finance, management and landscape architecture and design.

Through the Margin of Excellence funding, supplies to library services, academic computing services and instructional materials would be increased.

The third emphasis of the proposal would extend access to the University's expertise by creating new outreach mechanisms.

These include the educational satellite communications center, outreach to professionals (architecture in Kansas City, a science education center and continued support to rural and small Kansas schools) and the DIRECT program.

Wefald also discussed implementing the approved staffing plan for the College of Veterinary Medicine and the cooperative biomedical program between the College of Veterinary Medicine and the University of Kansas Medical School.

Provost James Coffman spoke to the group about some of the directions and goals for K-State. He said it was important to remember that K-State is a "broad-based and comprehensive institution" and that the two purposes of the University, educational instruction and research, are not always consistent.

Golden Key
National Honor Society

Meeting
Tues., Sept. 15, 6:30 p.m.
Union 203

DON'T FORGET
For your added convenience
LAFENE HEALTH CENTER
is expanding their service hours
Effective Monday, Sept. 14
New Clinic Hours—8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

•limited staffing over noon hour•

Wichita
Family Planning Inc.

Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services

Free Pregnancy Testing

Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS. 67214 (316) 688-0107

Jewish New Year
Rash Hashanah
High Holiday Services

Wednesday Evening
Sept. 23
8 p.m.

Thursday Morning
Sept. 24
10 a.m.

at

Manhattan Jewish Congregation
1509 Wreath Ave.

Students who wish to celebrate with a local Jewish family may call

Matt — 532-6096

Dave — 539-6177 (evenings)

ATTENTION

Organization Pictures for the Royal Purple are being taken in FAIRCHILD 202

CONOCO INC.

PETROLEUM PRODUCTS, NORTH AMERICA
MANAGEMENT DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

All December and May Graduates of the

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

are invited to attend a presentation/reception
on career opportunities with PP, NA

DATE: SEPTEMBER 15, 1987

TIME: 5-6 p.m.

PLACE: 152 DURLAND

*Degrees Sought

BS or MS in Chemical, Civil, Industrial, Mechanical, or Petroleum Engineering

MBAs with an Undergraduate Engineering Degree

BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND

PYRAMID PIZZA'S
MONDAY
GLADNESS
Why be mad, when you can be GLAD?

BUY 1
GET 1
FREE

Any size
Pizza!

We deliver...
FAST and
Friendly-like.

Delivering All
Day Every Day
For Your Convenience

539-4888

We accept Visa and MasterCard

Offering Thin
Crust or Our
Original Golden
Braided Crust

Farm programs guarantee Americans' food supply

By The Associated Press

HUTCHINSON — The House Agriculture Committee chairman, speaking at the Kansas State Fair Saturday, defended the $26 billion spent this year on farm programs by saying folks at the Pentagon "stumble over that much money in one day."

Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, said he prefers to look at the cost of farm programs in terms of what impact they have on the total trillion-dollar federal budget. Farm programs account for approximately 3 percent of total U.S. expenditures, he said.

"More money is whistled away keeping a general's dog than on the farm program," the congressman said.

Keeping farmers and ranchers on their land and assuring Americans of a dependable low-cost food supply are of vital importance, de la Garza said.

Farm program expenses should drop to $18 billion or less next year, he said. Costs for the dairy, cotton and rice portions of the farm bill already are decreasing, he said.

The Agriculture Committee is ready with legislation to restructure and financially assist the ailing Farm Credit System, de la Garza said. The bill could be debated on the House floor within the next few weeks, as soon as the leadership calls for it, he said.

He said two or three farm credit districts need financial help soon, he said.

De la Garza said he sees few changes coming in the 1985 farm bill, though he noted every presidential candidate seems to have a different view of what farm policy should be.

"That rhetoric will not change congressional policy unless or until one of them becomes president," he said.

The congressman said he disagrees with a recent study saying the Soviet Union may someday quit importing food.

"The Soviet Union will have a need for food for the foreseeable future," de la Garza said. "I don't see them being self-sufficient this century."

De la Garza was on a Kansas Farm Bureau arena program with Alberto Fernandez, general director of livestock development for Mexico's Ministry of Agriculture.

Fernandez substituted for Agriculture Minister Eduardo Pesqueira, who was unable to attend because he had to stay in Mexico with his critically ill father.

Speaking through an interpreter, Fernandez emphasized the imporance of the United States to Mexican agriculture. He said U.S. customers buy 70 percent of everything Mexico exports.

Cattle exports to the United States have been increasing, Fernandez said. During the 12-year period that ended two years ago, Mexico sent 550,000 feeder cattle across the border, he said. During the past two years more than 1 million feeders have been exported to the United States, he said.

Sensitive to the concerns of American cattlemen that Mexican imports hurt the U.S. livestock industry, Fernandez said the stock from Mexico accounts for only 1.5 percent of feeder cattle sales in the United States. He said U.S. packers slaughter the same number of cattle in a day as Mexico exports to the United States in a year.

"Mexico's production is a complement not a competition for the great production of the United States," Fernandez said.

He also called for additional technical and trade agreements between the two countries.

"A fundamental base to reach these is to harmonize our common interests, to open our minds to understanding, to comprehend each other's realities and to look for new and better alternatives," Fernandez said.

Ending legal puzzle

UFM course explains laws

By Chuck Horner
Collegian Reporter

There is a witticism which goes: "What do you get when you cross a godfather with a lawyer?" The response goes: "An offer you can't understand!"

In Manhattan a group of judges and attorneys are working to dispel confusion about laws. They are trying to provide the public with a greater understanding of their rights and responsibilities through a series of workshops, said Sheila Hochhauser, a local attorney.

University for Man and the Kansas Trial Lawyers Association is co-sponsoring eight workshops beginning Sept. 15, and continuing every Tuesday evening until Nov. 3.

Topics to be presented in "The Peoples' Law School" include: how the court system works; landlord and tenant laws; wills and probate; family law and domestic relations; consumer problems; debtor-creditor relations and bankruptcy; prosecution and defense in the criminal justice system; and workers' compensation and personal injury.

The fees for the workshops, ranging from $2 per session to $10 for all eight sessions per person, are used only to pay for facility's use.

The judges' and attorneys' time is a volunteer community service effort. Class materials are being paid for by the Kansas Trial Lawyers Association, Hochhauser said.

People wishing to attend one or all of the workshops can register at UFM, 1221 Thurston Ave.

Workshops similar to these have been conducted elsewhere with great success, said Eunice Dorst of UFM campus/community relations.

"There is something for everyone," she said. "The workshop topics were selected based upon the needs of the population in the Manhattan-Junction City area."

Dorst credits Hochhauser with initiating the program in this area and procuring area judges and attorneys for it.

Hochhauser said people have a lot of misunderstandings about the process of law, their rights and their responsibilities. Members of the law profession want to serve the public by providing information.

"The law professionals I contacted about participating in the workshops were absolutely enthusiastic, and many have expended a great deal of effort, preparing pamphlets and handouts to be given away at the workshops."

Reggae star killed by gunmen

By The Associated Press

KINGSTON, Jamaica — Three gunmen trying to rob reggae star Peter Tosh at his home killed him and another man and wounded five people when they couldn't find money, police reported Saturday.

They said the killers arrived on motorcycles Friday night, forced their way into the house, ordered everyone to lie face down on the floor, searched the victims and rooms for cash, and then opened fire.

Tosh and Wilton "Doc" Brown, a maker of health food potions from plants, died from their wounds en route to a hospital, according to the police.

Wounded were Tosh's longtime companion, Andrea Marlene Brown; Carlton Santa Davis, a drummer in Tosh's band; Michael Robinson, another musician; disc jockey Jeff Dixon, and his wife, Yvonne.

Dixon, who worked for the Jamaica Broadcasting Corp., was listed in critical condition at the University Hospital of the West Indies with a bullet wound in the head. His wife was treated and released and the three others were reported to be in stable condition.

Tosh, a former "Wailer," was one of the founding fathers of Jamaica's vibrant music of revolution.

Outside of Jamaica, Tosh, 42, was perhaps best known for his collaboration with Rolling Stones lead singer Mick Jagger in "(You Got to) Walk and Don't Look Back," a song written by Smokey Robinson. Tosh was nominated for a Grammy in 1985 for best reggae recording for "Captured Live."

A detective, speaking with the condition he not be identified, said police have tentatively identified the killers based on their investigations and interviews with witnesses, but no arrests have been made.

Tosh had just returned from the United States and the robbers apparently thought he had a large amount of cash with him, the detective said. The gunmen parked their motorcycles by the door, knocked, forced their way in when the door was opened and ransacked the two-story house, according to the detective.

He reported the survivors said Tosh told the robbers he didn't have any cash but they could take anything in the house. When no money was found, the killers armed with pistols fired at their victims on the floor, he added.

The house normally is protected by a dozen German shepherds, police and witnesses said, but the dogs were in the kennel when the gunmen arrived.

A Kingston radio station on Saturday rebroadcast an interview with Tosh in which the singer-songwriter lamented the role of money in society and concluded it caused more harm than good.

Graduating in December?

Interested in entering law school in January?

Contact Dottie Harder before September 15

Law Admissions Office, Room 219
Washburn University School of Law
17th & MacVicar
Topeka, Ks 66621

Toll free — 1-800-332-0291

Bork

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
not be confirmed."

Another member of the Senate committee, Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said he is still undecided on Bork.

"As a judge he's done fairly well, even though I may disagree with some of his decisions, in my judgment," DeConcini said on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley." "But prior to that some of his writings and some of his decisions are very disturbing."

"He's got some problems. There's no question about it," he said.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., who is a Judiciary

Committee member, said in a July 28 floor speech, "I hope to see this nomination have its day in this court right here (the full Senate)."

Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., who has promised to vote against the nominee, agreed on Aug. 12 that the nomination should reach the Senate "even if we have enough votes."

TV Listings

By TV Data

MONDAY SEPTEMBER 14, 1987

	KSNT 27	WIBW 43	KLDH 40	KSHB 41	KTWU 31	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	My Little Pony Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00		TBA		Bullwinkle Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Heathcliff	SportsLook Speedway	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss M.T. Moore	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Senior PGA Golf	Movie: "The Egg and I"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Green Acres Leave It to	Body Electric Instructional	Waltons	Webster World Invitational
11:00	Password	Tennis	Love Connect Ask Dr. Ruth	Beaver Make Room	Programming	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Andy Griffith I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	College Football: UCLA at	Movie: "Dallas Cowboy"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Munsters	Survival Special	Rhoda Phyllis	Nebraska	Cheerleaders II
2:00		Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobies Zoo	Nature McLaughlin	Kotter Bugs Bunny		Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Ghostbusters Smurfs	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00	Facts of Life	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons Eight is En-	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe Transformers	Truck and Tractor Pull	Munsters Laverne
5:00	3's Company	News CBS News	News ABC News	ough Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsLook Fishing	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00	News	News Truth/Conseq.	M*A*S*H Newlywed	Facts of Life Good Times	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Benson Major League	SportsCenter NFL Monday	Andy Griffith Major League
7:00	ALF	ALF Valerie	Head of Class NFL Football	Star Trek	Antarctica	Baseball: Chicago Cubs at	NFL Monday	Baseball: Cincinnati Reds
8:00	Movie: "Irre-	Movie: "Irre-	New York Giants at Chi-	Best of the National Geo-	American Masters	New York Mets	Tennis: Intl. Jr. Chall.	at Atlanta Braves
9:00	ferences	ferences	Nat'l Geo. Spcls	Legends Elephants	News	Splash Youth Golf	Movie: "Breaking	Up"
10:00	News	News WKRP		Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	INN News Trapper John	Championship SportsCenter
11:00	Ent. Tonight	Tennis: U.S. T.J. Hooker	News Nightline	Andy Griffith Movie: "Pete	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D. Movie: "We of	SportsLook NFL Theatre	Cousteau's Rediscovery
12:00	Late Night With David	Hot Shots	700 Club	"N' Tillie"	Sign-Off	the Never Never	NFL Great	of the World

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.) The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1-15	16-20	21-25	26-30	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75
16	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____	Phone no. _____
Address _____	Student ID # _____
1 _____	2 _____
3 _____	4 _____
5 _____	6 _____
7 _____	8 _____
9 _____	10 _____
11 _____	12 _____
13 _____	14 _____
15 _____	16 _____
17 _____	18 _____
19 _____	20 _____
21 _____	22 _____
23 _____	24 _____
25 _____	26 _____
27 _____	28 _____
29 _____	30 _____
Date ad begins _____	Amount paid _____
Total days in paper _____	Category _____

LAFEMME (GYN/Family Planning) CLINIC:

- Available Services
- * Birth Control Information & Prescriptions
  - * Pregnancy Counseling & Referrals
  - * Pregnancy Testing
  - * Routine Gynecological Exams
  - * Self Breast Exam Instruction
  - * Sexually Transmitted Disease Information

LAFENE
HEALTH CENTER
"Your Medical Facility"
532-6554

SCHLIEBE WORKOUT CENTERS

Some people come for the rush...
The exhilaration,
The physical "high".
Some come for the social experience...
The co-ed environment, the chance to make new friends.
Some come for the results...
The way they look and feel afterward.

LET THE "SCHLIEBE WORKOUT"
BECOME "YOUR WORKOUT!"

Call about our special student & faculty rates.

3236 KIMBALL

776-1750

SportsMonday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, September 14, 1987 ■ Page 8

Baseball team victorious in opener

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

Twenty-two points may not be a winning number for the K-State football team, but it was more than enough for the K-State baseball team in its season opener against Cloud County Community College.

K-State players Scott Spangenberg, Joey Hoffman and Ron Bradshaw led the offensive effort for the 'Cats, as the team collected 17 hits in its 22-1 victory, Saturday.

"It was all right for the first time out," K-State Coach Mike Clark said. "It's hard to judge (K-State's performance), because I don't know where Cloud County is at right now and where their talent level is at.

"Pitching-wise, I thought we threw the ball pretty well. Zach (Kimball) struggled early, but we went down to the bullpen afterward and straightened that out. Defensively, I thought we played super. Hitting-wise, we did some good things. We tried to pull the ball too much, but other than that, it was a good start," he said.

Cloud County scored its only run in the first inning when the lead-off batter, Jerry Oldham, hit a solo home run off of Kimball. But that was all Cloud County could do against K-State pitchers Kimball, Jim Haller and Bill Schaffer, who combined for a four-hitter.

Cloud County's first baseman stretches to put out Wildcat catcher Jeff Hulse during K-State's first baseball game of the fall season Sunday

K-State wasted no time in taking the lead, as the team scored two runs in the first inning and never looked back. Bradshaw hit a three-run homer in the second to extend the lead. Ten more insurance runs came in during the fourth inning behind the efforts of Bradshaw and Spangenberg, who collected five RBI in the inning. Spangenberg finished with six RBI for the day and Bradshaw collected five RBI.

Hoffman hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning as K-State collected four more runs. With three more runs in the eighth, K-State wrapped up the scoring with 22 runs.

"Joey Hoffman played really well," Clark said. "He's going to be a good little ball player for us. He's a walk on but he really is looking good.

afternoon at Frank Myers Field. The 'Cats won the game 21-1 with Cloud County scoring their only run in the first inning.

"I think that was the first home run Bradshaw has ever hit in his life, that 3-run shot. He's getting to call home tonight, back to Tulsa, and tell all the folks about it," Clark added.

Cloud County pitcher Jason Cramer allowed thirteen runs, eight in the fourth, before giving way to Brian Russell in the fourth inning.

"Cramer had pretty good stuff for them, but he just couldn't get it in the strike zone," Clark said. "At this level, if you miss it a little bit, you get in trouble in a hurry."

Clark felt the game proved valuable in that he was able to evaluate several players very well. He was very pleased with the performances by Hoffman and Spangenberg, but admits that it takes more than one game in baseball to properly evaluate a player.

Spikers defeated in tourney

By The Collegian Staff

After remaining undefeated in its first three contests of the season, the K-State women's volleyball team evened its record over the weekend, losing all three matches in the Colorado State Invitational tournament.

Friday, the 'Cats lost to Arizona 15-3, 15-2, 15-11, with junior Shawnee Call collecting a team-high seven kills and junior Mary Kinsey not far behind with six.

In its second match, which was held on Saturday, the Wildcats lost to tenth-ranked (by the College Volleyball Coaching Association) Colorado State 15-7, 15-7, 15-6.

In its final match, K-State played unranked but traditionally solid Purdue.

The 'Cats went the limit of five games against the Boilermakers, but lost by scores of 12-15, 15-10, 9-15, 19-17 and 15-17.

Wildcats' next foe also to be winless

By Staff and Wire Reports

K-State will be playing a team coming off a loss Saturday night in KSU Stadium.

The 'Cats can thank defending Colonial League champion Holy Cross for defeating Army — K-State's next opponent — 34-24 Saturday in West Point, N.Y.

Senior fullback Tom Kelleher ran for three touchdowns and junior quarterback Jeff Wiley threw for two more scores Saturday as Holy Cross withstood the potent Army wishbone and posted a victory over the Cadets at Michie Stadium in the season opener for both teams.

The Crusaders, who rolled up 369 yards on offense, outscored Army 27-3 in the first half, exposing cracks in the Cadets' young defense.

Army opened the scoring at 4:58 of the first quarter on a 30-yard field goal by Keith Walker. But the Crusaders came right back on their next possession, moving 88 yards in 13 plays. Kelleher capped the drive, scoring on a 2-yard run with 43 seconds left in the quarter.

Army's Ron Herring fumbled the ensuing kickoff and defensive back Ernie Garlington recovered for Holy Cross at the Army 24. Three plays later, Kelleher scored on a 4-yard run.

On its next possession, Holy Cross marched 80 yards in 9 plays, with Wiley hitting flanker Rick Lane with a 6-yard TD pass at 4:05 for a 20-3 Crusader lead. Holy Cross recovered a second Army fumble late in the half, and Wiley hit split end Lee Hull for a 20-yard touchdown with 1:01 left.

Incredibly, Army ran 97 plays and rushed for 481 yards out of the wishbone, but much of the rushing yardage came late in the game. The Cadets scored on their first possession of the second half, grinding out an 18-play, 73-yard drive. Senior quarterback Tory Crawford, who ran for 129 yards on the day, scored

Royals beat Athletics, now tied for second

By The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Danny Tartabull, knocked unconscious for a moment in the second inning, came back strong in the third to cap a four-run rally and keep the Kansas City Royals in the pennant race.

The Royals, also aided by Steve Balboni's third homer in four games, beat Oakland for the third straight game Sunday, 6-5, and moved into a second-place tie with the Athletics in the American League West.

The A's and Royals trail first-place Minnesota by 4½ games.

"This is what we had to do," Tartabull said. "We couldn't go out and split. We needed a good road trip and we got it with five out of six."

Tartabull's run-scoring single in the third, his major league-leading 18th game-winning hit, came just a few minutes after the right fielder was briefly knocked out in a collision with center fielder Willie Wilson as they chased a ball in the gap.

"My head hit his shoulder," Tartabull said. "I lost consciousness for a split second. I didn't know if I had the ball."

Tartabull did make the catch of a bases-loaded drive by Alfredo Griffin, and after recovering his senses he threw the ball in and fell down. The A's scored two of their three runs in the inning on the play.

But the Royals, who hadn't been in second place since the All-Star break, came right back in the third with four runs.

"That's the key to a winner," Tartabull said. "A winner has the ability to bounce back."

Mark Gubicza, 11-16, struck out seven while gaining the victory and Gene Garber pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his third save.

Conference split far from equally

Svoboda on Sports

DAVID SVOBODA
Sports Columnist

The Big Eight has become the Big Two once again.

Thanks to the futility Colorado displayed in its 10-7 loss to Oregon Saturday, Oklahoma and Nebraska once again appear to be the only Big Eight teams worthy of national recognition.

Now that all of the Big Eight teams have at least one game under their belts, the once fuzzy conference picture has gained a little bit of clarity.

Oklahoma and Nebraska clearly are head and shoulders above any team in the conference.

Anyone who saw highlights of the Oklahoma win over North Carolina or witnessed Nebraska's shellacking of UCLA should have no doubt that the November meeting between these two powers in Lincoln, Neb., will likely determine who will be playing for the national championship on New Year's Day.

Oklahoma didn't roll up the points against the Tar Heels that they did against North Texas State, but the Sooners — and quarterback Jamelle Holieway in particular — proved that defense and a shove-it-down-their-throats offensive attack can and will get it done.

Holieway, the class of the conference's rapidly improving crop of quarterbacks, rushed the ball 25 times Saturday for 170 yards.

As impressive as Holieway was, Oklahoma's defense was even better. The Sooners allowed just 29 yards rushing by the Tar Heels in the game.

Not all that impressive, you say? How about adding that UNC gained those 29 yards on 37 carries? I don't know about you, but I'm impressed.

And if I wasn't sufficiently impressed by Oklahoma, Nebraska made sure I forgot that there were six other teams in the Big Two — oops, make that Big Eight.

Another of the Big Eight's fine quarterbacks, Steve Taylor, led the Cornhuskers (who entered the contest ranked No. 2 behind Oklahoma) to their win over the Bruins by throwing for five touchdowns.

Shouldn't that read "rushing for five touchdowns?" Isn't this Nebraska we're talking about? Doesn't Keith "End Zone" Jones play I-back for this team?

The answer is "yes" on all but the first question.

Taylor's performance tied the single-game conference record for touchdown throws, and the 217 yards Nebraska gained through the air were 100 yards more than the 'Huskies gained on the ground. Are you impressed yet?

UCLA's Heisman Trophy candidate, Gaston Green, gained only 46 yards on 19 carries against the Nebraska defense on the day. Strength and consistency on both sides of the ball are what separate Nebraska and Oklahoma from the would-be pretenders to the throne.

The most recent would-be pretender, Colorado, missed three field goals and turned the ball over five times in losing to Oregon. Ouch.

But just as Colorado appears to have suffered a setback that they may not be able to overcome this season, Oklahoma State appears to be on the way back to the third slot in the conference.

Thurman Thomas, the Cowboy soon to become the all-time leading rusher in the conference and a legitimate Heisman candidate, is part of the reason why.

He rushed for 111 yards in the Cowboys 35-0 whipping of Houston Saturday.

But another big reason the Cowboys are 2-0 is yet another fine, young Big Eight signal-caller Matt Gundy. Gundy completed 14 of 27 passes for 162 yards against Houston. Solid stats, and stats that prove OSU has a balanced offense.

We've touched on Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado and Oklahoma State, but what about the other four teams in the conference?

Missouri is the best of the remaining four, based on one-game performance reviews.

The Tigers also have an outstanding quarterback in Ronnie Cameron and a fine backfield with Darrell Wallace and Tony VanZant.

Iowa State, Kansas and K-State appear to be lumped in a mass and likely will fight it out to stay out of the cellar.

The Cyclones have a new coach, problems at quarterback, and are 0-1 after a loss to Tulane Saturday.

Kansas was drilled 49-0 by Auburn Saturday, and regardless of all Bob Valesente has said, KU is still one of the most pathetic football teams I've ever watched.

That leaves K-State, and I'm not going to draw conclusions here based on one game. I still haven't started to cook the crow yet. The Welch's is still in the refrigerator.

But in Norman, Okla., and Lincoln, Neb., the champagne seemingly is on ice year round. And why shouldn't it be? The Big Two are clearly in a class, or conference, all by themselves.

Final two cheering spots decided

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

Twenty-four people spent four nights last week battling it out for the two open spots on the Junior Varsity cheerleading squad.

After performing several stunts and routines to the song "Wabash Cannonball" and the traditional fight song, "Wildcat Victory," Traci Morgason, freshman in business administration and Brian Platt, freshman in nuclear engineering, were picked by a panel of judges Friday to join the squad.

Two alternates, Jill Kottler and Rodney Brown, both freshmen in business administration, were also chosen and will work out with the team to be ready in case someone on the squad gets injured.

"From what I've seen, K-State has a really good squad, and I worked out hard this summer to be ready to try out this fall," Platt said. "I cheered for two years in high school and really enjoyed it. It's kind of public relations, trying to get the crowd involved, especially when it's a negative crowd. It's not easy and it takes a lot of self-discipline, but I really enjoy it."

Not only is cheerleading not easy, but it's also very time-consuming. Platt and Morgason will be working out with the JV squad two hours a day, five nights a week. The practice is in preparation for performances at K-State home football games and women's basketball games later this year. On game days the squad spends time before the game planning their schedule and making sure they are ready.

Jim Thorp, senior in information systems, gives Traci Morgason, freshman in accounting, a lift during cheerleading try-outs Friday evening at Ahearn Field House.

Scott Johnson, K-State cheerleader sponsor, was very pleased with the quantity and quality of people at the tryouts.

"We had such a great turn-out," Johnson said. "We had thirteen girls and eleven guys try out. They all knew there was just one spot and yet they kept coming back every night. It was amazing how close so many of them were. They've all improved a lot. It was great to see them with so much spirit, knowing we could only select one. There was a lot of talent throughout, and I think a lot of them will be back in the spring, when we have tryouts for the whole squad, and really do well," Johnson said.

Coordination and strength are very important in cheerleading, especially for the men. It takes a lot of strength to perform the lifts with the women.

"For the guys, tumbling is also a pretty big priority, although not most important," Johnson said. "A lot of these guys have never done it but can learn. They played football or basketball in high school and now they're not, but they're still athletes and they can learn it pretty quick."

"For the girls, dance is pretty important," Johnson said.

Little Apple Triathlon tests athletes

Larry Mah pulls a shirt over his helmet while putting on equipment for the biking leg of the Little Apple Triathlon. Mah had just finished the Greg Barron begins to run his portion of the Triathlon by slipping on an armband after a handoff from Kelly Edgar.

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

Saturday turned out to be a tough day for the participants of the 1987 Little Apple Triathlon.

The race — held in and around Tuttle Creek State Park — included a 1000 yard swim, a 3.1 mile run and a 10.5 mile bike ride. The event saw more than one competitor drop out due to fatigue.

Michael York, Topeka, won the overall men's title with a time of 53:01 and Paula Smith took the overall women's crown with a time of 1:05:14.

York, who was competing in his seventh triathlon since the beginning of the summer, was able to defeat last year's champion, Scott Johnson, by an impressive 3:45.

York defeated his closest competitor, James Nelson, by 2:12.

Smith had a little tougher time capturing the women's title. Her margin of victory over second-place finisher Lynn Biggs was only 31 seconds. Dianne Compton finished third overall for the women with a time of 1:08:38.

In the team competition, three K-Staters were able to take the men's 100 and younger (combined ages) crown in a time of 55:20. Martin Dannatt, senior in business, competed in the swimming portion of the competition. Mark McIntire, senior in nuclear engineering, handled the running segment and Rob Wilkerson, senior in engineering, did the cycling for the team.

The three, who were defending their 100 and under team title of last year, trained a little harder for the triathlon this year but didn't follow "training rules" the night before the race. "We all worked harder on our individual events this year but we wound up staying out until two in the morning drinking beer, which isn't what we had planned," Dannatt said.

Dannatt said that although all of the portions of the triathlon were hard, the leg they thought would be the toughest was actually the easiest. "I got sick after the swimming; our runner had oxygen debt after the running portion and our cyclist, who ate six doughnuts right before the race, had the easiest time of all our members," Dannatt said.

The team members also mentioned the competition was a lot tougher this year, as most of the competitors remained within visual sight of the pack.

In the men's over 100 team competition James Creviston, Gary Greening and Rich Malloy won with a time of 54:28.

In the women's under 100 team competition Heidi Oehme, Marilyn Avery and Chris Shea took the title with a time of 1:03:42.

Age was not a deterrent to the competition. One woman finished in the 50 and over category, and the top two males in that division finished with respectable times.

Edwin Dillinger finished first in the 50 and over category with a 1:14:35 followed by Austin Allen who finished in 1:16:11. The lone female to finish in this category was Trudie Hoffman with a clocking of 1:28:37.

Although the competition was open for competitors from 14 years old and up, the best times for the men came in the 30-34 -year-old category and the women's fastest times fell in the 25-29 -year-old category.

Most of the local competitors who finished the triathlon stated that they would probably compete again next year.

"We had to come out to prove the fact that we could do it (win) again. We will probably do it again next year," Dannatt said.

Of the 177 entrants in the race, only 140 were able to complete the grueling tests. Thirty-six women completed the course and 104 men were able to finish all the events.

After 1,000 yards of swimming, a Triathlon participant moves on to face 10 1/2 miles of bicycling and about 3 miles running before the finish.

Rugbers defeated

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

Experience was the deciding factor in three K-State rugby club setbacks this weekend.

The A-side was outscored by the Columbia Outlaws 16-12 in a sudden death overtime game, the B-side lost to KU's A-side and the C-side lost to Central Missouri State University's A-side by the score of 24-7. The score of the B-side loss was unavailable at the time of publication.

"It was good for us to play well against a good, strong team like that. I think we outplayed them, but we beat ourselves with our own mistakes. We played very good defense for a small team and they had a lot of trouble trying to advance the ball on us," club president Dave Todd said.

In the A-side match the K-State squad played extremely well in all aspects of the game except for penalties. The Wildcats gave their opponents all of their points in regulation play on penalty kicks. The K-Staters didn't have any penalty kick opportunities and gained all of their points on tries.

"The reason they didn't commit many penalties is probably because they are a more experienced club side team. The difference between a collegiate side and a club side is that a collegiate side usually makes more errors.

"A collegiate team usually has to win with hustle and fitness. We did all of that today, but we just made too many mistakes," Todd said.

Kansas WWF crowd gets 'substitute stars'

By David Svoboda
Sports Columnist

TOPEKA — Approximately 3,000 fans filed into Topeka's Kansas Expocentre Friday night, talking all the while about how "Jake the Snake will kill the Honky Tonk Man," and how "Kamala will be awesome."

It was the return of the World Wrestling Federation to Topeka, and the fans — although the crowd was less than half the size the WWF had drawn in the same arena one month earlier — were ready for wrestling excitement.

What the 3,000 fans on hand got was some excitement and some disappointment. Typical, you say, from a sport where everything is fixed and the "good guys" and "bad guys" seemingly alternate between winning and losing.

Typical in some ways, but anything but typical in others. The card of seven matches opened with an announcement from WWF officials that Corporal Kirchner, a fan favorite, and Kamala "the Ugandan Headhunter," a hated "rulebreaker," would be unable to appear because of injuries sustained in earlier matches.

The crowd, needless to say, was less than pleased. The first loud noise of the evening, much to the dismay of WWF officials, was a chorus of boos, not a thundering ovation.

"Oh, well," many a fan was heard to utter. "At least we still get to see Jake the Snake Roberts and the Honky Tonk Man in the cage match."

Wrong again. After the six preliminary bouts had come and gone, the 15-foot-tall steel cage — in reality a chain link fence tied to the ring posts with rope holding pole to pole — was erected around the ring and the crowd buzzed with anticipation.

"The Killer Bees" were exciting,

B. Brian Blair pounds away on Sika in the corner as Jim Brunzell finishes off a dropkick against Kimchee during their tag team match Friday night and Sam Houston and "The Dingo Warrior" had provided the crowd with its share of thrills, but it was Jake and the Honky Tonk Man the fans had come to see.

It was the battle pitting "Damian," the boa constrictor Roberts brings to the ring and lays across his opponent at the end of a win, against the singing and dancing of the Honky Tonk

Man, an extremely poor Elvis impersonator.

It was a battle that never happened. Seemingly using the line "card subject to change without notice" from the bottom of the match list at will, match promoters once again went to the microphones.

"Due to a severe wrestling injury ■ See WWF, Page 11

Staff/Brett Hacker

Speaker addresses gender inequality

By Nancy Hill
Collegian Reporter

"Girls and boys are not treated the same in the classroom and the net effect is damaging for women," said Sandra Coyner, director of Women's Studies and chairperson of the President's Task Force On Nonsexist Education.

Coyner addressed the topic "Chilly Classroom Climate for Women" Friday at the "Focus on Women's Series" in Union 206. About 40 people attended the session, which was the second in a series of 12.

Coyner addressed the actions that the President's Task Force On Nonsexist Education has been discussing.

Coyner said since being established as a committee in the spring of 1987, they have worked on a policy, to be submitted to K-State's administration, which would halt discriminatory patterns on campus.

This policy will have no sanctions to be used against offenders, but it is the hope of the committee that the faculty and administration will feel both ethical and professional obligations toward bettering gender-related behavior on K-State's campus.

Coyner said different campus units could be given the right to devise their own changes, tailoring the concept to their own people and activities.

"We're using a 100 percent positive approach," Coyner said. "It's not something we want them to feel they have to do. It's something they should want to do, or something they ought to want to do, because it's the right thing."

She said many steps will be taken to help educate the University in ways to eliminate the gender differential in the learning climate.

Campus speakers, seminars, support groups and many types of printed literature will be made available for students, faculty and administration. Another consideration by the committee is a light-hearted question-and-answer column which focuses on the gender problems in our culture.

"The University will need understanding and commitment to gender equality in order to create change in people's behaviors and eliminate the 'chilly classroom climate,'" Coyner said.

Coyner said the concept of the "chilly climate" is a form of sex discrimination which exists in human interaction.

She said one of the first things to look for in determining discrimination is the teacher's behavior toward students in the classroom. For instance, faculty members who use the generic "he" may refuse to change to the use of "he or she."

Coyner said another concern is faculty who make sarcastic or derogatory classroom comments, often as a joke, which degrade or classify women.

She said studies have shown teachers prefer male students or offer them a more challenging learning environment.

"Women are less likely to be called on when they raise their hands," Coyner said. "Teachers also encourage males to try harder, and often offer women no feedback — ignoring them or questioning their seriousness in a matter."

Coyner believes faculty members can be easily educated because awareness is their biggest problem.

"When you make teachers aware of these kinds of behaviors, they stop because they're not doing this on purpose," Coyner said. "Teachers can learn — teachers can change."

Robertson wins Iowa straw vote

By The Associated Press

AMES, Iowa — Television evangelist Pat Robertson gave his backers an emotional charge with a call for "moral strength" and won an easy victory in a straw poll of activists who gathered to listen to seven GOP presidential hopefuls.

Robertson got a third of the votes in the straw poll Saturday at the state GOP's "Cavalcade of Stars," outdistancing Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole and Vice President George Bush. Former Secretary of State Alexander Haig was the only candidate who did not attend the state GOP's "Cavalcade of Stars."

"I was surprised and I was impressed," said Iowa Republican Chairman Michael Mahaffey. "They (Robertson backers) were able to marshal their forces."

"He is a serious candidate and this is another indication of the seriousness of his candidacy," said George Wittgraf, Bush's Iowa campaign manager.

"He (Robertson) got a lot of respect tonight from the other candidates," said Dole spokesman Steve Roberts. "He's a force to be reckoned with."

Most polls have shown Bush and Dole locked in a close race in Iowa, with the other candidates trailing far behind. While Bush leads in most national polls, Dole has built a strong organization in Iowa, which holds an important early test of the candidates' ambitions with its Feb. 8 precinct caucuses.

Robertson got 33.6 percent of the votes, compared to Dole's 24.9 percent and Bush's 22.4 percent. Rep.

Jack Kemp of New York was favored by 13.5 percent while former Delaware Gov. Pierre du Pont got support from 4.1 percent.

Haig and little-known candidates Ben Fernandez and Kate Heslop were under 1 percent.

Roughly 4,200 ballots were cast, though GOP officials said 5,700 tickets were sold for the event.

All of the candidates' campaigns had worked hard to organize their backers to attend and vote in the straw poll.

County executive caught shoplifting

By The Associated Press

VANCOUVER, Wash. — The Clark County executive has been arrested on a charge of shoplifting $299.99 worth of golf clubs from a department store after he was videotaped taking the clubs, police said.

Barry Messer, 41, who earns

$63,132 a year, has a scheduled District Court appearance Sept. 23.

Messer was arrested by sheriff's deputies Thursday night. According to a police report, Messer admitted taking a box of golf club irons from the Vancouver Mall Sears store. The incident was videotaped by a store camera.

NEW EDITION-FINEST FILM COLLECTION EVER ASSEMBLED
THE BEST OF

STAR TREK
PLUS ALL THE BLOOPERS AND MORE

THE MAKING OF STAR TREK IV "THE VOYAGE HOME"
ALL 3 OUTRAGEOUS BLOOPER REELS, TV AND MOVIE TRAILERS
CLIPS OF THE STARS IN CLASSIC ROLES BEFORE STAR TREK
NEVER RELEASED PILOT FOOTAGE, GAG REELS, AND MORE!

Not Available on Video Tape, Never Shown on TV or Cable

Kansas State Union Little Theatre
7 p.m. & 9 p.m. Sat., Sept. 19
6 p.m. & 8 p.m. Sun., Sept. 20
sponsored by Sigma Phi Epsilon

Limited Good Seating Come Early No Children Please Admission $4 with KSU I.D., $5 all others

ATTENTION

Make Reservations for Organization Group Pictures
for the Royal Purple

NOW

thru September 18.

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

OPEN 24 HOURS

1445 ANDERSON

32 oz. Big Gulp fountain drink 69¢
(doesn't apply w/Super Big Gulp)

Frito Lay Grab Bag potato chips 59¢

Lakeshore chili cheese dog $1.29
Regular $2.47

Now Only $1.49

Frito Lay

Graduates in all areas of the technical arena can find challenging opportunities for career growth at Frito-Lay, with immediate responsibilities that most engineers don't experience until they've been on the job for several years.

At Frito-Lay, you'll find an innovative team approach to problem solving in an organization that is open to new ideas — technical or otherwise. You'll work with members of other functional groups, with the chance to learn several areas of the organization. You'll be challenged technically, and challenged as a manager. Your contributions will be rewarded through high visibility and increased responsibility.

Frito-Lay, Inc., is the largest division of PepsiCo, Inc., and a world leader in the $20 billion snack food industry. The key to Frito-Lay's past success has been its people. And they are just as important to our future.

Manufacturing Engineering. BS degree required. Preferred majors include Mechanical, Electrical and Chemical Engineering.

Manufacturing Engineers are directly involved in providing solutions to plant engineering needs at Frito-Lay manufacturing facilities. Entry-level assignments provide engineering project responsibility with subsequent exposure to line supervision. You will have the opportunity to develop both your technical and managerial skills, which will enable you to progress to a number of alternative roles, such as Plant Engineer, Headquarters Technology Engineer, or Plant Manager.

Find out how you can have an impact on the future of Frito-Lay.
Visit with us:

Tuesday, September 15
7-9 p.m.

Durland Hall, Room 163

World Class . . . And Worlds Apart.
Frito Lay is an equal opportunity employer.

"CLIVE BARKER PROVES HE'S THE NEW HORROR KING OF MOVIE MAKERS"

—Bill Harris, At The Movies

"THE BEST SLAM-BANG, NO-HOLDS-BARRED, SCARE-
THE-OUT-OF
YOU HORROR MOVIE FOR QUITE A WHILE."

—Screen International

"I HAVE SEEN THE
FUTURE OF HORROR AND HIS NAME IS CLIVE BARKER."

—Stephen King

HELLRAISER

He'll tear your soul apart.

NEW WORLD PICTURES IN ASSOCIATION WITH CINEMARQUE ENTERTAINMENT B.V. PRESENTS
A FILM FUTURES PRODUCTION A FILM BY CLIVE BARKER HELLRAISER STARRING ANDREW ROBINSON
CLARE HIGGINS AND INTRODUCING ASHLEY LAURENCE MUSIC BY CHRISTOPHER YOUNG EXECUTIVE PRODUCERS DAVID SAUNDERS CHRISTOPHER WEBSTER AND MARK ARMSTRONG
PRODUCER CHRISTOPHER FIGG WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY CLIVE BARKER

STARTS EVERYWHERE FRIDAY, SEPT. 18

WWF

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9
suffered last night, Jake Roberts will be unable to participate in tonight's event," the ring announcer said, the last few words barely audible above the loudest chorus of boos of the evening.

Roberts was replaced by George "The Animal" Steele. Honky Tonk and Steele did give the fans a fairly good match — judging from crowd response — but the fans who had come to see Roberts, clad in their green Jake the Snake T-shirts purchased at $13 each, had a bad taste in their mouths.

Time to unleash some verbal venom of their own on already beleaguered WWF officials.

"You folks will be lucky if you get 500 fans here the next time," one elderly fan screamed.

Some fans even got so upset that they made verbal threats to Exponent security personnel and had to be escorted from the building by Shawnee County Sheriff's deputies.

All in all, that type of behavior is what one might respect from a wrestling fan, you might say.

But questions regarding the average IQs of wrestling fans, and those as to whether wrestling is really sport or entertainment, were irrelevant to the 3,000 fans in Topeka Friday.

WWF officials declared the event a success, noting "this is a pretty good crowd considering we're up against high school football." They also announced a return to Topeka on Thursday, Oct. 8.

But the fans, the ones that keep the WWF in the money, were less than impressed and left the arena more upset with WWF officials than with the Honky Tonk Man.

Not quite what they expected, no doubt. It was frustration of a different sort.

Kedzie 103

CLASSIFIED RATES
One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.
Deadline is noon the day before publication, noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Fions Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST YOU? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128 (111)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

$10-$360 WEEKLY/Up. Mailing Circulars! No quotas/bosses. Information: Rush self-addressed envelope. CM/NA-CDE. POLB 7730. Rockford, IL 61126. (1-15)

LATE NIGHT with Campus Crusade TOMORROW AT 10
Delta Delta Delta Sorority
1834 Laramie
Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ.

OPEN AIR food and craft fair in Aggieville, Oct. 10. For information on booths, write Box 1804 in Manhattan by Sept. 25. (2-19)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken, 539-9469. (2-27)

MAIDENFORMS BUY-two, get-one-free sale now on at Undercover, 1224 Moro, Aggieville. (12-16)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

WANT TO get your foot in the door? Come to Business Career Day Tuesday, 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Union Ballroom. (15)

ATTENTION GYMNASIANS! Budding gymnasts! Gymnastics Club meeting tonight, 9, natatorium room 4. Everyone welcome. (15)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02
FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (711)

THREE MALE students to share basement apartment, $120 month each, all bills paid. Call 537-1442. (9-19)

ONE BEDROOM spacious and comfortable, close to campus, water, gas, trash paid. $230. Call 776-0203. (10-17)

LARGE BASEMENT apartment, four blocks south of campus. No children or pets. $270, plus electric. 776-6396. (13-17)

SMALL ONE-bedroom off Denison, available immediately. $135. 776-8093 or 539-9842. (15-19)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

LARGE Two-bedroom, fireplace, close to campus, Aggieville, City Park. Phone weekdays. 537-9064. (12-16)

ONE-BEDROOM, spacious living room and kitchen. Washer hookup. Refrigerator, stove, air conditioner and trash pickup provided. Available October. $230. 537-1676. (14-15)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1983 BUICK Century, priced to sell. 776-3751. (13-16)

1978 PONTIAC Firebird, T-top, four-speed, 14,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Call 539-4134 evenings. (13-19)

1978 FORD Granada, 53,000 miles, automatic, power steering, power brakes, air conditioning, excellent condition. 539-3833. (13-15)

1978 AUDI Fox, good condition, only $1,000. Call 539-9315 anytime. (13-17)

FOR SALE, 1983 Ford Ranger 4 x 4, 62,000 miles, air conditioning, power steering, looks sharp. 537-1789. (13-15)

1982 CAMARO modified with 350 V8, four-barrel, with heater, automatic. Looks stock, sleeper. 776-6036. Aaron. (15-19)

GREAT SCHOOL car 1979 Cutlass Supreme. New tires, new brakes, AM/FM stereo. Price negotiable. Call Tracy, 776-1594. (15-19)

CHILD CARE 07

PORTABLE HOT tub business. Good money-maker. Call 537-7354 for terms. (15-17)

COMPUTERS 08

EXCELLENT BUY—Atari 520ST computer, color monitor, double-sided disk drive and software. Best offer. Call 539-1101 after 5 p.m. (15-17)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN THUNDREDS weekly$ in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home workers to perform mail services. Incentive program available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A. 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full- and part-time openings. Apply in person. (8-17)

$10-$660 WEEKLY/Up mailing circulars! Rush self-addressed stamped envelope: Dept. AN-7CC-CU, 9300 Wilshire, Suite 470, Beverly Hills, CA 90212. (8-16)

WANTED: LPN to work 3-11 p.m. Excellent benefits. 456-9482 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. (11-15)

WANTED: SOMEONE to computerize a retail mailing list. 537-0876. (13-16)

PYRAMID PETE wants you to join our team of highly dedicated and fun-loving pizza drivers and counter-help. Pay is good and the work is a blast. If you can work late nights and have lots of free time, come to Pyramid Pizza and apply today. 707 N. 12th, in Aggieville. (13-15)

LOCAL SNACK food company seeks responsible individuals for Dorm housing representatives commission. Reply P.O. 1764, Manhattan, KS 66502. (13-17)

PART-TIME POSITIONS. Ideal for interior design student. Apply in person at Decorating Center, 627 Pecan Circle. (13-15)

ClassAds

532-6555

Accessories On The Park
A new women's accessories store seeks full-time experienced manager. Fashion conscious, motivated, and creative individuals. Send Resume to 1203 Laramie Manhattan, KS

NO PAIN NO GAIN
—Firm and Tone Muscles—Lose Inches the relaxing way.
1st Visit Free

Slender You
Figure Salons
Candlewood Plaza-3232 Kimball Ave.
776-3308

Dinner Buffet Specials
M—Chicken & Ribs
T—Spaghetti & Meat Balls
W—Chicken Stir Fry & Egg Rolls
U—Fish & Chips
includes salad bar
All You Can Eat $5.99

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Shiloh
3236 Kimball
Manhattan, Kansas

SUNTANNING SPECIAL
Bring in this Ad for 10-30 min. sessions $20
776-1750

Nautilus Fitness Center
Where a Minimum of effort gives you a Maximum of Results.
776-1654
1100 Moro Aggieville

Enjoy Our Weekly Buffet Specials
11:30 a.m.-2 p.m.
M—Texas Western BBQ
T—Italian
W—Oriental
U—Mexican
F—Cajun
includes salad bar or call for carry-out

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

MONDAYS SHRIMP NIGHT
15¢ shrimp
$1 draws
$2.75 pitchers
4-7 p.m.

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

TWO TREK 500 series, 12-speed bikes, 20 inch and 18 inch. Never ridden. Call Craig at 239-9872 or 784-5298. (11-15)

1983 RED Yamaha scooter Riva 50, low mileage. $300. Call 539-2591 after 4 p.m. (12-16)

1981 RED Vespa moped, great gas, low mileage, excellent condition, negotiable price. 537-1395 or 537-3797. (12-18)

26" SCHWINN Sprint, 10-speed. Clean. Almost new, recently tuned-up. $120 or best offer. 539-4518. (13-15)

SIMPSON MODEL 30 full helmet, silver, size 7 1/2. Mustang sportflying boots, size 10 1/2. Both excellent condition. Call Dave, 537-1505. (13-16)

1982 HONDA FT500 "Ascot" with racing headers. Great shape! Call 539-9173. (14-17)

MUST SELL, 1982 Honda XR 500, new chain and sprockets. Nearly new clutch. 776-3785. (14-18)

1984 YAMAHA XT600, on/off road, many options, excellent condition, $1,500 or best offer. 776-7323. (14-19)

1983 HONDA 500 Shadow, excellent condition, must sell. Call 539-7561, ask for Reed. (14-18)

1986 RALEIGH bicycle Technum 440, 12-speed, 26 inch. $250. After 5 p.m., call 537-2072. (14-18)

FOR SALE 1984 Yamaha XT600. Excellent condition, under 3,000 miles. Call 537-1021. (15-19)

1984 HONDA XL200R. Best offer over $700. 3,500 miles, good shape, rear tire worn, new seals in front shocks. Call 539-5417 and leave message. (15)

THREE-SPEED bike. Good condition, large aluminum disc baskets. Excellent for school and shopping. $50. Call 539-8796 after 5 p.m. (15-19)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

CRATE CR-112 guitar amplifier, 30 watts, reverb, two channels, headphone jack. Very good condition. 776-3741. (15-19)

PERSONALS 18

DEAR GRANDMA, FirstBank is giving away apple computers for free. They would normally sell for $1,500 and I can't afford it but I want one anyway. Please open a $3,500 apple certificate of deposit, have them ship the computer to me either for my birthday or for Christmas or graduation and you keep the interest. Call FirstBank for details. Thanks Grandma. Love, Patsy. (15-18)

THANKS TO honest person who returned lost wallet at the Union. (15)

TO THE Kappa Sigma dwells—Where's your yellow 501s and highlighters? Can we bum a ride? —Maic and Ed. (15)

HAPPY 22ND birthday Mr. tall, dark and handsome Richard from a special friend. Always, J.S. (15)

PETS AND PET SUPPLIES 19

GREAT DORM pet—Nine-inch oscar. With or without 30-gallon aquarium. Call evenings. 776-3785. (15-17)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (111)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (111)

RENTALS 21

SUPPLIES: PRINTER/typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correct and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville. 539-7931. (111)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

EXPERIENCED TYPIST: computer, disc storage, letter-quality printer, $1.25/page. Ask for Dorinda. 537-9205. (11-19)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

MALE ROOMMATE needed immediately. One-room apartment, gas, balcony, rent is $142.50 month. Lease runs until August 1988. Utilities run about $30 a month. Call Tonia at 539-7491, leave message. (13-19)

STUDIOUS NON-SMOKING female seeks same to share two-bedroom apartment. Fireplace, balcony, own room, own bath. Five-minute walk to campus. $150 plus one-half utilities. 537-4012. (14-15)

MALE ROOMMATE needed—Basement apartment, good study habits, engineer preferably. Call 539-6196. (15-19)

RECREATION 28

SCUBA WITH your friends. Open water certification usually $175, save $50 each for groups of ten or more! Grab nine friends and call 539-DIVE. (11-15)

SCUBA DIVING 30

MEET THE colorful and exotic rare inhabitants of our unique lower world! For certification and one credit hour join our adventurous scuba diving class today! Class starts Sept. 19, only $180. Call 532-5566 to register or stop by 317 Umlberger. If you have any questions call 532-5570, act now! (115)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Affair of honor
5 Three- in Turin
8 Boast in triumph
12 Firing device
14 Fabled runner who lost
15 Emblem of Ireland
16 "— of Green Gables"
17 Again, in music
18 Part of the foot
20 Sheik's retreat
23 Pesky insect
24 Swan genus
25 Small mechanical devices
28 Chinese pagoda
29 Lake a certain part
30 Thing in law
32 Hurt to

DOWN
1 Prefix for card or charge
2 Exclamation of disgust
3 Alfonso's queen
4 Supple
5 Pedro's uncle
6 Storied bird
7 Arouse
8 "Be thou as — as ice..."
9 Rave
10 River in France
11 Emulate a willow?

13 Near and tidy
19 Hungarian hero
20 "Some Like It —"
21 Jai —
22 Kind of horse
23 Lake in Italy
25 Medieval glove
26 It might be tender?
27 Broker's advice, perhaps
29 Anagram for sea
31 It's often the limit
33 Irish port
34 Like notebook binding
36 Guinness
37 Political contest
38 Black
39 Actress Kellon
40 River in Asia
43 Greek peak
44 Ending for urban
45 Food fish
46 Malay isthmus

SORRY, UNABLE TO SUPPLY MONDAY'S ANSWERS.

CRYPTOQUIP
3-16
V T E G T V R E G Z L A M
B E A A B Z V M U M U V K U G T F
" B Z A K V R L Z F "
Saturday's Cryptoquip: THE BUOY BUILDER, AFTER A FIGHT, USUALLY HARBORS A GRUDGE.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: B equals L

Willard's chandeliers shine Custodial services clean fixtures

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

It's a dirty job, but somebody's gotta do it.
Cleaning chandeliers was not what Connie Jackson had in mind when she started working for custodial services in Willard Hall last spring. But after she received the job of training assistant, and was told that Willard was "her building," she decided that the chandeliers needed cleaning.

The chandeliers, which were put up when Willard was constructed in 1938, hadn't been cleaned since they were hung.
"God, those things were scuzzy. They were green," Jackson said. "I thought it'd be nice to shine 'em up."

What started as a simple shine-up, however, turned out to be a large scale cleaning project. Jackson and several other custodial employees decided not only to clean the seven brass chandeliers on the inside of the building, but also the 11 copper and bronze light fixtures on the outside of the building.

They started the project last April and are still cleaning.

After starting on the third floor with the first chandelier, they realized that it was not going to be an easy task. Besides weighing a lot, (a small chandelier weighs 50 pounds and a large one 100-110 pounds), the workers discovered that the chandeliers had to be taken apart, piece by piece, in order to clean them.

"We didn't know there were that many pieces until we started taking them apart," Jackson said.

The first step in cleaning the chandeliers is to soak them in a solution of sodium bisulfate and water. This is called brass pickling. Jackson said they got the solution from Elliott Pujol, professor of art.

"He dipped the first two for us, and then gave us the solution," Jackson said.

William G. Fateley, professor of chemistry, then helped the workers set up the necessary facilities in Willard to complete the cleaning. This includes scrubbing the chandeliers with a different solution after the pickling, then rinsing them in baking soda and water.

Next the chandeliers are taken to Lakins Antique Metal Polishing, 2040 Fort Riley Blvd., for a coat of lacquer. The chandeliers are then brought back to Willard for an application of paste wax, and rewired before being hung again.

As much work as it is, Jackson said she thinks it is worth it.

"I think they're beautiful," she said. "Just to see the results is nice."

Jackson said many students and professors have noticed the chandeliers and complimented on them. Kenneth J. Klabunde, head of the chemistry department, also came to look at them.

"We're still waiting for President Wefald," Jackson said.

To mark the completion of the cleaning of the first chandelier, Jackson and the others placed a card inside the chandelier with the names of all those who helped, the date, and a few words to summarize their feelings upon completion.

The card reads, "We'll never ever do this again."

Staff/Andy Nelson

Connie Jackson, custodial services training assistant, polishes a brass chandelier that hangs in Willard Hall. Jackson began cleaning the chandeliers, which were hung in 1938, last spring.

68 death row inmates executed since 1977, government reports

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — One out of every 42 death row inmates has been executed in the decade since the Supreme Court reinstated capital punishment, the federal government reported Sunday.

There were 2,839 convicts under a death sentence from 1977 to 1986 and 68 of them were executed, including 18 last year, the Bureau of Justice Statistics said. There have been more than 200,000 murders in the past decade.

Since 1977, one-third of the offenders on death row carried out successful court appeals or obtained commutations of their sentences, and 41 died while awaiting execution. A total of 1,781 inmates were on death row at the end of last year, including 18 women.

Of those under a death sentence in the past decade, some 2.4 percent were executed, including 2.7 percent of the white offenders and 2 percent of the blacks. At the end of last year, 57 percent of those on death row were white, 42 percent black and 1 percent were American Indians or Asian-Americans.

More than 60 percent of those awaiting execution are being held in the South, 17 percent are in the West, 15 percent in the Midwest and 5 percent in the Northeast.

Among the 68 executed since 1977, it took an average of six years and four months from the time the sentence was imposed until it was carried out. For the 18 executed last year, the average time spent awaiting execution was seven years and two months.

Last year, 10 inmates were executed in Texas, three in Florida and one each in Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

A total of 297 people was sentenced to death in 1986, while 64 had their death sentences vacated or commuted.

At the end of last year, 254 condemned inmates were being held in Florida prisons, more than any other state. Texas had 236 convicts facing the death penalty, California had 176, Georgia 111 and Illinois 101.

As of last Dec. 31, the death penalty was authorized in 37 states and by federal statute. The last federal execution was in 1963.

Record SALE

September 14-26

k-state union bookstore

ATTENTION!

Due to a production error, a few of the '87-'88 Programmers have the pages 65-80 missing. Please check your Programmer. If yours is not complete, please bring it to the Activities Center, K-State Union 3rd floor, Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. It will be fixed and returned to you the following day. (Monday if turned in Friday) Corrections will be made through September 30. Thank you for your support and we regret any inconvenience this has caused.

k-state union upc promotions

UPC UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

k-state union upc outdoor rec.

Join ORC for Outdoor Awareness Day!
Wednesday, Sept. 16,
10 a.m.-3p.m.
Union Pedestrian Island

Learn about the outdoor businesses, organizations and trips offered in the Manhattan area.

Experience Rappelling

Tuttle Creek Lake
September 26 or 27
Information Meeting:
Sept. 15, Union Rm. 207,
7:00 p.m.
Cost: $7

Silent Film Special: "The Golden Age of Comedy" "The Cure"

With an obvious love for his subject, director Robert Youngson has compiled a wonderfully funny tribute to the great silent comedies. Featured are scenes by Laurel and Hardy, Will Rogers, Jean Harlow, Carole Lombard, Ben Turpin and the Keystone Cops. To complement this film is a silent Charlie Chaplin short called "The Cure". Today and tomorrow, 7 p.m. Forum Hall. $1.75

k-state union upc kaleidoscope

This British film takes a group of 7-year-olds from a variety of economic and social backgrounds and watches them grow from childhood, to adolescence, to young adulthood. Wednesday 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall; Thursday 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre; 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall. $1.75

REMARKABLE! FUNNY, ENTERTAINING, WARM AND RIVETING... To see a movie like this makes you re-evaluate everybody you know and what you think about them...WE LOVED IT!
—Sneel & Ebert: AT THE MOVIES

DIRECTED BY MICHAEL APTED
28 UP
A FIRST RUN FEATURE'S RELEASE

Have some bare walls to fill? Come and browse at UPC Art Rentals today and tomorrow. Choose from over 150 different framed pieces of artwork - all styles and types including laser photographs.

Ceramic Sculpture
by Jeaneane Johnson

Today through
September 25

k-state union upc arts

Opus Band Competition S.M. Hanson Music
September 25, 1987
KSU Union north lawn

Watch bands compete for cash prizes!

Night Shift

They could be called the swing shift, but not much is swinging between midnight and the early-morning hours. See Page 7.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with showers and thunderstorms likely, high in upper 70s.

Lincoln State's Charles Bledsoe, Steve Henson and Coach Lon Kruger spent a week in August representing the Big Eight in China. See Page 9.

Tuesday
September 15, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 16

Kansas State Collegian

Writing home

Tammy Trabue, senior in graphic design, writes a letter home while sitting in Memorial Stadium Monday afternoon. Trabue said she was enjoying the weather and writing a letter instead of working on a term paper she needed to be doing.

Dole resigns Cabinet job

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Elizabeth Dole announced Monday she is resigning as transportation secretary and plans to "do everything I can" to help her husband, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., win the presidency next year. After meeting with President Reagan for nearly 15 minutes, Elizabeth told reporters she will leave the Cabinet Oct. 1 and begin full-time campaigning for her husband with a 12-state swing through the South. "I want to be a major part in the campaign and do everything I can to be helpful," she said.

Some Dole strategists have been pushing for weeks to get Elizabeth, an energetic and popular campaigner, more actively involved. She has been one of the most sought-after speakers in the Reagan Cabinet and in recent months has spent much of her time on the road. Dole is expected to declare his candidacy later this year.

At times, Elizabeth has been considered possible vice-presidential timber, and during the 1984 Republican convention, there was some talk — sometimes only half in jest — of a

"Dole-Dole" ticket.

"I've been for a Dole-Dole ticket just for economy purposes," the senator sometimes joked in speeches. "We could have one house, one limousine and one airplane."

In Wisconsin, Vice President George Bush said he wasn't worried about Elizabeth's campaigning skills. "Listen, have you met my wife? She's good, she's tough, she's able. I have a secret weapon myself," Bush told reporters.

In a letter to Reagan, Elizabeth said the decision to leave the Cabinet came "after considerable soul-searching" but added that "the need to elect a successor who can build on your administration's remarkable record of achievement has persuaded me to leave office at this time."

Reagan called Elizabeth "invaluable" but said he understood why she was leaving.

Her departure creates a major Cabinet vacancy with only 16 months left in Reagan's term.

The Transportation Department has been in the spotlight amid rising complaints from airline travelers and concerns about air safety. Her resignation — sometimes only half in jest — of a

■ See DOLE, Page 12

Lack of faculty threatens business college

By Dana Brummett
Collegian Reporter

Budget cuts prevent future hiring

An increasing number of students coupled with an insufficient number of faculty are threatening programs in the College of Business Administration, according to an official with the college.

David Andrus, assistant dean and director of graduate studies for the college, said an increase in faculty is needed to preserve the level of the programs.

"We don't have enough faculty to teach both the undergraduate and graduate programs," Andrus said. "We either need more faculty or to reduce the size of the program."

Andrus said the college is faced with budget cuts that won't allow for more faculty.

"We need three new faculty members to teach our management classes and three for our finance classes. Those are our most critical areas," Andrus said. "But we also need two in our accounting department and two in the marketing department."

He believes the lack of faculty will affect classroom instruction.

"The graduates write a large number of term papers and case studies, and their exams are mostly essay, which calls for a large amount of consultation outside of class between faculty and students," Andrus said. "All of this will have to be eliminated in order to accommodate the large student-faculty ratio."

Andrus said exams would likely change to a multiple choice format rather than essay.

There are 191 students enrolled in the Master of Business Administration program, an increase from 42 in the fall of 1984, and Andrus said he projects about 230 in the fall of 1988.

"We run the risk of losing the faculty we already have because of the pressure of teaching too many students in the class," Andrus said. "All faculty members teach more than one class, do research, and many are involved in public service projects, so their time outside of class is very limited."

He also said faculty members are underpaid in comparison with other Big Eight schools. That, he said, makes it difficult to retain faculty.

Don Hoyt, director of planning and evaluation services, agrees with Andrus that the graduate program is growing, but he doesn't think the student-faculty ratio is out of proportion.

"It's misleading to talk about the number of students who are majoring in business with the number of faculty because many of the freshmen in the College of Business Administration will be taking some of their classes in the College of Arts and Sciences," Hoyt said.

Hoyt said that to figure the student-faculty ratio for a college, the number of full-time students is divided by 30, because that is the average number of hours most students take each year. And then that number is divided by the number of full-time faculty members.

He said the student-faculty ratio will differ in every college because the demands vary widely from college to college.

"Take for example the College of Veterinary Medicine. (It) is only supposed to have four students per faculty. The more specialized fields need more one-to-one contact between students and faculty," Hoyt said.

"We definitely want a much larger program because we want to lead the way in increasing enrollment at the University, but with adequate faculty resources," Andrus said.

"Some preferential treatment is given to some colleges," Hoyt said. "For example, President (Jon) Wefald felt that the College of Business Administration has visibility and will play an important part in the future of Kansas. Last year, despite the low enrollment, the College of Business Administration received one new faculty position and three graduate assistants."

■ See PROGRAM, Page 12

Hearings to start for nominee Bork today in Senate

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Supporters and opponents of Judge Robert H. Bork exchanged verbal jabs Monday on the eve of Senate hearings that will help determine the fate of one of the most pivotal Supreme Court nominations in history.

The outcome of the confirmation fight is too close to call, with perhaps a couple of dozen moderates in the Democratic-controlled Senate holding the balance of power.

During a speech to a National Alliance of Business audience, President Reagan made another pitch for Bork, saying that "too often character assassination has replaced debate in principle here in Washington."

"Destroy someone's reputation and you don't have to talk about what he stands for," Reagan said. "Well, I hope Judge Bork's critics will be candid about why they oppose him and not fabricate excuses for attacking him personally. That way, we can have a full and open debate on an important constitutional principle, and when the votes are counted, America will win."

The principle that Reagan was referring to was Bork's belief that "laws should govern our country, and if you want them changed, you should convince the elected legislatures to change them, not unelected judges. This doctrine of judicial restraint shouldn't be controversial in our democracy, but it is."

The American Civil Liberties Union, which departed from its own traditional neutrality on judicial selections to oppose Bork, said the nominee's retreat from rigid conservatism in recent interviews does not conceal his real views.

"He is fundamentally outside the mainstream," said Morton

■ See BORK, Page 12

Kansas may join multi-state lottery

By Staff and Wire Reports

TOPEKA — Executive Director Larry Montgomery said Monday he believes there is an excellent chance Kansas, and at least four other states and the District of Columbia, will create the nation's largest multi-state lottery this week.

Representatives of the lotteries of Kansas, Iowa, Oregon, West Virginia, Rhode Island and the District of Columbia will meet at a hotel in the Georgetown section of the district this afternoon. If all goes well, they will sign an agreement Wednesday morning creating the multi-state lottery, Montgomery said.

"I think at this point the prospects are excellent that the states will proceed (with the multi-state lottery)," said Montgomery, who will represent Kansas at the meeting.

The Kansas Lottery Commission has authorized Montgomery to sign Kansas into the multi-state lottery if he believes all of the conditions are right at this week's meetings.

If everything goes as planned, the multi-state lottery hopes to offer online games in the participating states in January or February. Nancy Zogleman, the lottery's information officer, said the multi-state lottery will provide a bigger jackpot for Kansans to aim for.

Montgomery agreed, saying it will provide larger grand prizes than a state the size of Kansas could possibly achieve otherwise.

"Kansas has an opportunity to do something a state our size in the Midwest has never done," he said. "We can consistently have jackpots of $3 million to $5 million through the multi-state lottery."

"By comparison, the biggest jackpot Missouri, with twice our population, has ever had was $2.5 million. That's one major reason states our size in the Midwest have had trouble with their games. They couldn't get the pots high enough."

"That's why I believe it is so important for us to participate in the multi-state lottery," Montgomery said.

"It will be a direct computer link-up," Zogleman said. "Only a sixteenth of the retailers who will participate in the instant game will participate in the multi-state game."

Missouri also could be a late entrant in the multi-state lottery, Montgomery said. However, its Legislature has told Missouri not to join and its legislative oversight committee was deciding today whether to allow the Missouri lottery to join despite the opposition.

New York's Legislature recently adjourned without enacting legislation authorizing its lottery to join the multi-state organization. But it is supposed to consider the issue again when it reconvenes in December.

Illinois, another state which could join the multi-state lottery, has received legislative authorization to join but has decided to wait and see what New York does, Montgomery said.

"I think at this point the prospects are excellent that the states will proceed (with the multi-state lottery)."

—Larry Montgomery

The Kansas director said he sees advantages to having the group of smaller states go ahead and start the multi-state lottery without the big states.

"First, it gives all of the states about the same odds (for having someone from one of those states win), and it allows us to design a game that's in everyone's interest," he said.

"Also, it provides a new game for these states, and if the big states join later it raises the size of the pots in the multi-state lottery and rekindles interest in it."

The Kansas Lottery, created by the 1987 Legislature after voters approved it last November, hopes to begin selling its first instant-win tickets this fall, but it has not set a specific date.

Zogleman said the startup date is likely to be sometime in the last half of October and could be set when the Lottery Commission holds its next meeting Sept. 24.

Gov. Mike Hayden presented the first provisional certificate to a Hutchinson retailer Saturday to sell tickets for the Kansas Lottery. That certificate, which becomes permanent once the retailer passes a background check related to financial responsibility, security and integrity, went to Checkpoint Budget Fuel Stop in Hutchinson.

About 1,400 retailers already have applied to sell lottery tickets and hundreds more are expected to apply. The lottery sent application forms to another 5,000 retailers last week.

Zogleman said at least 2,000 retailers are expected to be signed up to sell the instant-win tickets when the lottery is launched in late October.

■ See LOTTERY, Page 12

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Prescription refunds planned

WASHINGTON — G.D. Searle & Co. said Monday it will refund to patients their out-of-pocket costs for prescription drugs that do not achieve the desired outcome.

"The refund applies if for any reason the doctor is not satisfied with the results," said Dr. Sheldon Gilgore, chief executive officer of the pharmaceutical company. "It's unconditional."

Searle distributes more than 20 drugs in the United States, including birth control pills and products to fight hypertension, angina, infections, asthma and diarrhea.

Under the so-called "patient promise" effective Monday, refunds are available if a drug does not work, has undesirable side effects, causes an allergic reaction, or creates any other problem.

The doctor and patient fill out a business reply card and return it to Searle along with a receipt for the most recent prescription and the remaining medicine, if there is any. Searle will pay the postage and refund the patient's out-of-pocket cost for that prescription.

Gilgore said the program is unprecedented so there is no way to tell how much it will cost the company.

Billboard to honor pop artist

PITTSBURGH — The late pop artist Andy Warhol is being honored with a 14-by-48-foot billboard done in his style that features four Warhol faces and the words "Pittsburgh Remembers Andy Warhol, 1928-1987."

Warhol, whose real name was Andrew Warhola, was born in nearby McKeesport and died in February in New York City following gall bladder surgery. He is buried in a suburban Pittsburgh cemetery.

The tribute was produced by Pittsburgh billboard artist Greg Puchalski. His employer, Patrick Media Group Inc., provided the space and may donate the work to a museum, said art director Ron Senovich.

Warhol "was able to produce art with a sense of humor, and he had a knack of taking something out of context and making it work," Puchalski said.

He said Warhol's brother, Paul Warhola, called and said he liked the billboard. "That was a nice surprise," Puchalski said.

Actress Fawcett may marry

NEW YORK — Actress Farrah Fawcett says a trip down the aisle with longtime live-in lover Ryan O'Neill is a definite possibility.

"Marriage is sounding better to me," Fawcett said in an interview in the October issue of McCall's magazine.

"We're at a place in our lives where we don't have to do it for our parents; we don't have to do it for any reason except that we want to," she said.

She and O'Neill have a 2½-year-old son, Redmond, and more children may also be in her future. "I think it would be better for Redmond...to have a sibling."

Fawcett, 40, who captured the public's eye as one of television's "Charlie's Angels" but made a name for herself in dramas like "The Burning Bed," "Extremities," and "Murder in Texas," admits she's uncomfortable with the attention she attracts.

"There are people who are comfortable walking into a room, giving off an image and saying, 'Look at me!' I don't have that attitude," she said. "I like to sneak in and sit down."

Mama was wrong, Bancroft says

NEW YORK — After 23 years of marriage to actor-writer-producer Mel Brooks, actress Anne Bancroft says mama couldn't have been more wrong.

"When I brought Mel home (for the first time), my mother said, 'You could do better,'" Bancroft says in an interview in the October Ladies Home Journal. "We still laugh about that."

But the actress who has won Tony awards for "The Miracle Worker" and "Two for the Seesaw" says there's nothing funny about the intensity of their relationship.

"When I hear Mel's key in the lock, my heart flutters. He's such a party. Remember when you were a kid and company was coming. That's what it's like," she said.

"I don't understand it. There's a mirror by the front door and I can see it's not Robert Redford coming home for dinner. I see a funny-looking little man — and it makes my heart flutter."

Royalty caught speeding

NEWBURY, England — Capt. Mark Phillips, Queen Elizabeth II's son-in-law, pleaded guilty Monday to breaking the speed limit by driving more than 100 mph.

Phillips, husband of Princess Anne, made the admission plus an apology in a letter to a magistrates court at Newbury, 60 miles west of London.

Phillips, 38, was charged July 28 with driving 103.6 mph on a highway where the limit is 70 mph.

He did not appear at the hearing, and Magistrate Michael Druce adjourned the case until Sept. 30, saying the court would have to consider withdrawing his driving license.

Severe storm hits Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A severe storm darkened skies in the Kansas City area Monday afternoon, dumping rain and golf ball-sized hail and knocking out power to more than 20,000 Kansas City Power & Light customers.

Winds clocked at up to 70 mph tore part of a roof from a building, police said. Police had other reports of wind damage, but no injuries.

Airplanes were overturned at the Downtown Airport, and many flights were delayed at Kansas City International Airport, officials said.

Rain reduced visibility to near zero, slowing traffic to a crawl during the height of the storm about 2 p.m. More than half the city's traffic signals were malfunctioning in the wake of the storm, according to the Board of Public Utilities.

"There's quite a bit of wind out there, and that alone can create a lot of outages," said Vic Poirier, a spokesman for Kansas City Power & Light Co.

Fischer quintuplets turn 24

ABERDEEN, S.D. — The Fischers, America's first surviving quintuplets, marked their 24th birthday Monday.

Mary Ann, Mary Magdalene, Mary Catherine, Mary Margaret and James Andrew were born Sept. 14, 1963, to Mary Ann and Andrew Fischer.

Mary Fischer said Monday she loved all 11 of her children and there was plenty of love in her family.

However, she told KKAA radio that all the public attention they received made life hard for children and parents alike. The couple divorced in 1980.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ENTRY FORMS for the 1987 Oozeball Tournament are available at the Hollis House and the Information Desk in the Union. Deadline for registration is Friday, Sept. 18.

APPLICATIONS for the Montar Board Scholarship are available in the Union Activities Center and are due Sept. 19.

TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATIONS for sophomores in all majors may be picked up in the Dean's office in Eisenhower Hall. Packets will be available until Oct. 2.

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "On The Verge" by Eric Overmeyer at 8 p.m. on Sept. 24-26, 30 and Oct. 1-3 at Nichols Theatre.

TODAY

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8:15 p.m. at the Lambda Chi house.

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH meets at 6:30 p.m. at the south end of City Park for pizza. Everyone is welcome.

GERMAN TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

ASSOCIATION OF RESIDENCE HALLS KSUARH general meeting at 7:30 p.m. in Edwards Hall.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATORS meet at 7 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

BLOCK AND BRIDLE officers meet at 7 p.m. in Umberger at Williams Auditorium. There will also be a regular meeting at 7:30 p.m.

COLLEGE OF HUMAN ECOLOGY public lecture at 7:30 p.m. in Justin 109. The topic is about becoming an entrepreneur.

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

GOLDEN KEY HONOR SOCIETY meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 203.

STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT CABINET meets at 9:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

FRENCH TABLE meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 1.

HORTICULTURE THERAPY CLUB meets at 6 p.m. at City Park for a barbecue.

ALPHA PI MU meets at 7 p.m. in Durland Industrial Engineering library for an officers' meeting.

SPURS HONORARY meets at 9 p.m. in Union 206.

PUERTO RICAN STUDENT ORGANIZATION meets at 7 p.m. in Union Big 8 room.

BLACK STUDENT UNION conference planning meeting at 6 p.m. in Union Staterooms 1 and 2.

UNITED ARTISTS
UA SETH CHILDS CINEMAS
 SETH CHILDS AT FARM BUREAU RD.
 FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY!
 97FM BARGAIN NIGHT
 TUESDAY-ALL SEATS $1.00

THE BIG EASY
 (R) 7:05, 9:35

NO WAY OUT
 (R) 7:10, 9:30

CAN'T BUY ME LOVE
 (PG-13) 7:20, 9:20

THE LOST BOYS
 (R) 7:30, 9:45

THE UNTOUCHABLES
 (R) 7:00, 9:25

BORN IN EAST L.A.
 (R) 7:15, 9:25

Tall Boy
TUESDAY
 $1.00
 16 oz. Tall Boys
 $1.50 Wells
 Bar Office
 539-9081 776-6638

The Station
TACO TUESDAY
 featuring those freshly prepared crisp flour shells

$1.25 MARGARITAS

99¢ TACOS
 OR 3 FOR $2.75

99¢ HOT SHOOTERS

$1.00 LATE NIGHT TOSTADOS
 11-12, ALL YOU CAN EAT

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030
 OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

TUESDAY DR. SHOT NITE
 (just what the doctor ordered!)

$1 SHOTS
 KAMIKAZIS ETC...

$1.25 SHOTS
 WATERMELONS ETC...

$1.50 SHOTS
 B-52's ETC...

LATE NITE GRILLE
 GRILLE OPEN TIL 1:00am NITELY

KITE'S
 BAR AND GRILLE
 619 N. 12th, Aggieville
 OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

If only typewriters let you proofread your work before they printed it on the page.

What a mess!

You've just proofread your term paper and it's got typos, spelling errors and misplaced paragraphs.

Now, you can't hand in a paper like this. So no matter how tired you are, you've got to retype the entire thing.

That is, unless you typed it on a Videowriter.*

The Videowriter solves all your typing problems.

Take the most obvious one: typos.

On an ordinary typewriter it would mean a bottle of white-out and a frustrating interruption.

On a Videowriter it just means pressing the key marked "delete." That's all. Because you type your work on a screen before you print it on a page.

It edits.

And how about those bigger problems like wanting to rearrange paragraphs?

On an ordinary typewriter you have to "cut and paste" them.

On a Videowriter you only have to press the key marked "move" and then indicate the area you want it moved to. It's that simple.

It spells.

What happens when you're typing and you come to a word you can't spell?

On an ordinary typewriter you have to stop typing, find a dictionary and look it up.

Not so on a Videowriter. Spelling problems can be corrected simply by pressing the key marked "spell."

It counts words.

If you've ever had a teacher tell you to write a thousand word essay, you know what a pain it is trying to count your words.

On an ordinary typewriter you have to do it with your finger.

But on a Videowriter you can press a mere two buttons and it does the counting for you.

It makes multiple copies.

From time to time you want a copy of what you've typed, right?

Well, if you use a Videowriter you won't have to go to the school library to look for a copier machine.

All you'll have to look for is the button marked "print." Press it and the Videowriter will make another original.

And because your work is automatically stored on a standard 3½" floppy disk, you can make those copies whenever you want.

It obviously does a lot more than type.

That's because the word processing features just go on and on.

What's more, we sell the Videowriter* Word Processor for around the price of a good electronic typewriter.

And that's quite a bargain when you consider the amount of time it'll save you. Time you can spend doing the work for your other classes.

You would do that, wouldn't you?

Videowriter* is a registered trademark of North American Philips Consumer Electronics Corp.

MAGNAVOX
 Smart. Very smart.

RIP & MO'S AUTHENTIC NEW YORK DELI

We're open for lunch and dinner, serving whole and half sandwiches, homemade potato chips, homemade cheesecake, pasta salads and MORE!

mon.-thur. 11am-11pm
 fri.&sat. 11am-1am
 sun. 11am-10pm

Also visit the Back Door Bar (entrance at the rear of Rip and Mo's), open at 5pm nightly, and Saturday at noon.

RIP & MO'S
 new york deli

710 N. Manhattan, Aggieville tel. 539-9706, OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

June Quek, sophomore in architecture, assists Xin Yu Zhang, freshman in engineering/physics, with her studies in the International Student Center Monday evening. There are about 900 foreign students enrolled this fall, an increase from 839 students in the fall of 1986.

Foreign student enrollment rises

By The Collegian Staff

Although the official numbers for this fall's enrollment won't be in until Monday, Donna Davis, director of the International Student Center, said the number of foreign students at K-State is up.

Davis said there are about 900 foreign students on campus this fall, representing 93 countries. Last spring's foreign student enrollment was 867, compared with 839 students in the 1986 fall semester, she added.

The majority of foreign students are from Asia, with the highest numbers of them coming from India, Taiwan and China. Davis said the number of students from the China has risen in the last few years, due primarily to the normalization of relations with the country.

Davis does not attribute the increase in foreign students solely to the quality of education K-State has to offer them.

"A lot of the time, foreign student enrollment reflects the world economic situation," she said. "If students have the finances to study abroad, they will."

She did say, however, that she thinks the addition of a full-time intensive English program in August 1986 has helped draw more foreign students to K-State.

Davis said that before this program was developed, students who applied to attend K-State but couldn't show an adequate proficiency level in English were refused admission. With the addition of an intensive English program, the University can admit people who have not yet reached an adequate level of competency in English.

Davis said foreign students also learn about K-State by word of mouth through friends or relatives.

Business college hosts career fair today

By The Collegian Staff

More than 40 businesses will be on hand to discuss their companies and employment opportunities in their industry today at the Business Career Fair from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

"It is a recruiting tool for the companies and a chance for students to find out about the firm, its industry and general information," said Connie Mermis, career day coordinator for the College of Business Administration.

Some of the businesses participating include International Business Machines Corp., Procter & Gamble Co., Quaker Oats Co., Big 8 accounting firms, First National Bank of Omaha, Duckwall Alco Corp. and Taco Bell.

The representatives will not be interviewing applicants, Mermis said, but will be providing information prospective applicants will need.

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

JOYCE'S HAIR TAMERS

Haircuts
HERS $10.50
Includes Shampoo & Style
$7.50

539-TAME or 539-8601
404 Humboldt

PRSO

(Puerto Rican Student Organization)

First Organizational Meeting
Tuesday, Sept. 15
7 p.m.—Union Big 8 Room

BUSHWACKER'S

Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. at 9 p.m.

Tonight
Jaz Kaner
along with Barry Fiedman

•Jaz is a great musical act and he's back
by popular demand

Tickets $2

Office 539-4321      Bar 539-9727
531 N. Manhattan

NEW EDITION-FINEST FILM COLLECTION EVER ASSEMBLED

STAR TREK

PLUS ALL THE BLOOPERS AND MORE

THE MAKING OF STAR TREK IV "THE VOYAGE HOME"
ALL 3 OUTRAGEOUS BLOOPER REELS, TV AND MOVIE TRAILERS
CLIPS OF THE STARS IN CLASSIC ROLES BEFORE STAR TREK
NEVER RELEASED PILOT FOOTAGE, GAG REELS, AND MORE!

Not Available on Video Tape, Never Shown on TV or Cable

Kansas State Union Little Theatre
7 p.m. & 9 p.m. Sat., Sept. 19
6 p.m. & 8 p.m. Sun., Sept. 20
sponsored by Sigma Phi Epsilon

Limited Good Seating    Come Early    No Children Please    Admission $4 with KSU I.D., $5 all others

Dry rush proposal presented again to University IFC

By Jennifer Dorsch
Staff Writer

A new proposal for a non-alcoholic fraternity rush was presented to the Interfraternity Council Monday night.

The dry rush proposal states "the possession, consumption or use of alcoholic beverages during an organized rush function shall be prohibited by any and all fraternal organizations associated with Kansas State University."

A similar proposal had been proposed last spring but failed passage by the IFC. Brian Ritenour, senior in marketing and IFC president, said a problem with the previous proposal was the ambiguity regarding the definition of a rush activity.

The new proposal, which will be voted on at the next IFC meeting Sept. 28, defines an organized rush activity as "any action, formal or informal, to meet, experience, develop associations with, and/or persuade five (5) or more non-members in an attempt to provide the opportunity for membership to a fraternal organization."

According to the proposal, a formal complaint must be filed before the IFC Board of Directors will consider the alleged violations. A hearing before the IFC Board of Directors and judgment by the Council of Presidents would then take place in appropriate situations.

The complaint form may be filed by anyone, but it requires all pertinent information regarding the alleged violation of the proposal. The complaint form is intended to eliminate "backstabbing and horseplay" between fraternities, Ritenour said.

Another provision of the proposal requires all fraternities to submit the dates of their organized rush activities at least two weeks before the event. Complaint forms would then be able to be verified by the date of the violation corresponding to a scheduled activity.

Violations of the proposal would result in a fine of $5 to $15 for each member of the fraternity, IFC probation under the discretion of the Board of Directors and notification of the incident to the national or international fraternity. In the case of a second violation, the fraternity would be subject to close scrutiny by the IFC and the possibility of additional sanctions.

Under the proposal, which would apply to summer rush activities as well as those during the school year, the IFC would provide assistance to fraternities in establishing non-alcoholic rush activities.

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

Mortar Board Scholarship

- Junior or Senior Standing
- 3.3 g.p.a.
- Financial need

Anyone interested in applying for the 1987-1988 Mortar Board Scholarship can pick up an application and information sheet in the Union Activities Center.

Deadline for applications is Friday, September 18.

ATTENTION

Make Reservations for Organization Group Pictures
for the Royal Purple

NOW

thru September 18.

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

CONOCO INC. PETROLEUM PRODUCTS, NORTH AMERICA MANAGEMENT DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

All December and May Graduates of the COLLEGE OF BUSINESS
are invited to attend a presentation/reception
on career opportunities with PP, NA

DATE: SEPTEMBER 15, 1987
TIME: 6-8 p.m.
PLACE: K-STATE UNION, RM. 206

*Degrees Sought
BS/BA/BBA—Finance, Economics, Management
MBA

Walnut Valley Festival 16th National Flat-Picking Championships

Featuring in Person:

- Doc Watson
- Hot Rize, with guest artists
Red Knuckles & The Trailblazers
- Mike Cross
- New Grass Revival
- Berline, Cray & Hickman
- Good Ol' Persons
- Walt Michael & Co.
- Chameleon Puppet Theatre
- John McCutcheon
- Foster Family String Band
- Alleen & Elkin Thomas
- Horse Sense
- The Wood's Tea Co.
- Hoofin' High Cloggers
- Last Kansas Exit

- Tim Henderson & The Beltbuckle Band
- Full Circle
- Stevie Beck
- Total Strangers
- Spontaneous Combustion
- Neal Hellman
- Kim Robertson
- Harvey Reid
- Becky Blackley
- Lindsay Haisley
- Linda Allen

8 Contests
$23,000 Cash Prizes,
Trophies & Instruments
Contests are limited to 50
contestants per contest.

Winfield Fairgrounds
Winfield, Kansas
September 17, 18, 19, 20, 1987

For more information
Write or call

Ticket Information:
At Gate: 4-day Weekend: $35 (Fri. $15; Sat. $15; Sun. $10)
2 days $25 Specify Fri.-Sat. or Sat.-Sun.
Children Under 12 Free with Adult
(Admission to Thursday evening only to those purchasing
A weekend ticket)
No Refunds Ticket gate open 24 hours

walnut
valley
association, inc.
P. O. Box 245N Winfield, KS 67156
(316) 221-3250

This will be the BEST FESTIVAL IN THE U.S. this year!!!!

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, September 15, 1987 ■ Page 4

Regents plan would hinder education

The Morrill Act of 1862 made possible the establishment of the land-grant universities in the United States and, with them, a revolution in higher education. For the first time, the children of the common man could look forward to entering college and studying such subjects as agriculture and the mechanical arts. For Kansans, this has meant that if you graduated from high school, you had the right to enter Kansas State University and see if you could master college-level studies.

If the Kansas Board of Regents follows staff recommendations, however, we may soon see that right taken away as Kansas joins other states in placing restrictions on admissions at several of the institutions under the regents' control. Under the Kansas plan, at least four of the seven regents' institutions will retain open admissions, while K-State, the University of Kansas and possibly The Wichita State University could have entrance requirements placed on prospective freshmen.

The recommendation seems to go hand in hand with the push in this state and in other states to talk the legislatures out of big chunks of cash in the name of improved "excellence." Here in Kansas, it is called the "Margin of Excellence" plan. In Minnesota, the university — with the blessing of the governor — proposes making itself one of the top five colleges in the country, principally by redistributing large numbers of undergraduates elsewhere and becoming a center for research and graduate studies.

Kansas lawmakers have appeared concerned that open admission costs the state unnecessary expenditures by allowing unprepared freshmen into college. As the state pays roughly three-fourths of the expense of educating a resident student, it might appear that savings can be made. However, if four or more of the regents' institutions retain open admission and that "unprepared" freshman goes to one of those instead, where are the savings?

Industry, whether capitalistic or communistic, recognizes "economy of scale," meaning that the more units you can produce, the cheaper the unit cost. A university with a

Commentary

JUDD ANNIS
Collegian Columnist

given physical plant and faculty hardly loses money if the "unprepared" freshman simply fills up a class, which otherwise might be below capacity. For the "prepared" student, the presence of a few "unprepared" students may permit a scheduled class to be held instead of being canceled because of insufficient enrollment.

But who are these "unprepared" freshmen? Martine Hammond, regents director of academic affairs, said the regents staff will recommend that a Kansas high school graduate would have to meet one of three criteria to be admitted to a university with entrance requirements. The first, a 2.0 grade-point average on a 4.0-point scale, does not seem unreasonable. However, the regents add that this GPA must be in a suggested college-preparatory curriculum. This would not only put the regents in the business of controlling high school curricula, but could make it very difficult for graduates of small, rural high schools to qualify.

The second criterion, ranking in the top third of a graduating class, could essentially nullify the first criterion. The graduate of the small school might easily rank in the top third without having many of the courses the regents included in the college-preparatory curriculum — courses without which he or she would be severely handicapped.

The third criterion, a minimum ACT score of 23, would cut out most of the incoming freshmen at K-State, where the average ACT score of entering freshmen is 21.

It seems unfair to burden college professors with a student who has the intelligence to handle college work but didn't take his high school studies seriously, but everyone concerned recognizes the existence of the "late bloomer." Up until now, we have agreed that the underachieving student deserved at least the chance to succeed at the state school of his or her choice.

Such restrictions, if they have the effect of reducing enrollment at K-State, cannot guarantee a lower total cost to the taxpayers of Kansas and will most certainly increase the per student cost. Of course, they will increase enrollments at the junior colleges and will please the chambers of commerce at dozens of small towns throughout the state, who see the local juko as a means of keeping the money at home.

Then we have the periodic efforts of legislatures to place the junior colleges under regents' control. Certainly the regents would have a better case for controlling the juko's curriculum and faculty qualifications if large numbers of high school graduates were relocated to the smaller schools. With large numbers of juko graduates transferring each year to the four-year universities, the need for uniformity of course content would almost mandate course control.

Could this be what is behind the regents' proposal? It seems somehow "unnatural" for any group that has power or influence to voluntarily decrease the numbers of individuals under its control. As a telephone company reasoned in a recent advertising campaign, "Nobody's in business to grow smaller."

Finally, the regents would allow the restricted universities to waive the requirements for up to 10 percent of their freshman class. This could prove to be the greatest inequity of all, allowing untold opportunities for favoritism toward the sons and daughters of those with money or political clout.

'Dorothy' stereotype not all bad for Kansas

Most Kansans have quit worrying about what the rest of the country thinks about them and the state. Because of stereotyped images of Kansas being the land of Oz and being as flat as a proverbial pancake — even true cynics would argue that a pancake's surface has more variety — state residents have basically given up trying to crack the prejudices.

However, a "statistically reliable" public opinion poll commissioned by the Wichita Eagle-Beacon has revealed that — guess what? — Americans still largely regard Kansas as a state brimming with Dorothys and Totos.

Big surprise.

But why should Kansans be concerned about that? And, more importantly, why did the Wichita newspaper feel compelled to conduct the survey? Because, as a portion of the story points out, a good image is equivalent to big bucks for the state. Prestige and self-esteem are worth much more on the market than a wholesome image.

Economic development experts say Kansas needs to develop a plan to capture the attention of national corporations with money to spend. That's probably true, but money and development shouldn't be regarded as a panacea for the state.

Quality of life should also be emphasized, and that's one thing Americans think Kansas has plenty of. That factor shouldn't be underestimated. Too many areas of the United States would gladly sacrifice a corporation or two to increase their quality of living.

So, while the Eagle-Beacon poll on the surface tells us nothing new, it should be regarded by the state's residents as a general vote of confidence. Yes, the state has to work to gain economic credibility and, yes, most residents would like to retire Dorothy to movie archives forever.

But for most Kansans, at the risk of further perpetuating the stereotype, there's no place like home.

Hayden's 'no-growth' budget lacks foresight

Gov. Mike Hayden released guidelines for the state's budget this summer. Now, after the figures circulated around the capitol, Democrats are beginning to criticize his plans for a balanced budget.

This might seem normal. A Republican governor releases his budget proposal and Democrats complain. However, after looking at the Hayden's "no-growth" budget for next fiscal year, not only Democrats but others interested in growth in Kansas should start protesting now and not wait for the wheels of politics to grind it into place.

His budget guidelines call for spending to leave a surplus of more than $145 million in the state's general fund at the end of the fiscal year. They also allow the state to pass more than $140 million back to Kansans in the form of tax revenues, created from federal tax reforms.

These guidelines look good on paper. But if you read further, you find this "no-growth" budget allows for no growth in some important public services. Some of the increases are 0.01 percent for the Department of Education, 0.9 percent for the state Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services and 0.42 percent for the Board of Regents and regents schools.

Hayden has achieved his balanced budget — at the expense of hiring and salary freezes, budget and pay cuts and a stagnation in many state services.

Now is the time to lobby for more substantial budget increases for the basic services the state is supposed to provide its citizens. These increases should at least keep pace with inflation, and, if possible, help repair some of the damage already done in the haste for a balanced budget.

THIS POLICY COVERS YOU FOR EVERYTHING EXCEPT FOR SCUBA DIVING, HANG GLIDING OR IF YOU DECIDE TO ANCHOR THE CBS MORNING NEWS...

President paranoid of Soviets

In examining the foreign policy of the Reagan Administration in Central America, one thing becomes clear: Ronald Reagan is extremely paranoid of the Soviet Union. Our president has said that the Soviets have given the government in Nicaragua more than $1 billion in aid in order to topple surrounding democratic neighbors. Why does he assume the Soviets are evil? Why is our aid to the Contras justifiable when we are intervening in internal affairs? It seems the USSR could be helping a government when we refuse to.

The Reagan Administration makes several claims to try to justify its aid to the Contras in order to overthrow the government of Daniel Ortega. The first is that Nicaragua will become a beachhead in North America for the USSR. Why would it be needed when Cuba already serves that purpose? It seems if it posed a real danger, our armed forces could prevent Nicaragua from becoming a satellite of the Soviets through overt action instead of the covert means used now.

The Sandinistas are also becoming a command for terrorism in the Western Hemisphere according to Reagan. I would suggest that our covert aid to the Contras also supports terrorism. Certainly the Contras use terror tactics in their battle against Ortega's government. Reagan just approves of terroristic activities against what he calls an undesirable government. Reagan has no support for his allegations except that Italy claims the Red Brigades are there. That really is not a substantial claim to ask Congress for millions of dollars to overthrow an autonomous government. Our own counter-conspiracies undermine our interest in international objectives since our covert illegalities serve only to legitimize terrorists and other revolutionaries.

Reagan also suggests that communism must not spread in Central America because of the vital sea-lanes. I will grant that much of our imports (more than half of our crude oil) comes through this area. However, I do not see how any of these pitifully poor countries could build a navy sufficient enough to block these sea-lanes from us. If the Soviets would provide the necessary equipment, then why haven't they done it using their proxy Cuba? The answer is that they know that they could not succeed. Reagan is just trying to find an excuse to pursue his morbid objectives.

Commentary

MIKE KRUEGER
Collegian Columnist

Reagan also suggests that by fighting the Sandinistas, we will be increasing the security of our country. He gives no analysis why this is true. He only makes the claim that commies will be showing up on our doorstep without any evidence that this will occur. He says the dominoes will start falling and end with Mexico toppling. If this is the case, why doesn't Reagan send in troops for the 90 days allowed under the War Powers Act and try to take over the government and set up a puppet of his own?

In view of the Iran-Contra fiasco, it seems the Reagan Administration is determined to fight the Contras with covert terroristic tactics regardless of the cost, politically or economically. They feel that is the only way to a democratic and just world order. Yet, they condemn those same tactics used by other nations. The Reagan Administration says we must fight fire with fire, match treachery with treachery, kill or be killed.

If our national security actually does rest on the success of the covert action in Central America as Reagan claims, then we should just surrender to the Soviets now. The Contras have been fighting since 1981 with our help. They haven't been successful. Also, the United States is not very good at covert activity. The only instances of U.S. covert activity I can think of are the Bay of Pigs episode; schemes to assassinate Fidel Castro; the overthrow of Arbenz in Guatemala, Mossadegh in Iran, Lumumba in the Belgian Congo, Allende in Chile; and now the Iran-Contra scandal. All these episodes were humiliating to national honor.

Another problem with covert activity is that it is diametrically opposed to the ends we are trying to obtain. We are attempting to promote democracy in Central America, yet covert activity is inherently undemocratic. Because of its nature, covert activity is secret, thus the people in the democracy have no idea what is going on. This violates the basic premises behind democracy.

Our covert operations make a mockery of what we are trying to do in Central America. We are trying to establish democracies through an undemocratic means that always fails. Open diplomacy has worked for the United States before. The Marshall Plan, NATO and various arms agreements are examples. Why don't we pursue these means with Nicaragua? The Reagan Administration has said it asked the Sandis to the table and they refused to negotiate. Of course, Reagan is only asking the Nicaraguan government to leave, break ties with the Soviets and install a puppet of the United States. These are only a few of the unreasonable requests.

The United States should not continue its covert activities in Central America because they are doomed to failure. It is undesirable for the U.S. to try to attain democracy through inherently undemocratic means. Even if our security rests on the prohibition of the Ortega government, which I doubt, for the sake of democracy we must sacrifice such "guarantees" of state security from using such tactics as secret police, political arrests, secret trials and torture, and macho, Rambo-type images we conjure for ourselves through our covert activity and the supporting of the Contras.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116 or mailed to the Collegian Editorial Page Editor, Kedzie 103.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR
Christine Doll
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Christine Doll, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Callers 'care' for new, transfer students

Phone program to aid in retention

By Nancy Hill
Collegian Reporter

K-State has established a new outreach phone calling campaign for newly enrolled freshmen and transfer students called "K-State Cares."

"It's a bridge between the gap of recruitment and retention," said John Flemming, assistant director of Admissions.

The program was an outgrowth of a brainstorming session of administrators including Robert Krause and Pat Bosco, both from the office of Institutional Advancement, and student representatives including Kent Bradley, student body president, and Jack Taylor, student body president cabinet member. It was created in hopes of discovering what needs to be changed and where the problems are on K-State's campus for new students.

"We simply are calling students to see how things are going at K-State," Flemming said. "We can then make referrals if they're having any problems."

The calling, which will begin today, will be done by ambassadors from every college except the College of Architecture and Design, which has its own related program already established. The ambassadors will find out if the student has any problems or concerns and will refer them to housing, financial assistance, study skills and the Academic Assistance Center, the Counseling Center or other appropriate locations where the student can get help.

Flemming said the calling will take about seven calling days with most colleges only needing one night to complete their calls.

"I think people will be pleased to get a call," Flemming said. "Retention is such a complex issue it will be difficult to see our impact, but we feel we will add to the end result, serving as a positive influence on retention."

Phone callers will have a general script to follow, but Flemming believes the ambassadors will leave this behind, relax and talk student-to-student once they've made their first few calls to new students.

"This should be a good time to talk with students," Flemming said. "The first three weeks of class you can just go and take notes, but once you go through that first round of tests you know what K-State and college is really about."

Students will also be invited to attend the Union Program Council's "Battle of the Bands" event Sept. 25 on the north lawn of the Union with hopes of encouraging them to attend activities on campus.

Flemming said students who are not home when they are called should receive a follow-up letter asking if they are having any problems or needing information or help with any matter.

Flemming also said this program, while hopefully helping K-State's retention rate, gives the college ambassadors a job to do.

"We've really been in limbo with what we can do with our ambassadors," Flemming said. "The colleges have been great. Before, many weren't sure what their ambassadors really do, and now they're embracing this program."

Calling will begin with the College of Education and the College of Business today, and then tentatively proceed in this order: Engineering — Wednesday and Thursday; Agriculture — Thursday; Arts and Sciences — Sunday, Monday and Tuesday; and Human Ecology — Sept. 24.

Leaders to discuss treaty

Soviet, U.S. officials to begin arms talks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Monday the superpowers still face "difficult issues" before reaching an arms agreement, and the White House cautioned it was unlikely a missile accord or summit date would result from talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze this week.

On the eve of Shevardnadze's visit to the White House, Reagan instructed U.S. negotiators to present a new draft treaty on intermediate range forces, known as INF. It calls for elimination of all medium-range nuclear missiles, with a range of about 600 to 3,000 miles, within three years, and abolishing shorter-range missiles, with a range of about 300 to 600 miles, within one year.

The Soviets have proposed a timetable of five years for dismantling medium-range weapons and one-year for shorter-range missiles. "With these new actions taken by the United States, it is now up to the Soviet Union to demonstrate whether or not it truly wants to conclude a treaty eliminating this class of missiles," Reagan said in a speech to the National Alliance of Business.

He said the proposed treaty contained the toughest-ever measures against cheating — a fact the administration cited in minimizing chances for an imminent announcement on a missile accord or superpower summit.

Reagan's speech and the new treaty draft set the stage for three days of meetings between Shevardnadze and Secretary of State George P. Shultz that could be crucial to the fate of an INF agreement.

Shultz and Shevardnadze will begin with three hours of talks at the State Department Tuesday and then go to the White House. There, they will sign a previously negotiated agreement to set up "nuclear risk reduction centers" in Moscow and Washington to lower the chance of accidental war.

Accompanied by Shultz, Reagan will confer with Shevardnadze in the Cabinet Room and then meet with him over lunch.

Shevardnadze and Shultz then will go back to the State Department for more talks, and confer again Wednesday and Thursday. The discussions may be extended to next week when both attend the special U.N. General Assembly session in New York.

In a statement announcing the treaty draft, Reagan said the superpowers "have come a long way" toward an agreement and that a "historic agreement...is now within reach."

"Difficult issues remain to be resolved, including verification," the president said. He said the Soviets have agreed in principle to a number of U.S. verification requirements "but have yet to provide some key details."

"Further, some of the details they have provided have not met the test of ensuring verification and confidence in compliance."

Separately, Reagan served notice that arms control will not be the only topic for discussion. In a letter to an American Jewish group, he sharply criticized treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union and said "political pressure" must be maintained on Moscow.

building was treated for ammonia inhalation, but there were no known injuries related to the incident, Reese said.

There was no indication of ammonia leaking into drains or other sewer lines that would have caused water contamination, Reese said.

The cause of the valve malfunction is not known.

Ammonia leak forces evacuation

By The Collegian Staff

Manhattan fire and police departments evacuated a four-block area in the southeast part of the city Monday afternoon following an ammonia leak in a neighborhood building.

Deputy fire chief Larry Reese said a valve malfunctioned inside the Manhattan Ice and Cold Storage Inc. building, 209 Yuma St., around 1:45

p.m.

Liquid ammonia, which is used to freeze the ice, leaked onto the floor of the building and then dissipated into the atmosphere, leaving a strong aroma throughout the surrounding area.

Police and fire personnel conducted a house-by-house check in the area to make sure there were no incidents of respiratory injury.

One man from a nearby office

McCain opening act cancels

By The Collegian Staff

Singer and composer Roger Miller, originally scheduled to perform at McCain Auditorium this month, has canceled his Manhattan appearance, said Richard Martin, McCain director.

Miller, like other entertainers who sign contracts with McCain, exercised his option to do something else, Martin said.

"They can do that within the proper amount of time," he said.

Singer Tom Chapin, who was to perform with Miller, will open the 1987-88 McCain Performance Series on Sept. 25 at 8 p.m. A substitute performer for Miller is being arranged, Martin said.

"We will announce the substitute within the next day or so," Martin said. "It will be an act comparable to Miller."

"Those who specifically wanted to see Miller will be disappointed."

But others will find the replacement just as enjoyable," he said.

Chapin, brother of the late Harry Chapin, is a songwriter, guitarist, actor, musical director and television host.

Seats for the concert are $19, $17 and $15 for the general public; $16, $14 and $12 for students and senior citizens.

Tickets are now on sale at the McCain Box Office, noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.

You Can't Pay More than $44.95!

Complete Eyeglasses

SINGLE VISION

$24.95

BIFOCALS

$34.95

Our only Extras: Cox Coating (scratch guard)-$10 and Photo Grey Extra (lenses that darken)-$10.

Payless Optical Outlet

1210 Moro, Manhattan
537-1574

M-F 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

TONIGHT

Open To All
Test Your Skills At Billiards
Pool Tournament
At 8 p.m.

Don't Forget About
CHARLIE'S ON THURSDAY

Home of "The Original"

$ DAZE $

1800 Claflin 539-9619

LAFENE ALLERGY CLINIC

•Room 113

•20 minute wait after shot to assure no allergic reaction

ACHOO!

1. "Allergy Shots" - bring info/sera from your allergist—$10
2. "Allergy Testing"
  - a. Skin Tests - $65
  - b. Blood Tests (RAST) - $65-135

LATE NIGHT

with

Campus Crusade

Dave laughs it up with Paul and special guest Jim Cook speaking on "The Uniqueness of Jesus"

TONIGHT AT 10

Delta Delta Delta Sorority
1834 Laramie

Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ

DON'T FORGET
For your added convenience
LAFENE HEALTH CENTER
is expanding their service hours
Effective Monday, Sept. 14
New Clinic Hours—8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

•limited staffing over noon hours

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Alpha Xi Delta,
Beta Sigma Psi,
Off Campus

Sept. 16: Beta Theta Pi,
Chi Omega, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

K-State professor wins national honor from family council

By Brenda Basostain
Collegian Reporter

There is probably no single formula for becoming an award-winning professor, but at least one K-State professor has found one.

Tony Jurich, professor of human development and family studies, is the 1987 recipient of the Teacher of the Year award from the National Council on Family Relations.

Each year, the NCFR presents one Teacher of the Year award at its annual meeting. This award is called the Osborne award and is named after one of the pioneers in the field of family relations, Jurich said.

The board of directors and the president of NCFR select a six-member panel that goes over a list of nominees. The recipient is then chosen from the nominees.

"The NCFR is a professional group about people trying to deal with families," Jurich said.

He said the group deals primarily with four different areas, including education, therapy, research and political action.

When the government takes any action affecting children and the family, "We're (NCFR) the people who yell 'ouch,'" Jurich said. "We're the people who step in and say by professional testimony you should have done this rather than this."

Jurich said many administrations prior to Ronald Reagan's have been sensitive in the area of children and family, but "for the most part, (Reagan's) administration has been rather deaf to that."

Jurich's active participation in NCFR may have been taken into consideration by the award committee, he said.

He has gone to every annual NCFR meeting since 1968 and has been on several of its committees. He has also been the vice-chairperson for family therapy for the past two years.

Jurich will receive the Osborne award at the annual NCFR meeting in Atlanta Nov. 16.

Jurich said he uses tools in his teaching that might be seen as "somewhat innovative." He said he "is trying to explore the uses of media in terms of teaching family life education."

"One of the chapters I have in a book is specifically trying to use popular music with high school and college students in terms of teaching family life education," he said.

Jurich has also received a grant from 4-H dealing specifically in the area of educational media.

"I'm trying to use commercial videos — 'Sixteen Candles,' 'That Was Then, This Is Now,' — as a way of trying to get parents and adolescents to talk to each other," he said.

Jurich has been at K-State for 15 years. He received the Kansas State Outstanding Undergraduate Teaching award in 1976. He said the human development and family studies department offers a fully-accredited marriage and family therapy program.

"There are only two programs in the whole country certified by the American Association for Marriage and Family at the Masters and the Ph.D level," he said.

Ford, UAW meet to prevent strike

By The Associated Press

DEARBORN, Mich. — Negotiators for Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers talked all day Monday, stopping only to shower and change clothes, as they tried to beat an 11:59 p.m. contract deadline.

Ford workers waited with picket signs Monday as the automaker and the union sought an agreement that would keep 104,000 UAW members from striking the nation's second-largest auto manufacturer.

Ford and the UAW remained at odds over several critical issues, including the union's demand for greater job security and wage increases.

UAW President Owen Bieber, UAW Vice President Stephen Yokich, Ford Vice President Peter Pestillo and Ford Labor Relations Director Stanley Surma were the principal negotiators for the new three-year pact.

Plant managers and local union officials were deciding how many equipment maintenance workers would remain on the job in case production workers struck, said Ford spokesman Tom Foote.

"If you're having real tough negotiations, you take everybody out. (But) we're trying to make this easy as possible. We want to be able to come back when they tell us to with no problems in the plant," said Orville Spencer, president and bargaining chairman of Local 36 at Ford's Lincoln Town Car and Continental assembly plant in Wixom.

Bieber said Sunday that "job security has indeed been the main area that we've been wrestling with, and our differences there are still very serious."

Pestillo and Surma agreed the two sides still had much work to complete before reaching an agreement, but said they remained optimistic.

Industry analysts have predicted a strike against Ford would be short.

Under a strike, Ford's supply of cars and trucks would last about 56 days, a low inventory by industry standards.

Striking workers would receive $100 a week from the union's strike fund of $686 million.

The UAW last struck Ford in 1976, a walkout that lasted 28 days and involved 160,000 hourly U.S. workers, over the union's demand for paid personal holidays and wage increases.

The UAW opened negotiations with Ford and General Motors Corp. in late July. On Aug. 31 the union chose Ford as its "strike target" — the company it will settle with first.

In a process called pattern bargaining, the union negotiates first with the company it believes can give it the best deal and then tries to force that contract on the remaining company. GM, however, has insisted that it has different problems and needs a separate contract.

GM's contract has been extended until a new deadline that will be set once Ford workers begin voting on a settlement.

At both companies, the union's primary concern is greater job security. Ford, which has 104,000 UAW auto workers, and GM, which has 335,000, both import cars from Korea and Mexico. They also are planning or producing cars in joint ventures with Japanese automakers and want the freedom to buy more parts from outside companies.

The typical assembly worker at Ford receives $39,000 a year, including overtime, vacation, holiday pay and other benefits, the company said. In addition, Ford workers received an average $2,100 in profit sharing in 1986.

English phrases invade French dictionary

By The Associated Press

PARIS — Straight from Wall Street, "raider" has elbowed its way into the 1988 edition of Petit Larousse, a French dictionary that acts as a mirror of contemporary life and language.

The just-published edition includes 73 new words, 20 new meanings to words, nine new expressions and 27 new proper nouns, including Philippine President Corazon Aquino, tennis star Ivan Lendl, and Chernobyl, site of the world's worst commercial nuclear accident.

No arbiter of perfect French, Petit Larousse documents the rise and fall of personalities and words. Less weighty than the more staid Petit Robert dictionary, it is perused for the peculiarities of the past year.

Some have compared the arrival of the Petit Larousse to the annual uncorking of the nouveau Beaujolais.

But language purists might consider Petit Larousse "ralant," a homegrown word meaning bothersome and a new entry in this year's edition, right next to "raider," defined as one who takes over another person's company.

With its healthy dose of English entries, Petit Larousse could never be called "franco-francais," defined as that which is exclusively French.

"It was a good year," editor Christine Ouvrard said in a telephone interview. "Because last year we had only 48 new words and this year 73."

There are usually about 100 new entries, including names, words, expressions and meanings. This year's 77,000 entries include 129 new contributions, Ouvrard said.

"The difficulty is in trying not to make mistakes, taking only words that are in style now," she said. "We try not to take words that are too a la mode," because they will soon disappear.

Many new words this year are of a technical nature.

Among them: "seropositif," or seropositive, most commonly used to denote a positive test for acquired immune deficiency syndrome, and "procreatique," referring to the study of artificial procreation.

"Raider" and "finaliser" (to make final) are among this year's new English words or derivatives. They join such standards as "OK" and "weekend."

Among the words rejected was the American term "zapping," to describe switching from TV channel to channel, especially during commercials.

Hayden names water chairman

By The Associated Press

BROOKVILLE — Gov. Mike Hayden announced Monday night the appointment of John Baldwin of Hutchinson as the new chairman of the Kansas Water Authority.

The governor also named Marvin Odgers of Sublette as a second new member of the authority, which administers state water policy as set by the Legislature.

Hayden made the announcements at a dinner meeting of the Water Authority at the historic Brookville Hotel. The Water Authority and its basin advisory committees were meeting Monday and Tuesday in Salina.

Baldwin, a Republican who is president of Dillon Food Stores, succeeds Phil Martin of Larned as chairman of the Water Authority, effective Wednesday. The chairman serves at the pleasure of the governor, and for no set term.

Martin, a former Democratic state representative, was appointed last month by Hayden to the five-member Kansas Racing Commission. He was elected secretary of the Racing Commission at its last meeting.

Odgers, president of a family farming operation in Seward and Haskell counties, succeeds Loren McCrory of Bird City, whose term expired May 1. Odgers' term will run until May 1, 1991. Both are Republicans.

"John and Marvin bring strong interest and commitment to the state's key water policy committee," Hayden told the dinner gathering.

"TNT" Taco

Tuesdays
60¢ GIANT TACOS
all you want plus
$1 margaritas
4-7 p.m.

THE COTTON CLUB

418 Poyas
Manhattan

Manhattan Milling Co.

Compare our prices on:

- pet foods
- horse feed
- lawn fert.
- grass seed
- water softener salt

Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

What's Hot In '87

The convertible hair cut, neat and trim by day. Slicked back or spiked up by night.

Only at
TINA'S Studio 32
FOR HAIR

776-8830
Candlewood Shopping Center

7 ELEVEN

OPEN 24 HOURS 1445 ANDERSON

32 oz. Big Gulp fountain drink 69¢
(doesn't apply w/Super Big Gulp)

Frito Lay Grab Bag potato chips 59¢

Lakeshore chili cheese dog $1.29
Regular $2.47

Now Only $1.49

SOUTHERN SUN

the TANNING CENTER

$2 tans

Buy All You Want

776-8060 Must be used by Nov. 1st

519 N. 12th (next to Domino's)

- COMPLETELY PRIVATE, CLEAN, SOUNDPROOF ROOMS
- FEATURING THE WOLFF SYSTEM TANNING BEDS
- FEATURING WOLFF'S BELLARIUM "S" SUN BULBS
- MOST TANNING ACCELERATOR

IS YOUR ATHLETIC FIGURE HARD TO FIT?

If you are a broad-shouldered man with a small waist, you'll appreciate our Athletic Cut Suits. No longer will you have to wear only sport coats and un-matched trousers.

The coats are tapered at the waist, broader through the shoulders to give you the perfect fit. Available in most styles, in poly-wool combinations or 100% wool.

BORCK Brothers

1104 Westloop Place (913) 537-8434
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.; at 8:30 Thurs.

Locally Owned

IRON MAN '87 Sept. 18 & 19

BusinessTuesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, September 15, 1987 ■ Page 7

In the...

GRAVEYARD hours

Jim Schroer, Manhattan, delivers newspapers to Dutch Maid around 3:30 a.m. Friday morning.

PLAY FOOTBALL JACK

Jon Young, Manhattan, stocks shelves Friday morning at a deserted Dillon's during his "graveyard shift," which he has held for three years.

They could be called night owls, but not all of them do it by choice. They could be called the swing shift, but not much is swinging between midnight and the early morning hours, unless you're in Aggieville. So just call them the night's keepers.

They're the workers and customers of the graveyard shift. Between the bewitching hours and dawn, they work and shop while most other normals sleep.

Jon Young, Manhattan, has worked the midnight to 4:30 a.m. shift at Dillon's for the past three years.

"I would prefer to work days," he said. "Working nights kind of messes your schedule up. But I'm not taking any classes this semester, so my working nights takes the burden off of some of the others that are enrolled. It's kind of hard to get up for classes after working nights."

John Edmonds, senior in business administration, agrees that it's tough.

He has worked nights the past nine months at Shop Quik and has arranged his class schedule so that he goes directly from work to class.

"I work midnight to 8 a.m. three nights a week. I used to have another job but decided that it was too much," he said.

"I'm sure most people learn quickly that when they come to college they have a lot of things to do and have to make some adjustments. Sleep is one of the first things to go," he said. "You have to learn to deal with a lot less sleep in order to have time to do your homework."

Although it depends on which Shop Quik he's working at, Edmonds said working nights allows him to concentrate on his classes.

"It's basically time to do homework," he said. "This store is really slow. In fact, I just finished washing my motorcycle."

The night crowd is younger than the day crowd, Edmonds said. He attributed the difference to the older people knowing when they should sleep.

"During the day you get blue- and white-collar workers who want to buy the paper," he said.

Weekdays are definitely slower than the weekends, but Young said that, all in all, the night shift is generally more relaxed.

"It's not that bad. The people who come in are usually more easygoing and not in that much of a rush," he said. "Some might come in and spend an hour but not buy much. The first hour is usually pretty busy."

While the night isn't so bad for Young and Edmonds, others aren't so sure.

"I hardly run into any customers; besides, it's a job," said Innocent Aikins, graduate student in public administration. Aikins works for the Servicemaster franchise, a janitorial service in Manhattan.

Ron Kaizer, junior in agricultural economics, was recently at Dillon's at 1 a.m. to make a minor purchase: some nighttime cold medicine. "No, I'm not usually shopping at this hour," Kaizer said. "If it was a Friday or Saturday, I'd be out partying. I've got a cold, and I couldn't sleep."

"When it gets close to finals, a lot of college students will come in for Pepsi and munchies,"

Young said. "Some of the lower-income families come in at night to pay with their food stamps because they don't want to come in during the crowd."

"One thing about working nights — I haven't been robbed yet," he said.

Other night shift devotees do their shopping by moonlight.

"I get off work at midnight and I'm lazy, so I usually stop by here and get something for dinner," George Copenhaver, Manhattan, said. "I usually stay up until at least 3."

While Copenhaver said the store is usually pretty deserted, he added that a few people can always be found searching the shelves.

"Every once in a while there might be someone buying a lot of stuff, shopping at night to beat the crowd, but rarely," he said.

Party people are regular customers on the weekend, Young said.

"Some people come in that have had a little too much," he said. "Every now and then they may start throwing things at each other, but it's never a real big problem."

Edmonds' only "problem" customer was a man who stumbled through the door one Saturday night.

"He was holding his side and I just figured he was drunk," Edmonds said. "He got the stuff he wanted and then came up to pay for it. When he reached in his pocket to get his money, he let go of his side and there was a big gash there. He had blood all over his money, and I noticed some on the floor. He noticed that I was looking at his side, covered it back up, paid me and left."

Although he called the police, Edmonds said they never found the man.

Events like Edmonds' are the reason Young believes shops want males to work the night shift rather than females.

"Not to sound chauvinistic, because I'm not I just think guys work it more because they aren't as vulnerable as a female would be."

Troy Hedinger, Manhattan, places letters on a sign early Monday morning in front of Mini Mart. The message promotes a new game at the store.

Photos by Greg Vogel

Story by Janet Swanson

Club members praise seat belt's value

By Linda Huddleston
Collegian Reporter

Any potential club member who thought it was rough to have to pay high membership fees or maybe buy a sportcoat doesn't know tough restrictions until they have to meet the requirements of one Kansas club.

This club has no membership fee and only one requirement.

Members of the Kansas Saved-by-the-Belt Club have each survived a serious automobile accident because they were wearing their seat belt.

Sherry Wright, extension highway safety specialist and media coordinator for the Kansas Safety Belt Education Office, said the club has 60 members statewide.

"Anyone who has been in a wreck and thinks they have been saved from death or serious injury by wearing their seat belt is eligible to become a member," Wright said. "We call people who have been in accidents, and a lot of people call us."

Members have no stated obligation to the club. However, several give informative speeches statewide to help spread seat belt awareness. Wright said members get most of their information and support from the Kansas Safety Belt Education Office, located in Justin Hall 324. They also receive a framed certificate from the governor, congratulating them for their personal seat belt awareness.

"We're just here to pat people on the back and tell them thanks for doing something right," Wright said. When members encourage their neighbors and friends to buckle up, they have the certificate to prove why it is so important."

Wright said most automobile fatalities occur within 25 miles of home and at speeds under 40 mph.

"A lot of people don't think driving is dangerous," Wright said.

"Since the odds are now 100 percent that everyone will be in a wreck at one time in their lives, people will have to become aware of the importance of safety belts."

Wright said 95 percent of people wearing seat belts survive serious automobile accidents.

"People have a lot of excuses for not wearing their safety belts, such as they are uncomfortable, they will trap riders in burning and submerged cars and that it is just not cool to wear them," Wright said. "But I would sure rather wear mine and have the 95 percent chance of survival."

The Kansas Safety Belt Education

Office is involved with other statewide projects. They sponsor the Convincer, which is a mechanical device that simulates automobile accidents for riders.

School curriculum programs enhancing safety belt awareness and the child car seat Loaner Program, which is active in 103 Kansas counties, are two of several other services the office coordinates. In Riley County, people can obtain a child car seat from the Riley County Health Department.

The office, in cooperation with Gov. Mike Hayden, sponsor the Governor's Safety Belt Challenge, which encourages people of all ages to buckle up.

"All of these programs are formed to help others," Wright said. "Statewide, seat belt usage is now 44.2 percent. Hopefully this means we are getting (our message) across to people and doing something right. If we can save one life through safety belt awareness, then our work has been worthwhile."

Give.

American Heart Association

WERE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

Rooms have gone fast in Philadelphia for 200th birthday

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — George Washington stayed with a friend when he came to town to help draft the U.S. Constitution, and anyone who didn't book early for the bicentennial of that event better hope they can do the same, say hotel managers.

Some hotels downtown, especially those close to Independence Mall and the Olde Philadelphia section where Washington worked and slept at statesman Robert Morris' house, have been booked for more than two years for Thursday's Constitution Day extravaganza.

"Our suites overlook the Benjamin Franklin Parkway, so a number have rented them to watch the parade," said Phyllis Nangle, spokeswoman for The Palace Hotel. "We've been sold out for the whole week. It's been the biggest week since Live Aid for us."

The parade, being produced by Radio City Music Hall Productions, will last an estimated five hours. It ends just up the parkway from the Palace at the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

Mike Vento, assistant general manager at the Quality Inn Center City, said the hotel sold out for the entire week last Friday and has been sold out for Thursday for two years.

A Holiday Inn two blocks from Independence Hall has been booked for the week of the celebration since June 1986, said sales manager Chuck Reiss.

"We realized the full impact this would have on us when the ago the Constitution was signed. According to the Holiday Inn's national reservations office, the closest vacancies to Philadelphia on Friday were in suburbs 20 to 25 miles from the city and in neighboring New Jersey.

Artis Ray, an assistant city managing director, said officials estimate more than 800,000 people will clog the streets of 10-square-block Olde Philadelphia on Thursday. "In my own mind, I think we're going to reach a million," he said.

The parade itself will have just under 20,000 participants.

The influx of tourists and closing of city streets Thursday will disrupt what is otherwise a normal business day.

The Federal Reserve Bank and CoreStates Financial Corp. will use helicopters instead of trucks to get bags of checks in and out of the city on time.

Pope continues tour of U.S.

By The Associated Press

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Pope John Paul II held a tiny premature baby in his arms Monday, then denounced the "great evil of abortion and euthanasia" and repeated his condemnation of any form of test-tube fertilization.

He also reserved time during his one-day stop in this Southwestern state for a talk with the original owners — American Indians.

The meeting with the Indians was the first of its kind — a gathering of 16,000 from 195 tribes and officials of dioceses that minister to them. There are 285,000 Indians among the nation's 52.9 million Catholics.

The pontiff's first stop after arriving from San Antonio, Texas, was at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he visited three children in their rooms and stopped in a playroom to see 10 others.

"Johnny, can you wake up and open your eyes for a minute? There's someone here to see you," said Hope Adrian, whose 15-year-old son, Johnny, was in the first room to be visited by the pope. There was no response from the boy, who has been diagnosed as having an inoperable brain tumor.

In the second room, the pope took 2½-month-old Brooke Johnson from her mother and held her briefly. Brooke weighed 1 pound, 5 ounces when she was born three months premature on June 29 and, according to her mother, Debby Johnson, now weighs 2 pounds, 10 ounces. When the pope inquired about the child's health, her mother responded, "She's doing very well. She's healthy."

Issie "Lottie" Velasquez was the third child visited by the pope. She has been hospitalized since April when she was paralyzed from the neck down as the result of a traffic accident.

In the playroom, John Paul picked up a drawing by one child, examined it briefly, exclaiming, "Oh, she's an artist. Yes, yes, she's an artist," then handed it to Phoenix Bishop Thomas J. O'Brien, who was at his side. He chatted with the other children and staff and accepted a bouquet from a small child.

Outside the hospital, he congratulated employees on their "beautiful work," calling it an "evangelical mission to heal the suffering and the sick. We know that Jesus Christ was especially near to all the suffering and the sick."

In his greeting to the people of Phoenix from the balcony of St. Mary's Basilica, the pope said Arizona and the United States had been "richly blessed. As you look with gratitude upon the high standard of living that many of you enjoy, at least in comparison to the rest of the world, may your hearts go out to the less fortunate."

Then, in a speech before the Catholic Health Association, the 67-year-old pope spoke of "the great evil of abortion and euthanasia."

He also referred to the church's stated opposition to the use of biomedical technology to achieve artificial fertilization — opposition which has drawn strong criticism from some health care professionals and from couples who have been unable to conceive.

The church has not taken its stand, the pope said, "in order to discourage scientific progress or to judge harshly those who seek to extend the frontiers of human knowledge and skill, but in order to affirm the moral truths which must guide the application of this knowledge and skill."

"The Church encourages genuine advances in knowledge," he said, "but she also insists on the sacredness of human life at every stage and in every condition. The cause she serves is the cause of human life and human dignity."

The pope called on health care workers to show "the love and compassion of Christ and his church" in treating patients with AIDS, adding:

"As you courageously affirm and implement your moral obligation and social responsibility to help those who suffer, you are, individually and collectively, living out the parable of the Good Samaritan."

Phoenix was the fifth of the nine cities on the pope's agenda during his 10-day swing through the United States.

LAFEMME
(GYN/Family Planning)
CLINIC:

Available Services

- * Birth Control Information & Prescriptions
- * Pregnancy Counseling & Referrals
- * Pregnancy Testing Routine
- * Gynecological Exams
- * Self Breast Exam Instruction
- * Sexually Transmitted Disease Information

LAFENE
HEALTH CENTER
"Your Medical Facility"

532-6554

ATTENTION

Organization Pictures for the Royal Purple are being taken in FAIRCHILD 202

CONOCO INC.

PETROLEUM PRODUCTS, NORTH AMERICA

MANAGEMENT DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

All December and May Graduates of the

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

are invited to attend a presentation/reception on career opportunities with PP, NA

DATE: SEPTEMBER 15, 1987

TIME: 5-6 p.m.

PLACE: 152 DURLAND

*Degrees Sought

BS or MS in Chemical, Civil, Industrial, Mechanical, or Petroleum Engineering

MBAs with an Undergraduate Engineering Degree

Now the Best Pizza in Town Has the Best Price!

Two Pizzas for Only $5.99!

Now you can have two delicious 10" pizzas for the price of one. They're custom-made with your choice of toppings on each — they don't have to be the same! And we use only the freshest ingredients and 100% real cheese.

You're not seeing double. It's just our latest way to say that Domino's Pizza Delivers. And we deliver at no additional charge in 30 minutes or less. That's the Domino's Pizza guarantee.

No coupon necessary.

Call Us! Manhattan 539-0561

517 N. 12th Street

Hours: 4pm-1am Sun.-Thurs. 4pm-2am Fri.-Sat.

Domino's Pizza Delivers® Doubles.

Prices do not include tax. Our drivers carry less than $20.00. Limited delivery area.

	PEPPERONI MUSHROOMS GROUND BEEF	SAUSAGE BLACK OLIVES ONIONS	HAM GREEN PEPPER PINEAPPLE	JALAPENOS EXTRA THICK CRUST EXTRA CHEESE
Menu
CHEESE	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 ITEM	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 ITEMS	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 ITEMS	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 ITEMS	9.79	12.99	14.59
DELUXE *	9.79	12.99	14.59
VEGI 	9.79	12.99	14.59
EXTRAVAGANZZA 	10.74	14.24	15.99
EACH ADDITIONAL ITEM	.95	1.25	1.40

*DELUXE — 5 items for the price of 4. Pepperoni, Sausage, Mushrooms, Onions & Green Peppers.

**VEGI — 5 items for the price of 4. Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Black Olives & Extra Cheese.

***EXTRAVAGANZZA — A special blend of 9 items for the price of 5. Pepperoni, Ham, Ground Beef, Sausage, Black Olives, Green Peppers, Onions, Mushrooms & Extra Cheese.

© 1987 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

Trio learns lessons abroad

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

K-State basketball players Charles Bledsoe and Steve Henson spent the last week of August getting tough with foreign competition.

Unfortunately, the foreign competition was tougher than the members of the Big Eight Conference Select basketball team that Henson and Bledsoe played on under K-State basketball coach Lon Kruger.

The Select team placed fourth at the International Tournament in Beijing, China from among the nine nations that were in attendance at the tournament. The team compiled a 3-1 record before losing its last two games to the China national team and Czechoslovakia.

The team had earlier defeated Czechoslovakia in the opening day of games. Its other wins came against Malaysia and the Liaoning Province team of China.

Winning the tournament could have been a luxury, but losing some games didn't take away from the lessons learned by Henson and Bledsoe.

"It was a great experience for Steve and Charles," Kruger said. "One of the things that made it such a good trip, from my perspective, is that they played extremely well. They both came home feeling good about the experience and have increased confidence about their play."

"I was very pleased to see that, and I was proud of them. It was enjoyable to watch them, because they had success and felt good about their play," Kruger added.

Individually, Henson and Bledsoe had a very successful trip. Henson was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player and Bledsoe led the elite team in both scoring and rebounding. Kruger was very pleased with their performances.

"Steve was the MVP of the tournament," Kruger said. "That pretty much sums up the way he played. He captured the audience from day one. They enjoyed watching him play and really appreciated his effort."

"Charles led the team in scoring and rebounding on the trip. I think he averaged 13 or 14 points a game and 6 or 7 rebounds a game. When you are in an all-star team and your minutes are cut in half, those are really impressive numbers," Kruger added.

Henson and Bledsoe were very happy to have been able to go on the trip as they realized chances like that don't come around all that often.

"I was very excited about it, when I found out I was going late in the summer," Bledsoe said. "I went along for the trip because I knew I would never have an opportunity like this again to go to China."

By playing against international competition, Henson and Bledsoe learned a lot about themselves and gained confidence in their abilities.

Steve Henson and Charles Bledsoe were part of the Big Eight Conference Select basketball team, coached by K-State's Lon Kruger, that competed in Beijing against teams from around the world.

"Playing against a different kind of competition, I think we both played pretty well," Henson said. "We learned a lot from it and our confidence is really high."

One thing they learned is that the Big Eight Conference isn't the only place where players don't get the calls, contrary to popular belief.

"Over here, you might get the call inside, but over there, they just keep playing," Bledsoe said. "In the inside, it's more physical over there. You just have to play strong over there."

Probably the most important thing to Kruger and K-State fans is whether the trip will have any effect on Henson's and Bledsoe's play with the Wildcats this season.

"This has really helped us out for the upcoming season," Bledsoe said. "My confidence is really up for the upcoming season. I played against much stronger people and I ought to be ready for the physical play down in the paint. I wasn't used to it last year, but I'm used to it now. I also worked on my outside shooting."

Another difference between American players and international players is their shooting abilities. It appears the international teams had much better shooters, especially three-point shooters, than in the U.S., Henson said.

Kruger feels that playing against international players was very beneficial to Bledsoe and Henson, but admits that it also helped them in other ways.

"It was very beneficial in that they did have the opportunity to play against some of the best players from other countries," Kruger said.

Wichita paper goes overboard

Tom On Tuesday

TOM MORRIS
Sports Writer

One of the first things I learned when entering the world of professional journalism was that one shouldn't be too critical of other's work. My former boss at the Anthony Republican once reminded me that even though you might work for a superior publication, you have to keep in mind that nobody's perfect.

Simple enough, but this time I believe a newspaper has gone too far in criticizing K-State's football team. Though the Wildcats haven't been winners for quite some time now, they have been the subject of some considerably questionable articles lately from the Wichita Eagle-Beacon.

That's right, Wichita. The city in Sedgewick County that lost a college football team because of financial difficulty and yet its newspaper can justify poking fun at another program.

It all started Thursday when a front-page article titled "WSU football may be dead, but it beats K-State" ran. The Wildcats were ranked 102nd in the nation according to the College Football Power Index. Wichita State's power index — which doesn't exist — ranked 100th.

Basically, it was a computer error which will be corrected next week. Was it worthy of a story? Yes, some readers may have found it entertaining. Still, I question placing the article at the top of the front page of the paper. Keep in mind, though, that this is the same publication which pulled the cartoon "Doonesbury" when the Dr. Whoopie segments ran.

Then, on Sunday, I opened the sports section to find the Eagle-Beacon has begun a series called "A Season on the Wink" dealing with fictional accounts of Wichita State's football season. The Shockers will "play" a full slate of games this year with "Landgrant Rice" handling the gridiron beat. (The phony name is in reference to the legendary sports writer, Grantland Rice.)

Saturday's result? Wichita State tied the Wildcats, 6-6.

Though the article was somewhat humorous — the Shockers had a chance to win but WSU's placekicker hit the holder's hand instead of the ball on the extra-point attempt — it is a waste of valuable space which could be dedicated to other state colleges, community college action or even more high school reports.

To the people of Wichita State, I say losing a football program because of financial difficulty isn't anything to hang your head in shame about. At least it's better to lose it that way than to have a Southern Methodist scandal on your hands.

To the Eagle-Beacon, I say drop the series and get off our back.

By the way, wasn't it Wichita that lost its triple A baseball franchise, hockey franchise and has a professional soccer team that has had its share of financial difficulty. And doesn't Wichita State have one of the most penalized programs in the history of the National Collegiate Athletic Association?

It seems like there's plenty of problems you folks at the Eagle-Beacon can try to solve in your own area. Like I said before, nobody's perfect.

When everything's straightened out in Wichita, then we'll be glad to listen to you here at K-State.

NFL players to extend contract counterproposal

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The National Football League Players Association, responding to a contract offer made by management a week ago, began on Monday to prepare a counterproposal.

Meanwhile, staff experts from the two sides met in the nation's capital to discuss pension policies as the Sept. 22 strike deadline loomed.

NFLPA spokesman Frank Woschitz said that union officials would likely "work through the evening" in an effort to put together a proposal to hand over to the team owners Tuesday afternoon. That meeting is scheduled to be held in the Washington area.

Woschitz said the proposed contract would be put together by the union after it consulted with the nine-man executive board.

Sports Briefly

Men golfers begin fall season

The K-State men's golf team began its fall season Monday as it traveled to Lawrence to compete in the Kansas Invitational.

The team will also be in action today at the par 72, 7,300-yard Alvarado Golf Club with 36 holes of play slated for yesterday and a final round of 18 holes scheduled for today.

Competing schools in the tournament will consist of six-man teams with the top four individual scores for each round comprising the team total for that round.

Hitting the links for K-State are juniors Troy Keller and Daran Neuschaefer, sophomores Tim Jennings, Jeff Sedorek and John Shields and either junior Curt Fowler or sophomore Todd Fowler.

Wildcat Head Coach Rob Sedorek said the team is "anxious to get going" this fall after a productive season last spring.

K-State ended its spring season with an eighth-place finish in the Big Eight Conference Golf Championship, held at the Prairie Dunes Country Club in Hutchinson.

Conference honors 2 players

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Quarterback Steve Taylor and line-man Tim Rother, the mainstays in Nebraska's 42-33 victory over UCLA Saturday, were named Big Eight offensive and defensive players of the week Monday.

Taylor set a school record and tied a 39-year-old Big Eight mark with five touchdown passes in the No. 2 vs. No. 3 matchup. Rother, who plays on both the right and left sides of the defensive line, had 10 tackles, including three quarterback sacks. In two games this year, Rother has turned in six quarterback sacks for 49 yards in losses.

Rother, a walk-on to the Nebraska program in 1983, recorded 15 solo tackles last season, including 10 unassisted and two sacks for 13 yards in losses.

OU, NU won't move games

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — CBS and ESPN are interested in televising college football on Sunday if a strike shuts down the NFL, but the coaches of the Big Eight's most attractive teams say no thanks.

"We wouldn't move our games to Sunday," said Coach Barry Switzer of No. 1 Oklahoma. "There would obviously be problems."

"We've been tentatively approached about that," said Tom Osborne of the second-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers. "I would be opposed to it. I'm not saying Nebraska wouldn't do it. But I guess if they asked me I'd say no. It isn't that I feel you can't play football on Sunday. I used to. But I just kind of hate to see us make a pro-type move. It seems like we do everything to accommodate television now — move games to 4 p.m., move them back to 11...television time outs...we're doing anything for a buck."

If the NFL does experience a long strike, some fancy television dollars may be available for schools willing to inconvenience their fans and themselves and move to Sunday. The College Football Association contract calls for each team on a national telecast to receive about $300,000, with an unspecified percentage skimmed into a participation pool for all 63 CFA schools. There have been reports that CBS has offered to double the payout if schools make the switch.

Chuck Neinas, executive director of the CFA, declined to say how much money CBS has discussed.

"We have been contacted by CBS and the seven members of the television committee are now contacting their constituent members to gauge their sentiment. So far, I would say that it has been mixed," Neinas said.

Neinas said the TV committee will meet "as soon as it appears necessary to do so."

"I don't think we're going to be in a rush to make a decision on this simply because the whole situation is relatively uncertain," Neinas said. "I would say we're not talking about games in September. If it occurs, it would not happen until October. People can't be expected to make a change on short notice."

The NFL players association has set a strike date for Sept. 22.

"It's not as simple as it looks," Neinas said. "Some conferences and independents have a syndicated package and there are commitments there. In addition, of course, there are activities planned around games, and some institutions are in places where they have a big drive-in crowd, where people must make their plans well in advance."

"And there are some institutions in or near large metropolitan areas more accustomed to Sunday football, institutions that could attract people from a shorter distance. There may be an interest among those institutions. But at this point, it's all premature, and I don't think there will be an NFL strike anyway."

Iowa State Coach Jim Walden joins Switzer and Osborne in opposing a move to Sunday.

"If you play on Sunday and your opponent the next week does not, then you give up a day of preparation," Walden said. "I don't know I could say I wouldn't do it. But I think it would be very important to know who I'm playing the next Saturday. I'm sure you'd see a lot of teams be afraid to do it. Jerry Falwell and some of the boys might get mad at us."

"College football is in need of money," said Missouri Coach Woody Widenhofer. "Revenue is awfully important. I can see doing something like that to help our administration and our university."

"As long as they give us a chance to go to church first, I'll be happy to play on Sunday," said Kansas Coach Bob Valesente. "Yeah, we'll play any time."

"In our state," Osborne said, "we have some people drive 300 or 400 miles or more. They've made reservations and plans. But if you change your game, it works a hardship on your fans. I would be opposed to it for that reason."

Bell says return is special

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The season-opener for the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday against the San Diego Chargers was a sentimental homecoming for at least one player — Mike Bell, who played his first regular season game after spending last football season serving time on drug charges.

As the Chiefs wrapped up their 20-13 victory, Bell sought out Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts, then each of the Chargers linemen.

"All of them had come up to me during the game and said, 'Welcome back,' Bell said. "I felt pretty good about that. I wanted to congratulate them on playing hard."

The fans also offered a welcome.

"I was wondering what would be said," said Johnny Bell, Mike's father. "When he was introduced I didn't cheer because I wanted to hear the fans."

Company may market new cigarette

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A nearly smokeless cigarette which reduces exposure to some harmful substances may be test-marketed next year, but smoking experts doubt it will be safer than other cigarettes.

"This is just another gimmick to throw a smokescreen over the tragic truth about smoking," Karen Monaco, manager of smoking or health programs for the American Lung Association, said Monday.

The cigarette developed by the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. heats tobacco rather than burning it, so it produces no ash, no odor and virtually no smoke from the lighted end after the first few puffs, said chair-

Expert: 'Smokeless' brand not safe

man and chief executive officer Edward Horrigan Jr.

"A majority of the compounds produced by burning tobacco are eliminated or greatly reduced, including most compounds that are often associated with the smoking-and-health controversy.

"Simply put, we think this will be the world's cleanest cigarette."

But "we're not saying it's a safe or safer cigarette," Horrigan said at a press conference Monday.

Instead, it is an attempt to go beyond low-tar cigarettes to "address the perceptions regarding cigarettes," he said.

With reductions in the smoke compounds, "we feel this product addresses the desires and perceptions of many of today's smokers," he said. And because of reduced smoke and elimination of ash and odor, "we believe it will be well-received by those people who object to cigarette smoke," he said.

Company officials said they hope to test-market the cigarette in a limited geographical area next year, but that it is too early to say whether or when it will be introduced nationally.

The cigarette is lit like an ordinary cigarette, but the fire makes a carbon segment generate warm air that passes through tobacco, tobacco extract, flavorings and glycerine to form smoke inhaled by the smoker.

Exhaled smoke dissipates quickly, Horrigan said. The cigarette does not burn down, and remains lit for about as long as an 85-millimeter cigarette before extinguishing itself, Horrigan said.

The lung association blames smoking for more than 300,000

American deaths a year, caused by lung cancer, emphysema and heart disease. Health experts were wary about the new cigarette.

"This product is not a safe alternative to conventional cigarettes. There is no such thing as a safe cigarette," Monaco said in a statement.

"Any product that you light up and inhale is hazardous to your health," she said.

In addition, "just because you see less smoke doesn't mean the harmful effects of involuntary smoking are not present," she said. Involuntary smoking is inhalation of smoke by non-smokers, which has been linked to increased risk of lung cancer and other diseases.

Reynolds says the cigarette produces as much carbon monoxide and nicotine as current low-tar brands, and "that's a concern right there" for the smoker, said Ronald Davis, director of the federal Office on Smoking and Health.

Those substances raise the risk of heart disease and, when a pregnant woman smokes, of harm to the fetus, he said.

Since nicotine is still present, "there is every reason to believe that this product would cause drug dependence (on nicotine) just like other types of cigarettes do," he said.

Council researches plan Space station made lead to orbiter loss

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — NASA's plan to build a space station with the shuttle will be difficult and risky, and could lead to the loss of still another space shuttle orbiter, a National Research Council committee said in a report released Monday.

The study said the space agency's plans to build a space station by the mid-1990s "rank as the most ambitious and lengthy task NASA has ever undertaken," and that to be successful it cannot be constructed "on the cheap."

Using the space shuttle to build the station, said the report, would pose about a 60 percent probability of the loss of another orbiter. It said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration should prepare for that loss by planning to build still another reusable spacecraft.

"We should expect to lose an orbiter — not necessarily with accompanying loss of life — about once every five to eight years," said the report.

In a reply to the report, NASA disagreed that use of the shuttle to build the station would be risky. NASA said it has recently redesigned the deployment plan for the space station and has "a high degree of confidence that the space station can be successfully deployed with the current shuttle system."

The report, the result of a four-month study commissioned by the White House, the National Security Council and NASA, generally supported NASA's current space station design plan, but found that the station will cost more than NASA estimates and will require a closer evaluation of the risks involved. It said to be successful the program will require a long-term commitment by the government and the American people.

NASA already is building an orbiter to replace Challenger, the shuttle craft that exploded in January 1986 with the loss of seven crew members.

NRC committee chairman Robert C. Seamans Jr. said that NASA should prepare for any future loss by building still another orbiter, bringing the eventual shuttle fleet to five.

He also said NASA should do a "much more thoughtful study of the risks" in building the station and determine how many spare parts be built to allow for losses in the station assembly.

The NRC report said building of spare parts and test hardware could add $200 million to $3.9 billion to the cost of the station, now estimated at $14.6 billion.

In a reply to the report, however, NASA said the additional cost estimate in the study "is much too high." The agency put the additional cost for testing and spare parts at only $200 million.

NASA did not endorse the suggestion that a fifth orbiter be built, stating that the agency "remains confident that the current fleet is adequate to support the space station program."

Seamans said the committee found that for the space station project to succeed, it will require "consistent and adequate funding."

"One of the valuable lessons learned from the Challenger tragedy was that major space programs cannot be developed 'on the cheap,'" Seamans said. "Nor can they be subjected to continual budgeting and scheduled pressures without disastrous results."

Iraq demands Iran be punished

By The Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Monday it was Iraq's turn to demand that the United Nations punish Iran, its foe in the Persian Gulf war.

Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz urged U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to take "punitive measures" against Iran for failing to respond to a Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in their 7-year-old war.

The day before, Iranian President Ali Khamenei had told Perez de Cuellar in Tehran that the United Nations had to brand Iraq as the aggressor and punish it before there could be a settlement of the war.

Each side accused the other of starting new fighting Monday to wreck Perez de Cuellar's peace mission, but there was no independent confirmation of this.

Baghdad radio gave the only official account of Monday's one-hour talks. It said Aziz demanded that the Security Council implement its July 20 resolution which calls for sanctions, including an arms embargo, on whichever country fails to comply with the provisions.

The resolution calls for an immediate, unconditional cease-fire, withdrawal of troops to internationally recognized borders and an exchange of prisoners. Iran would have to withdraw from Iraqi territory.

Baghdad radio said Aziz reiterated Baghdad's "firm and clear stand of welcoming the resolution" and called for "prompt action to implement the resolution and take punitive measures against Iran for its rejection of abiding by the international will."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz said last week Washington would press for sanctions against Iran if Iran did not give Perez de Cuellar a definite acceptance.

TV Listings

By TV Data

TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 15, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTKA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	My Little Pony Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00		TBA		Bullwinkle Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Heathcliff	SportsLook Sports	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss M.T. Moore	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Senior PGA Golf: Paine	Movie: "Betrayal"
10:00	Jeopardy! Lose or Draw	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Green Acres Leave It to Beaver	Body Electric Congress	Waitons	Webber World Invitational
11:00	Password Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Beaver Make Room	Psychology Next Steps	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News Days of Our	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Andy Griffith I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Auto Racing: NASCAR Winston Cup 500	Movie: "Because of You"
1:00	Lives Another World	As the World Turns / Bork	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Munsters	Masterpiece Theatre	Rhoda Phyllis
2:00		Guiding Light Bork Hear-	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobilee Zoo	Mod. Maturity Living	Kotter Bugs Bunny	Muscle Mag.	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Ghostbusters	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00	Facts of Life	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons Eight Is En-	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe Transformers	Truck and Tractor Pull	Munsters Major League
5:00	3's Company NBC News	News CBS News	News ABC News	ough Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsCenter Bill Dance	Baseball: Cincinnati Reds
6:00	News Wheel-Fortune	News Truth/Conseq	M*A*S*H Newlywed	Facts of Life Good Times	MacNeil / Lehrer Newshour	Benson Major League	SportsCenter	at Atlanta Braves
7:00	Matlock	Houston Knights	Who's Boss Growing	Star Trek	Great Performances: Chicago Cubs at	Baseball: Chicago Cubs at	Lumberjacks: Champions	Movie: "Mitchell"
8:00	Movie: "Killer in the Mirror"	Movie: "A Soldier's Story"	Moonlighting	Movie: "Doc Savage... The	New York Philharmonic	New York Mets	Muscle Mag.
9:00			Barbara Walters Special	Man of Bronze	Palace on Wheels	News	Billiards	Movie: "The Savage Is Loose"
10:00	News Tonight Show	News WKRP	News M*A*S*H	Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	INN News Trapper John	PGA Tour SportsCenter
11:00	Ent. Tonight	Movie: "Raging Bull"	B. Buddies Nightline	Andy Griffith Movie: "The	MacNeil / Lehrer Newshour	M.D. Movie: "The	SportsLook Surfer Mag.	Movie: "Walk Like a Dragon"
12:00	Late Night With David		700 Club	Big Sleep	Sign-Off	Wild Life	Scuba World Racing

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

* Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.

* No abbreviations, please.

* No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.

* Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

* Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

* If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.

* Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.

* The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.20	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____

6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____

11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____

16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____

21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____

26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Graduates in all areas of the technical arena can find challenging opportunities for career growth at Frito-Lay, with immediate responsibilities that most engineers don't experience until they've been on the job for several years.

At Frito-Lay, you'll find an innovative team approach to problem solving in an organization that is open to new ideas — technical or otherwise. You'll work with members of other functional groups, with the chance to learn several areas of the organization. You'll be challenged technically, and challenged as a manager. Your contributions will be rewarded through high visibility and increased responsibility.

Frito-Lay, Inc., is the largest division of PepsiCo, Inc., and a world leader in the $20 billion snack food industry. The key to Frito-Lay's past success has been its people. And they are just as important to our future.

Manufacturing Engineering. BS degree required. Preferred majors include Mechanical, Electrical and Chemical Engineering. Manufacturing Engineers are directly involved in providing solutions to plant engineering needs at Frito-Lay manufacturing facilities. Entry-level assignments provide engineering project responsibility with subsequent exposure to line supervision. You will have the opportunity to develop both your technical and managerial skills, which will enable you to progress to a number of alternative roles, such as Plant Engineer, Headquarters Technology Engineer, or Plant Manager.

Find out how you can have an impact on the future of Frito-Lay.

Visit with us:

Tonight
7-9 p.m.
Durland Hall, Room 163

World Class . . . And Worlds Apart.
Frito Lay is an equal opportunity employer.

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES
One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.
Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.95 per inch. Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch. Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch. Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01
MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Mary Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

LATE NIGHT
with
Campus Crusade
TOMORROW AT 10
Delta Delta Delta Sorority
1834 Laramie
Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ.

Meeting
AD
Tues., Sept. 15, 6:30 p.m.
Kedzie Library K105
CLUB

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11f)
WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)
OPEN AIR food and craft fair in Aggieville, Oct. 10. For information on booths, write Box 1804 in Manhattan by Sept. 25. (12-19)
ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken 539-9469. (12-27)
MAIDENFORMS BUY two, get one free sale now on at Undercover, 1224 Moro, Aggieville. (12-16)
VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at K & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)
ALL STUDENTS welcome! Come to business Career Day Today 9 a.m.-4 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. (16)

ATTENTION!
Due to a production error, a few of the '87-'88 Programmers have the pages 65-80 missing. Please check your Programmer. If yours is not complete, please bring it to the Activities Center, K-State Union 3rd floor, Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. It will be fixed and returned to you the following day (Monday if turned in Friday). Corrections will be made through September 30. Thank you for your support and we regret any inconvenience this has caused.

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02
FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21f)
AVAILABLE OCT 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (7f)
THREE MALE students to share basement apartment, $120 month each, all bills paid. Call 537-1442. (9-19)
ONE-BEDROOM spacious and comfortable, close to campus, water, gas, trash paid. $230. Call 776-0203. (10-17)
LARGE BASEMENT apartment, four blocks south of campus. No children or pets. $270, plus electric. 776-6396. (13-17)
SMALL ONE bedroom, off Denison, available immediately. $135. 776-8093 or 539-9842. (15-19)
SEMI-FURNISHED One-bedroom duplex. 2326 Kraig. $235/month. 539-4214. Leave message. (16-19)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03
FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21f)
LARGE TWO-bedroom, fireplace, close to campus, Aggieville, City Park. Phone weekdays. 537-9064. (12-16)
ONE SIDE of duplex, nice three-bedroom, two-bath apartment. Very near campus. 539-8324. (16-20)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04
1978 PONTIAC Firebird. Tip-top, four-speed, 14,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Call 539-4134 evenings. (13-19)
1978 AUDI Fox, good condition, only $1,000. Call 539-9315 anytime. (13-17)
1982 CAMARO modified with 350 V8, four-barrel, with headers, automatic. Looks stock, sleeper. 776-6036. Aaron. (15-19)

GREAT SCHOOL car 1979 Cutlass Supreme. New tires, new brakes, AM/FM stereo. Price negotiable. Call Tracy, 776-1594. (15-19)
1981 CHEVETTE. New brakes, air, FM/cassette, 59,000 miles. Priced to sell. Call Jarrell: 539-2301. (16-25)
DATSUN 200SX 1977, looks, runs good. Price negotiable. 539-6120. (16-19)
FOR SALE 1981 Mercury Lynx. Good condition. Call between 5 and 7 p.m. 539-5385. (16-17)
1977 AMC Pacer. Looks bad, runs fine. Asking $450. 539-2778. (16-17)
1977 MONTE CARLO 305, four-barrel, dual exhaust, mags, loaded, all electric. Sharp! 539-2343. Richard. (16-19)
1974 AMC Gremlin. V4, good condition, needs tune-up. $250. 532-5123. daytime. 537-3608, evening. (16-20)
CHILD CARE 07
PORTABLE HOT tub business. Good money-maker. Call 537-7354 for terms. (15-17)

COMPUTERS 08
EXCELLENT BUY—Atari 520ST computer, color monitor, double-sided disk drive and software. Best offer. Call 539-1101 after 5 p.m. (15-17)
EMPLOYMENT 09
EARN THUNDREDS weekly$ in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)
ATTENTION JOB hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full- and part-time openings. Apply in person. (8-17)

$10-$660 WEEKLY up mailing circulars! Rush self-addressed stamped envelope. Dept. AN-7CC-CU, 6300 Wilshire, Suite #70, Beverly Hills, CA 90212. (8-16)

Accessories On The Park
A new women's accessories store seeks full-time experienced manager. Fashion conscious, motivated, and creative individuals. Send Resume to 1203 Laramie Manhattan, KS

WANTED: SOMEONE to computerize a retail mailing list. 537-0876. (13-16)

LOCAL SNACK food company seeks responsible individuals for Dorm housing representatives commission. Reply P.O. 1764, Manhattan, KS 66502. (13-17)

WORK AT health center. Light maintenance. Experience preferred. Monday through Friday to work anytime. For more information, contact Warren Walter at 532-6544. (13-17)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours), including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your fall class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and capable of a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. We prefer to hire work study students and students who are eligible to work 30 hours per week. Food Handler's Card a must. (15-25)

BANKING CAREER Ground floor opportunities. FirstBank is expanding its operations into Lawrence, Kansas. We will train aggressive self-starters for the following positions: Loan processor, Customer service/new accounts. Both positions require the ability to work under pressure, attention to technical detail and organizational ability. Local training will begin immediately. Relocation to Lawrence will be required in early 1988. Send application, letter and resume to Personnel, FirstBank, P.O. Box 610, Manhattan, KS 66502. EOE M/F. (15-17)

McDONALD'S AT 815 N. Third is looking for some hard working, motivated and team-spirited people. Applications will be accepted on Sept. 15 from 8-10 a.m. and 4-5 p.m. Also on the 16th from 8-10 a.m. and 2-4 p.m. Applicants must be able to work between the hours of 5:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. Starting wage is $3.50 an hour and half-price meals are included. No phone calls please. (15-17)

CASHIER, WAITRESS, part-time, evenings. Apply in person, Chef Cafe, 111 S. Fourth. (15-19)

95.3 KSKT The Kat needs part-time air personalities for weekend and vacation shifts. If you've had some experience and want to work and learn in a professional atmosphere we need to hear from you. Also, possible news internship for someone who wants on-air experience. Contact station manager Dave Strout at 539-6271. (15-19)

EXPERIENCED DENTAL assistant. Warm, friendly personality. Call 539-7401. Ask for Pat. (16-20)

ONE-HOUR Moto Photo is immediately hiring a lab technician. Must be able to work Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Fridays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and every other weekend. Apply Monday through Friday, the 14th through the 18th between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. or by appointment. 776-9030. (16-19)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12
MULTI-BEDROOM HOUSE, stove, refrigerator, central air, fireplace, laundry hookups, garage. Call 537-8389. (11f)

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)
THREE BEDROOM unfurnished house, close to campus, fenced yard, garage. No pets. Call 537-1234, Trust Department. Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. (41f)
HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13
1980 Commodore, 14 x 70, three-bedroom, two-bath, washer, dryer, stove, refrigerator, Colonial Gardens. $12,500. Call 776-2261. (8-17)
12 x 60 COMMODORE includes appliances, washer, dryer, central air, new storage shed. 776-1809. Cost $6,000. (11-16)

LOST AND FOUND 14
FOUND WATCH and ring in Union. Contact Pat at 776-6003. (14-16)
BLACK CAT with potbelly. Lost in vicinity of Dickens and Cedar Crest around Aug. 19. $100 reward if returned. Phone 539-3965. (14-18)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15
GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales. St. Marys, KS 1-437-2734. (9-27)
TYPEWRITER/ASCII computer printer, memory display, battery/AC, very portable with lid case. $150. 776-4712. (16-19)
WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

Dinner Buffet
Specials
M—Chicken & Ribs
T—Spaghetti & Meat Balls
W—Chicken Stir Fry & Egg Rolls
U—Fish & Chips
includes salad bar
All You Can Eat $5.99

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Nightshirts
at
UNDERCOVER
1224 Moro Aggieville
M-F 10-5:30, Sat. 10-5:00
Thurs. 10-8, Sun. 1-5:00

The Rib-It
Every Tuesday Night
All You Can Eat just $3.95
BBQ Ribs & Pies
Baked Beans
111 S. 4th Downtown

SUNTANNING SPECIAL
Bring in this Ad for 10-30 min. sessions $20 776-1750

Enjoy Our Weekly Buffet Specials
11:30 a.m.-2 p.m.
M—Texas Western BBQ
T—Italian
W—Oriental
U—Mexican
F—Cajun
includes salad bar or call for carry-out

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

CLOTHES WITH CLASS
SPELLbinders INC.
Candlewood Center • 3230 Kimball Avenue
Manhattan, Kansas
MON-SAT 10-5

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16
1983 RED Yamaha scooter Riva 50, low mileage, $300. Call 539-2591 after 4 p.m. (12-16)
1981 RED Vespa moped, great gas, low mileage, excellent condition, negotiable price. 537-1395 or 537-3797. (12-18)
SIMPSON MODEL 30 full helmet, silver, size 7 3/8. Mustang sport touring boots, size 10 1/2. Both excellent condition. Call Dave. 537-1505. (13-16)

1982 HONDA FT500 "Ascot" with racing headers. Great shape! Call 539-9173. (14-17)
MUST SELL 1982 Honda XR 500, new chain and sprockets. Nearly new clutch. 776-3785. (14-18)
1984 YAMAHA XT600, on/off road, many options, excellent condition, $1,500 or best offer. 776-7323. (14-19)

1983 HONDA 500 Shadow, excellent condition, must sell. Call 539-7561, ask for Reed. (14-18)
1986 RALEIGH bicycle Technum 440, 12-speed, 26-inch. $250. After 5 p.m., call 537-2072. (14-18)

FOR SALE 1984 Yamaha XT600. Excellent condition, under 3,000 miles. Call 537-1021. (15-19)
THREE-SPEED bike. Good condition, large aluminum side baskets. Excellent for school and shopping. $50. Call 539-8796 after 5 p.m. (15-19)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17
CRATE CR-112 guitar amplifier, 30 watts, reverb, two channels, headphone jack. Very good condition. 776-3741. (15-19)
ELECTRIC GUITAR, black Gibson. Best quality for price. Play and see. Call after 5 p.m. 776-5679. (16-18)

PERSONALS 18
DEAR GRANDMA, FirstBank is giving away apple computers for free. They would normally sell for $1,500 and I can't afford it but I want one anyway. Please open a $3,500 apple certificate of deposit, have them ship the computer to me either for my birthday or for Christmas or graduation and you keep the interest. Call FirstBank for details. Thanks Grandma. Love, Patsy. (15-18)

RONNIE: Did you know you're goodlooking? I told you Thursday but if you want to hear it again, meet at Charlie's Thursday night. M. (16)
LOST (APPARENTLY) pirated) from Mariatt 3. Three items of apparel. What you have "lost", we have found. Claim of such items may be made at our next function. Absolute proof of ownership must be made. Sincerely, your sister floors, Boyd 5. (16)

MARLETT: Such sweet singing we have seldom heard! Your serenaded sisters were certainly surprised! Charmed Givers. (16)
GORB, ONE last thing... Do we get any last requests? Althea. (16)

SPIKETACULAR TEAMS: We appreciated your participation in the tourney and that's a fact. We think you're all a class act. Love, the Gamma Phi and Betas. (16)
BARNUM AND Bailey, Let's hear it for a four ring. Our grandkids will laugh about this thing. Lagnal. (16)

BRATTY, THANKS for the wonderful year that we've spent together. It's been wonderful. Love, Fancy. (16)
ZAN, EVEN though you're my only roommate, you're the best. Happy 21st birthday, finally. Love, your roommate. (16)

PETS AND PET SUPPLIES 19
GREAT DORM pet—Nine-inch oscar. With or without 30-gallon aquarium. Call evenings. 776-3785. (15-17)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20
PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11f)
PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St. Suite 25. (11f)

RENTALS 21
SUPPLIES: PRINTER, typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville. 539-7931. (11f)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22
EXPERIENCED TYPIST: computer, disc storage, letter-quality printer, $1.25/page. Ask for Dorinda: 537-9205. (11-19)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23
MALE ROOMMATE needed immediately. One-room apartment, gas, balcony, rent is $142.50 month. Lease runs until August 1988. Utilities run about $30 a month. Call Tonia at 539-7491, leave message. (13-19)
MALE ROOMMATE needed—Basement apartment, good study habits, engineer preferably. Call 539-6196. (15-19)

FEMALE ROOMMATE, for second semester, to share two-bedroom apartment. Close to park, Aggieville, and campus. Call 537-1273. (16-20)

SPORTING/RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT 25
CANOE 16 foot fiberglass, excellent condition, four paddles included. $300. 539-5231, 6-9 p.m. (16-18)

Rubes
By Leigh Rubin

"Yes, that's right. One large delivery boy with pepperoni, olives and anchovies."

Chasing Reality
By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County
By Berke Breathed

Garfield
By Jim Davis

Peanuts
By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Instrument for Arthur
Marx
5 Vacation spot
9 Gazelle
12 Away from the weather
13 First name in bridge?
14 Malay
gibbon
15 Goblets
and tumblers
17 Inquire
18 Sargasso
Sea
19 Throws
21 Mediterranean country
24 Plays the ponies
25 Olive genus
26 Covered with lungus
30 Harlem
room
31 Membranes
32 Rio de 33 Young frogs 35 French silk 36 Tribe
or clan 37 "— Shrugged"
38 — Lama
40 Ascend 42 Narrow inlet
43 Salt marsh plant
48 Classified
items
49 Pueblo
Indian
50 Pitcher
51 Home heating fuel
52 Fix the salad
53 Resist boldly
DOWN
1 Old crone
2 — My
'Children'
3 Plant of India
4 Spanish coin
5 Monk's hood
6 Chalices
7 Deface
8 Go before
9 Fine-spun fibers
10 Hop kin
11 Clumsy boats 16 Type of horse or urchin
20 Consumed
21 Debatable
22 Robert or Alan 23 It's used in bowls and vases
24 "Gil —"
(novel)
26 Blanc and Brooks
27 — de France
28 Assam
silkworm
29 "He who can, —"
(Shaw)
31 Johnny's show 34 Sweet or green 35 Like some tomatoes
37 Nimby
38 Haul along
39 Verdi opera 40 Discusses,
today
41 Egyptian goddess
44 Card game
45 Be in debt
46 Ump's cousin
47 Endeavor

Solution time: 25 mins.
DUEL TRE CROW
IGNITION HARE
SHAMROCK ANNE BIS INSTEP
HAREM GNAT
OLOR GNGETS
TAA EARLY RES
INTRUDE SALK
RANA APPLY
REPASTAL I
ABEL LIMERICK
CORE EDUCATOR
ENTE TAR LEDA
3-17
Yesterday's answer

CRYPTOQUIP

3-17
N T R I D G W Z N R O O Y W
S D Q L Q A R L Q G N I E B Z
T E O L R L B Q U S A Y U R O N W
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: SAID A SPIDER TO LITTLE SON ON SUNDAY, "LET US PREY."
Today's Cryptoquip clue: O equals N

More than 100 indicted in porn sting

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More than 100 people are under indictment in two nationwide government sting operations targeting people who answered advertisements offering material containing graphic depictions of child sex, the Justice Department announced Monday.

Attorney General Edwin Meese III disclosed at a news conference that dozens of U.S. Postal Inspection Service investigators and Customs Service agents have been operating undercover as suppliers of kiddie porn at least since the beginning of the year.

Five Kansans were among those indicted in the operation, according to federal authorities. They included

Harold D. Lamb, of Mackville, who was charged with nine counts of sending or receiving pornographic photographs or negatives showing minors involved in sexually explicit conduct.

The other Kansans were each charged with one count of sending or receiving pornographic materials involving minors, authorities said. They are Barry A. Smith, 34, of Lenexa; Walter P. Shacklett, 45, of Newton, a Wichita postal clerk; Kenneth G. Slowinsky, 32, of Overland Park; and Thomas A. Thompson, 40, of Salina.

Child pornography "affects all of us and victimizes those most vulnerable, our children," said Meese. He said it "can never be consented to by the children victimized by it, nor condone by society."

In the operation, dubbed Project Looking Glass, postal inspectors sent letters advertising child porn to people whose names had turned up on previously confiscated mailing lists of purchasers of such material.

Postal inspectors printed letters on stationery from a fictitious undercover mail order firm, Far Eastern Trading Co. Ltd., and sent catalogues of child porn items to those who responded to the letter. Federal search warrants were issued following deliveries in order to recover the material, which consisted mostly of magazines, videotapes and movies seized in earlier raids on porn traffickers.

In a parallel investigation called Operation Borderline, customs agents sent brochures offering child pornography photo sets and magazines mailed from a dummy Canadian corporation.

"Project Looking Glass is intended as a strong message that the Postal Service will not tolerate the use of the mails as a vehicle to traffic in child pornography and perpetuate the sexual victimizing of our children."

—Charles R. Clauson

The twin stings are part of a government crackdown on kiddie porn that stems from last year's report by the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography.

"Project Looking Glass is intended as a strong message that the Postal Service will not tolerate the use of the mails as a vehicle to traffic in child pornography and perpetuate the sexual victimizing of our children," said Chief Postal Inspector Charles R. Clauson.

Clauson said that in 35 instances during the investigation, "suspects admitted to or evidence was found of sexual molestation of children."

In a Pennsylvania case, inspectors found diaries and notebooks detailing child molestation by the suspect, who admitted it and was arrested by state police, said Clauson.

In a New York state probe, he said, investigators found a diary covering nine years and containing 100 entries detailing names, dates, ages and sexual acts performed by the suspect with males as young as 12 years old.

In a Michigan investigation, authorities found sexually explicit photos of the suspect's nieces from the time they were 5 years old.

The investigations mark the first time the Justice Department, the Postal Inspection Service and Customs agents have joined in a coordinated attack on child pornography.

The investigations have resulted in indictments in the past few months against more than 100 people, who are accused of violating the Child Protection Act of 1984. Each faces up to 10 years in prison and $250,000 if convicted.

Dole

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

nation comes only a few months after a change in leadership at the Federal Aviation Administration, part of her department.

An early name to surface as a possible successor to her was Patricia Goldman, a moderate Republican who is vice chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board.

James Burnley, the department's deputy secretary, is expected to take over as acting secretary, but sources said he is unlikely to remain on permanently and reportedly already has discussed taking a job outside government.

Elizabeth, a Harvard-educated lawyer from North Carolina, became transportation secretary in February 1983, succeeding Drew Lewis who quit to return to private business. She had been special assistant for public liaison at the White House.

Elizabeth has had a long history in government, beginning in the 1960s as a staff assistant in the old Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Later she worked as legislative assistant to President Johnson's consumer affairs adviser and then executive director of the President's Commission on Consumer Interest. In 1973, she was appointed to the Federal Trade Commission.

Two years later she married the senator from Kansas.

In 1979, Elizabeth resigned from the FTC to campaign in her husband's unsuccessful bid for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination. After Bob withdrew from the race, she worked for the Reagan campaign and after the election was appointed to the White House job where her duties included dealing with issues of importance to women.

As transportation secretary, Elizabeth headed a department with 107,000 employees and a $27 billion budget. She reminded people she is the first woman to head a military service: The U.S. Coast Guard is part of her department.

She attracted criticism in recent months. Critics charge her department has been slow to react to the dynamic changes of the airline industry.

Elizabeth has stepped up the department's scrutiny of air carriers, called for more air traffic controllers and pressured airlines to ease the delay problem.

"She has done an excellent job in the context of an administration that has been difficult to persuade on a number of transportation safety issues," said Sen. John Danforth.

Bork

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Halperin of the ACLU. Recent interviews only "show how he's trying to backtrack," he said.

Halperin said Bork, in extensive writings and speeches during the last few years, has espoused conservatism. These "are not views of 30 years ago," Halperin said.

Among those defending Bork and raising questions about the propriety of the Senate in examining a nominee's political ideology is former Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

Burger, who also will testify for Bork, said in a television interview Monday the Senate's criteria in judging a Supreme Court nominee should include "the integrity of the man, then his or her educational background, legal training and...the experience...of the person."

Another Bork supporter, White

House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr., said he had no plans to call undecided members of the Senate committee to the White House, but would "try to address any questions they may have and urge and encourage them to report this nomination to the floor of the Senate."

"It's going to be a tough fight, and it's still to be won or lost, but in the final analysis I think Judge Bork will be confirmed," Baker said.

Meanwhile, former President Gerald R. Ford said he will formally introduce Bork and testify in support when the Senate Judiciary Committee begins hearings on the nomination Tuesday.

Ford, who was in Las Vegas, Nev., for a speaking engagement, described the nominee as "the most qualified candidate for the Supreme Court in the last 50 years."

However, Ford predicted a tough battle for Bork to gain Senate confirmation. "My impression is it will be a very close call," he said. "The liberals are fighting very strongly against his nomination."

Bork, 60, a federal appeals court judge since 1982, was picked by President Reagan to succeed Justice Lewis F. Powell.

Powell retired on the final day of the court's last term June 26, in effect creating a void at the ideological center of the court. Powell supplied a pivotal fifth vote on numerous key issues during his 15 years as a justice, most notably in a series of cases that upheld the principle of affirmative action for minorities and women.

The stakes in the upcoming Senate hearings are considered extraordinarily high not only for the future direction of the court but also for next year's presidential election.

Two presidential hopefuls, Democrat Joseph R. Biden Jr. of Delaware and Republican Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, are playing important roles.

Program

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Hoyt said he doesn't believe enrollment restrictions will deter students from the program because students want a high-quality education.

"Our main concern is with the students and their educational experience. The program can't continue to grow with limited faculty resources and maintain the quality that is now provided," Andrus said. "We can do it; we've done it — the numbers speak for themselves. But we still need the faculty to continue the academic quality."

He said the Kansas Legislature and the Board of Regents should fund the MBA programs at K-State, the University of Kansas and The Wichita State University at a higher level than non-accredited programs.

"We're sitting on a lot of opportunity and we have a good program, but we could make it outstanding with the additional funding and faculty positions," Andrus said. "Maybe the state Legislature will want to hold a special session on higher education instead of highways."

Hoyt said much thought goes into the decision of allocating funds and resources. Comparisons, enrollment and faculty class hours are all considerations, he said.

Hoyt said K-State's graduate program as a whole is growing and that the only way the problem in the College of Business Administration could be addressed would be to take resources from somewhere else.

"We try to make allocations to colleges as evenly as possible," Hoyt said. "I believe there will be some relief down the road."

Lottery

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

The first tickets to be sold will be instant-win scratch tickets. Instant prizes will range from a free ticket to $5,000. The grand prize drawing, Zogleman said, will be about $100,000.

"We aren't sure how it will work, but contestants will probably be able to mail in five non-winning tickets for the drawing," she said.

The Lottery Commission also may approve at its Sept. 24 meeting a contract with GTECH, a Providence, R.I., company to hire it as its on-line game vendor. The on-line games, employing computer terminals connected to a central computer, are expected to start early next year in Kansas.

6th Annual Business Career Day

All Students Welcome

Visit with Representatives from

40 Companies State and Nationwide

TODAY 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

K-State Union Ballroom

The College of Business Administration

K-State Marketing Club

Marketing—Management—Finance—Accounting

Papal Visit

An estimated 350,000 worshippers turned out Sunday in San Antonio to celebrate Mass with Pope John Paul II. See Page 7.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with a 40 percent chance of rain, high around 80. Partly cloudy tonight with a 30 percent chance of rain, low in the 60s.

*****5 DIGIT 66612
164 8/8/80 ** 7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 18th
Topeka, KS 66612
Buy: See Page 11.

Wednesday
September 16, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 17

Kansas State Collegian

Bork defends opinions Committee hearings open

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork, denying that his judicial philosophy is either liberal or conservative, said Tuesday that judges must be dedicated to restraint and respect for democratic processes.

The federal appeals court judge, in an opening statement to the Senate Judiciary Committee considering his nomination, said:

"My philosophy of judging is neither liberal nor conservative. It is simply a philosophy of judging which gives the Constitution a full and fair interpretation, but where the Constitution is silent leaves the policy struggles to Congress, the president, legislatures and executives of the 50 states and to the American people."

Meeting head-on some of the attacks of liberal critics, Bork said he values judicial precedent and singled out for special praise the 1954 Supreme Court ruling, Brown vs. Board of Education, that outlawed school segregation.

He also said that as a Supreme Court justice he would look differently upon past court rulings than he has done as a scholar earlier in his career.

"It is one thing as a legal theorist to criticize the reasoning of a prior decision, even to criticize it severely, as I have done," he said. "It is another and more serious thing altogether for a judge to ignore or overturn a prior decision. That requires much careful thought."

Bork said judges who impose their own values rather than interpret the Constitution deprive the American people of liberty.

In response to questions from Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., Bork defended statements he has made criticizing an important Supreme Court ruling in 1965 that struck down a Connecticut law barring the use of contraceptives even by married couples.

Bork said he disagreed with the court's reasoning in that case creating a "free-floating right of privacy" and was not defending a state's right to ban contraceptives.

Earlier Tuesday, Bork was extolled by former President Ford and others as brilliant and compassionate but denounced by opponents as biased and close-minded as the Judiciary Committee began hearings on his nomination to the Supreme Court.

Questions about Bork's qualifications were raised by three uncommitted members of the committee, which appears to be about evenly divided on whether or not to recommend confirmation.

However, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., repeated his intention to have the full Senate vote on the nomination. "I can assure that the nomination won't be killed by the Judiciary Committee, no matter how many senators vote against the nomination," he said.

Bork, 60, a federal appeals court judge and former law professor, listened attentively during the first 3 1/2 hours of the nationally televised and highly charged committee session, waiting to begin what was expected to be several days of testimony.

Some 350 sign-carrying, anti-Bork demonstrators rallied in a park across the street from the Senate office building where the hearings were being held. In the hearing room, in an extraordinary appearance for a former president, Ford said Bork's "record has been exemplary" since he took his seat on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here five years ago.

In 1973, as solicitor general, the No. 3 official in the Justice Department, Bork carried out Nixon's order to fire Cox after the prosecutor

■ See BORK, Page 12

Waste committee begins work of setting up disposal program

By Judy Lundstrom
Special Projects Editor

Initial steps in the process of formulating a new solid waste program for Riley County began Tuesday night with the first meeting of the Solid Waste Management Committee.

The committee, mandated by the Kansas Department of Health and Environment in its July 17 closure order for the Riley County Landfill, consists of representatives from the five cities and 14 townships in Riley County, four Riley County officials and two members at large.

The committee's purpose: to revise the Riley County Solid Waste Management Plan of 1973.

The stages of the plan will be:
■ To solicit citizen participation throughout the project by use of an attitude survey and public information meetings.

■ To analyze the existing solid waste management systems in the county.

■ To determine the volumes of solid waste to be generated in the planning area.

■ To formulate alternatives and recommendations for new forms of solid waste management. (Some possibilities suggested by County Planner Monty Wedel were mechanical, which would involve baling, shredding and compacting the waste; thermal, which would involve incineration; biological, which includes composting, hydrolysis and land application; landfilling; recycling; and innovation, which could involve other current or future technologies.)

■ To work with a consultant and the public in selecting the most desirable waste management system.

On Aug. 27, county commissioners submitted an application to the state for a $30,000 grant to hire a consultant to help with the proposal. The decision will be made Sept. 25 as to whether the county will receive the grant.

The recommendation stage of the plan will examine the feasibility of a regional waste disposal facility, perhaps in conjunction with Fort Riley, Wedel said. KDHE is promoting regionalization and encouraging Fort Riley and Riley County to consider the possibility, said County Engineer

Dan Harden.

According to the KDHE order, a final proposed Solid Waste Management Plan must be submitted by May 1, 1989. The order also states that the committee must submit a list of study topics to KDHE by Oct. 1. But those deadlines aren't "chiseled in stone," Harden said. "They are just to make sure we're making some sort of reasonable progress."

Regardless of which waste program the committee selects, there will always be a need for a landfill, said county commissioner Darrell Westervelt, committee chairman.

"Let's not fool ourselves," he said. "No matter what you do to this stuff, there's always something left you've got to bury or do something with. It's going to have to be disposed of — probably in a landfill."

Several Zeandale residents attended the meeting to express their concern about a 1978 study in which the Zeandale area was recommended for a new landfill site.

Harden said the county made an attempt to move the landfill in 1978, but it met with so much opposition that the plan was dropped.

Businesses visit K-State

Staff/Brad Camp

Russ Mueller, recruiting specialist for IBM, talks to Kim Smith and Katy Howe, both seniors in marketing, at the Business Career Fair Tuesday afternoon in the Union Ballroom.

Students look for employment

By Julie Key
Collegian Reporter

The Union Ballroom bustled with activity Tuesday as representatives from more than 40 businesses were on hand to talk about career opportunities within their company to students.

"It's (K-State) a good place to come — with good students," said Harold Shewmaker, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City. The bank employs K-State graduates, including its first vice president, Henry Czerwinski, who graduated from K-State in 1959 with a degree in Business Administration. The Federal Reserve Bank has been attending the fair since it began in '81.

Steve Cashman, staff assistant in career development of Hallmark Cards in Kansas City and 1987 K-State marketing graduate, said they have been to the fair almost every year.

"We have been satisfied with people at K-State, and as long as we are satisfied, we'll keep coming back," Cashman said.

Amoco Corporation of Tulsa, Okla. has about 50 K-State graduates currently working for them, said Beverly Farrell, senior staff accounting systems analyst. "K-State has an outstanding accounting program," she said.

Pizza Hut Inc. of Wichita, and Hallmark try to hire graduates from the area, company representatives said.

"We want people who are happy in the Midwest and want to stay," said Mark Tanenbaum, manager of corporate employment personnel at Pizza Hut.

Tanenbaum said that they are looking for management students who will work hard, want to move up the ladder, and are career oriented. Last year Pizza Hut hired four K-State graduates.

Koch Industries Inc. is another Wichita company that recruits from K-State.

Koch hires 15 to 20 K-State graduates a year, said Becky Bates, personnel representative. "We have a lot of good employees hired from K-State," she said.

"Career Days is a good opportunity for students to see different companies and what people have to offer," said Dave Doudna, corporate transportation department coordinator at Conoco Inc. He said K-State is one of their main recruiting schools. Doudna said that Conoco is interested in students pursuing degrees in finance, management, economics, and a master's in business administration.

The student turn-out was good, said Connie Mermis, Career Day coordinator. Shewmaker agreed saying that participation had increased in the event.

Harvard professor to deliver lecture

By The Collegian Staff

Michael McElroy, member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and professor of Atmospheric Sciences at Harvard University, will deliver K-State's first Convocation Series lecture of the 1987 fall semester at 10:30 a.m. today in McCain Auditorium.

McElroy will speak on the "Greenhouse Effect: Causes and Consequences."

The greenhouse effect involves the increased concentration of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere from the combustion of fossil fuels. This has resulted in a "solar screening" in the earth's atmosphere which prevents the earth's surface heat from radiating back into space.

This situation is expected to lead to a global rise in average surface temperature.

McElroy will address the changes in atmospheric conditions on the earth and the implications of major changes occurring in the environment.

McElroy has done research on atmospheric carbon dioxide and has been published widely.

Superpowers hopeful for arms pact

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze took new steps to avert accidental war and expressed mutual hopes Tuesday for a nuclear arms agreement to crown a superpower summit.

However, Shevardnadze said a letter he carried from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev did not propose a specific date for a summit with Reagan.

"There are good things in that letter," Shevardnadze said. "No date, but a summit is necessary."

Shevardnadze did not elaborate but Secretary of State George P. Shultz said three days of talks with the Soviet official "are off to a good start."

Shevardnadze and Reagan conferred in the Oval Office following a morning meeting at the State Department between Shultz and the Soviet minister. "We're just beginning," Reagan said when asked if any progress had been made.

Shevardnadze's visit is viewed as a critical step toward wrapping up an agreement to abolish intermediate-range nuclear missiles from the Soviet and American arsenals. The expected accord would be signed by Reagan and Gorbachev at a summit which U.S. officials expect in late November.

At a briefing for reporters, Shultz said the two sides, after months of talks, "have nailed down most of the main points, all of the really main points" on a missile agreement.

Reagan and Shevardnadze posed for pictures in the Oval Office and then went to the sun-splashed Rose Garden for the signing of an agreement to reduce the chance of accidental war through the establishment of "nuclear risk reduction centers" in Moscow and Washington.

The centers will provide the first direct channel for communications between the two capitals since the "hot-line" link was established 24 years ago, after the Cuban missile crisis. The new facility will be used to transmit notifications required by arms control and confidence-building agreements.

Reagan said he looked forward "to the day when General Secretary Gorbachev and I can sign even more historic agreements in our common search for peace."

On a similarly upbeat note, Shevardnadze said: "This is a sign which may be a prelude to more important agreements. ... I would like to hope that this small gulp of hope is a prelude to the quenching of the global thirst for peace and security."

As Reagan watched, the agreement was signed by Shultz and Shevardnadze before an audience of arms control negotiators and experts, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and members of Congress.

After a White House luncheon with Reagan, Shultz and Shevardnadze resumed their talks at the State Department.

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Government reports deficit

WASHINGTON — The U.S. current account, the broadest measure of the nation's international trade, widened to a record $41.1 billion deficit in the April-June quarter, the government reported Tuesday.

The Commerce Department said the current account deficit climbed 11.7 percent from the first quarter, when it had totaled $36.8 billion.

The current account is considered the most important trade figure because it measures not only trade in merchandise but also trade in services, primarily investment flows between countries.

The spring deficit topped the old record of $38 billion set in the final three months of 1986.

The United States suffered a record $141.4 billion deficit in the current account for all of 1986 and analysts said the worsening of the figure in the spring suggests that this year's deficit could top $155 billion.

It was the second disappointing trade report in less than a week. Last Friday, the government announced that the deficit in merchandise trade for July shot up to a monthly record of $16.5 billion.

NASA computers broken into

FRANKFURT, West Germany — Hackers broke into NASA's worldwide computer network throughout the summer and gathered secret data on space shuttle projects and rocket failures, West German media said Tuesday.

News reports said young West Germans gained regular access to at least 20 computers of the U.S. space agency and had the ability to paralyze the entire network.

The ARD television network said a flaw in the network's security system allowed the hackers to enter the network from May to September.

The NASA system connects more than 1,600 computers worldwide that share information on space research, nuclear physics and molecular biology, ARD said. The network includes U.S. atomic research facilities in Los Alamos, N.M.

The Hamburg-based magazine Stern reported similar information.

"When I saw 'Welcome to the NASA headquarters ... installation' on my screen, I was a little shocked, to say the least," the magazine quoted one youth as saying.

The Hamburg-based "Chaos Computer Club" said in a statement to news media Tuesday that the youths turned to the club for help when they realized the enormity of their discovery.

The statement said the hackers penetrated the network to show the "unbelievable weaknesses" of the security system and had no interest in the secret data.

Tree wins; road redesigned

BEDMINSTER, N.J. — State officials apparently feel they shall never see a road as lovely as a tree.

So the tree stays, and the road will move.

Department of Transportation officials say a proposed exit ramp for I-287 will be redesigned to bypass a green ash tree said to be up to 200 years old.

Project engineer Bruce R. Brumfield told local officials on Monday of the change in plans, prompted by opposition from officials and residents since they learned two months ago that the ramp would cut deeply into the tree's roots.

TWA machinists fight takeover

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Trans World Airlines machinists are suing to block TWA Chairman Carl Icahn's plan to take the airline private in a deal that would give its unions 10 percent of the company, a machinists official said Monday.

The union hopes to prevent Icahn from dismantling TWA and forcing employees out of work, said Gary G. Poos, a representative for the machinists union.

Mark A. Buckstein, TWA's general counsel and senior vice president for external affairs, said Monday the machinists charges were without merit.

The lawsuit, filed late last week in U.S. District Court in New York, seeks an order that would block Icahn's buy out.

Historian documents deaths

HEADLAND, Ala. — Seventeen years spent documenting more than 15,000 executions by every method from the gallows to a saw have turned amateur historian Waji Espy into an ardent foe of capital punishment.

His cluttered rural home, which doubles as a workplace, is decorated with scores of grainy pictures of executed felons. A wooden card catalog and two large ledgers record the names and crimes of those put to death.

The bespectacled 54-year-old southeast Alabama native puffs on cigarettes almost constantly, but he lives and breathes executions.

"Believe me, the stress is awful," Espy, who has ulcers, said of a life dedicated to chronicling every legal execution in the United States since Colonial times. "I'm depressed half the time."

And every new execution makes it worse.

"With every execution I feel a part of me dies," he said in a recent interview.

Nevertheless, Espy talks of executions like he was telling some juicy tale, spinning vivid yarns of crime and the ultimate punishment.

In Louisiana, there was the 1767 execution of a man who was nailed in a box which then was sawed in half. One Alabama inmate fought for two hours before guards got him into the electric chair.

Dr. J.H. Snook, respected head of the veterinary medicine department at Ohio State University, was executed in 1930 for the murder of his girlfriend, a nymphomaniac he couldn't please. In 1944 South Carolina electrocuted the youngest person ever executed in the United States, 14-year-old George Stinney Jr., convicted of the rape-murder of two girls.

All the stories are documented with names, dates, crimes, places. "My work is totally objective," he said.

Whitney's mom protective

NEW YORK — Singer Cissy Houston is trying to draw the protective wagons around her daughter, pop star Whitney Houston.

"Do I want to protect her? You bet I do," Cissy says in the cover story of the Oct. 5 issue of US magazine.

"The only people you can always count on" are relatives and those in the church, Cissy cautions. "I tell her, 'If you're on a firm foundation, no one can destroy you, whatever they say.'"

She also is proud of her daughter's accomplishments, and admits she may be reliving stardom through her daughter, who has the best-selling debut album in recording history.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ENTRY FORMS for the 1987 Oozeball Tournament are available at the Hollis House and at the Information desk in the Union. Deadline for registration is Friday, Sept. 18.

APPLICATIONS for the Mortar Board Scholarship are available in the Union Activities Center and are due Sept. 18.

TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATIONS for sophomores in all majors may be picked up in the Dean's office in Eisenhower Hall. Packets will be available until Oct. 2.

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "On The Verge" by Eric Overmeyer at 8 p.m. Sept. 24-26, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1-3 at Nichols Theatre.

TODAY

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

GYMNASTICS CLUB meets at 9 p.m. in natatorium 4.

INDUSTRIAL/ORGANIZATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY CLUB meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 208.

BLACK STUDENT UNION conference planning meeting at 5:30 p.m. in Union 208.

SOCIAL WORK ORGANIZATION meets at 5:30 p.m. in Union 207. Donald Bakely will speak about Crosslines, an inner-city poverty agency.

PI SIGMA EPSILON pledge meeting at 6 p.m. in Union 203.

BETA SIGMA PSI LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8 p.m. at the Beta Sig house.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Douglas J. Schmidt at 2 p.m. in West Waters 133. The topic will be: "The Physiology of Greenbug Feeding Behavior and the Effect of Salivary Toxins on Sorghum Plants."

THURSDAY

EATING DISORDER SUPPORT GROUP meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 204.

PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 206 for business meeting and election of new president.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

SAILING CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 208.

Give.

DON'T FORGET
For your added convenience
LAFENE HEALTH CENTER
is expanding their service hours
Effective Monday, Sept. 14
New Clinic Hours—8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

•limited staffing over noon hour•

OPEN 24 HOURS

1445 ANDERSON

32 oz. Big Gulp fountain drink 69¢
(doesn't apply w/Super Big Gulp)

Frito Lay Grab Bag potato chips 59¢

Lakeshore chili cheese dog $1.29
Regular $2.47

Now Only $1.49

WE DELIVER

5 p.m.- Midnight (M-S)
Noon - Midnight (Sun.)

Sub & Stuff
Sandwich Shop

537-DELI

Find the Finishing
Touch to Your Fall
Wardrobe from

Campbell's

Poyntz & Fifth
776-9067
Downtown

1227 Moro
539-1891
Aggieville

Manhattan—Junction City—Fort Riley

Your switch is on . . .

#1
THE Music Station

KQLA
104

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Beta Theta Pi, Chi Omega, Off Campus

Sept. 17: Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

The Station
DIAMONDS ARE A GIRL'S BEST FRIEND

FREE
DIAMONDS
EVERY WEDNESDAY

50 LUCKY
LADIES DRAW
50 DIAMONDS
ONLY DIAMOND CONNECTION
IDENTIFYS THE REAL!

FREE FLOWER
FOR THE FIRST 50
GIRLS

2-FER FROZEN DRINKS

Diamond Connection
408 Poyntz, 539-3225

KMKE 101+

'Showcase of Talent' to replace U-Sing

By Jenny Chaulk
Campus Editor

Zoo will still receive show's profit

A 19-year-old K-State tradition has fallen by the wayside.

U-Sing, a vocal competition for living groups, sponsored by the Interfraternity Council and the Sigma Chi fraternity to raise money for Manhattan's Sunset Zoo, will no longer be held.

The "KSU Showcase of Talent" is taking U-Sing's place, said Don Wixom, curator of the zoo.

"It (U-Sing) made a lot of money up until the late 1970s," Wixom said. "Since then, it hasn't been as profitable."

Scott Jones, philanthropy chairman for Sigma Chi, said the zoo is Sigma Chi's local civic philanthropy. Since 1967, IFC and Sigma Chi have co-sponsored U-Sing to raise funds for the zoo. In April IFC voted to discontinue co-sponsoring the event because it was losing money.

Jones said IFC's decision was not "that big of a deal."

IFC's decision "was better for us

(Sigma Chi) because they didn't do that much anyway," he said. "(IFC) did the bookkeeping, but as far as doing the dirty work (of putting the event on), they didn't actually do much."

Jones also said members of Sigma Chi realized U-Sing was not as effective as it had been in past years.

"We knew something had to be changed because we weren't drawing the crowd we wanted to, and we weren't giving as much (money) as we wanted to the zoo," he said.

Jones said it was an all-house decision to continue raising money for the zoo — only the means of how the money would be raised was changed.

"We're real pleased they decided to stick with us," Wixom said.

Wixom said the "KSU Showcase of Talent" has an advantage over U-Sing.

"By creating this, any full-time student can enter a category," he said. "We'll get a larger cross-section of students. We're really going to push selling it to the students."

Wixom said the variety show will be Nov. 6 at 8 p.m. in McCain Auditorium. The K-State football team plays the University of Kansas that afternoon, and Wixom hopes that will help attendance.

Auditions will be held in the following categories: male and female vocalist (Sept. 29); accompanied group and unaccompanied group (Oct. 1); lip-sync (Sept. 28); and comedy (date unknown).

All auditions except comedy will be held at the Sigma Chi house. The auditions for comedy will be held at Bushwackers on a date to be announced later.

Auditions will be held in front of a panel of four or five judges. Three acts from each category will be selected to perform in the show.

Wixom said registration for auditions starts today. Interested persons should call Jones at 776-7852, the Sigma Chi house at 539-7527 or Wixom at 537-0063.

Commissioners examine container law

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

Manhattan city commissioners approved the first reading of an ordinance banning all open containers from Aggieville — except those made from paper or plastic — at Tuesday's meeting.

Commissioners will consider the ordinance again in two weeks. They requested the language of the ordinance be changed to make possession of glass or metal open containers illegal in Aggieville only on days of K-State football games.

Alvan Johnson, director of the Riley County Police Department, asked the commission to delete the word "open" from the ordinance.

"Full containers cause more damage than open ones," Johnson said.

He reminded the commissioners that banning the possession of metal and glass containers had been recommended to them by the Aggieville Merchants' Association after the disturbances following last year's K-State-KU football game.

The commission approved increases in water and sewer rates for the rest of 1987 and the first part of 1988. The increases were required due to rising energy costs in both services, said Bruce McCallum, director of public works.

Consumers are billed for both services based on their winter usage of water. An average consumer who uses 700 cubic feet of water each month during the winter will see their sewer rates rise from $4.75 a month to $4.95, McCallum said.

Water rates for the average consumer will increase from $8.45 to $10.45 for the winter months. McCallum said the summer water rate for the average consumer who uses 1,500 cubic feet each month would be raised from about $16 to $20.

Capital improvements on the water treatment plant, currently in the design stage, also account for a portion of the water rate increase, McCallum said.

McCallum reminded commissioners of the option to increase the water and sewer rates for K-State as well. The University currently pays the in-city rate although it is outside the city limits. The out-of-city rate is 1 1/2 times the in-city rate.

Commissioner Nancy Denning requested a future study of a proposed five-year phased-in change of K-State's water and sewer rates.

A competition to design a statue for the Town Center Mall plaza was also approved by commissioners.

Commissioners wanted to know if they would have to accept a design they disliked.

"If we find it unacceptable to have a corn dog in the middle of the plaza, what happens then?" said Commissioner Kent Glasscock.

Brent Bowman, speaking on behalf of the Manhattan Arts Council, said the decision to build the winning design ultimately rested with the commission.

Commissioners upheld a ruling by the Codes Appeal Board, an ad hoc committee of the city, which declared the house at 113 Colorado St. to be dangerous and ordered the building demolished.

Kassebaum backs Democrats' stand

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sen. Nancy Kassebaum recently broke ranks with her fellow Republicans and backed an unsuccessful Democratic effort to debate legislation to revise the system for financing congressional campaigns.

The move, by the junior senator from Kansas put her at odds on the issue with Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan. But in many respect, their split reflects the sharp differences of opinion on how, if at all, lawmakers should respond to growing campaign costs.

Despite repeated attempts, Democrats have been unable to end a GOP filibuster, a parliamentary delaying tactic, that is preventing consideration of the legislation.

Kassebaum says she does not favor public financing of campaigns.

Record SALE

September 14-26

k-state union bookstore

A man is judged by the company he keeps. As a Marine Corps officer, you'll be serving with some of the finest officers the military has to offer. Officers that will be leading a group of men who are second to none. If you're a college undergraduate who thinks this is the kind of company he'd like to keep, call 1-841-1821 (collect).

Wal-Mart Sells for Less • Wal-Mart Sells for Less

WAL-MART
Pictureland Portrait Studio
Exclusively at Wal-Mart

SAVE 25%
on our 20-piece portrait package
2-8x10s, 3-5x7s*
and 15 wallets
on your choice of a traditional, nursery, spring or fall background

HURRY OFFER ENDS SOON!

NOW ONLY $9.70
plus $1.00 shipping fee
(reg. $12.95)

We Welcome Everyone... BABIES, CHILDREN, ADULTS, and FAMILY GROUPS.

The Pictureland Promise:
Bring in any lower-priced advertised offer and WE'LL MATCH IT!

No appointment is ever necessary. Poses our selection. Black and White Backgrounds. Double Exposure and other Special Effects Portraits not available in advertised package. $1.50 for each additional person in portrait. Minors must be accompanied by an adult. Satisfaction guaranteed! *approximate size

The photographer will be here through Sunday, Sept. 20
Studio Hours: 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Daily; Sunday (where open): store opening until one hour prior to store closing

MANHATTAN, KS.
628 TUTTLE CREEK BLVD.

Wal-Mart Sells for Less • Wal-Mart Sells for Less

TEENY WEENY WOO WOO WEDNESDAY

TOAST A TEENY WEENY WOO WOO

$1
TEENY WEENY WOO WOO's

$2
BACK BAR PITCHERS

KITE'S BAR AND GRILL
619 N. 12th, Aggieville
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

THE ANSWER IS—
PUTT PUTT GOLF
WHEN LOOKING FOR
SOMETHING TO DO.

FISHWATERS
THE 15th ANNUARY

TONIGHT
$1 Well Drinks
$2 Pitchers
80¢ Draws

Thurs.
All
Mixed
Drinks
$1.50

Jewish New Year
Rosh Hashanah
High Holiday Services

Wednesday Evening
Sept. 23
8 p.m.

Thursday Morning
Sept. 24
10 a.m.

at
Manhattan Jewish Congregation
1509 Wreath Ave.

Students who wish to celebrate with a local Jewish family may call
Matt — 532-6096
Dave — 539-6177 (evenings)

$19.99 SALE

at
FAVORITE LABEL FASHIONS FOR LESS

OPEN
Sunday 1-5
M-Sat 9:30-5:30, Thurs. til 8:30

Special Group of SWEATERS by
Bold Signals, Crystal, Picket & Smith reg. $30.00 now $19.99

PANTS by U.S. Wear reg. $32.00 now $19.99

SKIRTS by
Jordache reg. $32.00 now $19.99

G.J. Forbes reg. $32.00 now $19.99

SHIRTS by
Desert Rose reg. $28.00 now $19.99

DENIM JEANS reg. $32.00 now $19.99

DENIM SKIRTS reg. $38.00 now $19.99

Sale Good Thru Sept. 27

331 Poyntz, Manhattan
945 Mass., Lawrence

Lafene Health Center

"Your Medical Facility"

- Outpatient Clinic
- Lafemme (GYN) Clinic
- Allergy Clinic
- Mental Health Clinic
- Laboratory
- Physical Therapy Department
- Pharmacy
- X-Ray Department
- Dietary Counseling
- Sports Medicine Clinic
- Wart Clinic

• Clinic Hours: 8-11:30 a.m., 1-4:30 p.m.
• 24 hours, 7 days a week health care services

532-6544 "We Care" about your health

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, September 16, 1987 ■ Page 4

Parking solutions exist if people look

Everybody's all fired up about parking on campus. "I pay $22 a year to park on campus, and I can't ever find a space!" Not enough spaces, the police department oversells, more freshmen on campus — all these factors contribute to the problem, and no solution is forthcoming.

Well, to tell you the truth, I don't know what all the ruckus is about. The answers are as easy as a P.E. 101 final. That's right, there are all kinds of solutions to the problem of parking on campus. All it takes is a little creativity — and maybe readjusting a few priorities a little bit.

Many people claim the problem began when freshmen were allowed to bring their cars to school. Freshmen, however, argue that having their autos available is essential and should not be denied. I propose a compromise. Make all freshmen drive compact cars. Have you seen some of those cruisers anchored in the freshman lots? I mean, you can square dance inside an old LTD and still have room for the band. One of those Queen Marys takes up the space of three or four sub-compacts. Freshman drivers might end up being a lot better acquainted with their knees, but it would be a small price to pay for increased parking space.

Next year, varsity basketball will move out of Ahearn Fieldhouse permanently. What better use of this massive indoor space than a parking garage? Stick a couple more floors in there and voila — instant parking structure

Commentary

DOUG FOLK
Collegian Columnist

with an excellent location on campus. Hey, we've renovated old gymnasiums successfully before, so this should be a piece of cake. It has been suggested that a shuttle bus system be implemented to carry people from the football stadium parking lot to campus. While this isn't too bad an idea, who wants to ride a boring, old bus? Let's spice up the idea a little to give an incentive to use the service.

Instead of a bus, we could take a page from Topeka's book and use trolleys. Or how about something exciting and picturesque to wake you up in the morning, like a sky lift? Or, since we are the state's premiere agricultural school, maybe we should be true to our heritage (and our image) and implement a type of shuttle system that would also be the most cost-effective: hayrack rides.

An indirect solution to the parking problem would be for the police to start ticketing people who obliviously plow through crosswalks while people are using them. Evidently, the problem is many drivers think those big white lines on the street are lane lines for a drag strip. Perhaps more people would walk to campus, instead of driving, if they didn't feel they were putting their lives in danger by crossing the street.

There are plenty of big, hardly used areas on campus that could be annexed into the campus parking system.

It all comes down to a little creativity, and a clear definition of priorities. If aesthetics are truly important, then more lots are probably out. And our financial situation precludes the construction of a beautiful new parking structure. But solutions are around, although none are magical or miraculous. I've given you some of mine.

Parents responsible for childrens' viewing

Recently, ABC News invited a group of parents to watch films containing graphic depictions of violent brutality. Fathers winced and mothers cried as a woman was raped and murdered on the screen.

One woman said she felt sick. All were stunned when told such films might be readily available to their children through video stores.

Films like these, including "Faces of Death," may be rented by children from video stores because they carry no rating. They have been released directly to video stores and not to theaters. Only movies released to theaters are rated by the Motion Picture Association of America.

While some stores have their own rating system, thus limiting the movies children may rent, others do not. This lack of a nationwide rating system has lead some parents' groups to demand one for films released directly to video stores.

While this may seem a convenient solution to the problem, it is actually a bad one. It only allows parents to evade their responsibilities as nurturers of their children.

People who view violence repeatedly are desensitized to it. They lose their capacity to appreciate the devastation a victim feels when subjected to a violent attack. Children, viewing violent material without their parents guidance, can grow to become less compassionate, more violent adults.

Conflicts in violent films are often depicted as easily settled by the last gunfight or bombing raid. Most adult frustrations are not caused by conflicts between good and evil. They are often the result of a complex meeting of random factors. For example, how fast cars move down the interstate may have more to do with poor highway design and changing traffic patterns than the moral quality of other drivers.

Violent videos can also teach children sex roles which may bring them harm as adults. Many violent films show brutal rape scenes because of the strong emotions evoked by the depiction of that crime.

Yet, they also often portray the woman as enjoying the sexual aspects of the assault. A young woman may feel she should submit to pressure to have sex because "she will enjoy it."

But violent films, with the guidance of a parent, can help a child learn the full effects of violence. If children are allowed to openly and honestly express their responses to violent material, they may learn the value of compassion.

The television set and the VCR have become the babysitters of our time. Without someone to show children how to interpret the images pouring forth from them, they also become the parents of our next generation.

Liz Dole's resignation should be respected

Elizabeth Dole, transportation secretary and the only woman in President Reagan's Cabinet, is resigning her post to work full time in her husband's campaign for the presidency.

Members of Robert Dole's staff have urged her to quit her current job to devote more time to his quest. Elizabeth Dole has said, "I love my job and the challenges it gives me."

The decision was hers to make, and whatever may result from it, she should not be condemned. Some may say it is in bad feminist form for her to quit for her husband's interests.

It is doubtful she would be criticized if she would resign to work for any other candidate. Ensuring Robert Dole get elected could be as important to her as her current job.

The jobs cannot be qualitatively compared by anyone else except her.

Others say she must quit because of the conflict of interest of being transportation secretary and a candidate's wife. She could, critics say, use the office to benefit the campaign in obvious and not so obvious ways. Legally, this argument is implausible; as transportation secretary she is independent of her husband.

As a moral argument it isn't very strong. Everyone could use jobs to benefit a candidate. Besides, few questioned her loyalties to the office until the campaign.

The Secretary of Transportation job was Dole's to keep or give up. It was her decision, and she should be supported.

Letters

Language assault

Editor,

I am a strong supporter of women's rights, but find Leigh Ann Wheeler's letter (Sept. 10) characteristic of the self-righteous ignorance that will occasionally damage any movement. The English language is an ancient and honorable part of our heritage, and should not be subject to the whims and misinterpretations of a strident few.

President Wefald may find it politically expedient to condone the excision of rich and resonant words from the English language, as well as the corruption of its grammar, but we should not confuse politics with truth. Viewpoints like Wheeler's will probably ensure that politicians will never give us another Gettysburg Address, but journalists are still free to aspire to good writing.

George R. Clark II
professor of geology

Religious belief

Editor,

This article is in response to the August 27th editorial on religion. I believe Mike Krueger's article was provocative, but unfortunately very misleading and unreasonable.

Fist, the editorial stated that most of our religious books are "horribly outdated to comply with current standards." Your logic is lacking on this point. Religious books, and the morals they put forth, were based on what people believed were God's intentions and divine will. To say that those books are now outdated because our society's values have changed would mean that God's intentions and divine will would continuously have to change in order to keep "current" with man's "standards." The obvious truth, however, is that man is supposed to meet God's standards and not the other way around.

Even if you are one who does not believe that certain books actually contain the intentions and purposes of God, your argument is untenable. At the times they were written, these books were important to people because they dealt with important moral questions and human conflicts. Such issues included war, abuses of government, stealing, jealousy, murder, adultery, etc. These conflicts are still with us today (and will continue to be.) To the extent that these books helped people hundreds of years ago deal with and understand these problems, they are just as relevant and applicable today.

Before closing, I feel compelled to address at least one of the atrocities committed in your article. You suggested that a possible reason for the Catholic prohibition of birth control is to increase the number of Catholics and thus the church's coffers. The true reason is brought out in both historic and current dialogue on the issue. It is Catholic doctrine that the primary purpose of sex is procreation. According to the Bible, God commanded man to "be fruitful and multiply." Using birth control, according to the Catholic church, would be an interference with the will of God. Whether you believe in this doctrine or not is of little consequence. However, it is a journalistic impropriety to make such an incredible and damaging suggestion without thorough research and evidence. Are we to think (foolishly) that thousands of priests the world over are taking part in a conspiracy to deceive Catholics just to raise money?

Stephen Craig Moore
graduate in psychology

Drunks in crowd

Editor,

From a non-drinker's point of view, this is a letter of complaint about what I believe (after witnessing Saturday's football game) was a very stupid move. Bringing containers to the games now is what I am talking about. I can understand about trying to please the fans and draw more attendance, but this is ridiculous.

It was bad enough the previous three years that I have been here with people sneaking alcohol in. Now, allowing it to be brought in is throwing gas on the fire. I saw a few people Saturday, swaying because they could not stand up straight from the Jack Daniels in their brown paper bag.

I tell you, I would be very embarrassed to bring my parents here to see a football game in an atmosphere like this one. I hate to say that, but it is the truth.

Stuart Lantz
senior in landscape architecture

Farrell animals

Editor,

I am glad to see that coach Parrish is maintaining mandatory study for the football players on weekday evenings. However, couldn't we find a more appropriate place for them besides the library? The zoo, perhaps?

Please go into Farrell Library between the hours of 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and sample my bitterness by trying to research or study quietly in the cathedral room or especially the periodicals reading room. Here they huddle around tables talking at normal speaking level, laughing, distracting others, accosting women and being a general first-string nuisance!

Maybe some of us don't take our studies seriously, but I paid my fees for the library too, and I would expect it to be at least free from distractions. I promise them I won't try to study at the stadium during one of their games, and if I want to look at animals, I'll visit Sunset Zoo.

Pat McGranahan
sophomore in speech education

Accurate reporting

Editor,

I'd like to suggest that Collegian commentary reporters, before writing articles about the county commission, city commission, animal ordinances or anything pertaining to area government consult with someone in authority beforehand to make certain that factual errors do not get published. It would prevent needless confusion and exasperation.

A long-time resident, I know all our eight commissioners personally. They are dedicated to making decisions that will benefit our area. They spend long hours in meetings, thrashing out problems. They deserve accurate reporting.

The Collegian has much to offer the community. I enjoy reading it, but want to be assured I'm reading facts, not fiction.

Mrs. S.J. Parker
Manhattan resident

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116 or mailed to the Collegian Editorial Page Editor, Kedzie 103.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lunds-trom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Student studies overseas

By Linda Huddleston
Collegian Reporter

Every year, four Kansas college students are given the opportunity to study overseas, experience foreign cultures and make new friends thanks to the support of the Rotary Club International.

Rotary scholars receive tuition, room and board, books, travel expenses and spending money to attend a foreign school of their choice.

Teresa Lewis, senior in electrical engineering, attended a private graduate business school in Lyons, France.

"As a rotary scholar, I was given the chance to learn about France's economy and to promote good will," Lewis said. "It was a good experience for me."

Lewis was one of two students selected from the western region of Kansas. She had to fill out her application in English and then translate it into French. She was also given vocabulary, grammar and logic tests in French to see if she had command of the language.

"The translation of my application was difficult," Lewis said, "but it was simple compared with the language tests."

After being selected as one of 72 scholars from 17 countries to travel to France, Lewis left in May 1986 to work as an intern in a French construction company before starting school.

"My internship helped me a lot," Lewis said. "Working with the people made me realize the areas of the language I needed improvement in."

Lewis, who started school in September, said the interviews to get into her school were very intensive.

"There were 700 applicants, and only 83 of us were accepted," Lewis said. "That tells it all. I was the first American to ever be accepted there, so obviously they expected a lot from me."

College life in France is a lot like Kansas, Lewis said. She lived in a dorm and attended classes from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. every weekday and sometimes on Saturdays.

"In our free time, we went to restaurants, bars and dance halls," Lewis said. "The Europeans like to have fun just like we do. However, there was less time for fun."

Lewis' course of study was broken into three semesters of classes. The first semester, students take general business courses to familiarize them with common business practices. The second semester consists of courses that relate directly to the students' chosen specialization areas.

"I chose international trade as my specialization," Lewis said. "There is so much unnoticed potential for American products in the European markets. It's incredible what could be done."

Lewis said most American products, if marketed with the correct strategy, would sell to the average European consumer.

As the third phase of schooling, students go into the businesses of France and find an internship with a French firm. They act as consultants for the firms, and they propose plans to solve financial, marketing and production problems facing the businesses.

Lewis said her business had the same problem as many other European businesses — a poor marketing strategy.

"It's just not feasible to apply one marketing strategy over the whole market," Lewis said. "Especially when your market consists of people who speak different languages."

After her internship, Lewis presented her thesis to a jury made up of her adviser, the companies' executives and past students of the school.

"The company receives the written thesis to examine," Lewis said. "Hopefully they'll put my findings and suggestions to good use to help solve their problems."

Upon graduation from the school, Lewis received a European M.B.A. She plans on utilizing her experiences in France to help her get a job in exporting American products into Europe.

"There is a lot to be learned from the Europeans," Lewis said. "They have a misconception that if you don't live in California or New York, you aren't important."

Lewis believes students are the key to developing good will among countries.

"It's up to us to show them what our country is all about and what we have to offer," Lewis said. "I told them that Kansas is a neat place and that our state does have a lot to offer. There is a lot more to the U.S. than California and New York. Who knows? Maybe they'll take my advice and come visit."

Farrell Library gains Wilsondisc system

By Nancy Hill
Collegian Reporter

Infotrac, the current data system at Farrell Library, is being replaced this week by a new system called Wilsondisc.

The new system will have three different data bases: the Reader's Guide Index, the Social Science Index and the General Science Index. Two computers will be programmed with the Reader's Guide Index, one computer with the Social Science Index and one computer with the General Science Index.

"I think the Wilsondisc system will be more reflexive of what we have in our collection," said John Johnson, chairman of the research information services for Farrell. "It reflects the broad spectrum of class assignments and topics."

Johnson said Infotrac leaned heavily toward business and many of the references it gave were not available in Farrell's resources.

"We have better than 90 percent of the journals in the indexes on Wilsondisc, contrary to 65 percent of those cited in Infotrac," Johnson said.

Although Farrell will lose the business part of Infotrac in switching systems, it will still accommodate business information through the Business Periodicals Index, the Reader's Guide Index data system and the Social Science Index data system for economy-related materials.

Wilsondisc runs on compact discs which will be updated quarterly. The Social Science Index and the Reader's Guide Index will contain information from 1983 to the present, and the General Science Index will contain information from 1984 to the present.

Johnson believes Wilsondisc is a more powerful machine for the library patron who wants to learn the varying levels available for reference searching.

The basic search mode of Wilsondisc is the browse mode.

Firestone

COUPON

ENGINE TUNE-UP

Limited time savings on tune-up for electronic ignition cars. We'll install new spark plugs, adjust idle speed, set timing, test battery and charging system and inspect other key engine parts.

$49<sup>95</sup> 4-Cyl.
$59<sup>95</sup> 6-Cyl. $69<sup>95</sup> 8-Cyl.

Coupon expires Sept. 16, 1987
K-STATE

COUPON

LUBE, OIL & FILTER

We'll lubricate your vehicle's chassis, drain the old oil and install up to 5 quarts of new oil and a new oil filter. Most American cars and light trucks and most Daimlers, Toyotas, VW's and Hondas.

$15<sup>95</sup>

Coupon expires Sept. 16, 1987
K-STATE

90 DAYS SAME AS CASH on revolving charge at Firestone stores and many dealers. Minimum monthly payment required. All finance charges refunded when paid as agreed. We also honor VISA, MasterCard, Discover Card, Carte Blanche and American Express. Prices and credit plans shown are available at Firestone Stores. See your independent dealers for their prices and credit plans. See starred (*) locations for MasterCard service.

Across from Dillards—Town Center Mall
Mon.-Fri. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
307 N. 3rd Sat. 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Ph. 776-4849

PRINTED T-SHIRTS

CUSTOM DESIGN for PARTY FAVORS & GROUPS

Largest selection of shirts in Manhattan

Ballard's

IN AGGIEVILLE

HOURS:
MON.-THUR. 8:30 a.m.-8 p.m.
FRI.-SAT. 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
SUNDAY 1-5 p.m.

Are you having a mid-week crisis?

WED.
$2 Pitchers
$1 Wells

Beauty Mart

126 SARBER LANE

Welcomes Kim Giersch

Kim has 3 years of experience and specializes in style cuts, texturizing perms, sculptured nails, ear piercing.

Come see Kim & bring this coupon to receive a special discount on most

Perms $28<sup>00</sup> with cut and style
Men's Haircut & style $6<sup>00</sup>
Women's cut & style $8<sup>00</sup>
Ear Piercing $6<sup>00</sup>

Kim works 5 days a week and 12-5 on Sundays

Beauty Mart

Next to Wal-Mart and Kmart
Coupon expires Sept. 30, 1987 537-7118

HOMESTYLE DOUBLE BURGER NOW 99¢

Dairy Queen
brazier

HERE'S A HEFTY HUNK OF A DEAL.
12th and Moro 1015 N. 3rd
Aggieville Manhattan
WE TREAT YOU RIGHT®

* U.S. Pat. Off., Am. D.D. Corp. Copyright 1987 Am. D.D. Corp., Mpls., MN Printed in U.S.A. Offer good thru 9/18/87

SOUTHERN SUN

ENDS FRIDAY

the TANNING CENTER

$2 tans

Buy All You Want

776-8060 519 N. 12th
Must be used by Nov. 1st (next to Domino's)

- COMPLETELY PRIVATE, CLEAN, SOUNDPROOF ROOMS
- FEATURING THE WOLFF SYSTEM TANNING BEDS
- FEATURING WOLFF'S BELLARIUM "S" SUN BULBS
- MOST TANNING ACCELERATOR

Falsetto's PIZZA

539-3830

Falsetto's Pizza Price Buster!
The Best For Less
Two Pizzas
$5.99

MENU
Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
	TWO 10"	10" & 14"	TWO 14"
Cheese .....	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 Item .....	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 Items .....	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 Items .....	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 Items .....	9.79	12.99	14.59
Deluxe .....	9.79	12.99	14.59
Veggie .....	9.79	12.99	14.59
Supreme .....	10.74	14.24	15.99
Each Additional Item .....	.95	1.25	1.40

1127 Moro - In Aggieville

ARTCARVED CLASS RINGS

DON'T DELAY!

Now is the time to make your choice. Because every ArtCarved college ring—from handsome traditional to contemporary styles—is on sale now! You'll be impressed with the fine ArtCarved craftsmanship that's backed by a Full Lifetime Warranty. And you'll appreciate the savings. Don't miss out!

The Quality. The Craftsmanship. The Reward You Deserve.

SAVE UP TO $60 ON GOLD RINGS!

September 14-17 10a.m. to 4p.m.
K-STATE UNION BOOKSTORE

© 1987 ArtCarved Class Rings. Deposit Required

Updated Tradition

Woody's ladies

1225 Moro Aggieville

Open M. S. 9:30-5:30
Thurs. til 8:30

Entertainment

Director plans concerts for coliseum

Thomas seeks acts to perform in facility

By Sally Neary
Collegian Reporter

While the completion of the Fred Bramlage Coliseum slowly approaches, Charles E. Thomas, director of the facility, will be concentrating on attracting entertainment to Manhattan.

Thomas said he hasn't scheduled any concert acts yet because the "big name" groups do not know what their schedules will be for next year.

"We want to try to catch people on their routing," he said. That is, he wants to bring the entertainment acts to Manhattan when they are touring from the east coast to the west or from the west to the east. He hopes the acts that may be performing at the Landon Arena in Topeka will come to Manhattan on their tours.

Before coming to K-State, Thomas was the associate director of The Sun Dome at the University of Tampa in southern Florida where the competition among coliseums trying to attract entertainment acts was great.

"The concert business there kept going," he said.

The Sun Dome set stage for a variety of musical acts including Hank Williams Jr., Kenny Rogers, Jimmy Buffett, Huey Lewis, Madonna, Kiss, U2, Hall and Oates, Billy Joel, Ozzy Osbourne, Amy Grant and many others.

Thomas said Bramlage Coliseum needs to attract the contemporary acts that will draw an audience from the K-State student body and from citizens of the Manhattan and Fort Riley areas. He thinks Huey Lewis, Neil Diamond, Elton John and Billy Joel would all be popular acts in this area.

"It's real critical for these type of things to be attended and for the citizens to get the best out of the entertainment," he said.

Because K-State is a new market area, it is also important for the coliseum to establish a good reputation with the entertainment agencies so the agencies will continue to promote their groups to Manhattan, he said.

"We want the building facility to be as attractive as possible," he said.

Because of Thomas' prior experience in planning entertainment events, he knows a majority of the promoters and agencies. He has worked with promoters William Morris and Howard Rose and agencies of Premiere ICM. Rose is the promoter of acts such as Lionel Richie, Jimmy Buffett, Elton John, Heart and Dan Fogelberg.

"It's critical to let agencies know you're here," Thomas said.

He said the people he has worked with before know he is working at K-state now.

Thomas said he will be working with the department of continuing education as a co-host for seminar meetings and conferences. Trade shows and cultural events will also be brought in depending on the needs of the University.

"Right now I'm still getting my feet on the ground," Thomas said.

He said he's trying to touch base with all University people as well as the people of Manhattan to work out details of getting equipment together and working on a budget.

Video viewing enjoyable Attempted murder common thread

By Gary Leffler
Collegian Reviewer

Recently, I found myself gazing over some of the new video cassette releases at a local rental store. I took two of them home with me. They were two distinctly different types of movies with the only common thread between them being an attempted murder. To my surprise, both were very enjoyable, while remaining very different.

Videos

The first film I rented was "Crimes of the Heart," starring Diane Keaton, Sissy Spacek and Jessica Lange. It's the story of three sisters as they come together after one of them has shot her husband. It's a story dealing with sisterhood, loneliness and peace of mind.

The film surprised me in many ways. First of all, the screenplay was written by Beth Henly based upon her own stage play of the same name. Often when a film is adapted from the stage, it becomes static, but this was not the case for "Crimes of the Heart." The flow of action was consistent and I never felt once that a scene was shot outdoors or in a car just for the sake of location change.

Secondly, the close intimate feeling of the stage was retained within the film. Many of the camera shots were tight and rarely did a panoramic view dominate the screen. Instead, the audience is held in close, personal contact with the characters.

Finally, the characters themselves make "Crimes of the Heart" enjoyable. The setting is Hazelhurst, Miss., and the people living there are funny, charming, heartwarming and many times just plain crazy. It's a relaxed yet exciting world to visit and its commentary on loneliness, strength of mind and strength of heart is definitely worth seeing.

The second film I saw was "The Bedroom Window," starring Steve Guttenberg and Elizabeth McGovern. I wasn't expecting much from this film, but I was proven wrong rather quickly.

"The Bedroom Window" opens as Terry Lambert (Steve Guttenberg) prepares for an overnight guest. As it turns out this guest is his boss's wife and following their roll in the sheets she hears a scream coming from the street below. She witnesses an attempted rape but cannot bring herself to inform the authorities because her husband would consequently discover her affair.

To solve all his lover's problems, Lambert offers to phone the police for her and tell them what he saw — or rather what she saw. This works fine until the abduction becomes part of a murder spree with Lambert as the only eyewitness (who is really no witness at all).

From here the film follows an extremely tight plotline to the end, each scene vitally linked to the others, the plot twisting yet one more time. The question of justice and doing the right thing rams head-on into the brick wall of loyalty.

Reddy to perform in place of Miller act

By The Collegian Staff

Performing artist Helen Reddy has been scheduled as the replacement act for the Roger Miller portion of the Miller/Tom Chapin Concert next week, said McCain director Richard Martin.

Miller, who earlier "exercised an option to do something else," canceled his appearance in Manhattan.

Reddy will perform at 8 p.m. Sept. 25 in McCain Auditorium following actor/entertainer Tom Chapin, who will open the concert.

Reddy, an Australian-born entertainer, is known for her musical hits "I Am Woman," "Angie Baby," "Delta Dawn" and "I Don't Know How to Love Him."

"With Reddy being an international entertainer, it follows our theme of an international season," Martin said.

Tickets to the Reddy/Chapin concert are on sale at the McCain box office from noon to 5 p.m. weekdays. Tickets bearing the Roger Miller logo will be honored for Reddy's performance.

Tickets for the concert are from $12 to $19.

Hollywood movie 'Kansas' invades governor's office

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The governor's desk is in the secretary of state's office. The Kansas Bureau of Investigation works out of a legislative committee room.

Well, that happens when the Capitol goes Hollywood.

About 100 members of the cast and crew of the movie "Kansas" invaded the Capitol on Tuesday to film inside the building and on the Statehouse grounds, with plans of continuing shooting in Topeka until the end of next week. Trans-World Entertainment, the Los Angeles company making the film, has been shooting in northeast Kansas since late July.

"We had a good dry run here," said Joe Ellis, the film's production manager. "This is just fabulous."

Filming started on the south side of the Capitol in the morning, and, after a barbecue lunch on the first floor, the crew set up for some interior shots. However, crew members departed for a location in Rossville, about 10 miles northwest of Topeka, to "take advantage of whatever sunshine we've got."

The movie tells the story of a drifter who travels through the Midwest, becomes a fugitive and gets involved with a farmer's daughter. It stars Matt Dillon and Andrew McCarthy.

Two other productions have been filmed in the area in the last five years, the television movie, "The Day After," and the feature film, "Nice Girls Don't Explode." Also, the television miniseries "Murder Ordained" was shot in and near Emporia.

Jerry Jones, film coordinator for the Kansas Film Commission, said the filming of "Kansas" is evidence of the state's improved stature in Hollywood.

Jones said that in Fiscal Year 1986, companies spent $1 million on productions in Kansas, compared with $6 million for fiscal 1987, which ended June 30. In the last three months, productions companies have already spent $6 million in Kansas, Jones said.

Juniors & Seniors Pssssssst

NOW! YOU CAN RECEIVE IN EXCESS OF $1,000 PER MONTH, PROVIDED YOU CAN QUALIFY FOR A PRESTIGIOUS POSITION WITHIN THE UNITED STATES NAVY, WHILE YOU'RE STILL IN SCHOOL. THIS IS NOT A ROTC PROGRAM; NO HAIRCUTS OR UNIFORMS . . .

***QUALIFICATIONS***

- * 1 YEAR OF CALCULUS AND CALCULUS BASED PHYSICS.
- * GPA OF 3.4 IN A TECHNICAL MAJOR.
- * BE IN GOOD PHYSICAL HEALTH.
- * HAVE GOOD COLOR VISION.

FOR MORE INFORMATION STOP BY AND TALK TO SENIOR CHIEF MIKE ABBOTT AT THE ENGINEERING/COMPUTER SCIENCE CAREER FAIR ON 16 SEP. OR CALL 1-800-821-5110.

NAVY OFFICER.

LEAD THE ADVENTURE.

ICAT

MEETING

Thursday, Sept. 17 at 12:30 p.m.
Union Big 8 Room

Guest Speaker

Coach Stan Parrish

—Sign-up for—

- 1) Superstars Competition
  - 2) K-State vs Missouri Game
- Road Trip at Columbia, Oct. 10
Sign-up begins 10:30 a.m.,
Sept. 23 at ICAT table in Union

FAJITAS

Heard the talk? Fajitas have come to PINATA, and are they ever worth the wait! Chunks of marinated steak, or chicken, with fresh onion slices served sizzling on a hot skillet. Comes with a wide array of toppings for your choosing: guacamole, shredded lettuce, sour cream, salsa, chopped tomatoes & fresh grated cheese. A serving of rice, refried beans, & tortillas complete your meal. Don't miss out, try our Fajitas today!

1219 Blumont
(913) 539-3166

Open Daily
11 a.m.

ATTENTION
Organization Pictures
for the Royal Purple
are being taken in
FAIRCHILD 202

Just When You
Thought It Was Safe
Alpha Chi Omega
Greek Playboy Returns

InFocus

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, September 16, 1987 ■ Page 7

Staff/Andy Nelson
Pope John Paul II greets the crowd with Archbishop Patrick Flores of the San Antonio Diocese.

Staff/Steve Wolgast
Sebastian Hernandez, San Antonio, hands out bulletins before the Mass begins. Hernandez was among 5,000 volunteer ushers.

Thousands journey to Texas to see the # HOLY FATHER

By Andy Nelson
Collegian Photographer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — For the hundreds of thousands of people who turned out Sunday in the hot Texas sun to celebrate Mass with Pope John Paul II, the event was the end of a long day's journey.

The 5,000 ushers, who were to help control the crowd of 350,000 worshippers, arrived at 2:30 a.m. to begin their 17-hour day. They lined up and were issued papal usher baseball caps, and they donned sashes which they had purchased for $5 each.

Crowds began pouring into the 210-acre Mass site west of San Antonio at 3:45 a.m., 45 minutes before the official opening time. Those who had made the early morning pilgrimage quickly staked their claim to a spot that would give them the best vantage point, nearly 150 yards away, from which to see the pope celebrate Mass.

The voices of the Sacred Hearts

Men's Choir and a group of Polish choirs greeted worshippers at 7 a.m. — four hours before the beginning of Mass and three hours before John Paul was to arrive in San Antonio.

Anticipation increased as the 10:30 a.m. papal tour neared. The crowd pressed forward to the rope barrier lining the route as an announcer informed the crowd that the pope — aboard the papal airplane Shepherd One — had landed at Kelly Air Force Base.

Hours of waiting came to an end as a fanfare signaled the pope's arrival at the Mass site. The Popemobile passed through the cheering throng with John Paul blessing the pilgrims as he went by.

The pontiff walked onto the massive altar with the crowd cheering. Then he walked from one side to the other, arms extended in a traditional papal greeting.

For thousands, seeing the pope was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. Their long hours of waiting had been rewarded.

Staff/Andy Nelson
Entrepreneurs saw the papal visit as a chance to make money, but reduced prices by the Mass' end.

Staff/Steve Wolgast, John Thelander
LEFT: Telephoto lenses gave those far away from the altar the chance to watch the pope's activities up close. Invited guests were allowed to within 150 yards of the altar to watch the Mass. ABOVE: Weather in the 90s took its toll on an usher who fanned herself with a bulletin. The heat index, a combination of temperature and humidity, reached 102 by mid-afternoon, causing nearly 500 worshippers to collapse.

Staff/Andy Nelson
The pope's San Antonio visit was the fourth on his nine-city U.S. tour. More than 350,000 pilgrims went to the 210-acre site west of the Alamo City to hear him deliver his message in English and Spanish. John Paul told Catholics to return to the sacraments and reconcile with God and one another, and urged young people to look beyond the material aspects of life and embrace a spiritual life.

Orientation class helps students

By Michelle Engemann
Collegian Reporter

Retaining new students has become a priority and is the reason for a new freshman orientation course, said Judy Lynch, assistant director and instructor of academic assistance.

"We worked with the colleges of Education, Business Administration, Human Ecology and Arts and Sciences because they don't already have orientation programs," Lynch said.

Lynch said letters about the course were sent to a random sampling of 350 Kansas 1987 high school graduates.

Lynch said only Kansas graduates had been informed of the course because contact had already been established with them through admissions representatives.

The course is taught by the admissions representatives and instructors and staff in the four colleges involved. Lynch said most of the students were placed in sections taught by the representatives who recruited them.

"The idea is to keep as much contact with those students as possible and make their transition here as easy as possible," Lynch said.

Tim Balfour, admissions representative, said students enroll in the course for various reasons, such as to become better acquainted with campus, to adjust to college life and to have the opportunity to meet and talk with other students.

"The students are really seeming to enjoy the course," Balfour said.

One of the first activities for the students in the course was a reception attended by President Jon Wefald; Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement; and James Coffman, provost. Lynch said students were encouraged to invite a member of the faculty they had come in contact with in order to get to know the faculty better.

Credit in the one-hour course is based on reading assignments, reaction papers on campus activities and attendance at seminars and special activities.

Lynch said the topics for the seminars were chosen to help students adapt to college and living away from home. Some of the topics include study skills, exploring majors and careers, and managing stress.

"We have been getting a lot of good feedback," Lynch said.

Wichita
Family Planning Inc.

Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services

Free Pregnancy Testing

Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

now a club open til 2

COME IN AND TRY A POPPER!

Thurs. & Fri. you'll be dancing with IN/OUT
Thurs., Sept. 24th The Verandas

Show Your K-State Spirit in a Whole New Way!

Use these cards and support
the K-State Alumni Association.

Stop by the KSU Alumni Association Student Alumni Board table outside the Stateroom on the 2nd floor of the K-State Union on September 16, 17 and 18 to pick up your application or stop by Hollis House during working hours.

FREE!
ZOOM LENS

JUST IN TIME FOR FALL PICTURE FUN!

Buy any one of these new 35mm SLR cameras by September 19 and get a Zoom Telephoto lens absolutely FREE with camera purchase. This incredible offer is good only for a limited amount of lenses. Hurry in before the FREE lenses are gone.

$229<sup>99</sup>
KONICA FT-1
With 28-80mm
Promaster Zoom

Get a 100-200mm f4.5 Osawa FREE-Save $69* Motorized automatic 35mm reflex with auto film loading. Shutter preference automation lets you choose speeds to stop action. Dedicated flash operation with optional flash units.

$399<sup>99</sup>
NIKON N2000
with 28-70mm f2.8
Pro Zoom

Get an 80-200mm f4.5 Promaster FREE-Save $129* Dual program automation with motorized film advance for fast and easy shooting. Auto DX film speed selection, TTL flash control. Camera includes Nikon Inc. USA limited warranty.

$329<sup>99</sup>
PENTAX PROGRAM
PLUS with 35-70mm
Sigma Zoom

Get an 80-200mm f3.9 Matrix zoom free—Save $99* Compact program reflex for fast focus and shoot operation. Manual override to 1/1000. Dedicated flash operation with optional flash. Includes Pentax USA limited warranty/registration.

$229<sup>99</sup>
VIVITAR V335
With 35-70mm
Zoom Lens

Get a Vivitar Starblitz 80-200mm f4.5 Zoom FREE Save $119* Dependable mechanical shutter works even in cold winter weather. Easy to use LED metering. Uses popular K-mount lenses. Compact and lightweight design to carry everywhere.

FREE! TELEPHOTO LENS

Buy one of these easy to use autofocus 35mm cameras and get a FREE lens set. Save $40 and more.

$139<sup>99</sup>
CANON MC
SURE SHOT

With FREE Telephoto Lens Ultra compact and lightweight, autofocus and auto exposure, sliding front cover to protect the lens, motor advance and rewind. Includes Canon USA Inc. limited warranty/registration card.

$159<sup>99</sup>
RICOH AF-70

With FREE Telephoto Lens Ultra compact autofocus that does everything for you except fire the shutter. Auto-exposure, auto-load, auto DX film speed selection, auto flash actuation, auto rewind at end of roll and autofilm advance.

$119<sup>99</sup>
RICOH AF-5

With FREE Telephoto Lens Our best buy in a motorized autofocus 35mm. Built-in flash, auto-load, auto-exposure, motorized film rewind. Fast f2.8 lens. FREE lens offer applies to models in this ad only. Sale ends September 19 or sooner if our sales exceed stock limitations.

Wolfe's CAMERA & VIDEO
635 Kansas Avenue • Phone 913-235-1386
Topeka, Kansas 66601-1437

NU WEIGH.
BODY TONING SYSTEMS

NEW! EXCITING
APPROACH TO EXERCISE
SHAPE UP THE NU WEIGH

NO:

STRENUOUS EFFORT
STRAIN
FATIGUE
TAKING HOURS OF EXHAUSTING EXERCISE
MEMBERSHIP

Time is running out on the September
Special of 8 sessions for $36<sup>00</sup>

So call 537-0817 NOW to make an appointment for your FREE 1st session

GRAND OPENING

All Week Sept. 14-19

- 10% Discount on all purchases over $20
- $3 off on Tune Ups
- FREE Bicycle Water Bottle with $10 purchase service all makes

aggie Bike Station
776-2372
612 N. Manhattan
(behind Hardees)

SAFEWAY

222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson
539-3226 776-5202

New Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

Specials Sept. 16-22

Stroh's Beer 15/12 oz. cans	$4.79
Assorted Ruffles Potato Chips 6.5 oz. bag	99¢
Banquet Dinners 10 oz.-12 oz.	99¢
Cragmont Soda Pop 2 liter bottle	49¢
Tide detergent 42 oz., limit 2	$1.39

the shoe center

312 Poyntz
Downtown, Manhattan

QUITTING BUSINESS SALE

New Fall Arrivals
SAVE 30% to 50%!
Men's • Women's • Children's

MEN'S
	Reg.	NOW
Nunn Bush	50 <sup>00</sup>	29 <sup>00</sup>
Dexter	65 <sup>00</sup>	44 <sup>00</sup>
Bass	53 <sup>00</sup>	36 <sup>00</sup>
Hush Puppies	26 <sup>00</sup>	14 <sup>00</sup>
Fioraheim	75 <sup>00</sup>	44 <sup>00</sup>

WOMEN'S
	Reg.	NOW
SAS	50 <sup>00</sup>	34 <sup>00</sup>
Soft Spot	45 <sup>00</sup>	29 <sup>00</sup>
Naturalizer	50 <sup>00</sup>	34 <sup>00</sup>
Connie	38 <sup>00</sup>	18 <sup>00</sup>
Nicole	15 <sup>00</sup>	6 <sup>00</sup>
Dexter	40 <sup>00</sup>	23 <sup>00</sup>

TIME IS RUNNING OUT!

FoodWednesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, September 16, 1987 ■ Page 9

STIRRING UP EXCITEMENT

Stir-frying can transform the simplest cook into a knife-wielding master of the art of Oriental cooking.

The art of chopping, slicing and dicing will become a familiar practice to the stir-fry cook. Once these steps are completed, a genuine Chinese meal is at hand.

Sometimes referred to as "flitz-cooking," the art is in the preparation.

Meat and vegetables are cut into uniform bite-size pieces beforehand to allow for rapid and even cooking. Because the actual cooking time is brief, the color, texture, taste and nutritional values of the ingredients are preserved.

A theory offered by Reay Tannahill in her book "Food in History" suggests the stir-frying technique was developed by Chinese peasants.

Families left their homes in the early spring to live in field huts until the harvest in the fall. During this time of isolation, the peasants existed on limited resources.

Fuel was one problem. Not enough was available for extensive cooking. The vegetation was too green and sappy to use, and wood or charcoal was often carried from long distances.

According to Tannahill, it seems probable that the situation brought the evolution of that cooking style which, though requiring maximum preparation, also takes minimum cooking time — the stir-fry method.

Stir-frying requires few utensils: a sharp knife, a cutting board and a smooth, heavy skillet. While a wok may provide authenticity, a skillet that conducts heat evenly will amply suffice.

Peanut oil is the preferred oil to stir-fry with because it enhances the flavor of the food and can withstand the high temperatures required for stir-frying without smoking. Vegetable oil will also work well.

Several cutting methods may be used to prepare the meat and vegetables, including straight cutting, diagonal cutting, mincing, dicing, shredding and strip-and-roll diagonal cutting for uniform pieces.

The strip-and-roll cutting method involves diagonally cutting a vegetable such as carrots or asparagus. The guiding hand rolls the vegetable after each stroke so that the next cut slices through the surface exposed by the previous cut.

Pork, beef, lamb, white-meat poultry, shelled seafood and fresh vegetables have traditionally been the favorite ingredients for stir-frying.

Meat to be stir-fried is usually sliced in thin strips across the grain for tenderness and quick cooking. It should be cut into one-eighth- to one-fourth-inch shreds. Poultry and pork are cut into two-inch pieces, making them easier to cook and more juicy when done.

Beef should be cooked until almost done before combining the remaining ingredients. Pork is always thoroughly cooked.

Crisp, leafy vegetables and carrots are cut diagonally, and vegetables such as onions and mushrooms are cut straight so that the maximum amount of area is exposed to the heat during the cooking process.

Overcooking vegetables will quickly ruin the appeal of the dish. When vegetables are at their brightest colors, crispness and flavor are at their height.

Organization is vital to the successful stir-fry cook. The ingredients should all be cut and prepared before starting the actual cooking process and then arranged in the order of use. It helps to place the cut vegetables in separate containers to ease the confusion of adding the many ingredients.

In dishes with meat and vegetables, the ingredients are cooked separately and then later combined to complete the cooking process.

Seasonings are a must in stir-frying in order to bring out the flavor of the food. Seasonings and soy sauce should be added after the meat or fish has been partially cooked and then added gradually throughout the rest of the cooking process. If the seasoning is added too early, the meat may become tough.

Cutting and preparing the ingredients for stir-frying is the most time-consuming process. Once the cooking process gets started, stir-frying takes very little time.

Stir-frying is an ancient cooking practice of the Orient — a practice which takes practice, and once learned will allow the simple cook to perform like a Chinese chef.

Chicken with Vegetables

- 4 tablespoons peanut oil
- 3 slices ginger
- 2 scallions
- ¼ cups sliced mushrooms
- 1 package frozen peas
- 2 chicken breasts
- 2 egg whites
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ tablespoons cornstarch

Preparation:

Bone and slice chicken breasts into very thin strips. Beat egg whites, mix well with the salt and cornstarch. Add the chicken strips to this mixture; mix well. Chop ginger. Cut scallions into one-inch pieces. Defrost peas and drain mushrooms.

Cooking:

Heat one tablespoon of peanut oil. Add ginger and scallions and stir-fry a few times. Add mushrooms and frozen peas, continue stir-frying one minute. Remove to a plate. Heat rest of oil over high heat, stir-fry chicken breast mixture quickly for two minutes. Add vegetable mixture, mix well. Serve hot.

Story by Susan L'Ecuyer

Photography by Gary Lytle

Grocery cart derby: Are you the next fatality?

I'd like to talk about a certain job most of us hate to do.

Let me make one warning about grocery shopping: Never, go to the grocery store around 3 p.m. or after 5 p.m. You are open game for any frantic mother or career woman and their deadly steel cart.

I attempted this feat once, and I swore I would never do it again.

It all started with trying to find a parking spot. I drove a good 20 minutes before I saw an elderly woman backing out in

Food for Thought

SUSAN STAGGENBORG
Features
Editor

her Dodge Dart. Maneuvering my way into the spot, I was cut off suddenly by a screaming Honda full of screaming kids.

I shook my fist at the woman, and one of her kids stuck his tongue out at me. I think that woman told her kid to do that.

With my car parked and coupons in hand, I entered my favorite grocery store. I grabbed a cart and proceeded onward like a man with a mission.

My first encounter was with an older woman in the produce section. Reaching to squeeze a melon (the way my mother taught me), I was slapped on the hand and told "not to squeeze the fruit, you'll bruise it!" For fear of bringing back a broken hand, I dropped the melon and decided not to get any fruit.

The hustle and bustle of the grocery store at this time of day is incredible. People armed with metal carts and a bad attitude are in full force at this time of day.

Proceeding with caution like you would at any intersection is the rule to follow. If not, you take your life and your food into your own hands.

Turning blindly into a larger row could mean a nasty death for your feet and the poor cart that can become blindsided by an angry mother who hasn't got time for "stupid people."

Believe me, I've seen it happen.

I have even been cruising merrily along the aisle when, as I stop to get something in the freezers, a heavyset woman with a cart full of frozen diet dinners pushes me and my cart into the freezer. "Get you and your cart out of the way," she bellows.

If you make it safely through half of the aisles, you are what is considered to be a safe shopper. There are not too many of these people around at 5 p.m.

It can become quite a task to find a checkout line where there is not somebody standing in the nine-items-or-less line with 25 items. They claim that 15 cans of dogfood are all one item of the same thing.

Take this warning. The crash-up derby does exist at the grocery store, and you and your food could be the next fatality.

Fulbright scholar studies in Germany

By Jeff Stead
Collegian Reporter

Greg Jarrett, graduate in engineering, is spending this school year studying engineering in Germany with all of his expenses paid. He is not there courtesy of the Armed Services; he received this opportunity by winning a Fulbright scholarship.

"The Fulbright provides round-trip transportation, tuition and a monthly stipend for one academic year," said Walter Kolonosky, chairman of the Fulbright scholarship committee at K-State.

According to a pamphlet titled Fulbright and Other Grants for Graduate Study Abroad, "the purpose of the program is to enable the government of the United States to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries."

In order to be eligible for the scholarship, students must be entering their senior year or be enrolled in graduate school at the time they apply.

Kolonosky said selection of recipients is based upon grades, recommendations, a detailed plan of study, and a clear idea of why a particular plan of study should be accomplished abroad.

He said all applicants must specify a particular country and suggest a particular school, institute, or research center where they would like to study.

"This is an immense program administered through almost every college and university in the U.S.," Kolonosky said.

According to the pamphlet, there were 55 countries with 693 grants available for the 1987-88 school year — 3,221 applications were received in competition for these grants.

In K-State's history, 20 students have received this award and four have been named as alternates. During the past five years, nine K-State students have received Fulbright travel grants, Kolonosky said.

According to the pamphlet, "the primary source of funding is an annual appropriation made by the Congress to the U.S. Information Agency. Participating governments and host institutions in many countries and in the U.S. also contribute financially."

The Fulbright program originated in 1946 and was authorized as Public Law 87-256 under the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961.

The Fulbright scholarship committee at K-State received three applications last year. Of those three, two were recommended to the national committee. Jarrett was awarded a Fulbright, while Julie Sinclair, graduate in political science, was named as an alternate to go to Morocco and study political science.

Members of K-State's Fulbright selection committee are professors: Joseph Hajda, political science; Frank Orazem, agricultural economics; Jean Sloop, music; George Strecker, mathematics; and Kolonosky, modern languages and director of the Office of Study Abroad.

Kolonosky said the committee meets in mid-October to look over applications, interview candidates, and consult with other members of the academic community about a particular country or a particular discipline.

Competition for 1988-89 Fulbright scholarships began in May. The deadline for applications is Oct. 23.

Death is forever.

Heart disease
doesn't have to be.

This space provided as a public service.

Applications are now being accepted for SGA Treasurer

Responsibilities include:

- Compiling the annual SGA budget
- Representing the SGA budget during allocations
- Informing Student Senate of current SGA budget matters

Questions?

Call the Student Senate Hotline
532-7777

Applications are due in the SGS office,
Wednesday, September 23 at 5 p.m.

Ben Franklin Crafts

"Better quality for less."

FOR THE GREEKS

- Cross Stitch Books
- Paddle Frames for cross stitch
- Greek Letters (painted 1½")

Craft supplies for mother/daughter events

1101 Westloop Plaza
776-4910

Hours: M-F 9-9
Sat. 9-7
Sun. 1-6

LAFENE ALLERGY CLINIC

•20 minute wait after shot
to assure no allergic reaction

ACHOO!

1. "Allergy Shots" - bring info/sera from your allergist—$10
2. "Allergy Testing"
  - a. Skin Tests - $65
  - b. Blood Tests (RAST) - $65-135

•Room 113

KSU/ARMY DAY SPECIAL

Sancho
or Burrito 88¢ reg. $1.30
September 16-19

On the hill overlooking
Westloop

TACO HUT

2809 Clafflin 539 2091

IRON MAN '87

Sept.
18 & 19

FEATURING: ΘΞ, ΣΑΕ, ΑΤΩ, ΣΦΕ, ΣΧ, ΤΚΕ, ΒΘΠ, CCC

UPC UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

28 UP

k-state union
upc kaleidoscope

This British film takes a group of 7 year olds from a variety of economic and social backgrounds and watches them from childhood to adolescence to young adulthood. Director Micheal Apted creates a moving portrait of the mystery, surprise, and disappointment of growing up. Unrated.

Tonight: 7:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
Tomorrow: 3:30 p.m.
Little Theatre 7:30 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.75; KSU ID
Required. Unrated.

"GREAT ENTERTAINMENT..."
A wonderful, exciting, heartwarming story.
— RITA K. SMITH, THE NEW YORK TIMES

HOOSIERS

In early Autumn, 1951, Norman Dale comes to Hickory, Indiana to teach high school and coach basketball. Gene Hackman plays a controversial outsider who bewilders and infuriates a small town, changes the lives of several of its citizens and challenges its youngsters to pursue an astonishing underdog dream. Rated PG.

Friday & Saturday Sept. 18 & 19
7 & 9:30 p.m., $1.75

k-state union
upc feature films

OPUS Band Competition

September 25, 1987
5-9 p.m.

KSU Union North Lawn
Watch bands compete for over $600 in prizes!

Sponsored by:

k-state union
upc eclectic entertainment

S.M. Hanson Music

Explore the 16th century with UPC travel, Saturday, Sept. 19, 1987. $15 includes transportation to & from the festival and a ticket to the festival. Sign-up in the Union Activities Center, 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

k-state union
upc travel

EXPERIENCE RAPPELLING

September 26 or 27
$7 includes equipment, demonstration and refreshments

Sign-up starts
TODAY

Sept. 16: Sign-up for K-State students only
Sept. 17-24: Sign-up open to students and
general public.

Activities Center,
3rd floor Union.

k-state union
upc outdoor rec.

Join ORC for Outdoor Awareness Day!

Today 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.
Union Pedestrian Island
(Inside Union in case of rain)

Learn about the outdoor businesses, organizations, and trips offered in the Manhattan area.

Defensive backs look to rebound

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

Face it, K-State got burned. Think back about week and a half ago and relive those fateful 30 seconds — the 30 seconds in which the Austin Peay Governors upended the 'Cats 26-22 with one fateful blow in the season opener at KSU Stadium.

The Governors first play of the game-winning drive came with 50 seconds left in the game. Quarterback Dale Edwards completed a 21-yard pass to his younger brother Dean (a wide receiver) for a first down.

Two plays and about 15 seconds later, Edwards, facing a blitz by the 'Cats hurried a pass to his younger brother again.

"It hurt losing like that, we just weren't mentally ready for a play like that."

—Brad Lambert

The pass was incomplete.

In the next play, K-State decided to try the blitz again. Edwards received the snap, rolled back, scrambled to his left, then to his right, then fired a 36-yard scoring strike to a wide open Rico Ransom for the game-winner.

Was the Wildcat defensive secondary to blame for this mistake? Defensive back Brad Lambert said no.

"It was one of those plays that we just got beat," he said.

"It hurt losing like that, we just weren't mentally ready for a play like that."

Cornerback Tyreese Herds said it took a while for the defensive unit to snap out of the punch they received, but that it is now ready to face Army.

"Army is a disciplined, wishbone-oriented team and I think we've proven that we can handle the run against Austin Peay," Herds said.

Lambert said the Army game is a plus for the defensive unit in that the Cadets' offense will help the 'Cats defense play better down the road.

"We play in a league that primarily runs the wishbone," he said. "Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado and now Missouri run the wishbone and the

Staff/Steve Rasmussen

Defensive coordinator Jerry Hartman looks on as K-State defensive back Robert Easterwood prepares for a drill during practice Tuesday more we play against that kind of team, the better we'll be against that kind of offense."

Jerry Hartman, in his second year as the 'Cats defensive coordinator, said Army will be harder to handle than most people think.

"Their quarterback ran for over a thousand yards (1,078) last year and added over 800 (816) in the air," he said. The 1,894 total yards compiled by Tory Crawford (last year) is more than Jamelle Holieway did last season for the Sooners.

Crawford topped all Division I-A quarterbacks in total yardage and scoring. Those statistics have Hartman hoping his troops are at their best.

"With that kind of disciplined afternoon. Hartman emphasizes the need of a disciplined defense when the 'Cats take on Army this weekend.

offensive game, we'll (the defense) have to be a very disciplined defensive ball club. We'll have to make tackles the first time and stop them dead in their tracks," Hartman said.

He said there hasn't been much change in the defense except the movement of Vance Singletary to outside linebacker and Michael Ratcliffe and Herds expected to be splitting time on the free safety job.

Herds said Army's type of offensive unit does pose some threats.

"They'll run the wishbone until the cows come home," he said. "But if we stop the running game that's when they'll have to take to the air and for a wishbone team, that usually means they're in trouble. I believe we can do it."

Spikers ready for Spartans

By The Collegian Staff

K-State's volleyball team will be out to snap a three-match losing streak Wednesday night when the Wildcats host the Michigan State Spartans.

The match, set for Ahearn Field

House, begins at 7:30 p.m. and admission is free.

K-State is 3-3 after the Holiday Inn-Colorado State Invitational last weekend. Arizona, 10th-ranked Colorado State and Purdue defeated the 'Cats in that event.

"We saw three very good teams out there," said K-State head coach Scott Nelson, who missed the final two matches due to a bout with food poisoning. "Our final match with Purdue went five games, though, and I think that gives us an emotional boost coming back home."

Volley team blessed with 'unheard-of' talent in Call

Shawnee Call is probably the best athlete at K-State whom hardly anybody has heard of.

A junior outside hitter for the Wildcat volleyball team, Call is among the top players in the nation. She was named first-team All-Big Eight Conference last fall, and was second in the conference in both kills and digs. In six tournaments last year, Call was named to five all-tournament teams.

Call was one of just two sophomores on the Midwest all-region team selected by the Collegiate Volleyball Coaches Association. To top it all off, she participated in the United States Olympic Festival in 1986 and was among 30 players selected to try out for the World University Games this summer.

Pretty darned impressive, I think. Still, the name Shawnee Call doesn't ring a bell with the average student on campus. Call doesn't mind though. She doesn't play volleyball for the attention or the news clippings. If people started to recognize her on campus, like they do, say, Mitch Richmond, Call isn't quite sure how she would react.

"It would probably make me feel uncomfortable," Call said.

For Call, it's not the attention or chance to make big money as a professional in the future that keeps her going, it's more a love of the sport. Someday, she would like to play at the international level, possibly in the Olympics.

"I really love to play the game. I really enjoy doing the best that I can and seeing what my potential is," she said. "All of us girls get along so well and it's so exciting to play together."

Call will talk about herself if a question is phrased right, but ask her about the team, and she'll start to open up. Call may be as good a volleyball player as has ever played for K-State, but above all, she knows volleyball is above all a team sport.

"I really am excited about the team. I think we're going to go a lot of places," she said. "We've got the athletes, it's just a matter of mental attitude. I think we need to be aggressive and believe in ourselves and know that we can win."

So far this year, K-State is 3-3. The Wildcats won their first three matches against Missouri-Kansas City, Drake, and Oral Roberts before losing three straight at the competitive Colorado State Invitational. One of those losses, a five-game marathon against a strong Purdue team, has Call convinced K-State will be plenty competitive the rest of the year.

"We proved we can play against Purdue. They're one of the top teams in the nation, and we played them really tough and we competed with them," she said.

K-State Coach Scott Nelson knows what a special talent he has in the 5-foot-11 Call, who can jump and reach to 10½ feet.

"She's just such an outstanding athlete, not just in volleyball, but in any sport," Nelson said. "She's got it all."

Nelson calls competitiveness one of Call's greatest assets.

"When she came into the Oral Roberts game the other night, and it was very close, the whole team's level of play elevated. Not just because of her excellent spikes and blocks on defense. Her intensity pulls the entire team up."

Talent, competitiveness, attitude and spirit, Shawnee Call is the complete package. And all this with barely a shade of cockiness.

"She's not that sort of personality," Nelson said. "She's really focused on the team."

With an attitude like that, Shawnee Call ought to go a long way.

Mid-week Commentary

TOM PERRIN

Sports Columnist

Players adapt contract

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The NFL Players Association, which last week rejected the club owners' proposal as "garbage," on Tuesday presented management with its ideas on what the contract should look like.

The union said its proposal "addresses all of the crucial points needed to reach a settlement."

Details of the document, presented a week before the union's Sept. 22 strike deadline, were expected to be made available later Tuesday.

"We have adapted our contract to some of their thoughts," NFLPA spokesman Frank Woschitz said, referring to management's proposal. "There are considerable changes from our original contract proposal."

Both sides submitted proposed contracts to each other in late April when the talks formally got underway.

Woschitz said the counterproposal was almost completely prepared early Monday. He said the union decided to delay presenting it to management so it could incorporate some of the findings derived from Monday's meeting between pension technicians from both sides.

"We wanted to wait to check the numbers," Woschitz said. "We spent much of (Tuesday) morning going over those numbers and the rest of the contract to be sure everything was just right."

Management officials had expressed surprise that NFLPA Executive Director Gene Upshaw had spent the latter part of Monday in Redwood City, Calif., the training facility of the San Francisco 49ers, when he union was to spend the night working on its counterproposal.

"That means either Gene has no input on their counterproposal or they've been sitting on the thing," said Management Council spokesman John Jones.

Royals announce post-season ticket plans for home games

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Royals announced ticket plans Tuesday for the American League Championship Series and the World Series if the Royals advance to the playoffs and series.

If the Royals win the AL West, the American League playoffs would open in Kansas City at 7:30 p.m. (CDT) Wednesday, Oct. 7, and 7:35 p.m. (CDT) Thursday, Oct. 8. The final two playoff games, if they are necessary, would be played in Kansas City at 2:07 p.m. (CDT) Wednesday, Oct. 14, and 7:35 p.m. (CDT) Thursday Oct. 15.

If the Royals advance to the World Series, the first two games would be played at Royals Stadium at 7:35 p.m. (CDT) Saturday, Oct. 17, and 7:30 p.m. (CDT) Sunday, Oct. 18. The sixth and seventh games, if necessary, would be played in Kansas City at 3 p.m. (CDT) Saturday, Oct. 24, and 7:30 p.m. (CDT) Sunday, Oct. 25.

The Royals announced that tickets are available on an individual game basis only and that fans can purchase two tickets for either a playoff game or a World Series game.

In letters requesting tickets, fans must specify if the request is for ALCS (American League Championship Series) reserved seat tickets, ALCS standing room tickets, World Series reserved seat tickets or World Series standing room tickets.

Ticket prices are $20 each for ALCS reserved seat tickets, $15 each for ALCS standing room tickets, $30 each for World Series reserved seat tickets and $20 each for World Series standing room tickets. There is a $3 handling charge for each request filled.

The Royals said ticket requests for championship series games in Kansas City should be sent in standard No. 10 envelopes to Championship Baseball, P.O. Box 419970, Kansas City, Mo. 64141.

The requesting envelope should have the complete name and return address in the upper left-hand corner; specify in the lower left-hand corner if the request is for ALCS or World Series standing room or reserved seat tickets, and be postmarked on or before Friday, Sept. 18 to qualify for the random drawing.

The requesting envelope should include a self-addressed, stamped standard No. 10 envelope for return with a 22-cent stamp and the sender's address centered on the envelope and in the upper left-hand corner. The Royals said each order should include a certified check, cashier's check or money order — no personal checks or cash will be accepted — payable to Championship Baseball. The cost is $43 for two ALCS reserved seat tickets; $33 for two ALCS standing room tickets; $63 for two World Series reserved seat tickets and $43 for two World Series standing room tickets.

Because of the heavy volume of mail requests, the Royals said, orders must be limited to one per individual. Orders not selected in the random drawing will be returned to fans as soon as possible, the Royals said. Refund information for games not played in Kansas City is contained on the reverse side of tickets.

B-ball season slated

By Staff and Wire Reports

Three NCAA Top 20 teams along with the regular slate of Big Eight Conference schools highlight the 1987-88 K-State Lady Cats' basketball schedule.

The Lady Cats have 23 games and three tournaments on this year's schedule.

"I think we have an attractive schedule especially with two Top 20 schools (Louisiana State and Louisiana Tech) playing here in Ahearn Field House," Head Coach Matilda Mossman said.

The Lady Cats open their campaign at home Nov. 27-28 by hosting the McCall Pattern Classic. Beside K-State, schools also included in the tournament field are Arkansas-Little Rock, Rockhurst and Central Missouri State.

1987-88 Kansas State Lady Cats' Basketball Schedule

November: 27-28 McCALL PATTERN CLASSIC.

December: 2 CREIGHTON; 5 DRAKE; 8 at Wichita State; 11-12 at Southern Methodist Tournament; 19 at Missouri-Kansas City; 30 LOUISIANA STATE.

January: 4 at Arizona State; 5 at Northern Arizona; 8 at Oral Roberts; 10 LOUISIANA TECH; 12 at Oklahoma State; 16 OKLAHOMA; 20 at Nebraska; 23 at Colorado; 27 MISSOURI; 30 at Kansas.

February: 3 IOWA STATE; 6 NEBRASKA; 10 at Missouri; 13 at Oklahoma; 17 COLORADO; 20 KANSAS; 23 at Iowa State; 27 OKLAHOMA STATE.

March: 5-7 Big Eight Conference Post-Season Tournament at Salina.

Pontiff extols 'responsible moral life'

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Pope John Paul II opened his visit Tuesday to the world's entertainment capital with an exhortation to cling to "a responsible moral life" even if it means "being out of step with majority opinion."

The notorious Los Angeles freeway traffic flowed unusually smoothly as a crowd estimated by police at 300,000 turned out to see the pope along a seven-mile motorcade that took him through Hispanic, Japanese, Chinese and Korean areas.

Planners had hoped for between 1 million and 2 million people for the parade in the nation's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese.

Speaking to 6,000 young people at Universal Studios Amphitheatre — an address linked by satellite to youth gatherings in St. Louis, Denver and Portland, Ore. — the pope linked suicide with spiritual emptiness.

LA is first of four California stops

"Why does it sometimes happen that a seemingly healthy person, successful in the eyes of the world, takes an overdose of sleeping pills and commits suicide?" the pope asked. "Why, on the other hand, do we see a seriously disabled person filled with great zest for life?"

"The one has lost all hope," he said. "In the other, hope is alive and overflowing."

The pope's motorcade ended with a prayer service at St. Vibiana's Cathedral, where the pope sounded a familiar theme — the difficulty and importance of applying morality to speech and deed in secular America, a country that has enjoyed constitutional guarantees of freedom for 200 years.

The invited guests were representatives from each of Los Angeles' 284 parishes and 27 missions.

The disinclined guests were vagrants who normally take their meals at a mission next door to the cathedral but were moved elsewhere for the duration of the papal visit. Church officials said the Secret Service and police insisted on the actions for the pope's security on grounds that a terrorist might hide among the homeless.

The pope also was scheduled to meet late in the day with leaders of the communications industry, then celebrate Mass at Los Angeles Coliseum.

In the course of 48 hours in the nation's second-largest city, the pope also was to tour a school with first lady Nancy Reagan, and meet with American bishops and with Hindu, Buddhist, Moslem and Jewish.

There are 2.6 million Catholics in least constituencies in the pope's U.S. flock of 52.9 million.

The pope preceded his speech to about 10,000 Native Americans from 175 tribes with a 15-minute hand-shaking tour of the audience. His arrival was heralded with tom-toms and rattles and chanting in a native tongue.

The pope's 10-day tour of the United States ends Saturday in Detroit. Also ahead in California are stops in Monterey and San Francisco.

Bork

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1 insisted that Nixon surrender White House tapes in compliance with a federal court order. Bork acted after Attorney General Elliot Richardson and Deputy Attorney General William French Smith resigned rather than obey the president.

Edelaine's
121 Poyntz
776-4398

- Wedding Gowns
- Wedding Reception
- After Five Wear
- Double Shirts
- Gowns & Handbags
- Rhinestone Jewelry

108 S.E.
108 S.E. - 15 S.W.

KRYSTALLOS
"BEAUTIFUL OBJECTS FROM THE EARTH"

- Crystals • Minerals
- Gifts & More

Highway 24 East
(by the L.W. Wilson Shop)
Thurs.-Sun 10:30-6
539-0360

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

NEW EDITION-FINEST FILM COLLECTION EVER ASSEMBLED
THE BEST OF
STAR TREK
PLUS ALL THE BLOOPERS AND MORE

THE MAKING OF STAR TREK IV "THE VOYAGE HOME".
ALL 3 OUTRAGEOUS BLOOPER REELS, TV AND MOVIE TRAILERS
CLIPS OF THE STARS IN CLASSIC ROLES BEFORE STAR TREK
NEVER RELEASED PILOT FOOTAGE, GAG REELS, AND MORE!

Not Available on Video Tape, Never Shown on TV or Cable

Kansas State Union Little Theatre
7 p.m. & 9 p.m. Sat., Sept. 19
6 p.m. & 8 p.m. Sun., Sept. 20
sponsored by Sigma Phi Epsilon

Limited Good Seating Come Early No Children Please Admission $4 with KSU I.D., $5 all others

ATTENTION

Make Reservations for Organization Group Pictures
for the Royal Purple

NOW
thru September 18.

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

VANDERBILT'S

SHRINK-TO-FIT
501 Levi's

$16<sup>99</sup>

Compare to $26.95
36 & 40 Inseams... $18.99

BIG SAVINGS!

DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY 99)
OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100

VISA MasterCard

Research saves lives.

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nauticus Towers—Aggieville

Watch This Space!

4" & 6" Sandwiches

Ask about our
10% Discounts

*****

	HALF	WHOLE
Sandwiches 1-12, 15, 16	$2.25	$3.50
Kitchen Sink	2.75	4.75
Roast Beef	2.50	4.00

211 S. Seth Childs, Manhattan, Ks. 66502

537-2411

Call Ahead-We'll have it ready

TV Listings

By TV Data

WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 16, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTGA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	My Little Pony Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00		TBA		Bullwinkle Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Heathcliff	SportsLook Surfer Mag	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss M.T. Moore	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Senior PGA Golf: Paine	Movie: "Love Has Many Faces"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Green Acres Leave It to Beaver	Body Electric Write Course	Waltons	Webber World Invitational
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Beaver Make Room	Communi. Focus/Society	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	Celebration of Citizenship	Andy Griffith I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	CFL Football: Calgary at	Movie: "Deadlock"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Munsters	Nova	Rhoda Phyllis	Winnipeg
2:00		Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobilee Zoo	Tenko	Kotter Bugs Bunny	Auto Racing Sports	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00		Donatue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Ghostbusters Smurfs	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00		Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons Eight Is En-ough	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe Transformers	Truck and Tractor Pull	Munsters Laverne
5:00	3's Company	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsLook PGA Tour	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00	News	News M*A*S*H	News M*A*S*H	Facts of Life Good Times	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Benson Major League	SportsCenter Sports	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00	Highway to Heaven	Oldest Rookie	Blessings of Liberty	Star Trek	Mancini and Friends	Baseball: Chicago Cubs at Philadelphia Phillies	WKA Championship Kick	Movie: "Hero at Large"
8:00	Year in the Life	Wise Guy		Movie: "Winchester 73"	Paul Simon	News	Wrestling	Major League Baseball: At-
9:00	St. Elsewhere
10:00	News	News WKRP	News M*A*S*H	Late Show	Profiles of Na-Business Rpt.	INN News Trapper John	Tractor Pull SportsCenter	Ianta Braves at San Diego
11:00		Movie: "Spring	B. Buddies Nightline	Andy Griffith Movie: "Des-try Rides Again"	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D. Movie: "Hor-net's Nest"	SportsLook Speedway	Padres Pride
12:00	Late Night With David	Break T.J. Hooker	700 Club		Sign-Off	net's Nest	Magic Years Bill Dance	Movie: "Brainstorm"

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

* Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.

* No abbreviations, please.

* No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.

* Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

* Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

* If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.

* Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.

* The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____

6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____

11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____

16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____

21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____

26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Kedzie 103

CLASSIFIED RATES
One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (111)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

OPEN AIR food and craft fair in Aggieville, Oct. 10. For information on booths, write Box 1804 in Manhattan by Sept. 25. (2-19)

TANS TO GO
1214-C Moro—In Aggieville
—OPENING SPECIAL—
Buy 5 get 1 free
776-7874

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken, 539-9469. (2-27)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

ClassAds

532-6555

ATTENTION GYMNASIANS/budding gymnasts! Gymnastics Club meeting tonight, 9, natatorium room 4. Everyone welcome! (17)

PARACHUTE CLUB—Members' attendance needed. Electing new president and setting up ground crew for demo jump. Meeting: Thursday, 7 p.m., Union 206. (17-18)

Schliebe's 3rd Annual Birthday Bash!
Friday, Sept. 18th
6:30 TOTAL PARTY FOLLOWS
COME CHECK IT OUT!

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (211)

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (711)

THREE MALE students to share basement apartment. $120 month each, all bills paid. Call 537-1442. (9-19)

ONE-BEDROOM spacious and comfortable, close to campus, water, gas, trash paid. $230. Call 776-0203. (10-17)

LARGE BASEMENT apartment, four blocks south of campus. No children or pets. $270, plus electric. 776-6396. (13-17)

SMALL, ONE-bedroom, off Denison, available immediately. $135, 776-8093 or 539-9842. (15-19)

SEMI-FURNISHED. One-bedroom duplex. 2326 Kraig. $235/month. 539-4214. Leave message. (16-19)

TWO-BEDROOM apartment—Close to campus, water and trash paid. $380 plus electric. 776-4993. (17-19)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (211)

ONE SIDE of duplex, nice three-bedroom, two-bath apartment. Very near campus. 539-8324. (16-20)

ONE-BEDROOM in Wildcat Inn next to fieldhouse. $280. Low utilities, laundry facilities. 537-8889 or 776-3804. (1711)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 PONTIAC Firebird: T-top, four-speed, 14,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Call 539-4134 evenings. (13-19)

1978 AUDI Fox, good condition, only $1,000. Call 539-9315 anytime. (13-17)

1982 CAMARO modified with 350 V8, four-barrel, with headers, automatic. Looks stock, sleeper. 776-6036. Aaron. (15-19)

GREAT SCHOOL car 1979 Cutlass Supreme. New tires, new brakes, AM/FM stereo. Price negotiable. Call Tracy, 776-1594. (15-19)

1981 CHEVETTE. New brakes, air, FM/cassette, 59,000 miles. Priced to sell. Call Jarmel: 539-2301. (16-25)

DATSUN 200SX 1977, looks, runs good. Price negotiable. 539-6120. (15-19)

FOR SALE: 1981 Mercury Lynx. Good condition. Call between 5 and 7 p.m. 539-5385. (16-17)

1977 AMC Pacer. Looks bad, runs fine. Asking $450. 539-2778. (16-17)

1977 MONTE CARLO 305, four-barrel, dual exhaust, mags, loaded, all electric. Sharp! 539-2343. Richard. (16-19)

1974 AMC Gremlin, V4, good condition, needs tune-up. $250. 532-5123, daytime. 537-3608, evening. (16-20)

1984 MAZDA SE5 B2000 pickup, five-speed, air conditioning, AM/FM, chrome gray, 36,000 miles, good condition. 632-2513 after 5 p.m. (17-19)

1967 CAMARO SS in good condition, 40,000 miles on engine. Asking $3,200 negotiable. Call 532-3625. (17-19)

CHILD CARE 07

PORTABLE HOT tub business. Good money-maker. Call 537-7354 for terms. (15-17)

COMPUTERS 08

EXCELLENT BUY—Atari 520ST computer, color monitor, double-sided disk drive and software. Best offer. Call 539-1101 after 5 p.m. (15-17)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN THUNDREDS weekly in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

ATTENTION JOE hunters! Vista Drive In is looking for some energetic people to work in the fountain or grill. We have full- and part-time openings. Apply in person. (8-17)

LOCAL SNACK food company seeks responsible individuals for Dorm housing representatives commission. Reply P.O. 1764, Manhattan, KS 66502. (13-17)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your fall class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. We prefer to hire work study students and students who are eligible to work 30 hours per week. Food Handler's Card a must. (15-25)

BANKING CAREER. Ground floor opportunities. FirstBank is expanding its operations into Lawrence, Kansas. We will train aggressive self-starters for the following positions: Loan processor, Customer service/new accounts. Both positions require the ability to work under pressure, attention to technical detail and organizational ability. Local training will begin immediately. Relocation to Lawrence will be required in early 1988. Send application, letter and resume to Personnel, FirstBank, P.O. Box 610, Manhattan, KS 66502. EOE M/F. (15-17)

EDITOR, WEEKLY United Methodist Church regional newspaper. Part-time position. EOE. Member Project Equality. Submit resume and references by Sept. 25 to P.O. Box 4187, Topeka, KS 66604. Attention: Council Director. (17-21)

PART-TIME SALES help at Borch Brothers' men's wear. Approximately 20 hours per week. Afternoons and Saturdays. Sales experience preferred. Apply in person at 1100 Westloop Place. (17-21)

MCDONALD'S AT 815 N. Third is looking for some hard-working, motivated and team-spirited people. Applications will be accepted on Sept. 15 from 8-10 a.m. and 4-5 p.m. Also on the 16th from 8-10 a.m. and 2-4 p.m. Applicants must be able to work between the hours of 5:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. Starting wage is $3.50 an hour and half-price meals are included. No phone calls please. (15-17)

ONE-HOUR Moto Photo is immediately hiring a lab technician. Must be able to work Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Fridays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and every other weekend. Apply Monday through Friday, the 14th through the 18th between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. or by appointment. 776-9030. (16-19)

CASHIER, WAITRESS, part-time, evenings. Apply in person. Chef Cafe, 111 S. Fourth. (15-19)

95.3 KSKT The Kat needs part-time air personalities for weekend and vacation shifts. If you've had some experience and want to work and learn in a professional atmosphere we need to hear from you. Also, possible news internship for someone who wants on-air experience. Contact station manager Dave Strout at 539-6271. (15-19)

EXPERIENCED DENTAL assistant. Warm, friendly personality. Call 539-7401. Ask for Pat. (16-20)

Accessories On The Park
A new women's accessories store seeks full-time experienced manager. Fashion conscious, motivated, and creative individuals. Send Resume to 1203 Laramie Manhattan, KS

WORK STUDY student to work 10-20 hours a week with university outreach/conference coordinator. Attention to detail, and written and oral communication skills are necessary. Typing and word processing experience is required. Position offers good background experience for students in areas of management, marketing, business, education, and conference planning. For more information call 532-5575 (ask for Deb) or stop by the Warehouse Building, 1623 Anderson Ave. Application deadline is Sept. 25. (17-24)

WANTED—RELIABLE person to do laundry. Top dollar paid for good job—Contact Michael, 539-6197. (17-19)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

MULTI-BEDROOM HOUSE, stove, refrigerator, central air, fireplace, laundry hookups, garage. Call 537-8389. (111)

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-6389. (311)

THREE BEDROOM unfurnished house, close to campus, fenced yard, garage. No pets. Call 537-1234, Trust Department. Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. (411)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1980 Commodore, 14 x 70, three-bedroom, two-bath, washer, dryer, stove, refrigerator, Colonial Gardens. Assume loan. Call 776-2261. (17)

1970 BUDDY 12 x 60—Two-bedroom, washer/dryer, two air conditioners, storage shed. $4,900. Call 537-9005. (17-21)

LOST AND FOUND 14

BLACK CAT with potbelly. Lost in vicinity of Dickens and Cedar Great around Aug. 19. $100 reward if returned. Phone 539-3965. (14-18)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

Ride the Bobby T's Football Bus To and from the game Candlewood Shopping Center 539-1571

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

NO PAIN NO GAIN
—Firm and Tone Muscles—Lose Inches the relaxing way.
1st Visit Free

Slender You
Figure Salons
Candlewood Plaza-3232 Kimball Ave.
776-3308

Slender You
Figure Salons
Candlewood Plaza-3232 Kimball Ave.
776-3308

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 Printer's units

4 Elevator man

8 Leftover dish

12 Bland food

13 Singer Jerry

14 Chills and fever

15 "... a piece of — on a hot stove"

16 Yew or pine

18 Fragrant wood

20 Goddess of healing

21 Coarse file

24 Renowned Michael

28 Jackson hit

32 Undulate river

33 Spanish

34 Lawful

36 "... a — of stagnant waters"

37 Kind of exam

39 Carole King hit

41 Dogma

43 Hawaiian goose

44 After Oct.

46 Pub missiles

50 Andy Williams hit

55 Solemn wonder

56 Religious calendar

57 Calcutta garb

58 Type of can or foil

59 Arabian gulf

60 Blue dye

61 Tiny socialist?

DOWN

1 Homer's "Odyssey"

2 Cooking spice

3 Hastened

4 From one end to the other

5 Hebrew letter

6 French island

7 Withered rival

9 Ending for foot or front

10 "A Boy Named —"

11 Farm layer

17 Card game

19 Biblical lion

22 Skirt feature

23 Edible nut

25 Wilson predecessor

26 For — and a day (always)

27 Contradict

28 Jog

29 "Spenser: For —"

30 Kind of horse

31 Ready

35 Vine support

38 One of the Beatles

40 Vast quantity

42 Craggy hill

45 Traveler's need

47 Pro —

48 Double

49 Dis-patched

50 Extinct bird

51 California fort

52 Lyric poem

53 Dick —

54 Son of Gad

Dinner Buffet Specials

M—Chicken & Ribs
T—Spaghetti & Meat Balls
W—Chicken Stir Fry & Egg Rolls
U—Fish & Chips
includes salad bar

All You Can Eat $5.99

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Nightshirts
at UNDERCOVER
1224 Moro Aggieville
M-F 10-5:30, Sat. 10-5:00
Thurs. 10-8, Sun. 1-5:00

Enjoy Our Weekly Buffet Specials
11:30 a.m.-2 p.m.
M—Texas Western BBQ
T—Italian
W—Oriental
U—Mexican
F—Cajun
includes salad bar or call for carry-out

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

CLOTHES WITH CLASS
SPELLbinders INC.
Candlewood Center • 3230 Kimball Avenue
Manhattan, Kansas
MON-SAT 10-5

Spuds Mackenzie Night
THE COTTON CLUB
• 50¢ Hotdogs
• 75¢ Bud Light draws
• 50¢ Loaded Spuds
The Party's Not Over!

Nautilus Fitness Center

Where a Minimum of effort gives you a Maximum of Results.

1st Visit Free
776-1654
1100 Moro Aggieville

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales. St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

TYPEWRITER/ASCII computer printer, memory, display, battery/AC, very portable with lid case. $150. 776-4712. (16-19)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

FOR SALE: Farm Aid III tickets, phone 537-0385. (17)

CANON A1 with 35-105 zoom and flash. Asking $400. Call 537-4789. (17-19)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1981 RED Vespa moped, great gas, low mileage, excellent condition, negotiable price, 537-1395 or 537-3797. (12-18)

1982 HONDA FT500 "Ascot" with racing headers. Great shape! Call 539-9173. (14-17)

MUST SELL 1982 Honda XR 500, new chain and sprockets. Nearly new clutch. 776-3785. (14-18)

1984 YAMAHA XT600, on/off road, many options, excellent condition. $1,500 or best offer. 776-7323. (14-19)

1983 HONDA 500 Shadow, excellent condition, must sell. Call 539-7561, ask for Reed. (14-18)

1986 RALEIGH bicycle Technum 440, 12-speed, 26-inch. $250. After 5 p.m., call 537-2072. (14-18)

FOR SALE 1984 Yamaha XT600. Excellent condition, under 3,000 miles. Call 537-1021. (15-19)

THREE-SPEED bike. Good condition, large aluminum side baskets. Excellent for school and shopping. $50. Call 539-8796 after 5 p.m. (15-19)

RALEIGH MOUNTAIN bike, excellent condition, many extras including car transport rack. Interested, please call Mike 537-4743 after 6 p.m. (17-19)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

CRATE CR-112 guitar amplifier, 30 watts, reverb, two channels, headphone jack. Very good condition. 776-3741. (15-19)

ANTIQUE UPRIGHT piano, excellent condition. Asking $400. Call 537-4789. (17-19)

Hayes House of Music
Guitar Strings and Drum Sticks. Buy one set get 2nd set at 50% off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

GET INVOLVED in private guitar lessons in a group setting, taught by a member of KSU's music faculty. Optional one undergraduate credit hour, join now. Classes begin Tuesday, Sept. 22, only $60. For information call 532-5740, to register call 532-5566 or go to Umberger 317. Act now. (17-18)

PERSONALS 18

DEAR GRANDMA, FirstBank is giving away apple computers for free. They would normally sell for $1,500 and I can't afford it but I want one anyway. Please open a $3,500 apple certificate of deposit, have them ship the computer to me either for my birthday or for Christmas or graduation and you keep the interest. Call FirstBank for details. Thanks Grandma. Love, Patsy. (15-18)

ALPHA CHI Sikeptaculars: Thanks for a great tournament. We had a fun time and still almost won. By the way, didn't we previously discuss who was to be doggled? Love, Joel and Mark. (17)

TO THE most beautiful girl on campus, I heard your name is AJIT. You are very beautiful and charming. I don't want nothing else but to admire your beauty, watching you. (17)

POOH: SO my baby's 21 today. I sure hope those whooies don't find out! Congratulations and I love you—Your favorite Wookiee. (17)

CHRISTOPHER—TEN days ago was the 6th. That use to mean something special. I hope it can again. Now, I'm the one who's trying. I know now, I'll always love you too! Karen Jean. (17)

PHI KAP pledge Jeff B.—Tall, dark and ... I don't know if I should finish the phrase, for I'm your pledge mom for the future days. Hu Ai Me? (17)

HAWK—Phi Kap Bird of Phoenix, you're my big bro, but I'm not Goldi Lox. RHH. (17)

STEVE THIS is it! Male hard up and needs a date. Girls call him soon. (17)

SIGMA NU little sister meeting at 7 p.m., Thursday. Last year's little sisters please meet at 6:30 p.m. We are looking forward to the best year ever. Chris and Lars. (17-18)

A.D. SCRATCH—Hey old man it's your 23rd birthday! Time to party the old Cap'n Crunch way! You'll jam all night and all day, until we hear you scream out "Mayday." A toast to the best of times and to the best of friends ... OOUFFDA!!! Love, Karin. (17)

CHRISTOPHER—IN one year you've become my everything. Let's have an even better year! We deserve it! Love Always, Honeydew. (17)

PETS AND PET SUPPLIES 19

K-STATE STUDENTS & FACULTY Welcome To Manhattan

AND TO

Prices Effective
Thru
Sept. 29, 1987.

Dillon Potato Chips & Snacks

8 oz. Plain, Rippled, BAR-B-Q, Sour Cream, No Salt, 7.5 oz. Thick Cut, 8 oz. Baked Cheese Puffs, Fried Cheese Krisps, Nacho Flavored Tortilla Chips or 10 oz. Corn Chips

FREE!

With
Coupon

Rocky Top Pop

Asst.
Flavors
2 Liters

39¢

With
Coupon

12 Pack Coors, Coors Light, Coors Extra Gold, Budweiser, Bud Light, Miller High Lite, Miller Lite, Miller Genuine Draft, 15 Pack Stroh or Stroh Light

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

Any 12" Deli Pizza

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

One Whole 8 Piece Golden Fried Chicken or One Whole WonderRoast Chicken

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

Del Monte Golden Ripe Bananas

19¢

Lb.

With
Coupon

Any 6" Blooming or Follage
Plant or 8" Hanging Basket

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

Rent One Video Tape
Get One
FREE! WITH COUPON
BELOW!

—Dillon Coupon—

Rent One Tape
Get One
FREE! WITH
THIS
COUPON

WRITE AMOUNT HERE

Limit 1 Tape With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

Dillon Potato Chips & Snacks

8 oz. Plain, Rippled, Bar-B-Q, Sour Cream, No Salt, 7.5 oz. Thick Cut, 8 oz. Baked Cheese Puffs, Fried Cheese Krisps, 8 oz. Nacho Flavored Tortilla Chips or 10 oz. Corn Chips

FREE!

With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Pkg. With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

Rocky Top Pop

Assorted Flavors, 2 Liter

39¢

With
This
Coupon

Limit 2 Btls. With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

12 Pack Coors, Coors Light, Coors Extra Gold, Budweiser, Bud Light, Miller High Lite, Miller Lite, Miller Genuine Draft, 15 Pack Stroh or Stroh Light

$1.00

OFF With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Pack With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

12" Deli Pizza

$1.00

With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Pizza With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

One Whole 8 Piece Golden Fried Chicken or One Whole WonderRoast Chicken

$1.00

With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Chicken With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

Dillon Coupon—

Golden Ripe Bananas

Del Monte

19¢

With
This
Lb. Coupon

Limit 1 Lb. With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

—Dillon Coupon—

Any 6" Blooming or Follage
Plant or 8" Hanging Basket

$1.00

With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Plant With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

Supportive Cheers

An extra year of experience and a loud, supportive crowd can make all the difference in a close match. See Page 9.

Weather

Partly sunny today, high 75 to 80. Partly cloudy tonight, low mid- to upper 50s. Mostly cloudy Friday, high in low to mid-70s.

News

A unit involved has evolved in the form of the Student Lecturer Series under the auspices of New Student Programs. See Page 8.

Thursday
September 17, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 18

Kansas State Collegian

Man with AIDS charges discrimination

Pathologist says he'll sue University

By Judy Lundstrom
Special Projects Editor
© 1987 Student Publications Inc.

A pathologist in the College of Veterinary Medicine has charged that he was forced out of his position because he has AIDS.

Dennis R. Howard, 38, associate professor of veterinary diagnosis, said last week that a lawsuit for discrimination and punitive damages will be filed within the next three weeks against Provost James Coffman, former dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine; Mahlon Vorhies, head of the Department of Veterinary Diagnosis; the College of Veterinary Medicine and K-State.

Howard, a tenured professor who has been with the University 16 years, said he was diagnosed as having Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome in September 1986 after he checked into a Topeka hospital suffering from pneumocystis pneumonia.

He said he told Vorhies of his illness immediately upon returning to work. "I thought it was only fair to inform the people at work," he said.

At that time, Howard said, he was told the department would work with him concerning his situation.

The controversy began April 13 when Howard received a letter from Coffman instructing him "to return home upon receipt of this letter and not return to work except for meeting with Dr. Vorhies to remove your personal effects from your office."

A week earlier, Howard had received a letter from Coffman and Vorhies telling him it was "essential to restrict your activities to your office and, in identified instances, work taken home. More specifically, it is essential that you not be in the laboratories in the future," they wrote.

Howard said after he received the April 13 letter: "They had me out of there so fast you couldn't believe it."

Howard was placed on medical absence from K-State April 14. His last day on the payroll will be Oct. 13, according to a person-

Dennis Howard, associate professor of veterinary diagnosis, looks over the letter he received last April that told him he had been placed on medical retirement from the University. Howard, who was diagnosed as having AIDS last September, will be removed from the University payroll Oct. 13.

nel document he signed April 16.

"At the time I signed this, I had pretty severe encephalitis (inflammation of the brain), and I don't know if I knew what I was signing," he said.

Coffman said because Howard signed the retirement papers in April, the University is not in the wrong.

"When someone makes a conscious act of retiring — well, you just think that one through. It's self-explanatory," Coffman said.

Howard said he recently talked to University Attorney Dorothy Thompson and was told he would be receiving a letter from the University indicating that his duties would be terminated as of Oct. 13.

"This whole termination has been a real surprise to me," he said.

Howard said he requested to return to work May 15 and several times thereafter, but the request was denied.

In a letter dated Aug. 11, Dr. William E. Wade of Topeka, director of the Kansas

AIDS Network, told Howard he should be able to return to work and handle non-laboratory employment responsibilities.

"I am encouraged by your continued progress and support your efforts to return to work," Wade wrote.

Howard said he showed the letter to Coffman and Vorhies, but Howard said neither would acknowledge it.

This week, Vorhies said Howard had not yet filed any official request to return to work. He refused to comment further.

AIDS falls under the protection of the handicapped regulations of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, which deals with employment of the handicapped, Thompson said. AIDS is considered to be one of the handicaps covered under the Act, said Thompson, who also refused to comment on the situation because it is a personnel matter.

"Let me just say that we do not fire people just because they have AIDS," she said. "We have followed our policy, and we do follow

■ See AIDS, Page 7

Millions celebrate U.S. Constitution on eve of birthday

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Schoolgirls on the deck of the Kitty Hawk recited the Pledge of Allegiance on Wednesday along with construction workers in Boston, President Reagan and millions of Americans celebrating the U.S. Constitution's 200th birthday a day early.

Reagan led a nationally televised Pledge of Allegiance for "Celebrate the Constitution Day," the preamble to Thursday's bicentennial bash.

"It's still our blueprint for freedom," Reagan said from the Capitol in Washington during the day-long civics and history lesson.

"On the eve of the signing of the U.S. Constitution, we pay tribute to the single greatest work of government the world has ever seen," retired Chief Justice Warren Burger said at the Capitol. Burger heads the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

At the New York Stock Exchange, trading was halted briefly during the afternoon, and workers cheered and waved American flags on the trading floor. In Boston, workers took off their hard hats, dropped their tools and joined Reagan in the pledge.

"We're a part of history," said Holly Maultz, 16, one of 108 pupils from the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart in Bryn Mawr, who recited the pledge a half-hour before Reagan on the flight deck of the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk, in Pennsylvania for an overhaul.

In Lancaster, the pledge had special meaning for Peter Bellamy Jr., 18, a freshman at Franklin and Marshall College whose great-grandfather, Francis Julius Bellamy, wrote the pledge 95 years ago as an assignment for Youth's Companion magazine.

"It's been a family thing for generations, but nobody's ever made a big deal of it publicly for me before now," Bellamy said in a telephone interview. "It's a sentiment, a feeling of what many people take for granted."

The day was marked by a variety of observances.

A teach-in was held in New York City explaining the Constitution. Long lines formed at the National Archives in Washington.

■ See 200TH, Page 3

Carbon dioxide effects uncertain

By Janet Swanson
Agri/Business Editor

The greenhouse effect will make some changes in the Earth's climate, but it isn't the calamity some claim it is, said Michael McElroy, professor of atmospheric sciences at Harvard University and a councillor in the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

McElroy spoke Wednesday to about 650 people in the McCain Auditorium. He was the first speaker in the 1987-88 University Convocation series.

"I wish people would refrain from making sweeping, doomsday predictions about the greenhouse effect," McElroy said.

The effect is caused by an increase of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere above the earth. It causes heat to radiate back onto the planet which raises the Earth's surface temperature.

"It's not clear if a warmer climate is good or bad," he said. "However, it is clear that a colder climate is bad."

The main cause of the increased carbon dioxide is the constant burning of fossil fuels. Gases released by the fuels remain in the atmosphere for about 100 years, McElroy said. "They break down naturally, but it's a very slow process."

More than 10 billion tons of carbon dioxide are released into the atmosphere each year, making it the greatest single waste product, he said.

"But carbon dioxide isn't the only one (chemical). It's the whole composite of chemicals that we need to worry about," he said.

Besides increasing the surface temperature, McElroy said the increased amount of gases in the atmosphere also affects oceans, the water cycle, the biosphere, the color of the earth and creates acid rain and pollution.

Venus is a dramatic demonstration of how the greenhouse effect works, McElroy said.

"Venus has dense cloud coverage and a very high surface temperature," he said. The higher the concentration of carbon dioxide, the more water vapor present in the atmosphere.

■ See EFFECT, Page 10

Bork tells Senate Judiciary Committee 1973 Cox firing done 'honorably, legally'

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork, parrying attacks on his integrity by Democratic senators, said Wednesday he acted honorably and legally in 1973 when he fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

In a dramatic retelling of what Bork called "an enormous governmental crisis," he said that as soon as Cox was dismissed, "I did promptly act to safeguard the special prosecution. I understood from the beginning my moral and professional lives were on the line if something happened to the special prosecution force."

The gripping sparring match between Bork and Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee occurred in the same marble-columned room that was the site 14 years ago of hearings that helped lead to President Nixon's political demise. This week the room is the setting for Bork's nationally televised confirmation hearings.

The questions on what has become known as the Saturday Night Massacre marked an interruption in attacks — soon to resume — on Bork's political and judicial ideology as opponents sought additional grounds to defeat his confirmation.

Liberal opponents of Bork, a 60-year-old federal appeals court judge, say if he is confirmed to succeed the recently retired Justice Lewis F. Powell he could push the closely divided court to the right for years, perhaps decades, to come. Supporters say he is clearly qualified to join the nine-member court.

Bork spent much of Wednesday responding to questions about his views on such subjects as civil rights, abortion and privacy.

The proceedings generated few sparks as Bork spelled out in calm, measured tones his conservative legal approach that has evolved in a 25-year career as lawyer, Ivy League scholar and judge.

He acknowledged that some of his views "have evolved and changed," and he sought support for that by quoting Benjamin Franklin as saying, "Having lived long I have experienced many instances of being obliged by better information or fuller consideration to change opinions even on important subjects."

But Bork said he has never changed an opinion in order to win confirmation to a judgeship or for any other reward.

In one example of a changed opinion, Bork said in 1971 that free speech protections apply only to political speech but has since said that approach was too narrow.

Near the end of his six hours of testimony, in response to a question from Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., Bork

■ See BORK, Page 12

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Escalator crushes, kills woman

NEW YORK — A woman was crushed to death Wednesday when an escalator at a New York Telephone Co. building opened up beneath her and she was pulled in, police said.

Thirty people were injured by the same escalator in a 1982 accident, a spokesman for the city's Buildings Department said. But "this kind of thing, an escalator part opening and swallowing someone, we've never heard of," said spokesman Vahe Tiryakian.

Emma Niskala, 35, of Lynbrook, was riding the up escalator to the mezzanine of the building in Brooklyn when the accident occurred at 7:45 a.m., police said.

Niskala was on her way to her job as an accounting clerk, according to New York Telephone spokesman Bob Edney. She had worked for the telephone company for 15 years, he said.

"She walked onto the escalator, went a few feet, the step she was standing on gave way, causing her to fall through the escalator, about three or four feet," said Detective Vincent Gerecitano, who was at the scene. "The upward motion of the steps and the downward motion of the steps underneath sucked her into the conveyance."

Another detective who was at the scene, but asked not to be named, described what investigators found. "It was like being dragged under. Her body was crushed between the wheels and rods of the escalator," he said.

There was no word on what caused the accident.

Plea brings aid in cancer battle

TORRINGTON, Conn. — Complaints about trash pickup, raises for city employees and road conditions were the usual fare on the daily "Ask the Mayor" radio show, until a tired, desperate voice issued a plea.

"What does a man do that is on a low income, that has cancer and he doesn't even have enough money to buy pills to kill this pain?" an unidentified caller asked Mayor Delia R. Donne.

Within a day, two businesswomen gave Donne a blank check to help the 60-year-old man pay his $500 pharmacy debt, and the mayor dispatched city workers on Wednesday to interview him and find out what state and local programs he may be eligible for.

"If you could have heard him on the radio — anyone who was listening was crying," Donne said. "I've done this program 18 months and I cried for the first time."

City officials said they may be able to help the man, whose identity they didn't disclose, get state or local government assistance for his medical and energy bills, meals delivered, food through the federal government's surplus program and free transportation.

The man, who worked for a catering business until illness forced him to quit, lives in an apartment with his wife, who is also disabled and collecting workman's compensation in this industrial town of about 30,000 in northwestern Connecticut.

Donne, a former hospice volunteer, said the man also asked her where he could find out more about his disease, a cancer that causes the bones to deteriorate so that they break easily, and what to expect in the future.

She contacted the local hospice to arrange for a volunteer's visit and called the American Cancer Society.

"Sometimes, you're just in such pain and such agony that you don't know where to turn," Donne said.

Prince starts nursery school

LONDON — Prince Harry, younger son of Prince Charles and Princess Diana, spent his first day at nursery school Wednesday making a pair of cardboard binoculars.

Harry, who turned 3 on Tuesday, arrived at Jane Mynors' private school with his parents and 5-year-old brother, Prince William.

Wearing a blue sweatshirt and shorts and carrying a "Thomas the Tank Engine" school bag, Harry shook hands with Mynors. After a grin and a wave to photographers, he skipped down the stairs to the schoolroom Mynors runs in her home.

Two hours later his mother came to take him home.

Diana, a nursery school helper before her 1981 marriage, told workers at a London dairy she was opening that she was nervous about Harry's first day as school.

"I was upset about leaving Harry," she was quoted as telling Denis Edmett. "But now I'm going to meet him and I can't wait."

When William entered Mynors' school two years ago, he was the first prospective heir to the throne to attend a pre-school outside a palace. William now attends Wetherby School for boys 4½ to 9.

'Bar None' to satisfy cravings

HERSHEY, Pa. — Hershey Chocolate Co. says chocolate cravings are hitting the roof, so it has introduced Bar None in an effort to satisfy them.

Hershey officials said Wednesday the new chocolate bar is being distributed nationally after test-marketing in California.

President Joseph P. Viviano said the new product features a cocoa wafer, chocolate creme, peanuts and a milk chocolate coating. The last Hershey product introduced for national distribution was the Skor bar in 1983.

"We saw in the '80s ... that the interest in chocolate has exploded," said Tony Pingitore, the director of new development.

Bar None, he said, was created primarily for adults who are passionate about chocolate.

Twins opening eyes at mother

BALTIMORE — A pair of Siamese twins, born joined at the head and separated during a 22-hour operation, opened their eyes Wednesday when their mother touched them, authorities said.

And test results continued to point to the recovery of Benjamin and Patrick Binder, 7-month-old twins from West Germany.

The infants continue to awake from the prolonged anesthetic sleep in which they were placed to allow their brains to recover from the stress of surgery, said Lisa Hillman, a spokeswoman at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

While barbituates have been entirely removed, the children continue to be intermittently sedated "for their own comfort," the hospital spokeswoman said.

"When their mother touches them, however, they open their eyes," Hillman said.

The West German boys were born joined at the back of the head and shared a major vein.

Benjamin returned to the operating room Wednesday afternoon so that doctors could trim away dead skin from his scalp wound and replace it with freeze-dried human skin, Hillman said.

Campus Bulletin

TODAY

SOCIAL WORK ORGANIZATION meets at 5:30 p.m. in Union 207. Donald Bakely will speak about Crosslines, an inner-city poverty agency.

PI SIGMA EPSILON PLEDGE MEETING meets at 6 p.m. in Union 203.

RODEO CLUB new members meeting at 7 p.m. in Acker 221. Open executive meeting at 8 p.m. to vote on stock contractor.

FINANCE CLUB Royal Purple picture at 6:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

FINANCE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 207 for a resume workshop and interviewing tips.

ICHTHUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 8 p.m. in Union Little Theatre.

PRE-VET CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Trotter Hall 201.

I CONTRIBUTED A TWENTY (ICAT) meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Big 8 room.

WATERSKI TEAM meets at 8:30 p.m. in Union 208.

BETA SIGMA PSI LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8 p.m. at the Beta Sig house.

PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 206 for business meeting and election of new president.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

SAILING CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 208.

Corrections

Due to a reporter's error, the date of the K-State-University of Kansas game was wrong in a story in Wednesday's Collegian. The game is on Nov. 7.

Due to a reporter's error, a story in Wednesday's Collegian misidentified the university from where Charles Thomas, director of the Bramlage Coliseum, came. Thomas was associate director of The Sun Dome at the University of South Florida in Tampa.

Notice

The courtyard area of the Union will be closed from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today so workers can work on a section of the roof. It will be closed only if it does not rain. People will not be able to use the automatic teller machines or walk through there.

619 N. Manhattan
Come Party at Aggieville's
Largest Beer
Garden
THURSDAY

Bar Office
539-9081 776-6638

Tonight

All
Mixed
Drinks
$1.50

Support
the CATS
this Sat.

vs.
Army

DON'T FORGET
For your added convenience
LAFENE HEALTH CENTER
is expanding their service hours
Effective Monday, Sept. 14
New Clinic Hours—8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

•limited staffing over noon hours

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Chi Omega, Delta
Delta Delta, Off Campus

Sept. 18: Delta Delta Delta,
Delta Sigma Phi, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

DANCEWEAR HEADQUARTERS
BALLARD'S
in Aggieville
1218 Moro
Hours: Mon.-Thur. 8:30-8 p.m., Fri. & Sat. 8:30-5:30
Sun. 1-5 p.m.

RIP & MO'S
AUTHENTIC
NEW YORK DELI

We're open for lunch and dinner, serving whole and half sandwiches, homemade potato chips, homemade cheesecake, pasta salads and MORE!
mon.-thur. 11am-11pm
fri.&sat. 11am-1am
sun. 11am-10pm

Also visit the Back Door Bar (entrance at the rear of Rip and Mo's), open at 5pm nightly, and Saturday at noon.

RIP & MO'S
new york deli

710 N. Manhattan, Aggieville tel. 539-9706, OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

TONITE
and tomorrow
IN/OUT
The danceable rock band
$1.50 wells
$1.00 shots
(as always)

The Interview Suit:
Dressing to Impress
Yourself.

Would you go to a department store for guidance on how to dress for success? Probably not.
You'd want real insight on how to make a good First Impression.

At Borck Brothers our salespersonnel are trained in the art of fashion. They can help you buy a suit that lets you look good, without making you look like every other job applicant.

Suits are priced from $195. The advice is free.

Locally Owned

BORCK
Brothers

1100 Westloop Place (913) 537-4434
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat. till 8:30 Thurs.

Constitution: 'A blueprint for freedom'

The students of Northview Elementary School celebrated the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution by creating a human American flag Wednesday on the schoolyard. The idea for making the flag was thought up by a committee of teachers at the school. Principal Dan Yunk arrived at the school at 7:30 a.m. to line out the positions for the students. Of the 550 students who participated, only about five forgot to wear the proper colored shirt, but spare shirts were readily available and the flag was a success.

Staff/Andy Nelson

200TH

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
D.C., to view the four-page parchment.

A star-spangled spectacle cranks up Thursday in Philadelphia with patriotism and a parade, picnic, presidential speech, international bell-ringing ceremony, show business fanfare and fireworks.

The party marks the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution by 39 of the 55 delegates who shaped it during four hot summer months.

The 4,453-word document is the world's oldest constitution.

LEFT: Parents and their children watch the human flag. ABOVE: Following the flag making, the Pledge of Allegiance was recited.

Professors discuss grievance procedures

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

The American Association of University Professors met to discuss the new draft for the procedures of the General Faculty Grievance Board Wednesday afternoon in the Union.

The new draft, which is still in the completion process, is being drawn up by a special committee within the faculty senate.

Bernd Foerster, professor of environmental design and president of the AAUP's local chapter, said that with the rewriting of the grievance procedures, the committee thought it would be a good idea to discuss the issues being revised in the draft. The faculty senate will eventually vote on its institution.

"We just wanted to alert people so there would be some time to incorporate some ideas into the process before they're cast in concrete," Foerster said.

There are some difficulties with the system as it now exists, he said. The procedures are often time consuming and repetitious, and there have been problems with the manner in which the hearings take place. Foerster also said there has been a problem with people coming to the board with issues that could have been settled outside of a hearing.

To solve this problem, the new draft contains a proposal for the addition of an ombudsman. Serving as a mediator between the grievant and the board, the ombudsman would hopefully eliminate this problem.

Under the current procedures, a person must file a grievance with the chairman of the board. This leaves the chairman in the "middle" between the grievant and the presiding officer of the hearing.

James C. Mitchell, professor of psychology and former chairperson of the grievance board, said that instead of advising the grievant on how to go about proceedings, the chairperson usually ends up hearing the case, and this makes it hard to remain neutral.

"Our system does not handle this well," he said.

The addition of an ombudsman would also eliminate the problem.

Pope scolds dissent from church laws, offers no compromise

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — In a blunt exchange, American bishops told Pope John Paul II on Wednesday that "an uncritical application" of old solutions is no longer good enough for U.S. Catholics. But the pope called dissent from church law "a grave error" and incompatible with being a good Catholic.

There was no compromise in the pope's reply to the leadership of the American church, as he affirmed the church's stand against women priests, contraception, divorce, abortion and homosexual acts.

"Dissent from church doctrine remains what it is, dissent," the pope said in remarks to 320 of the nation's 400 bishops. "As such it may not be proposed or received on an equal footing with the church's authentic teaching."

During the private meeting at a seminary in the San Fernando Mission complex, the pope was treated to an unusually frank discussion about what bothers American Catholics and has caused them to ignore many of the church's teachings.

A Los Angeles Times poll of 957 Catholics last month found 9 of 10 say Catholics may disagree with church policies and still be considered loyal followers. Sixty percent disagreed with the church's ban on women in the priesthood, and only 25 percent thought birth control is sinful.

To accept faith, said the pope, is to abide by the church's teachings and "it would be altogether out of place to try to model this act of religion on attitudes drawn from secular culture."

The pope was addressed by four senior bishops of the American church.

"We live in an open society where everyone prizes the freedom to speak his or her mind," said Cardinal Joseph Bernardin. "Many tend to question things, especially those matters which are important to them, as religion is."

First Semester Special Now $27

Dr. Eric J. Wisdom D.D.S.
Family/Dentistry

- Dental exam
- 2 x-rays
- Complete cleaning

1445 Anderson
776-1771
333-1771
Toll Free
Call for Appointment

THURSDAY BREW and BBAMB

1.50 MIXED
DRINKS
(ANY BRAND)

$1.25 BBAMB
BURGERS, BURGERS
AND MORE BURGERS,
$1.25 BURGERS, 5-11

619 N. 12th, Aggieville
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Learn to Square Dance
with

K-LAIRES

7-10 pm

Sunday, Sept. 20

KSU Rooms

2nd Floor Union

NO PARTNER NEEDED

Experienced Dancers Welcome

WE DELIVER

5 p.m.- Midnight (M-S)
Noon - Midnight (Sun.)

Sub8.Stuff
Sandwich Shop

537-DELI

ATTENTION

Make Reservations for Organization Group Pictures
for the Royal Purple

NOW

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

OPEN 24 HOURS

1445 ANDERSON

32 oz. Big Gulp fountain drink 69¢
(doesn't apply w/Super Big Gulp)

Frito Lay Grab Bag potato chips 59¢

Lakeshore chili cheese dog $1.29
Regular $2.47

Now Only $1.49

ATTENTION

Organization Pictures
for the Royal Purple
are being taken in
FAIRCHILD 202

MEET YOUR OPPORTUNITY
AT THE AGRIBUSINESS CAREER FAIR

33 firms are recruiting for full-time and internships and waiting to see you!

Tues., Sept. 22
Ballroom—K-State Union
8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, September 17, 1987 ■ Page 4

Willie Nelson gives farmers slap in face FarmAid 'benefit' concert a joke

There is perhaps nothing so frustrating as the failure of an effort intended to help those in need of assistance. But such a failure occurred Sept. 5 when Willie Nelson's concert — touted as a benefit for FarmAid — didn't even generate enough money to cover its own costs.

And FarmAid won't see a dime.

About 17,000 tickets were sold for the concert, which followed the K-State game against Austin Peay. At least 3,000 more tickets would have been needed to generate a profit for FarmAid, according to Mike Jones, business manager of the athletic department. The department was one of three sponsors of the event.

In essence, the concert's failure is being blamed on poor ticket sales. However, the number of tickets sold should not have surprised anyone. Manhattan is not exactly known as a bastion for sell-out performances, and a concert by any group or individual that isn't a top headliner won't set any attendance records.

That's a lesson the Union Program Committee learned the hard way last fall with the Starship debacle. Not only was attendance poor, but UPC lost about $25,000 after selling only 3,300 tickets.

Poor attendance, though a legitimate excuse for failure, shouldn't have been totally unexpected with the Nelson concert, especially considering K-State's track record in sponsoring such events. The real reason FarmAid won't get any money can be summed up in one word: greed.

Commentary

DERON
JOHNSON
Editor

For several years, Nelson has been the guiding force behind the FarmAid effort, and for that he is to be commended. However, charging $75,000 for a concert performance, as he did Sept. 5, is obscene considering it was a "benefit" performance. Some benefit.

FarmAid won't see a dime.

Everybody ensured their pockets were lined without regard for the farmers. Somehow, the supposed beneficiaries were totally ignored when it came time to figure the bottom line.

And that's especially frustrating considering Nelson's past association with the farm relief program, which is staging FarmAid III Saturday in Lincoln, Neb. Nelson organized FarmAid I and FarmAid II, which were held Sept. 22, 1985, in Champaign, Ill., and July 4, 1986, near Austin, Texas. He also is organizing Saturday's event.

So, in the interest of generating as much assistance for bereft farmers as possible, the question must be: Why did Nelson feel it necessary to charge $75,000 for a concert in Manhattan?

Charging $75,000 would be bad enough in a major market such as Kansas City, Mo., but Nelson and all the other concert organizers were fools if they thought they would sell enough tickets here to cover the costs and then have some money left over for FarmAid.

Perhaps the bigger fools were those persons who bought tickets to the game thinking some of their money would help deserving farmers. It instead only went into Nelson's bank account, which surely didn't need the contribution — at least not as bad as some farmers I can think of. Asking for a "token" amount, such as $5,000 to cover expenses, would have been acceptable.

Maybe I'm just too much of an optimist, but when I heard the concert would be a benefit for FarmAid. I erroneously came to the conclusion that Nelson would perform either free of charge or at a nominal fee. Somehow I don't think I'm the only one who was mistaken. Not only did Nelson reap the financial harvest, but so did Projects West, one of the three co-sponsors of the concert. Projects West was to receive between $20,000 and $25,000 for its efforts.

And FarmAid won't see a dime.

Today, it's easy to be cynical when fundraising efforts are announced, especially with showings like Nelson's. Sadly, it's not always improbable to think the "fund-raisers" are nothing more than handsome bonuses for the "generous" performers.

What magnifies Nelson's misjudgment even more is that the performer has come to be so respected by the farmers who have benefited from his past efforts. For the farmers, after being patronized and ignored by the government for so many years, it's a slap in the face when Nelson does the same.

Ironically, much of Nelson's success surely comes from farmers who buy his music and go to his concerts.

But I wonder how many of those farmers, or the children of those farmers, will go to bed hungry tonight with a Willie Nelson song playing in the background.

Senate should reject nomination of Bork

This week the Senate Judiciary Committee is considering a nominee for the Supreme Court. But unlike many cases in the past, this nomination will not be a simple process of the committee trying to decide if the nominee is qualified for the position.

He is. Senators on both sides of the issue agree that his academic achievements and experience as a jurist are impressive.

But the confirmation of Robert H. Bork as an associate justice is not a matter of legal and academic qualifications. It is a political battle which could have a great impact on personal and civil freedoms for many years to come.

Bork would be filling the seat left by the retiring Justice Lewis Powell — who is considered a swing vote in the court — and would throw the balance of the court toward more conservative views.

It was expected, of course, that President Reagan would nominate a conservative who would reflect the beliefs of his administration. But the justice who will fill the vacancy on the court must be able to view arguments from both sides of the issue and make objective decisions as to how federal laws and the constitution will be applied, whether they be a conservative or a liberal.

Robert H. Bork does not fulfill that requirement. In his speeches, published works and especially his court rulings — as a U.S. Court of Appeals judge — Bork has extremely criticized the Supreme Court's rulings on personal privacy, the rights of women and minorities, and abortion.

It seems likely that his decisions on the court will be to actively change public lifestyle and that those changes will be motivated by personal politics.

Should Bork be confirmed as a Supreme Court Justice — a lifetime appointment — there seems to be no assurance that he will not use his seat on the court to further conservative politics which would greatly set back individual liberties and freedoms.

Legislature must pass Excellence proposal

It's common knowledge that faculty salaries at the University are well below the national average. Seventeen percent below, to be exact. The problem is what to do about it.

In his State of the University address last week, President Jon Wefald endorsed a solution — the Margin of Excellence proposal that will come before the Kansas Legislature in its next session.

The $117 million proposal is part of a three-year plan to "more satisfactorily and adequately fund education in Kansas," he said. Under the plan, $6 million would be allocated specifically for faculty salaries.

That $6 million is a must. Wefald knows it. Faculty members know it. And apparently, the Board of Regents knows it.

Members enthusiastically approved the proposal in June, but now comes the crucial part. The proposal will be scrutinized, discussed and decided on by the Legislature.

In his address, Wefald noted several optimistic signs about K-State's future. New student enrollment is up by 1,000 this fall. The freshman class contains 37 National Merit Scholars and 104 Governor's Scholars. Professors received $22 million in grants and contracts in 1986-87.

Wefald says the chances of the plan being accepted by Gov. Mike Hayden and the Legislature are good. "If Kansas is not going to be in the backwaters of the states of the 21st century, they had better approve it," he said.

And he's right. Low faculty salaries are making it difficult for the University to attract and retain quality instructors. If action isn't taken soon, more and more will follow their peers on a trail right out of Kansas.

Hayden made it clear in his State of the State address last January that education would be his top priority. The Legislature must follow suit. If this fall's figures are any indication, the "brain drain" of students from the state seems to be on the mend. The Margin of Excellence plan must be adopted to ensure that the drain of faculty does likewise.

Arias plan the answer Proposal would ensure peace

I would like to invite everyone on campus to Ahearn Field House Monday at 10:30 a.m. That's when Oscar Arias Sanchez will be speaking to the University. Many of you probably do not know who this man is. He is the president of our Central American neighbor Costa Rica who came up with the Arias plan to attain peace in that war-torn area of the world.

The Arias peace plan was signed by five Central American nations and was a severe setback to Ronald Reagan. The peace plan calls for an end to the aid the United States has been giving to the Contras, democratic reforms and a regional cease-fire. Thus, by signing the proposal, the leaders of these nations have for the first time recognized the legitimacy of the current administration in Nicaragua.

The United States is looking for ways to scuttle the agreement, much to our detriment. Reagan is determined to bankroll the Contras until the Sandinista government is ousted. Reagan said he could not endorse the plan because it is not everything that he feels necessary to ensure a communist-free zone.

Our president is bypassing an alternative that is a definite non-military solution. Nicaraguan Vice President Sergio Ramirez said the United States must change its policies or the treaty cannot take effect. If the United States would stop sending arms to the Contras, he said, a cease-fire would take effect with the Contras. They would receive food and non-military supplies from the Red Cross while the Contra forces are being demobilized.

Commentary

MIKE
KRUEGER
Collegian
Columnist

Also, along with the cease-fire, the Sandinista government would declare a general amnesty for everyone jailed as counter-revolutionaries and allow the Contras outside the country to return with full political rights.

Another portion of the Arias plan calls for Central America to be free of outside military influences. President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua is committed to having no foreign military bases on his country's soil. Ortega also agreed to allow the United States to verify the agreement with on-site inspectors. Reagan could not reasonably ask for more.

Reagan should embrace the plan as the Central American nations did. The nations are supporting the plan because the Contras are being defeated in the battlefields. If the Contras really had 15,000 to 30,000 men and support of the population as they claim, rather than the 6,000 they actually have, those nations would not be interested in the Arias proposal. Unfortunately, Reagan is a typical case of a commie hater and will not deal rationally with the Sandinistas. The U.S. allies in the region know the Contras are fighting a war they cannot win. Reagan should listen to them.

Reagan is an avowed anti-communist. The Arias plan calls for the democratization of Central America with full media freedom and all ideological currents. Rights must be granted to political parties to organize, demonstrate and speak out.

All state of emergency or state of siege decrees limiting civil rights must be lifted. Elections would be held with international observers present. Freedoms would be restored if the United States would abandon its covert involvement with the Contras and support the Arias plan.

It is not often that a president of a foreign nation speaks at a state university. We are especially lucky to be able to hear a man with a vision. He is fighting for a way to bring peace to an area of the world that has seen right-wing dictatorships, banana republics and human rights abuses for the last 40 years. I ask you to go to this lecture and embrace peace, not war.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Policies may change

Regents seek academic upgrade

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

High school and community college curricula across the state may change because of a new admissions policy for Regents institutions to be discussed by the Board of Regents at its meeting today in Topeka.

While adoption of the policy is not expected at this meeting, the issue of "open admissions" is likely to be discussed at length. A staff paper prepared for the Regents states that the board seeks, among other things, to "upgrade the academic standards of Kansas high schools and community colleges by communicating basic performance expectations" by implementing a policy of selective admissions.

Three options for selective admissions are being presented to the board. The plans would affect the three largest Regents institutions: University of Kansas, K-State and The Wichita State University.

Under the first option, all three universities would adopt the selective admissions standards. Only KU and K-State would implement the performance standards under the second alternative. The third plan establishes the new policy only at KU.

All three options, however, would require Kansas residents to meet at least one of the following requirements: complete the Regents' recommended high school curriculum with a 2.0 grade point average, score 23 or higher on the ACT or rank in the top one-third of their high school graduating class.

Courses recommended by the Regents to prepare a high school student for college include three units each of math, social studies and natural sciences as well as four units of English and two units of foreign language.

The ability of rural school districts to adopt these recommendations may cause problems for K-State, said Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement.

"We know we draw students from all 105 counties in Kansas. Forty percent of our students have less than 100 in their graduating class," Krause said.

He pointed out that providing the foreign language instruction necessary may be the most difficult requirement for rural schools to meet.

Another goal of the selective admissions policy would be to "distinguish more clearly the mission of the Kansas Regents system from that of the Kansas community colleges by eliminating remedial courses from certain Kansas Regents institutions," according to the staff paper.

Remedial courses may not be eliminated under a selective admissions policy, said Pat Bosco, assistant vice president and dean of student life, in his report to the Legislative Educational Planning Committee.

"For example, at the University of California-Los Angeles, only the top 12 percent of graduating high school seniors are eligible for admission, and half of all the freshmen are placed in non-credit remedial mathematics and English courses," Bosco said.

K-State's high school recruiting program would also have to be changed by the admissions policy.

Holton Hall renovation tops

Student Senate agenda tonight

By Jill Conger
Collegian Reporter

Two opposing bills concerning the renovation of Holton Hall will be discussed at tonight's Student Senate meeting.

Senators will hear and discuss a bill submitted by three senators concerning the $1.069 million proposed plan for the renovation of Holton Hall. The senators are suggesting the $3/semester/full-time student, and the $1/semester/part-time student fee continue to be charged until sufficient funds have been collected to meet the projected cost.

The second bill to be discussed calls for a student services support fee referendum. Senators will consider adding two questions to the ballot used during the November student government's general election. The questions to be listed on the ballot are: Should the student services support fee be used to renovate Holton Hall? and Should the fee be used to create a satellite parking/shuttle service?

Senate will be voting on the resolution to appoint a student task force for Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement. He requested student representation two weeks ago when he spoke at Student Senate. The request is for six student members to be appointed to the task force by the student body president.

The task force is assigned the duty of making recommendations about the relationship between the Counseling Center, mental health, and physical health services. The task force would also be working with the four administrators. Michael Lynch, director and associate professor of academic assistance, would chair the task force.

A bill to change the due date for submitting campaign expenditure reports will be presented to Senate for discussion.

Senate also will be voting to enhance information given to students about their fees. The proposal requests that the University specify in the catalog each of the special fees for the summer session. In addition, the resolution requests all fees be specified in print to each student at the time of registration for the summer session.

Jackson cancels Kansas trip

By The Associated Press

CONCORDIA — A planned trip to Kansas by Democratic presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson this weekend has been canceled, but an organizer for one of the appearances says he'll try to get it rescheduled early next spring.

Darrell Ringer of Quinter, an organizer for the Rural Outreach Coalition of Kansas which planned a public rally in Concordia Monday, said he would meet with Jackson representatives in Washington to try to get an appearance set for March or April.

Charles Meek, state coordinator of Jackson's Rainbow Coalition, said he was notified early this week that the Kansas stops in Wichita, Concordia and Topeka were called off because Jackson was exhausted.

Ringer said the quick trip would have been "too short to get the impact we wanted." He said Jackson had planned to stay overnight with a farmer in the Concordia area.

"We wanted to give Jackson a complete glimpse of the rural crisis and issues," Ringer said. "There wouldn't have been time for rural farmers and businessmen to discuss their needs with Jackson."

The cancellation of the Concordia rally was a disappointment to some officials in town.

The Men of Alpha Gamma Rho would like to congratulate their newly tapped little sisters:

Michelle Addleman
Jennifer Allen
Tammy Anderson
Carolyn Baier
Karen Bauman
Carla Blain
Dolores Born
Susan Clarkson
Deanell DeBey
Nancy Deckert
Gretchen Eberly
Ingrid Erickson
Jennifer Franklin
Lora Gilliland
Kathi Harrington
Karol Henry

Terri Holcomb
Kami Huxman
Kristin Johnson
Lora Kilgore
Niki Krainbill
Mitzi Loughmiller
Jill Luginsland
Molly McCloskey
Kim Murray
Debbie Neel
Kelly Pakkebie
Diana Peine
Jill Risley
Janelle Rundle
Kim Ryan
Darla Schwant

Shannan Seely
Amy Stockton
Trista Taylor
Melanie Theroff
Michelle Thole
Julie Thompson
Colleen Unger
Denise Vering
Bobbie Ward
Sommer Weelborg
Stacy Weil
Misty Wiechman
Sandy Wiederholt
Paula Worley

Theta Zeta Ironman '86 Champs

Will they repeat?

IRONMAN '87

Sept.
18 & 19

More Houseplants!

Come and see our newest arrivals! Norfolk Pines, all kinds of cycads, Aralias, more Dallas Ferns, and miniature African Violets.

Great Prices!

4ft. Weeping Fig
Dracaena Marginata
Split Leaf Philodendron
Hawaiian Schefflera
Araucaria Palms
HUGE Rubber Tree
Corn Plant (cane)

10" Potted
Floor Plants

$14.99

STURDY
MADE IN USA

6" Philodendron Hanging Basket... $3.99
4" Potted Tabletop Plants... $1.69
10" Potted Boston Fern Baskets... $11.99

Wicker
Assorted designer baskets for plants.

Clay Pots

FREE REPOTING!
... when you
buy your pot,
plant & soil here.

Eastside & Westside Markets

east of downtown Manhattan on Hwy 24 • West K-18 by Holiday

KRYSTALLOS

"BEAUTIFUL OBJECTS
FROM THE EARTH"

Earrings, Stone Beads & Chips,
Lapis, Malachite, Rosary,
Quartz, Amethyst & more.

Highway 24 East
(by the L.W. Wilson Shop)
Thurs.-Sun 10:30-6
539-0360

Block and Bridle
Hamburger Fry
and Dance!!

Friday, Sept. 18
6 p.m.

City Park—Pavillion

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM
EXPRESS

egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Series

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Neurtus Towers—Aggieville

We Add A Special
Touch to All
Party Occasions!
BALLOON BOUTIQUE

401 N. 3rd
Mon.-Sat. 8:30-5

Meet B.B. the Clown!

539-0106

We Deliver

Dutch Maid

Super Markets

Blue Hills
Shopping Center

1522
Poyntz

Plan your weekend party early!
Kegs To Go

Keg of Old Milwaukee Light	$32.98
Keg of Old Milwaukee	$32.98
Keg of Coors	$39.98
Keg of Coors LIGHT	$39.98
Keg of Budweiser	$39.98
Keg of BUD LIGHT	$39.98

We Stock Cold Kegs

Please call 539-2351 or 539-5346 two days ahead to reserve your choice of beer.

Shultz reports 'some progress' Treaty for arms control possibility with Soviets

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George P. Shultz reported "some progress" Wednesday toward an arms control accord with the Soviets and turned to the occupation of Afghanistan in his pre-summit talks with Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

Two of Shultz's key goals are to narrow differences in the way of a treaty to scrap U.S. and Soviet medium-range missiles so it can be signed this year at a superpower summit, and persuading the Soviets to adopt a short timetable for withdrawing 115,000 troops from Afghanistan.

A third U.S. goal during Shevardnadze's visit is to spur a revamping of Soviet emigration procedures. A mixed team of U.S. and Soviet human rights specialists opened talks while Shultz and Shevardnadze held an 80-minute morning session at the State Department.

The atmosphere remained upbeat, despite modest advance predictions by Reagan administration officials. But the U.S. lineup at the meetings apparently caused some internal friction.

Senior Pentagon arms control specialists attended a meeting Monday morning at the White House but were not included in a plenary session with the Soviets that afternoon at the State Department. Nor was Edward L. Rowny, a senior presidential adviser.

The talks centered on prospects for a treaty to ban intermediate-range nuclear missiles and on lagging negotiations for a 50 percent cutback in intercontinental U.S. and Soviet weapons.

Their exclusion prompted the Defense Department to register a complaint with the White House, which interceded in their behalf, said a U.S. official who discussed the situation on condition of anonymity. Rowny attended the next plenary on arms control Wednesday morning at the department.

The 40-minute session dealt with chemical weapons and other subsidiary arms control issues.

Acting Assistant Defense Secretary Frank Gaffney and Rowny, meanwhile, participated in expert-level talks with the Soviets on Tuesday night.

Before Shevardnadze's visit, the Pentagon had objected to a decision not to develop conventionally armed cruise missiles or to deploy them as part of the budding accord with the Soviets.

Other conciliatory moves in the past also were taken over Pentagon objections.

Shultz reported "some progress" Wednesday after he heard from his technical experts who met with Soviet specialists for three hours Tuesday night. He did not provide any details in a brief exchange with reporters.

Asked what he thought of the optimistic statements by U.S. officials, Shevardnadze hesitated and then replied, through a Russian interpreter: "We also made some optimistic statements."

Referring to the working groups, Shevardnadze said that "if we didn't expect anything, we wouldn't be sitting here."

Kansas signs agreement in coast-to-coast lottery

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Kansans will have the opportunity starting next year to play in a coast-to-coast lottery, what organizers describe as the biggest game in the nation. Missouri may soon agree to participate as well.

The multistate lottery, known as "Lotto America," was announced Wednesday as five states and the District of Columbia signed an agreement to launch the joint game.

Ticket sales will start early next year, probably in February.

Iowa, Kansas, Oregon, Rhode Island and West Virginia will participate along with the District of Columbia. Missouri is expected to join soon, possibly later this week, but is awaiting approval from a state legislative panel.

Larry Montgomery, executive director of the Kansas Lottery, said the multistate game should prove popular with players and would in turn be a big revenue producer for the Sunflower State, possibly providing $30-$32 million in its first year.

"We could never get the big prizes with just our own individual state lottery," Montgomery said after the signing ceremony, which was held on the steps of a D.C. city building a few blocks away from the White House.

"We would have the same problems that other midwestern states have had. They just couldn't get the excitement for it."

Officials in the multistate organization hope the lottery will offer average jackpots of $3 million to $5 million a week, with the possibility that the prize pool could grow to $40 million or more if it accumulated for several weeks without a big winner.

Peter O'Connell, chairman of the multistate lottery, said the pooling of ticket money made the joint game particularly attractive to smaller states, some of which must compete against the lotteries of their larger neighbors.

"It means that the participating states and the District of Columbia can now generate more revenue and allow ... the people that play the lottery to play for extremely large jackpots," said O'Connell.

He also raised the prospect that Lotto America will expand, possibly leading to a nationwide lottery such as one in Canada.

"I feel confident that there will be others that will be joining us," said O'Connell. "I see the day in the future when all lottery states will have a common game. And this is the basis and the nucleus of what we're talking about."

Iowa will serve as the host for the new lottery, and the weekly game will be transmitted by satellite for broadcast in other participating states.

The format and rules of the game have yet to be designed, but organizers envision a game in which players try to choose the winning combination of several numbers. If a prize isn't won one week, it would be carried over to provide an ever-growing jackpot.

Participants have agreed that tickets will cost $1, and 45 percent of sales will go into the prize pool for the first game. Each state retains the profit for ticket sales in its jurisdiction.

The special legislative committee in Missouri is to consider the multistate lottery question on Thursday. Missouri lottery officials have said they want to join but will proceed only after they obtain the committee's approval.

O'Connell said the multistate organization has given permission for Missouri to join at any time, and will have the agreement ready for state officials to sign this week.

The multistate lotto will be the second such lottery in the United States. New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine have operated a joint game for two years.

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

Iraqi bombers attack ship

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraq unleashed its fighter-bombers against Iranian oil centers and a ship in the Persian Gulf on Wednesday, saying Tehran has spurned "all peace efforts" in the 7-year-old gulf war.

The air raids signaled a new flare-up in the so-called "tanker war" after a six-day lull in the waterway that coincided with a peace mission by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Shipping officials feared Iran might stage retaliatory attacks on neutral shipping in the southern reaches of the gulf.

"The U.N. secretary-general's mission has been portrayed as a last-ditch peace effort, so it might be hell from now on," said one shipping executive, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

However, a flotilla of U.S. warships escorting the Gas Prince, a Kuwaiti tanker flying the American flag, was reported to be nearing Kuwait's Al-Ahmadi oil terminal after an incident-free 550-mile voyage up the gulf.

Tehran's Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, quoted a War Information Headquarters spokesman as saying Iran will "strongly respond" to Iraq's "mischievous acts."

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

New New New
CAR WASH
FOUR BAYS
619 N. 3rd St.
Across from Pizza Hut
Brand new and no waiting

HELP WANTED
Creative individual to help set up and run a custom shop for this Halloween. Could possibly run entire school year.
•Set your own schedule •Good pay
Apply in person at the
SOUND SHOP
1204 Moro

BLUE RIVER PUB
DRINKING & EATING ESTABLISHMENT
Presents

"SLY SIR"

Friday and Saturday Night
9:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Coming NEXT THURSDAY
Female Strippers

NO MEMBERSHIP REQUIRED

Next to Tuttle Creek

537-9877

ATTENTION!

Due to a production error, a few of the '87-'88 Programmers have the pages 65-80 missing. Please check your Programmer. If yours is not complete, please bring it to the Activities Center, K-State Union 3rd floor, Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. It will be fixed and returned to you the following day. (Monday if turned in Friday) Corrections will be made through September 30. Thank you for your support and we regret any inconvenience this has caused.

k-state union
upc promotions

NOW OPEN SUNDAYS

Tonight

Old Milwaukee Night

Pitchers $1.50

Draws $.50

"It just doesn't get any better than this"

NO Dress Code, NO Cover Charge

Go north on Tuttle Creek Blvd. then right on the back road to the Rocks

Rt. 5

"The Finest Little Tavern by a Dam Site! 537-3133

McCall's Shoes

Rockport Walk Week '87

With Rockport shoes comfort is in the bag.

Rockport's exclusive Walk Support System® matches good looks with unmatched lightweight stability and shock absorption. So, no matter where your day takes you, you've got Rockport comfort in the bag.

And the bag is free.***

Open Sundays
1-5 p.m.

Now, during Walk Week '87, we'll give you a Rockport sport bag — *with every purchase of Rockport shoes. Supplies are limited so stop in soon and bag your share of comfort.

McCall's
Shoes
313 Poyntz

Rockport

©1987 The Rockport Company

Entire Stock of COATS
25% OFF

INCLUDES:
• Leathers
• Denim Jackets
• Active Jackets
• Long & Short
Wools

MAURICES
Fashion Doesn't Cost A Fortune At 116 South Fourth Street • Downtown Manhattan

ONE MAN'S BATTLE WITH AIDS

Dennis Howard, associate professor of veterinary diagnosis, explains the difficulties he has experienced since learning he has AIDS. His father Don tends to the daily chores.

AIDS

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

our policy. "It would really be inappropriate for me to comment on it," she said. "What I can tell you is that the University's policy is one of non-discrimination in regard to a person who has any kind of disability."

Coffman said it would be "bad policy" to discuss the issue.

"I can tell you clearly that we are not in violation of the University policy," he said. "Beyond that, I just don't feel I should get into a public debate."

Vorhies would only say that Howard's responsibilities have been "assumed by others. I can't say anything else about it," he said.

The Kansas State University Guidelines for AIDS, AIDS-Related Complex and AIDS Virus were approved May 2, 1986, in an effort to prevent the "fear, apprehension and (sometimes) hysteria on learning that a member of the community is known to have AIDS." They continue: "In a university, some of these same forces and prejudices may also surface."

Howard said despite the attempts to prevent the type of anxiety spelled out in the guidelines, his condition was apparently causing hysteria in the Vet Med center.

In their April 6 letter to Howard, Coffman and Vorhies wrote: "It was noted that your colleagues in the laboratory, both unclassified and classified, are beginning to experience an increased level of anxiety related to the various expressions of your illness."

After he moved out of his office, Howard said maintenance workers disinfected it with liquid bleach.

Vorhies would neither confirm nor deny the incident, and Coffman said he knew nothing about it.

The guidelines also state that "people with AIDS, ARC or a positive test present no danger to those with whom they go to class, share bathrooms, eat, work or study near. Objects touched or handled by people with AIDS are not 'contaminated' and need not be feared."

Nevertheless, Howard said, "There's one veterinarian there who's just scared to death. He's a Ph.D. pathologist, and I think he kept tabs of when I went to the bathroom so he'd know which urinal to use."

As for employment, the guidelines state "the University will, on a case-by-case basis, make reasonable accommodations to help persons with AIDS carry out their work duties."

In his April 13 letter, Coffman told Howard: "You will continue to be on full pay while we work out the details of how best to institute your retirement benefits and social security."

"They haven't helped me with anything," Howard counters. "They said they were going to help me so much. But they've never done any of that."

Although he is a homosexual, Howard said he is certain he was exposed to the virus when he cut his finger on a test tube of tainted human blood last year.

"But it's very hard to convince anyone — even my doctor, because he says the cases of laboratory infection are very remote," he said.

But, he said, the accident was his own mistake and not the fault of the University.

What is the fault of the University, he contends, is how he's been treated.

"The University basically just totally ignored me," he said. "I've been discriminated against, treated with no respect. I've asked to go back to work but been denied."

Thompson and Coffman both denied the discrimination charge.

Howard said he is not allowed at the Vet Med center anymore.

"They call University security when I go up there," he said. "I think everyone's been informed that I'm not supposed to be there."

Vorhies and Coffman both denied comment.

Howard said he doesn't want to cause a scandal with a lawsuit, but he said he doesn't know where else to turn.

"I hate to file charges against them, but I don't know what other route to take," he said. "We've got some people up there who are supposed to be professionals, and they're treating this just the opposite. No one wants to face the issue or do anything about it."

Howard cleans a tube that carries a liquid food supplement into his stomach.

Photography by
Brett Hacker

One year after AIDS diagnosis, Howard assesses his life, goals

By Judy Lundstrom
Special Projects Editor

A year ago this month, Dennis Howard's doctor confirmed what he had secretly been fearing for weeks. He had AIDS.

"Being in the medical profession, I think I knew I had AIDS," said the 38-year-old veterinary pathologist, who is currently on a medical absence from K-State. "I had been experiencing some weight loss and a loss of energy."

Howard said that at the time, his doctor in Manhattan didn't think there was anything wrong with him.

"He just seemed to think I was under a lot of stress. I got to feeling so bad that he finally referred me to Dr. William Wade over in Topeka," he said.

When he got there, Howard learned he had contracted Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, and he spent 13 days in the hospital.

Wade immediately put him on AZT, a new drug used to fight the disease, at the end of October 1986. Since then, it's been an on-again, off-again battle with the drug. When he went back into the hospital last April, Wade took him off the drug for a short period, then put him back on it again. Last week, Howard was in the hospital once again. Now he is off the drug completely.

"Does AZT help? That's really hard to say," he said. "It hasn't kept me out of the hospital."

AZT pills cost about $2.50 each, and Howard was taking 12 a day.

"My drug bills have averaged about $1,200 a month," he said.

Since he's had the disease, Howard said he seldom eats solid foods. He consumes liquid supplements through a plastic tube that runs directly into his stomach. His sustenance consists of four "feedings," or eight cans a day — about 400 calories each.

"It's very difficult to take in enough calories to maintain your body and to have enough calories to fight off your infection," he said.

Howard said that although it's difficult, he doesn't try to hide his homosexuality.

"Yes, I am gay," he said. "It's something that I don't try to publicize, but I certainly don't try to hide it. It's kind of funny — I don't know why it happened. I wasn't gay when I was in college. I just met Greg and we hit it off."

He and Greg have been together five years. "I don't know how I'd have made it without him," he said.

When asked about his lover's state of health, tears filled Howard's eyes. "He's recently tested positive," he said, his voice quavering. "But that doesn't mean he's going to come down with the disease. All it means is that he's been exposed to the virus."

Howard, the oldest child in his family, has two brothers and one sister. All, he said, have been very supportive throughout his ordeal.

Last week, Don Howard, Dennis' father, drove up from Grove, Okla., a town of about 3,000, to be with his son for awhile. As Dennis sat at the kitchen table and displayed a gift he has always treasured — his father's Purple Heart and Silver Star Medal for Bravery from World War II — the elder Howard explained what it felt like to find out his son was gay.

"It hurt," he said. "I don't understand it, but I accept it. If you love your child, you'll support them."

Don said the family's friends have also been very supportive.

"I don't hide the fact he's got AIDS," he said. "I'd rather they talk to me about it. I've got friends down at the grocery store who always say a prayer for us."

He said the situation has drawn the family closer. "But then, we've always been a close-knit family," he said.

The elder Howard said if he could give a bit of advice to other parents of persons with AIDS, it would be to "just never give up loving them, and be supportive of them."

Is he worried about getting AIDS while staying with his son? "Lord, no," he said.

At the moment, Dennis isn't quite sure what to do with the rest of his life. While he would like to go back to work, he says the University won't allow it.

When he first learned he had AIDS, Howard said the doctor gave him six months to live.

Now he is playing the waiting game. He spends time outdoors playing with his two Labrador Retrievers. He watches a lot of TV and rents movies often.

He also reads. On the nightstand in his bedroom is the book, "On Death and Dying."

The uncertainty of the disease has been tough on everyone who knows Howard.

"What hurts mother and me most is the waiting," Don said, slowly shaking his head. "We lost our daughter at age 9 to a brain tumor, and now this."

Dennis says his goal in the next few months is to get better. "There's always that hope, but I don't think in my lifetime they'll come up with a vaccine," he said.

While the entire ordeal has been extremely painful to deal with, Dennis said the hardest thing he's had to do is make his funeral arrangements.

"I'm going to be cremated," he said, looking solemnly out the sliding glass doors of his spacious house on a hill overlooking Manhattan. "I want some of my ashes spread over the pasture out here. I love this place."

Don Howard adjusts the tubes on a pouch of high-calorie liquid supplement as his son Dennis prepares for one of four daily feedings. The feedings take about 30 minutes each.

Student speakers to top list of new lecture series

By Chuck Horner
Staff Writer

Wanted: Students with good academic standing and the ability to speak publicly and credibly on topics limited only by their imagination.

A unique opportunity for K-State students to get involved has evolved in the form of the Student Lecturer Series under the auspices of New Student Programs.

This program is an adjunct to the Presidential Lecture Series, said Marilyn Trotter, director and instructor in New Student Programs and student lecture series program coordinator.

Trotter said students selected for participation in the series will travel to Kansas high schools and community colleges as guest speakers.

"If it makes good sense to have our best faculty go out and represent K-State, then it makes equally good sense to get our best students involved," she said.

Trotter said the primary thrust of the program is not student recruitment, rather, it is to provide an opportunity for high school and community college students throughout Kansas to observe firsthand the caliber and diversification of students attending K-State.

Students wanting to apply to be a lecturer can get an application in Room 112, Anderson Hall, Trotter said. The deadline for applications is Sept. 23.

Trotter said funding for this program is being provided by the University. No expenses will be incurred by students selected as lecturers.

The Student Lecturer Series, a campus-wide endeavor, is patterned after a similar program conducted at Texas Tech University, said Rick Malir, junior in agricultural economics.

He said he was introduced to the program while visiting Texas Tech and thought the program could be applied at K-State.

Trotter said Malir recommended initiation of the series to her and they have been jointly developing the program.

The lecture series represents an opportunity for students to be selected based upon their public speaking skills, as opposed to peer popularity, she said.

Applicants will be interviewed and evaluated on their ability to speak and their knowledge of and appropriateness of topics, Trotter said.

She emphasized there are no preconceived ideas about what constitutes an appropriate topic.

"Students selected for participation in this program will have to make a time commitment, and will have to be flexible, but the personal rewards they can reap will be many," Trotter said.

KCC says telephone refunds, rate reduction 'appropriate'

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Rates Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. charges its Kansas customers are reasonable because of a rate reduction and a refund ordered recently by the Kansas Corporation Commission, the KCC tentatively decided Wednesday.

The three-member commission, which regulates utilities in the state, agreed with a KCC staff report that said a $9.2 million in refunds Bell customers are receiving on their September bills and a $8 million rate reduction to be implemented in January made the company's rate's "appropriate."

The commission also tentatively decided to dismiss a petition from the U.S. Department of Defense urging an investigation of the rates. The agency filed the petition in June 1986, charging that the company's rates allowed it to make a return on company stockholders' investments that was "excessive."

The KCC made both decisions at an administrative meeting Wednesday. Steve Menaugh, a KCC spokesman, said a formal, written order is pending, but did not know when it would be issued.

Menaugh said the petition's filing had spurred an audit of the company's earnings, which resulted in a formal order in August that required the refund and the rate reduction in January. However, he also said the staff probably would have done an audit without the petition.

In the August order, the KCC required Southwestern Bell, which serves about 834,000 customers, to refund the $7.2 million because of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling on the rates phone companies can charge for depreciation.

The KCC also ordered Bell to return $2 million more because of federal tax reform in 1986, which decreased the federal tax rate that applies to the company from 46 percent to 34 percent.

Pope desires unity Kansas priests praise tour

By Nancy Chartrand
Collegian Reporter

Area priests believe Pope John Paul II's image as a compassionate listener to Catholic as well as non-Catholic Americans during his visit to the United States will help different religions work together.

"In his visit, the pope is trying to understand the American people and their different cultures," said the Rev. Brad Sterrett, pastor of Seven Dolores Catholic Church.

"By listening to the complaints and thoughts of Americans, he is presenting a very positive image of the church," he said.

The pope arrived in the United States Thursday for a 10-day tour of the country.

While the pope's visit may be a "shot in the arm" to American Catholics, father Sterrett said he fears "Americans will be looking for the pope to speak on the controversial issues, and in the process will lose his message that calls America to a greater awareness of its social responsibilities to the world."

During his tour, the pope has addressed many controversial issues such as homosexuality, celibacy for priests, abortion, and the role of women in the church.

"Speaking of women's role in the church, while it is true that women have been oppressed, we cannot expect a radical change," said the Rev. Loren Werth, pastor of St. Thomas Moore Church. "There must be evolution, not revolution in the church. Women must be patient."

Father Werth said he hopes the pope will use softer tones when speaking on such issues. He said it is more important for the pope to come across as a listener and not a preacher.

When addressing the issue of homosexuality, many priests believe the pope will continue his practice of being a compassionate listener.

"The Holy Father will uphold the church's moral values yet at the same time be compassionate. As Catholics we must believe that the Holy Spirit guides the pope in his teachings, therefore we must accept them as right," said the Rev. Norbert Dlabal, pastor of St. Isidore's University Parish.

"I was also very glad to hear the Holy Father praise those Catholics who have given refuge to those from the south," he said about people from Central and South America who found refuge in the United States.

During his speech in San Antonio, the pope, while not mentioning sanctuary by name, praised the movement.

THE ICECREAM SOCIAL
Ice cream cakes & pies
Freshly baked cookies
Popcorn gift canisters
Open 7 days a week
1439 Anderson 537-7079
South of McCain Auditorium

THURSDAY
is
IMELDA MARCOS
NIGHT
at
Bobby J's Restaurant and Fundrinkery
Win one pair of shoes every month for three months. Register every Thursday.
Candlewood Shopping Center 539-1571

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
Established 1982
FRIDAY
FREE SANDWICH & CHIP BAR
STARTS AT 4:30
DON'T FORGET TONIGHT THE 'ORIGINAL' DOLLAR $DAZES
PIZZA POUND
ALL-U-CAN EAT THIS SUNDAY
1800 Claflin 539-9619

Applications are now being accepted for
SGA Treasurer
Responsibilities include:
•Compiling the annual SGA budget
•Representing the SGA budget during allocations
•Informing Student Senate of current SGA budget matters
Questions?
Call the Student Senate Hotline
532-7777
Applications are due in the SGS office,
Wednesday, September 23 at 5 p.m.

4" & 6" Sandwiches
Ask about our 10% Discounts
*****
HALF WHOLE
Sandwiches 1-12, 15, 16 $2.25 $3.50
Kitchen Sink 2.75 4.75
Roast Beef 2.50 4.00
211 S. Seth Childs, Manhattan, Ks. 66502
537-2411
Call Ahead-We'll have it ready

TINA'S Studio 32
FOR HAIR
is proud to introduce
JUDY and LOLA
two top hair designers and perm artists
who are joining our team of professionals.
Judy and Lola will be giving 50% off (reg $18) cuts with styling as a get acquainted offer through Sept. 26
Call 776-8830 Candlewood Shopping Center

UPC
UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

"GREAT ENTERTAINMENT..."
a wonderful, exciting, heartwarming movie...
— Siskel & Ebert & THE MOVIES

HOOSIERS
Tomorrow and Saturday, 7 & 9:30 pm
Union Forum Hall
Rated PG; $1.75 with KSU ID
Saturday, Sept. 19, at the 9:30 show, there will be a drawing for a basketball courtesy of Ballard's Sporting Goods.
k-state union upc feature films

"REMARKABLE! FUNNY, ENTERTAINING, WARM AND RIVETING..."
To see a movie like this makes you re-evaluate everybody you know and what you think about them... WE LOVED IT!
— Siskel & Ebert, AT THE MOVIES
DIRECTED BY MICHAEL APTED
28 UP
A FIRST RUN FEATURE RELEASE
k-state union upc kaleidoscope

"OPUS" Band Competition
September 25, 1987
5-9 p.m., Union North Lawn

See the following bands compete for $600 in prizes!
The Moving Van Goghs Witness
That Statue Moved Crosswind
Moneytree Essential Sound Project
k-state union upc eclectic entertainment S.M. Hanson Music

We're Off... to the
Horse Races in Lincoln, NE
October 10, 1987
$15
includes general admission ticket and round-trip transportation
Information meeting:
September 22, 1987
Union Room 208, 7pm
Sign-up:
September 23-October 8, 1987
Union Activities Center, 3rd floor
8am-4pm
k-state union upc travel

EXPERIENCE RAPPELLING
Mini Rappelling at Tuttle Creek Lake
Sept. 26-27
Sign-Up:
Today through Sept. 24, 8 a.m.-4 p.m.
Union Activities Center
Cost: $7
INCLUDES:
Equipment and Demonstration Refreshments
k-state union upc outdoor rec.
ROCK CLIMBING & RAPPELLING
in COLUMBIA, MISSOURI
Sat. & Sun.,
Oct. 10-11
Informational Meeting
Sept. 22, 7 pm, Union 207
Sign-Up:
Sept. 23-Oct. 6
Union Activities Center
Cost: $26
Equipment & Meals Provided

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, September 17, 1987 ■ Page 9

Volleyball team stops MSU rally

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

An extra year of experience and a loud, supportive crowd can make all the difference in a close match. Just ask the K-State volleyball team members, they'll tell you the same.

K-State, with help from the crowd, survived a strong fourth-game comeback by Michigan State to claim victory in the match — 15-11, 8-15, 15-12, 17-15 — played in Ahearn Field House Wednesday night.

"It was a real good match that could have gone either way," K-State volleyball coach Scott Nelson said. "The crowd really came to our rescue and was the key at the end. They (the crowd) forced a serving error and a tentative serve at the end (by Michigan State). We've always had a good vocal crowd and that really helps us in close matches."

K-State outside hitter Shawnee Call once again came through for the team when it really counted. Call thrashed her way to a K-State four-game record of 25 kills. The previous record of 23 kills was set by Cindy Durham last year.

"Shawnee is still struggling to get to top form," Nelson said. "There were points throughout the match, when she did do something really goofy, but she didn't do many goofy things at the end."

Nelson was also very pleased with the play of setters Kristin Martin and Leslie Kull and thought they made a big difference in the match. Valerie Kastens is playing really good volleyball and is currently blocking tough for the team, Nelson said.

Net violations may have cost the Wildcats several points and side-outs throughout the match, but they didn't keep K-State from winning the first game 15-11. In the second game, K-State took a 4-1 lead before succumbing to the Michigan State Spartans 8-15 to tie it up at one game each.

The third and fourth games tested the confidence, poise and concentration of the Wildcats. After building an early 5-1 lead in the third game, K-State saw Michigan State battle back to take an 8-9 lead. With several fine plays by the Lady Wildcats, especially Shawnee Call, K-State regained the lead and won 15-12.

It looked like K-State, with a 13-5 lead, was going to win the fourth and final game easily. Someone forgot to tell the Lady Spartans that, though. They rattled off nine unanswered points and found themselves in the driver's seat with a 14-13 lead. With K-Stater Leslie Kull serving, the Wildcats finally managed to knock a ball to the floor on the Spartan's side to tie it up at 14-14.

The crowd decided to join in and see what they could do to help K-State, in a big way. The Spartan servers found it much more difficult to serve with the roar of the crowd disrupting their concentration and sent a key serve into the net, making it possible for K-State to pull ahead and win 17-15.

"In both the third and fourth games, I told the team we had to get out strong," Nelson said. "The third game is probably the most critical when you're one and one, because, if you win it, then the other team knows they have to win two."

"The fourth game when we got the 13-5 lead, I was screaming out on the court to stay intense, keep the intensity level and keep concentrating, because its inevitable a team will not give up those last couple of points," Nelson added.

Shawnee Call set a new record with 25 kills in four games against Michigan State Wednesday night in Ahearn Field House.

Staff/Greg Vogel

Former WSU Shocker glad he picked KU

By The Associated Press

LAWRENCE — Clint Normore won't likely forget the bomb dropped on him last December by Wichita State athletic officials, who cut the football program because of its failure to make money through a dismal 3-8 season.

For Normore, the Shockers' starting free safety and second leading tackler, the decision meant a setback tainted with both surprise and celebration.

"Of course, I was like anyone else on the team — I was shocked and disappointed that they gave up on us," he said. "But rationally, it was more of a blessing in disguise. I knew I'd have the chance to go to a better conference and get more exposure. In a way, I was thankful."

Normore had options. He averaged 5.4 points a game during two seasons as a Shocker reserve point guard, yet ignored pleas by basketball coach Eddie Fogler to remain in the program.

"I just felt more comfortable pursuing a football career, it's that simple," he said.

By spring, Normore had transferred to Kansas on a football scholarship despite reservations of a Jayhawk program that suffered one of the worst finishes in the school's history — 3-8 overall and 0-7 in the Big Eight.

"I thought about their problems a lot before I came here. It was certainly a concern of mine," said Normore, who chose the Jayhawks over Memphis State.

"But when I got here, I saw the confidence and the excitement the players had toward next year, and I got caught up in it. I knew then that I made the right decision."

Jayhawk coaches searching for a replacement for senior free safety Wayne Ziegler, the team's second-leading tackler last season, are thankful he did.

"Wayne left a big hole in our secondary," said Louis West, KU defensive secondary coach. "But going into the spring game, we felt he had all the capabilities of being our No. 1 free safety. Coming out of spring, he proved he was our man."

Normore was one of the few bright spots in Kansas' 49-0 season-opening loss. He made eight tackles, including three unassisted, and stopped Tiger drives with a fumble recovery and an interception in the end zone.

Normore's best play Saturday might have been his worst.

Kansas, trailing 7-0, dropped back into punt formation after failing to score on its first possession. Jayhawk punter Rich Reith, by design, faked the punt and lofted a pass to Normore for 14 yards and a first down.

Auburn safety Greg Staples then stripped Normore of the ball and linebacker Kurek Crain recovered at the Kansas 34. The Tigers scored seven plays later and the rout was on.

"I'll never forget that mistake. It's one of the bigger ones I've made in my life," said Normore, who turns 22 on Friday. "I made a lot of mistakes that were crucial to our defense, and they're hard to forget."

"That fumble hurt our enthusiasm a lot."

Keller claims medalist honors

By Staff and Wire Reports

Troy Keller claimed medalist honors to highlight the Kansas State men's golf team's sixth place finish in the Kansas Invitational which concluded Tuesday at the par 72, 7,300-yard Alvarado Golf Club.

Keller, a junior from Great Bend, fired rounds of 74-73-74 for a 54-hole total of 221 to claim top individual honors in the tournament.

Gaining top team honors in the seven-member field was host Kansas which recorded a 54-hole total of 889. The 'Cats took sixth in the meet with a team score of 935. "Obviously, Troy (Keller) played very well," K-State Head Coach Rob Sedorek said. "There wasn't one part of his game that stood out over the rest. He had a fine overall performance."

K-State next travels to Emporia for the Emporia State Invitational.

NFL strike negotiations become 'very discouraging'

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The chief negotiator for NFL owners, calling the latest proposal by the players union "very, very discouraging," said Wednesday that without mediation, a players' strike next week is "a very good possibility."

Jack Donlan, the executive director of the NFL Management Council, said at a news conference that the proposal submitted by the players on Tuesday would cost owners $200 million above the figures contained in their proposal. And, he said, that is without taking into account the union's demand for free agency.

He also said he would like to resume negotiations, but only with a mediator or only face-to-face with his union counterpart, Gene Upshaw.

The Management Council also disclosed it has filed with the National Labor Relations Board an unfair labor practice complaint against the union, accusing it of refusing to bargain in good faith. Council officials conceded, however, that the action was little more than a token gesture that could not have any effect before the NFL Players Association strike deadline of next Tuesday.

On Tuesday, the NFLPA presented the owners with its latest proposal for settlement of the dispute, in which the union moderated its demand for unrestricted free agency to one that would make players free agents after they had played in the league for four years.

Upshaw, the NFLPA's executive director, called the proposal "a step forward in the areas that we feel can bring a clear and fast conclusion to this collective bargaining process."

But Donlan dismissed it as little more than a variation on the original union proposal, first put on the table April 20.

"A cursory look at the proposal showed that it was little more than a restatement of their opening proposal with a few cosmetic changes," Donlan said. "It was a very, very discouraging proposal. In laymen's terms, it's a cynical thing."

Donlan called once again for intervention by a federal mediator, a proposal so far rejected by the union.

He also said he had put in a call to Upshaw to suggest a face-to-face meeting, but added that he was not sure it would be wise to resume talks at this time.

Asked if a strike is likely, Donlan replied: "There's a very good possibility."

Although the two sides met 17 times between April 20 and the Aug. 31 contract expiration date, little progress was made. On Aug. 31, the NFLPA executive committee set a strike date of Sept. 22, a decision ratified eight days later by the 28 player representatives.

The two sides met for 4½ hours Sept. 3 and again last Saturday and Sunday with little indication that they were anything but far apart.

NFL owners, meanwhile, say they plan to play with "whatever players are available."

League sources say that only about 100 players have been signed to the $1,000 retainers being offered by teams, indicating that some owners are hoping to convince their roster players not to walk out.

Bowlers look to improve

By Brett Hacker
Collegian Reporter

Placing last in the conference last year is helping inspire the K-State men's bowling team this season, said some members of the squad.

K-State placed fifth out of five teams in the Kansas-Nebraska Bowling Conference last year, but team member Mike Messmer said hopes are higher for this year's squad.

"I think we will do a lot better because we have some good, quality bowlers," Messmer said.

For example, some members are bowling more than the required nine games a week — Messmer and team captain Ryan Finney average 35 games per week — in preparation for the first meet, Oct. 10-11, at The Wichita State University.

WSU, which has the No. 1-ranked men's team in the country, will provide the toughest competition for the Wildcats, Finney said.

"Last year was the last year of eligibility for Rick Steelsmith of WSU to bowl, which will help us out a lot this year," Messmer said. Steelsmith was WSU's best player and after graduation in December is expected to go on tour.

Anita Kern, women's team captain, listed recruiting abroad, scholarships, excellent coaching and already good players as reasons why the WSU team is a hard one to beat.

In home action this season, the team will host WSU, Emporia State University, the University of Kansas and the University of Nebraska. The Wildcats will host the teams Feb. 7 at the K-State Union recreational area.

The five teams travel intermittently to each of the schools in the conference to compete. Both the men's and women's teams have 10 members, who compete for the top five bowling spots to represent their team in competition against other schools.

Once the top spots are established, the top five bowlers from each university square off in head-to-head competition. Points are awarded for defeating other school's corresponding bowlers, then each team gets a predetermined number of points for total team standings — not by actual pin total.

Staff/Gary Lytle

John Clark, senior in engineering, works on his form during one of the bowling team's three practices each week at the Union recreational area.

The score average needed to qualify for the top spots is 188.8, with nine more games to go before the final decision will be made, Messmer said.

K-State's women's team placed second in the league last year after completing a schedule identical to this year's.

While the women's team has a chance to compete for the conference title, it still could use additional help. The team had seven members last year but "we are looking to add five more bowlers," Kern said.

Ironman event kicks off; games to test fraternities

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

Campus Crusade for Christ will kick off their fourth annual Iron Man competition in and around Manhattan with events beginning at 5 p.m. Friday and concluding at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Terry McKinney, campus director of Campus Crusade for Christ, said participation in the yearly event is reserved for the "cream of the crop."

"We hold the competition to challenge the fraternities who are the top finishers of the intramural competitions to compete in other sporting events against each other," McKinney said.

Iron Man '87 — a competition involving one team from Campus Crusade and seven fraternity teams competing in eight different sporting events — will kick off at 5 p.m. Friday at the Natatorium with the swimming relay.

Following the swimming event, the "man-makers" event will begin at around 6 p.m. at West Stadium. There will also be a tug-of-war competition at Manhattan City Park followed by a single-elimination basketball tournament at 8 p.m. at the Ahearn Field House gymnasium.

Saturday's events will begin at 8 a.m. with the six-mile bicycle relay, followed by the six-mile running relay. The starting line for both races will be at the parking lot east of Danforth Chapel.

The circuit event will begin at 1 p.m. at West Stadium. This event involves running as many ¼ miles as fast as you possibly can in 15 minutes, doing calisthenics between every lap.

The last event of the competition will be the obstacle course, which will also be held at West Stadium at 1 p.m. Saturday.

"We hold the competition to strengthen the fraternity system and athletics is a challenging way to do that," McKinney said.

The participants will include seven seven-man teams from seven different fraternities and one seven-man team from Campus Crusade. Each of the participants will be involved with each activity.

The Theta Xi fraternity, which has won the competition the past two years, has a chance to take home the Samson trophy for good. The trophy, which usually travels with the winning team, will be awarded permanently to any team that can win the competition three years in a row.

Although the Campus Crusade organization is challenging the fraternities to compete in the different activities, they have never won the competition and usually finish "in the middle of the pack," according to McKinney.

"I would encourage everybody to support their favorite team and come out and watch it (the competition)."

Students utilize consumer board

By Shawn Dorsch
Collegian Reporter

Information on consumer affairs and solutions to consumer problems is available for students and Riley County residents through the Consumer Relations Board.

Advice on mail order fraud, auto repair ripoffs, buying clubs, landlord/tenant problems, and door-to-door sales can be obtained from the board.

The board is used mainly by K-State students, said Wanda Jackson, senior in consumer affairs and a former board employee. Jackson said the board is busiest at the beginning and ending of terms, due to landlord/tenant conflicts.

The board is designed to help patrons resolve any type of consumer problem, said Beth Galbreath, director. Its office is located in the Student Governing Association office, ground floor of the Union.

The board is capable of investigating the reputation of a business to help prevent possible problems, said Joyce Cantrell, instructor of the consumer relations practicum course. In addition, the board maintains extensive information sources on many products and services for consumers to use in pre-purchase decisions, she said.

It is staffed by Galbreath and students enrolled in Cantrell's course. Class members attend a weekly lecture and work in the office two hours each week per credit hour they receive.

Galbreath said students who work on the board receive practical experience that will be helpful in a future job.

Legal questions are not handled by the students, instead they are turned over to the students' attorney, Dianne Urban. "We don't have the authority to give legal advice," Galbreath said.

The board is designed to act as an intermediary for the consumer. Galbreath said that the board wants people to be aware of their rights as a consumer.

"We try to be a source of education to our clients," she said.

Many times, their clients are preparing for a small claims case. "Small claims court is a lot like TV (The Peoples Court), we advise people to stay cool and calm in court," Galbreath said.

Strict proposal may tighten tobacco sales

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rep. Bob Whittaker, R-Kan., called Wednesday for stricter health regulation of cigarettes and other tobacco products, including a prohibition on their sale to anyone under 18.

Whittaker, an ex-smoker, and Rep. Jim Bates, D-Calif., introduced the legislation to require federal regulation of tobacco in the same way food, drugs and cosmetics are controlled.

"Despite the adverse health effects associated with smoking, tobacco remains one of the least regulated products on the market today," Whittaker said in a statement.

"For too long tobacco profits have soared at the expense of the consumer. It's time to put the health of the public in the forefront where it belongs."

In general, the legislation would bring tobacco under the regulation of the Food and Drug Administration. Among other things, the proposal would require:

- A warning label on tobacco products that says they are addictive.
- A disclosure of all additives in a tobacco product.
- Federal testing of all tobacco products to establish their levels of nicotine, tar and other potentially harmful compounds.

Under the legislation, the FDA would have broad powers to prohibit sales of tobacco products that do not follow the labeling requirements or those found to pose extreme health hazards.

The tobacco industry opposes additional regulation on its products. At a hearing Wednesday before a House subcommittee, a spokesman for the Tobacco Institute testified against a proposal to place tobacco products under the regulation of product safety laws.

Whittaker, who says he smoked for about five years before quitting in the 1960s, has been one of the GOP leaders in the House of an anti-smoking crusade. Earlier this year, he and Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., proposed a ban on advertising and promotion of all tobacco products.

A key provision in Whittaker's latest bill would establish a federal minimum age of 18 for buying cigarettes and other tobacco products. Currently, 26 states have no restrictions or permit minors to buy some tobacco products. Kansas, for example, prohibits only cigarette sales to minors.

Michael McElroy, member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and professor of Atmospheric Sciences at Harvard University, explains climatic changes of the earth during the last 100,000 years while delivering the first all-University Convocation Wednesday in McCain Auditorium.

TV Listings

By TV Data

	KSNT	WIBW	KTka	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	My Little Pony Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00	"	We the People 200: The	"	Bullwinkle Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Heathcliff	SportsLook Racing	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	Constitution Parade	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss M.T. Moore	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Powerboat Racing	Movie: "Jenny"
10:00	Jeopardy!	"	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Green Acres Leave It to Beaver	Body Electric Congress	Waltons	Billiards	"
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Beaver Make Room	Psychology We Sing	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Andy Griffith I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News Major League	Top Rank Boxing: (Michael Nunn vs. Dale Jack-son)	Movie: "Bus Riley's Back in Town"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Munsters	Palace on Wheels	Baseball: Chicago Cubs at Philadelphia Phillies	Auto Racing NFL Yearbook	Tom & Jerry and Friends
2:00	Another World	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zooloos	Legends of Laughter	Philadelphia Phillies	AWA Wrestling	Major League Baseball: Atlanta Braves at San Diego
3:00	Santa Barbara	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Smurfs	Truck and Tractor Pull	Baseball: Atlanta Braves at San Diego
4:00	Oprah Winfrey	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons Eight Is Enough	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe Transformers	Baseball: Atlanta Braves at San Diego	Baseball: Atlanta Braves at San Diego
5:00	Facts of Life	News CBS News	News ABC News	ough Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsCenter Horse Mag.	Padres
6:00	3's Company	News CBS News	News ABC News	ough Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsCenter Horse Mag.	Padres
7:00	News	News CBS News	News ABC News	ough Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsCenter Horse Mag.	Padres
8:00	Wheel-Fortune	News CBS News	News ABC News	ough Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsCenter Horse Mag.	Padres
9:00	Cosby Show	Muppets: 30 Years	Sledge H. The Charm	Star Trek	Man Who Loved Birds	Movie: "The Night They Danced"	Water Skiing	Sanford
10:00	Special	We the People 200: The	Movie: "Mr. Mom"	Movie: "My Darling Clementine"	Mystery: Sherlock Holmes	Took Miss Beautiful	Surfer Mag. Volleyball: Pro	"
11:00	Night Court	Constitutional Gala	"	"	Challenge of the Caucasus	News INN News	Beach Town. Windsurfing	Movie: "Bonnie and Clyde"
12:00	L.A. Law	News WKRP	News M*A*S*H	Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	Darkside Trapper John	Scuba World SportsCenter	"
1:00	News	Movie: "The Coming"	B. Buddies Nightline	Andy Griffith Movie: "First to Fight"	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D. Movie: "King Rat"	SportsCenter	"
2:00	Ent. Tonight	"	700 Club	"	Sign-Off	"	Motorcycle Racing	The Redhead & the Cowboy
3:00	Late Night with David	T.J. Hooker	"	"	"	"	"	"

Effect

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Scientific research of the greenhouse effect is not hampered by lack of funding or support. Rather, it is the lack of scientists in the field.

"We need to attract talented young scientists: your generation," he said. "There is a need for this new science. It's not a science of luxury, it's something society has to do and there's not a day to waste."

Computers have increased the number of details about the atmosphere that scientists can study.

"We have the technology to do some wonderful things we're not doing, but we should," he said. "We need to develop an understanding of the changes that are going on."

"Changes are occurring constantly, our challenge is to predict them and do what we can. What's remarkable is that we don't live in a static world. The present era is unique because of the speed of change."

Besides the convocation, McElroy met with faculty members.

The Station

THUR. BIG "C" NIGHT
(that famous mexican beer with a lime on top)

BIG "C" MEXICAN BEERS 99¢

DRINKS (ANY BRAND) - $1.50

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

VANDERBILT'S

SHRINK-TO-FIT 501 Levi's

$16.99

Compare to $26.95

38 & 40 Inseams... $18.99

8 BIG SAVINGS!

DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY 99)
OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100

VISA MasterCard

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1-15	16-20	21-25	26-30	31-35	36-40	41-45	46-50	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	5.00	5.25	5.50	1.00
16-20	2.40	3.40	4.25	4.80	5.10	5.35	5.60	5.85	1.05
21-25	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	5.70	5.95	6.20	1.10
26-30	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	6.10	6.40	6.70	1.15
31-35	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	6.45	6.75	7.05	1.20
36-40	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	6.80	7.10	7.40	1.25
41-45	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	7.15	7.45	7.75	1.30
46-50	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	7.50	7.80	8.10	1.35
51-55	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	7.85	8.15	8.45	1.40
56-60	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	8.20	8.50	8.80	1.45
61-65	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.20	8.50	8.80	9.10	1.50
66-70	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.55	8.85	9.15	9.45	1.55
71-75	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.85	9.15	9.45	9.75	1.60
76-80	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.15	9.45	9.75	10.05	1.65
81-85	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.45	9.75	10.05	10.35	1.70
86-90	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	9.75	10.05	10.35	10.65	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____

6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____

11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____

16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____

21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____

26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Kedzie 103

ClassAds

532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES
 One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.
 Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
 One day: $4.95 per inch. Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch. Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch. Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

OPEN AIR food and craft fair in Aggieville, Oct. 10. For information on booths, write Box 1804 in Manhattan by Sept. 25. (2-19)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken 539-9469. (2-27)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

PARACHUTE CLUB—Members' attendance needed. Electing new president and setting up ground crew for demo jump. Meeting: Thursday, 7 p.m., Union 206. (17-18)

Ride the Bobby T's Football Bus
 To and from the game
 Candlewood Shopping Center
 539-1571

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility $340/month. 539-2462 after 4 p.m. (71)

THREE MALE students to share basement apartment, $120 month each, all bills paid. Call 537-1442. (9-19)

SMALL ONE-bedroom, off Denison, available immediately. $135, 776-8093 or 539-9842. (15-19)

SEMI-FURNISHED. One-bedroom duplex, 2326 Craig. $235/month. 539-4214. Leave message. (16-19)

TWO BEDROOM apartment—Close to campus, water and trash paid, $380 plus electric. 776-4993. (17-19)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

ONE SIDE of duplex, nice three-bedroom, two-bath apartment. Very near campus. 539-8324. (16-20)

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

ONE BEDROOM in Wildcat Inn next to fieldhouse. $280. Low utilities, laundry facilities. 537-8869 or 776-3804. (17-11)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 PONTIAC Firebird: T-top, four-speed, 14,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Call 539-4134 evenings. (13-19)

1982 CAMARO modified with 350 V8, four-barrel, with headers, automatic. Looks stock, sleeper. 776-6036. Aaron. (15-19)

GREAT SCHOOL car 1979 Cutlass Supreme. New tires, new brakes, AM/FM stereo. Price negotiable. Call Tracy, 776-1594. (15-19)

1981 CHEVETTE. New brakes, air, FM/cassette, 59,000 miles. Priced to sell. Call Jarmel, 539-2301. (16-25)

DATSUN 200SX 1977, looks, runs good. Price negotiable. 539-6120. (16-19)

1977 MONTE CARLO 305, four-barrel, dual exhaust, mags, loaded, all electric. Sharp! 539-2343, Richard. (16-19)

1984 MAZDA SE5 B2000 pickup, five-speed, air conditioning, AM/FM, charcoal gray, 36,000 miles, good condition. 632-2513 after 5 p.m. (17-19)

1967 CAMARO SS in good condition, 40,000 miles on engine. Asking $3,200 negotiable. Call 532-3625. (17-19)

1976 PLYMOUTH, automatic, new tires, battery and several other major parts, runs very well, only $400. Call 539-6705. (18-19)

1977 TOYOTA Celica GT, excellent condition, new paint, no rust, sunroof, excellent stereo system. 537-9021. (18-22)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN $HUNDREDS weekly in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your fall class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. We prefer to hire work study students and students who are eligible to work 30 hours per week. Food Handler's Card a must. (15-25)

CASHIER, WAITRESS, part-time, evenings. Apply in person, Chef Cafe, 111 S. Fourth. (15-19)

95.3 KSKT The Kat needs part-time air personalities for weekend and vacation shifts. If you've had some experience and want to work and learn in a professional atmosphere we need to hear from you. Also, possible news internship for someone who wants on-air experience. Contact station manager Dave Strout at 539-6271. (15-19)

EXPERIENCED DENTAL assistant. Warm, friendly personality. Call 539-7401. Ask for Pat. (16-20)

ONE-HOUR Moto Photo is immediately hiring a lab technician. Must be able to work Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Fridays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and every other weekend. Apply Monday through Friday, the 14th through the 18th between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. or by appointment. 776-9030. (16-19)

EDITOR, WEEKLY United Methodist Church regional newspaper. Part-time position. EOE. Member Project Equality. Submit resume and references by Sept. 25 to P.O. Box 4187, Topeka, KS 66604. Attention: Council Director. (17-21)

PART-TIME SALES help at Bork Brother's men's wear. Approximately 20 hours a week. Afternoons and Saturdays. Sales experience preferred. Apply in person at 1100 Westloop Place. (17-21)

WORK STUDY student to work 10-20 hours a week with university outreach/conference coordinator. Attention to detail, and written and oral communication skills are necessary. Typing and/or word processing experience is required. Position offers good background experience for students in areas of management, marketing, business, education, and conference planning. For more information call 532-5575 (ask for Debi) or stop by the Wareham Building, 1623 Anderson Ave. Application deadline is Sept. 25. (17-24)

WANTED—RELIABLE person to do laundry. Top dollar paid for good job—Contact Michael, 539-8197. (17-19)

MAKE $4,600 monthly stuffing envelopes. For details, send self-addressed stamped envelope to Adeela, P.O. Box 2142, Stillwater, OK 74076. (18-27)

STUDENT HELP—Regular housekeeping duties involve cleaning, dusting, mopping, etc., five days a week from 4-8 p.m. About 20 hours a week at $3.35 an hour. For more information contact Jackie Lowe, 532-6544. (18-19)

WANTED: BRIGHT, energetic individuals to work at women's retail clothing store. Must be neat, in tune with current fashion, and have sales experience. Looking for part time and full-time. Apply in person at Scott's LTD or Carousell (Aggieville) soon to be in Manhattan Town Center. (18-22)

TEMPORARY WEEKEND construction laborer needed. Will pay extra for person with truck. 537-1002. (18-19)

Accessories On The Park
 A new women's accessories store seeks full-time experienced manager. Fashion conscious, motivated, and creative individuals. Send Resume to 1203 Laramie Manhattan, KS

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

MULTI-BEDROOM HOUSE, stove, refrigerator, central air, fireplace, laundry hookups, garage. Call 537-8389. (11)

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31)

THREE BEDROOM unfurnished house, close to campus, fenced yard, garage. No pets. Call 537-1234, Trust Department. Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. (41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1970 BUDDY 12 x 60—Two-bedroom, washer/dryer, two air conditioners, storage shed. $4,900. Call 537-9005. (17-21)

LOST AND FOUND 14

BLACK CAT with polka dots. Lost in vicinity of Dickens and Cedar Crest around Aug. 18. $100 reward if returned. Phone 539-3965. (14-18)

LOST KEY ring with miniature leather sandal. Great sentimental value. Please call 539-8052. (181)

SET OF keys found in Fairchild computer lab. Call 539-0971 and identify. (18-20)

LOST—$10 reward for a big red umbrella that says "Met." Please call 537-1794. (18-19)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

Thursday
THE COTTON CLUB
 Burger Bash
 25c H.P. Burgers
 75c draws
 418 Poyntz
 4-7 p.m.

CLOTHES WITH CLASS
SPELLbinders INC.
 INNOVATIVE INTERIOR ART APPAREL
 Candlewood Center • 3230 Kimball Avenue
 Manhattan, Kansas

MON-SAT 10-5

Pyramid Pizza
 All Slices 99¢
 after 5 p.m.
 WE PILE IT ON!
 539-4888

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS. Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

TYPEWRITER/ASCII computer printer, memory, display, battery/AC, very portable with lid case. $150. 776-4712. (16-19)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

CANON A1 with 35-105 zoom and flash. Asking $400. Call 537-4789. (17-19)

FOUR ROYALS tickets for sale—$20, Sunday game. For more information, call 539-2899. (18-19)

FOR SALE: Two tickets to Farm-Aid. Call after 7 p.m. 776-0570. (18-19)

MOVING SALE, air conditioner, typewriter (electric, manual), air moisturizer, TV (black/white), tape recorder (with AM/FM). 539-6705. (18-19)

KING-SIZE BED, headboard, box springs, and all accessories. $100. Phone 539-4022. (18)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1981 RED Vespa moped, great gas, low mileage, excellent condition, negotiable price, 537-1395 or 537-3797. (12-18)

University Club
 17th & Anderson, 539-7531

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS. Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

TYPEWRITER/ASCII computer printer, memory, display, battery/AC, very portable with lid case. $150. 776-4712. (16-19)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

CANON A1 with 35-105 zoom and flash. Asking $400. Call 537-4789. (17-19)

FOUR ROYALS tickets for sale—$20, Sunday game. For more information, call 539-2899. (18-19)

FOR SALE: Two tickets to Farm-Aid. Call after 7 p.m. 776-0570. (18-19)

MOVING SALE, air conditioner, typewriter (electric, manual), air moisturizer, TV (black/white), tape recorder (with AM/FM). 539-6705. (18-19)

KING-SIZE BED, headboard, box springs, and all accessories. $100. Phone 539-4022. (18)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1981 RED Vespa moped, great gas, low mileage, excellent condition, negotiable price, 537-1395 or 537-3797. (12-18)

University Club
 17th & Anderson, 539-7531

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS. Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

TYPEWRITER/ASCII computer printer, memory, display, battery/AC, very portable with lid case. $150. 776-4712. (16-19)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

CANON A1 with 35-105 zoom and flash. Asking $400. Call 537-4789. (17-19)

FOUR ROYALS tickets for sale—$20, Sunday game. For more information, call 539-2899. (18-19)

FOR SALE: Two tickets to Farm-Aid. Call after 7 p.m. 776-0570. (18-19)

MOVING SALE, air conditioner, typewriter (electric, manual), air moisturizer, TV (black/white), tape recorder (with AM/FM). 539-6705. (18-19)

KING-SIZE BED, headboard, box springs, and all accessories. $100. Phone 539-4022. (18)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1981 RED Vespa moped, great gas, low mileage, excellent condition, negotiable price, 537-1395 or 537-3797. (12-18)

University Club
 17th & Anderson, 539-7531

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS. Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

TYPEWRITER/ASCII computer printer, memory, display, battery/AC, very portable with lid case. $150. 776-4712. (16-19)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

CANON A1 with 35-105 zoom and flash. Asking $400. Call 537-4789. (17-19)

FOUR ROYALS tickets for sale—$20, Sunday game. For more information, call 539-2899. (18-19)

FOR SALE: Two tickets to Farm-Aid. Call after 7 p.m. 776-0570. (18-19)

MOVING SALE, air conditioner, typewriter (electric, manual), air moisturizer, TV (black/white), tape recorder (with AM/FM). 539-6705. (18-19)

KING-SIZE BED, headboard, box springs, and all accessories. $100. Phone 539-4022. (18)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1981 RED Vespa moped, great gas, low mileage, excellent condition, negotiable price, 537-1395 or 537-3797. (12-18)

University Club
 17th & Anderson, 539-7531

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS. Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

TYPEWRITER/ASCII computer printer, memory, display, battery/AC, very portable with lid case. $150. 776-4712. (16-19)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Suzanne Sheffer

ACROSS
 1 TV alien
 4 Fog
 8 Tablet, in a way
 12 Old auto
 13 Unemployed
 14 Concept
 15 Everest, e.g.
 17 Make available
 18 Lepidopterist's trap
 19 Humbleness
 21 Respect
 24 Disen-cumber
 25 By way of
 26 Sister, of a sort
 28 D'Artagnan's creator
 32 Eye part
 34 Argon, e.g.
 36 Window section
 37 Slowly, musically
 39 Chatter
 41 Tavern
 42 Piercing tool

DOWN
 1 Weapon
 2 Zodiac sign
 3 Trevi sight
 4 Glove's kin
 5 Actress
 6 Lupino
 7 Choir member
 8 Accumulated
 9 March time
 10 Spring time

11 — and the Tramp
 16 Born
 20 Performed
 21 Devilish
 22 Beget
 23 Coffee holder
 27 Henpeck
 29 Keep
 30 Boelyn, e.g.
 31 Remitted
 33 Not moving
 35 Cul-de—
 38 In the red
 40 British car hood
 43 Mistake
 45 Dull habit
 46 Aff's opposite
 47 Actress
 48 Portal
 49 Linen start
 53 Pierre's pal
 54 World labor org.
 55 Word before York or Year

Solution time: 28 mins.
 EWS OTIS HUGH
 PAP VALE HAGUE
 ICE EVERGREEN
 CEDAR FAIR
 RASP NOTED
 THRILLER WAVE
 RIO LITIC FEN
 ORAL TAPESTRY
 TENET NENE
 NOV DARTS
 MOONRIVER AWE
 ORDO SARI TINT
 ADEN ANIL ANT

Yesterday's answer

CRYPTOQUIP

3-19
 URFXXZJLTQV, FQ UWFXY,
 RTZWJ QG XGLW FXBGJJ
 VGBJWJVGW XBFUJ
 Yesterday's Cryptoquip: NEW THROAT DOCTOR WAS ADDED: "IT WAS A HOARSE OF A DIFFERENT COLOR."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: J equals S

Bork

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

said he is willing to take unpopular positions for things he believes in.

"I've been in the minority many times," Bork said. "I don't love it, but I'm not afraid of it." He said he was one of only two Yale professors who supported Barry Goldwater for president in 1964.

He will return for a third day of questioning on Thursday.

Until his nomination last July, Bork was best known by the general public for his actions the night of Oct. 20, 1973.

That Saturday night, Nixon ordered Cox fired when the Harvard professor insisted the president surrender White House tapes to the special prosecutor's office. In quick succession, then-Attorney General Elliot Richardson resigned, his top deputy, William French Smith, was fired after refusing to dismiss Cox, and Bork, the third-ranking Justice Department official, carried out the president's order.

Bork, noting he has frequently explained his role in the Cox firing before, revealed Wednesday that he rejected a White House request in the summer of 1973 to resign his Justice Department post of solicitor general to become Nixon's chief defense lawyer.

He said he persuaded then White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig that "I was not the right man for the job," — and that Nixon indicated he harbored no hard feelings about the rejection.

Bork acknowledged, as some critics have charged, that he did not "instantaneously" move to replace Cox with a new special prosecutor.

He said that initially he and others in the Nixon administration thought Cox's deputies could do the job of pursuing the Watergate investigation.

"We realized the need to appoint a new one because the American people would not be mollified without one," he said.

Responding to pointed questions from Democratic Sens. Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio, Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr. of Delaware, Bork denied he ever weighed any actions that would abort the Watergate investigation.

Metzenbaum, waving Nixon administration memos, said there was evidence Bork helped the White House devise a strategy to "stonewall" by defending the principle of executive privilege.

"I never advised the White House how to meet, how to deal with the Watergate special prosecution force," Bork said. He said he did act on orders from then-Attorney General Richardson to seek a compromise between Cox and the White House over executive privilege.

"We never achieved an accommodation," Bork testified.

He said Richardson and Ruckelshaus refused to fire Cox, not because they thought it was illegal or immoral but because they had promised the Senate at their own confirmation hearings they would defend Cox's independence.

Bork said when he realized — at a meeting with Richardson and Ruckelshaus — that the assignment of axing Cox was about to be handed to him, "it hit me like a ton of bricks."

He said he told them he felt he should fire Cox and then resign immediately.

"I didn't want to be regarded as an apparatchik, that is an organization man who does whatever the organization wanted," he said.

But he said the two men persuaded him to stay on grounds that the Justice Department needed continuity of leadership and assurances that the special prosecutor's investigation would continue.

"And, in fact, I did my utmost to keep that special prosecutor force intact and going forward," Bork said.

He remarked that White House officials were taken aback by the resignations of the top Justice Department officials and the public outcry that followed.

"They were very sick that night because they assumed they wouldn't have to get down to me" to fire Cox, he said.

"We were in an enormous governmental crisis," Bork continued. "I don't know if everyone remembers. The only question was how much bloodshed."

Kennedy, who has been Bork's harshest Senate critic, said "Were you troubled at all that there were legally binding regulations" protecting Cox from being fired?

Bork said there was never any question among Justice Department officials that Nixon had the power to dismiss Cox even if the attorney general did not.

Bork received kind words during the hearing from Senate Republican Whip Alan Simpson of Wyoming.

"It seems to be the extremism has been in the rhetoric of opponents of Judge Bork," Simpson said.

Watergate aside, Bork also sought to reassure Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., that he is not antagonistic to the rights of women. "As solicitor general I argued positions for the protection of women broader than the Supreme Court would accept," Bork said.

Get Personal
in Collegian Classifieds

Funds to aid Contras OK for peace effort

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House said Wednesday it sees no contradiction between President Reagan's support for stopgap aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels and his promise to back efforts for a Central American peace settlement.

"We see it first of all as a fairness issue," presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters.

Fitzwater denied that Reagan's stand was "a repudiation in any way" of his agreement with House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, to delay requests for new aid for the rebels until after Sept. 30 to give the peace talks a chance.

The spokesman was questioned repeatedly about the president's announced support for a proposal by House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois to offer an amendment to a 30-day spending bill to continue assistance to the Contras.

The spending bill, designed to continue government spending at current levels while Congress works on appropriation bills for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, is expected to reach the House floor this week.

Fitzwater said, as Michel did Tuesday, that House Democrats had designed the bill to continue funds for all government programs except aid to the rebels, who are fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

"We see it first of all as a fairness issue...in terms of continuing our aid to the resistance during that month the budget is under consideration," the spokesman said.

"This is not a new funding request," he added. "We will not have a request until after the 30th."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last week that the administration will ask for $270 million in aid for the Contras over 18 months.

CLIP, KEEP & SAVE ALL WEEK

Speedy FREE Delivery

ONE MEDIUM
TWO TOPPING PIZZA
+ 3 FREE COKE

$7.50

NOW FEATURING
NOON DELIVERY

539-4888
"We Pile It On!"

MARK FARMER PIZZA
President, Pyramid Pizza

Now Accepting
Visa & MasterCard

Now Serving Thin Crust

PYRAMID PIZZA

Speedy FREE Delivery

ONE LARGE
TWO TOPPING PIZZA
+ 4 FREE COKE

$10.50

WE DELIVER ALL
DAY EVERY DAY FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

539-4888
"We Pile It On!"

MARK FARMER PIZZA
President, Pyramid Pizza

Now Accepting
Visa & MasterCard

Now Serving Thin Crust

PYRAMID PIZZA

JOYCE'S HAIR PERMERS

PERM SALE

Gals	Reg.	Now
Apple Pectin	$40	$30
Axiom	$45	$35
Warm & Gentle	$48	$38
Assorted Perms		$25

Guys

Curly	$25
Body	$28
Partial	$20

404 Humboldt

All Perms Include
Cut and Style

539-TAME or 539-8601

Expires 9/24/87

THERE'S SECURITY IN NUMBERS

Here are the kind of numbers that will put your mind at rest. Right now we've got the Alpine 8115 mobile security system priced right. The 8115 is first-class protection for your car, featuring an improved-range remote control (with arm/disarm and door-lock commands), a glass-breakage sensor, compact siren, optional motion detector and "passive mode" in case you lose your remote. He's one more thing that'll give you a real sense of security. Expert system.

8115.

20% OFF ON ANY ALARM OR SECURITY SYSTEM

ROLLING THUNDER

1126 Moro 776-5507

LONG JOHN SILVER'S SEAFOOD SHOPPES

721 N. 3rd 776-9363

NEW EDITION-FINEST FILM COLLECTION EVER ASSEMBLED

THE BEST OF STAR TREK

PLUS ALL THE BLOOPERS AND MORE

THE MAKING OF STAR TREK IV "THE VOYAGE HOME". ALL 3 OUTRAGEOUS BLOOPER REELS, TV AND MOVIE TRAILERS CLIPS OF THE STARS IN CLASSIC ROLES BEFORE STAR TREK NEVER RELEASED PILOT FOOTAGE, GAG REELS, AND MORE!

Not Available on Video Tape, Never Shown on TV or Cable

Kansas State Union Little Theatre

7 p.m. & 9 p.m. Sat., Sept. 19
6 p.m. & 8 p.m. Sun., Sept. 20

sponsored by Sigma Phi Epsilon

United Good Seating Come Early No Children Please Admission $4 with KSU I.D., $5 all others

Falsetto's PIZZA

539-3830

1st Visit Free

Slender You coupon

3232 Kimball—Candlewood Center

The Slender You No-Sweat Workout increases your flexibility, and reduces stress as you take off inches. Exercise doesn't have to be painful and exhausting to be effective. Pay as you go. No membership fee required.

Call Slender You Today
Your First Visit's Free 776-3308

Crum's beauty college

1/2 OFF Haircut

10:30 am Appointments ONLY with this coupon

Expires 9-25-87

776-4794

10% off any services must present coupon
exp. date 9/24/87

kinko's
Great copies. Great people.

1110 Laramie 537-7340

Kentucky Fried Chicken.

2 pieces of chicken, biscuit, potatoes & gravy

for only $1.79 with coupon

901 N. 3rd
3002 Anderson
Offer expires Sept. 23

We Do Chicken Right.

Falsetto's Pizza Price Buster!
The Best For Less
Two Pizzas $5.99

MENU

	Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
	TWO 10"	10" & 14"	TWO 14"
Cheese	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 Item	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 Items	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 Items	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 Items	9.79	12.99	14.59
Deluxe	9.79	12.99	14.59
Veggie	9.79	12.99	14.59
Supreme	10.74	14.24	15.99
Each Additional Item	.95	1.25	1.40

1127 Moro - In Aggieville

State Fair

Celebrating its 75th Anniversary the "Great Kansas Get Together" provides something for everyone. See Page 7

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with a good chance of showers, high around 70. Clearing and cooler tonight, low in upper 40s. Sunny and mild Saturday, high in mid-70s.

164 8/8/8 ** 7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Section
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS
66612
...since practices started in August. See
Page 11.

Friday

September 18, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 19

Kansas State

Collegian

Bradley supports proposal

By Candice Leonard
Government Editor

TOPEKA — Student Body President Kent Bradley has given his support to a selective admissions policy currently under consideration by the Kansas Board of Regents.

The discussion of admissions policies at Kansas universities was the primary item of business at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

Bradley said one of the reasons behind his support of a move toward selective admissions policies is the legislative trend in funding being based on quality programs rather than programs with quantity.

"They are saying, 'Let's not teach high school at K-State,'" Bradley said.

The Regents institutions currently are bound to an open admissions policy that states they must admit any person who has graduated from an accredited Kansas high school.

"I think it (selective admissions) merits serious consideration," said President Jon Wefald. He indicated K-State planners and faculty would be studying the matter carefully.

Instructor celebrates citizenship

At the Capitol in Topeka Thursday, Fayez Hussein, associate professor of architecture and design, waits to become an American citizen.

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

TOPEKA — A celebration marking the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution was held at the State Capitol Thursday. But for Fayez Hussein, associate professor of architecture and design, it was a special day.

Staff/Steve Wolgast

...a Syrian native, takes the Oath of Citizenship with 108 others.

...ishes from my court."
...s led the crowd in the Pledge of
...ce to the flag while white doves
... white and blue balloons were
... The new citizens were then intro-
... the crowd, announcing the countries from which they came.

"All this was well organized," Hussein
said. "It made me feel so special."

The new citizens were allowed a free
AT&T telephone call to anywhere in the
■ See CITIZEN, Page 12

'History in making' as superpowers opt to extend talks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze decided dramatically Thursday to extend their talks on a missile-reduction treaty, and a Soviet spokesman said "history is in the making."

Shultz and Shevardnadze scrapped plans for a midday wind-up and separate news conferences, sent down to the State Department cafeteria for sandwiches and pressed on with their talks over a treaty to scrap intermediate-range missiles.

"We're moving ahead across the full range of issues," said Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman.

"History is in the making," said Gennady Gerasimov, the Soviet spokesman. "We must wait a little bit."

The original plan had been to wind up the talks at about noon. Shultz and Shevardnadze were then to hold separate news conferences and make separate visits to Capitol Hill to talk to members of Congress.

But the hours ticked away, without word from Shultz's seventh-floor office.

The first indication of a shift was a telephone call to reporters from the Soviet embassy that Shevardnadze was postponing his news conference, which had been scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Then, at 2:32 p.m., Redman and Gerasimov joined a group of reporters waiting to no avail in the lobby to record Shevardnadze's departure.

Redman described the talks as constructive, positive and forward-moving.

"The ministers simply decided they had a lot of work to do," Redman said.

■ See ARMS, Page 14

New MOODS

19.99
CITY SWEATER
Elsewhere $32

State Fair

Celebrating its 75th Anniversary the "Great Kansas Get Together" provides something for everyone. See Page 7

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with a good chance of showers, high around 70. Clearing and cooler tonight, low in upper 40s. Sunny and mild Saturday, high in mid-70s.

***** DIGIT 66612
164 8/2/87 ** 7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Section
120 West 18th
Topeka, KS 66612
Since practices started in August. See
Page 11.

Friday

September 18, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 19

Kansas State Collegian

Bradley supports proposal

By Candice Leonard
Government Editor

TOPEKA — Student Body President Kent Bradley has given his support to a selective admissions policy currently under consideration by the Kansas Board of Regents.

The discussion of admissions policies at Kansas universities was the primary item of business at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

Bradley said one of the reasons behind his support of a move toward selective admissions policies is the legislative trend in funding being based on quality programs rather than programs with quantity.

"They are saying, 'Let's not teach high school at K-State,'" Bradley said.

The Regents institutions currently are bound to an open admissions policy that states they must admit any person who has graduated from an accredited Kansas high school.

"I think it (selective admissions) merits serious consideration," said President Jon Wefald. He indicated K-State planners and faculty would be studying the matter carefully in the next month.

Instructor celebrates citizenship

At the Capitol in Topeka Thursday, Fayez Hussein, associate professor of architecture and design, waits to become an American citizen.

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

TOPEKA — A celebration marking the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution was held at the State Capitol Thursday. But for Fayez Hussein, associate professor of environmental design, it was a special day.

Hussein, along with 108 other people,

Staff/Steve Wolgast

...a Syrian native, takes the Oath of Citizenship with 108 others.

...ishes from my court."
...led the crowd in the Pledge of
...ce to the flag while white doves
...white and blue balloons were
...The new citizens were then intro-
...the crowd, announcing the countries from which they came.

"All this was well organized," Hussein
said. "It made me feel so special."

The new citizens were allowed a free
AT&T telephone call to anywhere in the
■ See CITIZEN, Page 12

'History in making' as superpowers opt to extend talks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze decided dramatically Thursday to extend their talks on a missile-reduction treaty, and a Soviet spokesman said "history is in the making."

Shultz and Shevardnadze scrapped plans for a midday wind-up and separate news conferences, sent down to the State Department cafeteria for sandwiches and pressed on with their talks over a treaty to scrap intermediate-range missiles.

"We're moving ahead across the full range of issues," said Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman.

"History is in the making," said Gennady Gerasimov, the Soviet spokesman. "We must wait a little bit."

The original plan had been to

wind up the talks at about noon. Shultz and Shevardnadze were then to hold separate news conferences and make separate visits to Capitol Hill to talk to members of Congress.

But the hours ticked away, without word from Shultz's seventh-floor office.

The first indication of a shift was a telephone call to reporters from the Soviet embassy that Shevardnadze was postponing his news conference, which had been scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Then, at 2:32 p.m., Redman and Gerasimov joined a group of reporters waiting to no avail in the lobby to record Shevardnadze's departure.

Redman described the talks as constructive, positive and forward-moving.

"The ministers simply decided they had a lot of work to do," Redman said.

■ See ARMS, Page 14

16.99
SHIRT
Elsewhere $27

State Fair

Celebrating its 75th Anniversary the "Great Kansas Get Together" provides something for everyone. See Page 7

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with a good chance of showers, high around 70. Clearing and cooler tonight, low in upper 40s. Sunny and mild Saturday, high in mid-70s.

164 8/8/8 ** 7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS
... since practices started in August. See
Page 11.

Friday

September 18, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 19

Kansas State Collegian

Bradley supports proposal

By Candice Leonard
Government Editor

TOPEKA — Student Body President Kent Bradley has given his support to a selective admissions policy currently under consideration by the Kansas Board of Regents.

The discussion of admissions policies at Kansas universities was the primary item of business at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

Bradley said one of the reasons behind his support of a move toward selective admissions policies is the legislative trend in funding being based on quality programs rather than programs with quantity.

"They are saying, 'Let's not teach high school at K-State,'" Bradley said.

The Regents institutions currently are bound to an open admissions policy that states they must admit any person who has graduated from an accredited Kansas high school.

"I think it (selective admissions) merits serious consideration," said President Jon Wefald. He indicated K-State planners and faculty would be studying the matter carefully in the next month.

Stanley Koplik, Regents executive direc-

Instructor celebrates citizenship

At the Capitol in Topeka Thursday, Fayez Hussein, associate professor of architecture and design, waits to become an American citizen.

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

TOPEKA — A celebration marking the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution was held at the State Capitol Thursday. But for Fayez Hussein, associate professor of environmental design, it was a special day.

Hussein, along with 108 other people,

Staff/Steve Wolgast

a Syrian native, takes the Oath of Citizenship with 108 others.

ashes from my court."
led the crowd in the Pledge of ee to the flag while white doves
white and blue balloons were
The new citizens were then intro-
the crowd, announcing the countries from which they came.

"All this was well organized," Hussein
said. "It made me feel so special."

The new citizens were allowed a free
AT&T telephone call to anywhere in the
■ See CITIZEN, Page 12

Shining stars in

STRIPES

12.99
TWEED STRIPE
SWEATER
Elsewhere $22

16.99
JOHNNY COLLAR TOP
Solid & Striped
Elsewhere $28

14.99
PANT
Elsewhere $26

'History in making' as superpowers opt to extend talks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze decided dramatically Thursday to extend their talks on a missile-reduction treaty, and a Soviet spokesman said "history is in the making."

Shultz and Shevardnadze scrapped plans for a midday wind-up and separate news conferences, sent down to the State Department cafeteria for sandwiches and pressed on with their talks over a treaty to scrap intermediate-range missiles.

"We're moving ahead across the full range of issues," said Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman.

"History is in the making," said Gennady Gerasimov, the Soviet spokesman. "We must wait a little bit."

The original plan had been to

wind up the talks at about noon. Shultz and Shevardnadze were then to hold separate news conferences and make separate visits to Capitol Hill to talk to members of Congress.

But the hours ticked away, without word from Shultz's seventh-floor office.

The first indication of a shift was a telephone call to reporters from the Soviet embassy that Shevardnadze was postponing his news conference, which had been scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Then, at 2:32 p.m., Redman and Gerasimov joined a group of reporters waiting to no avail in the lobby to record Shevardnadze's departure.

Redman described the talks as constructive, positive and forward-moving.

"The ministers simply decided they had a lot of work to do," Redman said.

■ See ARMS, Page 14

State Fair

Celebrating its 75th Anniversary the "Great Kansas Get Together" provides something for everyone. See Page 7

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with a good chance of showers, high around 70. Clearing and cooler tonight, low in upper 40s. Sunny and mild Saturday, high in mid-70s.

***** DIGIT 65612
164 8/8/80 ** 7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612
*****
tices started in August. See Page 11.

Friday

September 18, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 19

Kansas State

Collegian

Bradley supports proposal

By Candice Leonard
Government Editor

TOPEKA — Student Body President Kent Bradley has given his support to a selective admissions policy currently under consideration by the Kansas Board of Regents.

The discussion of admissions policies at Kansas universities was the primary item of business at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

Bradley said one of the reasons behind his support of a move toward selective admissions policies is the legislative trend in funding being based on quality programs rather than programs with quantity.

"They are saying, 'Let's not teach high school at K-State,'" Bradley said.

The Regents institutions currently are bound to an open admissions policy that states they must admit any person who has graduated from an accredited Kansas high school.

"I think it (selective admissions) merits serious consideration," said President Jon Wefald. He indicated K-State planners and faculty would be studying the matter carefully in the next month.

Regents executive direc-

Instructor celebrates citizenship

At the Capitol in Topeka Thursday, Fayez Hussein, associate professor of architecture and design, waits to become an American citizen.

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

TOPEKA — A celebration marking the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution was held at the State Capitol Thursday. But for Fayez Hussein, associate professor of environmental design, it was a special day.

Hussein, along with 108 other people,

Staff/Steve Wolgast

a Syrian native, takes the Oath of Citizenship with 108 others.

shes from my court."
led the crowd in the Pledge of e to the flag while white doves
white and blue balloons were
The new citizens were then intro-
the crowd, announcing the countries from which they came.

"All this was well organized," Hussein
said. "It made me feel so special."
The new citizens were allowed a free
AT&T telephone call to anywhere in the
■ See CITIZEN, Page 12

'History in making' as superpowers opt to extend talks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze decided dramatically Thursday to extend their talks on a missile-reduction treaty, and a Soviet spokesman said "history is in the making."

Shultz and Shevardnadze scrapped plans for a midday wind-up and separate news conferences, sent down to the State Department cafeteria for sandwiches and pressed on with their talks over a treaty to scrap intermediate-range missiles.

"We're moving ahead across the full range of issues," said Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman.

"History is in the making," said Gennady Gerasimov, the Soviet spokesman. "We must wait a little bit."

The original plan had been to

wind up the talks at about noon. Shultz and Shevardnadze were then to hold separate news conferences and make separate visits to Capitol Hill to talk to members of Congress.

But the hours ticked away, without word from Shultz's seventh-floor office.

The first indication of a shift was a telephone call to reporters from the Soviet embassy that Shevardnadze was postponing his news conference, which had been scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Then, at 2:32 p.m., Redman and Gerasimov joined a group of reporters waiting to no avail in the lobby to record Shevardnadze's departure.

Redman described the talks as constructive, positive and forward-moving.

"The ministers simply decided they had a lot of work to do," Redman said.

■ See ARMS, Page 14

State Fair

Celebrating its 75th Anniversary the "Great Kansas Get Together" provides something for everyone. See Page 7

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with a good chance of showers, high around 70. Clearing and cooler tonight, low in upper 40s. Sunny and mild Saturday, high in mid-70s.

164 0/0/0 ** 7
Kansas State Historical Soc.
Attn: Newspaper Section
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612
... since practices started in August. See
Page 11.

Friday

September 18, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 19

Kansas State

Collegian

Bradley supports proposal

By Candise Leonard
Government Editor

TOPEKA — Student Body President Kent Bradley has given his support to a selective admissions policy currently under consideration by the Kansas Board of Regents.

The discussion of admissions policies at Kansas universities was the primary item of business at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

Bradley said one of the reasons behind his support of a move toward selective admissions policies is the legislative trend in funding being based on quality programs rather than programs with quantity.

"They are saying, 'Let's not teach high school at K-State,'" Bradley said.

The Regents institutions currently are bound to an open admissions policy that states they must admit any person who has graduated from an accredited Kansas high school.

"I think it (selective admissions) merits serious consideration," said President Jon Wefald. He indicated K-State planners and faculty would be studying the matter carefully in the next month.

Stanley Koplik, Regents executive direc-

Instructor celebrates citizenship

At the Capitol in Topeka Thursday, Fayez Hussein, associate professor of architecture and design, waits to become an American citizen.

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

TOPEKA — A celebration marking the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution was held at the State Capitol Thursday. But for Fayez Hussein, associate professor of environmental design, it was a special day.

Hussein, along with 108 other people,

Staff/Steve Wolgast

ni, a Syrian native, takes the Oath of Citizenship with 108 others.

wishes from my court."
ers led the crowd in the Pledge of nce to the flag while white doves
d, white and blue balloons were
d. The new citizens were then intro-to the crowd, announcing the countries from which they came.

"All this was well organized," Hussein
said. "It made me feel so special."

The new citizens were allowed a free
AT&T telephone call to anywhere in the
■ See CITIZEN, Page 12

Go anywhere,
do anything in...

WOMEN
CITY

14.99
LONG JOHN TEE
Elsewhere $22

16.99
TORTOISE BUTTON
SKIRT
Elsewhere $29

'History in making' as superpowers opt to extend talks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze decided dramatically Thursday to extend their talks on a missile-reduction treaty, and a Soviet spokesman said "history is in the making."

Shultz and Shevardnadze scrapped plans for a midday wind-up and separate news conferences, sent down to the State Department cafeteria for sandwiches and pressed on with their talks over a treaty to scrap intermediate-range missiles.

"We're moving ahead across the full range of issues," said Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman.

"History is in the making," said Gennady Gerasimov, the Soviet spokesman. "We must wait a little bit."

The original plan had been to

wind up the talks at about noon. Shultz and Shevardnadze were then to hold separate news conferences and make separate visits to Capitol Hill to talk to members of Congress.

But the hours ticked away, without word from Shultz's seventh-floor office.

The first indication of a shift was a telephone call to reporters from the Soviet embassy that Shevardnadze was postponing his news conference, which had been scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Then, at 2:32 p.m., Redman and Gerasimov joined a group of reporters waiting to no avail in the lobby to record Shevardnadze's departure.

Redman described the talks as constructive, positive and forward-moving.

"The ministers simply decided they had a lot of work to do," Redman said.

■ See ARMS, Page 14

State Fair

Celebrating its 75th Anniversary the "Great Kansas Get Together" provides something for everyone. See Page 7

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with a good chance of showers, high around 70. Clearing and cooler tonight, low in upper 40s. Sunny and mild Saturday, high in mid-70s.

164 2/8/80 ** 7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612
... since practices started in August. See
Page 11.

Friday

September 18, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 19

Kansas State Collegian

Bradley supports proposal

By Candice Leonard
Government Editor

TOPEKA — Student Body President Kent Bradley has given his support to a selective admissions policy currently under consideration by the Kansas Board of Regents.

The discussion of admissions policies at Kansas universities was the primary item of business at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

Bradley said one of the reasons behind his support of a move toward selective admissions policies is the legislative trend in funding being based on quality programs rather than programs with quantity.

"They are saying, 'Let's not teach high school at K-State,'" Bradley said.

The Regents institutions currently are bound to an open admissions policy that states they must admit any person who has graduated from an accredited Kansas high school.

"I think it (selective admissions) merits serious consideration," said President Jon Wefald. He indicated K-State planners and faculty would be studying the matter carefully in the next month.

Stanley Koplik, Regents executive direc-

Instructor celebrates citizenship

At the Capitol in Topeka Thursday, Fayez Hussein, associate professor of architecture and design, waits to become an American citizen.

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

TOPEKA — A celebration marking the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution was held at the State Capitol Thursday. But for Fayez Hussein, associate professor of environmental design, it was a special day. Hussein, along with 108 other people,

Staff/Steve Wolgast

ni, a Syrian native, takes the Oath of Citizenship with 108 others.

wishes from my court."
ers led the crowd in the Pledge of nce to the flag while white doves
d, white and blue balloons were
d. The new citizens were then intro-
to the crowd, announcing the countries from which they came.

"All this was well organized," Hussein
said. "It made me feel so special."
The new citizens were allowed a free
AT&T telephone call to anywhere in the
■ See CITIZEN, Page 12

'History in making' as superpowers opt to extend talks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze decided dramatically Thursday to extend their talks on a missile-reduction treaty, and a Soviet spokesman said "history is in the making."

Shultz and Shevardnadze scrapped plans for a midday wind-up and separate news conferences, sent down to the State Department cafeteria for sandwiches and pressed on with their talks over a treaty to scrap intermediate-range missiles.

"We're moving ahead across the full range of issues," said Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman.

"History is in the making," said Gennady Gerasimov, the Soviet spokesman. "We must wait a little bit."

The original plan had been to

wind up the talks at about noon. Shultz and Shevardnadze were then to hold separate news conferences and make separate visits to Capitol Hill to talk to members of Congress.

But the hours ticked away, without word from Shultz's seventh-floor office.

The first indication of a shift was a telephone call to reporters from the Soviet embassy that Shevardnadze was postponing his news conference, which had been scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Then, at 2:32 p.m., Redman and Gerasimov joined a group of reporters waiting to no avail in the lobby to record Shevardnadze's departure.

Redman described the talks as constructive, positive and forward-moving.

"The ministers simply decided they had a lot of work to do," Redman said.

■ See ARMS, Page 14

16.99 - 18.99
FLEECE SWEATSHIRTS
Elsewhere $29-30

State Fair

Celebrating its 75th Anniversary the "Great Kansas Get Together" provides something for everyone. See Page 7

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with a good chance of showers, high around 70. Clearing and cooler tonight, low in upper 40s. Sunny and mild Saturday, high in mid-70s.

164 8/2/86 ** 7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Section
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612
...since practices started in August. See
Page 11.

Friday

September 18, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 19

Kansas State

Collegian

Bradley supports proposal

By Candice Leonard
Government Editor

TOPEKA — Student Body President Kent Bradley has given his support to a selective admissions policy currently under consideration by the Kansas Board of Regents.

The discussion of admissions policies at Kansas universities was the primary item of business at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

Bradley said one of the reasons behind his support of a move toward selective admissions policies is the legislative trend in funding being based on quality programs rather than programs with quantity.

"They are saying, 'Let's not teach high school at K-State,'" Bradley said.

The Regents institutions currently are bound to an open admissions policy that states they must admit any person who has graduated from an accredited Kansas high school.

"I think it (selective admissions) merits serious consideration," said President Jon Wefald. He indicated K-State planners and faculty would be studying the matter carefully in the next month.

Stanley Koplik, Regents executive director, outlined the proposal prepared by his staff for more selective admission proce-

Instructor celebrates citizenship

At the Capitol in Topeka Thursday, Fayez Hussein, associate professor of architecture and design, waits to become an American citizen.

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

TOPEKA — A celebration marking the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution was held at the State Capitol Thursday. But for Fayez Hussein, associate professor of environmental design, it was a special day.

Hussein, along with 108 other people, went through the naturalization proceeding held on the south steps of the Capitol during

Staff/Steve Wolgast

Hussein, a Syrian native, takes the Oath of Citizenship with 108 others.

"I wish to leave from my court," Hussein said. "All this was well organized," Hussein said. "It made me feel so special."

The new citizens were then introduced to the crowd, announcing the count-

The new citizens were then introduced to the crowd, announcing the count-

See CITIZEN, Page 12

'History in making' as superpowers opt to extend talks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze decided dramatically Thursday to extend their talks on a missile-reduction treaty, and a Soviet spokesman said "history is in the making."

Shultz and Shevardnadze scrapped plans for a midday wind-up and separate news conferences, sent down to the State Department cafeteria for sandwiches and pressed on with their talks over a treaty to scrap intermediate-range missiles.

"We're moving ahead across the full range of issues," said Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman.

"History is in the making," said Gennady Gerasimov, the Soviet spokesman. "We must wait a little bit."

The original plan had been to

wind up the talks at about noon. Shultz and Shevardnadze were then to hold separate news conferences and make separate visits to Capitol Hill to talk to members of Congress.

But the hours ticked away, without word from Shultz's seventh-floor office.

The first indication of a shift was a telephone call to reporters from the Soviet embassy that Shevardnadze was postponing his news conference, which had been scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Then, at 2:32 p.m., Redman and Gerasimov joined a group of reporters waiting to no avail in the lobby to record Shevardnadze's departure.

Redman described the talks as constructive, positive and forward-moving.

"The ministers simply decided they had a lot of work to do," Redman said.

See ARMS, Page 14

The soft side. Simple to...

State Fair

Celebrating its 75th Anniversary the "Great Kansas Get Together" provides something for everyone. See Page 7

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with a good chance of showers, high around 70. Clearing and cooler tonight, low in upper 40s. Sunny and mild Saturday, high in mid-70s.

practices started in August. See Page 11.

Friday

September 18, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 19

Kansas State

Collegian

Bradley supports proposal

By Candice Leonard
Government Editor

TOPEKA — Student Body President Kent Bradley has given his support to a selective admissions policy currently under consideration by the Kansas Board of Regents.

The discussion of admissions policies at Kansas universities was the primary item of business at Thursday's Board of Regents meeting.

Bradley said one of the reasons behind his support of a move toward selective admissions policies is the legislative trend in funding being based on quality programs rather than programs with quantity.

"They are saying, 'Let's not teach high school at K-State,'" Bradley said.

The Regents institutions currently are bound to an open admissions policy that states they must admit any person who has graduated from an accredited Kansas high school.

"I think it (selective admissions) merits serious consideration," said President Jon Wefald. He indicated K-State planners and faculty would be studying the matter carefully in the next month.

Stanley Koplik, Regents executive director, outlined the proposal prepared by his staff for more selective admission procedures.

Instructor celebrates citizenship

At the Capitol in Topeka Thursday, Fayez Hussein, associate professor of architecture and design, waits to become an American citizen.

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

TOPEKA — A celebration marking the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution was held at the State Capitol Thursday. But for Fayez Hussein, associate professor of environmental design, it was a special day.

Hussein, along with 108 other people, went through the naturalization proceeding held on the south steps of the Capitol during

Staff/Steve Wolgast

Hussein, a Syrian native, takes the Oath of Citizenship with 108 others.

st wishes from my court."

Loggers led the crowd in the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag while white doves, red, white and blue balloons were released. The new citizens were then introduced to the crowd, announcing the countries from which they came.

"All this was well organized," Hussein said. "It made me feel so special."

The new citizens were allowed a free AT&T telephone call to anywhere in the

■ See CITIZEN, Page 12

'History in making' as superpowers opt to extend talks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze decided dramatically Thursday to extend their talks on a missile-reduction treaty, and a Soviet spokesman said "history is in the making."

Shultz and Shevardnadze scrapped plans for a midday wind-up and separate news conferences, sent down to the State Department cafeteria for sandwiches and pressed on with their talks over a treaty to scrap intermediate-range missiles.

"We're moving ahead across the full range of issues," said Charles E. Redman, the State Department spokesman.

"History is in the making," said Gennady Gerasimov, the Soviet spokesman. "We must wait a little bit."

The original plan had been to

wind up the talks at about noon. Shultz and Shevardnadze were then to hold separate news conferences and make separate visits to Capitol Hill to talk to members of Congress.

But the hours ticked away, without word from Shultz's seventh-floor office.

The first indication of a shift was a telephone call to reporters from the Soviet embassy that Shevardnadze was postponing his news conference, which had been scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Then, at 2:32 p.m., Redman and Gerasimov joined a group of reporters waiting to no avail in the lobby to record Shevardnadze's departure.

Redman described the talks as constructive, positive and forward-moving.

"The ministers simply decided they had a lot of work to do," Redman said.

■ See ARMS, Page 14

Briefly

By The Associated Press

IBM announces plan for elderly

NEW YORK — International Business Machines Corp. announced Thursday what it called the first corporate program of care for the elderly to be established nationwide.

IBM said it would establish a free consultation and referral service starting early in 1988 to assist its U.S. employees and retirees and their families in arranging care for elderly relatives.

The service will be administered for IBM by Work-Family Elder Directions Inc. of Watertown, Mass., a private consulting firm affiliated with one that provides a child-care referral service for IBM.

Work-Family intends to develop a network of more than 200 community-based organizations that will provide consultation and referrals to care providers. The advice — but not the care — will be free to IBM employees and retirees.

City may fine speeding trains

PITTSBURGH — A bill imposing fines of up to $1,000 on speeding trains has won tentative approval from City Council following a derailment in which chemical fumes forced at least 16,000 residents from their homes.

One of the two freight trains that collided April 11 was speeding, the Federal Railroad Administration determined. No serious injuries resulted.

"That was a near-disaster for the city," Councilman Jack Wagner, author of the bill, said following Wednesday's vote.

Final action on the bill is scheduled Monday. If enacted, police would measure the speed of trains electronically. Citations would be served by mail against the companies. Police would not try to stop the trains.

Public Safety Director Glenn Cannon said only the FRA, which lacks the personnel to do an adequate job, and the railroad companies, monitor train speeds.

"You can't have the foxes watching the henhouse," he said.

House approves reparations

WASHINGTON — The House commemorated the Constitution's 200th anniversary Thursday by approving apologies and reparations to right a 45-year-old wrong: the forced internment of Japanese-Americans during World War II.

An official apology, a $50 million public education fund and $1.2 billion in restitution were included in the Civil Liberties Act passed 243-141 after several hours of impassioned floor debate.

"This was the most appropriate way we could atone for what happened," said Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., who spent more than three years in an internment camp with his parents, starting when he was six months old.

"I don't know if you can remove scars, but I think scars can heal," Matsui said after the vote. "I'm hopeful that we don't put this issue to rest — that we just heal the wounds and make sure it doesn't happen again."

The bill authorizes $1.2 billion for payments of $20,000 to people of Japanese ancestry who were relocated, confined, held in custody or otherwise deprived of liberty or property under the government's wartime internment program.

An additional $50 million is earmarked for educational programs dealing with the wartime internment.

The measure also apologizes for the program.

Hillside murder suspect found

PORTLAND, Ore. — A 33-year-old man with a long history of sex crimes is the main suspect in the deaths of seven women whose bodies were found hidden by brush on a forest hillside, authorities said Thursday.

Russ Williams, a spokesman for the Clackamas County sheriff's department, confirmed a story in Thursday's editions of The Oregonian that identified Dayton L. Rogers of nearby Canby as the prime suspect in the case.

However, Williams said the department has no immediate plans to arrest Rogers, who is being held without bail in the Clackamas County Jail on an aggravated murder charge stemming from the Aug. 7 stabbing death of a Portland prostitute. He has pleaded innocent.

"When the investigation has progressed to the point that it supports prosecution of a suspect, the case will be submitted to the district attorney for his action," Williams said.

The Oregonian, which did not identify its sources, quoted them as saying Clackamas County authorities had not excluded other possible suspects in their investigation.

The first of the seven bodies of women ranging in age from their teens to their 30s was discovered on a hillside 30 miles southeast of Portland Aug. 31. Searchers found the other bodies within a week after the initial discovery.

Ghost-free castle on market

AMMINKELN, West Germany — Want a 700-year-old romantic castle that comes with more than six acres of land? No money? It's all for free. Plus a cash gift of $600,000 and no ghosts to haunt you.

There are, however, some strings attached to the offer by the community of Hamminkeln, 60 miles north of Bonn, the West German capital.

"There are two conditions: that the new owner pledges not to use the castle for commercial purposes and to himself foot the bill for maintenance costs," Hamminkeln treasurer Heinz-Dieter Melzer said Thursday.

Maintenance costs for Ringenberg Castle, a few miles from the Rhine River, are estimated at $110,000 a year. Melzer said Hamminkeln, a town of 23,000, is unable to continue paying the upkeep.

So far, there are no takers.

The castle is presently used by several live-in artists.

Man stands trial for murder

LAWRENCE — A man accused of killing his wife and leaving her body in a box near their mobile home made his first court appearance Thursday after being released from Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

Carl Kemp, 40, is charged with one count of second-degree murder. A request by his attorney, Carl Fleming, to reduce the $150,000 bond was denied by District Judge Jean Shepherd. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Monday, two days early.

Fleming said Kemp is a property owner in Lawrence with no felony record. District Attorney Jim Flory said Kemp has no real ties to the community and that there was some evidence that he had been planning to leave the area.

The decomposed body of Judy Kemp, 32, was found Sept. 9 after Kemp called police and a local funeral home. Police determined she had been dead since Sept. 3.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ENTRY FORMS FOR THE 1987 OZEEBALL TOURNAMENT are available at the Hollis House and at the Information desk in the Union. Deadline for registration is today.

APPLICATIONS FOR THE MORTAR BOARD SCHOLARSHIP are available in the Union Activities Center and are due today.

TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATIONS for sophomores in all majors may be picked up in the dean's office in Eisenhower. Packets will be available until Oct. 2.

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "On The Verge" by Eric Overmeyer at 8 p.m. on Sept. 24-26, 30 and Oct. 1-3 in Nichols Theater.

TODAY

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Mohammed Ahmed Omar Al-Tagafi at 3:30 p.m. in Cardwell 145. The dissertation topic will be "Continuous Measures and Prime L-Subalgebras of M(G) Associated with Scattered Sets."

BLOCK AND BRIDLE meets at 6 p.m. in City Park Pavilion for hamburgers and a dance.

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 6:30 p.m. at Sue's home. Call 539-0202 for details.

SOCIETY FOR ADVANCEMENT OF MANAGEMENT meets at 4 p.m. at Stan Elsea's house for a picnic.

FOCUS ON WOMEN meets at noon in Union 213. Frank Saal will speak on "Understanding Sexual Harassment."

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS meets at 5 p.m. at Tuttle Creek Shelter 2 for a picnic. Tickets available in Durland Atrium. All mechanical engineers are welcome.

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!

—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers—Aggieville

KSU/ARMY DAY
SPECIAL

Sancho
or Burrito 88¢ reg. $1.30
September 16-19

On the hill overlooking
Westloop

TACO HUT

Where good friends get together
2809 Claflin 539-2091

The Station
TGIF

FREE TGIF TERRIFIC
BUFFET,
JOIN MANHATTAN'S
TGIF TRADITION!

No membership needed
For restaurant & bar!
Open To Public!

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

Learn to Square Dance
with

K-LAIRES

7-10 pm

Sunday, Sept. 20

KSU Rooms

2nd Floor Union

NO PARTNER NEEDED

Experienced Dancers Welcome

SPAGHETTI SUNDAY

ALL YOU
CAN EAT
SPAGHETTI
AND GARLIC
BREAD!!
ONLY $3.25
SERVING 5-8 p.m.

SUNDAY LUNCH TOO

MIKTES
BAR AND GRILLE
619 N. 12TH, Aggieville

OPEN 24 HOURS

1445 ANDERSON

32 oz. Big Gulp fountain drink 69¢
(doesn't apply w/Super Big Gulp)

Frito Lay Grab Bag potato chips 59¢

Lakeshore chili cheese dog $1.29
Regular $2.47

Now Only $1.49

WE DELIVER

5 p.m.- Midnight (M-S)
Noon - Midnight (Sun.)

Sub & Stuff
Sandwich Shop

537-DELI

The Men of Delta Tau Delta would like to announce and congratulate our new Delt Darlings for 1987

Catrina Johnson
Kelly Dailey
Kathleen Hoffman
Ann Durham
Kathi Pope
Jamie Craft
Caroline Barber
Wendi Coffman
Alice O'Brien
Jennifer Warta
Briget Borders
Jill Dwyer
Julie Ferguson
Monica Robels
Peggy Anderson
Mistie Bitner
Julie McConnell
Charla Porterfield
Susan Hilt

Julie Fabrizio
Stephanie Scott
Kelley Collins
Shelia Day
Kathy Hayden
Julie Uptain
Katie Meyers
Leslie Coleman
Deanna Neal
Kelly Farley
Kathleen Baker
Karen Hight
Deb Seibold
Joni Bosserman
Kelli Blake
Karla Dugan
Suzanne Long
Joely Stienbock
Gina Downey

EVERYDAY IS TWOS-DAY!

Most restaurants have a "special of the day." That's okay if you want to wait a whole week for a good deal on your favorite meal.

But at Breadeaux, our Special is good everyday. Our pizzas are hot, zesty gourmet meals baked with the finest ingredients: 100% real cheeses, fresh vegetables and the best tasting meats you'll ever find. And when you buy a pizza at our regular price, you get your choice of another pizza of equal value FREE! No tricks. No gimmicks. Just a good, honest value. Everyday.

BREADEAUX PIZA

within walking distance of most campus housing

776-5577

BUY
ONE PIZZA
GET ONE
FREE

- Single Topping Pizza
- Bavarian Pizza
- B.L.T. Pizza
- Hawaiian Pizza
- Taco Pizza
- Bratwurst Pizza
- Breadeaux Special Pizza

"Purple and White"
Swirl CONES and CUPS
at

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

50% DISCOUNT
(on purple & white swirl cones and cups excluding waffle cones)

SATURDAY
to Everyone Wearing Something Purple!

Enjoy the taste of Ice Cream but with one-fifth the fat and half the calories

GO CATS!

We'll be cheering you on to victory against Army

FREE SAMPLES
EVERY TIME
YOU COME IN

Open 11 a.m.-11 p.m. daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sunday
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers, Aggieville

University readies for Arias lecture

Presentation to focus on peace plan

Mary Ward/Staff

By Jim Vader
Collegian Reporter

Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez will bring with him hope for his nation and a plan for peace when he delivers his Landon Lecture Monday. This plan for peace will be the focal point of Arias' trip to the U.S.

The country of Costa Rica, its leader and its people have become a pivotal point in the heated conflicts of Central America, according to Cornelia Flora, professor of social anthropology and social work and an internationally known researcher on Central America. Arias is also scheduled to present his plan for peace among Central American nations to the U.S. Congress, President Reagan and the United Nations later this week.

"He is going to try and get international support for his peace plan," Flora said.

To understand the president and his proposals, it is necessary to first understand this peaceful country, Flora said.

Costa Rica is a long-term democracy and has historically been committed to providing welfare for its citizens through school systems, family planning and social security, he said.

"He is going to try and get international support for his peace plan."

—Cornelia Flora

"This is evident by the fact that Costa Rica is the first country to see a decline in birthrate while literacy keeps climbing," Flora said. Costa Rica also has a strong social security system — which points to its distribution of wealth.

"Sure, there is inequality — but it's unlike that of her neighboring countries," Flora said.

Costa Rica has shown its commitment to the human race by putting money into schools rather than its army, Flora pointed out.

"The best defense is a real democracy, which requires the people to know what is going on," he said. "This can only be accomplished by schooling."

She also explained that the armies of most countries in Central America are for internal control.

"Costa Rica does not need to turn guns on her own people," she said.

But, like all countries, Costa Rica has its problems, too. In recent years, its exports have been less profitable in the international markets, and this is taking its toll on the economy. The war and conflicts occurring in surrounding nations also hurt trade — putting Arias in a precarious position.

"The moral courage of this man is impressive," Flora said. "President Arias' views are critically important in Central America because of the strong tradition of social responsibility in his country."

These traditional values, which he has supported through the funding of social programs, have kept his nation cohesive and working as a strong democracy in the worn-torn region of Central America.

Arias' peace proposal has not been well-received by Reagan, Flora said, because it calls for the Contras in Nicaragua to lose monetary support from the U.S. government. The U.S. aid to Costa Rica, however, must continue at this point to help turn the country's loans around.

"Reagan is slow to help because of Arias' plan," Flora said. "Costa Rica has the best chance now of paying back its loans because it invested wisely — in her people."

Time becomes a factor now in the political schemes of Central America, she said.

"The longer Arias holds on to his peace plan, he risks losing much needed U.S. dollars for his economy," Flora said.

University, Secret Service to protect Costa Rican leader

By The Collegian Staff

Security will be tight when Oscar Arias Sanchez, president of Costa Rica, arrives Monday on K-State's campus.

Sanchez, who is making his first appearance in the United States as a lecturer in the Landon Lecture Series, will have security provided by area police, particularly the University police, and the U.S. Secret Service.

"The Secret Service lead agents are here — it's their responsibility to protect heads of state," said Charles Reagan, assistant to President Wefald.

Reagan said the lead agents are looking over all the locations on campus where Sanchez will appear, deciding which doors, stairs and elevators will be used and how many men it will take to fulfill these security needs.

Two of the three lead agents have been on campus for prior events and

Reagan thinks they share a good working relationship with the University and that these men are "extremely competent professionals."

"They look at our plans first and they work as closely as they can with them," Reagan said.

The rest of the Secret Service will arrive in Manhattan with Sanchez on Sunday to join the lead agents. The time of Sanchez's arrival and the location where he will be staying are unavailable.

"Although we cannot divulge manpower strengths or locations of security to the public, protective service will be provided and it will be extensive," said Charles Beckom, K-State police captain.

Reagan said students are strongly discouraged from bringing backpacks into Ahearn Field House for the Landon Lecture. However, people with backpacks will not be refused entrance as they have been at past lectures in Ahearn.

Senate questions hall renovation; task force to examine feasibility

By Jill Conger
Collegian Reporter

The question of whether K-State students should be responsible for financing Holton Hall's renovation topped the list of concerns at Thursday's Student Senate meeting.

Senate voted on the appointments to the task force that would be examining the relationship of the Counseling Center, mental health and physical health services. The students who were chosen for the task force were picked from various areas of campus, said Kent Bradley, senior in nutrition science and student body president. The task force consists of six members: one older student, two graduate students and three student senators.

Senate then heard first readings on the bill proposing the $1.069 million plan for renovating Holton. The bill suggested that the per semester student support fees of $3 for full-time students and $1 for part-time students continue until sufficient funds have been collected to meet projected costs.

The bill also suggests combining the present Holton Hall Advisory Board and the Student Services Support Fee Allocation Board to form Holton Hall Council. This council would be comprised of the student senate vice chairperson, who would serve as head of the council; the chief of staff on the student body president's cabinet; one senator and two students-at-large. Two University administrators and two student services staff members from Holton Hall would also serve on the council.

Senate discussed the council's responsibilities, which would include monitoring all phases of the renovation of Holton Hall, all changes following the renovation and advising senate and the vice president for institutional advancement concerning any changes with Holton Hall.

Questions were raised by a few senators concerning when the renovation would begin.

"We would prefer to begin the designing of Holton Hall as soon as possible," said Larry Garvin, University architect. "We would like to have the design done and ready to submit for a bid in May, but we cannot finalize a design for Holton Hall until we know whether the Counseling Center is in or out of Holton Hall."

Senate also heard the first reading for the Student Services Support Fee Referendum. This bill requests that a question be added to the November ballot concerning whether or not students should continue to finance the renovation of Holton Hall until the $1.069 million proposal has been met. The question would be submitted on the November ballot as with a yes/no answer option, and Senate would then act upon the opinion of the majority of the student body.

Senate passed the "Enhancement of Fee Information" bill. The proposal now requires the University to specify in the catalog where each of the special fees for the summer session is being used. In addition, the resolution states all fees must be specified in print to each student at the time of registration for the summer session.

In another matter, Senate voted to approve Brad Barth, sophomore in pre-medicine, as the Social Services Coordinator.

Saturday's parade to mark beginning of Fort Riley Day

By The Collegian Staff

A parade on Poyntz Avenue from Manhattan Town Center to City Park at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, will mark the beginning of Fort Riley Day in Manhattan.

The parade, sponsored by the Military Affairs Committee of the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce, is to show appreciation to Fort Riley for everything it does for the business community, said Archie Hyle, retired colonel and coordinator of the parade.

"Fort Riley means a lot more than dollars, it benefits the community socially and politically as well," Hyle said. "We just want to show how much we appreciate it."

The Pride of Wildcat Land Marching Band will lead the parade. The Manhattan High School band and the 1st Infantry Division Marching Band will follow.

Also participating will be the Tin Lizzies and the Mini Wheels from the Shriners, the Little Apple Gymnastics Club, clowns, pony-drawn buggies and a large number of military personnel from the 1st Brigade at Fort Riley.

Ward Haylett, a World War I veteran and a former K-State teacher and football coach, will serve as grand marshal of the parade.

Battalion Sgt. Maj. David Galman said K-State's Army ROTC will have a five-man color guard.

ST. FRANCIS

EPISCOPAL CAMPUS MINISTRY

Sundays:

5 p.m.—Evening Service at Danforth Chapel

6 p.m.—Dinner at St. Francis House

537-0593

1402 LeGore Lane

AGGIEVILLE'S FIRST ANNUAL CHILI COOKOFF, SEPT. 26, 1987

Sponsored by Stroh's, Stroh's Light, KQLA and the Aggieville Merchants Association

aggieville

CATEGORIES INCLUDE

living groups
competition chili
homestyle chili
specialty chili

CONTESTS, FUN, PRIZES

pinata contest, 11:00am-4:00pm
live music by "full house," 11am-1:30pm
pepper eating contest, 1:00pm
jalepeno pepper toss, 1:30pm
mr. potentate chili pepper pageant, 2:00pm
ms. chili pepper beauty pageant, 2:30pm
live, "back porch country band," 2-4:00pm
best booth award, 3:15pm
spirit award, 3:45pm

for all entry information contact, 776-8050

CHILI
COOKOFF
1987

STROH
LIGHT

Stroh's

KQLA
104

Aggieville

Finally, a great pizza delivered.

1118 Laramie

539-5303

GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special

$10.99/$8.99 plus tax

LARGE MEDIUM

COMBO PIZZA

or up to 4 toppings

Original Crust

Plus FREE 20 oz. drink!

4 drinks with large

3 drinks with medium

Offer good Monday through

Wednesday only.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery (no

added delivery charge). Not valid

with other promotional offers.

Limited Delivery Area.

Offer Expires 10/07/87

Large Pizza for

a Medium Price

Present this coupon and

receive any large pizza for

the price of a medium.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery

Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on refillable jug of beer. On Sunday your choice: either use this coupon or take advantage

of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one.

Offer Expires 10/11/87

Offer Expires 10/11/87

Offer Expires 10/11/87

Offer Expires 10/11/87

2 for $12

Super Pepperoni or

Four Toppings

(The Super Pepperoni with more

pepperoni than ever before or The Four Toppings with sausage, pepperoni, onions, and green peppers)

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery

Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1.00 for delivery. Limited

Delivery Area.

Offer Expires 10/11/87

Offer Expires 10/11/87

Offer Expires 10/11/87

Offer Expires 10/11/87

Hot Slice™

2 for $2

Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas

by the slice for $2!

Combo or Pepperoni

Dine-in or Carryout

Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

Offer Expires 10/09/87

Offer Expires 10/09/87

Offer Expires 10/09/87

Offer Expires 10/09/87

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, September 18, 1987 ■ Page 4

Remembering a trip to the Berlin Wall

Late one evening last July in the West Berlin district of Kreuzberg, I climbed the steps of a small wooden observation platform and looked over the Berlin Wall. With me were three West Germans; Werner, a 45-year-old businessman who moved to Berlin in 1946 when his family was forced to leave what is now Poland; his son Michael, 24, who has lived all his life in the isolated island called West Berlin; and Sabine, 20, who lives in a small town in West Germany near Stuttgart.

The conversation we had then was reflective of the various perspectives one encounters when discussing the wall and the division of Germany with those directly affected by these things.

We stand for a time in silence, contemplating the security zone before us - the thick, 3-meter-tall concrete wall beneath us, the western side of which is covered with fantastic pictures and other, more political graffiti; the barren, 40-meter-wide strip of land which separates the western wall from a similar wall on the East German side; the eerie glow of orange street lights on anti-tank pylons and tall, East German guard towers. The whole scene strikes me as a high-tech security monument to insecurity.

Inside this 'death zone,' East German border guards can be seen, some patrolling on foot, two others resting against the western wall. Near them, apparently oblivious to the surroundings, a couple of rabbits hop along, stopping to feed on what vegetation grows in the neatly raked earth.

"This morning," Sabine breaks the silence, "I watched the sun come up over East Berlin. A sort of fog hung over the city and I watched people go to work in some kind of factory, and it struck me how the smallest animals can cross or fly over the wall, but people are unable to move from one side to the other."

"Before the wall was built," Werner says, "I crossed into East Berlin every day to go to work. One day we heard the East German government assure us, 'No one has the intention of building a wall,' and the next day, the border was closed. A few days later, they began building the wall."

"It must be hard living with this wall surrounding you all the time," I inquire.

Michael responds, "I don't really think

Commentary

DAN OWENS

Collegian Columnist

about the wall. I was born here after it was built and I don't think about it that much. It's part of life here and doesn't bother me."

"I think maybe it should bother you a little," complains Sabine. "It's good you can enjoy life in West Berlin, but you shouldn't become numb to something like this." Michael merely shrugs.

"I suppose I've also become accustomed to the wall," says Werner. "I'm sad when I see it and think about my relatives living on the other side who can't visit me, but life goes on. People can get used to anything."

"People shouldn't get used to this," Sabine replies. "I still find it unbelievable. I still don't understand why it's here."

"They were losing too many people to the West," Michael replies, "young people in whose education the government had invested, who left for the West and better paying jobs."

"It's Communism," says Werner bitterly, "a system few would choose voluntarily, so they had to force it upon the people."

"I think it's basic insecurity," I say. "The wall is here as much to keep ideas out as to keep people in. It's not unlike some Christians in the States who say 'don't read this book or see that movie' because they contain 'un-Christian ideas.' I'm a Christian, and I say if you can't read a humanistic book and keep your faith, maybe you should find a new faith. If the 'scientific Socialism' in the East is really scientific, its leaders shouldn't fear opposing ideas."

A long silence ensues, broken by the almost melodramatic music of an accordion being played softly, somewhere in the night. Across the wall in East Berlin, a stone's throw away, a man can be seen in his apartment watching television.

Then Sabine says, "I imagine the day when the wall is gone, and in its place a forest is planted; where the wall once was, a beautiful park as both a reminder and a symbol of peace."

"The wall will never go away," Michael says cynically. "Never."

"It will go away someday," says Werner with certitude, "but not for a long, long time."

As two more guards pass by on bicycles, Sabine and I hit upon the idea of tossing some flowers over the wall onto the two guards still resting against it. Werner and Michael agree to watch what happens. Sabine and I find some blossoms and toss them over the wall where we estimate the guards are sitting.

"You guessed pretty well where they were," Michael tells us later, "but not much happened. They got up, talked on a radio for a moment, but soon sat back down."

"Who knows, maybe one of them will tell their family tomorrow about it and think about escaping to the West," Sabine says.

"Or at least about people in the West who were thinking about them," adds Werner, "although they probably think it's just a prank."

"It's somewhat like when an artist puts out a record, or an author publishes a book," Michael concludes. "One usually can't say who or what his actions will affect."

As I walk away from the wall, I imagine the same will be true if I ever get around to sharing this evening in a column far away.

Constitution's best quality its versatility

Judging by the type of celebrations happening this week, it seems Americans are having a giant picnic rather than commemorating the Constitution's 200th birthday. The parties are informal and official hoopla is at a minimum.

That is probably best anyway. The Constitution was designed to be—and still is—a workable document, not a piece of parchment to be revered and ignored. As formal governmental decrees go, the Constitution could be called the working man's document.

Thursday was the Constitution's 200th birthday, and schoolchildren, businessmen and teachers nationwide took part in the celebration, as did President Reagan, who called the Constitution "our blueprint for freedom."

So why all the fuss over a tattered piece of parchment? Because that tattered piece of parchment has ensured Americans' freedom for two centuries.

What makes the Constitution so unique is that it's a document to be shared by everyone. It's not just for America's elite, and it's not just for Washington, D.C., politicians.

It's for the grocery clerk down the street and the mechanic across town. It's for you.

Which is why individuals should appreciate what it means and how valuable it is.

The document's versatility and application to our everyday lives can be seen in the current confirmation battle going on over President Reagan's nomination of Robert Bork.

The very division of powers outlined in the Constitution ensures that the president can't just appoint whomever he wants and not have to answer to it.

Because of that particular clause—not to mention the document as a whole—America has been able to preserve and protect its democratic principles.

Today marks the beginning of the Constitution's 200th year, and it will surely be tested as much this year and in the coming years as it has ever been.

But judging by its performance over the first two centuries, Americans need not worry too much about this document faltering.

IFC should mandate dry 'rushing' policy

Interfraternity Council must meet the needs of a changing society and accept the fact that alcohol no longer has a place at "rush" functions.

Last Monday a proposal for a non-alcoholic rush was presented to IFC. It is up to these men to institute this proposal and not defeat it as they did a similar proposal last spring.

In the past, alcohol has been part of what most college students have considered a necessity for fun. And of course when rushing men to join a fraternity, the organization wants to show the prospective member what a fun group they are. "Naturally" alcohol has usually been part of this rushing process.

But, times are changing. The age of legal alcohol consumption in Kansas is older than most prospective fraternity members are, so alcohol should not be served in most cases.

IFC needs to reinforce this idea by taking a firm stand on the issue of drinking and rushing. Excessive drinking, as we all know, can result in injury and death. The greek system does not need to be bothered with this potential problem, and to alleviate any chances of it, must deal with the issue of a non-alcoholic rush.

The time is now for IFC members to vote for an enforceable dry rush. Waiting any longer could be costly—not only to the individuals involved, but also the fraternity, the greek system and the University as a whole.

Tips to help those searching for parking at, near K-State

Dear Jeff,

I am not a bad person! I study hard and eat the right foods. I get the recommended nightly allowance of sleep and even take a good multi-vitamin. So when I start to tell you about my habit, don't laugh or make fun of me. I hate walking to campus! I don't ever have enough time in the morning to walk to class, but I always have enough time to drive around looking for a parking space. Because I refuse to walk all the way to campus each day does not mean that I am lazy, it just means that I have better ways of expending my energy. This brings me to my problem.

If I would have known that K-State had such horrible parking facilities, I would have gone to school elsewhere. Is there something that I can do as a student to help with the problem? Do you personally know any tricks that could help me find a parking space during the mid-day rush hours?

signed,

Dizzy from Driving in Circles

Dear Dizzy,

You are not the only one who is disgusted with the K-State parking situation. The only real solution is to build more parking stalls, either by asphaltting over more ground, or by building an above-ground facility. Student Senate does not have the resources to do either without raising tuition. The State of Kansas does have a broad revenue base, but the Board of Regents is too busy giving money to KU to worry about 14,000 permit-bearing automobiles trying to cram into 800 parking stalls.

We need some wealthy alumni to donate the money to build a parking facility. However, that is unlikely. Parking garages are not

Commentary

JEFF SHRAG

Collegian Columnist

very glamorous. Few alumni would want their name attached to a large conglomeration of reinforced concrete that will never be mentioned on the 6 o'clock news. There is a world of difference between "the Bramlage Coliseum" and "the Bramlage Above-ground Parking Facility for Permit-bearing Student Automobiles Only."

However, that does not help you in the meantime. So until the much needed changes are made, the following are a few suggestions to help you beat the system.

■ Tie one of your legs behind your back and jump off of your roof. If you fail to pull a tendon or tear a ligament, simply repeat the process from a higher roof. As soon as you do some damage, hobble to Lafene Student Health Center. They will give you some crutches, some drugs and some forms. Take these forms to the KSU Police Department, and you are on easy street for the rest of the semester. Hello handicapped parking.

■ President Jon Wefald is trying to establish a friendly atmosphere between the administration and the student body. This is in direct contrast to the days of former president

Duane Acker, who had a tunnel built between his house and his office so he wouldn't have to walk on campus. You can help the president by visiting him every morning. Just drive to his house and offer to walk him to Anderson Hall. Of course, you will be forced to leave your car in his driveway, but if you roll up the windows and lock the doors, I am sure it will be safe. In case others take this same advice, filling his driveway with cars, don't be afraid to ask if he has any room in his garage. Hello President Wefald.

■ Get to know your dean. Offer to drive him or her to school in the morning. First, assure your dean that no pressing situations will happen before you arrive just prior to your 10:30 a.m. class. Second, sweeten the deal by promising to bring coffee and donuts (Dillons has good specials on day-old bakery items). Third, pick up your dean, drop him or her off at the office, and then park your car in the dean's reserved spot—it would be a shame to let a prime parking spot go unused all day. Don't be afraid to change your college six or seven times in order to get to know all of K-State's deans. Remember, some associate deans have prime reserved parking stalls of their own. Hello my favorite dean.

■ The following tricks will only work once. Buy a toy siren, glue it to your roof and park on the grass, the sidewalk or a flight of stairs.

Park your car next to a building. Make an anonymous call to the police, telling them a bomb is in your car next to that building. No one will give you a parking ticket for "failure to park in a designated stall." (This trick works best when borrowing a friend's car.)

If these don't work, run for Student Body President, he gets a reserved stall.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of K-State Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, K-State Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

'Clerical error' leaves many cruising

By Paula Selby
Collegian Reporter

Since K-State was founded, the University has gone from hearing complaints that there are not enough hitching posts for the students' horses to hearing complaints that there are not enough parking spaces for the students' cars.

To students living in residence halls, not only are there not enough spaces, but many of the spaces that were assigned have to be changed. Rosanne Proite, coordinator of the Parking Chairpersons Committee, said Derby parking lot was oversold by about 60 students and B2 parking lot was undersold by about the same number.

She said the confusion was due to a clerical error. Therefore, 60 students were assigned to Derby when they should have been assigned to B2.

To adjust the problem, the Department of Housing sent letters to each student who needed to change lots. To make it more convenient for the students, Proite arranged to have all permit transactions occur in the residence halls so students would not have to go to the campus police station.

The students who had their permits reassigned now park in B2, across the street from Haymaker and Moore halls. If lot B2 is full, students with B2 permits must park in lot B3, the gravel lot behind B2.

When lot B3 is full, students must park in D1W, located west of Memorial Stadium. This is a common occurrence because 650 permits were issued for B3, which only has 486 parking spaces.

Therefore, at least 150 students have to search for a place to park, either on side streets or across campus in D1W.

"Campus police are really responsible for the parking in general," Proite said. "All we, the parking chairs (on the committee), do is tell the police which kind of permit to sell the student."

The committee devised a point system which places each student who applies for a permit in the correct lot depending on his academic classification, number of semesters spent in KSU residence halls, age, involvement in student government, number of academic credit hours accumulated and physical disability.

The committee is comprised of one student representative from each hall — usually the vice president of the hall.

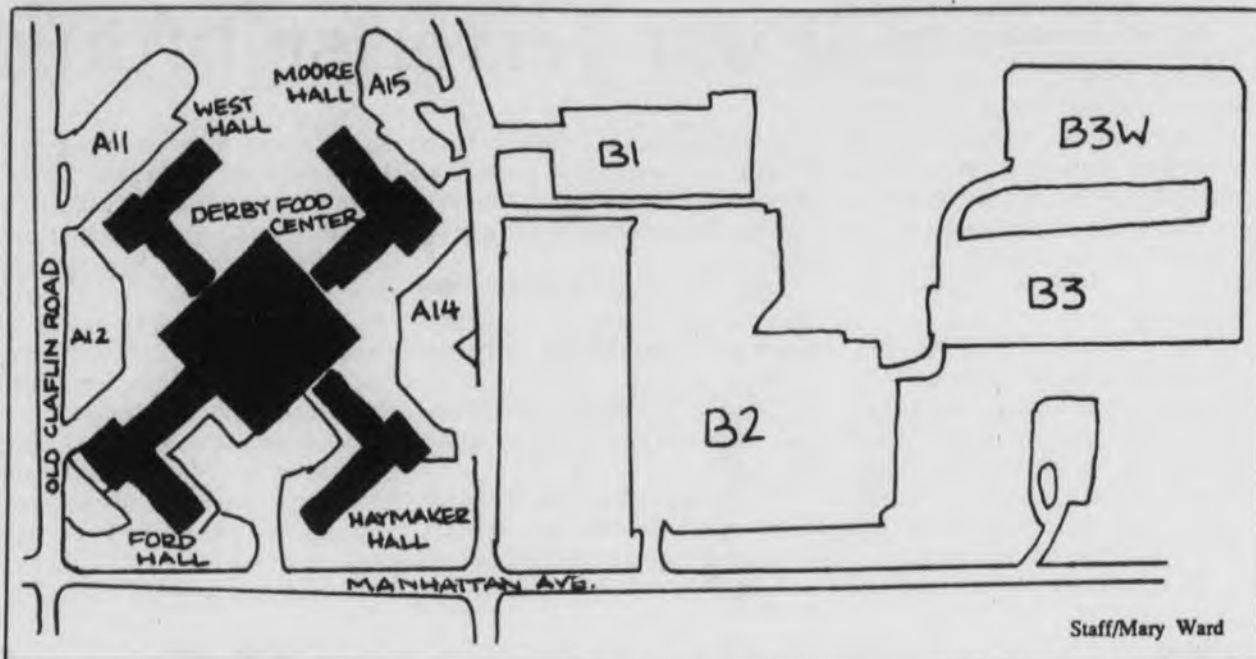

Dave DeVries, sophomore in elementary education, was one of the students whose permit was changed. Besides being told he could park in Derby and then being moved, he said, "I paid $22 for a parking space I might not get."

He said it is often difficult to find an open slot. "If it's in the middle of the day you can, but in the morning and in the evening there's not much of anything," DeVries said.

Chris Baranczuk, sophomore in architecture, also has had trouble finding a parking place.

"I came back from the rec (complex) at 11 p.m. and there wasn't anything (open spaces) in B2, B3, or anywhere so I had to park in a 15 minute loading zone," he said.

"The situation is critical in my estimation," Proite said, "I'm hoping the administration hears what we're telling them. I'm trying to act on behalf of the students and act with the administration to see if we can look at this issue and try to come up with some creative solutions."

"The most important factor for everyone to consider at this point," she said, "is the fact that the number of students on this campus has increased...and we have had a dramatic increase in the number of students that have cars. Where we used to have one vehicle for every four students, we now have one vehicle for every two students — that's dramatic."

However, K-State Police Captain Charles Beckom said the force is making the best of the situation.

College-bound students find success with seminar

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

A College Success Seminar is being offered Saturday by K-State to all college-bound high school juniors and seniors.

The seminar, which is the first of its kind at the University, and will be held in the Union, is designed to help future college freshmen adjust to college life.

James N. Akin, associate director of the Career Planning and Placement Center and seminar coordinator, said the seminar will help students by providing them with information about college life and by answering questions of incoming freshmen.

The idea for the seminar emerged from planning for an all-University career fair, Akin said.

"We originally planned it as a carry-on day to the career fair which was to take place on a Friday," he said. "But when nothing ever came of the fair, this idea emerged, and it sounded so good, we decided to just plan for it."

The seminar program will begin at 10:45 a.m. in the Union courtyard with an opening session. Following this, students will attend three seminar sessions of their choice. The day concludes with an information wrap-up session.

Akin said speakers for the sessions will include staff from K-State and other universities in Kansas, university students, high school counselors, parents and employers.

The three seminar sessions students attend are chosen from a total of eight sessions. Akin said the three most popular topics are: important factors in selecting a major, paying for college and making good grades.

The seminar will also examine the necessary pre-admission examinations, college lifestyles and ways to plan for a future career.

The fee for attending the success seminar is $7. In addition to the sessions, the students will be served lunch and receive a copy of the 1987 edition of "Off to College."

Akin said the seminar was planned for 250 students. It has grown to 264 students and 98 additional family members. Akin said he thinks the final number will be even higher.

"It's exciting. We're feeling really great about it," he said. "Everything's falling into place really well."

Nelson, Mellencamp top names at Saturday FarmAid III benefit

By The Collegian Staff

Willie Nelson, John Cougar Mellencamp and other performers will take the FarmAid act on the road again for FarmAid III Saturday.

This year's concert will start at noon and run until 10 p.m. at the football stadium in Lincoln, Neb. Nelson and Mellencamp, both of whom helped organize and produce FarmAid I and II, are two of the 40 performers scheduled to appear at the sold-out concert. More than 69,000 tickets were sold for the event which is to be televised nationally.

Rick Ridder, spokesman for FarmAid III, said the concert will draw nationwide attention.

"It's looking good so far," he said.

"We've had several networks call us about televising the concert. We're planning on excellent national coverage."

FarmAid's donations come from several national corporations, such as Coca-Cola, Wrangler and Wang, as well as many private donations.

The amount of aid each state receives is based on organizational and individual financial need.

Past FarmAid programs have provided Kansas organizations with more than $167,000, which ranks Kansas eighth in aid distributed nationally.

The top recipient of Kansas award money is the Kansas Consultation of Cooperative Churches, located in Topeka. The cooperative specializes in emergency food programs for Kansas farmers and their families.

"The money distributed from FarmAid goes directly to state organizations," Ridder said. "The organizations can best perceive the needs of surrounding areas, and then appropriate funds accordingly."

Ridder says distributing money to state organizations is one way of making FarmAid work, another is to increase public awareness.

"Our aim is to increase public awareness of national farm problems," Ridder said. "Some people say the farm crisis is over, but it's obviously not. We hope that the hundreds of farm-help programs nationwide can continue to provide assistance."

Silver Reed EZ 20
Reg. 199.95 Now 179.95
Multi-Lingual Keyboard
Relocation
Correction Memory
Slip-in Typewheels (Pica or elite)

Hull Business Machines

Tussy Mussy
Victorian Gifts
Come join us for a Special Christmas in September.
Sat., Sept. 19th
10 a.m.-4 p.m.
539-6759 4th & Osage

SUNDAY SUPPER
Sept. 20
5:30 p.m.
Topic:
Game Night
(50¢ donations or free if needed)
1021 Denison
The building with the two red front doors

Sponsored by
CUMENICAL
CHRISTIAN
MINISTRIES

CHARLES'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
ESTABLISHED 1951

PIZZA POUND
All-U-Can Eat
$3.70 plus tax
Every Sunday
from 5-7

THIS AFTERNOON
Free T.G.I.F.
Sandwich & chip bar
1800 Claflin 539-9619

Creative Engineers

At Sundstrand, we see engineering as a creative profession. A blend of artist's imagination and scientist's pragmatism. The ingenuity to conceive new technologies and the discipline to make them work.

As a leading supplier of technology-based electrical and mechanical aerospace components, we're in the business of creative engineering. We're looking for creative engineering graduates in most of our programs. Whether you're interested in research, design, project, testing, or manufacturing engineering, we're interested in you.

In addition to openings for graduating engineers, we have a cooperative education program for engineering students.

WE WILL BE ON CAMPUS SOON!

See your college placement office for further information or to arrange an interview.

An Equal Opportunity Employer

SUNDSTRAND

The Men of ACACIA Fraternity would like to congratulate our New Little Sisters

Becky Jones	Shelia Hirschler	Susan Wright
Jill La Barge	Dara Dawes	Julie Habiger
Jean Danner	Angie May	Shelly Fischer
Joell Curl	Amy Keith	Lisa Brelton
Shelia Gillenwater	Janet Howell	Dona Pitman
Brook Filson	Julie Triplett	Cheryl Sloan
Janie Katlin	Angie Orr	Becky LLOYD
Stephanie Wilkerson	Jill Davis	Jennifer Prinz
Kendra Jensen	Cindy Riemann	Denise Morgan
Stephanie Mills	Kelly Hansen	Tracy Orona
Vera McMinimy	Brenda Allen

Fulsetto's
Pasta House

Family Style Pastas
from $3<sup>99</sup> minimum 4 persons

COUPON
$1 OFF Any Entree
Not good with Family Style one per person
expires 9-25-87

OPEN: M-Sat. 4-10 p.m., Sun. 11 a.m.-9 p.m.
Now Open to the Public.
Across from the Holidome 537-8443

ATTENTION
Organization Pictures
for the Royal Purple
are being taken in
FAIRCHILD 202

Jordanian airline hijacker arraigned

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A Lebanese man indicted for masterminding the 1985 hijacking of a Jordanian airliner with four Americans aboard was plucked from the Mediterranean Sea by FBI agents and returned to the United States on Thursday to stand trial, the Justice Department announced.

Fawaz Younis, a Shiite Moslem, was being arraigned before a U.S. magistrate in Washington on charges of hostage-taking, conspiracy and destruction of an aircraft, which could result in a term of life imprisonment if he is convicted, said FBI and Justice Department officials.

The arrest marks the first time U.S.

First terrorist brought to justice in U.S.

law enforcement officials have brought an international terrorist to justice in the United States, Attorney General Edwin Meese III told a news conference.

"This operation illustrates the intention and ability of the United States to invoke the rule of law in fighting terrorist lawlessness," Meese said. "It is the first such operation, but it will most certainly not be the last."

The hostage-taking statute passed in 1984 provides long-arm jurisdiction over offenses committed outside the United States where U.S. nationals are among those taken hostages.

Younis was intercepted Sunday morning by the FBI on a small boat in the Mediterranean, transferred to the U.S. aircraft carrier Saratoga and then flown to Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington without touching down in a foreign country, said FBI, Justice Department and Defense department officials.

One administration source, while refusing to say precisely where the FBI agents caught the suspect, said the man was transferred to the Saratoga in the north central Mediterranean near the island of Corsica. The carrier had steamed to that area after a port call in Naples, Italy, to participate in a NATO exercise, the source added.

"The operation didn't involve any foreign territory. It was all done by the military in international waters or airspace," said a Pentagon official, who asked not to be identified.

Younis is accused in an indictment unsealed Thursday of conspiring with others in the June 11, 1985 hijacking of the Alia Royal Jordanian Airlines plane, a Boeing 727 with 74 people aboard.

The indictment says that Younis had four co-conspirators boarded the plane armed with AK-47 assault rifles. The indictment alleged that one of the conspirators assaulted a crew member and demanded to be told the identity of any Jordanian sky marshals who were on board the aircraft. The hijackers "repeatedly assaulted and beat several Jordanian sky marshals who were discovered on board the aircraft" during the two-day odyssey, the indictment alleged.

Gunmen, identified as Shiites, hijacked the Jordanian jetliner as passengers were boarding for the flight from Beirut to Amman, Jordan. The hijackers demanded that Palestinians be removed from Beirut and sent to Tunisia. That demand was apparently related to combat that occurred just before the hijacking between Shiite Moslems.

'Bumper crop' possible at harvest

By Staff and Wire Reports

Kansas corn and sorghum crops may reach record levels by the time harvest is complete, said Eldon Thiessen, deputy statistician for Kansas Agricultural Statistics.

"We've got a great bumper crop here, but it's not in the bin yet," Thiessen said.

Soybeans are also expected to exceed last year's crop which was damaged by flooding in eastern Kansas.

"It never stopped raining (last year)," Thiessen said. "Farmers had a hard time with the wheat so they just planted more soybeans."

Riley County ranks 73rd in wheat production out of Kansas' 105 counties. On the 22,500 acres planted, farmers produced a total 919,300 bushels.

Total Kansas wheat production was estimated at 372.4 million bushels by KAS. The final estimate will be released in October, although Steve Graham of the Kansas Wheat Commission said that the figures probably would not vary much.

Graham said the corn, sorghum and soybean production estimates will change in the next few months and won't be released until early January.

KAS forecast of the sorghum crop is 288.6 million bushels, with a state record per acre yield of 78 bushels. The soybean crop should produce a record 65.1 million bushels.

The corn forecast totals 163.2 million bushels, with a record tying per acre yield of 136 bushels.

"There are really good conditions out there now," Thiessen said. "The only things that could hurt it are wind damage (from storms) and possibly stock rot which could cause lodging. And, the sorghum and soybeans are always susceptible to an early frost."

Referring to the beneficial summer rains, Thiessen said, "Moisture came at an appropriate time for the sorghum and soybeans to take advantage of it."

Central American forces work for cease-fire

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Jim Wright said Thursday that conversations with Central American leaders in the past week have led him to hope there may be a cease-fire in the region even before the Nov. 7 deadline established in a five-nation peace plan.

He also said there is broad agreement in the House to go along with a plan to continue "humanitarian" aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels for at least 40 days past the Oct. 1 expiration date of the current aid allocation.

"There are powerful individuals and forces in Central America who are trying to work out a modus for putting a cease-fire into effect even before Nov. 7," Wright, D-Texas, told a reporter.

"I find on all sides in Central America a deep desire for peace and reconciliation," he said, adding that peace is achievable so long as the process enables "all parties to preserve their dignity."

Wright declined to identify the two leaders of Central American countries with whom he had spoken in recent days, saying he did not want to jeopardize their efforts to achieve an early cease-fire. And he said he did not know how likely they are to be successful.

"I'm going to be content and joyous if it happens by Nov. 7th, or even Nov. 8th," he said.

He said he expected most Democrats to support his deal with House Republican Leader Robert Michel of Illinois to provide some $3.5 million to buy food, uniforms and medical supplies for the Contras through Nov. 10, a rate he said was in line with the current aid formula.

But Michel acknowledged that both he and Wright were meeting resistance to the deal, from Republicans who want a higher figure and Democrats who want less. And it remained to be seen how the provision would be greeted in the Senate, where leaders were not closely involved in putting together the agreement.

House Democratic leaders said they went along with Michel's proposal — after cutting it from the $8 million originally sought and limiting it to humanitarian aid — in part to avoid possible criticism that they had cut off food and medicine to the rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

The money was to be folded into a bill approved Thursday by the House Appropriations Committee. The measure, designed to keep the government running while Congress works on appropriation bills for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, is expected to reach the House floor next Wednesday.

The aid money will be added when the measure goes to the Rules Committee early next week, to avoid a public debate over the issue on the House floor.

Looking for an apartment?
Check Collegian Classifieds

Manhattan Milling Co.

- K-31 Fescue $26.50/50 lbs.
- Fertilizers
- 13-13-13 $8.50 lbs.
- 34-0-0 $6.50 lbs.
- Weed & Seed $8.60/20 lbs & $12.50/40 lbs
- Softened Salt $2.00/50 lbs

Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES
MOVIE INFORMATION 538-1251
IN JUNCTION CITY CALL 762-4084

CAMPUS
HEART OF AGGIEVILLE
Daily at 7 and 9:15 p.m.
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2:30 and 4:45

STAKEOUT

WESTLOOP CINEMA 6
Westloop Center

HAMBURGER HILL RATED R
TODAY AT 4:30-7:00-9:30
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:00

Daily at 4:30-7:30
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2:00

House II: The 2nd Story PG-13
Daily at 4:40-7:10-9:20 p.m.
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2:10

Daily at 4:40-7:10-9:20
Mat. Sat. & Sun. 2:10

PICKUP ARTIST RATED PG
TODAY AT 4:45 - 7:20 - 9:25
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:20

DIRTY DANCING RATED PG-13
TODAY AT 4:45 - 7:20 - 9:25
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:20

HUNAM Restaurant
1304 Westloop 539-8888
(10 % off with KSU ID)

SETH CHILDS CINEMAS
Seth Childs At Farm Bureau Rd.

Times Good Starting Friday

Principal (R)
Daily 7:10, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:10, 4:40

Fatal Attraction (R)
Daily 7:00, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:00, 4:40

Hell Raiser (R)
Daily 7:20, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:15, 4:45

The Big Easy (R)
Daily 7:05, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:20, 4:30

No Way Out (R)
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 1:50, 4:15

Can't Buy Me Love (PG-13)
Daily 7:20, 9:20
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:00, 4:35

MOVIE INFORMATION
776-9886 or 762-4094

Tonight
Prime Rib
& Seafood Buffet
All you can eat $11.95
5:30-10 p.m.

Live Entertainment
10 p.m.-2 a.m.
"Second Wind"

University Club
Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Saturday:

Breakfast Buffet
8-10 a.m.
only $2.99

75¢ Wildcattwilly Shots
Live entertainment
10 p.m.-2 a.m.
"Second Wind"

BIG RED 1 SALE DAY
Save 20%
on Selected Merchandise

Sale Good Saturday September 19 only

THE Palace
Cards & Gifts

704 N. Manhattan Ave. • In Aggieville • 539-7654
Mon-Thurs. 8:30-8:30 • Fri-Sat. 8:30-5:30 • Sun. 12:00-5:00

CHILE RELLENOS

In English a Chile Relleno means a "stuffed pepper." Ours is a mild Anaheim pepper stuffed with cheese, breaded, & then deep-fried. We then smother it in chili sauce & melt Cheddar cheese on top. Mmmmm! A lettuce salad and a side of rice, sour cream, & salsa finish the meal. This is a truly special taste treat—only at PINATA!

1219 Blumont
(913) 539-3166

Open Daily
11 a.m.

Curious about law school?

Pre-law Club presents
Washburn University
School of Law

Professor Michael Barbara
and KSU graduates
in Law School

Monday - 7 p.m.
K-State Union
Room 207

B'nai B'rith Hillel
at K-State would like to invite you to Shabbat Services

Tuesdays 7:00 p.m.
Manhattan
Jewish Congregation
17th & Anderson

Oneg (Food) to follow
For rides
call Matt 532-6096
or Chuck 532-4175

DON'T FORGET
For your added convenience
LAFENE HEALTH CENTER
is expanding their service hours
Effective Monday, Sept. 14
New Clinic Hours—8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

•limited staffing over noon hour•

EntertainmentFriday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, September 18, 1987 ■ Page 7

State Fair

Fair anniversary highlights 75 years of tradition

Variety of exhibits, entertainment draws crowds

Story by Lareina Waldorf
Photos by
Greg Vogel

"Since the State Fair's beginning, no other event has so accurately reflected the rich traditions and diverse cultures which make up this unique blend of people and land we know as Kansas," Gov. Mike Hayden said in an official welcome to the 1987 Kansas State Fair, which runs Sept. 11-20 in Hutchinson.

Celebrating its 75th Anniversary the "Great Kansas Get Together" provides something for everyone. It offers a wide variety of top-name entertainment, and quality exhibits and demonstrations, ranging from an opening-day evening concert by the rock group Survivor, to numerous live animal shows and agricultural and commercial products promotion booths. The backdrop is the ever-present carnival complete with rides and sideshows.

According to State Secretary of Agriculture Sam Brownback, first-weekend paid attendance was up substantially from previous years, with a total of 103,015 passing through the gates.

John Riley, assistant director of resident instruction at K-State, said he believes a record number of first-weekend fair-goers passed through the "Pride of Kansas" building where he assisted with the College of Agriculture booth.

"For a number of years, K-State's College of Agriculture has displayed a booth in the "Pride of Kansas" building at the State Fair," Riley said.

"Having the booth positioned in this excellent location on the fairgrounds has provided an excellent opportunity for our agriculture students, faculty and extension personnel who operate the booth to promote the many positive aspects of K-State and the College of Agriculture," he said.

"For example," Riley said, "by the booth being placed in such a prime location at the Fair, we (those of us operating the booth) can act as a public service/public relations liaison for K-State and the College of Agriculture by meeting and visiting with prospective students and communicating with parents and alumni."

He said the booth at the State Fair requires a tremendous amount of planning and commitment, but when positive comments are received and the number of students enrolled at K-State and in the College of Agriculture increases "then it proves to be extremely worthwhile."

Melanie Mainquist, national Future Farmers of America officer candidate and K-State animal sciences and industry student, assisted with the judging of swine herdsman-ship during the first-weekend State Fair FFA Livestock Show.

LEFT: Fair patrons walk the midway during the afternoon. Paid attendance has been substantially up this year with a total of 103,015 passing through the gates during the opening weekend. Each year the fair draws large crowds for its grandstand entertainment and exhibits. ABOVE: Dan Moser, freshman in animal science and industry, brushes a polled hereford.

Bob Hope performance features local musician

By Becky Howard
Arts and Entertainment Editor

K-State had a representative in the grandstand entertainment at the state fair, as William Harshbarger, instructor in music, played clarinet, saxophone and flute in Bob Hope's band.

Harshbarger, also an elementary band instructor in the Manhattan schools, was part of a full orchestra made up of "freelance" musicians who were assembled for last Sunday's performance.

"I'm on a call list of musicians who are hired for these kinds of shows," Harshbarger said. "I've done quite a few shows — it's a lot of fun."

Harshbarger has played shows starring Johnny Carson and Red Skelton. He also played at a performance of the Ice Capades. He said he freelances at as many shows in the area as his time allows.

Bob Hope entertains the crowd Sunday evening at the fair.

"I have to strike a balance between my teaching and my playing. I like to do both, but sometimes when I get called to do a show, I have to say no because I can't take time away from my teaching," he said.

Harshbarger, who played with Bob Hope eight years earlier in Omaha, Neb., said that Hope, 84, didn't look any older than when he met him previously.

"He's a very nice man. I didn't get to spend as much time with him this time as I did in Omaha. He gave me a golfing lesson then," Harshbarger said.

The assembled band for the fair practiced about 3½ hours on Sunday before the performance. Harshbarger said it takes a while to get adjusted to playing with different people and playing new music.

"You hope you don't make too many mistakes, but you always do," he said.

William Harshbarger, center, K-State instructor in music, plays in the band at the Bob Hope performance. This is the second time Harshbarger has played with Hope; the first was eight years ago.

Spotlight

Entertainment for the week ending Friday, Sept. 25.

EVENTS

Chicago, 8 p.m., Friday, Sept. 18, ExpoCentre's Landon Arena, Topeka.

FILMS

K-State Union

"Hoosiers," 7 and 9:30, Friday,

Sept. 18 and Saturday, Sept. 19, Union Forum Hall.

"Down by Law," 7:30, Wednesday, Sept. 23, Union Forum Hall; 3:30, Thursday, Sept. 24, Union Little Theatre; 7:30, Thursday, Sept. 24, Union Forum Hall.

Seth Childs Cinemas

"The Principal," (R), daily at 7:10 and 9:40; Saturday and Sunday, 2:10 and 4:40.

"Fatal Attraction," (R), daily at 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday, 2 and 4:40.

"Hell Raiser," (R), daily at 7:20 and 9:40; Saturday and Sunday, 2:15 and 4:45.

"The Big Easy," (R), Daily 7:05 and 9:35; Saturday and Sunday, 2:20 and 4:30.

"Can't Buy Me Love," (PG-13), daily at 7:20 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday, 2 and 4:35.

"No Way Out," (R), daily at 7:10 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday, 1:50 and 4:15.

Commonwealth Theatres

Campus

"Stakeout," (R), daily at 7 and 9:15; Saturday and Sunday, 2:30 and 4:45.

Westloop Cinema 6

"Dirty Dancing," (PG-13), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday, 2:20.

"Fourth Protocol," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday, 2.

"House II: The 2nd Story,"

(PG-13), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday, 2:10.

"The Fat Boys are...Disorderlies," (PG), daily at 4:40, 7:10 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday, 2:10.

"Hamburger Hill," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday, 2.

"Pickup Artist," (PG), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday, 2:20.

Kansas taxpayers see only a portion of windfall return

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Gov. Mike Hayden acknowledged Thursday he may not be able to achieve his goal of returning all of an income tax windfall to taxpayers, but said he will recommend that all taxpayers benefit from whatever can be returned.

"The opportunity to return all of the windfall is probably very remote in the coming fiscal year," Hayden told a news conference in his Capitol office. "I have said I prefer to give back part or all of the windfall, and I (still) hope I'll be in position to return all or part of the windfall."

Kansas will collect an estimated $120 million additional income tax revenue in the current tax year and $145 million in tax year 1988 as a result of the 1986 federal tax reform laws.

The state realizes the extra revenue because taxpayers had their federal tax liability reduced under the 1986 changes. By not paying so much federal tax, they have less to deduct from their taxable state income, and that increases their Kansas tax liability.

It was Hayden's first news conference since Sept. 5, when a special legislative session he called to consider a highway improvement initiative collapsed with nothing accomplished.

Questions about what Hayden plans to do with the income tax windfall and his feelings nearly two weeks later about the special session's failure dominated the news conference, after Hayden had opened his meeting with reporters by announcing appointment of a new state travel and tourism commission.

It was evident Hayden's disappointment over the special session had not dissipated. He still blamed House Democrats for the failure, but said the six-day session had one positive effect: it provided legislators more information about the state's highway problems than they had ever known previously.

State fiscal experts have projected Hayden may have as little as $7 million in new money from tax revenues to build into the Fiscal Year 1989 budget he will recommend to the 1988 Legislature in January, unless the state keeps a large portion of the income tax windfall.

And, the governor is under pressure to pump in more money for education, social programs and the state's effort to land the federal superconducting super collider scientific project.

Hayden said the Tax Reform Task Force he appointed last spring is studying the issue of state tax reform and will recommend to him later this fall how much of the windfall can be returned to taxpayers.

"Obviously, we're not going to run down the (state general fund) balances substantially, and obviously we've got programs to fund," Hayden told reporters.

He also said he would like to see a $160 million general fund balance at the end of FY 1989. Projections show that to accomplish that, the state either has to keep all the windfall or limit spending drastically.

"If we're able to accomplish tax reform, you'll probably see some reform for all levels of taxpayers," Hayden said of his preliminary thinking on how to give back the windfall — if he can.

The governor said options for helping low and medium income taxpayers include putting more money into programs that benefit low-income people and eliminating state income taxes for more of those in the lower brackets.

For upper income bracket taxpayers, Hayden said, the option is to lower the tax rate.

Hayden called the special session, which ran from Aug. 31 through Sept. 5, "a success in the light that it was the first step in adoption of a comprehensive program."

Construction to near completion

Collegian/Chris Assaf

Rex Fowles, worker for Four Seasons Greenhouse Design and Remodeling Center, rivets in a window for a convenience store in the new shopping center at the corner of 14th Street and Anderson Avenue. The center is expected to be completed in mid October.

New complex to offer variety of services

By The Collegian Staff

Construction of the complex at 14th Street and Anderson Avenue is expected to be finished and one of the shops opened in mid-October, said Bill Varney, treasurer of Varney's Inc.

"We will have a variety of shops and stores in the structure," he said. The center will be anchored by a Kwik-Shop and a Burger King.

"The Kwik-Shop will be the first in Manhattan," Varney said. "It's parent company is Dillons, so it will have a few things other quick shops don't have."

Those features include an eating area that will give patrons the alternative of staying in the store to eat.

"In most of the quick shops you just rush in and run right back out, we want to provide an alternative," Varney said.

Although no other leases are signed for the complex, Varney expects a Duds 'n Suds, TJ Cinnamons, Little Apple Print and Copy Center, floral shop, deli shop and ice cream shop to fill the six of the seven other shops. He is not yet sure what business will fill the remaining shop.

Duds 'n Suds will offer a contemporary way of doing laundry, said Varney.

"The center of it will be more of a lounge area with a large TV screen and video games," he said. "The machines will line the walls and there will be a snack bar that serves soft drinks and beer."

"But it's not going to become a real hangout. You're going to have to be doing your laundry to drink," Varney said. "Duds 'n Suds is a unique laundry. It's the first of its kind in this area."

"We are designing the complex to be a part of Aggieville," said Varney. "We're building it out of brick so that it will last 75 to 100 years and not be a temporary structure."

Construction began at the beginning of August and Varney said that he expects the majority of shops to open in November or December.

The $1.4 million structure is owned by United Properties, a partnership of Varney's Inc. and Jon Levin, Manhattan.

Heart Attack.
Fight it with a
Memorial gift to the American
Heart Association.

THE AMERICAN HEART
ASSOCIATION
MEMORIAL PROGRAM

American Heart
Association

Brother's
In Aggieville

TONITE
IN/OUT

Don't miss em! Come on down!
Even though it's the weekend;
our shots are still $1.00.

JOHNSON RETAIL LIQUOR
3256 Kimball 776-7111

- Cold kegs in stock
  - Chilled beer, wine and wine coolers
  - Large selection of spirits
- Compare our prices & SAVE
- Close to KSU football stadium.
Call for everyday low prices.

Falsetto's
PIZZA
539-3830

Falsetto's Pizza Price Buster!
The Best For Less
Two Pizzas
$5.99

MENU
Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
	TWO 10"	10" 8 1/4"	TWO 14"
Cheese .....	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 Item .....	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 Items .....	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 Items .....	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 Items .....	9.79	12.99	14.59
Deluxe .....	9.79	12.99	14.59
Veggie .....	9.79	12.99	14.59
Supreme .....	10.74	14.24	15.99
Each Additional Item .....	.95	1.25	1.40

1127 Moro - In Aggieville

We're outstanding in our field

and you're invited to join us during

Fall Field Days

September 19 & 20, October 17 & 18
8-6 Saturdays, 10-4 Sundays

Fall is the ideal time to plant and our plant professionals will gladly help you choose your favorite shade and ornamental trees from our Growing Field. Bring the entire family to Fall Field Days and discover why Fall is for Planting!

Field located 7 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24 then 2 mi. north on the Flush Rd.

Horticultural Services
• Garden Center •

Mon.-Sat. 8-6 Friday 8:00-7:30 Sun 10-4
776-5764

2 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24

TGIF
Free Hors d'oeuvres 5 p.m.
Sat.
Open 1 p.m.
Pre-game Sandwich Bar
3-6 p.m.
Support The Cats
this Saturday
vs. Army
Every Mon. & Tues at 9 p.m.
Next Week
Billy Jaye
along with Brian Burgess
539-9727 531 N. Manhattan 539-4321

BUSHWACKERS
THE BUSHWACKERS

Medical care for children costly

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — More than half the nation's intensive care units for children waste millions of dollars each year by admitting patients who don't need to be there, a study suggests.

One author of the study suggests the problem has been aggravated by an increase in malpractice lawsuits.

The study, which appeared in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association, said many doctors send children to the units not because they are in a life-threatening situation but because of the unit's extra nursing care.

"We didn't want to imply that physicians are intentionally entering patients into the units who don't need that level of care," said Dr. Murray Pollack, one of 11 authors who reported on the study.

But, he said, extra nursing care can be delivered in most circumstances in a different setting at a lower cost.

Pollack said malpractice could be to blame.

"We're taught from medical school and throughout our training that to make a mistake is disastrous ... and one of the worst errors is not to admit someone to intensive care who needs intensive care," he said.

Pollack also noted that "we have not developed — not for pediatric hospitals anyway — an intermediate level of care between routine care and intensive care."

He and his colleagues compared efficiency levels at eight pediatric intensive-care units around the country and found that half of them operated at a "reasonable" efficiency level of 80 percent.

Efficiency levels were determined by measuring the number of days each bed in the unit was occupied by a patient in need of the unique services or equipment available only in intensive-care units.

These resources, designed for use in life-threatening situations, range from specially trained nurses to breathing and dialysis machines.

Some patients were needlessly admitted to the units and others were kept there too long, the study said.

Efficiency levels at the eight units, all in university or university-affiliated hospitals, ranged from a high of 89 percent to a low of 55 percent, Pollack said. "That's simply too wide a range to believe that the inefficient units couldn't be improved."

He said the performance levels of regular child intensive units was probably slightly below the university standards.

Pollack estimated there are 2,500 beds in the 400 to 500 pediatric intensive-care units operating in the United States.

He said researchers made no attempt to put an exact dollar value on the inefficiencies in the pediatric units.

Adult intensive-care units, with about 30 times the number of beds as pediatric units, cost the nation about 1 percent of the gross national product each year, or about $4 billion in 1986, he said.

"While the ailments of children and adults are different, what appears to be the same is physician behavior," he said.

Pollack said that while he did not know what caused such an inefficient use of medical resources, he believes that the large numbers of suits being brought against doctors will ensure that it continues.

Shoveling sand

Alan Koehn, junior in milling science and management and a pledge of the Delta Upsilon fraternity, spreads sand Thursday afternoon on the DU basketball court in preparation for the Slab Party held every fall by the DU's.

Staff/Jim Dietz

K-State employee makes suggestion, wins 'savings' award

By Chuck Horner
Collegian Reporter

Saving Kansas taxpayers money is the goal of the Employees Suggestions Awards Program. Richard Colson, K-State housing maintenance department employee, is doing his part to promote this goal.

Colson recently received $130 for a suggestion he submitted resulting in a $1,300 savings for the University, said Helen Cooper, interim coordinator of the Faculty/Staff Suggestion Committee.

"I suggested we utilize a hydraulic temperature control recorder we had on hand, rather than use a more expensive electronic unit, to replace a faulty unit in a Pittman Hall food storage freezer," Colson said. "It is important we all try to conserve and make do with what we have."

Colson, who has 25 years experience in appliance, refrigeration and air conditioning repair, said the temperature control recorder is required by state law and maintains a permanent record of temperatures inside the freezer.

"The records have to be kept on file for years and are subject to inspection by state inspectors," he said.

Colson said his responsibilities in maintenance include the upkeep of all refrigeration and air conditioning equipment for Jardine Terrace, Derby Complex, Derby Food Center and numerous other areas. His duties encompass taking care of the smallest juice chiller in Derby to a walk-in freezer, larger than the playing surface in Ahearn Field House, in Pittman.

The suggestions award program was initiated in 1981 by former Gov. John Carlin to encourage and stimulate cost-savings suggestions by means of monetary or honorary awards, Cooper said.

He said the program provides for monetary awards up to 10 percent of the first-year's realized savings, or other intangible benefits, such as recognition or certificates, Cooper said. Kansas statutes also contain a provision awarding a sum equal to 10 percent of the amount awarded to the employees to be awarded to their immediate supervisor, Cooper added.

The monetary awards are normally provided by the institution to which the suggestion applies. However, there is a provision making it possible for the state to provide the funds when the suggestion has a broad application, he said.

When the statute was passed by the Kansas Legislature in 1981, the maximum monetary award was $5,000, Cooper said. A 1986 revision in the statute raised the maximum award to $10,000.

Colson said the suggestion program is a good incentive. He thinks his co-workers are now more sensitive in looking for other cost-saving suggestions.

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

Contract to benefit auto workers

By The Associated Press

DEARBORN, Mich. — Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers agreed Thursday on a precedent-setting contract guaranteeing the jobs of most of Ford's 104,000 UAW workers in return for the support of union leaders for more flexible work rules.

The contract, which must be approved by union members, also would boost wages, pensions and other benefits.

Under the tentative settlement, Ford would set guaranteed job numbers for plants and could lay off workers on a temporary basis only if an economic downturn combined with a slump in Ford sales.

The job protection package would be the first of its kind in the U.S. auto industry. Previous contracts pro-TECTED incomes rather than their jobs.

"We have a good agreement. Truly, we broke a lot of new ground on job security. The agreement fully meets the needs of Ford workers and UAW workers elsewhere," said Stephen Yokich, a UAW vice president who announced the settlement in the absence of UAW President Owen Bieber, who was hospitalized for a stomach ailment. Bieber was released from the hospital later Thursday afternoon.

The union next turns its attention to General Motors Corp., whose contract was extended Aug. 31 when the union decided it would settle with Ford first. Analysts have said they expect the UAW to meet stiffer resistance from GM over job security.

The Ford agreement "marks a giant strike forward in our ongoing effort to secure the jobs of our members while making stable employment levels a routine part of doing business in this country," Yokich and Bieber said in a statement.

The statement said the contract would "lock in current levels at all units in all locations and will prevent layoffs for virtually any reason except carefully defined volume reductions linked to market conditions."

Peter Pestillo, the Ford vice president who oversaw company negotiations, said "the agreement proves we can work together."

Job security was the union's top demand, while Ford sought to retain flexibility to make business decisions and increase the efficiency and quality of production.

Under the contract, the national union leadership would be required to urge its locals to accept plant-level contracts reducing the number of job classifications and loosening work rules. Job classifications limit the types of jobs a worker can do, while work rules regulate how and when specific tasks are done.

The agreement, reached 2½ days after Bieber granted Ford an extension of its contract beyond its expiration at 11:59 p.m. Monday, must be approved by the union's 23-member executive board and its 200-worker Ford bargaining council and then ratified by the rank-and-file members. Yokich said voting would begin within 10 days.

The contract would boost base wages by 3 percent in the first year of the contract and pay 3 percent lump-sum bonuses in the second and third years. Unlike percentage increases, lump-sum payments are one-time increases that are not included in base wage levels.

TAKE A CLASSY DATE
TO A CLASSY PLACE
PUTT PUTT GOLF COURSE

KRYSTALLOS
"BEAUTIFUL OBJECTS
FROM THE EARTH"

Crystal Balls, Amethyst
Crystals, Stone Beads & Jewelry

Highway 24 East
(by the L.W. Wilson Shop)
Thurs.-Sun 10:30-6
539-0360

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM
EXPRESS
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

TGIF

Featuring

$1 Wine &
Beer draws

$2.50 Pitchers
FREE Burgers

& Hors D'oeuvres
plus 15¢ Shrimp

all you can eat
4-7 p.m.
at

THE COTTON CLUB

ATTENTION

Make Reservations for Organization Group Pictures
for the Royal Purple

NOW

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

It's about love...It's about life...It's...
"About last night.."

HBO Manhattan Cable TV
610 Humboldt 776- 9239

Ranch SALOON
6TH ANNIVERSARY PARTY
SEPTEMBER 23-26

WED 23 8:00 PM THE KTPK SMOKY HILL RIVER BAND
9:00 PM DOLLY PARTON LOOK ALIKE CONTEST
1ST PRIZE: $100 2ND PRIZE: RANCH JACKET

THURS 24 8:00 PM THE KTPK SMOKY HILL RIVER BAND
9:00 PM DWIGHT YAKAM LOOK ALIKE CONTEST
1ST PRIZE: $100 2ND PRIZE: RANCH JACKET

FRI 25 9:00 PM THE CATFISH CHARLIE BAND
SAT 26 PLUS LOTS OF DRAWINGS AND GIVEAWAYS
RANCH JACKETS, T-SHIRTS & THE LIKE

$1 for members $2 for guests
A Class B Private Club
3 miles East of Manhattan on Highway 24

Hair Unlimited

Dana Rita Jolyn

Welcomes ... Dana, Rita and Jolyn to their staff of Hair Care Professionals. Formerly of Joyce's Hair Tamers. They welcome all previous and new clients to stop by.

For appointment call 537-4528. 1330 Westloop

More Houseplants!

Come and see our newest arrivals! Norfolk Pines, all kinds of cycads, Aralias, more Dallas Ferns, and miniature African Violets.

Great Prices!

4ft. Weeping Fig
Dracaena Marginata
Split Leaf Philodendron
Hawaiian Schefflera
Areca & Bamboo Palms
HUGE Rubber Tree
Corn Plant (Cane)
10" Potted Floor Plants
$14.99
Wicker Assorted designer baskets for plants
Clay Pots
6" Philodendron Hanging Basket... $3.99 FREE SHIPPING!
4" Potted Tabletop Plants... $1.69 ... when you buy your pot,
10" Potted Boston Fern Baskets... $11.99 plants & soil here.

Eastside & Westside Markets
East of downtown Manhattan on Hwy 24 West Hwy 18 by Holidome

NEW EDITION-FINEST FILM COLLECTION EVER ASSEMBLED

THE BEST OF

STAR TREK

PLUS ALL THE BLOOPERS AND MORE

THE MAKING OF STAR TREK IV "THE VOYAGE HOME".
ALL 3 OUTRAGEOUS BLOOPER REELS, TV AND MOVIE TRAILERS
CLIPS OF THE STARS IN CLASSIC ROLES BEFORE STAR TREK
NEVER RELEASED PILOT FOOTAGE, GAG REELS, AND MORE!

Not Available on Video Tape, Never Shown on TV or Cable

Kansas State Union Little Theatre

7 p.m. & 9 p.m. Sat., Sept. 19

6 p.m. & 8 p.m. Sun., Sept. 20

sponsored by Sigma Phi Epsilon

Limited Good Seating Come Early No Children Please Admission $4 with KSU I.D., $5 all others

'Much ado about nothing,' Biden says

Presidential hopeful admits to plagiarism

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sen. Joseph Biden admitted Thursday that he committed plagiarism in law school 23 years ago but dismissed the furor over his failure to attribute the words of others in his speeches as "much ado about nothing."

At a Capitol Hill news conference, the Delaware Democrat and presidential hopeful released law school records that disclosed his plagiarism at Syracuse University in 1965 and said, "I did not intentionally move to mislead anybody."

"I did something very stupid 23 years ago," Biden said. "Little did I know I would be standing before the whole world acknowledging the fact

I did not know how to write a legal memorandum and the mistake is costing me as much as it is costing me."

Biden also admitted a series of errors in not attributing quotes correctly in several campaign speeches this year. But Biden said fellow presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson called to say he also uses phrases Biden has been accused of lifting.

Saying all candidates use "certain generic quotes" from past leaders, he charged that the controversy is meaningless.

"I am being honest. ... The American people will judge. I think it's much ado about nothing," said Biden.

"In the marketplace of ideas in the political realm, the notion that for every thought or idea you have to go back and find and attribute to someone is frankly ludicrous."

He rejected the notion that his admission of errors in speeches suggested he cannot control himself.

"I feel very capable of using my mouth in sync with my mind," he said.

And Biden declared he will fight on for the Democratic nomination.

"I want to tell them all. I'm in this race to stay. I'm in this race to win. And here I come," he said.

Biden repeatedly suggested that the sources of the stories about his speeches and law school record came from his opponents, although he said he could not identify any one campaign, Republican or Democratic, as the source.

"It is no coincidence," Biden said, that these allegations came to light just as he began to chair the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on the nomination of Judge Robert Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court.

But he said "I don't think it will undermine" his leadership during the hearings.

That stand was supported by members of the committee.

"He is absolutely, totally credible."

"He is a very strong, honest man," Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz. "I hope he doesn't recuse himself."

"Joe has been doing an outstanding job in these hearings, and doing so under great pressure," said Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., another presidential candidate. "I have complete confidence in Joe Biden's integrity and ability."

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., who is considering a presidential bid, said the flap could hurt Biden's campaign. "Anything can be fatal in this day and age," she said.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., added, "I think it's always a good idea to attribute quotes, but I don't think he deserves capital punishment for running a red light."

The furor surrounding Biden marks the second time in the 1988 Democratic presidential campaign that questions have been raised about the character and integrity of a candidate. Former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart was driven from the race in May after a controversy over his relationship with a Miami model and his explanations of it.

At the packed news conference, Biden said disclosing the plagiarism incident in 1965 was "the tough part."

Biden detailed how he lifted five pages from a law review article for a brief he wrote in a legal methods class. He did not quote or footnote the material, an omission noted by a classmate who critiqued his paper.

"But that I did not intentionally move to mislead anybody. I didn't. I was mistaken, but I was not in any way malevolent," Biden insisted.

When he was confronted by the law school dean, Biden admitted his actions and asked for a chance to explain them to the faculty. He wrote a two-page letter on his mistake and asked the faculty for a chance to recoup.

In his letter written in 1965, Biden said his plagiarism was the result of "my mistaken notion" of what a legal brief was supposed to be.

After consideration, Biden was given an F in the course and the chance to retake it the next year.

Pope asks growers to 'respect' workers

By The Associated Press

MONTEREY, Calif. — Pope John Paul II on Thursday asked growers to "respect the just claims" of their farm workers, thousands of whom took a day off work without pay to hear him celebrate Mass under a bright sun on a dusty racetrack.

"At every level of the agricultural process, the dignity, rights and well-being of people must be the central issue," the pope told an estimated 72,000 people gathered at Laguna Seca Raceway.

Later, the pope was to fly to San Francisco and hold an emotionally charged meeting with AIDS patients at Mission Dolores. Among the 62 victims were a 5-year-old boy, a priest, former drug abusers, and gay men unrepentant about their homosexuality.

"They all wanted the blessing of the pope before they die. There was no feeling that this was a time for dissent, for any sign of anger," said Sheila Madden, a counselor at the nearby Most Holy Redeemer Church and coordinator of the meeting.

In remarks prepared for that meeting, the pope told the patients that God loves them "with an unconditional and everlasting love."

Although the church condemns homosexuality, the pope alluded to its promise of forgiveness for homosexuals.

"The greatest proof of God's love is shown in the act that he loves us ... with our weaknesses and our needs," the pope said.

"Saint Paul explains that Christ came to forgive sin and that his love is greater than any sin, stronger than all my personal sins or those of anyone else," he added.

"God loves you all without distinction, without limit," the pope told his audience at Mission Dolores Basilica, which included the AIDS victims and their families. "... He loves those of you who are sick, those who are suffering from AIDS and from AIDS-related complex. He loves the relatives and friends of the sick and those who care for them. He loves us all with an unconditional and everlasting love."

In his Mass at the automobile and motorcycle racetrack set in rolling hills, the pope made reference to the nation's farm crisis which has introduced "thousands of American farmers ... to poverty and indebtedness."

"Many have lost their homes and their way of life," he told the audience, drawn from the lush growing fields of the Monterey Peninsula.

The altar, in the shape of a cross, was on an island in a pond in the middle of the 1.9 mile track and the celebrants were seated on the ground on three hills along one side.

Many who came to hear John Paul were Hispanic farm workers whose employees gave them the day off without pay. The diocese of Monterey contains 121 farmworker camps, as well as seven of California's 21 early missions.

Later the pope visited the Carmel Mission where the 18th century Franciscan missionary Junipero Serra, a candidate for sainthood, is buried. The visit sparked a peaceful protest from a group of American Indians who say that Indians were brutalized under the Catholic missionary system.

"I appeal to landowners, growers and others in positions of power to respect the just claims of their brothers and sisters who work the land," the pope said. "These claims include the right to share in decisions concerning their services and the right to free association with a view to social, cultural and economic advancement."

John Paul referred to the new immigration law that enables illegal immigrants to become citizens.

"Many of these people have worked here with the same dream that your ancestors had when they first came," he said. "I ask you to welcome these new citizens into your society and to respect the human dignity of every man, woman and child."

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

Report finds need for drug education

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The State Board of Regents and the universities in its system need to improve their efforts to educate students about the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse, according to a report released Thursday.

The report, developed by a five-member task force Gov. Mike Hayden appointed, said the state universities in the regents system made information available, but there's no guarantee it actually reaches students, the report said.

However, the report did not recommend any changes in current drug testing and educational programs for athletes, saying those programs "appear to be working."

"Many questions remain to be answered as to the constitutionality of the mandatory drug-screening of intercollegiate athletes," the report said.

The regents formally received and reviewed the report Thursday, and it is designed to give them guidance in developing policies to fight drug and alcohol abuse on the campuses of the six state universities and Kansas Technical Institute in Salina.

To improve drug and alcohol abuse education programs on regents campuses, the report makes recommendations that include:

—Creating a "regents pamphlet" of information and mailing it to the home addresses of all current students and to new students annually.

—Establishing an advisory committee on each campus to evaluate university policy related to drugs and alcohol.

—Financing a research program to develop innovative drug education programs.

—Developing an educational video on substance abuse.

The task force recommended spending $32,500 annually on drug education programs at regents institutions and $50,000 overall.

In dealing with mandatory testing of athletes, the report noted each regents institution currently has in place a drug education program for student athletes.

The report also said the University of Kansas, Kansas State University, Wichita State University and Pittsburg University already have random drug testing programs in place and that Fort Hays State University is in the process of developing such a program.

HELP WANTED

Creative individual to help set up and run a custom shop for this Halloween. Could possibly run entire school year.
•Set your own schedule •Good pay

Apply in person at the SOUND SHOP
1204 Moro

4" & 6" Sandwiches

Ask about our 10% Discounts

	HALF	WHOLE
Sandwiches 1-12, 15, 16	$2.25	$3.50
Kitchen Sink	2.75	4.75
Roast Beef	2.50	4.00

211 S. Seth Childs, Manhattan, Ks. 66502
537-2411
Call Ahead-We'll have it ready

ECKANKAR

If you're interested in:

- Having direct experiences with spirit
- Learning how to awaken you Divine Self - Soul
- Learning how to Soul Travel

Campout & Introductory Talks

—Begins Sat., Sept. 19 1-2 p.m.
Student Union, Rm. 208

—Continues thru Sun. a.m. at River Pond Campground, Tuttle Creek State Park

All Talks are Free. The Public is Welcome.
Sponsored by The Eckankar Campus Society

MAYER RETAIL LIQUOR

We Want To Be YOUR Liquor Store

Dillon says, "Come see me for your game day needs."

- ★Cold kegs always stocked
- ★Chilled beer, wine & wine collers
- ★Large selection of spirits

521 N. 12th 539-5269
1 block S. of Kite's - next to Southern Sun

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Delta Delta Delta, Delta Sigma Phi, Off Campus

Sept. 21: Delta Sigma Phi, Delta Tau Delta, Delta Upsilon, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

COME TO THE MOVIES
TONIGHT
7:30 p.m.
1021 Denison

"The Mission"

Popcorn & discussion to follow! Hope to see you there!

Another program of Ecumenical Christian Ministries

The Campus Ministry of:
The Church of Brethren, The United Church of Christ,
The Presbyterian Church (USA), The United Methodist Church

Sponsored by ECUMENICAL
CHRISTIAN
MINISTRIES

Jewish New Year Rosh Hashanah High Holiday Services

Wednesday Evening
Sept. 23
8 p.m.
Thursday Morning
Sept. 24
10 a.m.

at
Manhattan Jewish Congregation
1509 Wreath Ave.

Students who wish to celebrate with a local Jewish family may call
Matt — 532-6096
Dave — 539-6177 (evenings)

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, September 18, 1987 ■ Page 11

Fullback, Maurice Henry (28), skirts through defensive players during the Wildcat's practice at KSU Stadium Tuesday afternoon. This Saturday's game against Army will mark the return of Henry to full strength for the first time in 1½ years.

Staff/Gary Lytle

day's game against Army will mark the return of Henry to full strength for the first time in 1½ years.

'Cats ready for maneuvers

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

One could say K-State's football team is having a feast, since the Wildcats will dine on a steady diet of wishbone offenses this season.

K-State will play Army Saturday in the first of four encounters against wishbone teams. Game time is 6:30 p.m. at KSU Stadium.

Preparing to play wishbone teams — Oklahoma, Nebraska and Colorado are the other three — has been one of K-State's objectives since practices started in August, Coach Stan Parrish said.

"There's been a lot of off-season preparation," Parrish said. "Everybody has to carry out their assignment on defense every play against the wishbone because there's so many component parts. I think seeing it in practice...is the only way to learn how to defend it."

Both K-State and Army are coming off disappointing season-opening losses. The Wildcats, 0-1, were downed 26-22 by Division I-AA member Austin Peay State. The Cadets, 0-1, bowed 34-24 to Holy Cross.

But if there is a bright spot to K-State's loss, it's that the 'Cats have had two weeks to regroup and prepare for Army's invasion.

"Sometimes things work out for the best and I think the week off worked out the best for us," Parrish said.

Talk from the practice grounds this week is K-State has had outstanding training sessions. A week of good practices can't hurt. Right, coach?

"It was what I had hoped for. We've practiced with good intensity, good concentration and with some purpose," Parrish said.

"When things go poorly, and you can respond and get back off the deck, a win over Army will only make us stronger the rest of the season because we will have done something a majority of the people don't think we can do."

Army, coached by Jim Young, is 25-21-1 in his four seasons there including trips to the Cherry and Peach Bowls — both wins for the Cadets. But Army stumbled against Holy Cross and trailed 27-3 after the first half thanks to two costly fumbles by the Cadets' special teams.

K-State defensive coordinator Jerry Hartman was at the contest and said Army's play was "very uncharacteristic," Parrish agreed.

"I don't look for that to happen again," he said. "Coach Young has a history of getting things corrected."

Leading Army's wishbone attack is senior Tory Crawford who led all Division I-A quarterbacks in rushing last year with 1,078 yards and rushed for 120 last week. Against Holy Cross, he also completed 13-of-29 attempts for an additional 146 yards through the air.

"Tory Crawford is obviously an All-American candidate," Parrish said. "I think next to (Oklahoma's) Jamelle Holieway, he might be the finest wishbone quarterback there is in the country."

Other Army players to watch for are right halfback Andy Peterson, inside linebacker Ray Griffiths (104 tackles last season) and strong safety Chance Conner.

If Army has a weakness, it's that they're not overly big and physical. For one of the rare times this season, the Wildcats will have a size advantage on both sides of the line.

Changes in K-State's starting lineup include Gary Swim at quarterback who came off the bench in the second half to complete 8 of 15 passes for 148 yards, including three touchdown passes to wide receiver John Williams.

Williams is also a threat, returning the ball on kickoffs when he returned three kickoffs for 116 yards for an average of 38.7 yards against Austin Peay. David Kruger will handle the punting chores.

The game will also mark the return of Maurice Henry, back at full strength for the first time in 1½ years; Todd Cowings, injured in last year's Texas Christian game; and Kent Dean, out with a hernia. Tony Jordan, who injured a thigh against Austin Peay, should be 100 percent by Saturday, Parrish said.

Senior wide receiver Dan Hughes missed Thursday's practice with a quad strain, but should be ready to play Saturday. Sophomore Eric Blades is scheduled to start at that position and share the duties with Hughes and senior Todd Cowings. In the defensive back squad, the same starters are scheduled to return.

Volleyball team looks for road win

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

Road games are an important part of every season. Any coach knows that.

No matter how good a record the team has at home, if they can't do well and win on the road, the team won't go far.

The K-State volleyball team learned a painful lesson last year. The team had a 7-5 home record and a disappointing 5-12 road mark. The Wildcats will get another chance to win a road game today and Saturday at the Oral Roberts Invitational. Last week the team lost all three matches at the Colorado State Invitational.

"We need to win (our matches this weekend)," K-State volleyball coach Scott Nelson said. "One of the things I'd like to do is get our first road win under our belt. We had a pretty lopsided losing road record last year, which is one thing we want to improve on this year."

The Wildcats are coming off a four-game victory Wednesday night over Michigan State University in Ahearn Field House and possess a 4-3 record going into the tournament. The victory was important because K-State battled back after a nine point Michigan State run in the fourth game to win 17-15.

"The match Wednesday night was probably more of a help from a confidence standpoint," Nelson said. "We went out and won our first three matches (of the season) and then at Colorado lost the next three. Even though we lost the third one, 17-15 in the fifth game (against Purdue University), I think it helped our confidence knowing we could compete with the top teams around."

"We're kind of in an upbeat mood right now after the five game loss to Purdue and the win last night. This (tournament) should be a good experience for the team," Nelson added.

K-State appears to be in good shape going into the tournament. Kristi Jacquot, Wildcat captain, is leading the Big Eight Conference in hitting percentage, .333, and is second in digs. Leslie Kull leads the Big Eight in aces and is fifth in digs. Shawnee Call, averaging 4.29 kills per game, is third in the conference. As a team, K-State leads the Big Eight averaging 2.62 aces per game.

Oral Roberts lost to K-State in Ahearn in a four-game match earlier this season, but will have their chance for revenge when they face the Wildcats at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Oral Roberts is 4-3 on the year with four starters returning from last year. The team is led by outside hitter Sheila Johnson and setter Kristen Dorsey.

"We know Oral Roberts is going to be a very tough team," Nelson said. "It's a hard place to play, but having beaten them once already, we'll know what to expect out of them."

"Pretty much, I think, we'll try and do the same things we did in our last match with Oral Roberts — serve the ball very tough and try and make their hitters hit down the line, not crosscourt, and be real attentive in the back row," Nelson said.

K-State will have a chance to extend their 12-0 winning streak against Tulsa at noon on Saturday. Tulsa, with five seniors returning, is led by line blocker Leann Steinhoff and outside hitter Jennifer Mutun.

Netters in action

By The Collegian Staff

The K-State women's tennis team will be taking part in a singles and doubles tournament today and Saturday here at the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area tennis courts.

Teams joining the Wildcats in the tourney will be University of Kansas and Drake University.

Action will begin at 9 a.m. today with two rounds of singles action. Then, at 1:30 p.m., doubles action is slated to get underway. The singles draw will be a 32-player field while the doubles draw will include 16 teams.

Finals in the singles play is tentatively slated to begin at noon Saturday and the finals in doubles action tentatively set for 2 p.m.

Top individuals expected to be in the field are Tracey Treps and Jeanette Jonsson from KU. Both were finalists in last year's Big Eight Conference championships after claiming individual singles titles in 1986.

Festivities planned

By The Collegian Staff

A host of activities is scheduled in conjunction with Fort Riley Day at Saturday's K-State-Army football game.

Activities include a parade along Poyntz Avenue in downtown Manhattan on Saturday beginning at 10:30 a.m. featuring the K-State, Manhattan High and Fort Riley bands. From 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. military equipment from Fort Riley will be on display at City Park and along 14th Avenue.

At 1 p.m. the K-State intramural fields will be the site of flag football and soccer games between K-State and Fort Riley teams.

Pre-game activities at KSU Stadium will begin at 6:10 p.m.

Ruggers to be tested

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The K-State rugby team will be taking to the road this weekend, with the A-side playing at the prestigious Girdlestone Rugby Tournament in Fort Sill, Oklahoma and the B-side taking on Garden City's A-side at Garden City.

The A-side will have their hands full in tournament play, as the finest club side teams from both Texas and Oklahoma will be in attendance. The Dallas Harlequins have been the Texas champs the last three years and the Tulsa club won the Oklahoma championship last year.

"I'd be real pleased if we went in this thing and were able to win two matches. Realistically, I don't think that we can win it, but the experience gained ought to help us over the remainder of our schedule," said Dave Todd, president of the K-State rugby club.

Some of the other teams slated for action in this weekend's tournament include the Fort Sill squad, a squad from Fort Worth, Texas, and the Royal Artillery School squad, which is from Great Britain.

Todd said the two K-State teams in action this week will be mixtures of the entire roster. While most of the A-side will be traveling to Oklahoma, some of the more experienced players will be accompanying the B-squad to Garden City. Todd said that by splitting the squads this way it helps to speed up the learning process for the less experienced players.

Todd also said that three rookies on the team will be playing with the A-side in the tournament. Eric Long and Matt Hirsch will be going to help out at the wing positions, with Norm Chase playing the lock position. Todd is hoping Long and Hirsch will add a little bit of speed to the squad and that Chase, at 6'3" and 235 pounds, will add needed muscle to the pack.

The B-side, which will have a few A-side members traveling with them, will take on Garden City's A-side, hoping for a repeat of last year's victory. That game saw the K-State backline play exceptionally well, scoring most of the points in the 19-4 decision.

Todd said the key for both of the K-State teams this weekend will be fitness.

Assistant provides 'inside track'

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

It's definitely a different atmosphere when comparing colleges to military academies. Jerry Hartman, defensive coordinator and defensive backs coach for the football team, has experienced both sides of the spectrum.

Before becoming a Wildcat football coach last season, Hartman was defensive secondary coach at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., from 1983-85. His experiences included working with former standout running back Napoleon McCallum and seeing the rise to stardom of basketball great David Robinson.

Just as in any coaching situation, there are advantages and disadvantages. But "unique" was how Hartman described his stint at Annapolis.

"There's a lot more discipline outside the football team at the academy than there would be here," Hartman said. "The players are pretty well tied up. Their timetable is really a tight schedule...because most of them take 17 or 18 hours as an average load.

"Plus, there are other demands made on them by the military, such as formations, room checks and every summer they have a four-to-six-week military obligation they have to go to upon conclusion of the spring semester," he said.

With military and academic requirements, Hartman said it's difficult to develop continuity in teams through such methods as weight training.

"It's hard to monitor the kids because at any given time, they could be anywhere in the world," he said.

Some disadvantages Hartman remembered about coaching at Navy were strict academic entrance requirements and the five-year military commitment cadets must fulfill upon graduation. This makes it difficult for academies to attract athletes with professional sports aspirations.

One advantage academies have is they don't have to work with the

"95 rule" (95 players allowed on scholarship) imposed by the NCAA on other Division I schools because everyone at academies is on full scholarships.

"They have an unlimited number of football players they can bring in every year," Hartman said. "At Kansas State maybe we can recruit 25 kids...they can bring in 45." Military academies also have to their advantage a prep school program. If students need another year of academic training prior to entering an academy, the military pays their way to prep school without losing a year of collegiate eligibility.

And the prep program has proven to be successful. Of the 22 starters that went to the Cherry Bowl in 1984 when Army defeated Michigan State, 10-6, no fewer than 10 were graduates of the USMA Prep School at Fort Monmouth, N.J. The numbers were similar when the Cadets downed Illinois, 31-29, in the 1985 Peach Bowl.

"The prep school's a real advantage. It's kind of their way of redshirting," Hartman said.

It seems recently the academies have made athletics take a back seat to academics and military training. McCallum's brief stint as a part-time NFL player with the Los Angeles Raiders was put on hold until completion of his military requirement 'as was Robinson's entry into the professional basketball ranks.

Hartman said that isn't the case. "What happened at the Naval Academy with the Robinson and McCallum situation was strictly based upon the changeover at the Secretary of the Navy. One guy had a philosophy...the next guy that came in has a totally opposite philosophy," Hartman said.

West Point's motto is "Duty, Honor, Country," but athletics are an integral part of the school. Academics, Hartman said, want "well-rounded" individuals, which includes being good at sports.

"You almost can't get into a military academy unless you're an athlete, to be honest with you," Hartman said.

Pizza Hut to deliver to Muscovites

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The newest breakthrough in superpower relations will deliver American-style pizza to Muscovites, who may be surprised to learn the U.S. version contains neither salt pork nor olive pits.

Pepsico Inc. on Thursday signed a contract to open two Pizza Hut restaurants in Moscow, a joint venture that will bring the first American fast food to Soviet citizens.

The move could result in a network of Pizza Huts if the two "test units" prove successful, said Don Kendall, chairman of the executive committee of Pepsico Inc., which owns Pizza Hut.

He said the restaurants should be open in time for the 1988 summer tourist season.

The Pizza Hut outlets are likely to draw mobs of consumers. Pizza is already popular here, although the local version differs markedly from the style favored by Americans.

Dozens of pizzerias have opened in Moscow and other Soviet cities over the past three years.

But service is slow, choices are few, and diners often can get only Vietnamese mango juice or Soviet champagne to drink.

They face hours of vying for the attention of indifferent waiters at the relatively few restaurants open to the general public.

Because of chronic food deficits, spicy tomato sauce and cheese are rarities, usually supplanted by canned whole tomatoes, chopped egg, mayonnaise and salt pork.

Black olives are available, along with the pits.

An American Pizza Hut team will go to Moscow in the coming months to select managers and oversee the building and initial startup of the new restaurants.

The Soviet administrative staff will be sent to London for training and will in turn teach new employees how to make and serve the pizzas.

Kendall said the Soviets will eventually take over the entire operation.

Most pizza ingredients can be purchased locally, and others will be provided by Pizza Hut to allow a full menu to be offered at the Soviet restaurants, he said.

"If they are successful, we will expand it," Kendall said.

Kendall has been doing business with the Soviets for decades, having brought Pepsi-Cola to Muscovites during a 1959 trade fair.

Kendall said Pepsico's existing arrangement with the Soviets, which trades Pepsi-Cola concentrate for Stolichnaya vodka, has led to the establishment of 18 bottling plants in the Soviet Union, with another due to open soon.

Of the two soon-to-be opened Pizza Huts, only one will be open to average Soviet citizens, accepting non-convertible rubles.

The other will accept only hard currency from foreign tourists and Westerners living in Moscow.

That will allow the businesses to pay their local payroll and buy raw materials in rubles, while Pepsico takes its share of the profits out of the hard-currency income.

The Soviet government will own 51 percent of the businesses, and Pepsico will own 49 percent, with profits split along those lines, Kendall said.

U.S. business expansion into the Soviet market is hampered by the difficulty in earning hard-currency profits. The Soviet government is reluctant to spend its limited hard currency, earned primarily through oil and gas exports, on anything but necessities such as grain and machinery.

In most cases, Soviet citizens are forbidden to possess hard currency.

Other American fast-food companies have been negotiating with the Soviets on joint ventures, but no formal contracts have been announced.

Gas company sells part of coal plant

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Kansas Gas and Electric Co. will be able to sell its half-interest in a La Cygne coal plant as part of a plan to lease back the facility after its sale for continued use of the electricity it generates, the Kansas Corporation Commission decided today.

The KCC decision allows KG&E to sell its interest in the La Cygne 2 coal plant for $392.1 million to US West Financial Services, a subsidiary of US West, one of seven companies formed by the breakup of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in 1984.

In a formal order issued today, the commission described the transaction as a "useful financial tool" that would help the company to improve its financial condition.

The La Cygne generating station is located about seven miles east of La Cygne, about 1.5 miles from the Missouri border. KG&E serves about 240,000 customers in Kansas.

KG&E officials have said the sale and lease-back agreement is thought to be the largest ever in Kansas. Industry experts say utilities see the sale and lease-back agreements as ways to cut costs, improve financial health and make rates stable.

TV Listings

By TV Data

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 18, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	My Little Pony Scooby Doo	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00		TBA		Bullwinkle Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Heathcliff	SportsLook Tractor Pull	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss M.T. Moore	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Auto Racing: IMSA GTP	Movie: "The Barkleys of Broadway"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Green Acres Leave It to Beaver	Body Electric U.N. Day Con	Waltons	Series
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Beaver Make Room	cert	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children I Love Lucy	Andy Griffith	Sesame Street	News	Auto Racing: Mid-Ohio 200	Movie: "Man-hunter"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Munsters	Mystery: Sherlock Holmes	Rhoda Phyllis	Auto Racing	WomanWatch
2:00		Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobilee Zoo	Kitchen Painting	Kotter Bugs Bunny	WKA Championship Kick	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Ghostbusters Smurfs	Championship Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00	Facts of Life	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons Eight Is En-ough	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe Transformers	Truck and Tractor Pull	Munsters Laverne
5:00	3's Company	News CBS News	News ABC News	ough Diff. Strokes	Se-2-1 Contact	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsLook Racing	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00	News	News Truth/Conseq.	News M*A*S*H Newlywed	Facts of Life Good Times	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Benson Soap	SportsCenter Magic Years	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00	Rags to Riches	For Kids Sake Special	Growing Pains	Star Trek	Wash. Week Wall St. Wk.	H. Heroes Major League	NFL's Greatest Moments	Movie: "The Prince and the Pauper"
8:00		Movie: "National Lampoon's Vacation"	Max Headroom	Movie: "Until September"	Great Performances	Baseball: Chicago Cubs at St. Louis Cardinals	Boxing: John Meekins vs. Howard Stewart	Major League
9:00	Private Eye	News WKRP	News M*A*S*H	Late Show	Global Celebration	News	Harness Race SportsCenter	Baseball: Atlanta Braves at Los Angeles Dodgers
10:00	News	Ent. Tonight	Solid Gold	B. Buddies Nightline	Movie: "Wasp Woman"	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	INN News	SportsLook Australian Rules Football
11:00	Late Night With David	Thinner	700 Club		Sign-Off	"Beasts"	Rules Football	Night Tracks: Power Play

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 19, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Gummi Bears	Hello Kitty World	Movie: "The Care Bears"	Kidsongs LovelyLocks		Farm Report SportsCenter	Bonanza
8:00	Smurfs	Muppet Babies	Movie: "Muppet Babies"	Popples Get Along	Adventure People-Adventure	Charlando People-Adventure	Tom Mann Bill Dance	Cousteau's Rediscovery
9:00	Fraggle Rock	Pee-wee Play. Transformers	Pet Monster Ghostbusters	Bugs Bunny and Porky Pig	Making Of Old House	Minority Business Surfer Mag.	Racing	Cousteau's Rediscovery
10:00	ALF	Popeye & Son Teen Wolf	Flintstones Bugs	Woody Power	Motorweek Animals	Incredible Hulk	SportsCenter	NWA Super Bouts
11:00	Stan Parrish	Storybreak Bob Valasente	Jem	Wonder Woman	Painting Garden	Movie: "Paradise La-Adise La-Adise"	Saturday Horse Show	Pre-Game College Football
12:00	Baseball: To Be An-	News Discover	Weekend Spe- Kansas Illus.	Movie: "Ca-pone"	Sesame Street	gon	Jumping: Track And	ball: Florida at Alabama
1:00	nounced	Sybervision College Foot-	WWF Wres-tling		Fru. Gourmet Justin Wilson	G.I. Joe: Py-ramid of Dark-	Field: Mobil Grand Prix
2:00		ball: Georgia at Clemson	Coll. Football College Foot-	Star Trek	Bodywatch Wonderful	ness	Racing: Mary-land Million
3:00	Can't Take It		ball: Boston College at USC	Battlestar Gal-actica	World of Acry-lics	Soul Train	College Foot-ball: Washing-	Bonanza
4:00	Auto Racing		USC	Buck Rogers	Focus/Society Focus/Society	Music Good Times	ton at Texas A&M	H. Heroes H. Heroes
5:00	Wild Kingdom	Back Yard CBS News		Black Sheep Squadron	Striped Bass	Bustin' Loose Charles		World Cham-pionship Wrestling
6:00	Hee Haw	Mama It's a Living	Guinness B. Buddies	Throb Big Family	Country Music Legends	It's a Living At the Movies	College Foot-
7:00	Facts of Life	It's an Adven-ture, Charlie	The Sheriff 9 to 5	Werewolf		Major League Baseball: Chi-cago Cubs at St. Louis Car-	ball: Michigan State at Notre Dame	Movie: "The Stone Killer"
8:00	Golden Girls	Movie: "The Last Starligh-ter"	FarmAid III		Swingin' Over the Rainbow			Major League Baseball: At-
9:00	Miss America		Rich & Fa-mous	With Willie Nel-son				lanta Braves at Los An-geles Dodgers
10:00		News Snafu: Screw-	News Movie: "The Swarm"	Darkside Movie: "Petu- lia"	Arlo Guthrie	News INN News	Sportscenter Championship Wrestling John Meekins	Night Tracks: vs. Howard Stewart
11:00	News Saturday	est Foul-Ups At the Movies			Show Sign-Off	FarmAid III
12:00	Night Live	Dallas	News	Solid Gold

SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 20, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	James Ken-edy	Jerry Falwell	Jimmy Swag-gart	Superfriends		R. Schuller Selihot Ser-	SportsCenter PGA Tour	Tom & Jerry and Friends
8:00	L. Lundstrum	Discovery Herald-Truth	Kenneth Copeland	All Star Wres-tling	Sesame Street	ive Popeye	SpeedWeek Auto Racing:	Cont'd Andy Griffith
9:00	Schuller Jimmy Swag-	Oral Roberts Larry Jones	It Is Written Week With	Wild, Wild West	Mister Rogers Special	Bugs Bunny Power	Formula One Grand Prix of	Good News Movie: "Go"
10:00	gart Muppets	CBS News Sunday Morn-	David Brinkley Business	Black Sheep Squadron	Sesame Street	Superman Lone Ranger	Portugal Sportscenter	Hand Luke"
11:00	World Tom. ing	Happy Days	All Star Wres-tling	Star Trek	Reading Rain-bow	Rawhide	Sunday Auto Racing:
12:00	National Geo-graphic	NFL Football: Regional Cov-	Movie: "The Swarm"	Movie: "Yogi and the Three	Wash. Week Wall St. Wk.	Wild, Wild West	NASCAR Win-ston Cup 500	Movie: "Des-tination Tokyo"
1:00	National Geo-graphic on As-		Bears		Adam Smith Computer	Major League Baseball: Chi-
2:00	Siskel & Ebert		Fame	Movie: "The Errand Boy"	Presidency & Constitution	cago Cubs at St. Louis Car-	Auto Racing	Sanford
3:00	NFL Football: Kansas City	NFL Football: Regional Cov-	Auto Racing: CART Penn-sylvania 200	Best of the Na-tional Geo-graphic Spe-cials: Mon-	Vintage Years Vistas	Kung Fu	Horse Racing: Mariboro Cup	lanta Braves at Los An-geles Dodgers
4:00	Chiefs at Seat-tle Seahawks		News Football	21 Jump Street	Wild America Nature	Fame	NFL Prime Time	Movie: "Three Violent Peo-ple"
5:00	Our House	60 Minutes	"Disney Sun-day Movie"	Emmy Awards		Rich & Fa-mous	NFL Theatre: Dream Teams
6:00	Family Ties	Murder She Wrote	Spenser: For Hire			Star Search	To Be An-nounced	National Geo-graphic Ex-plorer
7:00	Movie: "The Highwayman"	Movie: "Micki & Maude"	Movie: "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas"		Masterpiece Theatre	News INN News
8:00					Evening at Pops
9:00	News Sports M.	News Marblehead	News Movie: "Three Ring Circus"	Mama Hardcastle	Debut TV Classics	H. Heroes Dempsey & Makepeace What Country	Sportscenter Sunday	Sports Page Jerry Falwell
10:00	Entertainment This Week	Rich & Fa-mous		Comedy of Sign-Off	Veek Tony Brown	At the Movies Fame	NFL's Greatest Moments	World Tom. Jimmy Swag-gart
11:00	Big 10 Sign-Off
12:00

Religious Directory

American Baptist Campus Ministry

Evening Gathering
Sundays - 7 p.m.

Baptist Campus Center
1801 Anderson 539-3051

- Study Sessions
- Social issues resources
- Personal consultations

Campus Minister - Dave Stewart

Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan

former Luckey High School
Juliette St. and Pierre

Worship 9 a.m.
Sunday School 10:15 a.m.
Nursery provided
776-0259 537-8526

The Assembly

Sunday Praise Hours
10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m.

- Sunday School - 9:30 a.m.
- Collegiate Bible Class
- Transportation available

Office ..... 537-7633
Seth Childs Rd. at Gary Ave.
Mike Wall, Pastor. 537-7967

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

801 Leavenworth
537-0518

Worship 8:30 & 11 a.m.
Church School 9:30 a.m.

- College Outreach (Tuesdays, K-State Union)
- Weekday programs for youth
- Nursery available

Senior Minister
Rev. Dr. Philip S. Gittings III

Manhattan Jewish Congregation

Shabbat Services 8 p.m.
1st and 3rd Friday
Religious School 9:30 Sundays
Rides Available
Sponsor B'nai B'rith Hillel at K-State

1509 Wreath Ave. (temple)
539-8462
Campus Adviser,
David Margolies 532-6154

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

8:45 a.m. Communion
(first Sunday of the month)
9:45 a.m. Church School
8:45 & 11 a.m. Worship
Nursery provided for all services

John D. Stoneking, Pastor
612 Poyntz 776-8821

WESTVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH

WORSHIP 8 and 10:30 a.m.
College Class 9:30 a.m.
Kennedy's Claim side entrance
Sun. Eve. Worship 6 p.m.
1st, 3rd, and 5th Sundays
CARE CELLS (Small Groups)
6 p.m. 2nd and 4th Sundays
Office at 2607 Allison Ave.
3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173

FAITH BAPTIST CHURCH

Independent, Fundamental
2615 Allison Avenue

Sunday School 10 a.m.
Sunday Service 11 a.m. & 7 p.m.
Wednesday Service 7 p.m.
For information, call . . . 537-8963

FLINT HILLS FULL FAITH Church

Sunday School 9:15-10 a.m.
Worship 10:15-Noon
Home Group Bible Studies
217 Seth Childs-Church Location
(Bent. of Raul's Escondido)
809 Houston . . . 537-0256

COLLEGE AVENUE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday School - 9:30 a.m.
(College-age Class)
Worship Service - 10:45 a.m.
1609 College Ave. 539-4191

Manhattan Mennonite Fellowship

Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
KSU Student Group 6:30 p.m.
Dorothy Nickel Friesen, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4079

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH

Worship at 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Sunday School - 9:45 a.m.
(Collegiate Class)
10th & Poyntz 537-8532

BLUE VALLEY MEMORIAL UNITED METHODIST

Sunday School 9:15 a.m.
Morning Worship 10:30 a.m.
835 Church Ave. 539-8790

St. Luke's Lutheran Church

WORSHIP Sat. 6 p.m.
Sun. 8 and 10:45 a.m.
SUNDAY SCHOOL 9:30 a.m.
COLLEGIATE FELLOWSHIP as scheduled
539-2604 330 N. Sunset

St. Isidore's

Catholic Student Center
Sunday Masses
9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 5 p.m.
Saturday 9:30 a.m.
Daily Mass - 4:30 p.m.
711 Denison 539-7496

First Baptist Church

SUNDAY WORSHIP 11 a.m.
CHURCH SCHOOL 9:45 a.m.
2121 Blue Hills Rd. 539-8891

CHRISTIAN CAMPUS MINISTRY

A Ministry Of The Church Of Christ
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Classes 9:30 a.m. & Wed. 7:30 p.m.
2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581

Crestview Christian Church

Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m.
Collegiate Sunday School 9:30
776-3798
4301 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
(on Hwy. 24, across from State Park)

COME AND WORSHIP!

MANHATTAN CHURCH of the NAZARENE
College Class 9:30 a.m.
Worship Services 10:30 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Study & Prayer Wed. 7 p.m.
10th & Fremont 537-4936

Kedzie 103

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication: noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST YOU? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1485. (1-30)

Ride the Bobby T's
Football Bus
To and from the game
Candlewood Shopping Center
539-1571

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

STOP BAKERY on the Square, 1217 Moro, Friday and Saturday, 10 p.m. to 4 a.m. Look and try our homemade bagels, Italian beef, sandwiches and other baked goods. Listen to a jazz band this Friday night. (19)

ClassAds

OPEN AIR food and craft fair in Aggieville, Oct. 10. For information on booths, write Box 1804 in Manhattan by Sept. 25. (2-19)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Miliken, 539-9469. (2-7)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (171)

THREE MALE students to share basement apartment. $120 month each. all bills paid. Call 537-1442. (9-19)

SMALL ONE-bedroom, off Denison, available immediately. $135, 776-8093 or 539-9842. (15-19)

SEMI-FURNISHED One-bedroom duplex. 2326 Kraig. $235/month. 539-4214. Leave message. (16-19)

TWO-BEDROOM apartment—Close to campus, water and trash paid. $380 plus electric. 776-4993. (17-19)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

ONE SIDE of duplex, nice three-bedroom, two-bath apartment. Very near campus. 539-8324. (16-20)

ONE-BEDROOM in Wildcat Inn next to fieldhouse. $280. Low utilities, laundry facilities. 537-8889 or 776-3804. (171)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 PONTIAC Firebird. Top, four-speed, 14,000 miles on rebuilt engine. Call 539-4134 evenings. (13-19)

1982 CAMARO modified with 350 V8, four-barrel, with headers, automatic. Looks stock, sleeper. 776-6036, Aaron. (15-19)

GREAT SCHOOL car. 1979 Cutlass Supreme. New tires, new brakes, AM/FM stereo. Price negotiable. Call Tracy, 776-1594. (15-19)

1981 CHEVETTE. New brakes, air, FM/cassette, 59,000 miles. Priced to sell. Call Jarmel: 539-2301. (16-25)

DATSUN 2005X 1977, looks, runs good. Price negotiable. 539-6120. (16-19)

1977 MONTE CARLO 305, four-barrel, dual exhaust, mags, loaded, all electric. Sharp! 539-2343, Richard. (16-19)

1984 MAZDA SES B2000 pickup, five-speed, air conditioning, AM/FM, charcoal gray, 36,000 miles, good condition. 632-2513 after 5 p.m. (17-19)

1967 CAMAROSS in good condition, 40,000 miles on engine. Asking $3,200 negotiable. Call 532-3625. (17-19)

1976 PLYMOUTH, automatic, new tires, battery and several other major parts, runs very well, only $400. Call 539-6705. (18-19)

1977 TOYOTA Celica GT, excellent condition, new paint, no rust, sunroof, excellent stereo system. 537-9021. (18-22)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN THUNDREDS weekly$ in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your fall class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. We prefer to hire work study students and students who are eligible to work 30 hours per week. Food Handler's Card a must. (15-25)

CASHIER, WAITRESS, part-time, evenings. Apply in person. Chef Cafe, 111 S. Fourth. (15-19)

95.3 KSKT The Kat needs part-time air personalities for weekend and vacation shifts. If you've had some experience and want to work and learn in a professional atmosphere we need to hear from you. Also, possible news internship for someone who wants on air experience. Contact station manager Dave Strout at 539-6271. (15-19)

EXPERIENCED DENTAL assistant. Warm, friendly personality. Call 539-7401. Ask for Pat. (16-20)

ONE-HOUR Moto Photo is immediately hiring a lab technician. Must be able to work Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Fridays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and every other weekend. Apply Monday through Friday, the 14th through the 18th between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. or by appointment. 776-9030. (16-19)

EDITOR, WEEKLY United Methodist Church regional newspaper. Part-time position. EOE. Member Project Equality. Submit resume and references by Sept. 25 to P.O. Box 4187, Topeka, KS 66604. Attention: Council Director. (17-21)

PART-TIME SALES help at Borck Brother's men's wear. Approximately 20 hours per week. Afternoons and Saturdays. Sales experience preferred. Apply in person at 1100 Westloop Place. (17-21)

TEMPORARY WEEKEND construction laborer needed. Will pay extra for person with truck. 537-1002. (18-19)

MATURE PERSON needed for occasional babysitting. Own transportation. Call 776-7632. (19-20)

Accessories On The Park

A new women's accessories store seeks full-time experienced manager. Fashion conscious, motivated, and creative individuals. Send Resume to 1203 Laramie Manhattan, KS

$30 CASH
Need Person
with Nice Convertible
to drive in Saturday's Parade must call today
776-7028 after 7 p.m.

WORK STUDY student to work 10-20 hours a week with university outreach conference coordinator. Attention to detail, and written and oral communication skills are necessary. Typing and word processing experience is required. Position offers good background experience for students in areas of management, marketing, business, education, and conference planning. For more information call 532-5575 (ask for Deb) or stop by the Warehouse Building, 1623 Anderson Ave. Application deadline is Sept. 25. (17-24)

WANTED—RELIABLE person to do laundry. Top dollar paid for good job—Contact Michael. 539-8197. (17-19)

MAKE $4,600 monthly stuffing envelopes. For details, send self-addressed stamped envelope to Adeela, P.O. Box 2142, Stillwater, OK 74076. (18-27)

STUDENT HELP—Regular housekeeping duties involve cleaning, dusting, mopping, etc. five days a week from 4-8 p.m. About 20 hours a week at $3.35 an hour. For more information contact Jackie Lowe, 532-6544. (18-19)

WANTED: BRIGHT, energetic individuals to work at women's retail clothing store. Must be neat, in tune with current fashion, and have sales experience. Looking for part-time and full-time. Apply in person at Scot's LTD or Carouse (Aggieville) soon to be in Manhattan Town Center. (18-22)

GARAGE AND YARD SALES 11

BODACIOUS GARAGE sale—Mass quantities of antiques, chairs, round oak table, women's clothes size 8 to 10, lots of small stuff—rain or shine. Saturday and Sunday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Sept. 19-20, Sunflower Storage #208, McCall Road. (19)

PORCH SALE. Kid's, women's clothes, toys, boy's 20 inch bike, tricycle, arc lamp, swag, tupperware, 1026 Bertrand, Saturday, Sept. 19, 9 a.m.-6 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 20, 1-5 p.m. (19)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

MULTI-BEDROOM HOUSE, stove, refrigerator, central air, fireplace, laundry hookups, garage. Call 537-8389. (11)

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31)

THREE BEDROOM unfurnished house, close to campus, fenced yard, garage. No pets. Call 537-1234, Trust Department. Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. (41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1970 BUDDY 12 x 60—Two-bedroom, washer/dryer, two air conditioners, storage shed. $4,900. Call 537-9005. (17-21)

8' x 25' IN Green Valley Trailer Court. $1,000. 539-4205. Keep trying. (19-23)

LOST AND FOUND 14

SET OF keys found in Fairchild computer lab. Call 539-0971 and identify. (18-20)

LOST—$10 reward for a big red umbrella that says "Met." Please call 537-1794. (18-19)

LOST: KEY ring with miniature leather sandals. Great sentimental value. Please call 539-8052. (19)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

CANON A1 with 35-105 zoom and flash. Asking $400. Call 537-4789. (17-19)

FOUR ROYALS tickets for sale—$20, Sunday game. For more information, call 539-2899. (18-19)

FOR SALE: Two tickets to Farm-Aid. Call after 7 p.m. 776-0570. (18-19)

LATE NIGHT BREAKFAST GRILL

10 p.m.-1 a.m.
Fridays & Saturdays
Bobby T's
Candlewood Shopping Center 539-1571

SATURDAY KSU SPECIAL NIGHT

$5 OFF Dinner for 2 with this ad
Students, Faculty & Staff only
This Saturday Only

The COTTON CLUB

Dinner Buffet
Specials

M—Chicken & Ribs
T—Spaghetti & Meat Balls
W—Chicken Stir Fry & Egg Rolls
U—Fish & Chips
includes salad bar

All You Can Eat $5.99

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Depot: abbr.
4 Beach shade
7 Tries to take off
12 Craggy hill
13 One of Mickey's exes
14 Lumberjack's contest
15 Ajar, old-style
16 Able
18 Author Fleming
19 Bird's utterance
20 Ivan, e.g.
22 Fruit drink
23 Dumbfound
27 Wise bird?
29 Powerful
31 San—
32 Actor McDowell
35 Aim
37 D.C. VIP
38 TV host Jack

DOWN
1 Un-emotional one
2 November's stone
3 Sports site
4 Diplomacy
5 Oath
6 Christened
7 Worry
8 Real estate purchase
9 Pub order
10 Corral
11 Drunkard
17 See 19
21 "Message received"
23 Make amends
24 Join
25 Finale
26 Pig's digs
28 Took first place
30 Mine output
31 Party staple
32 One—million
33 Greek H
36 Pup, for one
37 Word with cord or column
40 Comic Martin
42 Drill
43 New York city
44 Gaseous element
45 Previously owned
46 Famed volcano
48 Altar words
49 Teacher's org.
50 Letter starter
51 Frost

Solution time: 25 mins.

Yesterday's answer 3-20

532-6555

TANS TO GO

$2 Sessions

1214-C Moro-Aggieville
776-7874

(must be used by 10-31-87)

POOL PARTY EVERY FRIDAY

5 p.m.-8 p.m.

75¢ DRAWS

50¢ BURGERS

& DOGS

$1 WINE COOLERS

WEATHER PERMITTING

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

LEE'S WESTERN WEAR
913-776-9715

Just Arrived

New Shipment of

WRANGLER PRO

RODEO JEANS

2 mi. east of K-Mart
Hwy. 24

Manhattan, Ks. 66502

776-6715

Mon.- Sat. 9-5:30

Thurs. 9-8:30

Pyramid Pizza
All Slices 99¢
after 5 p.m.

WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

MOVING SALE, air conditioner, typewriter (electric, manual), air moisturizer, TV (black/white), tape recorder (with AM/FM). 539-6705. (18-19)

THREE FARM-Aid tickets $20 each or best offer. 776-0474, leave message if not home. (19)

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

TYPEWRITER/ASCII computer printer, memory, display, battery/AC, very portable with lid case. $150. 776-4712. (16-19)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1984 YAMAHA XT600, on/off road, many options, excellent condition, $1,500 or best offer. 776-7323. (14-19)

FOR SALE 1984 Yamaha XT600. Excellent condition, under 3,000 miles. Call 537-1021. (15-19)

THREE-SPEED bike. Good condition, large aluminum side baskets. Excellent for school and shopping. $50. Call 539-8796 after 5 p.m. (15-19)

RALEIGH MOUNTAIN bike, excellent condition, many extras including car transport rack. Interested, please call Mike 537-4743 after 6 p.m. (17-19)

1981 KAWASAKI KZ650CSR. Must sell! In excellent condition. For more information, call 539-7561 and ask for Clay. (18-22)

1976 YAMAHA 175 Enduro. Low miles, excellent condition, great transportation, $400 or best offer. 537-9433. (19-23)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

Hayes House of Music

Guitar Strings and

Drum Sticks. Buy one set get 2nd set at 50% off

327 Poyntz 776-7983

CRATE CR-112 guitar amplifier, 30 watts, reverb, two channels, headphone jack. Very good condition. 776-3741. (15-19)

ANTIQUE UPRIGHT piano, excellent condition. Asking $400. Call 537-4789. (17-19)

CARVIN 60W amp, very smooth tube distortion. Footswitch for reverb, chorus and channel. Celestion speaker. 539-6395. (18-20)

FOR SALE—Hohner acoustic guitar with case. Excellent condition. Call 539-8656. (19-22)

Ovation Acoustic guitar with case and pickup. 539-6796. (18-22)

PERSONALS 18

THETA XI Leonard: "Don't be messing up," but have fun celebrating #20 tomorrow! Love, Candy. (19)

JASON—I never thought that first night at Chevy's that we would come this far. We've had so many special times together. I know all our dreams will come true. Happy nine-month anniversary. I love you—Shannon. (19)

GREG AND JASON. The party is near—of Killer and Animal you better stay clear. Armed and Dangerous we will be. But with what, just wait and see! (19)

POP TART! Thanks for being such a great friend. Have a wow weekend! Love, Thumper. (19)

FJIT'S—TAKE us out to the ballpark, for a Royal's victory we'll cheer. In K.C. we will leave our mark. Fijis, hotdogs, and beer. Love ADPI's. (19)

KENT G.—Give me time. We can make it happen. Susan. (19)

K.D. TAMMER—I sure miss you. Why does it have to be like this? Give me a chance. I'll steal your heart and you won't even feel it. Daver. (19)

CHI-O'S—Be sure to show up at 3 p.m. The barbecue will be hot—the Beta Sigs. (19)

SCOTT S. Had fun in Madison. Let's do it again and again and again. Hope to see you soon. A lot of you. I am transferring to U of Tuttle next spring. Love and Kisses. Shammo. (19)

HEY TARDFACE: Just two more days and it will be what? Twelve years? Only two! Well, they have been two of the best! I truly love you. Adam. Always. Lori. (19)

BEAUTIFUL BLONDE in black Camaro—I can hardly wait to see you this weekend! Todd. (19)

JANA—HEY wanna know my breaker? Oh, by the way, Claire is sick and the China man says you owe him $2,500! Happy 21st anyway! We love you—Lisa and Shelli. (19)

THETA XI Dan. Knock 'em dead at KU Med! Love, Erica. (19)

AKAK—ROB and Chris—Armed and Dangerous, we will be, when heading to the Army. We're movin' and groovin' 'til late that night. Don't worry about partyin' cause we do that right. Your Sigma party dates. (19)

ADPI's—"Can we bat 1,000? Save us a seat." FJIT's. (19)

AKAK LITTLE sisters, old and new, let's get psyched for little sister olympics. Sunday night, 9 p.m., at the house. (19)

SIGMA PARTY dates—The night is near and soon you'll see just how dangerous the Sigma's can be. So, grab your boots and grab your gun, come "Armed and Dangerous" and have some fun! Love, your Sigma party dates. (19)

TRI SIGMA pledges. You are the violets of our circle. Love, the Activies. (19)

AGD LESLIE and Stacey—Congrats on your tapping. Love, your Sisters. (19)

BARN-P DATES. "I say I keep my feathers numbered for just such an occasion. FJIT. (19)

BRUCE, THREE years down—forever to go. I love you, Michelle. (19)

BEAUTIFUL PRINCESS—Three years is a long time, but forever is too short. (19)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St. Suite 25. (11)

RENTALS 21

SUPPLIES: PRINTER/typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (11)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

EXPERIENCED TYPIST, computer, disc storage, letter-quality printer, $1.25/page. Ask for Dorinda. 537-9205. (11-19)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for form, resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro. 537-7294. (17-19)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

MALE ROOMMATE needed—Basement apartment, good study habits, engineer preferably. Call 539-6196. (15-19)

FEMALE ROOMMATE, for second semester, to share two-bedroom apartment. Close to park, Aggieville, and campus. Call 537-1273. (16-20)

NON-SMOKING FEMALE, low rent. Call Sharon at 776-5671, before 9 a.m., between 2-4:30 p.m. or after 10 p.m. (17-21)

Military women abused, panel charges

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Navy and Marine Corps women stationed in the Pacific are being sexually harassed and abused by their male colleagues, and the military services may be placing improper restrictions on the jobs they can fill, a Pentagon advisory panel charged in a report released Thursday.

Women serving aboard ships in the Pacific and assigned to bases in the Philippines and Japan are being forced into sexual relationships and are frequently humiliated and "denigrated as human beings," the panel said.

It said the servicewomen confront a chain-of-command that fails to respond to their complaints and are forced into living situations that at times contribute "to conditions in which extremist behavior, lesbianism, is fostered...."

In one instance, the captain of a Navy ship on which women were serving was allegedly overheard offering to "sell" female sailors to Koreans. In the Philippines, the report said, "we heard of a growing number of women who opt to become pregnant to ease the loneliness of their situations."

Moreover, it said, both the Navy and Marine Corps appear to have adopted more restrictive approaches than are required by law in classifying combat-related jobs that are off-limits to women.

Females end up being denied promotion opportunities because of such restrictions, and the policies contribute to "demoralization" by suggesting "a lack of confidence in their abilities and a lack of faith in their commitment," the study contended.

The nine-page report was delivered to Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger late last month by the Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services, which sent seven of its members on a two-week fact-finding tour of the Pacific and Far East.

In response, Weinberger ordered the immediate creation of a task force to develop a plan for stamping out such discrimination throughout the four services.

Women comprise about 10 percent of the nation's 2.1 million active-duty military personnel.

The new study is similar in scope to a 1986 investigation by the advisory panel that focused on women serving in the Army and Air Force in Europe. That study also concluded there was "a pervasive concern" among those women about sexual harassment, but it was far less searing in its review of the situation there than in the Pacific.

The new report catalogues a large number of specific complaints and concludes the two services are condoning — both directly and through inattention — "abusive behavior" of the women they assign to posts outside the United States.

For example, the report cited "the liberal and routine public 'use' of Philippine females at places such as the enlisted, NCO and officer's clubs (and) noon-time burlesque shows...."

"On-base activities such as these contribute to creating an environment in which all females are regarded with little or no respect and abusive behavior toward all women is not only passively accepted and condoned but encouraged," it charged.

The report said the most serious allegations of sexual wrongdoing involved the USS Safeguard, a ship assigned to the Pacific Fleet whose captain has been relieved of duty pending an investigation.

Female sailors on the vessel alleged "the complicity of officers involved in the 'cover-up' of the commander's shipboard activities, which allegedly included public sex, attempts to 'sell' female sailors to the Koreans and 'fraternization' with enlisted female sailors."

Buy, Sell or Trade in Collegian Classifieds

Arms

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

He said they would continue through the afternoon, possibly into the evening, and make no "formal statement" until Friday.

But later, Phyllis Oakley, a department spokeswoman, said Redman and Gerasimov would have a statement on nuclear testing.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev has called a ban on further weapons tests the most urgent nuclear issue. "There is no more urgent and important task today than that of end-ling all nuclear testing," he said in August 1986.

Gorbachev suspended further Soviet tests, but failing to persuade President Reagan to join in the ban, the Soviet leader ordered a resumption last February after a 19-month hiatus.

Shultz and Shevardnadze met alone for most of the day, reviewing the work of mixed task forces who labored over technical missile issues, regional disputes including the Soviet military occupation of Afghanistan, and the treatment of dissidents in the Soviet Union.

Aides were summoned periodically, among them Frank C. Carlucci, the president's national security adviser.

Shultz and Shevardnadze opened their talks on Tuesday against a backdrop of downbeat U.S. forecasts. Reporters were told completion of the missile treaty and the setting of a date for a visit by Gorbachev for talks with President Reagan.

But once Shultz and Shevardnadze got started, the two sides began issuing a flurry of upbeat remarks and displayed high good humor.

Regents

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

versity of Kansas, K-State and The Wichita State University.

"I'm not positive, but remediation may not save us money in the long run," said Mike Johnson, assistant to Wefald.

Bradley gave his approval to an alternative proposal drawn up by the Student Advisory Committee — which consists of student body presidents from Regents institutions. The SAC recommendation would apply to all freshmen in 1991 and is not limited to the three largest Regents universities. The plan makes an allowance for students who do not have the high school requirements to complete nine hours of summer course work with a 2.0 GPA to gain admission.

"The reason I voted for it is people need to be able to make up what's needed over the summer," Bradley said. "Then you are in the school you want to be in."

In the Regents' printed statement, several justifications are used to support selective admissions. By comparison, K-State's five peer institutions already have more selective admissions processes. Among Big Eight schools, K-State ranks fourth in composite ACT scores for entering freshman with an average of 21.4. Colorado leads the list with an average composite of 24.7, and Oklahoma State ranks lowest with a 20.3 average score.

Citizen

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

world.

"I'm going to call my mom, if I can catch her at home," Hussein said.

He placed his call to Homs, Syria, and talked to his mother for a few minutes. Hussein said he calls home every 10 days or couple of weeks.

"We keep in touch," he said.

Hussein said he came to America 15 years ago to avoid the Army draft in Syria and to seek a higher education. Five years ago he began applying for citizenship and establishing residency. At first, Hussein said he had no plans of staying in America, but "things turned bad back home" and he decided to stay.

Hussein received his masters degrees in fine arts and architecture at K-State.

IRONMAN '87

September 18-19, 1987

KSU

SCHEDULE

Friday: 5:00 p.m. (Natatorium) ..... Swim Relay
6:00 p.m. (West Stadium) ..... Manmakers
7:00 p.m. (Manhattan City Park) ..... Tug of War
8:00 p.m. (Ahearn Field House) ..... Basketball
Saturday: 8:00 a.m. (East Campus Oval) ..... 6-Mile Relay
9:00 a.m. (East Campus Oval) ..... Bicycle Relay
1:00 p.m. (West Stadium) ..... Circuits
2:30 p.m. (West Stadium) ..... Obstacle Course

TEAMS

BOPI    ΣAE    ΣX
ΣΦE    ΘΞ    TKE
ATΩ       CCC

Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ

Now the Best Pizza in Town Has the Best Price!

Two Pizzas for Only $5.99!

Now you can have two delicious 10" pizzas for the price of one. They're custom-made with your choice of toppings on each — they don't have to be the same! And we use only the freshest ingredients and 100% real cheese.

You're not seeing double. It's just our latest way to say that Domino's Pizza Delivers. And we deliver at no additional charge in 30 minutes or less. That's the Domino's Pizza guarantee.

No coupon necessary.

Call Us!
Manhattan
539-0561
517 N. 12th Street

Hours:
4pm-1am Sun.-Thurs.
4pm-2am Fri.-Sat.

COKE* AVAILABLE
in 16 oz. bottle 75¢ each.

Domino's
Pizza
Delivers®
Doubles.

Prices do not include tax. Our drivers carry less than $20.00. Limited delivery area.

	PEPPERONI MUSHROOMS GROUND BEEF	SAUSAGE BLACK OLIVES ONIONS	HAM GREEN PEPPER PINEAPPLE	JALAPENOS EXTRA THICK CRUST EXTRA CHEESE
Menu
CHEESE
1 ITEM	5.99	7.99	8.99
2 ITEMS	6.94	9.24	10.39
3 ITEMS	7.89	10.49	11.79
4 ITEMS	8.84	11.74	13.19
DELUXE*	9.79	12.99	14.59
VEGI	9.79	12.99	14.59
EXTRAVAGANZZA	10.74	14.24	15.99
EACH ADDITIONAL ITEM	.95	1.25	1.40

*DELUXE — 5 items for the price of 4. Pepperoni, Sausage, Mushrooms, Onions & Green Peppers

**VEGI — 5 items for the price of 4. Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Black Olives & Extra Cheese

***EXTRAVAGANZZA — A special blend of 9 items for the price of 5. Pepperoni, Ham, Ground Beef, Sausage, Black Olives, Green Peppers, Onions, Mushrooms & Extra Cheese.

Farm Aid

Farm Aid III brought about 70,000 people to Lincoln, Neb., for a concert that featured more than 30 musical artists. See Page 7.

Weather

Partly cloudy this morning becoming mostly cloudy during the afternoon, high 65 to 70. Clearing and cool tonight, low in the mid-40s.

adium. See Page 8.

Monday
September 21, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 20

Kansas State Collegian

Costa Rican leader Arias to deliver lecture today

By The Collegian Staff

Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez will deliver the 77th Landon Lecture on Public Issues at 10:30 a.m. today in Ahearn Field House.

It is expected Arias will discuss the peace accord he achieved last August in Guatemala with four other presidents of Central American countries, said Charles Reagan, assistant to University President Jon Wefald.

The focal point of Arias' visit is to convince U.S. leaders to support his Central American peace plan. Arias will speak to Congress, President Reagan and the United Nations later this week.

President Reagan has generally been unsupportive of Arias' plan because it calls for the United States to stop funneling money to the Nicaraguan Contras, something Reagan has said he will not do.

Arias' announced schedule the remainder of today includes:

■ At 11:45 a.m., he will attend a luncheon with the Landon Lecture patrons in the Union Ballroom.

■ At 1:15 p.m., Arias will attend a private meeting with academic experts on Latin America from K-State and other schools.

■ At 2:30 p.m., Arias will also attend an open meeting with students.

Tuesday, Arias is scheduled to speak to senators and representatives on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives in Washington, D.C.

He will speak to the United Nations Wednesday and will receive an honorary degree from Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., Thursday.

Staff/Steve Wolgast

Arriving at the first stop of his American visit, Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez speaks with Costa Rican Ambassador Guido Fernandez at the Manhattan Airport Sunday. Arias attended a private reception at the Manhattan Country Club Sunday and will deliver the Landon Lecture in Ahearn Field House this morning.

Ailing elderly victimized Guardianship system the culprit

Guardians of the Elderly: An Ailing System

EDITOR'S NOTE — America is aging, and its elderly are often victimized by the guardianship system that is supposed to protect them. For a year, The Associated Press examined the guardianship process for the elderly nationwide. This is the first part of a five-day series detailing what the AP found.

By Fred Bayles
and
Scott McCartney
Associated Press Writers

The nation's guardianship system, a crucial last line of protection for the ailing elderly, is failing many of those it is designed to protect.

A year-long investigation by The Associated Press of courts in all 50 states and the District of Columbia found a dangerously burdened and troubled system that regularly puts elderly lives in the hands of others with little or no evidence of necessity, then fails to guard against abuse, theft and neglect.

In thousands of courts around the nation every week, a few minutes of routine and the stroke of a judge's pen are all that it takes to strip an old man or woman of basic rights.

The 300,000 to 400,000 elderly people under guardianship can no longer receive money or pay their bills. They cannot marry or divorce. The court entrusts to someone else the power to choose where they will live, what medical treatment they will get, and, in rare cases, when they will die.

The AP investigation examined more than 2,200 randomly selected guardianship court files to get a portrait of wards and of the system that oversees them.

After giving guardians such great power over elderly people, overworked and understaffed court systems frequently break down, abandoning those incapable of caring for themselves, the AP found.

A legal tool meant to protect the elderly and their property, guardianship sometimes results instead in financial or physical mistreatment, the AP found.

"Guardianship is a process that uproots people, literally 'unpersons' them, declares them legally dead," said Dr. Dennis Koson, a law and psychiatry expert in Florida. "Done badly, it does more hurting than protecting."

That danger was confirmed by the AP investigation, which involved staff reporters in every state. The AP found:

■ Elderly in guardianship court are often afforded fewer rights than criminal defendants. In 44 percent of the cases, the proposed ward was not represented by an attorney. Three out of 10 files contained no medical evidence. Forty-nine percent of the wards were not present at their hearings. Twenty-five percent of the files contained no indication hearings had been held.

Some elderly people discover they are wards of the court only after the fact.

A Bennington, Vt., woman learned she was under guardianship only when told by her nursing home she could no longer spend money without the permission of the guardian, her daughter. A Fort Lauderdale, Fla., woman found she had a guardian only when she was turned away from the polling booth.

"Guardianship became a rubber-stamp procedure over the years," said Indianapolis Probate Judge Victor Pfau, a leader in a judicial reform movement.

■ While laws in 45 states require guardians to file regular accountings of the ward's money, they were missing or incomplete in 48 percent of the files examined. Thirteen percent, more than one in 10, of the files were empty but for the initial granting of guardianship powers.

Such files are critical to the court's knowledge that wards are being cared for and that their money is being spent properly. Without the files, the door is open to abuse.

So a court in Missoula, Mont., had no record of what happened to the $131,000 estate of a 92-year-old man found ill and alone in a cabin in 1985 after a couple described as "friends" became his guardians. And a Pittsburgh court learned of a decade-long misappropriation of $25,000 in Social Security checks only when a state hospital complained of non-payment for a ward's care. The ward's guardian, an attorney, was disbarred in 1985.

■ What reports are filed are rarely audited or even checked by probate courts, which handle guardianships in most jurisdictions. One of the last rungs on the courthouse ladder, often dealing more with affairs of the dead than of the living, probate courts are swamped. Many can't even guess how many guardianships they have on file.

"I don't know where the wards are, who's caring for them, what they're doing," said Probate Judge Anthony Sciarretta of Providence, R.I. "I have no support staff, I have no welfare workers, I have no aides, I have no assistants and I have no money."

In San Diego, judges routinely signed off on annual accountings filed by lawyer Robert Kronmeyer for the estate of his ward, Joshua Bailly. Not until after Bailly's death did a friend become suspicious. Kronmeyer was convicted in 1983 of theft and perjury for taking hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash and bonds.

Most guardians are dedicated, caring people who see that their wards get proper food, clothing, shelter and medical attention. A good guardian can protect against greedy relatives and scheming con men.

Yet if the nation's elderly population jumps 22 percent by century's end, to nearly 35 million, as projected, the problems of guardianship are likely to grow.

While guardianship procedures vary, even from county to county, the laws follow a pattern: A petition is filed, usually by a family member, alleging a person is incompetent and no longer able to care for himself or

■ See ELDERLY, Page 5

Manhattan Rotary names dean Stowe first female member

By Julie Key
Collegian Reporter

On Sept. 10, a single soprano voice rose above more than 200 basses and tenors in the singing of "America" at the Manhattan Rotary Club meeting.

The soprano voice belongs to Dr. Barbara Stowe, dean of the College of Human Ecology, the first female member of the Manhattan Rotary.

"I accepted it (membership) as a vote of confidence. There are many talented, professional women in Manhattan."

—Barbara Stowe

"I accepted it (membership) as a vote of confidence," Stowe said. "There are many talented, professional women in Manhattan."

Rotary is a way in which the business community interacts with the University, she said.

Vernon Larson, president of the Manhattan Rotary and dean of the College of Agriculture, nominated Stowe for membership.

"I felt she was an outstanding woman exhibiting the qualities of leadership expected from our members," Larson said.

The Manhattan chapter has been discussing the admission of women since last November, Stowe said.

In May the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the organization must allow local chapters to admit female members. This ruling came from a California court case challenging the constitutionality of denying women membership in the club.

The Supreme Court ruled the clubs were subject to civil rights protections against discrimination because the clubs are organized for business purposes.

This case prompted the Manhattan group to induct women, Larson said.

"We're stepping forward and it has been well received," he said. The Manhattan Rotary has changed its charter's wording to include women, Larson said.

Before, the charter read a candidate must "be a male of good character," Stowe said. It has been changed to read "an adult person."

The club's national constitution has not been changed, Larson said.

Stowe said she followed the proceedings of the landmark court case.

"I was interested in the possibilities it would provide for professional women," she said.

Her main concern was the chance of real opposition from the men over receiving women into the club, Stowe said.

"I didn't want to be the person to bring that on," she said.

Larson said club members were surveyed and the majority of the men were in favor of admitting

■ See STOWE, Page 12

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Emmys hit marathon length

PASADENA, Calif. — "Promise," a stark drama about mental illness, won five awards at a long-winded Emmy ceremony Sunday, while "L.A. Law" won four awards to help NBC dominate the night.

NBC's "Golden Girls" won as best comedy for the second year, as the network won 16 of the 31 awards handed out Sunday. Its former president, Grant Tinker, won the Governors' Award from the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences.

CBS had 11 awards, including the five for "Promise," and ABC had four.

"L.A. Law," the slick series about high-powered lawyers, was honored as outstanding drama series in its first season. It also won a technical Emmy earlier, for a total of five.

Counting the technical awards distributed earlier, NBC won 32, ABC 19, CBS 15 and PBS 8. Fox Broadcasting, which carried the show for the first time, had none.

Running 20 seconds short of 4 hours, it was the longest Emmy program ever, running well past the 3 hours and 35 minutes of 1978's marathon.

James Woods, who portrayed the schizophrenic brother on the CBS "Hallmark Hall of Fame" presentation, won an acting Emmy, beating out co-star James Garner, who was the executive producer.

"Promise" also yielded awards for director Glenn Jordan, supporting actress Piper Laurie and writers Richard Friedenburg, Tennyson Flowers and Kenneth Blackwell.

"I never saw a crew work so hard and fell so much for a particular project," said Garner, who accepted the Emmy for outstanding special program.

"We felt we were bringing a disease — schizophrenia — into the open for people to look at, to see and to feel, and for that we are grateful," Garner said.

Bruce Willis of "Moonlighting" and Sharon Gless of "Cagney and Lacey" won Emmys for acting in a dramatic series.

Gena Rowlands was honored as best actress in a dramatic special for "The Betty Ford Story" on ABC.

Rue McClanahan of NBC's "Golden Girls" won for best comedy actress; co-star Betty White won last year.

Michael J. Fox of NBC's "Family Ties" won best comedy actor for the second year.

Sticking out his tongue and then staging a swaggering filibuster, Willis thanked everyone associated with the show, his mother and his inspirations: Al Pacino's performance in "The Godfather" and the Three Stooges.

Gless won her second consecutive award; her partner, Tyne Daley, had won the three previous years.

"It is lovely the second time around," said Gless, who said she became teary-eyed on stage because she was thinking of her father, who is hospitalized.

The creators of NBC's "L.A. Law," Steven Bochco and Terry Louise Fisher, won for writing and Gregory Hoblit was honored for directing the show's pilot. Alfre Woodward won an Emmy as best guest performer for her portrayal of a rape victim in the pilot.

John Larroquette of NBC's "Night Court" won his third Emmy for his supporting role. Other early NBC winners included Jackee of "227," Bonnie Bartlett of "St. Elsewhere," Gary David Goldberg and Alan Unger for writing in "Family Ties" and John Cleese for a guest role on "Cheers."

Joan Rivers, dressed in black as she made her first television appearance since the death of her husband, Edgar Rosenberg, received prolonged applause but she didn't crack any jokes as she presented the award to Larroquette.

Man sets himself on fire

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A man poured gasoline over his body and lit himself on fire in a crowded restaurant Saturday night, sending screaming patrons running for the exits, officials said.

The man, who appeared to be in his late 20s or early 30s, was reported in critical condition Sunday, officials said. Hospital and fire officials said they would not release the man's name at the request of family members.

After pouring two gallons of gasoline over his body, the man ignited himself with a cigarette lighter, then walked through the center of Lucille's restaurant, a popular eatery in the trendy Westport section of Kansas City, fire officials said.

The fire panicked many of the restaurant's 85 patrons and 17 employees.

Two patrons suffered slight injuries from flying glass in the scramble of people trying to get out of the restaurant, said John Germann, a Kansas City Fire Department spokesman.

The glass apparently was from a window that had broken from the heat of the fire, Germann said.

When firefighters arrived about three minutes later, they put out the flames on the man, but by then the fire had spread through much of the restaurant, gutting all the interior except the kitchen area, Germann said.

On Sunday, the man was listed in critical condition with third-degree burns on 60 percent of his body, said Jan Tucker, a nursing supervisor at the University of Kansas Medical Center in Kansas City, Kan.

Chances 'good' for arms pact

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has a chance to reach an agreement with the Soviet Union on reducing long-range strategic offensive nuclear arsenals before it leaves office, administration and Senate leaders agreed Sunday.

"I think there is a 50-50 chance they will get an agreement, at least in principle," Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

"Now getting it ratified (by the Senate) during that time frame is an entirely different question," Nunn added. He did not elaborate.

On the same program, Frank C. Carlucci, President Reagan's national security assistant, said, "I would share Sen. Nunn's view that we have a chance of doing this, and I think the Soviets themselves have said there is a chance of doing it."

"It's going to require a lot of work, but we agreed to intensify the effort," Carlucci said.

In announcing the agreement Friday on intermediate-range missiles in Europe, Reagan said he hoped that it would be followed by a more far-reaching pact covering strategic forces, which include intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, interviewed on "This Week with David Brinkley" on ABC-TV, declined to predict whether a strategic arms agreement would be reached except to say that "maybe" it could be done.

"The strategic arms are the big threat," Shultz said. Asked what the chances were, he said, "I don't know what Jimmy the Greek is quoting right now."

"I know that the right way to go about it is to work hard on it, and that's what we're doing, and I have a sense that the Soviets are ready to work hard on it, too, so maybe we'll get there. We're sure going to try."

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "On The Verge" by Eric Overmyer at 8 p.m. Sept. 24-26, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1-3 at Nichols Theatre.

STUDENT TEACHERS for Spring 1988 should pick up and return student teaching assignment request forms to Blumont 13 before Sept. 25.

"STUDENTS THAT BACK THE CATS" sign-up starts Sept. 23 at 10:30 a.m. in the Union for the bus trip to the K-State-Missouri game Oct. 10. Cost is $25 and covers ticket and transportation.

TODAY

ALPHA KAPPA PSI PLEDGES meet at 6 p.m. in Union 206. Anyone interested is welcome to come.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF HEATING, REFRIGERATION AND AIR CONDITIONING ENGINEERS meets at 7 p.m. in Durland 173.

MANHATTAN NATIONAL ORGANIZATION FOR WOMEN meets at 7 p.m. in Union 205. Guest speaker Debby Brown will speak on "Feminism is a Continuous Challenge."

FINANCE CLUB meets at 5 p.m. at Dean Pohlman's house for a pool party.

MARSHALL SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATION DEADLINE is 8:15 a.m. in the Dean's office in Eisenhower Hall.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Garth Winston Boyd at 3:30 p.m. in the Veterinary Medical Science building 235. The topic is: "Behavioral, Genetic and Reproductive Factors Associated With Servicing Capacity In Yearling Beef Bulls."

BETA ALPHA PSI meets at 7 p.m. in Union Big 8 room.

PRE-LAW CLUB meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 207. The speaker will be Washburn Law School professor Michael Barbara.

FARM HOUSE LITTLE SISTERS meet at 9 p.m. at Farm House to sign up for Little Sister Olympics.

CHIMES JUNIOR HONORARY meets at 9 p.m. in Union 208.

ALPHA PI MU meets at 7 p.m. in Durland Industrial Engineering library.

STAR RIDERS meet at 7:30 p.m. in Section 130.

SENATE COMMUNICATION COMMITTEE meets at 7 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

TUESDAY

BLUE KEY informational meeting on Tuesday for Homecoming representatives at 7 p.m. in the Union Little Theater and 7:30 p.m. for the Body Building representatives in Ahearn Field House.

APPAREL AND TEXTILE MARKETING INTEREST GROUP meets at 7 p.m. in Justin 326 for elections and a guest speaker.

INSTANT REPLAY MONDAY

2-FER STEINS

99¢ LATE NITE NACHOS

(REGULAR), 11-12

MONDAY NITE FOOTBALL ON 5 TV's

619 N. 12th, Aggieville

Movie Quik
is here

Movie Rentals $1.99
Video Players $4.99

44 oz. 99¢

OPEN 24 HOURS 1445 ANDERSON

Wichita Family Planning Inc.

Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services

Free Pregnancy Testing

Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

Hair Unlimited

Welcomes ... Dana, Rita and Jolyn to their staff of Hair Care Professionals. Formerly of Joyce's Hair Tamers. They welcome all previous and new clients to stop by.

For appointment call 537-4528. 1330 Westloop

Dana Rita Jolyn

Record SALE

September 14-26

k-state union bookstore

Ballard's

Headquarters for your dance and exercise apparel

softouch DANSKIN

leotards, tights & trunks

Capezio

ballet and toe shoes

BALLARD'S in 1218 Moro
AGGIEVILLE 539-2441

BUSHWACKERS

THE FUNDRIKERY

DISCOVER THE FUN

Comedy Invasion

Every Mon. & Tues. at 9 p.m.

Tonight

Billy Jaye

along with Brian Burgess

*This will be Billy's fourth appearance here. Always a Manhattan favorite.

Show 9 p.m. Office 539-4321

Tickets $2 Bar 539-9727

WE DELIVER

5 p.m.- Midnight (M-S)
Noon - Midnight (Sun.)

Sub & Stuff

Sandwich Shop

537-DELI

RIP & MO'S

AUTHENTIC

NEW YORK DELI

We're open for lunch and dinner, serving whole and half sandwiches, homemade potato chips, homemade cheesecake, pasta salads and MORE!

mon.-thurs. 11am-11pm
fri.&sat. 11am-1am
sun. 11am-10pm

Also visit the Back Door Bar (entrance at the rear of Rip and Mo's), open at 5pm nightly, and Saturday at noon.

RIP & MO'S

new york deli

710 N. Manhattan, Aggieville tel. 539-9706, OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Crustacean victor in contest

By Brenda Badostain
Collegian Reporter

Plenty of sun, sand and surf were the main ingredients for nearly 200 architecture students Friday afternoon at Broken Arrow Ranch at Tuttle Creek Reservoir.

The students were competing in the annual Sandcastle Charette sponsored by the American Institute of Architecture Students.

For nearly four hours, 19 teams used buckets, shovels, dustpans, cups and anything else they could find to mold the sand into prize-winning creations.

This was the fifth annual competition, said Ron Fiegenschuh, fifth-year student in architecture and president of AIAS.

"But we don't know why it started," he said.

The charette is not as serious as some people might think, said Jon Blanchard, fifth-year student in landscape architecture.

"I'm not sure if the freshmen realize that it's just for fun, that it's not serious," he said. "We're not calling it competition, that's kind of a scare word."

Fiegenschuh said a lot of the fun of the charette is just getting to know people.

"There's a lot of new freshmen this year, and we're trying to get them involved in the organization and get them to know upper-level people so they (upperclassmen) can help them with classes, class schedules and advising," he said.

This year there were two awards, Fiegenschuh said. The first-place entry received the Golden Pail award and the second-place entry received the Silver Spade award.

The Golden Pail award went to the entry "Fred, The Rock Lobster." Fred's creators were fifth-year architecture students Richa Wilson, Tommy Hadler, Kerry Gaffney, Russ Hamlet, Lenny Clark, Tim Wall and Bob Kennaley and fifth-year landscape architecture student Steve Stockman.

Creators of the second place entry, "Ernie Gets Eaten," were Fiegenschuh; Ana Caguin, Alan Wilding, Neil Eidemiller and Joel Jacobsen, fifth-year students in interior architecture; Chad Herd, fifth-year student in landscape architecture; Brent Hance, sophomore in pre-design professions; Joe Schnieders, fifth-year student in architecture; and Blanchard.

The team of architecture students that created "Fred, The Rock Lobster," cool down in Tuttle Creek Reservoir. The team won the Golden Pail award at the fifth annual Sandcastle Charette Friday evening.

DON'T FORGET

For your added convenience
LAFENE HEALTH CENTER
is expanding their service hours
Effective Monday, Sept. 14
New Clinic Hours—8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

•limited staffing over noon hours

HELP WANTED

We are looking for people
with Creative Minds

CALL

ACE

537-3868

For More Information

ATTENTION

YOU CAN STILL MAKE RESERVATIONS

for Organization Group Pictures
for the Royal Purple.
Hurry—so you can get the time
and date you want!

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

Tuesdays & Thursdays
55¢ draws

Coors Light
&
Budweiser
on tap
at the
3rd St. Pub

Don't Worry
About Your Weight...

Do Something
About It

Ask About Our
Weight Control
Classes

Fall Schedule:

Monday
3:30-4 p.m.
Wednesday
3:30-4 p.m.

Lafene Health Center
Room 122
For more information
call 532-6544

The Station
STADIUM
NIGHT
MONDAY

$1 STADIUM
BEERS
(32 oz!)

25¢ BAR
BURGERS
OR 6 FOR $1.39, 5-12 p.m.

MONDAY NIGHT
FOOTBALL ON THE BIG SCREEN

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Bork testimony continues; nomination still in question

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — After the first week of his confirmation hearings, Robert H. Bork's chances of becoming a Supreme Court justice remain as much in doubt as the effect his extraordinary five days of testimony packs for future nomination fights.

As the Senate Judiciary Committee prepares to hear from Bork's backers and detractors in the hearings' second phase, key questions are unanswered:

■ Will the impressions Bork created in his bid to win approval by a majority of the committee's 14 members be bolstered or eroded as the hearings continue?

■ What effect will the committee's vote, still weeks off, have when the nomination reaches the full Senate?

■ Has the Senate now established beyond a doubt the propriety of asking a Supreme Court nominee about his or her judicial ideology and political beliefs, and then voting based on those views?

■ Has Bork's willingness to provide answers to such queries, a break from recent precedent, set the model for future nominees?

Among the committee's eight Democrats and six Republicans, Bork appears likely to win the support of five Republicans and attract negative votes from five Democrats.

Numerous groups already have spent millions lobbying for and against Bork.

Groups including the National Organization for Women, the National Abortion Rights Action League, the AFL-CIO, the American Civil Liberties Union and the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights will urge the Senate to reject Bork's nomination.

ATTENTION!

Due to a production error, a few of the '87-'88 Programmers have the pages 65-80 missing. Please check your Programmer. If yours is not complete, please bring it to the Activities Center, K-State Union 3rd floor, Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. It will be fixed and returned to you the following day. (Monday if turned in Friday) Corrections will be made through September 30. Thank you for your support and we regret any inconvenience this has caused.

k-state union
upc promotions

PUTT-PUTT
for the fun of it across from Wal-Mart

Silver Reed EZ 20

Reg. 199.95 Now 179.95

Multi-Lingual Keyboard
Relocation
Correction Memory
Slip-in Typewheels (Pica or elite)

Hull Business Machines

AGGIEVILLE'S FIRST ANNUAL CHILI COOKOFF, SEPT. 26, 1987

Sponsored by
Stroh's, Stroh's Light, KQLA and the Aggieville Merchants Association

aggieville

CHILI COOKOFF
1987

CATEGORIES INCLUDE

living groups
competition chili
homestyle chili
specialty chili

CONTESTS, FUN, PRIZES

pinata contest, 11:00am-4:00pm
live music by "full house," 11am-1:30pm
pepper eating contest, 1:00pm
jalepeno pepper toss, 1:30pm
mr. potentate chili pepper pageant, 2:00pm
ms. chili pepper beauty pageant, 2:30pm
live, "back porch country band," 2-4:00pm
best booth award, 3:15pm
spirit award, 3:45pm

for all entry information contact, 776-8050

STROH LIGHT Stroh's KQLA 104 Aggieville

Finally,
a great pizza
delivered.

1118 Laramie 539-5303
GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special
$10.99/$8.99 plus tax

LARGE COMBO PIZZA
or up to 4 toppings
Original Crust
Plus FREE 20 oz. drink!
4 drinks with large
3 drinks with medium
Offer good Monday through
Wednesday only.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery (no added delivery charge). Not valid with other promotional offers. Limited Delivery Area.

Offer Expires 10/07/87

Large Pizza for a Medium Price

Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for the price of a medium. Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery. Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on refillable jug offer. On Sunday your choice: either use this coupon or take advantage of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one.

GODFATHER'S PIZZA

Offer Expires 10/11/87

2 for $12

Super Pepperoni or Four Toppings
(The Super Pepperoni with more pepperoni than ever before or The Four Toppings with sausage, pepperoni, onions, and green peppers)
Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery
Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1.00 for delivery. Limited Delivery Area.

GODFATHER'S PIZZA

Offer Expires 10/11/87

Hot Slice™ 2 for $2

Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas by the slice for $2! Combo or Pepperoni
Dine-in or Carryout
Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

GODFATHER'S PIZZA

Offer Expires 10/09/87

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, September 21, 1987 ■ Page 4

Founding ideals floundering in society

"I hold it that a little rebellion now and then is a good thing... It is a medicine necessary for the sound health of government."

—Thomas Jefferson

To some it may be a surprise that Thomas Jefferson, one of the founding fathers and possibly America's greatest statesmen, subscribed to the above opinion. Were he alive today, Jefferson would undoubtedly be appalled at the veneration of a bigot such as Oliver North, and mortified to see the antiquated ideologies of Ronald Reagan ruling in 20th century America.

Jefferson advocated radical thoughts

Thomas Jefferson was an influential character in early American history, helping assure to all citizens the right to participate in the political life of our nation. He advocated radical republicanism and believed in equality for all. He was in favor of small communities where life would be more personal, and the common good was one of his main preoccupations. Jefferson's republicanism was never hostile to the pursuit of individual freedom; he believed individual rights and free choices were basic ingredients to responsible citizenship.

Commentary

MICHAEL NICHOLS
Collegian Columnist

Why is it that we have strayed so far from Thomas Jefferson's ideals? The United States of America, as we know it today, is a far cry from the republican model he had in mind. This country is supposedly based on the concept of democracy — one of the most powerful political ideas in history. But, unfortunately, democracy means many different things to many different people.

Representing the oldest constitutional democracy, many American leaders have seen fit to use the ideology of democracy as their main weapon since World War I, when we emerged as a leading world power. Our destiny, as we have been told to the point of boredom from Woodrow Wilson to Kennedy to Reagan, is to shine the light of democracy upon the people of the world — even if it blinds them. However, these very people who live to spread democracy everywhere, seem unaware (intentionally perhaps) of the fact that they are preaching contradictions. One nation cannot impose democracy upon another — it just doesn't work that way. We cannot have the population of a specific country choose their form of government by physically forcing a leadership of our choice upon them. We must identify American involvement in Third World nations then, as a selfish campaign to assure our dominance in international affairs, not as a humanitarian effort to promote democracy.

For example, let us examine Nicaragua. The plight of Nicaragua is very similar to that of many of its Central American neighbors. The whole area has become a convenient battleground for what Washington calls an East vs. West conflict, in which we righteously defend it from the "Red Threat." Any popular movement for self-determination in Central America is labeled as communist, Soviet-controlled, and eventually calls for our involvement.

It seems to matter little that all of the countries in the area were at one time or another exploited by Americans, be they individuals or conglomerates, whose personal financial interests took priority over the victim nations and their peoples. From the dictatorship of William Walker in Nicaragua in the 1850s to the economic control of the United and Standard Fruit companies over Honduras and Guatemala as early as 1912, we viewed the area as a playground where easy fortunes were made.

Whenever the people rise in defiance of foreign exploitation and corrupt leadership, we hurry to suppress them. In Nicaragua, despite the fact that many Sandinista leaders are communist, the revolution there was, much like ours, an expression of nationalism. Critics of the Nicaraguan revolution state that, unlike ours, it led to drastic social changes, threatening the safety of neighboring nations. However, one cannot criticize social changes in Central America without taking the plight of the people into consideration.

Poverty, illiteracy and hunger have become a way of life for millions of Latin Americans, and any government which can alleviate the suffering of the people will be welcomed. What our government's fears ultimately represent, is the notion that changes in Central American societal structure may pose a threat to the American way of life. Our national interest lies in preserving the status quo, disregarding the fact that it may be unacceptable to millions of people.

Any allusion to democracy is merely a poor excuse to justify our intrusion in Central America. President Reagan continually refers to the "restoration of true democracy" in Nicaragua, when asking for Contra-aid. What democracy is he referring to? Surely not the corrupt dictatorship of a pathetic fool, supported by our military might.

By recently rejecting the Arias peace plan, Ronald Reagan confirmed his disdain for the condition of human life in Central America. We are not promoting democracy, we are prolonging hunger and poverty. By equating the Contras with our own founding fathers and patronizing their terrorism, we are seriously harming the welfare of all Central American peoples.

Students should decide fate of money, Holton

In 1983, Student Senate, acknowledging the need to bring Holton Hall into compliance with state building codes and improve its shoddy appearance through restoration, approved a fee to collect the money necessary to finance its renovation.

That the student body would assume the financial burden for Holton's renovation could be viewed as a sign of students taking responsibility for themselves. Holton, located between Eisenhower and Blumont halls, houses the Counseling Center, U-Learn and the Women's Resource Center along with other student services offices.

It must also be viewed as a sign of realism on the part of Student Senate since the K-State administration made it clear there were no plans to recommend to the Legislature that necessary repairs be performed.

For each semester beginning with fall 1983, full-time students have paid $3, part-time students $1 and those enrolled in less than six hours 25 cents per hour toward the $780,000 senate thought was necessary for Holton's complete renovation.

This year senators were told by the project architect the full renovation will cost $1,069 million. And the Student Services Support Fee will have to be continued for 76 months if a good-as-new Holton is still senate's desire. Two other plans, each with a lower cost, were also presented to senate.

The higher cost of a full renovation was shocking news since it appeared the days of the Student Services Support Fee were numbered, especially considering by the end of this year $640,000 will have been collected.

Student Senate will approve one of two bills it has developed to respond to the Holton dilemma at its Thursday night meeting.

The first bill would continue collection of the fee until the money required for Holton's renovation is in hand. The bill would also create the Holton Hall Council to monitor work on the building and advise Student Senate on any proposed changes in its use.

The second bill will place a referendum on the ballot for the November Student Governing Association election. In the referendum, students would be asked to approve or disapprove Holton's renovation.

If students disapproved the renovation, senate would continue to collect the fee but would use the money to deal with other problems on campus.

Suddenly, the administration is showing renewed interest in Holton's condition without showing a desire to pay for any improvements.

Robert S. Krause, vice president for institutional advancement, would seem to be pressuring senate to provide for Holton's full renovation. He has told senators that neither of the lower-priced plans would provide space for the Counseling Center to remain in Holton.

Krause is recommending closure of the in-patient care facility in Lafene Student Health Center and moving the counseling center into those vacated rooms if the $1,069 million renovation plan is not financed. It would also seem that the Counseling Center may be moved no matter what senate does.

The goal of the Student Services Support Fee was to improve the environment in which student services are provided. But once Holton is improved, student services may be moved to other buildings.

Students should have the opportunity to approve or disapprove the renovation of Holton Hall. After all, though it may not be their building, it is their money.

IN BEIRUT, THERE IS A DANGEROUS ELEMENT TRYING TO ARM EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD.

IN AMERICA IT'S CALLED THE NRA

President Arias will need luck selling Central American plan

K-State is honored today to have Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez visit our campus to deliver the 77th Landon Lecture. He is just one of many important figures the lecture series has drawn to a region that normally doesn't draw much international attention, save the occasional Aggieville riot.

Arias is a hot item these days, due to his authorship of the Central American peace plan signed recently by the Central American presidents. This plan has been widely hailed in many circles, except perhaps those traveled by Ronald Reagan, who sees his "kill a baby for democracy" program threatened by the possibility of peace in the region.

Most people identify this peace plan with the conflict in Nicaragua, as they should considering the millions of dollars we are spending, not to mention the millions of lives we have managed to screw up in the process. But Nicaragua is only part of the plan. Another conflict this plan hopes to resolve is the ongoing murder and repression in El Salvador, a treacherous hellhole created by the U.S. government and largely ignored by the American media.

To understand the situation in El Salvador today, we must first understand some key points in its history. Probably the most influential event in Salvadoran history is an event known as "Matanza," or Massacre. In 1932 several groups of Salvadoran peasants, mostly of Indian heritage, rose up to protest the deplorable semi-slave labor conditions they were forced to live under by the few wealthy families who owned the country.

In short order, this uprising was put down with violence not unlike that used by Pol Pot in Cambodia. The army slaughtered an estimated 15,000 to 30,000 people in just two weeks — shooting or hacking to death anyone wearing Indian dress. Not only did this event cause Indian-style clothing to go out of vogue rather quickly, but it also let the peasants know who was in charge and that those in charge would not hesitate to use extremely violent methods against anyone who challenged their authority.

Commentary

KIRK CARAWAY
Collegian Columnist

The people lived in terror for years afterward. But when the 1970s rolled around, the government decided it was time to remind the people again, so they started "Matanza II." This was to be a little less conspicuous than 1932, but just as bloody and effective. Death squads began selectively assassinating labor leaders, opposition politicians and peasant organizers until by 1980, these death squad victims were numbering more than 1,000 a month. (Remember, this is a country of only 5 million people.)

Then came Jose Napoleon Duarte, who also gave a Landon Lecture at K-State a few years ago. He was elected president of El Salvador in 1982 in an "election" where the people were forced to vote, since not having a voting stamp on your ID card was considered subversive and could cost you your life. All ballots were numbered and put into transparent ballot boxes where the National Guardsmen could see who you voted for while they "guarded" the polling places from leftist rebels. These are the same guardsmen who cooperate and/or actively participate in death squad activities. In other words, the election was about as democratic as those held in the Soviet Union, but bloodier.

One of the interesting things about the so-called election is that Duarte didn't actually win. When the ballots were tallied, a right-wing coalition joined behind Roberto D'Aubuisson to give him a majority. D'Aubuisson was the ARENA party candidate, a member of the group known as the White Warriors Union — kind of reminds you of the Ku Klux Klan? He campaigned on the slogan of "another '32," which refers to "Matanza," and was widely reported to be the head of the death squads.

The United States could not afford to have such an openly brutal person in office (former U.S. ambassador to El Salvador Robert White called him a "pathological killer") so U.S. officials rigged it so Duarte could take office, over the objections of arch conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, who liked D'Aubuisson. While Duarte holds the title of president, it is D'Aubuisson and other military officers who hold the real power.

The war in El Salvador still continues, thousands of people are being killed by American-built helicopters and fighter-bombers, while President Reagan calls the country a "symbol of democracy in the region."

So, good luck, President Arias. You are going to need it to deal with that second-rate actor who thinks he's president but just can't remember.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Derm Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielzer

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
CAMPUS EDITORS
Jenny Chalk
Chad Sanborn
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR
Judy Lundstrom

FEATURES EDITOR
Susan Staggensborg
AGRI-BUSINESS EDITOR
Janet Swanson
GOVERNMENT EDITOR
Candy Leonard
ARTS/ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR
Becky Howard
SPORTS EDITOR
Jeff Rapp

COPY EDITORS
Peggy Aschliman
Betsy Edwards
Lori Siegstad

STAFF WRITERS
Tom Denzel
Jennifer Dorsch
Lori Lindstrom
Alison Neely

COLUMNISTS
Judd Annis
Kirk Caraway
Doug Folk

REVIEWER
Gary Leffler

SPORTS WRITERS
Chase Clark
Bill Lang

Patxi Paxson
Jodi Swengel
Debbie Whitson

Mike Krueger
Mike Nichols
Jeff Schrag

Tom Morris
Chris Wilhelm

SPORTS COLUMNISTS

Tom Perin

David Svoboda

PHOTOGRAPHERS

Brad Camp

Jim Dietz

Brad Fantshier

Brett Hacker

Gary Lytle

GRAPHIC ARTIST

Mary Ward

ADVERTISING GRAPHIC ARTIST

Alex Menoz

EDITORIAL BOARD

Jeff Bielzer

Kirk Caraway

Christine Doll

Derm Johnson

Chad Sanborn

ADVERTISING MANAGER

Judy Gotsz

ASST. ADVERTISING MANAGER

Jede Allenheiligen

REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVE

Bill Shorbert

CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER

Barry Stufen

SALES REPRESENTATIVES

Donna Adelhardt

Stacey Durrell

Cathy Doud

CLASSIFIED SALES REPS

Tracy Mayhew

Jackie Clements

Janelle Dennis

DIRECTOR

Dave Adams

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR

Gloria Friesland

NEWS ADVISER

Constance Fulkerson

GRAB. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR

David Svoboda

ADV. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR

Wanda Haynie

Andy Nelson
Steve Rasmussen
Greg Vogel
Steve Wolgast

Bocky Lucas
Judy Lundstrom
Paul Paxson
Chad Sanborn

Jennifer Kopp
Melissa Paul
Eric Snell

Tracy Mayhew

Jackie Clements

Janelle Dennis

Dave Adams

Gloria Friesland

Constance Fulkerson

David Svoboda

Wanda Haynie

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of K-State Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, K-State Hall 109, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

GUARDIANSHIP: AN AILING SYSTEM

Guardian's authority to transfer wards questioned

By The Associated Press

CHENEY, Kan. — In the proposed order submitted to Sedgwick County District Judge Willis Wall, guardian Charlotte Ringer sought authority to move 11 of her wards from the Cheney Golden Age Home to another nursing home in Harper, 30 miles away.

It said only that the Cedar Crest home, where Ringer's friend Shirley Smith had become administrator after resigning a similar post at Cheney, was "considered a more suitable facility at this time."

Wall signed the order on Aug. 2, 1984, and 10 of the wards were moved that same day — the other had been transferred two days earlier.

George Ball, who succeeded Smith as Golden Age administrator in early 1984, said many of the wards were upset by the move, which Doris Stout of the Kansas Division of Aging called a "travesty of justice."

"It was just like a dozen cattlemen rode into a range and rounded up some cattle and put them in a chute," Ball said. "Some of them were fighting, agitated, crying. The effect that it had on the residents who remained was almost devastating.

"They had a van and a pickup and a car," he said. "They just threw all their belongings in plastic bags and threw them out into the pickup. And they herded the people. Whether they wanted to go or not, they went. And there were several who did not want to go."

"The whole point would be whether or not they should have been moved so precipitously," said Stout, whose agency began an investigation after Stanley Benson, board chairman of the Golden Age home, wrote a letter of complaint to Kansas Attorney General Bob Stephan. "There should have been more warning, and more preparation of the individuals."

Ball and Benson said the wards were not told in advance of Ringer's plans to move them.

"They were given notice," countered Ringer, saying people with mental problems and trauma in their lives need special handling.

"Each case is handled individually," she said. "You cannot put a time on how far ahead you can tell someone."

Her primary concern, Ringer said, was the welfare of her wards.

"I told the new administrator that as long as they had proper care I would not make a change," she said. "I left them there for quite some time, and it got to the point that I felt they were not getting the proper care."

Ball and Benson said Ringer never complained to them about any problems with the care of her wards. Stout, the aging department's long-term care ombudsman, said there were some care issues "but nothing that we could see that should have resulted in such a precipitous move."

Judge Wall, since retired, said he saw nothing wrong with the transfers. He called Ringer, a guardian since 1967, a "sharp gal" and said he thought she "just got crosswise with that administrator."

"If she feels they're not being treated properly she can go ahead and do that," Wall said. "I never object to that. ... I just merely rubber-stamp it."

Elderly

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

herself. The person is evaluated, and the court rules on the petition.

If granted, guardianship reduces these "wards of the court" to the status of legal infants who may no longer drive a car, vote or, in many states, hire an attorney. "A prisoner has more legal rights," said Winsor Schmidt, a Memphis State University professor who has studied guardianship in 13 states.

■ Once shuffled into guardianship, the elderly have few ways out. Some states bar wards from hiring attorneys because they have been ruled incompetent. Only 17 states require courts to regularly check the status of the wards. Some judges are reluctant to reopen cases to remove guardianships.

In Grand Junction, Colo., Vivian Steiner, 68, has written to the judge who placed her under guardianship, contending she has recovered from medical difficulties and can leave the nursing home where she is confined. Pitkin County District Judge J.E. DeVilbiss hasn't answered her, standing by his 1984 ruling that she is incompetent.

"The guardianship is done and it's done unless someone calls it to the court's attention," DeVilbiss said.

The AP found institutions are increasingly using guardianship as an answer to a variety of problems. Hospitals, faced with new Medicare regulations limiting coverage for extended care, use guardianship to move patients to nursing homes. Nursing homes require guardianship to ensure someone will pay the bills.

But critics challenge using such a harsh remedy to guarantee payments.

"You don't need someone to strip you to the rights of a 5-year-old to check you into a nursing home," said David Grant, director of the Guardianship Diversion Project, a Los Angeles group promoting less restrictive alternatives for the elderly.

Altmore courts now use an expedient procedure that allows hospitals to file petitions of guardianship on elderly patients when move them to nursing homes before the petitions are approved.

While the hospitals and the courts say this is simply an efficient way of handling patients, Jerry Dresner, an attorney with the Maryland Disability Law Center, calls it "after-the-fact due process."

Nursing homes, hospitals and doctors are also using guardianship as a hedge against liability in tough decisions such as amputations and disconnecting life support systems.

"If I ran a nursing home, I'd insist on it," said Pat Graves, a social worker who runs a senior citizens program at an Albuquerque, N.M., hospital.

Federally mandated adult protective services programs in each state have created a cadre of social workers vigorously checking reports of abuse, "self-neglect" and irrational behavior among the elderly. But their eagerness sometimes leads them to file guardianship petitions on old people who simply may be having trouble keeping house or keeping track of bills.

"The whole problem with guardianship as it is practiced today is that they take someone who's got a bit of a problem and put them away," said Theresa Bertram, director of the Cathedral Foundation, a Jacksonville, Fla., charity offering support services to try to keep the elderly out of guardianship.

As America ages, the system faces change. Medical advances have led to longer lives — and more cases of incompetence. As social services are pushed to the breaking point, many turn to guardianship. The AP has even found petitions for guardianship in AIDS cases filtering into probate court.

To be sure, most guardians are honest and well-intentioned.

"Guardianship is an important, useful service that is inappropriate to almost everybody," said Grant. "There's going to be a difficult period in which people learn that guardianship just doesn't work."

TUESDAY: Being declared incompetent in 15 minutes.

VOLUNTEER!

WHO, ME?

Yes, you could become a student volunteer, those who make U-Learn the student service run by students! Are you a dependable, ENERGETIC person who enjoys helping others? Then being a U-Learn volunteer is for you! For a few hours a week not only does this give you the opportunity to meet new people, but also keeps you up on what's happening on campus and have a GREAT TIME! Come check us out in the basement of Holton Hall rm. 2, or call us at 532-6442. We're looking forward to meeting you!

**NOTICE OUR NEW HOURS****
 M-Th 9am-10pm, Fri 9am-3pm
 Sat 10am-2pm and Sun 6pm-11pm (phones only)

Before you choose a long distance service, take a close look.

You may be thinking about choosing one of the newer carriers over AT&T in order to save money.

Think again.

Since January 1987, AT&T's rates have dropped more than 15% for direct-dialed out-of-state calls. So they're lower than you probably realize. For information on specific rates, you can call us at 1 800 222-0300.

And AT&T offers clear long distance connections, operator assistance, 24-hour customer service, and immediate credit for wrong numbers. Plus, you can use AT&T to call from anywhere to anywhere, all over the United States and to over 250 countries.

You might be surprised at how good a value AT&T really is. So before you choose a long distance company, pick up the phone.

AT&T

The right choice.

New New New
CAR WASH
 FOUR BAYS
 619 N. 3rd St.
 Across from Pizza Hut
 Brand new and no waiting

The Ladies Club ★
 For Women Only!
 Check It Out!
 1104 Waters
 Manhattan 776-6469

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
 that tastes like Ice Cream
 but with 80% less fat!
 —FREE SAMPLES—
 I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
 Frozen Yogurt Sticks
 OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
 Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
 Neuhaus Towers—Aggieville

Pope visits Eskimos Promotes native rights

By The Associated Press

FORT SIMPSON, Northwest Territories — Welcomed by a drum song and a sacred fire, Pope John Paul II kept a promise Sunday by visiting this subarctic outpost, where he spoke in support of native rights and warned Indians not to let "instability" undermine their society.

A steady drizzle fell as the pope's plane arrived at an airstrip from Edmonton, Alberta, at the end of his 10-day U.S. tour. But the sky brightened and a rainbow appeared as he was greeted by Indian and Canadian officials.

Then he drove in a papal mini-van down a dirt road to the settlement on the banks of the mile-wide Mackenzie River. There an estimated 4,000 Dene Indians huddled under white raincoats in front of a 55-foot tepee, which had been erected three years ago as a podium for a papal Mass and never dismantled.

The celebrations began even before the pope's arrival with the lighting of a sacred fire accompanied by a traditional drum song, the burning of sweet grass and the passing of a peace pipe.

John Paul had scheduled a stop here during a Canadian tour in September 1984, but could not land because of thick fog.

Thousands of Indian followers, whose Roman Catholicism was introduced here 140 years ago by French missionaries, were left bitterly disappointed, despite a statement the pope issued in support of native rights. The visit had been politically as well as spiritually important to the 15,000 Dene, who lay claim to 450,000 square miles where their forefathers hunted and fished.

The chair on which the pope sat during the Mass was made from moose antlers and hide. From it, the Holy Father could look out over a riverside plateau filled with pews and chairs for Indian elders and faithful. Past a giant wooden cross pointing down river, the pope could see the river and a glimpse of autumn gold in the white birch on the opposite bank.

In a 20-minute address delivered before Mass, the pope reaffirmed the church's support for native rights and prayed for a "just agreement" with the Canadian government on protection for those rights in the Constitution.

"I pray that the Holy Spirit will help you all to find the just way so that Canada may be a model for the world in upholding the dignity of the aboriginal peoples," John Paul said.

He also warned Indians — beset by problems of alcoholism, suicide and alienated youth — that human progress does not just mean material well-being.

Construction will begin soon on a cross-campus chilled water line in order to provide more buildings with air conditioning.

The line will carry cooled water from the chilled-water plant north of the Power Plant on campus to buildings, including Anderson Hall, the Waters Hall complex and Willard Hall when it is remodeled, said Vincent J. Cool, associate director of facilities planning.

It will run south between Leasure Hall and Lafene Student Health Center then continue north of Farrell Library and south of Willard Hall to the east side of the new chemistry/biochemistry building under construction near King Hall, he said.

The line will also leave future ties for other buildings which will eventually be air conditioned, including Denison and Seaton halls, he said.

"It (the water line) is essentially a campus utility," Cool said. "This will serve the campus for the next 50 to 100 years."

He said the majority of air conditioned buildings on campus are

Chilled water to cool classes; Plan calls for buried pipeline

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

served underground. This is to preserve the beauty of the campus.

"It adds to the appearance, but it does get a little crowded down there (underground)," Cool said.

There will be some major traffic disruptions, but only as construction of the water line occurs, he said. Different areas of campus will be affected at different times, with the disruption lasting about one month.

As construction continues, sidewalks will be blocked and traffic will be routed around the area, and access to some buildings will be limited for a short period of time, Cool said.

If people working within the buildings are aware of some problem this might create, they should notify the facilities planning office, he said.

"We're not insensitive to people's problems," Cool said.

He said it would have been ideal to do the work during the summer, but the money for the project was not allocated until July 1. This made any bidding for the project before that date impossible.

The starting date of construction is still unknown, Cool said, because the contractor has not yet obtained all the necessary supplies to begin work.

He said construction should be completed by April 1, 1988.

Brother's
AGGIEVILLE

$1 shots for the next 365 days
(closed Sunday)

NOW, HERE'S THE OFFER

Earn $25 for Diarrhea Study

For more information

Lafene Health Center 532-6544

4" & 6" Sandwiches

Ask about our
10% Discounts

*****

	HALF	WHOLE
Sandwiches 1-12, 15, 16	$2.25	$3.50
Kitchen Sink	2.75	4.75
Roast Beef	2.50	4.00

211 S. Seth Childs, Manhattan, Ks. 66502

537-2411

Call Ahead-We'll have it ready

ΑΔΠ Softball Classique
September 26 & 27

Participating fraternities

ΑΤΩ	ΚΣ	ΦΚΤ
ΒΘΠ	ΦΓΔ	ΦΚΘ
ΒΣΨ	ΠΚΑ	ΠΚΦ
ΔΥ	ΣΦΕ	ΔΣΦ
ΔΤΔ	ΣΧ	ΑΚΑ
ΦΗ	ΣΑΕ	ΦΔΘ
ΛΧΑ

Ronald McDonald House

Profits donated to

WE ARE ONLY A
PHONE CALL AWAY

Medical advice is as close as your telephone. If you are uncertain whether your condition is something you can take care of yourself or whether you need to see a physician, you can call LAFENE HEALTH CENTER, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Our professional staff will advise you on the best course of action—either home care or medical care at our facility. The next time you are uncertain what to do, call 532-6544—we are only a phone call away.

Congratulations to the Winners of the Spiketacular ΓΦΒ, ΒΘΠ Volleyball Tournament

Tournament

Men		Women
ΑΤΩ	1st	ΑΔΠ
ΚΣ	2nd	ΑΧΩ
ΤΚΕ	3rd	ΣΣΣ

Motivation

ΦΔΘ	1st	ΚΚΓ
ΦΚΤ	2nd	ΑΧΩ

What's Hot In '87

The convertible hair cut, neat and trim by day. Slicked back or spiked up by night.

Only at
TINA'S Studio 32
FOR HAIR

776-8830
Candlewood Shopping Center

HELEN REDDY

Tom Chapin
Guest Artist

Friday, September 25, 1987, 8 p.m.

General Public: $19, 17, 15 Students/Seniors $16, 14, 12

Box Office open 12 noon-5 p.m. Monday-Friday.
Call 532-6428 to charge tickets to MasterCard or VISA.

Tickets now on sale for:
Amsterdam Guitar Trio
Children's Theatre: Little Women
Central Philharmonic of China
State Ballet of Missouri
Canadian Brass

Saturday, October 3
Wednesday, October 7
Tuesday, October 27
Monday, November 9
Sunday, December 6

6TH ANNIVERSARY PARTY
SEPTEMBER 23-26

WED 23 8:00 PM THE KTPK SMOKY HILL RIVER BAND
9:00 PM DOLLY PARTON LOOK ALIKE CONTEST
1ST PRIZE: $100<sup>00</sup> 2ND PRIZE: RANCH JACKET

THURS 24 8:00 PM THE KTPK SMOKY HILL RIVER BAND
9:00 PM DWIGHT YOAKAM LOOK ALIKE CONTEST
1ST PRIZE: $100<sup>00</sup> 2ND PRIZE: RANCH JACKET

FRI 25
SAT 26 9:00 PM THE CATFISH CHARLIE BAND
PLUS LOTS OF DRAWINGS AND GIVEAWAYS
RANCH JACKETS, T-SHIRTS & THE LIKE

$1 for members
$2 for guests

The Ranch SALOON
A Class A Private Club

3 miles east of Manhattan
on Highway 24

Entertainment

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, September 21, 1987 ■ Page 7

The crisis is not over...

FARM AID

RIGHT: Elsie Ramirez, Lincoln, Neb., displays her support for Farm Aid by waving an American flag. BELOW: Rock legend Neil Young entertains the crowd of 70,000 in the University of Nebraska Memorial Stadium Saturday evening during Farm Aid III.

By Becky Howard
Arts and Entertainment Editor

LINCOLN, Neb. — A massive, pulsating sea of fans filled Memorial Stadium Saturday for a marathon concert to benefit the family farmer.

Farm Aid III brought about 70,000 people to Lincoln for the concert, which featured more than 30 musical artists and celebrity hosts and lasted 10 hours.

Performers included Willie Nelson and John Cougar Mellencamp, creators of Farm Aid. Also performing were Kris Kristofferson, Neil Young, John Denver, Lynn Anderson, Emmylou Harris, Arlo Guthrie, the Fabulous Thunderbirds, William Lee Golden of the Oakridge Boys and many more country and rock entertainers.

Celebrity hosts for the event were Charles Haid of "Hill Street Blues," and Catherine Bach. The first eight hours of the event were televised live on the Nashville Network. The last two hours were shown in syndication through various networks.

Nelson opened the day of performances with "Whiskey River." Nelson's daughter, Susie, also performed a few songs.

Clear skies and moderate temperatures provided a comfortable setting for the crowd that milled, danced, sang and partied in the stands and the field at the stadium.

The musicians performed on a huge, circular stage divided by a photo mural. After each performance, the stage rotated to present the next act which was in place on the other side.

As the day turned to evening, the stadium remained warm with the heat of the crowd and the intensity of the concert as it headed for the "grand finale."

The audience, a diversified group of young and old, unified in a gigantic party.

During the concert's lulls, human waves were created by all 70,000, and beach balls were tossed back and forth in the crowd. At one point the entire stadium was throwing the plastic Farm Aid cups sold at the refreshment stands.

The performance highlights were in the evening, as the fans' enthusiasm grew with performances by Steppenwolf, Joe Walsh, the Fabulous Thunderbirds and Neil Young.

Young performed two songs, one of which he said he purposely had not finished.

"When Willie called and asked me to be a part of this concert, I started to write a song about the family farmer," Young told the crowd. "I didn't finish it because the farmer is not finished."

Young's other selection "This Note's for You," emphasized the fact that the concert's acts were performing without pay.

The Grateful Dead, in concert in New York City's Madison Square Garden, performed live via satellite on a large screen set up in the stadium.

The arrival of John Cougar Mellencamp to perform "Small Town," and "America," turned a wild crowd even wilder, as Mellencamp danced wildly and enthusiastically on the edge of the stage.

The concert's finale brought Nelson, Kristofferson, Mellencamp, Walsh and other stars to sing "This Land is Your Land," followed by a fireworks display.

A fan shows her enthusiasm during the 10-hour concert.

Throughout the concert all the performers stressed the same message: The farm crisis is far from over.

"We're here to spread the word — there is still a farm crisis," John Conlee, country star and chairman for the Farmer's Defense Fund, said. "And it's going to end us all if we don't do something about it."

John Denver spoke of the government's insensitivity toward the American farmer.

"Out of every American's tax dollar, 55 cents goes toward building insecurities (nuclear weapons)," Denver said. "Less than five cents goes toward the productivity of America."

Singer Rita Coolidge spoke for the artists performing: "As long as the crisis continues, the artists will be here," she said. "We're far from out of the woods yet. Farm Aid itself won't do anything. It is just one way to make the public aware, even if only for a week, that there is a crisis."

A Kansas family that had experienced a farm crisis attended their first Farm Aid concert. Dick and Linda Currie of Scandia and their daughter Kellie, 12, were interviewed on national television by Dick Clark and Sarah Purcell, hosts of the event.

"We were so excited to be a part of it," Linda Currie said. "I thought the event went wonderfully. The crowd was receptive, and the stars were very willing to give their time and concern to the cause."

The Curries, now leaders of the Rural Outreach Coalition of Kansas, said becoming involved in the organization helped them overcome their own crisis.

"Helping others is the best way to get through it. Support among each other is the best thing. People don't feel they're so alone that way," Linda said.

Also on hand throughout the day were other leaders of farm organizations, which receive the benefits from Farm Aid.

Dixon and Linda Terry, leaders of the Iowa Farm Unity Coalition, said Farm Aid provides grants and funding for public education and support for farm families.

"I've got the most respect for the entertainers who are involved in Farm Aid," Dixon said. "Their involvement is not superficial. Willie and the Farm Aid entertainers do nothing but raise the money; it is the farm organizations that do the rest."

Dixon said that the rumour of no more Farm Aid concerts may be true.

"This doesn't mean we won't have a need for more concerts — I wish that were true," Dixon said. "It just means that it is up to the American public to work toward changing the government's policies, instead of relying on fundraisers."

Since its beginning in 1985, Farm Aid has provided funding for more than 100 organizations in 40 states. Total grants to organizations since Farm Aid's founding were recently totalled at slightly more than $7 million.

In Kansas, three organizations receive benefits from Farm Aid: Kansas Consultation of Cooperative Churches, Kansas Rural Center, Inc. and Rural Outreach Coalition of Kansas. Funds received go toward emergency assistance, an information hotline, crisis prevention, and development of support programs.

Kansas has received a almost $170,000 in grants from Farm Aid. About $87,500 of that total has gone for food and emergency help; $10,000 for hotlines; $10,000 for outreach programs; and $30,000 for other development programs.

Initial reports stated the concert raised more than $1 million from ticket sales alone. Phone and mail donations are still being tabulated.

Photos by
Greg Vogel

John Cougar Mellencamp performs during the final hour of the event that was held to raise money and heighten awareness for the farm crisis. Past concerts have raised millions.

Guitarist for The Unforgiven plays at the concert, which featured 30 acts.

SportsMonday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, September 21, 1987 ■ Page 8

Steady Cadets march by 'Cats, 41-14

Push-up practice causes fatigue

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

It's traditional for Army fans to do push-ups in the end zone after every score.

After Saturday's game with K-State and 146 push-ups later, either there were some mighty tired Cadet backers or some sports fanatics who ended up in great shape as Army pounded out a 41-14 win over the Wildcats in KSU Stadium.

Army, which lost last week to Holy Cross, was a remarkably improved team, gaining 285 yards on the ground, only five penalties and no turnovers. K-State, on the other hand, was whistled 14 times for violations and had one turnover.

"Obviously, we beat ourselves," K-State Coach Stan Parrish said. "Our kids, I thought at the start of the game, were ready to play...but we made a lot of mental mistakes. That's the difference between winning and losing."

"It was an excellent win for us after losing a week ago," Army Coach Jim Young said. "We didn't play as aggressively as we did last week as we did here today. Defensively and kicking, we saw some great improvements."

"Obviously, we beat ourselves. Our kids, I thought at the start of the game, were ready to play...but we made a lot of mental mistakes. That's the difference between winning and losing."

—Stan Parrish

Army scored on its first possession of the game when Keith Walker nailed a 25-yard field goal to give the Cadets a 3-0 lead. Army had good field position to start with, following the first of several poor punts by the 'Cats, and the Cadets' drive was kept alive twice by K-State defensive penalties.

Penalties and punting are two areas where Parrish said the Wildcats need to show improvement.

"It's really sad, isn't it. You can't kick the ball around 25 yards at this level," said Parrish of K-State's 30.4-yard punting average.

As for the penalties, K-State's coach said it was like a "double-edged sword." Parrish said the players have to play aggressive.

"If I don't get 'em up (emotionally), they slack up."

Army extended its lead to 17-0 at the half on the strength of quarterback Tory Crawford's legs and arm. He scored once on a five-yard run and completed a 38-yard touchdown pass late in the second period to senior tight end Mark Charette.

Crawford, a 5-foot-11, 185-pound senior, rushed for a game-high 126 yards and completed four-of-eight passes for 76 yards and one touchdown. And when the 'Cats keyed on Crawford, it left other players free to run wild.

"We tried to establish the fullback, but K-State picked up on it and left me open (to run)," Crawford said. "After they realized I was open, they started running the free safety to the alley to stop me, which left our passing game wide open."

K-State had an excellent chance to score in the second quarter when Gary Swim had wide receiver John Williams open in the end zone, but Williams dropped the ball.

"The defender got his hand on the ball, but it was still catchable. It was just like the rest of the night. We made a lot of mistakes," Williams said.

Army quarterback Crawford leads troops to lopsided win

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

A good phrase to describe Army's talented senior quarterback Tory Crawford would be: He gets the job done. Crawford did just that in Army's 41-14 win Saturday against K-State.

In rushing for 126 yards on 30 carries, Crawford moved into the sixth spot on Army's career rushing list with 1,988 yards. With nine games remaining on the Army schedule, and the possibility of a tenth game coming in the form of a postseason bowl berth, Crawford is almost assured of moving up on that list.

Crawford is only 110 yards behind the No. 5 man, Doug Black, and is only 969 yards behind the career rushing leader in Army history, Glenn Davis, who won the Heisman Trophy in 1946.

Some of Crawford's best critics are opposing coaches and teams.

Army quarterback Tory Crawford has his head yanked around as K-State linebacker Dwayne Bazel pulls him down for the tackle during the first quarter of the non-conference game Saturday in KSU Stadium. Bazel was called for facemasking on the play. Army defeated the 'Cats 41-14.

Staff/Steve Wolgast

Cadets and fans of Army perform push-ups, traditional after their team scores, following an Army touchdown Saturday night.

Swim, who threw for 143 yards on 17-of-28 passing, was without the services of the speedy Williams in the second half, who sat out with a sprained ankle. Swim's longest completion of the night was 16 yards and at least five of his passes were catchable but dropped.

"We knew we were going to have to score more points than them. In the first half we executed well, but we also had a turnover and a couple of dropped passes," Swim said.

"We had a couple of chances in the first half. You've got to seize those chances," Parrish added.

"We had a couple of balls thrown that looked catchable. You have just got to make those plays."

Army, just as it had done all evening, opened the second half with a long scoring drive. This time, the Cadets drove 72 yards in 13 plays to put them ahead 24-0.

K-State pulled to within 17, 24-7, after Swim hit tight end Kent Dean with a nine-yard scoring toss with 2:20 left in the third quarter. But Army put the game out of reach in the final stanza when Walker hit a 36-yard field goal and Crawford scored on a five-yard run, to put the Cadets ahead 34-7.

Reserve halfback William Kim scored from 29 yards out to give Army a 34-point advantage late in the fourth quarter.

One highlight for K-State was the return of tailback Maurice Henry, who came in for Jordan in the second half. Henry picked up 40 yards on just seven carries and scored the final touchdown from one-yard out with 12 seconds left in the game.

Jordan, who hadn't practiced much after bruising his thigh in the loss to Austin Peay, gained 48 yards on 13 carries. Parrish said

Jordan was healthy, but wanted to give Henry a chance, as he has missed games with injuries the last 1½ years.

"I wanted to let Maurice get in there and see what he could do and I was encouraged from what I saw, but that means we have two pretty good tailbacks," Parrish said.

Henry was disappointed with the loss, but was visibly happy to be part of the Cat attack once again.

"Naturally, I was nervous at first, but after the first few carries, I realized it was the same old me," Henry said.

For K-State, 0-2, it's the same routine of regrouping and preparing for the next opponent. Next week it's Iowa, which beat Iowa State, 48-9, Saturday at Ames.

"It isn't a pretty picture, is it?" Parrish said. "But if we stick together, we'll sneak up on a couple of teams if we can just hang in there."

Army, 1-1, hosts The Citadel next week.

STATISTIC	KSU	ARMY
First Downs	27	17
Rushing Yards	285	153
Passing Yards	73	143
Return Yards	19	11
Att.-Comp.-Int.	8-4-0	28-17-0
Total Yards	358	296
Fumbles-Lost	0-0	1-1
Penalties	5-45	14-115

RUSHING — Army, Crawford 30-126, Barnett 11-35, Mayweather 7-41, Capriotti 8-33, Peterson 2-5, Marks 1-3, Herring 1-0, Jordan 1-10, Babb 3-4, Cass 1-4, Savoy 2-3, Kim 1-29; K-State, Jordan 13-48, Pickett 6-24, Williams 1-10, Lewis 7-48, Henry 7-40, Wilson 2-6, Swim 1-(-2).

PASSING — Army, Crawford 8-4-0, 73; K-State, Swim, 28-17-0, 143.

RECEIVING — Army, Charette 2-50, Jordan 2-23; K-State, Jordan 5-28, Dean 2-25, Blades 2-22, Williams 2-12, Lewis 2-5, Tolbert 2-29, Henry 1-12, Cotton 1-10.

Staff/Brad Camp

Wildcat Head Coach Stan Parrish disagrees with a call made by referees in Saturday night's football game against Army in KSU Stadium.

Iron Man trophy to keep traveling

Dan Biggs, freshman in electrical engineering, ran the obstacle course for the Theta Xi fraternity at Memorial Stadium Saturday afternoon. The

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The Theta Xi team wasn't successful in its attempt to win a third straight Iron Man competition held this past Friday and Saturday, and as a result, won't take home for good the coveted Samson traveling trophy.

The Alpha Tau Omega house pulled out a victory over the Theta Xi's by the score of 126 to 121. "It came down to the last event. Theta Xi had a chance to repeat as champions, but they didn't finish ahead of ATO far enough in the obstacle course to pull it off," Dave Dishman, spokesperson for Campus Crusade, sponsor of the event, said.

The points in the competition were awarded by the team's finish in an event, with 20 points going to the first place team, 18 to the second place team, all the way down to six points for the last-place team in each event.

In the swimming relay, Sigma Chi had over a nine second margin over second place finisher, ATO. Sigma Chi finished in 7:13.64, followed by the ATO's, with a time of 7:22.97. Beta Theta Pi was third with a clocking of 7:30.93.

In the "man-makers" event, the Tau Kappa Epsilon team took first with a time of 2:49.31, followed by the Sigma Chi team with a time of 2:59.81. Theta Xi finished third in this event with a time of 2:59.82.

In the tug-of-war, Sigma Phi Epsilon took top honors over second and third place finishers Sigma Alpha Epsilon and the Campus Crusade teams, respectively.

The six-mile running event saw the Theta Xi's win in a time of 28:31.17, followed by the ATO's with a time of 29:24.63 and the Campus Crusade team with a time of 30:07.13.

The single elimination basketball tournament turned out to be one of the closest events. Theta Xi was able to defeat the third place finishers, Sigma Chi, in a semifinal game by the score of 42-37.

Besides the victorious ATO team, the rest of the field and their final point totals are as follows: Sigma Chi, 112 points; Tau Kappa Epsilon, 106 points; Campus Crusade, 100 points; Beta Theta Pi, 95 points; Sigma Phi Epsilon, 90 points; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 82 points.

Staff/Brad Camp

Volleyball team takes tourney

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

It took 10 months, 22 days and nine attempts for the K-State volleyball team to win another road match since defeating Tulsa Oct. 25, 1986.

But not only did the Wildcats win a road match, the team defeated all three of its weekend opponents to take the crown at the Oral Roberts Invitational tournament, held Friday and Saturday in Tulsa, Okla.

On their way to the title, the Wildcats defeated Oral Roberts 15-12, 9-15, 15-4, 15-10 Friday night. Saturday, K-State defeated Tulsa 15-3, 15-7, 6-15, 15-7, and glided past Northeast Louisiana, 15-3, 15-4, 15-8 to finish the tournament with a 3-0 record and a 7-3 season mark.

"Getting our first win on the road was real important for us," K-State volleyball coach Scott Nelson said. "We were 0-3 on our only road trip this year, and last year were 2-12 on the road. So we've passed last year's mark already."

"The Oral Roberts match was the most critical for us," Nelson said. "Playing there with a hostile crowd and being able to keep our composure and concentration in a pressure situation was something we struggled at last year. It tested the poise of this year's squad."

K-State outside hitters Shawnee Call and Valerie Kastens were named to the All-Tournament Team. Call had a hitting percentage of over .500 in every match, including a new four-game school record of .577 against Tulsa.

"Call led us in all three matches, she had an outstanding attacking and was the top defensive player in the tournament in digs."

"(The All-Tournament Team selections) came as a little bit of a surprise," Nelson said. "As a team, we played real well all around. Val had an excellent attacking weekend and racked up a lot of blocks. I think that stood out in the coaches and officials' minds when they picked the team."

Call and Kastens weren't the only members of the Wildcat squad to have good weekend records.

Kristi Jacquot once again broke a school service ace record by serving nine aces against Oral Roberts. Jacquot is also tied with Leslie Kull for the three-game record of eight service aces, which was set in the opening game this season. Mary Kinsey — with 26 digs against Northeast Louisiana — broke the three-game record of 20 digs.

"The whole team played really well," Nelson said.

Strike is upon us

Svoboda on Sports

DAVID SVOBODA
Sports
Columnist

The 11th hour is here for the second time in six years, and I'm not the least bit happy about it.

At the conclusion of tonight's National Football League game between the New York Jets and New England Patriots, the NFL Players Association will go on strike against the league owners — barring a miraculous settlement between now and about 1 a.m. Tuesday.

And, having been subjected to a less than thrilling fall in 1982 because the union and management couldn't get together then, either, it's time someone said "enough is enough" and told the two parties that their childish tactics are only serving to turn off the public that both parties so desperately need to provide their collective revenue.

Since 1968, when someone started keeping track of such ludicrous things, there have been five strikes by NFL players against ownership. That's five too many, folks.

The issues change but the bottom line doesn't — owners and players wait around and wait around, expecting the opposite side to concede while knowing that it won't.

And finally, when both parties involved seemingly "have nothing more to say" to one another, a strike begins and the fans begin their process of watching and waiting.

This year is no different.

"My agenda now is to prepare for a strike," Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFL Players Association, told The Associated Press at union headquarters in Washington Sunday afternoon.

Upshaw uttered those all too familiar words after he and Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council (the owners' group), failed for the umpteenth time to hammer out an agreement.

The issues keeping Upshaw and Donlan from getting together and calling a halt to this stupidity include roster size, player pensions and "unfettered" free agency.

A translation into English is in order to enable a fan to understand what's going on.

The players group would like to see NFL rosters expanded from the current 45 player limit to between 52 and 55. The owners, ever looking for ways to pinch pennies, want the roster limited to 49 players — a maximum of 49 players, no more.

The pension issue is a bit more complex, but it basically involves the players' desire to bring their pension plan more in line with that in place in major league baseball. Benefits currently provided NFL players for those years after they retire are among the worst found anywhere.

But the question of "unfettered" free agency remains the real stickler here. It's the issue that could likely make this strike a lengthy one.

Unfettered free agency is simply the right of a player to change teams without his new team having to compensate the old one. The players like the idea; the owners, for obvious reasons, don't.

"The other things are nothing," said Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys. "If you eliminated free agency, you wouldn't have any trouble with the other things and there wouldn't be any strike."

That stance strikes me as rather naive, and the assistant executive director of the players' union, Doug Allen, agrees.

"That (Schramm's assessment) makes it seem like all we believe in is free agency and all the rest is fluff," he said. "Free agency is very important, as important as the other issues such as pension, drug programs, severance and all the others. The problem is they don't think we're serious about anything but free agency. They'd better be prepared to do something about the other things, too."

Sounds to me like the two sides haven't really been communicating at all.

Upshaw and Donlan, as all chief negotiators in such cases are prone to do, are milking this situation for all it's worth.

Though neither may be entertaining political aspirations, both certainly have no desire to be perceived as weak — either by the men they represent or by the fans.

And so, we have several things clashing here. It's owner against player, big roster against small, unfettered free agency against no free agency at all, Upshaw against Donlan, Dusty Rhodes against Ric Flair...oops, time to jam on the brakes. Pro wrestling hasn't found its way into this dispute — at least not yet.

The answers to me are simple: Set the rosters at 50 players, improve the pension plan, and allow for players to change teams via free agency while allowing the owners at least draft choices in return for those lost.

It's all quite simple, really. It's just too bad that such simple minds are controlling whether or not we'll continue to see professional football after tonight.

I'm betting we won't — and that's all I'm likely to be betting on for the next few weeks.

Kansas football leaves blemish on Big 8

By The Associated Press

With the exception of teams from the Sunflower State, it was another pretty good weekend for the Big Eight Conference.

Combined with K-State's loss to Army and Kansas' 31-17 loss to Kent State, followers of the Wildcats and the Jayhawks probably saw nothing but dark, angry storm clouds gathering over their programs.

Glamour teams Oklahoma and Nebraska took a rest, Missouri and Oklahoma State remained unbeaten and Colorado opened Stanford 31-17 to square its mark at 1-1 and guarantee there will be no repeat of last season's horrible start.

Iowa State, home against state rival Iowa, proved that Coach Jim Walden was right when he said the Cyclones lacked the talent to beat the Hawkeyes. The final score of Iowa 48, Iowa State 9 gave Walden's first Cyclone team an 0-2 record, identical to Kansas and K-State.

Missouri is riding its first two-game winning streak since 1983, after beating Northwestern 28-3 at home. And Oklahoma State is 3-0 after a wild 35-29 verdict at Wyoming.

Thurman Thomas continued his climb up the Heisman ballot with 193 rushing yards for O-State, and Rod Smith recovered three turnovers. Each team scored 19 points in the frantic fourth period.

Iowa has outscored Iowa State

258-50 in five straight victories since the series was resumed. But Hawkeye Coach Hayden Fry said he was impressed with the signs of progress under Walden.

"I truly feel like Jim Walden will do a super job here, if people just don't get impatient," Fry said. "There is room in the state of Iowa for two good teams. I think they both have potential."

Walden's first Iowa State team opened the week before with a 25-12 loss at Tulane.

"I don't know if we could beat Iowa," Walden said. "I know we can't beat them if we turn the ball over on our side of the field."

The Hawkeyes led only 10-6 midway through the second quarter when interceptions by Kerry Burt and Sean Ridley off Derek DeGennaro put the rout in motion. Iowa tailback Kevin Harmon ran for a career-best 179 yards.

Colorado, like K-State and Kansas, spent much of the day making mistakes. But the Buffs made up for it by a nearly 2-to-1 advantage in total offense and time of possession. Colorado's ground-oriented offense rushed for 413 yards, including 119 by freshman Eric Bienenmy. Backup quarterback Rick Wheeler, replacing the injured Mark Hatcher, scored two short-yardage touchdowns in the second half for the Buffs.

K-State tied a school record with 14 penalties for 115 yards against Army.

Hoop alums deliver, 169-165

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

TOPEKA — It was a basketball lover's dream. Twenty-four of Kansas' basketball legends gathered together in the same arena to do what they do best.

In the first Kansas Alumni All-Star Classic played Sunday night in the Topeka Expo Centre's Landon Arena, K-State's alumni coached by Lon Kruger and Bob Chipman downed JoJo White's Kansas team 169-163 in overtime.

Just as with many K-State-Kansas matchups, it went down to the wire. But the final score wasn't the issue at hand here. It was a game for charity — $7,500 was raised for the American Lung Association — fun, and a game for the fans. And it was also a chance for former players to showcase their talents in front of some of their biggest fans.

Overall, the event was successful and probably will be repeated, said Bernie Glannen, owner of the Continental Basketball Association's Topeka Sizzlers.

"The players cooperated so much. That's the area that we were really concerned about, if the players would show up for the game. They did, and I think everything went well," Glannen said.

From the fans' viewpoint, the coaches' names are just a small sample of what the classic had to offer.

From K-State there were former standouts such as Joe Wright, Mike Evans, Rolando Blackman, Steve Soldner, Chuckie Williams, Ed Elder and Norris Coleman. On the Kansas side were former Jayhawks Mark Turgeon, Dave Robisch, Greg Dreiling, Carl Henry, Paul Mokeski, Calvin Thompson and Bud Stallworth. "Guest stars" were Sizzlers James Jappa and Aubrey Sherrard, and former Wichita State standout Cliff Levingston, now with the NBA's Atlanta Hawks.

The game was played under NBA rules, except the college three-point line was used, much to the liking of former Jayhawk Ron Kellogg who led all scorers with 39 points. White added 23 and Thompson chipped in 21 for the Kansas alumni. Coleman topped the K-State alumni with 32 while Blackman had 31 and Levingston contributed 30.

For Coleman it was a chance to prove he can play at the same level as current NBA players Dreiling, Mokeski, Blackman and Levingston. "I'm confident. I'm going to this league as an unheard-of, pretty much like the situation I was in my first game of college," Coleman said.

"I guess I'll have to prove myself at this level too. After this level, there's no other hill to climb. This is my final hill to climb, so to say."

Coleman, who passed on his senior season at K-State and was drafted in the second round by the Los Angeles Clippers, said he received the same advice from the NBA veterans.

"Go in there and play hard and never quit. It's just like a real job. No one's going to give you anything," Coleman said.

Though it was supposed to be a fun game, at times it got — shall we say — competitive. Soldner had to leave the game midway through the fourth quarter after he was struck in the eye with an elbow while diving for a rebound. Great athletes, no matter what the stakes, simply do not like to lose.

"I think maybe the intensity was a little surprising, but still, when you get athletes that have got a lot of pride out on the floor, you can expect good play," Kruger said.

"After the first couple of minutes, I decided that the guys were serious out there tonight and playing hard," said co-coach Chipman, who didn't play in the game.

Kruger delegated himself to full-time bench duty as well.

"I think maybe that was my best decision of the night. It worked out just fine," Kruger said.

About 4,000 people attended the game. Besides being a financial success for the American Lung Association, it was also a hit with the players.

"I was thrilled. I got to see some of my friends. If they ask me to come back, I'll be more than happy to," Coleman said.

Staff/Brett Hacker

James Jappa goes up for a shot during the Kansas Alumni All-Star Classic Sunday in Topeka, as Mike Evans, K-State alumnus, guards.

High school students learn about college at seminar

By Michelle Engemann
Collegian Reporter

About 300 high school juniors and seniors visited K-State's campus Saturday to learn some of the fundamentals of success at the College Success Seminar.

The seminar was set up specifically for college-bound, highly motivated students, said Pat Bosco, asstant vice president dean of student life.

"There are many exceptional students who aren't sure about academic choice or university," he said.

Bosco said this was the first formal on-campus activity aimed at 1988s high school graduates. Registration goals were exceeded by more than 50 students.

"We were ecstatic and overwhelmed by the response not only from students, but also from parents," Bosco said.

"We don't view this as blatant recruitment," said Judy Lynch, assistant director of the Academic Assistance Center. "We look at it as a retention device. Retention not only for those who end up at K-State, but at whatever university they are at."

Topics for the seminar sessions included information on American College Testing program examinations, selecting a major, financial aid, making good grades, extracurricular activities, dealing with problems, choosing a college and getting a job after graduation.

Students and their parents could attend three of the sessions and ask more questions at a wrap-up session at the end of the day.

Traci Stuart, senior from Hays, is interested in attending K-State or Fort Hays next year.

She said the session on making good grades was informative because it explained the difference between high school classes and college classes, and why they are different.

Michelle Rogers, senior from Jewell, plans to transfer to K-State after attending a junior college, and major in agri-business.

The session on selecting a college was informative because it "let us know what to look for and what questions to ask," she said

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

MEET YOUR OPPORTUNITY AT THE AGRIBUSINESS CAREER FAIR

33 firms waiting to meet you! Recruiting for full-time and internships.

Tues., Sept. 22
Ballroom, K-State Union
8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

Curious about law school?

Pre-law Club presents Washburn University School of Law

Professor Michael Barbara
and KSU graduates
in Law School

Monday - 7 p.m.
K-State Union
Room 207

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Delta Sigma Phi,
Delta Tau Delta, Delta
Upsilon, Off Campus

Sept. 22: Delta Upsilon, FarmHouse, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS

egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

American History Quiz

What father-son both became president of the United States?

Who was the Founder of the Republican Party?

Find out by taking the telecourse

The Adams Chronicles (HIST 533)
Covers History of the United States from 1760-1900
Offered for 2 or 3 Graduate or Undergraduate Credits
Broadcast: Channel 11 KTWU, Topeka
7 p.m., Thursday, Beginning Sept. 24 for 13 weeks.

Registration information: Continuing Education Registration Office, 317 Umberger Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, KS 66506, 913-532-5566 or toll free 1-800-432-8222.

Fulsetto's Pasta House

2 for 1
Dinner

Monday, Sept. 21 only
Good for any menu item

Family Style Pastas
from $3.99
minimum 4 persons

OPEN:
Mon.-Sat. 4-10 p.m., Sun. 11 a.m.-9 p.m.
Now open to the public.
Across from the Holidome
537-8443

UPC UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

SAVE TRAVEL BUCKS!

1988 International Student Identity Cards coming soon!
Save money on transportation, admission fees, accommodations and more when you travel abroad! These cards will be available at the Union Activities Center, 3rd Floor. Cost: $10

Now Showing 2ND FLOOR SHOWCASE

Ceramic Sculpture by Jeaneane Johnson on display now through September 25. Union Second Floor Showcase.

DOWN BY LAW

TOM WAITS - JOHN LURIE - ROBERTO BENIGNI
A NEW FILM BY JIM JARMUSCH

Wednesday, September 23, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall; Thursday, September 24, 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall. All shows $1.75. KSU ID Required

The story of an unemployed disc-jockey (Tom Waits), a small-time pimp (John Lurie) and a strong-willed Italian tourist (Roberto Benigni) who meet in the confined space of a prison cell in New Orleans and their escape through the dense surrounding swamps of Louisiana. Also starring Ellen Barkin. Rated R.

EXPERIENCE RAPPELLING

TUTTLE CREEK DAM

September 26 or 27

SIGN-UP: Open through Sept. 24. Activities Center, 3rd Floor Union. 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

$7 includes: Equipment, Demonstration, and soda pop.

ROCK CLIMBING and RAPPELLING in Columbia, MO. October 10-11

INFORMATION MEETING
Tuesday, Sept. 22
7 p.m., Rm. 207
K-State Union

SIGN-UP BEGINS:
Wednesday, Sept. 23,
8 a.m.-4 p.m. Union Activities Center.

$26 cost includes: 4 meals, equipment, and demonstration

Living in the future - wish you were here

Bellecore - it's a place with a perfect view of the next century. The surf breaks on the leading edge.

On a clear day you can see the future taking shape. A future in which information will belong to everyone and move with the speed of light into every corner.

It's the perfect climate for new ideas - wish you were here.

We're the central research and technology source for the Bell operating companies. Our areas of inspired research cover software development, applied research, network information systems, systems engineering, network planning services and equipment assessment.

We have opportunities in our northern and central New Jersey facilities for individuals with BS, MS and PhD degrees in Computer or Electrical Engineering or Computer Science who can help us provide superior technology and implement strategies that will allow the Bell operating companies to deliver advanced systems to their customers. We're also looking for creative talent with PhD degrees in Mathematics, Statistics, Operations Research, Physics or Human Factors Engineering.

Working in the future is the place to be—if you would like to join us,

Sign up at the Career Planning & Placement Office to meet our recruiters
on campus,
October 15 & 16

Alternatively, send your resume detailing your education and experience to: Manager, Technical Employment, Bell Communications Research, Department 127/5438/87, 4B-130, CN 1300, Piscataway, NJ 08854. An equal opportunity employer.

Bell
Communications
Research

Communications is our middle name

Students plan Newman Club banquet

By Sally Neary
Collegian Reporter

The Newman Club, a Christian club organized to provide a spiritual center on secular campuses is celebrating its 75th anniversary at K-State.

Jenny Roth, president of the club, said the Newman Ministries was named after Cardinal Newman who saw the need for spiritual centers on secular campuses.

The organization encourages the spiritual, intellectual, and social interests of students at K-State, she said. It is located in the Catholic Student Center.

Roth said the club is planning a couple of unique projects because of the 75th anniversary. The members are tentatively planning a spring banquet for Newman alumni and students.

"It will be a big bash banquet," Roth said.

Included in the weekend event will be an early mass, a dinner, reception and dance. She said it will be an opportunity for the alumni and students to get together at the same time.

"We're really trying to play it up and increase involvement," Roth said.

She said it's tough to get students involved because some of them don't know how involved they want to get in the organization. The club is planning to send out mailings to inform members of scheduled activities.

A second project, in the planning stage, is the remodeling of a recreation room at the center, Roth said.

It would be a comfortable place to go when the club wants to rent movies for a night, she said. Also, it would provide a place to get away from books, to relax and to talk with friends.

Roth said the club tries to accommodate everyone's needs by offering school instruction, prayer and liturgy, social activities, community service programs and fellowship.

About 150 people are in the group which has four officers and four chairpersons, she said. The chairpersons are responsible for intramural sports, social activities, community service and publicity.

There are no restrictions for membership.

"Anyone who wants to be a member can be," Roth said.

She said the group sponsors dances and parties throughout the year, a spook house during Halloween and a Thanksgiving dinner for the elderly.

The club also cooperates with other groups working for charitable causes such as the Bread Basket, the Crop Walk and the Students Drive Against Hunger, Roth said.

Service seems to be what people like the most, she said, and the feeling people have after they have completed a project is very rewarding.

The Newman Center also provides education by offering seminars and discussion groups, library and study facilities, Bible studies, retreats, and state and national conventions.

Roth said the club will concentrate on educating more people about Newman by answering the questions: "What is Newman?" and "Why is it important?"

When a person can supplement a Sunday liturgy with some type of ministry, that person can be more educated, more understanding and more attracted to the faith, she said.

"Many students hear about Newman, but they don't really know exactly what it is and what it does," she said.

Since Roth has been a part of Newman, she said she has seen the club experience its highs and lows, however, membership has picked up again.

The new members provide the juice and energy by supplying new blood and fresh ideas, she said.

Stowe

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

women.

"In fact," he said, "a few of the men wrote strong letters on why they (women) should be in the club."

"The induction was handled extremely well. There was no special notice made to my being the first woman," Stowe said.

Larson said he would like to see 25 women from the University and business community inducted into the club within a year.

Women's involvement in the club will continue to change, Larson said.

By next year women will all be on committees, he said, and in three or four years women should feel comfortable enough with the organization to serve as elected officers.

One problem Stowe had to face by being the first woman in the Rotary was how to wear her name tag, because the tags are made to hook in the breast pocket of a man's suit coat or shirt. Stowe said until she has her name tag modified, she has only two dresses she can wear.

Research saves lives.

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

Jewish New Year Rosh Hashanah High Holiday Services

Wednesday Evening Sept. 23 8 p.m.

Thursday Morning Sept. 24 10 a.m.

at
Manhattan Jewish Congregation
1509 Wreath Ave.

Students who wish to celebrate with a local Jewish family may call
Matt — 532-6096
Dave — 539-6177 (evenings)

Bar 539-9081 Office 776-6638

Dark Horse

619 N. Manhattan

Monday Night Football!

$2 Pitchers
$1.50 Wells

PROFESSIONAL COUCHING STAFF

A BREAKFAST BREAKTHROUGH

99¢ BISCUIT SANDWICH

No time to fix breakfast? No problem. Swing by Vista and start off your busy day the easy way with our hearty Vista biscuit sandwich. Now just 99¢ each—with your choice of ham, sausage or bacon. Vista's big biscuit sandwiches are breakfast pleasers!

Ham, sausage or bacon biscuit sandwiches. 99¢ each for a limited time. Cheese and egg extra.

Vista RESTAURANTS

1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

TV Listings

By TV Data

MONDAY SEPTEMBER 21, 1987
KSNT	WIBW	KTKA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Bugs Bunny	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00	TBA		My Little Pony	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook	I Love Lucy
9:00 Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Harness Race World Sports	Movie: "The Uninvited"
10:00 Jeopardy!	Presidential Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Andy Griffith Dick Van	Body Electric Instructional	Waltons	Hydroplane Racing: OMC
11:00 Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Programming	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00 News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	College Football: Michigan	Movie: "Lady Godiva"
1:00 Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Bewitched	Nature	Major League Baseball: New	State at Notre Dame
2:00 Santa Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobles Zoo	Nature McLaughlin	York Mets at Chicago Cubs		Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00 Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics		AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00 Facts of Life	Madame P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	M. Bravest	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	Transformers	Drag Racing: World Finals	Munsters Laverne
5:00 3's Company	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsLook Fishing	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00 News	News WKRP	M*A*S*H Newshour	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Benson Soap	SportsCenter NFL Monday	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00 ALF	ALF Valerie's Fa-	MacGyver	Hill Street Blues	Antarctica	Movie: "Anatomy of a Sed-	NFL Monday Matchup	Movie: "Father Goose"
8:00 Movie: "If It's Tuesday, It	Movie: "If It's Tuesday, It	NFL Football: New England	Movie: "Witness for the Prosecution"	Truman Capote	Health Century	News INN News	Auto Racing: NASCAR Winston Cup 500
9:00 Still Must Be Belgium	Still Must Be Belgium	Patriots at New York	Barney Miller Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	H'mooner Trapper John	Auto Racing SportsCenter	Movie: "Operation Petticoat"
10:00 News	News WKRP	News ABC News	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D.	Movie: "A Little Sex"	SportsLook NFL Theatre
11:00 Ent. Tonight	"Spring Break"	700 Club	Movie: "Until September"	Sign-Off		Dream Teams NFL Great	Geo. Explorer
12:30 David Letterman	T.J. Hooker

BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND

Hours
Mon.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-2 a.m.
Fri.-Sat. 11 a.m.-3 a.m.
Sunday 11 a.m.-12 a.m.

BUY 1 GET 1 FREE
Any size Pizza!
We deliver... FAST and Friendly-like.

Delivering All Day Every Day For Your Convenience

539-4888
We accept Visa and MasterCard

Offering Thin Crust or Our Original Golden Braided Crust

BUY 1 SMALL 1 TOPPING PIZZA $4.75 (plus tax) GOOD MONDAYS ONLY 539-4888

BUY 1 GET 1 FREE Any Size Pizza 539-4888 GOOD MONDAYS ONLY

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS
Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY
* Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
* No abbreviations, please.
* No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
* Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
* Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
* If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
* Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
* The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates						Classified Categories
Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days	01	Announcements	15	Miscellaneous Merchandise
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00	02 <th>Apartments for Rent — Furnished</th> <td>16<th>Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale</th></td>	Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 <th>Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale</th>	Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
16	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05	03 <th>Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished</th> <td>17<th>Musical Instruments</th></td>	Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 <th>Musical Instruments</th>	Musical Instruments
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10	04 <th>Automobiles for Sale</th> <td>18<th>Personals</th></td>	Automobiles for Sale	18 <th>Personals</th>	Personals
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15	05 <th>Automobile Rentals</th> <td>19<th>Pets and Pet Supplies</th></td>	Automobile Rentals	19 <th>Pets and Pet Supplies</th>	Pets and Pet Supplies
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20	06 <th>Card of Thanks</th> <td>20<th>Professional Services</th></td>	Card of Thanks	20 <th>Professional Services</th>	Professional Services
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25	07 <th>Child Care</th> <td>21<th>Rentals</th></td>	Child Care	21 <th>Rentals</th>	Rentals
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30	08 <th>Computers</th> <td>22<th>Resume/Typing Services</th></td>	Computers	22 <th>Resume/Typing Services</th>	Resume/Typing Services
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35	09 <th>Financial Services</th> <td>23<th>Roommate Wanted</th></td>	Financial Services	23 <th>Roommate Wanted</th>	Roommate Wanted
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40	10 <th>Employment</th> <td>24<th>Situation Wanted</th></td>	Employment	24 <th>Situation Wanted</th>	Situation Wanted
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45	11 <th>Garage and Yard Sales</th> <td>25<th>Sporting/Recreational Equipment</th></td>	Garage and Yard Sales	25 <th>Sporting/Recreational Equipment</th>	Sporting/Recreational Equipment
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50	12 <th>Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent</th> <td>26<th>Sublease</th></td>	Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 <th>Sublease</th>	Sublease
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55	13 <th>Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale</th> <td>27<th>Welcome</th></td>	Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 <th>Welcome</th>	Welcome
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60	14 <th>Lost and Found</th> <td>28<th>Other</th></td>	Lost and Found	28 <th>Other</th>	Other
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75
Over 30 words

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20
21	22	23	24	25
26	27	28	29	30

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Professor examines violence

By The Collegian Staff

Although the debate continues over the potential impact of television violence on children's behavior, one University professor has already chosen his position on the issue.

John P. Murray, professor in human development and family studies, said Friday at The Saint Mary Hospital that TV violence has a noticeably negative effect on children.

"Children's TV programs contain about 20 violent acts each hour," Murray said. "Youngsters who watch a lot of television are more likely to feel that the world is a mean and dangerous place."

During the lecture, Murray cited studies done on the relationship between TV violence and a child's aggressive behavior. One study, done at Kent State University, involved observing 100 preschoolers, who were separated into three groups.

The first group watched aggressive and violent cartoons — such as "Batman" — while the second group watched "Mr. Roger's Neighborhood." The third group watched documentaries and nature programs. The children watched these programs three times a week for 30 minutes.

The first group was observed as becoming more aggressive, the second was deemed willing to help the teacher and classmates, and the third remained neutral.

Even though the study lasted fewer than five weeks, the children's behavior in the first and second groups had changed rapidly.

Kedzie 103

CLASSIFIED RATES
One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MARY KAY Cosmetics — Skin care — glamour products. Free facial, call Florita Taylor, 539-2070. Hand-dipped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11)

WANTED — 100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken, 539-9469. (2-27)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. Please call 776-6566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (20-24)

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunbath Tours Sixth Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lift tickets, optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure 1-800-321-5911 today!! (20-24)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (71)

TWO-BEDROOM furnished apartment across street from Ahearn. Available October 1st. Phone 776-7559. (20-24)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

ONE SIDE of duplex, nice three-bedroom, two-bath apartment. Very near campus. 539-8324. (16-20)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE

1981 CHEVETTE. New brakes, air, FM/cassette, 59,000 miles. Priced to sell. Call Jarrell: 539-2301. (16-25)

1977 TOYOTA Celica GT, excellent condition, new paint, no rust, sunroof, excellent stereo system. 537-9021. (18-22)

1979 FIAT station wagon, excellent condition, 537-9021. (20-24)

1969 MUSTANG, very good condition. Call 776-3758 after 5:30 p.m. (20-24)

EMPLOYMENT

EARN THUNDREDS weekly$ in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your fall class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency; must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. We prefer to hire work study students and students who are eligible to work 30 hours per week. Food Handler's Card a must. (15-25)

EXPERIENCED DENTAL assistant. Warm, friendly personality. Call 539-7401. Ask for Pat. (16-20)

EDITOR, WEEKLY United Methodist Church regional newspaper. Part-time position. EOE. Member Project Equality. Submit resume and references by Sept. 25 to P.O. Box 4187, Topeka, KS 66604. Attention: Council Director. (17-21)

PART-TIME SALES help at Bork Brother's men's wear. Approximately 20 hours per week. Afternoons and Saturdays. Sales experience preferred. Apply in person at 1100 Westloop Place. (17-21)

Retail

ASSISTANT BOOKSTORE MANAGER

Write new chapters in successful retail store management

... at Waldenbooks, one of America's fastest growing booksellers.

Learn from the leaders. Help take charge of a Waldenbooks bookstore and you'll gain firsthand experience in successful store operations, effective merchandising and personnel management.

If you have previous retail experience and a HS diploma (some college preferred), apply in person

Manhattan Job Service
621 Humboldt
Manhattan, KS

Waldenbooks
An equal opportunity employer

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

ClassAds

532-6555

BUY 5 GET 1 FREE TANS TO GO
1214-C Moro-in Aggieville
776-7874

ARE YOU CREATIVE
Decisive, Confident, Know your related occupation field. Find out for sure by Handwriting Analysis. Write Mr. Long, 333 N. Valley, KCK 66102

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE

1981 KAWASAKI KZ650CSR. Must sell! In excellent condition. For more information, call 539-7561 and ask for Clay. (18-22)

1976 YAMAHA 175 Enduro. Low miles, excellent condition, great transportation, $400 or best offer. 537-9433. (19-23)

RALEIGH RACER USA, competition 14-speed geometry, 61.5 cm frame, yellow on white colors. $300 or best offer. 537-0182. (20-24)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

OVATION ACOUSTIC guitar with case and pickup. 539-6796. (18-22)

CARVIN 60W amp, very smooth tube distortion. Footswitch for reverb, chorus and channel. Celestion speaker. 539-6395. (18-20)

FOR SALE — Höpner acoustical guitar with case. Excellent condition. Call 539-8656. (19-22)

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

PERSONALS

JANA JO: Happy 21st belated! I hope your weekend was fun. Although, you could've settled for older men; I'm glad you chose this one. Love, Tim. (20)

DILLONS' YOGURT Boy: Thanks so much for helping me out with my homework. You were great! — The Late-night Caller. (20)

KAPPA KAPPA Gamma still has Spiketacular Spirit. And it's going to last for months to come! (20)

PHI KAP pledge James T.: Yo momma is here! Love, Mom. (20)

KAPPA SIGMA Mike B.: — Was that you in the platform clogs and lime green leisure suit last week? If so, woman in purple polyester stretch pants and tube top desires your acquaintance. Inquire at bowling alley ASAP. (20)

SCOTT C.: — The party is over! Beached whale found dead on the banks of Lake Mendota! Cause of death, broken heart. We will miss her. (20)

PHI KAP Todd H.: Your last clue is I like lemon in my tea. See you tonight. Love, Mom. (20)

LAMBDA CHRIS: — "Golfing" and partyin' Friday night was hot! We're excited 'cause we know the fun will never stop. Love, The Gamma Pies. (20)

AGD ACTIVES: We're glad to be a part of that we all hold so dear. Our excitement runs off the charts, thanks to AGD love and cheer. Don't forget Monday night, we'll be looking for the studs. Maybe we'll find Mr. Right over a glass of suds. Love, The Pledges. (20)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11)

RENTALS

SUPPLIES: PRINTER/typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville. 539-7931. (11)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE

EXPERIENCED TYPIST will do any size typing jobs. Call Mary after 5 p.m. at 537-0456. (20-24)

ROOMMATE WANTED

FEMALE ROOMMATE, for second semester, to share two-bedroom apartment. Close to park, Aggieville, and campus. Call 537-1273. (16-20)

NON-SMOKING FEMALE, low rent. Call Sharon at 776-5671, before 9 a.m., between 2-4:30 p.m. or after 10 p.m. (17-21)

ONE OR two non-smoking female to share farmhouse. Prefer vet or animal science majors. Free stall and pasture for horse, cow, dog, Beef, eggs, firewood furnished, own bedroom. 776-1205, 8-10 p.m. only. (18-27)

ROOMMATES NEEDED, individual rooms, all benefits of a house. $135/month. 776-7905. (20-24)

QUIET, NON-SMOKING female to share luxury home on west side. $250 includes utilities. 537-0550, ask for Diane. 776-5602 after 5 p.m. (20-22)

SPORTING/RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT

TRIATHLON BIKE wanted to rent through Oct. 3. Height is 5'3". Call 539-4693. (19-20)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT

MULTI-BEDROOM HOUSE, stove, refrigerator, central air, fireplace, laundry hookups, garage. Call 537-8389. (11)

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31)

THREE BEDROOM unfurnished house, close to campus, fenced yard, garage. No pets. Call 537-1234, Trust Department. Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. (41)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE

1970 BUDDY 12 x 60 — Two-bedroom, washer/dryer, two air conditioners, storage shed. $4,900. Call 537-9005. (17-21)

8' x 25' IN Green Valley Trailer Court. $1,000. 539-4205. Keep trying. (19-23)

LOST AND FOUND

SET OF keys found in Fairchild computer lab. Call 539-0971 and identify. (18-20)

FOUND FINANCIAL Management in Agriculture textbook. Call 532-6397. (20-22)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

WE BUY — sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

MONDAYS SHRIMP NIGHT
15¢ shrimp
$1 draws
$2.75 pitchers
4-7 p.m.
418 Poyntz

TROPICAL TAN

FirstBank Center
Second Level
Denison & Claflin

537-0744
HOURS:
MON.-THURS. 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.
FRI., SAT. 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.
SUN. 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Dinner Buffet

Specials

M—Chicken & Ribs
T—Spaghetti & Meat Balls
W—Chicken Stir Fry & Egg Rolls
U—Fish & Chips
includes salad bar
All You Can Eat $5.99

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

3 Days a Week to Reach Your Peak

NAUTILUS has the specialized equipment to help you reach your fitness goals.

Act Now & Save
29% off our Annual Single & Family Memberships

776-1654

Nautilus 1100 Moro Manhattan

WORK STUDY student to work 10-20 hours a week with university outreach/conference coordinator. Attention to detail, and written and oral communication skills are necessary. Typing and/or word processing experience is required. Position offers good background experience for students in areas of management, marketing, business, education, and conference planning. For more information call 532-5575 (ask for Debi) or stop by the Warehouse Building, 1623 Anderson Ave. Application deadline is Sept. 25. (17-24)

MAKE $4,600 monthly stuffing envelopes. For details, send self-addressed stamped envelope to Adeals, P.O. Box 2142, Stillwater, OK 74076. (18-27)

WANTED: BRIGHT, energetic individuals to work at women's retail clothing store. Must be neat, in tune with current fashion, and have sales experience. Looking for part-time and full-time. Apply in person at Scot's LTD or Carousel (Aggieville) soon to be in Manhattan Town Center. (18-22)

MATURE PERSON needed for occasional babysitting. Own transportation. Call 776-7632. (19-20)

WORK STUDY student to work 10 to 20 hours a week at Speech and Hearing Center. Oral and written communication skills are necessary. Experience in answering phones, typing and some word processing is required. Need reliable person who works well with public. For interviews call 532-6879 or come to Lelaure 107. (20-24)

DEPARTMENT OF Agricultural Engineering is looking for student with good grammar and communication skills to work with recruiting program. Work study preferred; not required. Call Stanley Clark at 532-5580. (20-22)

BRIGHT, AMBITIOUS student needed now to sell advertising. Get ground level experience with direct marketing agency. Very flexible, part-time hours. 15-20% commission. Call 539-6287 today. (20-21)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

Manhattan Town Center has 7-8 positions open for hard-working, dependable people to assist in behind-the-scenes marketing preparation for the Grand Opening. Decoration and hands-on work.

Inquire at Mall Office behind Dillard's service entrance B, Wed., Sept. 23, 9 a.m.-Noon only.

No phone calls please.

Retail

Where Waldenbooks Opens Opportunity Opens For: Booksellers Temporary Stocking Crew

America's fastest growing booksellers with over 1000 stores nationwide, and a bestselling product line, will give you miles of opportunity for growth.

If you have a commitment to full service, find out more about our exciting Full, Part Time and Temporary openings and our competitive benefits.

Apply in person at: Manhattan Job Service
621 Humboldt
Manhattan, KS

Waldenbooks
An equal opportunity employer

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Prolific
5 Type-writer key
8 One type of novel?
12 Baal, for one
13 "Tarzan" extra
14 Sharif
15 Dry
16 Approaches native
18 Hawaiian
20 British cavalry swords
21 Popcorn seasoning
23 Labor org.
24 Precede
28 Bad
31 "Miss Brooks"
32 Marsh bird
34 Site of Ota Dokan's castle
35 Great Barrier Island
37 Scandalous actions?

DOWN
1 Stuntman's concern?
2 Concert halls
3 Daybreak
4 "Mr. Postman"
5 Follow after
6 GI's address
7 Stingers
8 Trouble's partner?
9 Gets better
10 Ending for check or bunk
11 Anagram for sore
17 Cebine monkey
19 Hebrew letters
22 Andrews Sisters, et al.
24 Sticky mess
25 "— of sight..."
26 Sources
27 Summaries
29 Altar phrase
30 — Chaney
33 Geraint's wife
36 Mistreats birds
40 Sphere
42 Shield
43 Not a one
44 Dublin John
46 Identical
47 Fit of pique
48 Nick's pet
50 Kimono sash

Solution time: 24 mins.

CRYPTOQUIP

J R A A Q C B T R J W B T Q Y B R
O R C D R W N E G D E O N S Q W
Y N Y Q O L Y L O ' N S E O Q G N
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IS A LARGE MEETING OF HOTEL MANAGERS A HOST OF HOSTS?

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals I

"HOW I MADE $18,000 FOR COLLEGE BY WORKING WEEKENDS."

When my friends and I graduated from high school, we all took part-time jobs to pay for college.

They ended up in car washes and hamburger joints, putting in long hours for little pay.

Not me. My job takes just one weekend a month and two weeks a year. Yet, I'm earning $18,000 for college.

Because I joined my local Army National Guard.

They're the people who help our state during emergencies like hurricanes and floods. They're also an important part of our country's military defense.

So, since I'm helping them do such an important job, they're helping me make it through school.

As soon as I finished Advanced Training, the Guard gave me a cash bonus of $2,000. Then, under the New GI Bill, I'm getting another $5,000 for tuition and books.

Not to mention my monthly Army Guard paychecks. They'll add up to more than $11,000 over the six years I'm in the Guard.

And if I take out a college loan, the Guard will help me pay it back — up to $1,500 a year, plus interest.

It all adds up to $18,000 — or more — for college for just a little of my time. And that's a heck of a better deal than any car wash will give you.

THE GUARD CAN HELP PUT YOU THROUGH COLLEGE, TOO. SEE YOUR LOCAL RECRUITER FOR DETAILS, CALL TOLL-FREE 800-638-7600,* OR MAIL THIS COUPON.

*In Hawaii: 737-5255; Puerto Rico: 721-4550; Guam: 477-9957; Virgin Islands (St. Croix): 773-6438; New Jersey: 800-452-5794. In Alaska, consult your local phone directory.
© 1985 United States Government as represented by the Secretary of Defense. All rights reserved.

MAIL TO: Army National Guard, P.O. Box 6000, Clifton, NJ 07015

NAME ☐ M ☐ F

ADDRESS

CITY/STATE/ZIP

AREA CODE PHONE

US CITIZEN. ☐ YES ☐ NO

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER

BIRTH DATE

OCCUPATION

STUDENT ☐ HIGH SCHOOL ☐ COLLEGE
PRIOR MILITARY SERVICE ☐ YES ☐ NO

BRANCH

RANK

AFM/MOS

THE INFORMATION YOU VOLUNTARILY PROVIDE, INCLUDING YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER, WILL BE USED FOR RECRUITING PURPOSES ONLY. YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER WILL BE USED TO ANALYZE RESPONSE TO THIS AD. AUTHORITY: IOUSC-503

A1CLJC21097NP

Army National Guard

Americans At Their Best.

Medicare Increases

An expected increase in federal Medicare insurance premiums could cost Kansas $2 million. See Page 5.

Weather

Mostly sunny with highs in the 70s today. Clear tonight, with lows 45 to 50. Mostly sunny Wednesday, highs in the lower to mid-80s.

Setting Records

K-State volleyball player Kristi Jacquart has set school records for serving aces in both 3- and 4-game matches. See Page 9.

Tuesday
September 22, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 21

Kansas State Collegian

Arias shares peace plan with K-State

By Debbie Whitson
Staff Writer

Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez brought his plan for achieving peace in Latin America to K-State Monday.

Arias delivered the 77th Landon Lecture on Public Issues to a crowd of about 4,000 people in Ahearn Field House. The theme of his address was "History is Ours to Write" and focused on his peace plan for Central America.

ARIAS at K-STATE

- Rep. Jim Slattery rates the chances of success for Arias' peace plan.
- Despite poor acoustics, most give the lecture a thumbs up.
- A Costa Rican student evaluates Arias' speech and composure.
- A Monday afternoon forum underscores Arias' optimism that his peace plan will succeed.
- Highlights of the Arias plan.

Stories, pages 6 and 7.

"Development and peace are inseparable," Arias said. "Nothing undermines the struggle for development more than a threat to peace."

Arias drafted a peace agreement among five Central American countries: Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica. Presidents of the five countries signed the agreement Aug. 7 in Guatemala City, Guatemala.

■ See ARIAS, Page 6

Staff/John Thelander

Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez delivered the 77th Landon Lecture on Public Issues to a crowd of about 4,000 people in Ahearn Field House Monday morning. The lecture, titled "History is Ours to Write," focused on his plan for achieving peace in Central America.

U.S. helicopter fires on Iranian ship observed laying underwater mines

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A U.S. military helicopter attacked an Iranian ship in the Persian Gulf on Monday after discovering it laying underwater mines, the White House and Pentagon said.

The Pentagon said the stern of Iranian ship "Iran Ajr" was set on fire. The fire was extinguished but the ship was left "dead in the water," said Fred Hoffman, the Pentagon's spokesman.

Marlin Fitzwater, the White House spokesman, said U.S. forces "took defensive action" when the Iranian ship was discovered laying mines in international waters 50 miles northeast of Bahrain.

The attack was outside an area where a British tanker was attacked earlier Monday by Iranian gunboats.

The incident was the first American military action against Iran since Aug. 8, when a Navy F-14 Tomcat fighter fired two missiles at an Iranian jet that was judged to be "hostile." Both missiles missed. The episode was the closest that the two countries have come to combat since the United States started escorting reflagged Kuwaiti tankers in August.

Reagan confronts Iran at U.N./Page 12

Hoffman, appearing at a Pentagon briefing Monday evening, indicated at least two American helicopters were on patrol from the frigate USS Jarrett when they spied the Iranian ship. One of the helicopters opened fire with 7.62mm machine guns and 2.75mm rockets after observing the Iranian ship laying mines.

"The location is in international waters at a spot frequently used by commercial vessels, both those of the United States and of other neutral nations," Hoffman said.

He said the attack occurred at night, and the helicopters were able, using night-vision devices, to identify objects being dropped over the side of the Iranian ship as mines.

"Acting under the rules of engagement as ordered by the commander of the Middle East Task Force, the helicopter engaged the Iranian ship, setting its stern ablaze," Hoffman said.

"The fire appears to be out and the ship is dead in the water. Our ships and aircraft are standing by to render such help as may be needed."

The White House said U.S. forces acted "in accordance with existing rules of engagement."

"We have previously communicated with the Iranian government the way in which we would respond to such provocative acts which present an immediate risk to United States ships and to all ships. United States forces acted in a defensive manner and in accordance with existing rules of engagement," Fitzwater said.

Hoffman said the helicopters were about 15 miles from the Jarrett when they observed the activities of the Iranian vessel. It was only after the air crews were sure that the ship was dropping mines over its side that the crews asked for and received permission from Rear Adm. Harold Bernsen to open fire, the spokesman said. Bernsen is the commander of the Navy's Middle East Force, the Navy battle group that operates inside the Persian Gulf.

Courts failing in duty to protect elderly

Guardians of the Elderly: An Ailing System
EDITOR'S NOTE — Elderly Americans facing guardianship enjoy none of the legal safeguards extended to criminal defendants. They are often placed under someone else's care without legal representation. This is the second part of a six-day series, "Guardians of the Elderly: An Ailing System." If a person is a fool, let this person and his goods be under the protection of his family or his paternal relatives, if he is not under the care of anyone else.

— Twelve Tables of Rome

By Fred Bayles
and
Scott McCartney
Associated Press Writers

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Billie sat at the table, trying to joke with the social workers and lawyers sitting around her. "Are you talking about me?" she asked the strangers who said they were there to help.

The man beside her, her lawyer she was told, softly explained she needed a guardian, someone who would handle the everyday worries.

"Does this mean I won't be able to go back to where I live?" the 74-year-old woman asked. "I still want to get out and take care of my house and do shopping. I feel well enough to be on my own."

Despite her doubts, Billie was declared incompetent and assigned a guardian: another stranger who would control her life, dictating everything from where she would live to how her money would be spent. It took only a few minutes.

The informal judicial hearing witnessed by AP reporters in the Fort Lauderdale boarding home was not unusual. An average of 10 people a week are placed under guardianship in this community of retirees.

■ See ELDERLY, Page 8

Union Copy Center losing business; directive ignored

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

An obscure University directive that has largely gone ignored may be costing K-State thousands of dollars every semester.

The directive states that all class materials that need to be reproduced must be copied on campus and provided for students to purchase at one of two University copy centers. However, an official said instructors are not aware of the directive.

"According to the (K-State Business Procedures Manual), printing services are not to be leaving campus," said Jack Connaughton, assistant director of the Union. "The instructors are not aware of the policy in the manual."

The manual states: "The department heads are to provide the K-State Union Copy Center or a KSU Copy Center with a reproducible copy of the material (to be copied.) The department heads are to inform the students involved that the material may be purchased at the K-State Union Copy Center or a KSU Copy Center."

The Copy Center, located on the third floor of the K-State Union, offers a wide variety of services ranging from copying to computer usage. Many people, however, are unaware of its existence.

"Most people don't know about the center," said Sheon Montgomery-Wisner, supervisor of the Copy Center. "Our services are open to anybody, and most relate to K-State students, but private people come in also."

Connaughton said the Union has sent out flyers that offer the same services as Kinko's Copies, a nationwide chain of copy services with an Aggieville location.

"If we get four or five takers, that's a lot," he said. "Kinko's is very aggressive," he said. "They come to the department offices on campus, pick up the material, do what's needed and put it on file."

Connaughton said he would like to see the money spent for copying services stay on campus. This would enable the money to be regenerated back into the campus and used for the purchase of new equipment.

"It's just dollars we don't have for such usage," Connaughton said.

The Copy Center can only advertise in the Kansas State Collegian, Connaughton said, adding that the center is in a bad location.

Montgomery-Wisner said people don't realize the center exists because of its "out-of-the-way

■ See COPY, Page 10

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Money needed to avoid lawsuit

TOPEKA — The state Department of Corrections may ask the 1988 Legislature for an increase in its current budget to help improve conditions at the Kansas State Penitentiary in Lansing and to avoid a federal lawsuit, an official said Monday.

Charles Simmons, chief counsel for the state Department of Corrections, told the Legislature's study Committee on Federal and State Affairs that he expects federal Department of Justice officials to tell his agency that the prison's medical staff needs to be increased. Justice Department officials are expected to visit the prison in October, he said.

Such an inspection would be a follow-up to a federal inspection done 17 months ago after complaints from inmates. In a report to Gov. Mike Hayden and the department in June, federal inspectors said they found serious constitutional violations in three major areas: medical care, fire protection and living space.

Corrections officials asked for a reinspection, Simmons told the committee. After the inspection, the sides will try to negotiate a settlement.

"What we are trying to do with the visit with the Department of Justice in October is reduce the number of problems we are discussing," Simmons said. "The alternative, if they're not satisfied with the alternatives we are proposing, is litigation filed by the Justice Department in federal court."

"They indicated they were willing to go to court if they had to."

Corrections officials have said they already have moved to correct many of the problems listed in the report, noting that the Legislature has approved the renovation of the prison's infirmary and "A" Cellhouse.

Charge upgraded to first-degree

LAWRENCE — A charge of second-degree murder against a man accused of killing his wife and storing her body in a box was upgraded to first-degree murder Monday.

Carl Kemp, 40, was charged in the amended complaint, according to Jim Flory, the Douglas County prosecuting attorney. A hearing scheduled Monday for Kemp was canceled at the request of his attorney.

Flory declined to say why he had filed the more serious charge, except to say that he had received new information from investigators and autopsy results.

He said Wichita forensic pathologist William Eckert ruled the cause of death was a blunt trauma to the body. Flory would not provide any further details regarding the report.

The body of Judy Kemp was found Sept. 9 in a box in a shed near the couple's mobile home. Police determined she had been killed Sept. 3.

Campaign office broken into

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. — An intruder broke into a temporary George Bush campaign office, deleted some information from a word processor and stole a large batch of campaign material during the state GOP leadership conference.

John Long, the executive director of Bush's Michigan effort, said he discovered the damage Saturday morning.

Like the other presidential campaigns, the vice president's workers set up a temporary office at the historic Grand Hotel for a weekend conference on this scenic resort island.

Long said the office was cleaned and closed at midnight.

Wanted: New Miss Michigan

MUSKEGON, Mich. — Wanted: Trim, attractive, witty and extroverted young woman to serve as lame-duck beauty queen. Long hours, lots of travel and no opportunity for advancement.

Contact Jack Bushong, who's missing a Miss Michigan now that Kaye Lani Rae Rafko has been crowned Miss America, leaving Miss Michigan organizers wondering who will meet her obligations for hundreds of public appearances.

"I've had four phone calls this morning already from people who want to know who's going to attend their function," Bushong, executive director of the Miss Michigan pageant, said Monday.

"I don't know who to send to the state functions at this point, because the first-runner up in the Miss Michigan Pageant has a brand new job as a television anchorwoman and I don't think she wants to jeopardize her job," said Bushong. "The second through fourth runners-up don't want it because they want to compete again next year."

Whoever is selected to serve the remainder of Rafko's reign will be ineligible to run again next year, said Bushong.

Pageant organizers scheduled an emergency meeting for Tuesday.

"Everybody wants to know who's going to go to the various appearances scheduled for Miss Michigan this year," Bushong said. "I just don't know who to send. 'Who knows, maybe I'll go.'"

Emmys just shy of miniseries

PASADENA, Calif. — The 39th annual Emmy Awards show set two records: Its four-hour length was the longest in Emmy history, just 20 seconds shy of qualifying as a miniseries, and its audience rating was the lowest ever.

The show, which presenters and winners turned into an unstoppable "talkathon," was the first in more than three decades that was not telecast on ABC, CBS or NBC. It was carried by the Fox Broadcasting Co., which outbid the three networks for the show for the next three years.

The show got a 10.3 rating and a 17 share in the A.C. Nielsen Co. 15-city overnight ratings for Sunday night. If the rating stays the same in the nationals, the Emmy show will rank about 45th.

It did win over ABC, which got an 8.8 rating, but lost out to CBS with 17.7 and NBC with 16.18.

The rating has a bright side, however. It's the highest ever for the so-called fourth network, now in its 11th month.

"We're very pleased with the results of the show," said Fox publicist Brad Turell. "Our biggest obstacle is that of awareness. The program, along with the accompanying publicity and promotion, gave us exposure to a much larger audience than we've ever had before."

Cause of explosion unknown

INDEPENDENCE — Investigators continued searching Monday for the cause of a noon-time explosion in the southeast Kansas town's central business district that flattened one building and damaged several others Sunday.

The owner of the meat market destroyed in the blast said he believes the explosion was caused by a gas leak outside the shop, but investigators said no cause had been determined.

Roger M. Johnson, a spokesman for Union Gas System, Inc., said the explosion was under investigation Monday and that it would be premature to speculate on a cause.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

STUDENTS INTERESTED IN ATTENDING LAW SCHOOL in the fall of 1988 must register for the next LSAT test by Sept. 24, the late deadline. See the pre-law adviser in the dean's office in Eisenhower for registration information.

WOMEN'S SOCCER CLUB meets at 5 p.m., Sept. 22-24, at the Old Stadium for practice.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "On The Verge" by Eric Overmeyer at 8 p.m., Sept. 24-26, 30 and Oct. 1-3 at Nichols Theatre.

STUDENT TEACHERS FOR SPRING 1988 should pick up and return student teaching assignment request forms to Blumont 13 before Sept. 25.

"STUDENTS THAT BACK THE CATS" (ICAT). Sign up starts at 10:30 a.m., Sept. 23, in the Union for the bus trip to the K-State-Missouri game Oct. 10. Cost is $25 and covers ticket and transportation.

TODAY

BLUE KEY Homecoming representatives meet for an informational meeting at 7 p.m. in Union Little Theatre. Body Building representatives meet at 7:30 p.m. in Ahearn Field House.

LESBIAN SUPPORT GROUP meets at 7 p.m. in Holton 111.

HORSEMAN'S ASSOCIATION meets at 7 p.m. in Call 204. There will be a guest speaker followed by a watermelon feed.

STUDENT GERONTOLOGY CLUB meets at 5:30 p.m. at Godfather's for a pizza party.

DAIRY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 7:30 p.m. in Call 140.

SPURS HONORARY meets at 9 p.m. in Union 206.

COLLEGIAN FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA meets at 6 p.m. in City Park, north side of the swimming pool.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB meets at 8:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for Royal Purple group photo.

WHEAT STATE AGRONOMY CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 313.

HOME ECONOMICS EDUCATION INTEREST GROUP meets at 5:30 p.m. in Blumont 343 for a salad supper.

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 6:30 a.m. The club will be baking throughout the day for Wednesday's bake sale.

APPAREL AND TEXTILE MARKET

ING INTEREST GROUP meets at 7 p.m. in Justin 326 for elections and a guest speaker.

ALPHA CHI SIGMA meets at 7 p.m. in Willard 218 for an informational meeting for prospective members.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS French Club meets at 7 p.m. at Sherri Valentine's home for a wine and cheese party.

THE GRADUATE CLUB has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Laura M. Hansen at 10 a.m. in Justin 247. The topic is: "Thermal Transitions of Wheat Starch as Modified By Other Carbohydrate Components: C-13 Nuclear Magnetic Resonance Spectroscopy and Differential Scanning Calorimetry Studies."

GERMAN TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2. Anyone interested in German conversation is welcome.

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK meets at 6 p.m. in Union 206.

The Station
TACO TUESDAY
featuring those freshly prepared crisp flour shells

$1.25 MARGARITAS
99¢ TACOS
OR 3 FOR $2.75
99¢ HOT SHOOTERS
$1.00 LATE NIGHT TOSTADOS
11-12, ALL YOU CAN EAT

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Don't Worry About Your Weight...

Do Something About It

Ask About Our Weight Control Classes

Fall Schedule:
Monday 3:30-4 p.m.
Wednesday 3:30-4 p.m.

Lafene Health Center Room 122
For more information call 532-6544

TACO TUESDAY

60¢ GIANT TACOS all you want plus $1 Margaritas 4-7 p.m.

LUNCH SPECIAL
2 Tacos & Salad Bar only $2.99 $1 Margaritas

The COTTON CLUB
418 Poyne

TELE-FIND

COMPUTERIZED CLASSIFIED ADS

If you're looking for goods and services, Telefind lists information on:

- Roommates •Used Autos
- Rentals •Childcare •Furniture
- Used Computers and More!

Assistance is just a phone call away

FREE OF CHARGE!

539-CALL
Clip & Save

TR Ranch SALOON

6TH ANNIVERSARY PARTY
SEPTEMBER 23-26

Wed 23 8:00PM THE KIPK SMOKY HILL RIVER BAND
9:00PM DOLLY PARTON LOOK ALIKE CONTEST
1ST PRIZE: $100<sup>00</sup> 2ND PRIZE: RANCH JACKET

Thurs 24 8:00PM THE KIPK SMOKY HILL RIVER BAND
9:00PM DWIGHT YAKAM LOOK ALIKE CONTEST
1ST PRIZE: $100<sup>00</sup> 2ND PRIZE: RANCH JACKET

Fri 25 SAT 26 9:00PM THE CATFISH CHARLIE BAND
PLUS LOTS OF DRAWINGS AND GIVEAWAYS
RANCH JACKETS, T-SHIRTS & THE LIKE

$1 for members $2 for guests
A Class B Private Club
3 miles East of Manhattan on Highway 24

BUD LIGHT

SCORE FOR CHARITY

1987

Attention
Flag Football Teams
Enter the
6th Annual "Score For Charity" Football Tournament
When: Oct. 2, 3 & 4
Where: KSU Old Stadium
How: Send Team Roster & $60 Entry Fee to
Phi Delta Theta Fraternity
508 Sunset, Manhattan, KS.

This is a double elimination tournament with trophies going to the top three places. All-Star shirts awarded to outstanding players. Tournament party Friday night at the Phi Delta house featuring the band, The Catch.

Last year's champs: Men—Tau Kappa Epsilon
Women—Alpha Zl
Top Fundraising Group—Pi Phi

All proceeds go to the National ALS Foundation (Lou Gehrig's disease)

Entry Deadline is Sept. 24 at 5 p.m.

BUD LIGHT

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Delta Upsilon, FarmHouse, Off Campus

Sept. 23: Gamma Phi Beta, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Manhattan—Junction City—Fort Riley

Your switch is on . . .

#1 Music Station

NOW defends rights Bork provides challenge

By Karen Allen
Collegian Reporter

The National Organization for Women denounced Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork at a local meeting Monday night.

"We are ready to fight to preserve our lives," said Debby Brown, state NOW coordinator. Bork's nomination has given the organization a challenge, she said, adding that Bork stands for everything NOW does not.

NOW was founded in 1966 and has been in Manhattan for about five years. The organization has traditionally supported women's and minority rights. Some of the members believe Bork will take those rights away.

"We are pro-choice and Bork is anti-choice," said Cyndy Trent, vice president of the Manhattan chapter.

"The administration that nominated Bork is eroding our rights that we have worked decades for," Brown said.

Brown also addressed the issue of sex education in schools. Recently the state board of education mandated that sex education be taught in all accredited high schools by fall 1988. However, students do not have to take the course, she said.

"Parents have the option to remove their children from the class or not to enroll them at all," Brown said. But now it is mandatory to teach it to those who want it, she said. Brown encouraged members to promote the issue by attending meetings in Concordia and Topeka in October. The meetings will give parents a chance to address the mandate, she said.

"Part of being a feminist is being active," Brown said. She encouraged members to attend the Kansas NOW State Conference in Manhattan on Oct. 24. The title of the conference is "Prairie Feminism: On the Rise" and is open to non-members. Scheduled events include workshops, speakers and election of a lobbyist to represent the organization during the 1988 state legislative session.

One of the biggest challenges facing NOW this year is the task of educating young women, Brown said.

"Each generation has to fight its own battles," she said, adding NOW can help prepare women by showing them what they have to lose.

Nebraska may receive waste site

By The Associated Press

WICHITA — Nebraska appears to be the leading candidate for the location of a five-state low-level nuclear waste dump, the Wichita Eagle-Beacon reported Sunday.

The selection process proposed by U.S. Ecology has five evaluation categories detailed in a 20-page document, and Nebraska is the only compact state that ranks high in all five, the Eagle-Beacon reported. The proposal will be considered when members of the Central Interstate Low Level Radioactive Waste Compact meet today in Little Rock.

Deciding how to select a dump site has been pending for 6½ years since Kansas, Nebraska, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma formed the regional compact.

U.S. Ecology, the Kentucky company designated to construct the dump, says the proposed selection formula is a starting place. The compact members may want to modify the suggested process or weight portions of it, company officials said.

Traditions established at fair after 75 years of entertaining

By Ann Iseman
Collegian Reporter

September is a month for birthdays in Kansas, and 1987 is a year for milestones. Alf Landon celebrated his 100th on Sept. 9, and Sept. 15 marked another institution's birthday.

The Kansas State Fair turned 75 years old.

Changes in the fair have been made, but many traditions have been established. The "Pretty Baby" contest and the crowning of a Kansas Dairy Princess no longer exist, but a few things haven't changed.

Visitors can still hear high school bands from all over Kansas, and they can still smell and taste the homemade food. Although a midway with carnival rides and booths with professional carnival workers has been brought in, the Old Mill "haunted" boat ride still exists, and plenty of local volunteers help out at many of the exhibits.

Besides the traditional judging events, new events have been added during the past 75 years. Horse shows, pig races, arm wrestling, stock-car races and a demolition derby that features combines draw crowds to the grandstand.

In the past, the entertainment was a local group or a low-cost performer who played every night of the fair. Now, big-name performers and bands come to the fair and do one or two performances. A different entertainer is featured each night. In 1967 the entertainment was provided by Morey Amsterdam and the New Christy Minstrels.

Despite the changes in entertainment, the agricultural and livestock background of the fair is still evident. Every day of the fair consists largely of the judging of livestock, plant varieties, prepared foods and domestic arts.

Noel Perrin, who travels to several state fairs every year, wrote about the Kansas State Fair in the Smithsonian Magazine. Perrin judges fairs for their "down-homeness" or authenticity.

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS

egg roll & fried rice $1.25
111b Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

Movie Quik is here

Movie Rentals $1.99
Video Players $4.99

OPEN 24 HOURS 1445 ANDERSON

THURSDAY
Veranda's album release party!

Looking for ways to serve the Lord in Agriculture
MCC HAS Opportunities
Come see us at Agribusiness Careers Fair (Other majors welcome)

New New New
CAR WASH
FOUR BAYS
619 N. 3rd St.
Across from Pizza Hut
Brand new and no waiting

Silver Reed EZ 20
Reg. 199.95 Now 179.95
Multi-Lingual Keyboard
Relocation
Correction Memory
Slip-in Typewheels (Pica or elite)
Hull Business Machines

BOOK SALE

Sponsored by:
Friends of the Libraries

DONATIONS for the sale can be left in the purple boxes in the lobby of Farrell Library at KSU from Sept. 14 to Oct. 16

BUSHWACKER'S
THE FUNDRINKERY

DISCOVER THE FUN
Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. at 9 p.m.
Tonight
Billy Jaye
along with Brian Burgess
*This will be Billy's fourth appearance here. Always a Manhattan favorite.

Show 9 p.m. Tickets $2
Office Bar
539-4321 539-9727

AGGIEVILLE FLOWERS
LARGE ROSES $13.50
DOZEN
Cash & Carry only
12th & Laramie
537-9549
Mon.-Sat. 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

NOW HERE'S THE OFFER

Earn $25 for Diarrhea Study
For more information
Lafene Health Center 532-6544

WE DELIVER
5 p.m.- Midnight (M-S)
Noon - Midnight (Sun.)
Sub & Stuff Sandwich Shop
537-DELI

Burke's
404 Poyntz
Downtown Manhattan

MOONLIGHT MADNESS
Tuesday, Sept. 29 6 p.m.-10 p.m.

15% OFF
STOREWIDE SAVINGS

Men's Women's Children's

You Can't Pay More than $44.95!

Complete Eyeglasses

SINGLE VISION $24.95
BIFOCALS $34.95

Our only Extras: Cox Coating (scratch guard)-$10 and Photo Grey Extra (lenses that darken)-$10.

Payless Optical Outlet
1210 Moro, Manhattan
537-1574
M-F 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

The sandwich that launched a chain of restaurants.

The famous Runza sandwich. Good eating. Good nutrition. And impeccably good taste. Here's why.
Lean 100% American ground beef-fresh, not frozen. Small, young heads of cabbage hand-picked to guarantee perfect flavor and texture. Tender dough made fresh every day with 100% durum flour. The finest in imported and domestic spices.
Choose an original Runza or one of our cheese or Italian varieties. Add an order of fries or a garden-fresh salad. It's a good meal for the entire family.
The Runza sandwich. So good we named our restaurants after it.

At Runza, we start fresh so everything ends up good.

RUNZA
DRIVE INN RESTAURANT
1101 Moro
AGGIEVILLE

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, September 22, 1987 ■ Page 4

K-State needs better public relations

To the casual observer, it would seem the University would be unusually sensitive this year to the need for improved public relations with its chief supporter, the Kansas taxpayer. After all, President Jon Wefald has personally traveled thousands of miles and crisscrossed the state in an effort to re-establish the grass-roots support base K-State once enjoyed.

The University is still reeling from the precipitous budget cut it was forced to absorb in the middle of the last academic year. The faculty, accustomed to receiving pay increases considerably less than the cost-of-living increase, is going to average a 1.5 percent increase this academic year, while the cost-of-living index will increase 3 percent to 4 percent.

Individually and collectively, however, we seem unable to stop shooting ourselves in the foot. We continue to fail to see that each of us has a responsibility, if not to put our best foot forward, at least not to needlessly antagonize those Kansas taxpayers, most of whom do not have sons or daughters here as students.

At the Kansas State Fair which just concluded, for example, a book, "A Week at Kansas State," was to be available acclaiming the virtues of our great institution. That it did not arrive from the publishers in time was a disappointment; that the publisher was in Hong Kong should qualify it for one of the

Commentary

JUDD ANNIS
Collegian Columnist

worst public-relations blunders of the year. Undoubtedly, Student Publications Inc. was trying to save the taxpayers' money by going for the low bid, but the taxpayers I know are more likely to react with "Why couldn't that print job be done in Kansas — or at least in the United States — and keep the money at home?"

Here our nation is agonizing over an increasing trade deficit, a record $16.5 billion in July, and Student Publications is seemingly unconcerned. If it were concerned, or recognized the poor public-relations image projected, a simple press release explaining its rationale would have repaired the damage.

Perhaps state regulations requiring them to accept the low bid do not allow them to reject foreign vendors. If that's the case, the regulations need to be changed. All the Kansas taxpayer sees is work that local craftsmen are perfectly able to complete being sent overseas — and not even a hint that Student Publications is sensitive to that fact.

Then we have the Willie Nelson concert which was promoted as a Farm Aid benefit. It was publicized that after paying Willie Nelson, Nelson's promoter and the K-State athletic department, nothing was left for Farm Aid.

Mike Jones, athletic department business manager, was quoted as saying, "The only thing I feel badly about" is that Farm Aid received nothing. Don't Jones' regrets go any deeper than that? How about the image K-State projected to this state's farmers — those who support K-State with their tax dollars? The public-relations damage of that fiasco will linger long after the strains of Willie singing "On the Road Again" have faded away.

During the summer, the campus committee concerned with the campus parking problem was actively considering a $2 charge to visitors who wished to have a permit to park on campus. If the committee felt any responsibility for the public relations of this institution, such a recommendation would never have found its way into press reports. Did no one on that committee have any sensitivity to the bad taste a $2 parking fee would leave in the mouth of a visitor?

No one should feel that I'm advocating restraint from students or faculty. No university worthy of the name allows outside individuals or pressure groups to muzzle its faculty or restrict the direction of its academia. Universities, especially public ones, never succeed fully in convincing the taxpayers that their dollars should not buy them the right to control unpopular faculty or irreverent utterings.

It is not the serious, sincere challenge to the status quo that concerns me, but rather the unthinking acts that damage the image K-State enjoys with the average citizen. To enjoy academic freedom is not to ignore the major source of our support. There will eventually arise some situation when we have to defend our academic freedoms, but in the meantime there is no need to thoughtlessly bite the hand of the Kansas taxpayer who feeds us.

Everyone connected with K-State must be made more aware of their responsibility for positive public relations. To help in this effort, an independent panel could be established to receive complaints about campus-related PR blunders, investigate them, and issue a report with recommendations on how to avoid such errors in the future.

Meanwhile, President Wefald can reinforce his own efforts in the field by pointing out the need for students, faculty and administrators to sensitize themselves to the impact their words and actions have on those whose support they desperately need to recapture — the Kansas taxpayer. Such sensitivity need not endanger freedom of speech or academic activity but simply make it more responsible.

Congress should listen to Arias plan for peace

Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez delivered the 77th Landon Lecture on Public Issues Tuesday to a crowd of about 4,000. Today he will appear before joint sessions of Congress to present his peace plan — a necessary part of which includes the cessation of funds supplied to the Contras in Nicaragua by the United States.

During his lecture, he spoke of the Arias Peace Plan, the agreement between the five Central American countries named for its author.

On Aug. 7, 1987, leaders from Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica signed the peace plan and are currently working toward the Nov. 7, 1987, deadline set for conforming with the plan.

The plan — and the lecture — stress the importance of letting Central America work out its own economic and military problems.

To the United States this means cutting off aid to the Contras in Nicaragua, a move which would save us money and help save Central America.

Arias told the crowd in Ahearn that "We (Central America) will build a modern economy based on the economy we have." Central America can never hope to achieve this if it is constantly given money from other nations.

It all boils down to leaving Central America on its own politically and economically.

Today Arias will ask Congress to let these nations do just that. Congress should lend Arias an ear.

K-State should retain open admission policy

Public universities in Kansas have had a long tradition of allowing Kansans who graduate from state high schools to attend the state higher learning institution of their choice.

This has been called an open admissions policy.

Recently, some universities, especially the University of Kansas, have asked the Kansas Board of Regents to limit the number of students who can attend their school. Officials at KU said their reasons for wanting to limit the number of students is because of the overcrowding the university has experienced with increased enrollment.

While such overcrowding is an enviable problem, those officials and the Regents should not forget the reason public education is, and has always been, supported in this country.

Public universities are supported with tax dollars to give anyone the chance for higher education. This means anybody, no matter how they might have performed academically in high school.

KU officials are not the only ones who are in favor of such a policy.

Student Body President Kent Bradley has said he supports a selective admissions policy at K-State and President Jon Wefald said the plan should warrant serious speculation.

President Wefald is right. Serious consideration should be paid to selective admissions for other universities in the state, but not for K-State. Bradley is just plain wrong.

What they might be forgetting is that Kansas State has a unique mission for higher education in the state. It is a land-grant university, while the other state institutions are not.

The land-grant mission of this school is to provide education to anyone in the state. Land was provided for the University in exchange for a promise for higher education to all the people of Kansas. This promise is fulfilled through the K-State Extension Service, Telenet and our open admissions policy.

Serious consideration should be paid to selective admissions at other universities but only as a temporary measure to ease overcrowding, not a permanent way to screen students.

Attention should be paid to what the state and society loses if some students are denied a higher education because of their high school grades. While most college students previously received good grades in high school, there are some in every class who need the freedom of higher education to excel academically.

Limiting admissions should never be considered at a land-grant institution. These are the schools given the mission to educate the common man, as well as the college-bound student.

Everybody should have the opportunity to attend the public university of their choice — especially if the choice is a land-grant school.

Q. The Democrats are called the Seven Dwarfs. Why isn't there a name for the Republicans?

A. There is no word in the English language.

Letters

Word evolution

Editor,

Perhaps I am again revealing my "self-righteous ignorance," but I am confused by Professor George Clark's rebuttal in the Sept. 16 Collegian to my letter concerning sexist language.

First of all, I have no quibble with our "ancient and honorable" English language. In fact, I would be quite in favor of reinstating the ancient English method of distinguishing between women, men and people. (For you see, Professor Clark, our English language is always changing — or hast thou not read Chaucer?)

In the 17th century, a woman was a "wif-man" and a man was a "waepman" while a person was a "man." The evolution of our language resulted in men choosing that previously generic term for themselves and abandoning "waepman." By the 18th century, this specific use for the word "man" was established.

I am perfectly content to call males men according to their wishes. However, when "man" was adopted as a specific term, it necessarily lost its generic meaning. Confirming this truth, scientific studies have found that the word "man" — even when used in an obviously generic, sex-inclusive context — causes most people (not just a strident few) to visualize a male human being. Certainly it is past time for this linguistic ambiguity, created centuries ago, to be corrected.

Secondly, in defense of President Jon Wefald (whom I hope deserves more moral credit than Professor Clark gives him), he has not condoned the excision of either "rich" or "resonant" words from our English language. (I suppose this assumes that the word "man" is both rich and resonant?) He has, on the contrary, asserted his conviction that we should use our language correctly — use words to mean what they really do mean. President Wefald realizes the androcentrism that the improper usage of masculine terms provokes.

Finally, the truth is that our language (and subsequently our perception of correct and proper grammar) changes to reflect the evolution of our society. This is as it should be. Hopefully, our society will continue its relatively recent, positive trends and strident conservatives will not block the long-awaited evolution of our society into one that ceases to be male-dominated. And hopefully conservatives will not block the natural evolution of our language to reflect such a welcome change.

Leigh Ann Wheeler
junior in history

'Comfortable' lives

Editor,

Re: Mike Nichols' column "Amnesty advocates freedoms" in the Sept. 14 Collegian. As coordinator of Manhattan's Amnesty International Group No. 254, I thank Nichols for calling attention to a human rights group that has worked hard for others. We believe that to support human rights we must exercise them by calling attention to those who systematically deny them.

Many are blind to the injustices occurring worldwide. Thousands become victims to arbitrary political arrests and imprisonments, torture, executions, unfair trials and inadequate prison conditions. Such incidents undermine non-violent efforts to practice such rights as free speech and association.

Just as Nichols wrote in his article, many of us are "comfortable" in our "comfortable" environment. Just because we do not see such things happening here in Manhattan, do not feel "comfortable." Help our group help others. Become involved in human rights activities and Amnesty International.

Thank you.

Debbie Paap
senior in pre-art therapy

Thanks guys

Editor,

I would like to thank the men of Alpha Tau Omega and Sigma Nu fraternities for the volunteer work completed for the Corps of Engineers at Tuttle Creek Lake Sept. 12. Through their efforts, several improvements were made to make the public's use of Tuttle Creek Lake safer and more enjoyable.

Their efforts are to be commended as they have taken pride in America.

David D. Green
park manager, Tuttle Creek Lake

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291-020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kotz Hall, phone 532-6355. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kotz Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Health care business booming; variations, changes increase

Hospitals face changes

By Jackie Brazzle
Collegian Reporter

The era of the cola war may be past, but a new wave is on the horizon — The Bedpan War.

In addition to treating the ailing, Manhattan hospitals are competing for business.

Clyde Jones, president of the board of directors at Memorial Hospital, said there has always been competition between Memorial and The St. Marys Hospital, but the marketing strategy has changed.

"The behavior has changed. It is more aggressive," Jones said.

In August 1986, an agreement was broken which stated that Memorial would handle obstetrics care and St. Marys would handle emergency and trauma cases. Hospital officials give separate reasons for breaking the agreement, which was signed in 1978.

Sister Frances Cabrini, assistant administrator at St. Marys, said the hospital reopened its birthing unit because it received an injunction from a Washington D.C., lawyer. The injunction stated that the hospitals were violating anti-trust laws by restricting trade.

Gary Nelson, director of marketing/communications at Memorial, gives a different reason for the reopening of its emergency unit.

"We felt there was a need in the community to provide emergency services," Nelson said.

A joint planning committee, formed in 1981, recommended that St. Marys and Memorial form an umbrella corporation to limit overlapping services. The proposal was rejected by St. Marys' overseer, the church bishop.

He contended Memorial performed surgical procedures on women that St. Marys disagreed with.

Following the rejection of the 1981 recommendation, the Strategic Planning Association, a national organization, was consulted by the two hospitals. Its role was to review the rejected recommendation and provide alternative solutions, Jones said. It suggested the two compete as separate entities.

Since that decision, Memorial and St. Marys have been increasing their advertising and expanding their programs.

For example, Memorial has begun new programs, including Wee Care for sick children of working parents and Healthwatch for senior citizens 60 years of age and older.

This increase in advertising and addition of programs is a combination of responding to the community's needs and competition between the two hospitals, Jones said.

He believes the competition is disadvantageous for both hospitals.

"Competition is wasted resources. This town can support one hospital, but not two," Jones said.

He said the hospitals are non-profit, but they have to operate as businesses because they must cover costs and keep some money in reserve for emergencies.

Medicare premiums rise

By Jackie Brazzle
Collegian Reporter

The base monthly Medicare premium may increase by more than 38 percent during the next year, a state welfare official said last week.

The projected raise will increase the monthly premium from $17.90 to about $24, said Harold Baker, field representative for the Social Security Administration.

Medicare is a federal health program that offers hospital and medical insurance to people with permanent kidney failure, disabled individuals or people 65 and older.

The monthly premiums charged for the medical insurance help to pay for doctors' services and general care. Seventy-five percent of medical insurance is financed by the government, with the remainder covered by paid premiums.

A portion of the hospital insurance is covered by Medicare, with the remainder absorbed by the hospital. It covers in-patient hospital care and some follow-up care. It is financed through part of the Social Security (FICA) tax.

Baker said that in the past, Medicare paid doctor and hospital bills after a $75 deductible. But since a change in 1983, Medicare has only paid a flat rate for services basing the payment on the average costs for treatment.

"Hospitals are rewarded for giving necessary care as efficiently and effectively as possible."
—Harold Baker

Herman Haffenstein, finance director at the state Social and Rehabilitation Services, said that if the state chooses not to cover the portion of the premium that users of Medicare cannot pay, some recipients will lose their Medicare coverage.

Since most hospitals are owned by the state and county, they are directly affected by the expected increase. The hospitals will have to absorb a portion of their own costs that the new Medicare program doesn't cover and patients can't afford to pay, Baker said.

Baker said that under the old system, hospitals did not have a reason to hold down their costs. The new system changes that.

"Hospitals are rewarded for giving necessary care as efficiently and effectively as possible," Baker said.

The failure of the state to cover the increased costs will cause problems for doctors as well as recipients.

"This makes it difficult (for the doctor) because the doctor wouldn't be paid because the recipient isn't able to pay the increased premiums," Baker said.

One thing that hospitals and insurance companies are encouraging is one-day surgery.

Sister Frances Cabrini, assistant administrator at The St. Mary Hospital, said that one-day surgery allows several advantages for patients. Since the recuperation period is spent at home, patients do not have the higher room bill, she said.

Baker added that the lower patient bill also means a lower insurance bill.

Gary Nelson, director of marketing/communication at Memorial Hospital, said that one-day surgery also benefits the hospital.

Company's price-earnings ratio calculates current stock prices

Commentary

STEPHEN P. HARRISON

Guest Columnist

A common method for determining the value of a stock is the price-earnings, or P/E, ratio. One of the most valuable and widely used indicators in projecting a stock's price, this figure simply relates the company's earnings to the current price of the stock.

The P/E ratio is calculated by dividing the current market price of a share of stock by the earnings per share for a 12-month period. For example, according to the "Value Line Investment Survey," an independent investment advisory service, ABC Computer Co. earned $1.40 per share in 1985, while the market price of the stock was $21. Dividing $21 by $1.40, we find the P/E ratio was 15 times the earnings.

The P/E ratio of any stock, however, has little significance unless related to the P/E ratios of other companies in the same industry. In our example, ABC Computer is a growth computer company selling at 15 times earnings in an industry whose stocks generally sell at a higher P/E.

On the other hand, XYZ Utility Co. is an old-line utility stock selling at half of ABC's P/E, but offering relatively small earning growth potential. As a result, the 1987-89 estimated earnings per share of ABC Computer are $3.50, up $2.10 or 150 percent from the 1985 earning of $1.40. With the more conservative XYZ Utility Co., the estimated earnings are up only 35 cents from $2.85 to $3.20, a much smaller increase of only 12 percent.

Two factors determine the effectiveness of using the P/E ratio. First is the nature of the company and the industry being evaluated. As our example illustrated, a computer company cannot effectively be compared to a utility company. P/E comparisons must be made within the same industry.

The second factor is the overall direction and climate of the stock market. In an active bull, or a rising, market, the P/E ratios of stocks are usually high. Investors tend to pay more, anticipating higher earnings later. In a bear, or down market, the opposite is generally true. Investors tend to discount good news, magnify bad news and remain unwilling to pay as much for future earnings.

The stock market is not an exact science.

Even with this explanation of the P/E ratio, the investor must know how to use it to estimate the future market price of a particular stock. Using aids such as the "Value Line," investors can find estimated P/E and earnings figures for the future of a stock and project an estimated market price.

For example, ABC Computer's estimated earnings between 1987 and 1989 were $3.50 per share and the P/E was estimated at 20, for an estimated market price of $70 per share. In actuality, February 1987 figures showed the stock's earnings had risen from $1.40 to $2.60 for 1987, and the P/E had advanced from 15 to 22. These figures calculated out to a market price of $62 per share. The relatively close $62 and $70 figures show that not everything comes out book perfect, but projections can be based on estimated figures most of the time.

In our example, a few theories were proved: The bull market, which we experienced in February 1987, did produce a P/E above the estimated average. Earnings, which were predicted to rise, did rise, along with the market price. The result? Even though the price didn't rise to the full $70 projected, it did rise substantially, from $21 to $62, a definite profit for the investor.

The price-earnings ratio is only one way to project stock prices. The stock market is not an exact science. Stocks are influenced by the overall direction of the market, the accuracy of earnings projections, and your stock's industry position. In spite of all this, the relation between the price of a stock and the company's earnings — the P/E ratio — is one of the analyst's most effective tools in buying value at a reasonable price.

Stephen P. Harrison is an investment representative with Edward D. Jones & Co., which is a national investment firm with an office serving the Manhattan area.

Law taxes students' scholarships, aid

By Susan L'Ecuier
Collegian Reporter

Students may be digging deeper into their pockets when April 15, 1988, approaches in order to pay taxes on scholarships and fellowships they received the previous year.

Under the Tax Reform Act of 1986, scholarships or fellowships received after Aug. 16, 1986, for expenses incurred in 1987 are now regarded as taxable income. Amounts that pay for tuition and fees, books, supplies and equipment are still tax-exempt, but any amount exceeding those expenditures may be taxed.

K-State's Office of Student Financial Assistance has made efforts to inform students of the new law. Information was posted in the financial aid office and distributed to scholarship recipients at fall semester registration.

The information will be distributed during spring registration also. Larry Viterna, director of Student Financial Assistance, said graduate students will probably be more affected by the new law than undergraduates.

"It will have more of an impact on graduate students who have scholarships or fellowships," he said. "Most undergraduates will probably not have a high enough income that they will be affected. The new law will probably not have an impact on the amount they pay on their tax returns."

One change that may affect graduate students is a tax on scholarships or fellowships intended to pay for room and board, travel, clerical help and research. Those expenses are no longer qualified expenses and, therefore, cannot be classified as exempt.

Amounts received for services are now taxable as well, even if the services are required as part of a degree program. If scholarship or fellowship amounts are received as payment for teaching, research or other services, they are now considered wages and students will have to file a W-2 form.

Viterna said students are responsible for determining whether their scholarships and fellowships were used for qualified tuition and related expenses. Those who have specific questions should consult a tax adviser.

A memorandum sent to scholarship and fellowship recipients states that they will be responsible for determining whether their grant was used for qualified tuition and related expenses.

Since the University cannot track students' expenses, they will not be sending any records to recipients.

OSCAR ARIAS SANCHEZ:

Arias

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

The agreement specifies a deadline of Nov. 7 before which the countries are to comply with its terms. The terms include a cease-fire in Central America, democratization of Central American governments and the elimination of aid to "irregular forces or insurgent movements" in Central America.

Arias said the most important element of the agreement is the cease-fire. Without it, it will be extremely difficult to comply with the rest of the points, he said.

U.S. aid to Contra Rebels in Nicaragua is one of the areas in which Arias is asking for cessation of funds.

He said he hopes President Reagan will stop sending support to the Contras until the five Central American countries implement the terms of the agreement.

"Even with sanctions, I don't think we can guarantee that the treaty will be successful. But if there is good faith and the political will to comply, I don't see how these loopholes can't be overcome."

—Oscar Arias Sanchez

The main concern is whether or not the terms of his agreement can be complied with by the deadline, Arias said.

He said the treaty has "created so many expectations of 25 million people" that he "can't think about the possibility of failure."

"We were aware of the implications when we were signing the agreement," Arias said. "I believe we will be able to comply."

During the press conference preceding the speech, Arias was asked about loopholes Reagan Administration officials said they have found in the plan.

"Even with sanctions, I don't think we can guarantee that the treaty will be successful," Arias said. "But if there is good faith and the political will to comply, I don't see how these loopholes can't be overcome."

Costa Rica is "proud to be a country without an army, where dialogue prevails over violence, and where basic needs of the less fortunate have priority over the demands of the more privileged," he said.

The effort for economic development will be useless if the violence and war continue in Central America, Arias said.

He said with the signing of the peace agreement, there will be an end to the conflict.

"We are convinced that no matter how high the risk of fighting for peace, the cost will always be less than that of war," Arias

Staff/Andy Nelson

K-State President Jon Wefald looks on as U.S. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum greets Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez after he delivered the 77th Landon Lecture on Public Issues Monday in Ahearn Field House. Arias focused on the Central American Peace Initiative in his address titled "History is Ours to Write."

said.

There is a strong tradition of social responsibility in Central America, and his views reflect those of his country, he said.

Arias said he believes if peace does not happen soon, conflicts will cause the economic and political situations in most countries to deteriorate even further.

"We believe that domestic tranquility and external security may be attained in our hemisphere," he said, "only if freedom and democracy prevail in all of the countries."

The most desired goal of Central Americans is "that democracy may spread and thrive," Arias said.

Democracies in the region have "been forced to impose severe measures of austeri-ty" on their countries, he said. "Very often, the restrictions are prescribed in the name of democracy, as if they were the necessary price to pay for the survival of freedom."

Arias said the coming years will be "characterized in the political arena by the struggle to obtain adequate economic growth to ensure the survival of democracy."

"We will build a modern economy based on the economy we have," he said. "Not on its ashes."

"A new economic order should honor the political goal of freedom," Arias said. "Young democracies, therefore, should be granted preferential terms of international trade and external debt relief."

He summed up his statements by calling for support from the United Nations, the Contadora Group and the organization of American States.

"Democracies of the world should be united on the road to peace," he said. "Free nations should work together. We must not be afraid of freedom."

Kansas Rep. Jim Slattery, D-2nd Dist., and Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., were present for Arias' speech. Arias hopes to use their influence to gain additional support from the U.S. Congress in his request for an elimination of funds to the Contras.

Arias is scheduled to appear before a joint session of Congress today.

Slattery has drafted his own peace plan which is similar to Arias'. Slattery's plan includes bilateral negotiations between the United States and Nicaragua. Slattery said these negotiations would help resolve security issues such as Soviet aid to Nicaragua. The plan also proposes an economic assistance and trade package.

Staff/Andy Nelson

Arias talks with Student Body President Kent Bradley following his speech and points to the audience.

Staff/Steve Rasmussen

An estimated crowd of 4,000 listens to President Arias deliver his lecture in Ahearn Field House Monday morning.

Slattery favors Arias peace plan

By Candise Leonard
Government Editor

Rep. Jim Slattery said he was "guardedly optimistic" about the Arias Peace Plan and that it would be a "terrible mistake" to press for a vote on the issue of Reagan's upcoming request for aid to the Contras.

Following the Landon Lecture by President Arias, Slattery commented about the upcoming $250,000-$300,000 Contra aid appropriation requested by the administration.

"I hope (Reagan) will not formally make that request before Nov. 7," Slattery said. The first week in November is Arias' deadline for the cease-fire in Nicaragua and Central America.

"I think the Nov. 7 deadline is very important," Slattery said, offering support for the peace plan. "I am inclined to believe we should try to help the Contras relocate — perhaps give them humanitarian assistance."

Slattery pointed out that a "Kansas-style democracy" could not be expected in Nicaragua by the cease-fire deadline, but he did anticipate the uncensored printing of the national newspaper and operation of the Catholic radio station "in the not too distant future."

Slattery believes action can be taken by the United States on the peace proposal, although the administration has mixed reactions about the plan.

"If we are really concerned about the spread of communism, we can no longer tolerate the 70 percent malnutrition rate in Honduras, for example, and expect democracy and peace," Slattery said, echoing Arias' sentiment about the relationship between economic security and peace.

Before the U.S. government can make an investment for economic development in Central America, Slattery said it must first stop the war in Nicaragua and correct its own budget deficit.

"The question is 'Are we willing to make that investment?'" he said.

The compliance of Nicaragua to the requirements of the peace agreement is crucial to the U.S. position on economic assistance, Slattery said.

Staff/John Thelander

During a public forum, Arias underscored his strong belief in his plan for peace in Central America.

Plan's provisions for gaining peace

Highlights of the Central American Peace Agreement signed by the presidents of Nicaragua, Guatemala, El Salvador, Costa Rica and Honduras include:

■ to accept completely the historic challenge of forging a peaceful destiny for Central America;

■ commit ourselves to fight for peace and eradicate war;

■ make dialogue prevail over violence and reason over rancor;

■ dedicate to the use of Central America whose legitimate aspirations for peace and social justice of liberty and reconciliation have been frustrated for many generations, these peace efforts;

■ put in place the Central American Parliament as a symbol of liberty and independence of the reconciliation that we aspire to in Central America."

The agreement also outlines plans for stabilizing Central America in 11 categories: national reconciliation; exhortation for cessation of hostilities; democratization; free elections; cessation of aid to irregular forces or insurgent movements; non-use of territory for aggression against other nations; negotiations regarding security, verification, control and limitation of arms; refugees and displaced persons; cooperation, democracy and freedom for peace and development; verification and international follow-up; and calendar for the implementation of the commitments.

This agreement was signed in Guatemala City on Aug. 7. By Nov. 7, "the commitments relating to amnesty, cease-fire, democratization, cessation of aid to irregular forces or other insurgent movements, and the non-use of territory to attack other nations shall enter into effect publicly and simultaneously as defined" in the agreement.

The agreement states "the points included in this document are part of an indivisible and harmonic whole. Its signing implies an obligation accepted in good faith of simultaneous compliance with everything agreed upon within the established time frame."

77TH LANDON LECTURER

Optimism, sense of duty guide leader

Youth of Costa Rica face unclear future, Arias says

By Deron Johnson
Editor

Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez's impassioned plea is clear: Peace must be attained in Central America.

And, if the optimism expressed in his Monday afternoon forum counts for anything, he will surely be successful in his quest.

"I've been asked the question many times, 'What would you do if the Guatemala Accord fails?'" he said of his proposed peace plan, which has been ratified by the leaders of five Central American nations. "And my answer to that is: 'What would you do if the Guatemala Accord succeeds?'"

"The ultimate objective of politics — and of economic development — is man. We want a better world for our children. That's why I'm so optimistic. We cannot fail."

—President Arias

Arias, who spoke to about 275 people in the Union Little Theatre, believes in his plan's chances for success.

"The ultimate objective of politics — and of economic development — is man," he said. "We want a better world for our children. That's why I'm so optimistic."

"We cannot fail."

Although Arias sees obstacles between him and his objective, he doesn't regard the United States as one of them. The fear that the Reagan Administration will decrease U.S. aid to Costa Rica because of Arias' lack of support of the Nicaraguan Contras is unfounded, he said.

"I don't think that because we have a difference in opinion the administration in the United States (will punish Costa Rica by reducing aid)," he said. "I can't accept that and don't think it's true."

However, Arias made it clear that his nation will not tolerate Contras we think is more important for our people," he said.

Arias believes that if given the opportunity for free elections, Nicaraguan citizens would overwhelmingly reject the Sandinistas.

Staff/Gary Lytle

Arias greets Michael Salas, whose parents are from Central America and whose cousin ran against Arias in the 1986 elections.

using Costa Rican soil to fight their battles against the Sandinistas.

"I think it is a betrayal to use our territory to fight another government in the region," he said. "We now have the moral authority to tell other countries in the region that our territory shouldn't be used by rebel forces against any legitimate governments in the area."

One thing Arias does admit is that the ideologies of the United States and Costa Rica don't always mesh. "(The United States) mainly wants to channel all their money through private enterprise, and we don't agree with that," he said, adding that Washington shouldn't dictate how U.S. dollars are spent in Costa Rica.

"Let us do with that money what "I honestly believe that if free elections were held in Nicaragua, the Sandinistas could never win that election. It's just not possible."

"Voters are the same all over the world," he said. "Nicaraguan voters are not masochists. They're not going to vote for those responsible for making Nicaragua the poorest of the Latin American nations in just seven years."

The average wage among Nicaraguan workers is $4 per month, he said.

He said young people in Costa Rica must be afforded opportunities different from those many other Central American youth face, including preparing for war.

"Instead of attending college,

Staff/Brad Fanshier

Arias receives a question about his peace plan from a member of the audience of about 275 people at the public forum in the Union Little Theatre.

they're learning how to shoot a machine gun," Arias said of his neighboring young people. "One has to be very tolerant to accept this situation."

During the 45-minute presentation, Arias took about 10 questions. He suggested that those who support the peace plan let their representatives in Washington know how they feel.

Arias believes the legacy his generation passes to Costa Rica's youth must be one of peace and prosperity. And because of the obligation he feels, he relies heavily on optimism.

"I became president because I fought for the chance (to help) a new generation," he said. "I repeated the words of Jack Kennedy a long time ago that the torch should be passed on to a new generation."

"In the search for peace, there should be no failures."

Staff/Steve Wolgast

After delivering the lecture, Arias tours the campus with Charles Reagan, assistant to President Wefald.

Arias lecture draws favorable reactions

By Nancy Hill
Collegian Reporter

Oscar Arias Sanchez's Landon Lecture brought positive reviews from those who could hear his address clearly in Ahearn Field House.

"We should feel really honored that he was here in the first place," said Lori Shellenberger, senior in pre-law. "I thought it was an excellent speech and it's wonderful that he took the time to speak to students."

Richard Hayter, Manhattan city commissioner, thought the message Arias brought was what people were hoping to hear.

"I think it's evident through the people's applause that they're supporting his plan and encouraging some positive response out of Congress this week," Hayter said.

Harry Marsh, professor of journalism and mass communications, said this Landon Lecture was one of the best he had heard.

"I thought it was one of the few Landon Lectures that I've heard that really challenged the students and told them what they can do for the future that's good and something that they would want to do," Marsh said.

Many students were unable to hear the lecture clearly due to the poor acoustics in Ahearn.

"I think it distracted from his message because it was hard to pay attention with both his accent and his words bouncing off the walls," said Judi Walter, senior in journalism and mass communications.

Some students who could hear Arias wished he would have addressed his peace plan in more detail.

"I thought it was a little general, although I understand that for political reasons he probably needed to keep it neutral," said Kathy Pearce, senior in psychology.

Another problem some students encountered was having a class scheduled during the Landon Lecture.

"It's a shame that so many teachers will hold class periods where they cover important material or collect assignments so those students who would otherwise be very interested in attending the lectures are forced to miss them," said John Bullock, senior in social sciences and pre-law.

Leader's visit impresses student

By Jenny Chaulk
Campus Editor

For most of the people who attended Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez's lecture, it was a chance to see the head of another country talk about his plans for peace.

For Rolando Flores, doctoral candidate in grain science, it was a chance to see his president convey the views of his country to the American people.

Flores, a Costa Rican who came to the United States in January 1986, said Arias' visit to K-State was "really an experience."

"He (Arias) impressed me with the way he handled being around a lot of people," Flores said. "He was very calm and listened to everybody."

"He (Arias) impressed me with the way he handled being around a lot of people. He was very calm and listened to everybody."

—Rolando Flores

Arias became president of Costa Rica in February 1986, one month after Flores left the country. Flores said the support Arias had then has continued to build in Costa Rica, both for Arias himself and his peace plan.

"People in Costa Rica, without question, support the peace effort," Flores said. "War has been going on for so long in Central America, so in terms of peace, this is a very big step."

"The purpose of his visit here is, of course, to promote his peace plan," he added. "I think it is very positive he (Arias) is emerging as a leader in Latin America."

Flores had never met Arias before the leader's visit to K-State. He said Arias "is a very interesting person."

"In Costa Rica, I was an administrative director for a national producing bureau, so I was used to dealing with some politicians," Flores said. "He is quite different from what I was familiar with."

"He is one of the few presidents in the world to have such a strong academic background," he said.

Arias has a masters and doctorate in political science from the University of Essex, London School of Economics, London, and is licensed in law and economics from the University of Costa Rica.

Flores said his initial reaction to Arias' visit was one of "surprise."

"I was surprised because there are so many universities here (in the United States)," he said. "I was also very pleased. You appreciate a person like him more when you are out of your country. I'm also amazed to see how (the people at) K-State (are) open and (are) willing to see different points of view. There is a lot of vision in the people who brought him here and in wanting peace — especially in Central America."

Flores said he supports Arias' peace plan "totally."

"It is very clear that Central America needs to solve its own problems," he said. "Let's give a chance to this peace treaty."

Staff/Steve Wolgast

During his impromptu walk through campus, Arias visits with Traci Walker, senior in graphics, and Lisa Kruzich, senior in interior design, near the library. Arias' unscheduled tour took him from the Union to Farrell Library, past Anderson Hall and into McCain Auditorium.

Elderly

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Nationally, 300,000 to 400,000 senior citizens are under guardianship.

What was unusual was that Billie had her "day in court" at all.

A year-long investigation by The Associated Press found that senior citizens facing guardianship are often denied courtroom rights considered essential to criminal defendants and those being committed to mental hospitals.

A review of more than 2,200 cases around the country showed 44 percent of the elderly were not represented by attorneys; almost half did not attend their own hearings.

In fact, more than one in four cases had no hearings. And in places such as Cleveland or Charlotte, N.C., a proposed ward may not even get a judge — a court clerk conducts hearings and issues the ruling.

The AP also found laws vague in defining who needs guardianship, lax standards in determining the proposed ward's medical and psychological status and insensitivity toward the elderly throughout the legal process.

Combined, these factors make it very easy to get a guardianship and hard for the elderly to defend themselves against the process.

"When somebody goes to jail, the court system has bent over backwards with due process. But there is no such thing with a guardian," said Ina Katich, a Denver expert on law and the elderly.

But the process of placing someone under guardianship is not just a question of legal rights. It involves issues of medicine, psychiatry, geriatrics and, importantly, society's attitudes toward the elderly.

D'Jean Testa, a Legal Services attorney in Phoenix, recounts story after story of people who faced guardianship because their actions did not fit what society expects of older people.

In one case, a daughter sought guardianship for her mother because the elderly woman wanted to buy a camper and tour the country with a male friend. In another, a son sought guardianship to stop his father's plans to remarry.

"If you're old, you can't be foolish," Testa said.

This bias is reflected in the wording of guardianship law and the way courts handle their wards.

Guardianship is granted when a court believes a person is incompetent: unable to handle his affairs or care for herself. But a survey by the American Bar Association found that in 25 states "advanced age" is enough cause to find someone incompetent. Other reasons are equally vague, from "improvidence" in Ohio to "spendthrift" in Massachusetts and "habitual drunkard" in several states.

"Advanced age just isn't a good enough reason to appoint a guardian," said Gwen Bedford, a national director of the American Association of Retired People. "You've got to tell the difference between someone who is just eccentric and someone who really is incapacitated."

Advanced age was given as the reason for incompetence in 8 percent of the cases the AP studied.

While the competency of the elderly comes under close scrutiny, little is done to tailor the legal process to their special needs and problems.

Notices of guardianship petitions are often printed in hard-to-read legalese. For example, old people facing guardianship in Texas receive this notice calling them to court:

"...at or before 10 a.m. of the Monday next after the expiration of 10 days after the date of service of this citation by filing a written answer to the application of (petitioner) filed in said court on the (date) alleging said ward has no guardian and praying for the appointment of the person and estate of said ward. At said above mentioned time and place, said ward and all other persons may contest said application if they so desire."

Such warnings, sent by mail or delivered by sheriff's deputies with no other explanation, do little to inform senior citizens of their rights or the implications of guardianship.

Only 14 states specifically require that the elderly be informed of their rights and what freedoms they would lose under guardianship.

"People have the right to defend themselves and people need to know that," said Paul Wharton, an attorney with the Utah Legal Services Senior Law Center. "What really ought to be considered is providing notice, like a Miranda warning. We give criminals warning, why not our parents?"

While the proposed ward's medical status is the basis for determining incompetence, at least 11 states require no medical evidence other than the allegations of the petitioner. In fact, 34 percent of the cases examined nationwide by the AP showed no medical evidence supporting petitioners' claims; in 16 percent, the only evidence came from the petitioners.

Tod Porterfield, an 83-year-old Albion, Ind., farmer, was placed under guardianship and forced into a nursing home on the strength of a petition saying he suffered from Alzheimer's disease. It was later discovered the allegation came from a social worker at a hospital where Porterfield was treated for stomach problems.

"No doctor ever diagnosed me," said Porterfield, who eventually had the guardianship overturned. "I never talked to a doctor or an officer of the court."

WEDNESDAY: How Courts Fail to Guard Against Guardian Abuse.

PAZAZZ

hair designs

Peggy — our newest Pazazz designer — welcomes all former clients to call or stop by.— For your personal appointment call Peggy soon!

1140 Westloop 537-9825

Haircuts
HERS ..... $10.50
Includes Shampoo & Style
$7.50

539-TAME or 539-8601
404 Humboldt

KSU
HORSEMENS ASSOC.
Tues., Sept. 22
7:00 p.m. CALL 204
WATERMELON FEED
Guest Speaker

Run your own company at 26.

We're looking for a few good college undergraduates who can fill the shoes of a Marine Corps officer. That's a pretty tall order. It means leading other Marines. Being responsible for their well-being. But that's something no civilian job offers you at 26. If you think you're a real company man, call 1-841-1821 (collect) for details.

ATTENTION

YOU CAN STILL MAKE RESERVATIONS

for Organization Group Pictures for the Royal Purple. Hurry—so you can get the time and date you want!

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

WATCH FOR

MEET YOUR OPPORTUNITY at the Agribusiness Careers Fair

Today
8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

Union Ballroom

30 Firms are Recruiting for Internships and Full-time Employment Positions and waiting to see you!

Bartlett & Company
Cargill
Carnation Instant Products
Carrol's Foods
Ciba-Geigy Corp.
Conagra Poultry
Continental Grain Co.
Dow Chemical U.S.A.
Excel Corporation
Farm Credit

Farmland Industries
Farm Plan, Inc.
Foster & Gallagher, Inc.
IBP, Inc.
Kansas Assoc. of Bank Reps
Kansas Agricultural Statistics
Kansas Coop Extension
Kansas Farm Bureau
Kraft, Inc.
Kroger Co.

Mennonite Central Comm.
Moorman Manufacturing Co.
Nebraska Coop Extension
Peace Corps
Quaker Oats Co.
Servi-Tech Inc.
Syntex Animal Health
Upjohn
US Federal Deposit Insurance
USDA Soil Conservation

Players go on strike

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — NFL players called their second strike in six years Monday night, putting their six-figure salaries on the line for the freedom to choose where they work.

"As of midnight tonight (Monday) the players of the National Football League will be on strike again," Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said in announcing the strike during half-time of the New England Patriots-New York Jets game.

"None of us wants this, not the players, not the fans, not the owners, and that's really, really sad."

The owners vowed to continue the season Oct. 4-5, after a one-week delay, with non-striking regulars and free agents who were told to report Wednesday, the same day the union planned to start picketing. The owners said they would honor requests for ticket refunds.

The issue was free agency. The union demanded that any player with more than four years' experience be free to choose his team; the owners insisted on some compensation for teams losing free agents, a system that has seen only one player change teams in a decade.

That was much different from the 1982 strike, which lasted 57 days and cost seven games of the 16-game schedule. That walkout was over money, but since then the average player salary has risen from $90,000 to $230,000 a year.

"Free agency cannot be summed up in terms of dollars. It's not about money, it's about dignity and freedom," Upshaw said. "It's about who you work for."

There had been no talks since a meeting Friday between Upshaw and Management Council negotiator Jack Donlan, and no further negotiations were scheduled. "The ball is in Gene's court," said Jim Conway, assistant executive director of the Management Council.

The two sides have met 19 times since first exchanging proposals April 20, and each has made just one counterproposal, both within the last two weeks.

Donlan said he offered concessions Friday on several issues, including pension and roster size, if Upshaw would delay the strike 30 days. But Upshaw said the only specific proposal was to increase rosters from 45 players to 49.

A Management Council statement Monday said free agency was the only issue that could not be settled.

Although Upshaw told the players to expect a long strike, he said it should not take that long to settle the differences.

"I think you could hammer out a deal in a matter of a day, but it will take two or three days to do the language," Upshaw said. "If we started today, there would be no reason there couldn't be games Sunday. Even if we talked tomorrow it could still be done. In 1982 they took eight weeks off and came right back."

Conway said it would take a lot longer. "We don't look for this falling in in 24 hours," he said. "We think the parties have some hard bargaining between where we are now and any labor agreement."

Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who attended the Management Council meeting, said he was just an observer.

"They are so far apart it wouldn't make sense for me to intervene right now," he said.

Some teams, like Indianapolis, said they already had full rosters of free agents to continue the season, while others had barely more than one or two players signed.

Upshaw insisted that the union's support was solid, "including Chicago, which had so many question marks around it."

Dave Duerson, the Bears' assistant player representative, said the free agency issue was "blown all out of proportion," since the average NFL career is only 3½ to 4 years, anyway.

Arbitrator delivers ruling

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Baseball owners conspired to "destroy" free agency after the 1985 season, an arbitrator said Monday in a ruling which could force open the market for stars like Jack Clark, Dale Murphy and Cal Ripken Jr.

In his 16-page decision, arbitrator Tom Roberts wrote that free agents "surely had a value at some price and yet no offers were advanced."

Roberts underlined the word "no" in his ruling.

The decision affects Kirk Gibson,

Donnie Moore and 60 other free agents, but it offered no remedies. Further hearings beginning this week will determine such action.

"The arbitrator found that the clubs entered into a common scheme, the effect of which was to destroy free agency," said players' union head Don Fehr. "In other words, they corked the market. We will ask the arbitrator ... (to) make sure that it will never happen again."

Asked if he was surprised by the ruling, the union's associate general counsel, Gene Orza, said: "Not really. I think if 95 percent of the baseball fans understood what was going on, one arbitrator could figure it out."

Fehr said he expected to meet with Roberts and the owners' chief negotiator, Barry Rona, to work out solutions. Fehr said he will seek remedies through money or new free agency opportunities for players already affected, along with punitive damages from the owners. Fehr would not say how much money the union would seek.

Roberts will also hear the damage portion of the proceeding.

"I don't think it's real clear what it all means," said Gibson, the Tigers outfielder. "What the consequences of today's decision will be is what I'll be interested in."

Roberts noted that Kansas City looked at Gibson but "the interest of the Royals in Gibson suddenly cooled ... concurrently with a meeting of the owners at St. Louis, Mo., in October of 1985 and a gathering of the general managers in Tarpon Springs, Fla., during November of 1985."

Only two free agents, utilitymen Juan Beniquez and Dane Iorg, moved to different teams between the 1985 and 1986 seasons.

"In 1985, however, no free agent received an offer at any price until and unless his former club declared a lack of interest," Roberts wrote, underlining "at any price." He said the "climate of the market had abruptly changed."

"The approach of the clubs to free agency negotiations during this period was, however, not consistent with the existence of a free market," Roberts said.

A similar grievance involving 1986 free agents including Andre Dawson, Tim Lincecum, Jack Morris and Lance Parrish is currently being heard by arbitrator George Nicolau.

Teams stay on top over idle weekend

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma, Nebraska, Auburn and LSU — the elite but idle last weekend — held onto the top four spots in the Associated Press college football poll Monday while Miami and Florida State inched ahead of Ohio State, which slipped from fifth place to seventh.

Michigan State and Pitt fell out of the Top Twenty after two-week stays while Texas A&M and Iowa moved back into the rankings for the first time since the preseason poll.

Oklahoma, which returns to action on Saturday at Tulsa, received 53 of 60 first-place votes and 1,193 of a possible 1,200 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Nebraska, which visits 12th-ranked Arizona State on Saturday, received the other seven first-place votes and 1,129 points.

Auburn, with a road game against Tennessee coming up, received

1,028 points. All three teams have 2-0 records.

LSU, 3-0 following a 49-16 victory over Rice, remained No. 4 with 995 points.

Miami has been idle for two weeks — the Hurricanes meet 10th-ranked Arkansas in Little Rock on Saturday — but jumped from sixth place to fifth with 888 points. Florida State, a 41-24 winner over Memphis State, climbed from seventh to sixth with 869 points.

Ohio State's shaky 24-14 triumph over Oregon cost the Buckeyes two spots in the rankings, dropping them from fifth to seventh with 867 points. Ohio State visits LSU on Saturday.

Notre Dame's impressive 31-8 rout of Michigan State lifted the Fighting Irish from ninth to eighth with 788 points, while Clemson, which needed a last-second field goal to nip Georgia 21-20, slipped from eighth to ninth with 777 points.

Arkansas' 30-15 victory over Tulsa boosted the Razorbacks.

Staff/Greg Vogel

Kristi Jacquot has set K-State records for serving aces in both 3- and 4-game matches after only 10 matches. Jacquot is only 10 aces away from becoming the career leader in service aces at K-State.

Senior Jacquot deals aces

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

Sometimes excellence in a specific area in collegiate athletics comes from an unlikely source.

In this case, the area is service aces, the sport is volleyball and the unlikely source is K-State player Kristi Jacquot.

Jacquot, in only 10 matches, has set school records for serving aces in both 3-game matches and 4-game matches and with 118 career aces — 33 this season alone — is only 10 aces away from becoming the career leader in service aces at K-State.

Those are pretty good statistics, considering serving has always been Jacquot's weak point.

"I've found a serve that works for me — the top spin serve," Jacquot said. "Everyday in practice I try to find ways to make it the same, to make it like a habit. I never used to serve the same way twice and now I've found something that I like to do. I try to work on it as much as I can."

That's not all Jacquot is excelling at on the volleyball court. She leads the Wildcats in blocking, with 11 solo blocks and 30 assists and is second in attack percentage with a .337 success rate — only .002 behind team leader Shawnee Call. Jacquot's 64 digs this season places her third in that category on the team.

"(Jacquot) is doing those things (blocking and attacking) at a very high level," said Scott Nelson, volleyball coach. "She understands what her responsibilities are. She is a good leader with the other players ... and has lots of knowledge she can share with the team."

"The team has a lot of respect for her. She's the captain of the team and was voted that by the players," Nelson said. "She's a real good model for the freshmen."

"Kristi is human like anyone else. She makes mistakes but she doesn't let mistakes or other things affect her for very long," Nelson said. "She puts in lots of time after practice."

Even though Jacquot leads the team in blocking, she still isn't completely happy with her blocks and technique.

"Blocking is something I always need to work on," Jacquot said. "I'm still not satisfied with the way I block. It's hard and I have to watch my hitters, because they run fakes in the middle, and if I go with the fake, that leaves one blocker outside and I've got to really sprint to get outside. It's taken me four years to learn to block but I think I'm finally learning how. Even if I'm late, I can get outside and make a block of it."

There is still one thing Jacquot hasn't accomplished yet, but neither has the K-State team.

"Our main goal this year is to beat Nebraska at home," Jacquot said. "That's my main goal. I've been trying to do it for four years now."

Beating Nebraska is a task that is much harder than it sounds. K-State is 0-34 against the Big Eight Conference powerhouse Cornhuskers. Perhaps an even mightier task for K-State would be to win the Big Eight.

"Our goals aren't to go out and win the Big Eight," Jacquot said. "Our goals are to be in the top three, but if we play really well, we have a chance to win it. Nebraska has won the Big Eight the last 10 or 11 years and it's about time for K-State to rise to the occasion and take control."

"Everybody's attitude seems to be a lot better this year," Jacquot said. "There's not near the frustration level that there was last year. We were so down on ourselves."

Rugby teams have good weekend despite injuries

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The men's rugby teams had very successful outings this past weekend. The B-side was able to beat Garden City's A-side 24-8 and the A-side was able to win two of five contests in an extremely tough bracket in the Girdlestone Tournament in Oklahoma.

"It was a really good victory for our B-team. A lot of inexperienced guys got to play against an A-side and I'm sure it will give them a lot of confidence over the rest of the season," said Dave Todd, team president.

In the Girdlestone Tournament, the A-side won its first match against Fort Sill, Oklahoma's B-side, 24-8. The game saw the K-State ruggers controlling the tempo throughout the contest.

The K-Staters weren't as lucky against their second opponents. They held a tough Royal Artillery School team to a scoreless first half before injuries and some awkward shuffling of the lineup saw them give up nine second half points in losing a 9-0 decision.

"We were really controlling the flow of the game for the entire first half. We had two injuries early in the second half which forced us to jumble our lineup around and we had some guys playing in positions they've never played before," Todd said.

In their third game of the day, the K-Staters again came up on the short end of the scoring, dropping a 8-6 decision to an Oklahoma club side team.

"We felt really fortunate to play them as well as we did (the Oklahoma club side). They were the tournament favorites coming into this thing and to play them so close with a makeshift lineup was really good for us," Todd said.

The second day of play opened with another victory for the squad. They were able to get by a tough Oklahoma City team by a score of 8-6.

The K-Staters were unable to win their second game of the day, which was a rematch with Fort Sill's B-side, which would have clinched the consolation championship for them. Fort Sill upended the K-Staters in a close 8-6 contest.

"It was a terrible game. Our guys just didn't play well at all. I'm not sure if they were disappointed at how the other games went or if they were tired, or what. We just weren't clicking," Todd said.

Both Todd and team captain Mike Powers felt that the team would have had much better success had it brought a full squad to the tournament.

"We had the strongest pack down there but we were a little weak in the backline. We played several rookies and they seemed to fit in really well," Powers said.

"With all of our A-side players in Oklahoma we would have rambled right through it (the tournament)," Todd added.

The coach of the royal artillery team was so impressed with the play of the K-State ruggers in the Oklahoma tournament, he will be coming to Manhattan to preside over three of their practices next week.

State's role in AIDS crisis questioned by authorities

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The federal government should not bar discrimination against AIDS patients or impose confidentiality requirements even though some state approaches may not work, the Reagan administration said Monday.

"I'm not ruling out a federal role in this," Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen told the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health.

But he said states should lead the way in resolving the difficult confidentiality and discrimination questions arising from the AIDS crisis — at least until they prove they're not up to the task.

Subcommittee chairman Henry Waxman, D-Calif., has introduced a bill authorizing $400 million for more AIDS testing and counseling. The measure also requires confidentiality of test results and bars discrimination against those who have AIDS or are infected with the virus.

"While the president has spoken against ignorance and malice, the White House has been silent about legislation or real protections," Waxman said in an opening statement.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, asked about the administration's stand on the Waxman bill, said, "We oppose discrimination ... but we do believe the states probably have pre-emptive responsibility in this area."

Waxman and others, including many medical and public health groups, say federal assurances of confidentiality and protection against discrimination are needed to expand the testing program and attract the people at highest risk of contracting AIDS.

Bowen acknowledged that states may make mistakes and could slow down expansion of the testing program, but "I just think they ought to have the first shot. And then if their response is inadequate, we will have a lot more information about what works and what doesn't."

Bowen also raised the states rights argument in response to Rep. William Dannemeyer's contentions that Congress should require widespread AIDS testing and should require reporting of cases to public health authorities.

The secretary said widespread testing eventually will become routine because doctors will ask for it. And he said the federal government should not impose reporting requirements on states as diverse as Iowa, with practically no AIDS cases, and California, with many.

Bowen also said the administration opposes the $400 million authorized in the Waxman bill, which has been introduced in the Senate by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. He said the Public Health Service is requesting $90 million next year for testing and counseling grants to the states, and that is enough.

Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., said he estimates there are 17 million people at high risk for contracting the AIDS virus, including male homosexuals, intravenous drug users and people with venereal disease. That translates into over $725 million in AIDS testing and counseling costs, he said.

But Bowen said the $90 million proposed by the administration would reach half of some $2.5 million "highest-risk" people, with states expected to contribute additional funds. "If we find it isn't enough, I assure you we will be asking for more," he said.

THE AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION
MEMORIAL PROGRAM

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

This space provided as a public service.

K-STATE PLAYERS

ON THE VERGE
by Eric Overmyer

Sept. 24, 25, 26, 30
Oct. 1, 2, 3
Nichols Theatre 8 p.m.
12-5 532-6398 M-F

Copy

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

location." Coupons have been handed out as an incentive to draw people in.

"I'd like to get down on the first floor where we'll be visible," Montgomery-Wisner said. "It's my battle cry to be moved."

Montgomery-Wisner said an average of 250 people per day use the Copy Center.

Renee Wheeler, sophomore in agricultural economics, said she has never heard of the Copy Center. She takes her business to Kinko's.

"I was not aware of (the Copy Center)," Wheeler said. "No one ever showed me."

Janet Herpich, senior in business education, said of the Union's Copy Center: "I don't think (students) know where it's at."

She said students may go to Kinko's because of the convenient hours and faster service.

"But they're fast around here (at the Copy Center), too," she said.

"I go to Kinko's because it is a real convenience," said Harry Marsh, professor of journalism and mass communications. He said Kinko's has set up a system for the fall semester class manuals, such as reading manuals and workbooks for his classes.

"Kinko's is in a competitive situation," he said. "They provide good services, and the prices are competitive."

Kinko's has a nationwide program to attract instructors to their services, said Anne Fitzgerald, manager of the store.

4" & 6" Sandwiches

Ask about our 10% Discounts

*****

	HALF	WHOLE
Sandwiches 1-12, 15, 16	$2.25	$3.50
Kitchen Sink	2.75	4.75
Roast Beef	2.50	4.00

211 S. Seth Childs, Manhattan, Ks. 66502

537-2411

Call Ahead-We'll have it ready

LAFEMME
(GYN/Family Planning)

CLINIC:

Available Services

- * Birth Control Information & Prescription
- * Pregnancy Counseling
- * Referrals
- * Pap Smear Testing
- * Gynecological Exams
- * Breast Exam
- * Inspection
- * Sexual Information
- * Sexually Transmitted Disease Information

LAFENE HEALTH CENTER

"Your Medical Facility"

532-6554

Enjoy smooth, creamy

Frozen Yogurt

that tastes like Ice Cream but with 80% less fat!

—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!

Frozen Yogurt Series

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays

Neurtus Towers—Aggraville

Dark Horse

619 N. Manhattan

Tall Boy TUESDAY

$1.00

16 oz. Tall Boys $1.50 Wells

Bar Office
539-0981 776-6638

Rockport DressSports.

15% OFF Regular Price

Entire Stock size 7-13
Narrow—Medium—Wide

Black•Cordovan•Taupe•Tan

See our complete selection

Rockport
Marlboro, Mass.

Plus

Sign up for

FREE

shoes

to be given away

this week.

311 Poyntz
Brown's
SHOE FIT COMPANY

DON'T FORGET

For your added convenience

LAFENE HEALTH CENTER

is expanding their service hours

Effective Monday, Sept. 14

New Clinic Hours—8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

•limited staffing over noon hours

McCain

87-88

International Season

HELEN REDDY

Tom Chapin
Guest Artist

Friday, September 25, 1987, 8 p.m.

General Public: $19, 17, 15 Students/Seniors $16, 14, 12

Box Office open 12 noon-5 p.m. Monday-Friday.
Call 532-6428 to charge tickets to MasterCard or VISA.

Tickets now on sale for:

- Amsterdam Guitar Trio
- Children's Theatre: Little Women
- Central Philharmonic of China
- State Ballet of Missouri
- Canadian Brass

Saturday, October 3
Wednesday, October 7
Tuesday, October 27
Monday, November 9
Sunday, December 6

TV Listings

By TV Data

TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 22, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTAK	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Bugs Bunny Flintstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00	"	TBA	"	My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Teddy Ruxpin	SportsLook Sports	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Karate	Movie: "Easy to Wed"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Andy Griffith Dick Van Dyke	Body Electric Congress	Waltons	Motorcycle Racing	"
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Instructional Programming	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News	Midday Boj/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Auto Racing: Formula One	Movie: "Under Ten Flags"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Bewitched	Masterpiece Theatre	Major League Baseball: New York Mets at Chicago Cubs	Grand Prix of Portugal	"
2:00	Santa Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoo	Mod. Maturity Living	"	Muscle Mag.	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thunderscats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	"	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00	Facts of Life	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravest	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	Transformers	Racing: Winston All-Stars	Munsters Laverne
5:00	3's Company	News ABC News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsLook Surfing	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00	News	News NBC News	M*A*S*H Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Lehrer Newshour	Benson Soap	SportsCenter M.L. Baseball	Andy Griffith
7:00	Matlock	Houston Knights	Who's The Full House	Hill Street Blues	Nova	Movie: "Black Oak Conspiracy"	Hearns vs. Shuler	Rediscovery of the World
8:00	"	Movie: "Angel in Green"	Gro. Pains Married Dora	Movie: "Executive Action"	We the People	"	Drag Racing: World Finals	"
9:00	Crime Story	"	Moonlighting	"	Wogan on the Orient Ex.	News INN News	Billiards: Sigel vs. Garcia	"
10:00	News	News WKRP	News ABC News	Barney Miller Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	H'mooner Trapper John	PGA Tour SportsCenter	"
11:00	son Hunter	Special: Capital to Capital	Andy Griffith	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D. "The Charge"	"	SportsLook Surfer Mag.	Movie: "Escape from Zahrain"
12:00	David Letterman	"Murder Me, Murder You"	700 Club	"French Conspiracy"	Sign-Off of the Light Brigade	"	Scuba World Racing	"

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16-18	2.40	3.45	4.25	4.80	5.10	1.05
19-21	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
22-24	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
25-27	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
28-30	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
31-33	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
34-36	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
37-39	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
40-42	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
43-45	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
46-48	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
49-51	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
52-54	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
55-57	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
58-60	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____

6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____

11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____

16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____

21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____

26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Kedzie 103

ClassAds

532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11f)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken, 539-9489. (2-27)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. Please call 776-5566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (20-24)

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours Sixth Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lift/tickets/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure 1-800-321-5911 today!! (20-24)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8369. (21f)

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (71f)

TWO-BEDROOM furnished apartment across street from Ahearn. Available October 1st. Phone 776-7559. (20-24)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8369. (21f)

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1496. (21f)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1981 CHEVETTE. New brakes, air, FM/cassette, 59,000 miles. Priced to sell. Call Jamal: 539-2301. (16-25)

1977 TOYOTA Celica GT, excellent condition, new paint, no rust, sunroof, excellent stereo system. 537-9021. (18-22)

1979 FIAT station wagon, excellent condition, $1,300. Phone 537-4626. (20-24)

1969 MUSTANG, very good condition. Call 776-3758 after 5:30 p.m. (20-24)

EMPLOYMENT 09

WANTED: BRIGHT, energetic individuals to work at women's retail clothing store. Must be neat, in tune with current fashion, and have sales experience. Looking for part-time and full-time. Apply in person at Scot's LTD or Carousel (Aggieville) soon to be in Manhattan Town Center. (18-22)

MAKE $4,600 monthly stuffing envelopes. For details, send self-addressed stamped envelope to Adeela, P.O. Box 2142, Stillwater, OK 74076. (18-27)

Retail

Where Waldenbooks Opens Opportunity Opens For: Booksellers Temporary Stocking Crew

America's fastest growing booksellers with over 1000 stores nationwide, and a bestselling product line, will give you miles of opportunity for growth.

If you have a commitment to full service, find out more about our exciting Full, Part Time and Temporary openings and our competitive benefits.

Apply in person at:
Manhattan Job Service
621 Humboldt
Manhattan, KS

Waldenbooks
An equal opportunity employer

EDITOR, WEEKLY United Methodist Church regional newspaper. Part-time position. EOE. Member Project Equally. Submit resume and references by Sept. 25 to P.O. Box 4187, Topeka, KS 66604. Attention: Council Director. (17-21)

PART—TIME SALES help at Borch Brothers' men's wear. Approximately 20 hours per week. Afternoons and Saturdays. Sales experience preferred. Apply in person at 1100 Westloop Place. (17-21)

WORK STUDY student to work 10-20 hours a week with university outreach/conference coordinator. Attention to detail, and written and oral communication skills are necessary. Typing and/or word processing experience is required. Position offers good background experience for students in areas of management, marketing, business, education, and conference planning. For more information call 532-5575 (ask for Debi) or stop by the Wareham Building, 1623 Anderson Ave. Application deadline is Sept. 25. (17-24)

EARN THUNDREDS weekly in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your fall class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. We prefer to hire work study students and students who are eligible to work 30 hours per week. Food Handler's Card a must. (15-25)

WORK STUDY student to work 10 to 20 hours a week at Speech and Hearing Center. Oral and written communication skills are necessary. Experience in answering phones, typing and some word processing is required. Need reliable person who works well with public. For interviews call 532-6879 or come to Leisure 107. (20-24)

DEPARTMENT OF Agricultural Engineering is looking for student with good grammar and communication skills to work with recruiting program. Work study preferred; not required. Call Stanley Clark at 532-5580. (20-22)

BRIGHT, AMBITIOUS student needed now to sell advertising. Get ground level experience with retail marketing agency. Very flexible, part-time hours. 15-20% commission. Call 539-6287 today. (20-21)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts, others. Information: (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now: (20-42)

COLLEGE STUDENTS earn $10-14 per hour working part-time on campus. For more information, call 1-800-932-0528. (21)

BANQUET SET up/Janitor person. Part-time evenings and weekends. Apply in person, 418 Poyntz. (21-25)

Retail

ASSISTANT BOOKSTORE MANAGER

Write new chapters in successful retail store management . . . at Waldenbooks, one of America's fastest growing booksellers.

Learn from the leaders. Help take charge of a Waldenbooks bookstore and you'll gain firsthand experience in successful store operations, effective merchandising and personnel management. If you have previous retail experience and a HS diploma (some college preferred), apply in person

Manhattan Job Service
621 Humboldt
Manhattan, KS

Waldenbooks
An equal opportunity employer

Manhattan Town Center has 7-8 positions open for hard-working, dependable people to assist in behind-the-scenes marketing preparation for the Grand Opening. Decoration and hands-on work.

Inquire at Mall Office behind Dillard's service entrance B, Wed., Sept. 23, 9 a.m.-Noon only.

No phone calls please.

ROCK BAND seeking lead singer. Zeppelin, Stones, Aerosmith, etc. Experience, time, energy required. Call 776-7319. (21-24)

KSU STUDENT employees needed residence hall food centers, $3.35 per hour. The residence hall foodservice centers are hiring student employees. You may choose your hours within the time period of 20 hours per week—your choice! Jobs still available in Food Production, Service, and Sanitation. No night work (finished by 7:45 p.m. at the latest), every other weekend assigned, and no holiday work expected. Call Pat, 532-6483 (Derby Food Center), Mary, 532-6484 (Boyd Food Center), Sherry, 532-6482 (Kramer Food Center). (21-24)

PART-TIME MOTOR route carrier needed. Hours 2 to 7 a.m. Must have economic, dependable transportation. Only dependable, responsible people need apply. 539-7900. (21-25)

HARDEES OF Aggieville is taking applications for delivery drivers, day or night time hours, full or part-time. Can earn five to six dollars per hour. (21-24)

STUDENT DISPATCHER/operator, 15-20 hours per week starting Oct. 1. Students with employment potential of two years will be given preference. Must be willing to work evenings, holidays, summer months, weekends and school recesses. Ranking factors such as GPA, general employment experience as a dispatcher and/or computer operator will be considered. Computer science major not necessary. Applications will be accepted until Wednesday, 5 p.m., Sept. 23, Room 23, Cardwell Hall, by Jacque Meisner. AA/EOE. (21-23)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

MULTI-BEDROOM HOUSE, stove, refrigerator, central air, fireplace, laundry hookups, garage. Call 537-8389. (11f)

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

1970 BUDDY 12 x 60—Two-bedroom, washer/dryer, two air conditioners, storage shed. $4,900. Call 537-9005. (17-21)

8' x 25' IN Green Valley Trailer Court. $1,000. 539-4205. Keep trying. (19-23)

NICE, CLEAN, 12 x 65, two-bedroom mobile home, air conditioner and furniture if desired, on large shaded lot. 539-5778. (21-24)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND FINANCIAL Management in Agriculture textbook, Call 532-6397. (20-22)

FOUND SMALL gray-striped cat on Pomeroy. Call Kim at 539-3795. (21-23)

FOUND, ONE kitten about four to six months old, black with white markings on paws. With white flea collar. Write Collegian, Box 11. (21-23)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectibles, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

The Rib-It
Every Tuesday Night
All You Can Eat just $3.95
111 S. 4th
Downtown
BBQ Ribs & Pies
Baked Beans

SUN CONNECTION
NOW SELLING $2 SESSIONS
1126 Laramie 776-2426

JS-234 NINE-band car stereo equalizer. Front 25W ch. Rear 50W/ch. $125, negotiable. 539-4803, Marsha. (21-22)

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

ARE YOU CREATIVE
Decisive, Confident, Know your related occupation field. Find out for sure by Handwriting Analysis. Write Mr. Long, 333 N. Valley, KCK 66102

Bobby's
LATE NIGHT BREAKFAST GRILL
10 p.m.-1 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays
Candlewood Shopping Center 539-1571

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1981 KAWASAKI KZ650CSR. Must sell in excellent condition. For more information, call 539-7561 and ask for Clay. (18-22)

1978 YAMAHA 175 Enduro. Low miles, excellent condition, great transportation, $400 or best offer. 537-9433. (19-23)

RALEIGH RACER USA, competition 14-speed geometry, 61.5 cm frame, yellow on white colors. $300 or best offer. 537-0182. (20-24)

1984 SHADOW 500. In prime condition. Must sell soon. $1,300 negotiable. Call Ron after 7 p.m. at 532-5277. (21-25)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

OVATION ACOUSTIC guitar with case and pickup. 539-6796. (18-22)

FOR SALE—Hohner acoustical guitar with case. Excellent condition. Call 539-8656. (19-22)

ROCK BAND seeking lead singer. Zeppelin, Stones, Aerosmith, etc. Experience, time, energy required. Call 776-7319. (21-24)

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

PERSONALS 18

JANET S. I was told by a good friend that—"That dawg will hunt, fish and tramp." I love you—your favorite Jailer. (21)

WANTED WIFE: Desirable characteristics, dark hair, fair complexion, "Nagel-look," weight proportional to height, liberal arts major, an understanding of social economic issues, musical tastes Elvis Costello, U2, REM. Applications accepted in Seaton by Russ. (21)

HEY ADPis. Get psyched for the Softball Classic this weekend. (21)

LAMBDA CHI Bob—One year later, I still love you. AXO Nancy. (21)

PUPPY—YOU are the center of my world, around which my love has unfurled. Thank you for being you—in a forever, "Yes, I do!" Love, Pretty. (21)

KELLY WE are going to miss you too much! Love and peace, Ron and Norman. (21)

JOHN—HAPPY third anniversary! I'm glad we could be together! I'll love you forever! —Monica. (21)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11f)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11f)

RENTALS 21

SUPPLIES. PRINTER-typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (11f)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

EXPERIENCED TYPIST will do any size typing jobs. Call Mary after 5 p.m. at 537-0456. (20-24)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

NON-SMOKING FEMALE, low rent. Call Sharon at 776-5671, before 9 a.m., between 2-4:30 p.m. or after 10 p.m. (17-21)

ONE OR two non-smoking female to share farmhouse. Prefer vet or animal science majors. Free stall and pasture for horse, cow, dog, Beef, eggs, firewood furnished, own bedroom. 776-1205, 8-10 p.m. only. (18-27)

ROOMMATES NEEDED, individual rooms, all benefits of a house. $135/month. 776-7905. (20-24)

QUIET, NON-SMOKING female to share luxury home on west side. $250 includes utilities. 537-0550, ask for Diane. 776-5602 after 5 p.m. (20-22)

FEMALE NON-SMOKING, studios, yet fun roommate to share two-bedroom furnished apartment. $150/month, one block east of campus. Nice landlords, call 537-8552 after 5 p.m. (21-24)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Looks green around the gills
5 Concorde, for one
12 Open the envelope
13 Philippine peasant
14 Teen follower
15 Jealous wife of Zeus
16 Photographer's concern
18 Typical instance
20 Michelangelo masterpiece
21 Bakery item
22 Beget
23 Part of 21 Across
26 Urges strongly
30 Shut in 31 Rosary bead
32 — like a bird

DOWN
1 "As Long — Needs Me"
2 Holly tree
3 Coin in Venice
4 Philatelist's items
5 Stone pillar
6 — Coburg
7 — round (meat cut)
8 Monte Carlo lure
9 Chills and fever
10 Spanish painter
11 Region
17 Colorful fish
19 Pome seed

22 Devon river
23 — Guevara
24 Stout or Harrison
25 Ref's cousin
26 Night before
27 D.C. denizen
28 Ending for horizon
29 Farm pen
31 Cleo's killer
34 Diverts
35 Tweed had no love for him
36 French painter
37 Looked closely
39 Laud
40 Pup, for one
41 Cousin of the iris
42 Pale tinge
43 Sicilian city
44 Cut follower
45 Helen's home
46 — culotte
48 Ice, in Bonn

Solution time: 25 mins.

ROMP TAP DIME
IDOL APE OMAR
SERE GOESUPTO
KANAKA SABBES
SALT ILO
GOBEFORE EVIL
OUR SNIFE EDO
OTEA GOINGSON
EBO STIR
ENDURE ODESSA
GOESBOOM BANS
INRE ABE ENIT
SESS NIS SETA

Yesterday's answer 9-22

CRYPTOQUIP

9-22
A J S M I Z Z T U X U I W T
I V U S H R W E H U I
X R B A H Z J J E I Z U B M
V J B Z T U S J B H U
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: FELLOW CHEF'S CHOICE
NEW RESTAURANT POSITION DIDN'T PAN OUT.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: S equals W

Reagan demands cease-fire from Iran

By The Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — President Reagan confronted Iran at the United Nations on Monday with a demand that it "clearly and unequivocally" accept a cease-fire in its Persian Gulf war with Iraq or face a worldwide arms embargo spearheaded by the United States.

"After nearly eight years, a million casualties, nearly 4 million others driven into exile and more intense fighting than ever — it's time for the Soviet Union to leave."

—President Reagan

Reagan set a new deadline of 24 hours for Tehran to accept the cease-fire resolution approved unanimously July 20 by the U.N. Security Council.

Tehran faces worldwide embargo

Referring to the speech Iranian President Ali Khamenei is scheduled to deliver this morning to the 42nd U.N. General Assembly session, the president said: "I take this opportunity to call upon him clearly and unequivocally to state whether Iran accepts 598 (the resolution) or not."

"If the answer is positive, it would be a welcome step and major breakthrough. If it is negative, the council has no choice but rapidly to adopt enforcement measures."

Reagan urged the Soviet Union to join the U.S.-led effort to end the war, which enters its eighth year Wednesday, and to stop spreading "the false accusation that somehow the United States — rather than the war itself — is the source of tension in the gulf. Such statements are not helpful."

The president said he ordered a

Navy buildup in the gulf to protect oil shipments of strategic importance to the economies of the free world "and to prevent the domination of the region by any hostile power."

"When the tension diminishes, so will our presence," he said.

Before taking the rostrum, Reagan met privately with U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who returned to New York last Wednesday aftilks in Iran and Iraq on the cease-fire resolution.

A senior administration official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the president told the U.N. secretary-general that he is "skeptical about Iran's intentions" in regard to the Iran-Iraq war.

Reagan outlined his "vision of the world's future" in an annual address that took a relatively mild stance toward the Soviet Union except for the criticism over the gulf and a demand for immediate withdrawal of the Soviet Army from Afghanistan.

"After nearly eight years, a million casualties, nearly 4 million others driven into exile and more intense fighting than ever — it's time for the Soviet Union to leave," he declared.

The delegates from Iran and Afghanistan were not in their places in the hall for Reagan's 25-minute speech. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze listened closely and took some notes, but did not join in the polite applause when Reagan finished.

Declining to appraise the president's remarks, Shevardnadze said he would speak on Wednesday.

Before Reagan spoke, Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati told reporters "we should consider" any U.S. call for an immediate response to the cease-fire order.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, whose government had quickly accepted the order, said he was pleased with Reagan's remarks.

"That statement is very clear, and it is in full conformity with the spirit and letter of Resolution 598. And we hope that all other Security Council members will take the same clear position in order to enhance the efforts to implement the resolution in full."

The United States began informal consultations late last month with other members of the 15-nation Security Council on sanctions against Iran. On Sept. 1, the State Department accused Tehran of unacceptable stalling and said sanctions should be prepared if Iran did not accept the cease-fire immediately.

The deadline was postponed, however, for Perez de Cuellar to seek a diplomatic solution in Tehran and Baghdad. After hearing a report on the results of his mission, the council members deferred action at least until Khamenei's speech.

A U.S. drive to enforce the cease-fire would fail if either the Soviet Union or China vetoed a sanctions resolution. China and Bulgaria, a Soviet ally, are among Iran's principal weapons suppliers.

But Assistant Secretary of State Richard W. Murphy told the House Foreign Affairs Committee last Tuesday "there are good prospects for Chinese support, and I don't anticipate a Soviet veto."

Give.

American Heart Association

WERE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

WESTLOOP PLACE

The Loop
in Westloop Center

"Hair Unlimited"

the focus is beauty
our focus is you!

Call
537-4528

Open Mon.-Sat.
Evenings by appt.
1330 Westloop

Hair Westloop

- Haircuts
- Perms
- Manicures
- Ear Piercing
- Facial Waxing

539-6001
1318 Westloop

GO

Established Since 1920

Stevenson's
MANHATTAN'S FASHION CENTER
WestLoop Center

Optometrists

Dedicated to Optometry
in a friendly manner

K-State, we'd like to be your optometric office

- Extended wear, gas permeable, tinted extended wear, tinted soft contact lenses
- Contact lenses competitively priced
- Doctors in office for FREE consultation and trial fitting
- Approx. 5,000 contact lenses in stock
- Evening and Saturday appointments available

Drs Price, Young, Odle and Horsch

1119 Westloop 537-1118

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

Give a gift you would like to receive Hunam Gift Certificates

HUNAM Restaurant

—with this coupon—
Buy one entree and receive one of equal value or less for ½ price!
(not valid with any other special or promotion)

FREE DELIVERY

Custom Framing

frame maker

1314 Westloop 539-0567

Store Hours
Monday-Friday 9:30 to 6
Saturday 9:30 to Noon

Elmore's

NU-GIFT

COFFEYVILLE — MANHATTAN

—with this coupon—
$5 off any $25 or more regular priced purchase
$10 off any $40 or more regular priced purchase

Westloop Place, next to Westloop Floral

THE CLOTHES TREE

Westloop Shopping Center

8TH ANNIVERSARY SALE

Selected Sweaters...over 200 to choose from... from $6.99
Selected Skirts...wool, corduroy... $10.00 off
Assorted Corduroy Pants...Reg. $25.95... $18.99
Wool lined pants...by Ashton Tibbs...Reg. $49.95... $29.95
Jean Jackets...great for cool fall days; all colors denim...Reg. $28.95... $20.95
Classic Oxford Shirts...stripes and solids...Reg. $22.95... $14.99

Sizes 4-54
Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30
Thurs 9:30-8 p.m.
Sun 1-5 p.m.

Bring this ad and receive 10% off regular price (excluding jewelry) Expires 9-30-87

The Interview Suit: Dressing to Impress Yourself.

Would you go to a department store for guidance on how to dress for success? Probably not. You'd want real insight on how to make a good First Impression.

At Borck Brothers our salespersonnel are trained in the art of fashion. They can help you buy a suit that lets you look good, without making you look like every other job applicant.

Suits are priced from $195. The advice is free.

BORCK Brothers

1104 Westloop Place 513-527-6231
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-6:30 Mon-Sat 11:00-5:00 Sun

Locally Owned

Autumn is here and ...

Prices are Falling!!

The Computer Patch of Manhattan has maximized the value and minimized the investment of complete IBM® computer systems from now until Sept. 30. We have packaged many of the new IBM Personal System/2™ models with the components needed for a complete system: IBM ProPrinter™ II, IBM Mouse, PC-DOS, and PFS: First Choice software. The Computer Patch also includes a supply kit containing diskettes, paper, surge suppressor, and more — a $150 value. These complete systems start at $1995, but only until Sept. 30. Stop by our location in Westloop Shopping Center and let our courteous and knowledgeable staff show you the next generation in personal computing.

The Computer Patch

1115 Westloop Manhattan, KS 66502 (913) 539-0801

Store Hours
M-F 9:00-6:00
Sat 9:00-5:00
Sun Closed

Authorized Dealer
Advanced Products

Authorized VaCom® Computer Center

IBM is a registered trademark of IBM Corporation. ProPrinter and Personal System/2 are trademarks of IBM Corporation. PFS: First Choice contains word processing, spreadsheet, data base, and communications. This ad was desktop published.

Ben Franklin Crafts

High Quality, durable with excellent lightfastness.

Winsor & Newton Oils
All colors $5.50 ea.

STANDARD SIZE

NEW!
200 ml tube (actual size)

"Better Quality for Less"

Westloop Center Manhattan 776-4910

New Hours:
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-9 p.m.
Sat. 9 a.m.-7 p.m., Sun. 1-6 p.m.

Fiery Fruit

The perfect solution to all those non-memorable meals: hot peppers. See Page 7.

Weather

Mostly sunny today, high 80 to 85. Mostly clear tonight, low around 50. Mostly sunny Thursday, high around 80.

164 8/8/80 ** 7
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Cycl'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612
Come up on the short end and senior linebacker David Wallace doesn't like it. See
Page 11.

Wednesday
September 23, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 22

Kansas State Collegian

K-State president plans to redress minority issue

By Jodi Swengel
Staff Writer

University President Jon Wefald has assured local and state NAACP leaders that K-State will take affirmative action to increase black representation on campus.

In a meeting last Friday, Wefald told the leaders the University "will increase its pioneering role in redressing minority inequalities" in the academic world.

Earlier this year, leaders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People expressed concerns about low numbers of black faculty and staff members at K-State.

Kansas NAACP President Louise Fletcher said the meeting was "a positive step in opening up avenues for future progress."

"The fact is," Wefald said, "this University has been and is in the forefront of efforts, in the face of increasingly difficult obstacles, to increase black representation on University faculties. But we are now implementing new measures, and we will continue to seek out means to achieve the equitable balance that justice demands."

One measure is breaking with a tradition that discourages hiring faculty to teach at the University at which they earned their postgraduate degrees. The theory states that a university that hires its own graduates will lose educational diversity.

"There are sound reasons behind this tradition, but the competition for the limited number of qualified black faculty members is so intense that we are going to a 'develop-our-own' program," Wefald said.

K-State and other institutions of higher education are finding it very difficult to identify enough minority candidates to meet the demand, he said. As an example, from 1984 to 1986 only 18 blacks earned doctorates in math.

"That's 18 blacks to fill the needs of some 2,500 major institutions," he said.

Another measure cited is to assist in finding employment for spouses of minority faculty members.

"These are ideas we have been working on for some time," he said. Wefald said the administration is doing everything conceivable to make a K-State position attractive to minority candidates. He also said the University has several programs and administrators working full time toward the recruitment and advancement of minorities.

Wefald said he has always been committed to increasing minority representation on campus.

"I sent a directive to deans and administrators shortly after I came to Kansas State University saying that I was committed to increasing minority representation on this campus," he said. "These steps are part of the result of a study I commissioned at that time."

"The recruitment of black and other minority faculty members is no easy task. But I can state without equivocation that Kansas State University will not stint in its effort to find and hire them."

After the 2 1/4-hour meeting, both Fletcher and Wefald agreed the meeting helped establish better communications between K-State and NAACP.

Facing golden years Courts ignoring guardians

EDITOR'S NOTE — Once established, guardianships for the elderly have few safeguards, an Associated Press study found. What protections state laws offer are usually ignored by overworked judges. And the infrequent checks focus on the ward's money, not the person. The third story in a six-day series, "Guardians of the Elderly: An Ailing System," examines what happens after a guardianship is opened.

By Fred Bayles
and
Scott McCartney
Associated Press Writers

GREELEY — Minnie Monoff had a guardian, a court-appointed attorney and a judge who were supposed to look out for her, protect her. But to her, it seemed no one would listen.

She recovered from a stroke and returned to her home in this small Kansas town about 65 miles southwest of Kansas City, Mo. She wanted control of her life, she said, but her guardian wouldn't give it to her.

Instead, she said, the friend who'd been named her guardian got an emergency order from the court and had her sedated by a nurse, carried from her home by the county sheriff and placed in a nursing home.

Her court-appointed attorney waived a hearing on the order without talking with Monoff, in part because of concern about her health in the hot summer weather.

Guardians of the Elderly: An Ailing System

"You don't know what a sick feeling I had to leave my home where I was happy and taking care of myself," the 82-year-old woman said.

"It's rotten. It's no good," she said of her guardianship.

Five weeks of Monoff's pleas eventually overturned the guardianship. What began as a plan to protect her affairs while she recovered from the stroke ended up a nightmare.

Monoff's case, while rare, poignantly shows how courts, charged with overseeing guardianship cases, can ignore their wards. The result can be costly to the elderly, both in terms of their money and their lives.

A year-long Associated Press investigation into probate courts' handling of guardianships of the elderly found systems that have lapsed into paper-shuffling routines with few protections and, with alarming frequency, where life savings are exposed to mishandling, abuse and theft.

The few safeguards sometimes fail or are ignored by the courts, who routinely take the word of guardians and attorneys without independent checking or full hearings.

The result leaves the 300,000 to 400,000 people supposedly protected by guardianships with little protection at all.

"We're going to have to change our court system and be watchdogs over these judges and lawyers," an angry Monoff says now.

A survey of more than 2,200 cases chosen randomly from courts in 50 states indicated that 48 percent of the guardians were delinquent in annual reports detailing how they spent their wards' money — a violation of the law. Without the annual accountings, the courts are blind to theft or negligence.

Even rarer are reports on the health and well-being of wards — they showed up in only 16 percent of the files.

And few states have systems to check up on the guardians. Only California has a mandated system of state-funded court investigators who periodically visit the wards; separate

■ See ELDERLY, Page 9

Wills, funerals perplexing

By Alison Neely
Staff Writer

Funeral costs and arrangements are not common subjects for discussion among college students. In fact, most students do not have a will, nor do they know what to do if a family member dies.

When a body is discovered, the next of kin is promptly notified, said Dr. Robert Cathey, district coroner. The family chooses the funeral home, he said, unless family members are unavailable. In that event, the body is taken to a funeral home chosen by the Riley County Police Department, he said.

"They keep an alternating list of the funeral homes here," he said.

"We've found in the past that it's really the best way."

Casket and service decisions must be made shortly after the body arrives at the funeral home. As required by the Federal Trade Commission, a book is available listing descriptions and prices of the various models.

For convenience, a showcase room is provided at the Irvin Parkview Funeral Home, 1317 Poyntz Ave. Most families, "during or after the arrangements, actually pick (a casket) out," said Dennis Irvin, owner.

The average cost of a casket and services is $1,500, Irvin said. Each funeral home has a policy regarding patrons who are unable to pay for the services, he said.

"If the family has no way to pay, and no funds are available, such as VA (Veterans Administration), Social Security or welfare, then we will provide the casket and services," Irvin said.

Although a will is not of immediate importance to the funeral service, it is "very important to the distribution of the estate," said Dianne Urban, students' attorney.

To most young adults, writing a will is not an issue of major importance, nor should it be, Urban said. To some, however, it is a necessity.

"Your average student who has

■ See DEATH, Page 9

Down hill battle

Ron Moon, freshman in nuclear engineering, uses ropes Tuesday to control a mower at the Triangle fraternity house.

Staff/Gary Lytle

Iranians threaten to attack in revenge

By The Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — Iranian President Ali Khamenei fumed at the U.S. "arch-Satan" before the United Nations Tuesday and swore Iran would avenge a U.S. attack on an Iranian ship in the Persian Gulf.

The U.S. delegation stalked out in protest after the black-robed and turbaned Khamenei indicted the "bullying" United States and announced: "This is a beginning for a series of events, the bitter consequences of which shall not be restricted to the Persian Gulf."

"I declare here, very unambiguously, that the United States shall receive a proper response for this abominable act," the gray-bearded cleric said in an hour-and-20 minute speech in Farsi.

Hundreds of angry, dissident Iranians demonstrated against the fundamentalist Tehran government outside the United Nations building, shouting "Expel Khamenei from the U.N.! Down with the criminal, murdering regime!"

"I do not intend to sit by passively when our country is insulted, our president pilloried and the truth trampled," Deputy U.S. Ambassador Herbert Okun told reporters.

He called Khamenei's charges against the United States "false accusations (which) distort the facts and misrepresent our policy totally."

The bespectacled Khamenei, who met Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar in Iran last week, was greeted by shouts of "God is great!" from supporters in the gallery as he began his speech with a prayer.

The 29-page text, including long, fundamentalist Islamic theology, was hardbound in blue with pages decorated in gilt designs.

■ See IRAN, Page 8

Nebraska votes no to compact

By The Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK — With Nebraska voting no, the Central Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact Commission instructed a consulting company Tuesday to proceed with a process for selecting a state in which to locate a disposal site.

The commission later set Nov. 16 as the date for the commission vote on the host state recommendation. That meeting was tentatively set for New Orleans. Jim Peery of Atlanta, Ga., the commission's executive director, called it the ultimate meeting.

Noting that the date was near Thanksgiving, Peery, alluding to the general lack of desire by each state to have the site, told the commissioners, "Perhaps some of you may be giving more thanks than others" after that meeting.

The other four states in the compact — Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma — voted for a motion by Kansas directing U.S. Ecology of Louisville, Ky., to go ahead with a host-state selection process "which shall be rational, systematic and verifiable," and which "shall treat member states fairly and equitably."

The motion spelled out selection criteria, but Nebraska representative objected to whether the criteria

■ See WASTE, Page 12

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Dead woman's body found

LINCOLNVILLE — The decomposed body of a young woman bound with ropes was found under a hedge tree in a rural area of eastern Kansas Monday.

The identity of the woman was not determined, and the Marion County Sheriff's Department refused to disclose the cause of death.

The sheriff's department said today that Dr. Michael Finnegan, an anthropologist at K-State, determined that the remains were those of a white female between the ages of 22 and 26.

The death was being investigated by the sheriff's office and the Kansas Bureau of Investigation.

The body was found by a farmer and county road crew worker about four miles west of Lincolnville, authorities said.

Nicaraugan leader plans truce

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — President Daniel Ortega said Tuesday the government would start a partial truce and withdraw troops to designated areas to open the way to a total cease-fire with U.S.-supported Contra rebels.

"We are working on concrete actions to make known the first zones where the cease-fire will be declared," Ortega said. He said the locations of the designated areas would be announced but did not specify a timetable.

The leftist government also announced that Radio Catolica, the Roman Catholic Church radio station, could reopen immediately.

A communique read by presidential spokesman Manuel Espinoza said that to achieve "an effective cease-fire" Ortega had decided to postpone offensive military operations in part of the country and concentrate troops in designated areas.

It said the actions were unilateral and would allow the National Reconciliation Commission and other peace commissions in these regions "to explore the willingness of the counterrevolutionary chiefs to accept the cease-fire and if this is positive, to arrange the procedures for carrying it out."

WSU reports 17,052 enrollment

WICHITA — Wichita State University has reported the third highest single-semester enrollment in its history.

A spokesman said Tuesday that 17,052 students are enrolled this semester, compared with 16,843 at the same time in 1986. It was the first time the school topped 17,000 students since the fall semester of 1984, the spokesman said.

Gypsy moths plague Maryland

FREDERICK, Md. — Mountains in Frederick County are suffering this year from the worst gypsy moth infestation in the United States, a state pest management official said.

"We're expecting some increase in the scope of the problem in 1988," Robert Titchenor, state forest pest management chief, said Monday.

The Catocin Mountain Ridge is part of the southern Appalachian Mountain chain stretching from Pennsylvania to West Virginia and parts of Virginia.

The moths, which feed on oak trees, reproduce at a rate of 500 to 900 young from each female.

The caterpillars begin eating foliage in the spring and early summer and die off or progress to the moth stage after their food supply is exhausted.

Two men killed in accident

PAOLA — Two Osawatimie men were fatally injured in a two-car collision Monday night north of Paola, the Kansas Highway Patrol reported. Three other men were injured in the accident.

Investigators said Bruce S. Robinson, 27, and a passenger, Frank D. Lyons, 34, died about four hours later at the University of Kansas Medical Center. Three people in the second car were hospitalized.

The Highway Patrol said the head-on collision occurred near the crest of a hill on U.S. 169.

Third murder victim identified

OREGON CITY, Ore. — A third victim has been identified in the investigation of seven women whose bodies were found on a rural hillside near Molalla, a Clackamas County sheriff's spokesman said.

The state medical examiner's office identified the victim as Christine Lotus Adams, a 35-year-old white female, spokesman Russ Williams said Monday.

No further details of the woman's background were released, Williams said, adding that the woman's relatives had been notified.

Adams' body was the fifth taken from the scene earlier this month, Williams said. Authorities have said the women were homicide victims.

A hunter found the first body Aug. 31 concealed in the heavy brush at the site 30 miles southeast of Portland. Searchers in the following week found six more bodies.

The first two women who were identified had arrest records, one for prostitution, the other for shoplifting.

Wichita steel factory closes

WICHITA — One of Wichita's oldest companies, Geo. C. Christopher & Son steel fabricators, closed its doors Monday, leaving about 100 people unemployed.

The family-owned firm had operated for 78 years. It produced steel for many local projects, including bridges, Minuteman missile silos and some of the city's most visible structures.

A company official said the decision to shut down came after an effort to sell Christopher to a local buyer fell through.

The company had been involved in a labor dispute with employees. The potential buyers said the deal fell through after they failed to resolve differences regarding back pay.

George C. Christopher II, company president, said he had attempted to sell the company for several months. He said an agreement was reached with an organization headed by Bob Mullen, former president and chief operating officer of Pawnee Plastics.

Mullen's offer was withdrawn Monday. He said the deal fell apart when he was unable to resolve a dispute involving the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, the bargaining agent for the company's production and maintenance workers.

"We offered a solution, and the union did not choose to accept it," Mullen said.

Donald Spatz, director of education, safety and health programs for the union, said that an administrative law judge for the National Labor Relations Board had issued a decision against Christopher approximately five weeks ago.

Spatz explained that the judge found Christopher had improperly cut wages and laid off seven employees in April 1986.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

STUDENTS INTERESTED IN ATTENDING LAW SCHOOL in the fall of 1988: The late deadline for registering for the next LSAT test is Sept. 24. See the pre-law adviser in the Eisenhower Dean's office for registration information.

ARTS AND SCIENCES COUNCIL applications are now available in Eisenhower Dean's office. They are due Sept. 28.

WOMEN'S SOCCER CLUB meets at 5 p.m. at the Old Stadium Sept. 22-24 for practice.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "On The Verge" by Eric Overmeyer at 8 p.m. Sept. 24-26, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1-3 at Nichols Theatre.

STUDENT TEACHERS FOR SPRING 1988 should pick up and return student teaching assignment request forms to Blumont 13 before Sept. 25.

"STUDENTS THAT BACK THE CATS" sign-up starts Sept. 23 at 10:30 a.m. in the Union for the bus trip to the K-State-Missouri game Oct. 10. Cost is $25 and covers ticket and transportation.

TODAY

FOREST AND PARK RESOURCES CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Call 228 to discuss plans to canoe the Saline River.

GYMNASTICS CLUB meets at 9 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGIATE ENTREPRENEURS meets at 7 p.m. in Union 206 for elections.

HUNGER PROJECT meets at 7:30 p.m.

in Union 205.

KARATE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union Ballroom K for a karate demonstration and introductory meeting.

BUSINESS AMBASSADORS meet at 4:30 p.m. in Calvin 102.

THURSDAY

QUESTION AND ANSWER SESSION with Rhodes Scholar Kelly Welch in Eisenhower Office of the Dean. All majors interested in applying for a Rhodes Scholarship should attend.

PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 207.

PUERTO RICAN STUDENT ORGANIZATION meets at 8:30 p.m. in Union Little Theater.

TEENY WEENY
WOO WOO
WEDNESDAY

$1
TEENY WEENY
WOO WOO's

$2
BACK BAR PITCHERS
KITE'S
BAR AND GRILL
619 N. 12th, Aggieville
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Correction

Due to an editor's error, a story in Monday's Collegian incorrectly identified Vernon Larson. Larson is director of the international agriculture program.

The Ladies Club

For Women Only!
Check It Out!

1104 Waters
Manhattan 776-6469

FAJITAS

Heard the talk? Fajitas have come to PINATA, and are they ever worth the wait! Chunks of marinated steak, or chicken, with fresh onion slices served sizzling on a hot skillet. Comes with a wide array of toppings for your choosing: guacomole, shredded lettuce, sour cream, salsa, chopped tomatoes & fresh grated cheese. A serving of rice, refried beans, & tortillas complete your meal. Don't miss out, try our Fajitas today!

1219 Blumont
(913) 539-3166

Open Daily
11 a.m.

20% OFF

- RUNNING & AEROBIC TIGHTS
- SWEATSHIRTS
- COTTON SWEATERS
- WOOL PLAID SHIRTS

Sale ends Sunday

M-Th 10-8
F-Sat. 10-6
Sun. 1-5

Aggieville & Aggieville 1012 Main, Aggieville 537-9105

RIP & MO'S
AUTHENTIC
NEW YORK DELI

We're open for lunch and dinner, serving whole and half sandwiches, homemade potato chips, homemade cheesecake, pasta salads and MORE!

mon.-thur. 11am-11pm
fri.&sat. 11am-1am
sun. 11am-10pm

Also visit the Back Door Bar (entrance at the rear of Rip and Mo's), open at 5pm nightly, and Saturday at noon.

RIP & MO'S
new york deli

710 N. Manhattan, Aggieville tel. 539-9706, OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Gamma Phi Beta,
Off Campus

Sept. 24: Gamma Phi Beta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Are you having a mid-week crisis?
WED.
$2 Pitchers
$1 Wells

Lafene Health Center

Services available

Outpatient Clinic
Lafemme (Gyn) Clinic
Allergy Clinic
Mental Health Clinic
Laboratory
Physical Therapy
Pharmacy
X-Ray Department
Dietary Counseling
In-Patient Hospital
Sports Medicine Clinic
Wart Clinic

Clinic Hours • 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.
532-6544

Archivist improves records Process still proves to be difficult

By The Collegian Staff

Tony Crawford, K-State archivist, has been improving the method of collecting University records since 1983, but he still finds the process difficult.

In the past, K-State records have been received at the archives department in Farrell Library at the leisure of students and more than 200 offices on campus.

Although there is cooperation from a wide range of people, there is still no policy to protect many unfiled records.

Upon coming to K-State four years ago, Crawford said he set a five-year goal to have a policy adopted by K-State's administration requiring mandatory turnover of departmental records and administrators' records once they have left K-State.

He said an ad hoc committee comprised of University-related officials submitted the proposal to George Miller, vice president of administration and finance, in the summer of 1986.

There has been no response from the administration, Crawford said. "I'm letting it take its course," he said. "I'm going to bring it up again sometime this academic year."

Miller said he did not remember Crawford's "specific request."

"I do remember other action that was taken," he said. "Tony's proposal was probably incorporated into broader action."

Miller said a records retention committee was developed to look into retention of all University records, not just personnel records.

The committee has not been able to produce a successful recommendation, he said.

"Records retention is a difficult area fraught with other things, like rights to privacy," Miller said.

Miller said he would like to see Crawford's resubmitted proposal and review it with the University's legal staff.

"I do support improving our archives," he said. "They're very important to K-State."

Robert Kruh, dean of the graduate school and member of the ad hoc committee on records retention, said it is important to start making progress on this policy.

"I think we should get around to moving forward with this," Kruh said. "To be honest, this probably hasn't had a real high priority and has gotten crowded out by other issues like retention."

Crawford said many major universities have adopted similar programs, and K-State may be the next to fall in line. He is confident the policy will soon be adopted.

"It's a gradual process because everything can't be done at once, but hopefully with the new administration of President Jon Wefald, the policy will be passed," Crawford said.

For now, Crawford is content with the way things are running.

"I sent out a survey calling the attention of all the offices on campus that we do have an archives department, and to save all records," he said. "I got a very good response with almost 200 offices responding."

The policy, if passed, will become part of the University's Business Procedures Manual. The procedures outlined in this manual are supposed to be adhered to by all offices on campus.

Good weather helps while constructing Bramlage Coliseum

By The Collegian Staff

The 13,500-seat Bramlage Coliseum is well on its way to becoming the new home for K-State's men's and women's basketball teams.

The coliseum has been under construction since the summer of 1986. Good weather last winter contributed to the steady construction progress, said Vince Cool, associate director of facilities planning.

"We only had two days of the winter that the ground was completely frozen over, but other than that, we didn't have a freeze that really disrupted anything," he said.

Cool expects coliseum construction to stay on schedule and it should be completed in June or July, 1988. Currently the coliseum has all of the main steel in place and some of the roof has been constructed, Cool said. Within the next couple of months the shell of the coliseum will be enclosed and ready for heating.

The coliseum will have a lot of the same features that Ahearn Field House has with a few added luxuries.

At the south end of the building on the lower level will be the men's and women's locker rooms, the training room and a VIP room for special guests. Just above that will be the coaches' and administrators' offices.

To the north end of the building overlooking the football stadium is a VIP conference room.

Cool said he believes the coliseum is positive for the University. If the University as well as the community attend and fill the seats, promoters will be happy to bring shows into Manhattan.

Historical society asks for money

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

Ruth Sherrer of the Kansas State Historical Society asked city commissioners during a work session Tuesday afternoon for $2,454 to pay half of this year's operating expenses at the Goodnow Home State Historic Site.

Sherrer also asked the commission to consider the city's taking over the site's operation in the future.

"We were instructed (by the Kansas Legislature) to contact all local groups, county and city governments or private groups to see if they would take over funding at the local site," Sherrer said.

If, at a future date, the commission were to assume financial responsibility for Goodnow Home, it would also have to pay approximately $20,000 for the curator's salary and benefits plus all operating expenses.

Sherrer said the money she requested would pay for utilities, minor maintenance expenses and salary for temporary employees to care for the site when the curator is sick or on vacation.

"We're considering two things," said Mayor Gene Klingler. "One, covering the anticipated shortfall this year, and secondly, whether we would consider covering the total."

Commissioners "felt" the squeeze of a tight budget as they discussed Sherrer's requests.

"Certainly the Legislature has taken a 90 percent stance on this and is expecting other entities to pick up the bag. They've got budget problems and we've certainly got budget problems," Commissioner Kent Glasscock said.

Even with the city's assistance this year, the Goodnow Home could close, Sherrer said.

"If we have a severe winter, I could see we could be faced with just pulling the site and closing it down," Sherrer said.

"I'm hoping for good weather," she added.

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS

egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!

—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Slices

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers—Aggieville

AGGIEVILLE FLOWERS

LARGE ROSES
$13.50
DOZEN

Cash & Carry only
12th & Laramie
537-9549

Mon.-Sat. 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

PRINTED T-SHIRTS
CUSTOM DESIGN
for PARTY FAVORS
&
GROUPS

Largest selection of shirts
in Manhattan

Ballard's

IN AGGIEVILLE

HOURS:
MON.-THUR. 8:30 a.m.-8 p.m.
FRI.-SAT. 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
SUNDAY 1-5 p.m.

Stadium Pizza

FREE New York Style Pizza
Every Wednesday 5-11 p.m.
Drink Specials

Old Town Mall • 523 S. 17th St.
537-1484

Reebok
Because life is not a spectator sport™

15% off
Regular Price
Our Entire Stock.

Workout Plus

Plus Sign-up for Free
Shoes to be given away
this week

BB5600
Black
White

See our Complete
Selection of Styles & Sizes

Brown's
SHOE FIT COMPANY
311 Poyntz, Downtown

12th ANNUAL ARTS & CRAFTS FAIR

September 25, 26 and 27, 1987

GUEST PERFORMER (SAT)
GENE COTTON

FRIDAY & SATURDAY 10:00-7:00
SUNDAY 12:00-6:00 pm

LOTS OF THINGS TO DO

- LOCAL AND NATIONAL ARTISTS
- CHILDREN'S CRAFTS
- JURIED ART AREA
- PICNIC AREA
- LOCAL CUISINE

City Park • Sponsored by the City of Manhattan Parks and Recreation Department

8 Hr. Blowout Sale Fall 50-70% OFF

Pants .....	9 <sup>99</sup>
Sweaters .....	14 <sup>99</sup>
Shirts (cotton woven & flannel) .....	9 <sup>99</sup> -14 <sup>99</sup>
Corduroy Pants .....	14 <sup>99</sup>
Sweatshirts .....	14 <sup>99</sup>

Denim 25% OFF

Guess & Zena

70% OFF ALL SUMMER MERCHANDISE

Thursday, Sept. 24, Noon-8 p.m.

carousel

Mon.-Sat. 10-6
Thurs. 10-8:30
Sun. 1-5

1215 Moro, Aggieville
539-4511

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, September 23, 1987 ■ Page 4

State open admissions policy needed

Education is state responsibility

Last Thursday, Regents Executive Director Stanley Koplik presented three proposals at the State Board of Regents meeting to end the state's policy of open admissions to its universities. After researching this proposal, I find myself wondering once again what the true priorities of the board really are. Certainly meeting the educational needs of the residents of Kansas is not among them.

It seems that proponents of selective admissions hope for three basic benefits. One is that institutions will save money by eliminating remedial programs for students with poor preparation. However, in a preliminary report by the Associated Students of Kansas, presented to the Legislative Educational Planning Committee, it was found that although many of Kansas' peer institutions have more restrictive admissions policy, most continue to provide the remedial programs. And Pat Bosco, associate vice president and dean of student life at K-State points out in his report to the same committee that experience with other schools having higher admission standards shows students at the lower end of these high requirements will still need academic assistance. He concludes that no money will likely be saved.

A second benefit purported to result from this proposal is that academic programs will be improved by being able to gear them toward the more intellectual, better prepared students. While we should always strive to maintain academic excellence, I honestly don't see a problem with student performance here that calls for drastic measures. Since 1974, K-State has been in the top one percent of all U.S. universities in the number of Rhodes Scholars. And no other state or public university in the country has had more Truman scholars. Let's not try to fix something that plainly "ain't broke."

A third often unstated advantage hoped for is that selective admission will relieve the University of Kansas's problems related to increasing enrollment. KU officials also like it because if they are the only school to have selective admission — which is one of the proposals — they would be viewed as the "elite" state school, thereby attracting more scholarly high school students. Very simply, KU's problems shouldn't even be a factor. Long range studies have shown that in a couple of years, the trend of increasing numbers of people entering college will reverse and enrollment at all universities will decline.

There are several other negative effects that would result from selective admissions. For example, it appears as though no one is considering the adverse effect these propos-

Commentary

DOUG FOLK
Collegian
Columnist

als would have on the economy of the state. They will ultimately lead to having fewer college-educated people in Kansas. Surely a poorer educated work force can only result in a less productive economy.

Another point raised in Bosco's report is that admission requirements will create a situation where students will be surrounded by other students of similar intellectual and academic achievements. This will serve to reduce the social and cultural diversity that now exists. Concern has been expressed that this important aspect of a college education is already at a minimum level.

One injustice that would result from selective admissions is that students would be held entirely accountable for their performance in high school. Evidently, our intellectually superior regents never experienced a typical high school life. A high school student is legally a child. Why should a state resident be punished as a responsible adult who desires an education and a career, for decisions made or attitudes held as a child? Also, the student who attends a high school that is academically poor or lacks resources to provide all the required courses is unjustly punished. Instead of selective admissions to universities, the state should strive to improve high school curricula, and make sure that high schools are able to provide all the necessary college preparatory courses.

The final argument against abolishing open admissions is the most fundamental. No one who resides in the state of Kansas, pays taxes, and wishes to receive a college education should be denied that opportunity. That is the basis of public education in this nation, and if any entity wishes to abandon this belief, then it should also abandon its claim to be a "state university," and to any state funding. State universities should be used for the good of the people. Some individuals seem to think it should be the other way around.

K-State should support, use campus copy center

K-State is losing untold dollars every semester because students are buying necessary classroom classroom materials at off-campus copy centers instead of University copy locations.

Because of apparent ignorance of a University directive, instructors have been taking advantage of the services of local commercial copiers and ignoring that campus copiers can do the same work at comparable prices. The rerouting of dollars is coming at the expense of the University.

This seems ridiculous considering copy centers are available for use on campus, a place inevitably more convenient for everyone.

The University needs to promote its copy services and strongly encourage compliance.

Guardianship system needs severe changes

Friday, a House subcommittee will hold a hearing to discuss abuses in guardianship of the elderly.

Guardianship, a system in which another person — usually a relative — is given control of an elderly person judged incompetent, currently affects between 300,000 and 400,000 elderly Americans.

A yearlong investigation by The Associated Press recently found that a shocking number of America's elderly placed under guardianship have been stripped of their civil rights, ripped off and treated poorly by a system that is supposed to protect them. The investigation revealed a "dangerously burdened and troubled system that regularly puts elderly lives in the hands of others with little or no evidence of necessity, then fails to guard against abuse, theft and neglect," the report said.

Kansas moved in the right direction in revising the guardianship conservatorship provisions of the State Probate Code in 1983. The changes included a clearer definition of who should be subject to the law, placed tighter restrictions on the powers of guardians and required that wards be put in the least-restrictive setting possible.

The provisions also require a periodic review on whether guardian-ships should be changed, continued or terminated.

But having the law and enforcing it are two different things. No matter how good the legal system is, if there aren't adequate facilities for the elderly, the laws are useless. And, according to the investigation, Kansas is no exception when it comes to improving the current system.

Though most guardians are well-meaning, conscientious people who pay close attention to the needs of their wards, the number of unscrupulous guardians is likely to increase if the nation's elderly population jumps a projected 22 percent by the year 2000.

While this information may sound irrelevant on the surface, students need to be informed. By the year 2000, many students may have grandparents — if not parents — under some kind of nursing home care.

The subcommittee on health and long-term care has been studying the issue of elderly abuse and financial exploitation for 10 years. Members have admitted that the AP findings are similar to their own.

Obviously, severe changes need to be made in the entire guardianship system. It's time for the Legislature to stop studying and start acting.

Bork's judicial restraint ideas could set Supreme Court back

One of the cornerstones of the judicial agenda of the Reagan administration has been 'judicial restraint,' meaning that the courts should refrain from setting policy and should interpret the law strictly as intended by the framers of the Constitution (or the particular legislature). While it is true that such intent should be a factor, the precise language set down as law should be the real guide. The nomination of Judge Bork to the Supreme Court is an excellent example of such consideration being important in confirming or rejecting the nomination.

Judge Bork is widely described as a scholar who is caught in a political fight. There are, in fact, questions about his 'scholarly' credentials that suggest they may only be a cover for a conservative ideology. He has repeatedly asserted in the confirmation hearings that the law should be interpreted only by what its framers may be perceived to have understood as its intent in the original context. This may sound like a rather benign position but, in reality, is logically flawed and merely an excuse to make the executive branch stronger. 'Original intent' is a pet philosophy of the Meese school of jurisprudence, and this should alert even the sleepy reader to imminent danger.

As an example of the absurdity of 'original intent,' consider the 'insanity defense.' The original arguments and precedents go back to 12th century England. So should the definition of 'insanity' be frozen at that time? It is obvious that such an approach would make a mockery of the judicial process. At present the evolution of ideas and American society is handled by the courts broadly interpreting the law through interpolation and extrapolation, presumably to maintain a broadly consistent legal framework. 'Original intent' should be used to choose between several possible meanings of the language and not to define new, and sometimes hypocritical, meanings.

The power of judicial review allows the

Commentary

RATTAN NATH
Guest
Columnist

courts to strike down a law as unconstitutional if it is inconsistent with the general body of the Constitution. This is an extremely important function of the judiciary and is part of the check on irresponsible legislation. In the absence of proper legislation and executive action, it is up to the courts to determine policy rather than allow anarchy or a tyrannical executive. This is precisely what happened in the civil rights cases of the celebrated 'judicial activism' era. Rather than being a failure, it is proof of the resourcefulness of the Constitution. Judge Bork doesn't think so; he would let the situation stagnate.

If the principle of 'original intent' is applied to itself, it turns out to be inconsistent. The framers of the Constitution (with the exception of Madison) intentionally kept no record of the proceedings in order to avoid difficulties in making compromises. Implicitly, intent doesn't seem to have concerned them to any great extent, except that it might make a mockery of the process by allowing a court to read any meaning into the language depending on the 'intent' that strikes its fancy.

By the very nature of the political process, legislatures tend to pass nice-sounding laws with impressive ideals and seductive speeches. The language sounds idealistic, while the reality is quite ugly. An obvious example is that famous line "...all men are created equal..." in the Declaration of Independence — a line that was penned at a time when three out of 10 men were slaves. Since it is in the declaration, one would expect that the rest of the text would be consistent with it. When a slave challenged his position of slavery, the Supreme Court threw out his case based on — guess what — 'original intent.' Rather than recognize the obvious inconsistency, the court hid behind that facade and let things be. The danger in such actions is that they set precedents for later judgments.

William Safire, a conservative syndicated columnist and a language buff, argues that — according to the tenets of Hermeneutics (the study of the meaning of meaning) — it is untenable to require strict interpretation of the law going by 'original intent.' He bases this on the philosophical debates on interpreting texts and the diverse opinions regarding the mechanisms. Probably some opinions could result in 'free and equal' meaning slavery, but certainly only on the fringes. Incidentally, that is how Judge Bork's opponents describe him.

The final point is: why does the administration want him? The answer can be found in the fact that he has been a strong advocate of executive power, in the form of upholding extreme forms of sovereign immunity (the doctrine that the chief executive cannot be sued) and so-called judicial restraint. The latter would result in a power for it directly. The framers of the Constitution were wary of just such an executive power and built the checks to limit abuse of power. It is important that bench packing by the administration be prevented and Bork's nomination be rejected.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291-020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Movie attempting to 'buy' popularity

By Gary Leffler
Collegian Reviewer

While many people say money can't buy happiness, at least one recent film attempts to prove that money can indeed buy popularity. Unfortunately, "Can't Buy Me Love" will have to shell out a lot of dough if it wishes to be the most popular film of the summer.

"Can't Buy Me Love" is a rags to riches story, or as one character puts it, "a totally geek to totally chic" story. You see, Ronald Miller, played by Patrick Dempsey, is a nobody. Some may say he's a nerd, but he lacks the horn-rimmed glasses and pocket protector. Instead, he is simply ignored, spending his Saturday nights playing cards with other non-persons.

Review

He sees a solution to his dull lifestyle when Cindy, the head cheerleader, ruins her mother's suede dress and must find a way to replace it with an identical outfit before her mother discovers the dress has been "borrowed." The outfit costs $1,000 — slightly less than the amount Ronald has saved for a new telescope.

And wouldn't you know it, Ronald is purchasing his telescope at the very moment Cindy is haggling with the dress shop owner across the mall corridor.

So, in the spirit of predictable teenage filmdom, Ronald gives up his telescope and rescues the damsel in distress — with one catch. Cindy must agree to date Ronald, or at least pretend to date him, for one month in order to receive the money she so desperately needs.

"Can't Buy Me Love" tries to take a different route through the typical teenage flick by examining what popularity means and how hard it is to nurture and keep alive. However, the film ends up wandering in and out of the typical teen plots it was trying so hard to avoid.

These run-of-the-mill plotlines overshadow several truly imaginative and nearly touching moments, and it was unfortunate that for every heart-warming moment there was also at least one bad joke centered around, well, bodily functions.

Amanda Peterson plays Cindy, and like all other head cheerleaders she is forever battling macho jocks, brushing off wimpy geeks, and in a frazzle over what to wear to Saturday's dance. The writers attempted to take her further than this but didn't quite pull it off.

Patrick Dempsey does a better job of portraying Ronald Miller, the suddenly popular geek who lives it up in the fast lane. His character has more depth than Peterson's but Ronald is still just another version of the same old misfit.

Basically, if it weren't for the overuse of typical teen flick devices "Can't Buy Me Love" would have been a refreshing departure from the expected.

Man's first novel chosen by 2 book clubs

By Karen Allen
Collegian Reporter

Steve Heller, associate professor of English, has hit the jackpot after six years of work on his novel "The Automotive History of Lucky Kellerman."

"My luck has turned," said Heller, whose novel was chosen as a selection by the Book-of-the-Month Club and the Quality Paperback Book Club. It will be available in March to members of both clubs.

"It took me three years to write the book and three to get it published," he said. "I am very pleased about the selection."

A novel goes through many steps before being selected, Heller said.

His novel was published by Chelsea Green Publishing Co. and then submitted by the publisher to the book clubs. The clubs distribute the novel to various readers and a decision is made based on their feedback, he said.

"The Automotive History of Lucky Kellerman" is set in the wheat country around Yukon, Oklahoma. Kellerman is spending his 65th birthday locked in an old schoolhouse filled with honey bees. He talks to the bees as he builds his last automobile, a Model 18 Ford.

Heller's next novel will be released in about a year and is titled "The King of Swing." The central character is Kellerman, and the book is about "angels, devils and janitors in the Oklahoma capitol building," he said. "The Dreamland Tree" is set in Hawaii and ends the trilogy of Kellerman and his adventures.

Although this is Heller's first novel, he has been writing for several years. He has published a collection of stories, "The Man Who Drank a Thousand Beers," and has won the O. Henry prize twice.

Manhattan
Milling Co.

- K-31 Fescue $26.50/50 lbs.
- Fertilizers
13-13-13 $8.50 lbs
34-0-0 $6.50 lbs
- Weed & Seed $6.60/20 lbs
8-14-2 $10.40 lbs
- Sulfur $2.50/50 lbs

Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

Krystallos

"Beautiful Objects
from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

WHAT ARE YOU DOING SEPTEMBER 26TH?
WHY NOT TAKE THE TIME TO...

TAKE THE 6 STEPS TO Leadership

THE ALL-CAMPUS
LEADERSHIP WORKSHOP!

KEYNOTE ADDRESS: "WHAT CONSTITUTES LEADERSHIP"
Dr. Jon Wefald

September 26, 1987
begins in K-STATE UNION, Rm. 212
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

Sessions on: •stress management, •communication,
•motivation, •K-State & the New Student: How to get involved •and more

... THESE COULD BE THE STEPS TO YOUR FUTURE!

Sponsored by: SGA, UAB and Mortar Board

TONIGHT

$1 Well Drinks
$2 Pitchers
80¢ Draws

Thurs.
All Mixed
Drinks
$1.50

Firestone

Come in and meet our new store manager

COUPON Premium
BRAKE OVERHAUL
$20 OFF
PER AXLE, DISC OR DRUM.

We'll install new pads or shoes, new front grease seals, new brake hardware, recondition calipers or wheel cylinders, resurface rotors or drums, repack front wheel bearings, inspect brake hoses and master cylinder,
bleed system and add new fluid and road test.
FREE Lifetime Shoe/Pad Replacement—As long as you own your car, we'll replace FREE (including labor) any shoes/pads that were installed in our Premium Brake Overhaul and that subsequently wear out. See us for a copy of our limited warranty.

*Limit overhaul only. Coupon expires Sept. 26, 1987.
K-State

COUPON STUDENT SPECIAL!
All New Tires
Purchased thru
Sept. 26
FREE Mounting
FREE Road Hazard
Warranty
Must have this
coupon.
Coupon expires Sept. 26, 1987
K-State

90 DAYS SAME AS CASH on new Firestone tires and many services. Minimum monthly payment $10. All services subject to credit review. See store manager for details. *Excludes tires, wheels, and other accessories. *Not valid with other coupons or discounts. *See your Firestone dealer for full terms and conditions. *See store (S) for details on MasterCard service.

Across from Dillards—Town Center Mall

Mon.-Fri. 7:30-5:30
307 N. 3rd. Sat. 8:00-4 p.m. Ph. 776-4849

ATTENTION YOU CAN STILL MAKE RESERVATIONS

for Organization Group Pictures
for the Royal Purple.
Hurry—so you can get the time
and date you want!

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

September Special
For the bride-to-be

FULL-YEAR
SUBSCRIPTION FREE
12 Terrific Issues
Value up to $18

Your choice of HOME or Bon Appetit magazine Subscription
when you order Masterpiece
Studios wedding invitations.
Only One Week Left

Campbell's

Poyntz & Fifth
776-9067
Downtown

1227 Moro
539-1891
Aggieville

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK

Presents:

ROBERT ANASTAS

Founder of SADD

And

ANDREW O'DONOVAN

Director of Kansas Alcohol and Drug Abuse Services

Saturday, September 26th

8:00-12:00 Noon

Seat Belt Convincer on south side of Kansas State Union

9:00-10:30

Program in Forum Hall, Kansas State Union. People to speak:
Andrew O'Donovan, Director Kansas Alcohol and Drug Abuse Services
ROBERT ANASTAS, Founder of SADD, Marlboro, MA.

10:30-12:00 Noon

"Mock Tragedy" in South Field of Memorial Stadium, across from Kansas State Union (A wrecked car, "jaws of life" demonstration, Manhattan ambulance service, and MAST helicopter)

The goal of this program is to alert Kansas State and surrounding communities to the possible consequences of drinking and driving.

Ad Sponsored by:

CAMPBELL DISTRIBUTORS, INC.

Finally, a great pizza delivered.

1118 Laramie

539-5303

GODFATHER'S PIZZA™

Early Week Special
$10.99/$8.99 plus tax

LARGE MEDIUM
COMBO PIZZA
or up to 4 toppings
Original Crust

Plus FREE 20 oz. drinks!
4 drinks with large
3 drinks with medium

Offer good Monday through
Wednesday only.
Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery (no added delivery charge). Not valid
with other promotional offers.
Limited Delivery Area.

Offer Expires 10/07/87
GODFATHER'S PIZZA KSU

Large Pizza for
a Medium Price

Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for
the price of a medium.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery
Valid on Stuffed or Original Pizza. Not valid with refills on refillable jug offer. On Sunday your choice: either use this coupon or take advantage of free drink offer. Sorry, you can only choose one.

Offer Expires 10/11/87
GODFATHER'S PIZZA KSU

2 for $9

Receive two medium cheese pizzas for only $9. Added ingredients available for only $1 per topping, which covers both pizzas.

Dine-in, Carryout or Delivery
Not valid with any other promotional offers. Add $1 for delivery. Limited delivery area.

Offer Expires 10/11/87
GODFATHER'S PIZZA KSU

Hot Slice™
2 for $2

Receive 2 Hot Slice Pizzas
by the slice for $2!
Combo or Pepperoni!

Dine-in or Carryout
Monday-Friday, 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.

Offer Expires 10/09/87
GODFATHER'S PIZZA KSU

FoodWednesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, September 23, 1987 ■ Page 7

Hot Peppers

Adding a fiery zip to your diet

Seeking excitement? Need a little zip in your life? The perfect solution to all those non-memorable meals: hot peppers.

Hot peppers, also called chiles, are relatives of the tomato. Contrary to popular belief, peppers are not vegetables; they are fruits.

Nearly every cuisine in the world uses hot peppers occasionally. People in Thailand, Mexico, India, Brazil and parts of China are heavy hot-pepper users.

Hot peppers are known, loved and hated because of their ability to burn the mouth and to cause the eyes to water and the nose to run. But, for true pepper lovers, the pleasure is worth the pain.

The chile's fire-breathing capacity is caused by capsaicin, a chemical in the membrane along the inner walls of the pepper. Peppers vary in the amount of capsaicin they contain; the more they have, the hotter they are.

When eaten, capsaicin causes a feeling of warmth and, in sufficiently high doses, pain. This mixture of heat and pain triggers a response from the brain and leads to profuse perspiration, which may be one reason why peppery foods are popular in hot climates.

Another reason for pepper popularity is its use to preserve food and disguise spoilage.

All peppers are high in vitamin C. As green peppers turn red, their vitamin C content becomes second to that of the amounts of vitamin A.

Studies done in Thailand determined that eating hot peppers regularly does not cause damage to the stomach lining. Evidence has shown that hot pepper-eating cultures do not have any higher incidence of stomach ulcers.

Despite concerns about their effect, hot peppers actually improve digestion by promoting the secretion of saliva and gastric juices that increase the forward movement of food in the digestive tract.

Capsaicin also has some antibacterial effects and can decrease clotting of the blood.

Although the stomach can handle hot peppers, skin and eyes can't. Rubber gloves should always be worn when working with hot chiles; otherwise, the oils will remain on the hands and, if they touch a sensitive area such as around the eyes, will cause irritation.

Eating hot peppers often causes a blaze of pain. Water should never be used to extinguish the blaze because it will only spread the capsaicin around the mouth. A piece of bread should be chewed to get rid of the burning sensation.

Chiles can be eaten alone, grilled, stuffed, pickled, dried, ground into seasoning and used in relishes and sauces.

Peppers can also be used to spike some otherwise dull dishes such as potato soup, pasta, chowder and salad.

Some chiles are even used for decoration. A popular use of ripe, red chiles — especially in the Southwest — is to string them together on cords of various lengths and hang them to dry. The enticing strings of dried red chiles are then called ristras.

Ristras last for months, and chiles can be plucked from the string as needed.

There are more than 300 varieties of peppers, and each type has its own distinctive taste.

The amount of capsaicin in each pepper is genetically determined, but it can also be affected by growing conditions such as soil quality, availability of moisture and temperature. Chiles tend to be hotter and smaller when grown in poor soil with hot, dry climates.

Although the hotter varieties of chiles are grown only in hot, dry climates, they can usually be purchased — fresh or dried — year-round in any local grocery store.

There is no excuse for continuing to eat unexciting food; add a little fire to the menu and make those taste buds come alive.

Cheese-and-Chile Dip

1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, softened

1½ cups (6 ounces) shredded mild Cheddar cheese

1 tablespoon lemon juice

1 tablespoon chicken-flavored bouillon granules

Dash of hot sauce

1 medium tomato, chopped

1 (4-ounce) can chopped green chiles, drained

1 tablespoon finely chopped onion

Green chile strip

Combine first 5 ingredients in a mixing bowl; beat at medium speed of electric mixer until smooth. Gently stir in next three ingredients. Chill well. Garnish with green chile strip. Serve with taco chips. Yield: about 2 cups.

Grilled Chiles Rellenos with Onions and Cheese

8 to 12 large Anaheim (6 to 6½ inches long) or poblano chiles (4 to 4½ inches long), rinsed

3 tablespoons butter or margarine

3 large onions, thinly sliced

¼ cup golden raisins

3 to 4 tablespoons minced, drained, canned, stemmed and seeded chipotle chiles in sauce, or minced, seeded and stemmed fresh or canned jalapenos

1½ cups (6 ounces) packed, shredded jack cheese

Tomato salsa (recipe follows)

Using a barbecue with a lid, place chiles on grill 4 to 6 inches above a solid bed of hot coals (you should be able to hold your hand at grill level for only 2 to 3 seconds). Cook, uncovered, until blistered and slightly charred on one side, 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Peel off any blistered skin that comes free easily. Cut a slit down the length of cooked side of each chile. Scrape out seeds but leave chiles whole; if made ahead, cover and chill chiles overnight.

In a 12- to 14-inch frying pan, cook butter and onions over medium heat, stirring often, until onions are very limp and light gold, about 15 minutes. Stir in raisins and chipotle chiles (or jalapenos) to taste. Let cool; stir in cheese. Fill whole chiles with onion mixture, using all the filling.

Place chiles, slit side up, on grill 4 to 6 inches above a solid bed of medium coals; put lid on barbecue and open drafts. Cook without turning until filling is hot, 7 to 10 minutes. With a wide spatula, transfer to plates.

Tomato Salsa

In a bowl, mix together 1 large tomato, cored and coarsely chopped; ¼ cup chopped onion; 1 to 1½ tablespoons finely chopped, drained, stemmed, seeded and canned chipotle chiles in sauce or stemmed, seeded jalapeno chiles; 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar; and 1 clove garlic, pressed or minced.

Story by Ann Iseman

Photograph by Andy Nelson

A plethora of peppers to please one's palate

Anaheim — Medium-hot, with long, tapered fruits about 7 inches by 1½ inches.

Long Red Cayenne — Very hot, attractive red pepper about 5 inches long.

Fresno Chile Grande — Pungent little peppers (3½ inches long, 1 inch wide) grow upright on the plant. Medium green fruit turns bright red.

Hungarian Yellow Wax Hot — Moderate heat combined with a delicate yellow color turning to bright red makes this a favorite. Fruit is about 7 inches long, 2 inches wide.

Jalapeno — Tongue-searing qualities account for this pepper's fame. Fruits are stubby: about 3½ inches long, 1½ inches in diameter. Green flesh turns crimson.

Red Cherry — Plenty of fiery wallop in a small package. These peppers are almost round, about 1 inch in diameter.

Serrano Chile — One of the hottest. Fruits grow about 2½ inches long, ½ inch wide.

Jalapeno peppers: For real people with iron guts

The topic this week is a hot one! Jalapeno peppers are becoming a hot item in restaurants and home cooking.

They add a touch of spice to bland meals and leave your mouth aflame. You see a lot of them on salad bars and used as garnishes at restaurants.

Some people like to eat peppers whole. I don't know if they are really doing it for the taste or what. But I never could stand to eat anything so hot that your lips dropped off onto the plate and 20 gallons of water would not extinguish the fire. That's hot.

Food for Thought

SUSAN STAGGENBORG
Features Editor

I have seen some people sweat profusely and turn beet red in the face when they eat these tiny fruits of fire. And they do not stop at just one. With a smile on their face and a flame in their eye, they pop in another.

Some of the most mild-looking peppers can cause diners to grab for glasses of water or anything wet. It is cautioned that this is not the best remedy for a mouth aflame. I've found that a margarita or pina colada works just as well.

The best remedy pepper experts advise is to keep a loaf of bread and gallon of milk nearby to put out five-alarm fires.

I think everyone should try eating peppers whole. It's a challenge.

I heard someone say the best way to eat peppers whole is not to let the pepper touch your lips, and you will not feel the heat. I don't know if this is true. I'll stick to putting very mild sauce on my tacos and leave the true jalapeno pepper eating to people with iron guts.

Practical Pointers

These tips are for those of you who have a kitchen "junk drawer" full of things you don't know how to use or knew you never had.

That ice cream scoop has more than one purpose. Besides scooping ice cream you can use a small scoop to drop cookie dough. A large one will fill muffin and cupcake tins.

If you have a melon baller, it can be used to hollow out vegetables or fruits for stuffing.

Arias relays peace plan to U.S. leaders

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Costa Rican President Oscar Arias appealed to President Reagan and Congress on Tuesday to "take a risk for peace" and permit the peace plan he has drafted for Central America to run its course.

"The essence of my words is that we give peace a chance — that is the message I have brought to Washington," Arias told reporters after meeting with Reagan at the White House and addressing members of Congress gathered informally in the House of Representatives.

Arias, the principal architect of the five-nation Central American peace plan unveiled in Guatemala last month, told Congress his initiative needs time and assistance in order to succeed.

The plan calls for a negotiated cease-fire to go into effect by Nov. 7, but Arias said the peace effort should not be scuttled if that date passes without a definitive settlement.

"Some steps may be taken before those deadlines expire," Arias told Congress. "Others may require a longer period. We will not fall into a trap set by someone who shows us a calendar every day, anxious to bury the last hope."

"We have opened the door to the rule of reason in Central America and to reconciliation and dialogue," he said. "As long as there is a will to succeed, hope should never be lost."

Meanwhile, the Nicaraguan government announced a partial cease-fire with Contra rebels to start unilaterally, and it said an opposition radio station could reopen immediately.

President Daniel Ortega did not specify a timetable for his leftist government's truce plan but said: "We are working on concrete actions to make known the first zones where the cease-fire will be declared."

He said troops would be withdrawn to designated areas in a partial truce as a step toward a total cease-fire with the U.S.-supported rebels.

The announcements were the latest in a series of government moves to comply with the peace plan signed Aug. 7 by Ortega and the presidents of El Salvador, Honduras, Costa Rica and Guatemala.

Arias' 20-minute meeting with Reagan was private, but a senior U.S. official who was present said the Costa Rican leader agreed that the Contra insurgents should have a role in cease-fire negotiations with Nicaragua's Sandinista-ruled government.

The official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, quoted Arias as saying that he would support a request through the Organization of American States for "drastic sanctions" against Nicaragua "if the world could be shown that the Sandinistas had refused to comply" with the peace agreement they accepted in Guatemala City last month.

He said Arias also supported a stopgap appropriation of $3.5 million to continue non-lethal logistical aid to the Contras after Sept. 30 when the current $100 million in military aid expires.

Shortly after Arias spoke, the House Rules Committee cleared the way for floor action as early as Wednesday on the request by House Minority Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., for money for food, medicine, boots and other aid for the Contras.

Although some Democrats spoke against the measure, Rep. David E. Bonior, D-Mich., said it could be used to extricate the Contras from Nicaragua.

Iran

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Khamenei did not answer President Reagan's call in a U.N. speech Monday that he clearly state whether Iran accepts a U.N. Security Council demand for a cease-fire in its 7-year-old war with Iraq. Reagan said that if Iran does not comply, the council must enforce its resolution — referring to an arms embargo.

Khamenei, who is staying at a hotel near the U.N., has launched a vigorous propaganda campaign with foreign diplomats and with U.S. television and media interviews and meetings with influential editors. He is the highest ranking Iranian official to visit the United States since the 1979 revolution.

He demanded in his speech Tuesday that Iraq be punished as the aggressor and said the Security Council had no moral authority because of the veto power of the United States and four other permanent council members.

In Iran, Tuesday was observed as the seventh anniversary of the outbreak of the Iran-Iraq war.

Khamenei said in his speech: "Yesterday (Monday) U.S. battleships attacked Iran Ajr, an Iranian merchant ship. They murdered four and wounded three people. The ship has been seized and the crew detained."

"American television stations announced yesterday that U.S. battleships fired at this ship as it was laying mines in the waters. And, thereby, they, as usual, they taught a pack of lies to the American people." He said the ship was "a merchant vessel, not a military speedboat."

CHALLENGE YOUR ROOMMATE TO A GAME OF PUTT PUTT

Peugeot

"The Cruisers"
live Fri. & Sat.
9 p.m.-1:30 a.m.
FREE Hors d'oeuvres
Daily Drink Specials
523 S. 17th
Old Town Mall
537-1484

PREGNANT? NEED HELP?

For confidential help, call

Birthright
FREE Pregnancy Tests
103 S. Fourth 537-9180

K-STATE PLAYERS

ON THE VERGE
by Eric Overmyer

Sept. 24, 25, 26, 30
Oct. 1, 2, 3
Nichols Theatre 8 p.m.
12-5 532-6398 M-F

Optometrists
Dedicated to Optometry in a friendly manner

K-State, we'd like to be your optometric office

- Extended wear, gas permeable, tinted extended wear, tinted soft contact lenses
- Contact lenses competitively priced
- Doctors in office for FREE consultation and trial fitting
- Approx. 5,000 contact lenses in stock
- Evening and Saturday appointments available

Drs Price, Young, Odle and Horsch
1119 Westloop 537-1118

"Hair Unlimited"
Start your new fall fashion look with a new cut, color or perm.

Call Tracy!!
Open Mon.-Sat. 8-5
Tuesdays & Thurs. evenings

537-4528
1330 Westloop

"NOW, HERE'S THE OFFER"

Earn $25 for Diarrhea Study

For more information

Lafene Health Center 532-6544

BUD LIGHT

1987 Attention Flag Football Teams

Enter the 6th Annual "Score For Charity" Football Tournament

When: Oct. 2, 3 & 4

Where: KSU Old Stadium

How: Send Team Roster & $60 Entry Fee to Phi Delta Theta Fraternity 508 Sunset, Manhattan, KS.

This is a double elimination tournament with trophies going to the top three places. All-Star shirts awarded to outstanding players. Tournament party Friday night at the Phi Delta house featuring the band, The Catch.

Last year's champs: Men—Tau Kappa Epsilon Women—Alpha Zeta

Top Fundraising Group—Pi Phi

All proceeds go to the National ALS Foundation (Lou Gehrig's disease)

Entry Deadline is Sept. 24 at 5 p.m.

BUD LIGHT

ROCKY FORD TAVERN

Tonight
Pitchers $2.10
Draws 85¢

On tap: Coors Light, Budweiser, Old Milwaukee

"Your Discount Beer Barn"

Now Open on Sundays

Rt. 5 537-3133

"The Finest Little Tavern By A Dam Site"

HELEN REDDY

Tom Chapin
Guest Artist

Friday, September 25, 1987, 8 p.m.

General Public: $19, 17, 15 Students/Seniors $16, 14, 12

Box Office open 12 noon-5 p.m. Monday-Friday.
Call 532-6428 to charge tickets to MasterCard or VISA.

Tickets now on sale for:
Amsterdam Guitar Trio
Children's Theatre: Little Women
Central Philharmonic of China
State Ballet of Missouri
Canadian Brass

Saturday, October 3
Wednesday, October 7
Tuesday, October 27
Monday, November 9
Sunday, December 6

Put Yourselves in our Shoes

McCall's Shoes
fall fashion fortnight
OPEN HOUSE

Ten Live In-Store Shoe Fashion Shows!

Thru Sunday, October 4

Each Thursday at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m., each Saturday at 11 a.m., 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Thru Sunday, October 4

FREE drawing $100 in PRIZES
You may register once per day—no purchase necessary
$50 Gift Certificate 1st prize—5 each $10 Gift Certificates

SPECIAL selby.
MARION $62
MATCHING HANDBAG $26
BUY MARION at $62
receive matching bag
FREE!
While Supplies Last
Marion without bag
$49

SPECIAL $5 OFF
WITH THIS AD
ON ANY SHOE OR HANDBAG
IN OUR STOCK SELLING
AT $20 OR MORE!
NOT GOOD ON OTHER SPECIALS OR DISCOUNTS

SPECIAL LAZY-BONES
Award Series
ENTIRE STOCK
25% DISCOUNT
PLUS A GROUP OF NIKES

Socialites
City Chic
City women know how to look self-confident and assertive without losing an inch of feminine appeal. The secret is Socialites' shapely reptile print pump!

fanfares has it! CAREER GEAR
Moving up? Then outfit yourself in fashion that's tailor-made to stand out with clout.

McCall's Shoes
313 POYNTZ DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN

GUARDIANSHIP: AN AILING SYSTEM

Kansas law alters for guardianship to include disabled

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — At one time, Kansas law described those subject to guardianship-conservatorship, other than minors, as "incompetent persons."

The definition included anyone judged incapable of managing personal life or finances by reason of being an "insane person, lunatic, idiot, imbecile, distracted person, feeble-minded person, drug habitue or an habitual drunkard."

In 1965, the terminology changed from "incompetent" to "incapacitated" and references to lunatics, idiots and imbeciles were removed.

The guideline was whether a person was "impaired by reason of mental illness, mental deficiency, physical illness or disability, advanced age, chronic narcotic addiction, chronic intoxication or other cause to such an extent that he lacks sufficient understanding or capacity to make or communicate responsible decisions concerning either his person or his estate."

Under the law, disabled persons in Kansas are adults "whose ability to receive and evaluate information effectively or to communicate decisions...is impaired to such an extent that the person lacks the capacity to manage...financial resources or to meet essential requirements for...physical health or safety."

Elderly

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9

court examiners audit how the wards' money is spent.

Through checks of court files and extensive interviews in all 50 states, the AP encountered numerous examples of what can happen when courts don't keep track of the wards and their money:

■ A Chicago social worker discovered an 83-year-old woman lying in a urine-soaked bed suffering from severe malnutrition and dehydration in 1985. The woman, under guardianship of her daughter, was cared for by grandchildren who, the social worker said, fed her once a day, called her "Fido" and spent her Social Security checks. Despite their denials, the grandchildren "failed in their duty," a judge ruled and placed the woman with the public guardian.

■ A Pittsburgh accountant, guardian for an 82-year-old ward, spent $156,202 of her $161,968 estate in 22 months. Among the expenses were a $24,175 guardianship fee and a $20,000 commission for investing $45,000 of her money on his own business venture. The court this year ordered $123,000 repaid to the estate.

■ A Cincinnati man lost $7,000 after two years of guardianship, including $3,500 in missing payroll checks and two bars of silver allegedly taken from a safety deposit box. The guardian bond, required by the court to insure the ward's assets, had been forged. The guardianship was dismissed in 1985.

Judges and court clerks in many places acknowledge they have little control.

"We don't have many resources.

Once in a while I'll yank one (a case file) and audit it," said Chris Tountas, a Phoenix, Ariz., probate court commissioner who receives information on 60 guardianships a day but audits only 12 cases a year.

"Does the court open files and look? I don't think that happens unless a problem is brought to the attention of the court by a family member or creditor," said Michael J. Carbo, a former probate court master in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

While most guardianships are properly administered, 13 percent of the more than 2,200 files examined by AP reporters contained no reports or accountings — not a single document filed after the granting of the guardianship.

Court clerks, the busy keepers of the county records, often were at a loss to explain what had happened to the ward, the guardian and the estate, or the money. Indeed, in many of the counties examined by the AP, court officials acknowledged they had no idea how many guardianship cases they were responsible for.

"There are only two of us here. We don't have time for all that," a Collier County, Fla., clerk said.

In Ada County, Idaho, a clerk joined an AP reporter to look at files. They pulled 12 cases that contained nothing but the orders granting the guardianship. In each case, the clerk determined that the ward had died, yet those guardianships had never been closed and the final accountings never made, as required.

Spokane County in Washington uses interns to check guardianship files. But of 13 files picked at random in the courthouse, nine were either missing financial reports or should have been closed because the wards were dead.

"That's surprising to me," said

Robert Austin, the Spokane County Superior Court commissioner. "It sounds like they are not looking at the files very carefully or very often."

One upstate New York file opened in 1980 and involving an estate valued at $150,000 six years into the guardianship contained this notation: "This file made up 11-20-86 — original file seems to be missing." Among the missing material was information on the sale of the ward's property and the initial size of the estate.

In 1982, a special grand jury in Miami found a 92-year-old woman without relatives or friends who was living "in squalor in an adult congregate living facility since closed for its intolerable living conditions."

The woman had a bank account of $150,000, and her guardian was the owner of the adult home, in violation of Florida law, the grand jury said in its report. The guardian hadn't filed a report on the ward for two years.

"The thing that scares the hell out of me is that people are acting as guardian without any kind of supervision," said Frank Repensek, executive director of The Guardianship Program of Dade County, a Miami, Fla., non-profit group.

Said Linda Weeks, a guardianship expert of the Florida Bar Association Disability Committee: "There's the way it should be, and there's the way it is...the way you can get away with."

AP reporters found cases of questionable spending, usually approved by judges who routinely sign guardianship papers crossing their desk without audit or investigation.

Most statutes require that the money in a ward's estate be spent for the benefit of the ward. Yet the guardian of a Kansas World War I veteran, for example, ran through $112,000 in a little more than a year, paying for a car and car repairs for a relative, spending $1,800 on a hotel stay in San Francisco and loaning $2,000 to a relative who built kitchen cabinets.

The Veterans Administration challenged that case, and after a judge investigated, the guardian was removed in 1981 and the man restored to competency. The money was never repaid.

Payments to car dealers were found in files in South Carolina and Texas, even though wards are stripped of driving privileges. Vacations for guardians were paid for by wards' estates in several files, and guardians at times made gifts to themselves of wards' money.

Some observers said more guardians are justifying gifts and lavish spending because they will likely inherit the money anyway.

"We haven't been able to convince them (judges) that some of these dear sons and daughters don't have the best interests of their old gray-haired mothers and fathers at heart," said Jim West, a legal aide attorney in Oklahoma who specializes in elderly law.

THURSDAY: Kansas' protection of the elderly.

Death

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

nothing probably wouldn't need one," Urban said. For unmarried students their belongings would go to their next of kin.

"I do think any married couple with children should have one," she said.

Certain requirements must be fulfilled when writing a will in Kansas. With rare exceptions, the will must be signed by an adult of sound mind and witnessed by at least two qualified witnesses. Then an executor is named, who will be the administrator of the will.

If the individual writing the will has children who are minors, a guardian is named who will be responsible for them, Urban said. Upon the parents' death, any assets they possessed are placed into a trust and trustees are named. The assets are then used exclusively to support the minor children.

Urban said the distribution of trust money is rarely monitored.

"Nobody checks up unless the guardian is having trouble getting the money," she said.

Wichita Family Planning Inc.
Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services
Free Pregnancy Testing
Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

1120 Moro 539-9064
Brother's
in Aggieville
The Veranda's
are releasing an album. And we're gonna celebrate it tomorrow!
$1.50 wells $1 shots

Manhattan—Junction City—Fort Riley
Your switch is on...

THE #1 Music Station
KQLA 104

THE JEAN STATION
FEATURING

REGISTER NOW TO WIN A $500 DREAM WARDROBE FROM JEAN STATION AND
KQLA 104
open daily 10-6, Thurs. till 8:30, Sun. 1-5

Scrumptillyishusland

Dairy Queen
"LET'S ALL GO TO THE DAIRY QUEEN"

Dairy Queen brazier. 1015 N. 3rd St. Manhattan 12th & Moro Aggieville * U.S. Pat. Off. Am. D.D. Corp. Copyright 1987 Am. D.D. Corp., Mpls., MN Printed in U.S.A.

The Interview Suit: Dressing to Impress Yourself.
Would you go to a department store for guidance on how to dress for success? Probably not. You'd want real insight on how to make a good First Impression.
At Borck Brothers our salespersonnel are trained in the art of fashion. They can help you buy a suit that lets you look good, without making you look like every other job applicant.
Suits are priced from $195. The advice is free.
BORCK Brothers
1100 Westloop Place (913) 537-8436
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat. till 8:30 Thurs.

The JEAN STATION

SHRINK-TO-FIT 501
$19.88
Prewashed Stonewashed Bleached
These jeans are pre-washed and pre-shrunk to take the guess work out of buying Levi's® button-fly jeans. The pair that fits just right when you try them on will still fit just right after you wash them.
Hours: 10-6 M-Sat., 10-8:30 Thurs., 1-5 Sun. Aggieville, Manhattan

PI KAPPA ALPHA
6th Annual Lil' Sis Olympics
Calendar of Events
Wednesday, Sept. 3 • Vote for Ideal Greek in the Union
Thursday, Sept. 24 • Vote for Ideal Greek in the Union
• 8:30-11 p.m. Pizza Eating Contest, Fluffy Rabbit Contest
• Ideal Greek Walkthrough
Friday, Sept. 25 • 3:30-6 p.m. Drink off, Vote for Ideal Greek
Saturday, Sept. 26 • 1:30 p.m. games at Ahearn Field House
Sponsors Include:

BUD LIGHT

Bork proceedings carry on

Opponent: Views 'could spell chaos'

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork was described by a noted legal scholar Tuesday as a man whose views "could spell chaos" for the nation, but other witnesses at his confirmation hearings defended him and said his views have been distorted by critics.

The Senate Judiciary Committee heard the opposition to Bork from Harvard University Law School Professor Laurence Tribe, himself mentioned as a possible Supreme Court justice some day.

And a panel of witnesses including novelist William Styron and artist Robert Rauschenberg suggested confirming Bork to the Supreme Court would be a threat to freedom of expression.

However, Carla Hills, who was secretary of housing and urban development in the Ford administration, testified she had been "startled and saddened" by what she said had been distortions of Bork's views during the hearings so far.

And Lloyd Cutler, who was White House counsel in the Carter admininistration, submitted testimony calling Bork "a conservative jurist who is closer to the center than to the extreme right." Cutler was still waiting to testify as the session moved into the evening.

"This gavel is mine until they take it from me and that only occurs in an election."

—Sen. Joe Biden

Meanwhile, Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White was quoted as saying "it would be all right with me" if Bork won confirmation.

White's comment, interpreted by Republicans as an expression of support for Bork, was related to reporters at the court by Supreme Court spokeswoman Toni House.

She said White made the remark last Friday to television talk-show host John McLaughlin and gave McLaughlin permission to report the conversation.

"I wouldn't regard it as a public endorsement," she said, adding that it was up to the public to decide what the remark meant.

White was appointed to the court by President Kennedy and generally is regarded as a moderate on civil rights and conservative on law enforcement issues. Justice John Paul Stevens announced earlier that he supports Bork's nomination. No other member of the court has taken a position, although former Chief Justice Warren E. Burger also has endorsed Bork.

At the hearings, the extraordinary length of the proceedings was becoming an issue. Republicans complained they could move more quickly if they were given more advance notice of upcoming witnesses. Committee chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., imposed stricter time limits on question and answer periods.

"It's clear this nomination is hanging in the balance," Biden said, noting that the length of questioning may be unprecedented. Bork testified for a record five days last week and the hearings lasted until 11 p.m. Monday.

On a personal note, Biden, whose presidential hopes have been dealt a blow by recent reports of plagiarism in law school and in recent speeches, said he had learned of reports that he was giving up his chairmanship of the panel.

Denying the reports, he said, "This gavel is mine until they take it from me and that only occurs in an election."

Cutler, who has been criticized by some fellow liberals for supporting Bork, said in a prepared statement that Bork's record "cannot be squared with the extravagant characterizations of Judge Bork as a throwback" to the days when slavery was legal.

Earlier, Ms. Hills, secretary of housing and urban development in the Ford Administration, introduced a panel of four law school professors who support Bork's nomination. She described them as "wholly independent scholars" who volunteered to counteract criticism by Bork's detractors.

On the other hand, a letter from 100 law school deans and professors who oppose Bork's nomination was sent to the Judiciary Committee and read at the hearing

Lockouts provide money donations for local charities

By Debbie Lyons
Collegian Reporter

As you leave your room to run some errands, the door locks shut behind you. After three steps, you visualize your keys lying on the desk.

Drat, locked out again.

For residence hall occupants, the fine paid to get the door unlocked may go to a charity.

"Lockouts are not the staff's job," said Emily Weinacker, director of Goodnow Hall, "but they will usually unlock the door."

In order to encourage residents to carry their keys, the Department of Housing allows the hall management to ask for lockout fines. The money is then donated to a charity.

Goodnow Hall staff ask for a donation of 25 cents for each lockout they remedy any time during the day. Each hall can decide where the money will go.

Last year, Goodnow Hall donated just under $125 to Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Manhattan Inc., Weinacker said.

The housing department encourages the halls to donate the money to the Mabel Strong Scholarship Fund, which is set up for hall residents.

Out of the seven residence halls at K-State that charge a lockout fine, only Goodnow and Moore halls do not donate the money exclusively to the scholarship fund.

Moore Hall staff voted on a monthly rotation between three charities: Flint Hills Bread Basket, Big Brothers and Big Sisters, and the Mabel Strong Scholarship Fund.

Goodnow Hall staff decided to donate the money to Big Brothers and Big Sisters because many of the residents would like to be involved in the organization but can't be because they are not in Manhattan over the summer.

The housing department also allows the halls to determine the amount of the donations.

Silver Reed EZ 20
Reg. 199.95 Now 179.95

Multi-Lingual Keyboard
Relocation
Correction Memory
Slip-in Typewheels (Pica or elite)

Hull Business Machines

Tuesdays & Thursdays
55¢ draws

Coors Light & Budweiser on tap at the 3rd St. Pub

GET HEX-APPEAL IT'S TAN-FAST-IC!

SAVE $5

Quicker—each session only 15 minutes.
More uniform tanning—40 bulbs surround you.
Sanitary—you don't lie in your own sweat, only your feet touch a common surface.

12 sessions $25
Bring this ad

new BEGINNINGS

See our coupon in the Campus Connection 1107 N. 3rd 537-1007 Offer Expires Oct. 31, 1987

Applications Now Available

ARTS & SCIENCE COUNCIL

Eisenhower 113
Due September 28

W E E WATCH FOR WILD

k-state union food service

UPC UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

WE'RE OFF to the Horse Races in Lincoln, NE
October 10, 1987
Cost: $15

Includes general admission ticket and round trip transportation.

Sign-up: Sept. 23-Oct. 8, Union Activities Center, 3rd floor, 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

k-state union upc travel

k-state union upc outdoor rec.

HANG LOOSE!
Rock Climbing and Rappelling in Columbia, MO
October 10-11
Includes 4 meals, equipment, demonstration
COST $26
Sign-up begins TODAY!
Activities Center, 3rd floor, Union 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

Let's Talk About It . . .

Students in Solidarity with Central America (SISCA)

Noon—Union Catskeller
THURS., SEPT. 24

k-state union upc issues & ideas

THE SECRET OF MY SUCCESS
PG-13
MICHAEL J. FOX

From the Little Apple to the Big Apple! Michael J. Fox stars as a K-STATE grad who goes to New York to conquer the business world!

There will be a FREE drawing for a K-STATE T-Shirt at the following showings of Secret of My Success: Fri. at 7 p.m., (compliments of Varney's) & Sat. at 7 & 9:30 p.m. (compliments of the Union Bookstore).

Friday & Saturday, 7 & 9:30 p.m. Forum Hall Rated PG-13

k-state union upc feature films

DOWN BY LAW

Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall, Thursday, 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall Rated R.

k-state union upc kaleidoscope

CHARLOTTE'S WEB

This delightful animated film is based on E. B. White's classic children's book. Charlotte, a spider, spends her whole life (one spring, summer and fall) trying to save the life of her friend Wilbur, a good-hearted pig who has learned he is on his was to a bacon factory.

Saturday, 2 p.m. Forum Hall & Sunday, 2 & 7 p.m. Forum Hall. Rated G

k-state union upc feature films

KSU I.D. required at all shows. Cost: 1.75 at all movies except matinees—$1.50—Sat., 2 p.m. & Sun., 2 & 7 p.m.

LUST in the DUST

"A gun-totin' rootin'-tootin' New Mexico-style cowboy yarn...Loaded with surprisingly good performances...Lainie Kazan, in particular, pulls out all the stops..."
— Peter Stack, SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

Friday & Saturday
Midnight
Forum Hall
Rated R

k-state union upc kaleidoscope

Chiefs' Gansz wants to win through strike

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Chiefs expect to have a full complement of non-striking football players Oct. 4 when they resume their season at the Los Angeles Raiders, says Coach Frank Gansz.

"We're going to make the very best of the situation and we're going out there every game to win," Gansz said Tuesday as the Chiefs and 27 other NFL teams dug in for the second NFL players strike in five years.

No pickets appeared Tuesday, the players' regular day off. But player representative Nick Lowery scheduled a news conference Wednesday morning at what he said would be the Chiefs' picket line outside Arrowhead Stadium. The Chiefs, 1-1 in Gansz' first year as head coach, were expecting more than 60,000 in Arrowhead Sunday for Minnesota, a game that is expected to be canceled.

Gansz said fans should expect the strike teams to play no-frills football.

"Everybody will have to go out there with a basic game plan. A basic defense, a basic offense, a basic kicking game," he said. "It will have to be pretty fundamental football. But we'll get ready to play, and our purpose will be to win."

Gansz said he will be waiting at the door Wednesday to greet his new players.

"There won't be anything to do but take physicals," he said. "Then Thursday we'll hold our first practice."

"We'll come in at 9 a.m. and work on special teams first. The first meeting will be the punt team meeting. How do we punt the ball? How do we run this formation? We'll take everything in a walk-through at first...run basic handoff plays, basic pass plays. You can't be too fancy. We're going to make the best of it."

As special teams coach the past two years, Gansz enjoyed immense popularity among players, a major factor in the decision to dump the unpopular John Mackovic and elevate Gansz to the head job. He has always sought to develop a closeness and a rapport with his players that is unusual among NFL head coaches, and his closeness with the players might seem imperiled by the bitterness that can accompany a strike.

"I liken this situation to my daughter," he said. "I love her. She's a beautiful young gal. But I can remember having some arguments with her when she was 15-16. She would leave the house and go stay with one of her friends for a while. She'd always come back and we'd always make up. But I was management, and it's still the same thing. She had to do her own thing. The players have to do what they think is right. I understand that. But they have to understand my job. The big thing is we've got to get back as soon as possible to the business of winning."

Nevertheless, Gansz said he has deliberately not taken part as scouts and front office personnel line up replacements.

"I didn't go out and get another daughter," he said.

General Manager Jim Schaaf said 40 strike-breakers would be in Arrowhead Wednesday for physical examinations.

"We hope to have 45 by Friday,"

Schaaf said. "It's a difficult, but not impossible situation." Many of the replacements will be players the Chiefs cut in training camp.

"But they will come from all over the country," he added. "They will be players we scouted while they were in college, players we had in camp, or players we've been keeping tabs on. There's not a lot of secrets out there. I am not aware of any (regular Chiefs players) who are expected to re-join us Thursday."

Schaaf and Gansz both agreed that franchises in high-population areas such as Los Angeles might have an advantage.

"I think the teams in the heavily populated geographic areas will have the advantage, because they have a lot of players. Los Angeles, Philadelphia, New York," Gansz said. "Those teams will have the advantage. Lots of very good football players live in the San Diego-Los Angeles area. Nobody said it was always going to be fair."

Gansz also believes the franchises with the best teams will tend to be the ones with the strongest replacement squads.

"Your better teams are going to have your better cuts," he said. "They'll have more because they have depth. The teams like the Giants, Bears and Redskins."

Gansz and Schaaf both declined to speculate on what kind of public reaction the replacement teams will spark.

"The quality of players will not be as good as what we had before," Gansz said. "But there very well could be some guys who come in under these difficult circumstances and show what they can do — guys who win jobs and go on and have outstanding careers in the NFL."

"But," he added, looking ahead to the first strike game against the Raiders, "if there's a guy out there named Edgar Henshaw who looks a lot like Howie Long, I'm going to suspect something."

The Chiefs also announced Tuesday that ticket holders will have several options for getting refunds on cancelled games.

Details of ticket exchanges or refunds will be announced later.

Call wins Big Eight accolade

By The Collegian Staff

K-State junior outside hitter Shawnee Call was named the Big Eight Conference volleyball player-of-the-week for the week ending Sept. 20, the Big Eight Conference announced Monday morning.

"It's not uncommon for Shawnee to dominate a match, but she was particularly dominating last week," KSU coach Scott Nelson said, who has seen his team jump off to a 7-3 start. "The fact that she committed just 11 errors in 141 attacks is tremendous. It also tells me that our setters were giving her some great balls to hit."

Call, a native of Ellsworth, was an all-Big Eight first-team selection last year.

Defender and speedster take on winning attitudes

Wallace says he's frustrated

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

It's frustrating, very frustrating. In two games K-State has come up on the short end — a 26-22 loss to Austin Peay and a 41-14 drubbing by Army — and senior line-backer David Wallace doesn't like it, not in the least bit.

"It is pretty frustrating," he said. "That first game we were physically ready but weren't mentally ready to give the effort. In the second game we had all the effort, but we just didn't think through the game mentally. It's frustrating."

Wallace, though, has shown perseverance. In the Austin Peay game he registered 18 tackles — eight unassisted and 10 assisted — with two of those tackles combining for a loss of 11 yards.

In the Army contest, Wallace was again the leading tackler with 17 tackles — 12 assisted and five unassisted, with one tackle good for a three-yard loss.

If he continues at that pace, Wallace could make 182 tackles during the season. That mark would eclipse the single season record of 178 tackles, which is currently held by Gary Spani and Danny Lankas.

When Wallace is playing, he tends to see the game develop in a different way.

"When I'm in the game I tend to see the offense like a running back," Wallace said. "I can see the whole offense moving, and if I see the hole, then I presume the running back would see the hole also and I just try and plug that hole as quick as possible."

Staff/Greg Vogel

David Wallace was credited with 18 tackles in the Austin Peay game and 17 in the Army contest. At this pace, he may set a record.

Wallace, though, admitted that a player is only as good as his coach.

"(Linebacker) coach (Rich) Rachel is a great coach," Wallace said. "He's a technician. He knows what it takes to play this position, and I've learned so much from him. He's got my movement down as to which way I should go on my first step."

Wallace declined to comment on how talented this year's defensive team is, but he feels that through the next few years it should get better.

"The linebackers are pretty solid this year," he said. "Matt (Wallerstedt) and I pretty much see the same things when the offense is running, and we react pretty much the same. The secondary is really young, but that unit will be even better next year."

As for the task at hand this weekend, traveling to Iowa City to face the No. 19 ranked Iowa Hawkeyes, Wallace believes the Wildcats are up for the challenge.

"Right now they have to be looking past us," he said.

Williams prepared to receive

By Russ Ewy
Sports Writer

John Williams went from headline-grabber to role-player in just two weeks, but now he looks to bounce back.

K-State's senior wide receiver set a single-game receiving record for touchdowns against Austin Peay in the Wildcats' season-opener, but fell short of repeating his performance in the loss to Army in which he suffered an ankle injury. He should be back in action this Saturday when K-State faces No. 19-ranked Iowa in Iowa City.

Williams said the high expectations people had of him after the first game — in which he caught three touchdown passes — put a lot of pressure on him.

"I need to be a lot cooler and calmer. In the second game, I felt that I had more pressure on me. The people in the stands, the players, and the coaches wanted me to come back and do the same thing that I did in the first game, but I didn't do that, and I had a lot of pressure on me. But no matter what, you've got to go out there and play every week."

Besides the strain of having to perform, he also had to deal with the strain on his ankle, which was injured on a reverse play in the first half. Williams lost 10 yards on the play, and also lost his chance to shine in the second half.

"I believe I could have done the same thing in the second half if I wouldn't have got hurt," Williams said. "I ran the reverse and got

Staff/Greg Vogel

John Williams, who two weeks ago set a single-game touchdown reception record, plans a comeback from last week's game.

tackled and the guy came down on it, and he sort of twisted it as he was coming up. When he twisted it, I felt something pop. I went in and got X-rays on it, and was told that nothing serious was wrong with it. I just rolled it. It was nothing really major."

Before the game-ending injury, Williams had a lackluster first half, catching only three passes for a total of 12 yards, and dropping a second quarter Gary Swim pass in the end zone.

"(The defender) touched the ball and then it touched my hands. I didn't follow the ball in; I lost my concentration. What was going through my mind was I had double coverage, but I knew I could do it again. I was getting ready to come back and do it again, but then I got hurt on that reverse."

Despite the disappointing game against Army and the injury, Williams is looking forward to redeeming himself against the Hawkeyes.

"We just have to go out and play hard."

It's OK to be mad about the strike; both sides are reacting foolishly

It's perfectly understandable to be irate about the National Football League's player strike.

Just don't direct all of that anger toward the players. On more issues than not, the owners are the ones in the wrong.

To be sure, the players are hauling in some pretty big paychecks. The average NFL player is paid around $230,000 per year. Somehow, I don't think the United Auto Workers would picket if they were making six-figure salaries.

Nonetheless, NFL players are justified in their strike, particularly due to the league's archaic free-agent policy. The current set of rules is restrictive and unfair to players. Both the National Basketball Association and major-league baseball have far more liberal (and fair) policies toward free agents.

A top-caliber NFL player like, say, John Elway of the Denver Broncos or

Mid-week Commentary

TOM PERRIN
Sports Columnist

Lawrence Taylor of the New York Giants is practically locked into a team for his entire career because of the outlandish compensation that would be owed if one of them signed with another team. When a free agent signs a contract with a new team that pays him more than $390,000 per year, his old team receives two first-round draft picks from the new team.

There's probably not a team in the league that would give up two first-round picks to sign a player, no matter how good he is. The number and quality of the draft pick lowers as the quality of player involved does, but the scale is still disproportionate from top to bottom. Because of this, there hasn't ever been a really big-name player who jumped from one team to another via free agency.

If a player doesn't like living in a certain area or playing for a certain team or coach, it's just his tough luck. Unless he gets traded, he has to stay where he is or opt not to play. The average American worker wouldn't stand for such treatment, and there's no reason an NFL player should either.

Another problem area is in contract guarantees. About 90 percent of the NBA players have contracts that guarantee their salaries for the entire year, and around half the baseball players do, too. Only 4 percent of the football players — playing by far the most dangerous game of the three — have guarantees. Pro football is a risky game, and players deserve compensation for these risks.

Ridiculous as the owners' demands are in some areas, the players would do well to give in on others.

First off, the players should submit to random drug testing as the owners have asked. Players need to realize that they are role models, swallow their pride just a bit, and not cry that their rights have been infringed upon when someone asks them to give a urine sample. It really shouldn't be that big of a deal.

Second, the players should give up their demand that team union representatives get paid for the entire season even if they are cut. You hope it wouldn't happen this way, but a union representative who is a marginal player could conceivably slack off in training camp.

Picket lines forming

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Picket lines began going up around stadiums and training camps today, the first day of the second NFL players' strike in six seasons, but the union remained mum on the identity of the mystery man it says could bring the walkout to a quick end.

The only discord was in New Orleans, where three members of the Saints walked through a line of about 30 players to seek treatment for injuries that had put them on injured reserve. They included center Steve Korte, a five-year veteran, who is out with a separated shoulder; rookie fullback Todd Steele and tackle William Leach, a free agent with one year's experience.

"He's nothing but a scab," cornerback Dave Waymer said of Korte. "He's always talking about team unity. What kind of unity does this show. He's a guy always talking about the playoffs and him going to the Pro Bowl. We'll see what happens after this."

In Pittsburgh, about 25 Steelers walked for about a half-hour in front of Gate A, the players' entrance to Three Rivers Stadium. There, the main sentiment was the futility of the repeat of the 1982 walkout, which lasted 57 days.

"We're not out here picketing. We're just making sure nobody sneaks in," said player representative Tunch Ilkin. "It should never have come to this. I never thought I'd be standing here talking to you guys this morning. Obviously, we're very depressed. We want to play football."

There were no players picketing at the Dolphins' training facility in Miami, but there was a fan protesting the owners' plan to continue the season with free agents and semi-pros.

"Scabs, stay away, let real boys play; a fan."

Hahn spills details of sex encounter with PTL founder

By The Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Jessica Hahn, declaring "I am not a bimbo," says in a Playboy magazine interview that she "hated every second" of her sexual encounter with PTL founder Jim Bakker seven years ago and "it has ruined my life."

A copy of the November issue of the magazine, which includes a 31-page interview and semi-nude photo layout of Hahn, became available Tuesday as she concluded two days of testimony before a federal grand jury looking into hush money paid her after the liaison.

"You know, two men had me in one day," Hahn said in the interview, referring to Bakker and Oklahoma City evangelist John Fletcher, who she said accompanied him to a Florida motel room for the tryst with the young church secretary.

"...I've been treated as less than human, as a thing, as a pawn," she said. "And just because I don't have a Bible or a microphone — just because I don't draw millions of people on TV — doesn't mean I'm not human."

"This has been a game to Jim Bakker and John Fletcher," she said in the interview. "This has been politics to Jerry Falwell (who took over PTL from Bakker)...I hate Jim Bakker for it. I hate John Fletcher for it."

Bakker, who resigned in disgrace from the TV ministry after Hahn's story became public, has acknowledged having sex with her but claims she was the one who seduced him.

Fletcher has acknowledged introducing Bakker to Hahn, but has not commented on her allegations that he also had sex with her.

Calls to the John Wesley Fletcher Evangelistic Association in Oklahoma City on Tuesday were answered by a man who would not give his name and said Fletcher was on his way to the East Coast and he did not know where he could be reached.

Hahn's lawyer, Dominic Barbara, said her two days of testimony before the grand jury focused on possible IRS violation by PTL in connection with the hush money. Hahn is testifying under a limited grant of immunity from prosecution.

Bakker and his top aides are under investigation for possible mail, wire and tax fraud in a federal probe.

Waste

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

should include any credit for states that provide waste-management services for hazardous wastes. Grams said there are no disposal sites in Nebraska for hazardous waste. The other states have some hazardous-waste disposal sites.

However, later in the meeting Nebraska was able to get the other commissioners to go along with some specifics that would limit or define the wastes that would be considered for credit. But Nebraska could not get the commission to accept a proposal to allow each state to count a disposal site that may not be operating for several years, but would be operating by Jan. 1, 1993. If a firm's application is on file by Nov. 1 of this year, though, it could be counted, the commission decided.

The criteria, according to the motion, shall include factors related to groundwater and geologic formations, historic and projected volumes of low-level radioactive waste "which shall include but not be limited to the number and types of reactors and reactor ratings," and transportation factors.

All of the states except Oklahoma have nuclear-powered electric generating plants. Louisiana, Arkansas and Nebraska have two each. Louisiana's are the newest and have the greatest combined generating capacity; Nebraska's are the oldest and have the least combined capacity; Kansas' one — Wolf Creek — has the largest capacity of any in the region.

Nebraska and Louisiana, which are at opposite geographic ends of the compact, argued for the inclusion of transportation factors for selecting a state to receive and dispose of the low-level radioactive wastes from all states in the compact. A Nebraska witness testified during the opening session Tuesday that Arkansas is the geographic center of the compact.

If any state or community has an interest in becoming the disposal site, the commission will assess that matter independently, the Kansas motion said. Some of the commissions said in interviews that there appear to be private groups in Arkansas, Kansas and Nebraska with some interest in possibly handling the disposal of the materials.

Residents of an area in Arkansas that has been identified as a possible disposal site told the commission they would continue their fight against such a decision and announced a petition campaign for

Kedzie 103

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ClassAds

532-6555

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11)

WANTED — 100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

MARY KAY Cosmetics — Skin care — glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. Please call 776-6566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (20-24)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken, 539-9469. (2-27)

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunbath Tours Sixth Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lift/party/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure 1-800-321-5911 today!! (20-24) (Continued on page 13)

TV Listings

By TV Data

WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 23, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTKA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Bugs Bunny Flintstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00	TBA		My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook Surfer Mag.	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00 Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Muscle Mag.	Movie: "The Suspect"
10:00 Jeopardy! Lose or Draw	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Andy Griffith Dick Van Dyke	Body Electric Write Course	Waltons	Truck and Tractor Pull
11:00 Password Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Commun. Focus Society	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00 News Days of Our	Middy Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	OFL Football: Winnipeg at	Movie: "Female on the Beach"
1:00 Lives Another World	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Bewitched	Nova	Major League Baseball: Phil.	British Columbia
2:00 Santa Barbara	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobies Zoo	Tenko	Philadelphia Phillies at Chi.	Water Skiing	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00 Oprah Winfrey	Donahue	ABC After-school Special	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	cago Cubs	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00 Facts of Life	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravest	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	Transformers	Drag Racing: So. Nationals	Munsters Laverne
5:00 3's Company NBC News	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsCenter PGA Tour	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00 News Wheel-Fortune	News Truth/Conseq.	M*A*S*H Newswed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Benson Soap	SportsCenter Sports	Major League
7:00 Highway to Heaven	Oldest Rookie	Perfect Stran-Head of the	Hill Street Blues	Banjo's Australia	Movie: "Hopscotch"	Karate	Baseball: Houston Astros at Atlanta Braves
8:00 Year in the Life	Equalizer	Hooperman Slap Maxwell	Movie: "The Sundowners"	Fundamentalist Baptist	News INN News	AWA Championship Wrestling	Movie: "Skyjacked"
9:00 St. Elsewhere	Dynasty		Church It's Your Turn	News INN News	Tractor Pull SportsCenter
10:00 News Tonight Show	News WKRP	News M*A*S*H	Barney Miller Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	H'mooner Trapper John	SportsCenter	Movie: "The Glass House"
11:00 Ent. Tonight	Diamonds	B. Buddies Nightline	Andy Griffith	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D. Movie: "Cross of Iron"	Speedway
12:00 David Letterman	Till Mother Gets Home	700 Club	Movie: "High Midnight"	Sign-Off	Movie: "Iron"	Bill Dance

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

* Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.

* No abbreviations, please.

* No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.

* Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

* Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

* If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.

* Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.

* The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.20	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____

6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____

11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____

16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____

21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____

26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Daily 9-9 Sunday 11-6

3007 Anderson Ave.

ALCO

DISCOUNT STORE

VALUABLE COUPON

Sept. 23-27, 1987

99¢ REG. 1.47

PRINGLES

Your Choice - 7 1/2 oz. can Limit 3 w/coupon

ALCO

VALUABLE COUPON

Sept. 23-27, 1987

99¢

DUNCAN HINES

Cookies - 3 varieties
Limit 3 w/coupon

ALCO

VALUABLE COUPON

Sept. 23-27, 1987

1.99 REG. 2.57

NESTEA

Instant Tea.

6 qts. free
Limit 2 w/coupon

ALCO

VALUABLE COUPON

Sept. 23-27, 1987

1.27 REG. 1.67

HERSHEY SYRUP

24 oz. Squeezable bottle
Limit 2 w/coupon

ALCO

VALUABLE COUPON

Sept. 23-27, 1987

77¢ REG. 1.18

2 LITER POP

7-up, Dt. 7-up, RC,
Dt. Rite, Cherry RC.

Limit 3

ALCO

VALUABLE COUPON

Sept. 23-27, 1987

99¢

VISTA COOKIES

Asst. sandwich cremes Limit 3
w/coupon

ALCO

VALUABLE COUPON

Sept. 23-27, 1987

4 FOR 1.00

NEW "BARNONE"

Hershey's Candy Bar

Limit 12 w/coupon

ALCO

VALUABLE COUPON

Sept. 23-27, 1987

88¢ REG. 1.09

WESSON OIL

Light & Natural Oil

Limit 2 w/coupon

ALCO

ATTENTION!

Due to a production error, a few of the '87-'88 Programmers have the pages 65-80 missing. Please check your Programmer. If yours is not complete, please bring it to the Activities Center, K-State Union 3rd floor, Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. It will be fixed and returned to you the following day (Monday if turned in Friday). Corrections will be made through September 30. Thank you for your support and we regret any inconvenience this has caused.

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (71)

TWO-BEDROOM furnished apartment across street from Ahearn. Available October 1st. Phone 776-7559. (20-24)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21)

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211)

PRIVATE, ONE-bedroom, no pets, $210. Call 776-0181. (221)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1981 CHEVETTE. New brakes, air. FM/cassette, 59,000 miles. Priced to sell. Call Jarrett: 539-2301. (18-25)

1977 TOYOTA Celica GT, excellent condition, new paint, no rust, sunroof, excellent stereo system. 537-9021. (18-22)

1978 FIAT station wagon, excellent condition, $1,300. Phone 537-4626. (20-24)

1969 MUSTANG, very good condition. Call 776-3758 after 5:30 p.m. (20-24)

MOVING SALE, 1976 Plymouth (Valiant), automatic. In very good condition except rust in some unimportant areas, 86,000 miles. Only $300. 539-6705. (22-24)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

WORK STUDY student to work 10-20 hours a week with university outreach/conference coordinator. Attention to detail, and written and oral communication skills are necessary. Typing and/or word processing experience is required. Position offers good background experience for students in areas of management, marketing, business, education, and conference planning. For more information, call 532-5575 (ask for Deb) or stop by the Warehouse Building, 1623 Anderson Ave. Application deadline is Sept. 25. (17-24)

MAKE $4,600 monthly stuffing envelopes. For details, send self-addressed stamped envelope to Adele, P.O. Box 2142, Stillwater, OK 74076. (18-27)

WANTED: BRIGHT, energetic individuals to work at women's retail clothing store. Must be neat, in tune with current fashion, and have sales experience. Looking for part-time and full-time. Apply in person at Scott's LTD or Carousal (Aggieville) soon to be in Manhattan Town Center. (18-22)

WORK STUDY student to work 10 to 20 hours a week at Speech and Hearing Center. Oral and written communication skills are necessary. Experience in answering phones, typing and some word processing is required. Need reliable person who works well with public. For interviews call 532-6879 or come to Leisure 107. (20-24)

DEPARTMENT OF Agricultural Engineering is looking for student with good grammar and communication skills to work with recruiting program. Work study preferred; not required. Call Stanley Clark at 532-5580. (20-22)

Retail

Where Waldenbooks Opens Opportunity Opens For: Booksellers Temporary Stocking Crew

America's fastest growing booksellers with over 1000 stores nationwide, and a bestselling product line, will give you miles of opportunity for growth.

If you have a commitment to full service, find out more about our exciting Full, Part Time and Temporary openings and our competitive benefits.

Apply in person at: Manhattan Job Service 621 Humboldt Manhattan, KS

Waldenbooks
An equal opportunity employer

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12
MULTI-BEDROOM HOUSE, stove, refrigerator, central air, fireplace, laundry hookups, garage. Call 537-8389. (11)

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13
8' x 25' IN Green Valley Trailer Court. $1,000. 539-4205. Keep trying. (19-23)

NICE, CLEAN, 12 x 65, two-bedroom mobile home, air conditioner and furniture if desired, on large shaded lot. 539-5778. (21-24)

MOBILE HOME 12 x 60. $4,500. Northview. Call after 6 p.m., 539-3862. (22-23)

LOST AND FOUND 14
FOUND FINANCIAL Management in Agriculture textbook. Call 532-6397. (20-22)

FOUND, ONE kitten about four to six months old, black with white markings on paws. With white flea collar. Write Collegian, Box 11. (21-23)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15
GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

JS-234 NINE-band car stereo equalizer. Front 25W/ch. Rear 50W/ch. $125, negotiable. 539-4803, Marsha. (21-22)

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

Pyramid Pizza
All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 " — Stop"
4 " — Na Na"
7 It's some-times read
8 Jazz dance
10 Food from heaven
11 Thick soups
13 He wrote "The Gold Bug"
16 Ninny
17 Decorates
18 Malay gibbon
19 Inclination
20 — all (panacea)
21 Partici-pate
23 Injures
25 Unskilled laborer
26 Depend
27 Sky god
28 Trivial

DOWN
2 Skeletal bone
3 More in-telligent
4 Mine passage
5 Israeli dances
6 The last word?
7 Places to crash?
8 Bowling disaster
9 Waist flounce
10 "Do — favor"
Solution time: 22 mins.

Yesterday's answer 9-23

TROPICAL TAN

WOLF SYSTEM
FirstBank Center
Second Level
Denison & Claflin
537-0744
HOURS:
MON.-THURS. 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.
FRI., SAT. 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.
SUN. 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

PARTY PIC REORDER DAYS

It's your final chance to order party pics from previous events!

SEPTEMBER 23, 24 & 25
11-4:30 p.m.

- no minimum purchase
- no reorder fee

UNIVERSITY PHOTOGRAPHY

711 N. 12th in Aggieville
537-8041

ARE YOU CREATIVE

Decisive, Confident, Know your related occupation field. Find out for sure by Handwriting Analysis. Write Mr. Long, 333 N. Valley, KCK 66102

TANS TO GO

$2 Sessions
1214-C Moro-Aggieville
776-7874
(must be used by 10-31-87)

Bridal Gown Sale
CHRISTINE'S
THE WEDDING COMPANY
11th & Moro
776-7387

SUN CONNECTION
NOW SELLING
$2 SESSIONS
1126 Laramie 776-2426

3 Days a Week to Reach Your Peak
NAUTILUS has the specialized equipment to help you reach your fitness goals.

Act Now & Save
29% off our Annual Single & Family Memberships
776-1654

Nautilus
1100 Moro Manhattan

Hair Shack

415 N. 3rd
776-7421
Affordable Prices!
Sebastian and Redken products used.

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1981 KAWASAKI KZ650CSR. Must sell! In excellent condition. For more information, call 539-7561 and ask for Clay. (18-22)

1976 YAMAHA 175 Enduro. Low miles, excellent condition, great transportation, $400 or best offer. 537-9433. (19-23)

RALEIGH RACER USA, competition 14-speed geometry, 61.5 cm frame, yellow on white colors. $300 or best offer. 537-0182. (20-24)

1984 SHADOW 500. In prime condition. Must sell soon. $1,300 negotiable. Call Ron after 7 p.m. at 532-5277. (21-25)

MUST SELL! 1982 Kawasaki LTD 560. 3,000 miles, garaged, in excellent condition. Vetter helmets. Interested? Call 776-5926. (22-26)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

Ovation Acoustic guitar with case and pickup. 539-6796. (18-22)

FOR SALE—Hohner acoustical guitar with case. Excellent condition. Call 539-8656. (19-22)

ROCK BAND seeking lead singer. Zeppelin, Stones, Aerosmith, etc. Experience, time, energy required. Call 776-7319. (21-24)

DRUM EQUIPMENT for sale: Ludwig 14" and Ultra-sound 14" snares. Heavy 50W bass amplifier. All excellent shape. 539-1697 or 539-2328. (22-24)

ALTO SAXOPHONE. Conn student model, good condition. Assessed at $425, will sell for $350. 532-3508. (22-26)

'Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

PERSONALS 18

CHI-O J.B. I love my roomie! (22)

ADPI—MELANIE: Happy 19th birthday. Love, Mik. (22)

GREEK PLAYBOYS—We're looking forward to seeing you at dinner tonight. The women of Alpha Chi Omega. (22)

MCC COOK—See you soon, but not soon enough. Love, X MCC waitress. (22)

WANTED HUSBAND: Desirable characteristics: hair, a complexion, "higher primate look," i.e. disproportionate to shoe size (i.e., above double digit), liberal thoughts major, understanding of sexual condescension, musical tastes, Lone Justice, Aretha Franklin, R.E.M., U2. No rearenders/hugs named Russ. Apply Boyd, Ellen. (22)

SPIDERMAN, WHAT tangled webbs you weave, we promised not to tell, at the fair you did leave, we sincerely wish you well. The Hartford Insurance Company. (22)

THETA XI—POA Dub, B and A looks great. Can't wait 'til late. We'll find our own place. No drinks in your face. No popcorn there too. Just fun for me and you. Can't wait. (22)

PHI TAU's Dustin and Greg Le.—Two clues you've found, I know 'tis true. This next little statement is your second clue: Blondes really do have more fun. Love—Mom. (22)

MR. T, Please collect $120. Owed by reluctant money mooch to Z.O. 82 concerned friends. (22)

SHEEP LOVER of Ford terrace—Chicago was awesome! What's next? Maybe the pizza, Land of Oz? Host of Sunday breakfast party. (22)

PETS AND PET SUPPLIES 19

READY NOW. For sale AKC Cocker Spaniel puppies. Very cute. Call evenings and weekends. 776-7262. (22-24)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11)

RENTALS 21

SUPPLIES: PRINTER/typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville. 539-7931. (11)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

EXPERIENCED TYPIST will do any size typing jobs. Call Mary after 5 p.m. at 537-0456. (20-24)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needed. 1211 Moro. 537-7294. (22-24)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

ONE OR two non-smoking female to share farm-house. Prefer vet or animal science majors. Free stall and pasture for horse, cow, dog, Beef, eggs, firewood furnished, own bedroom. 776-1205. 8-10 p.m. only. (18-27)

ROOMMATES NEEDED, individual rooms, all benefits of a house. $135/month. 776-7905. (20-24)

QUIET, NON-SMOKING female to share luxury home on west side. $250 includes utilities. 537-0550, ask for Diane. 776-5602 after 5 p.m. (20-22)

FEMALE NON-SMOKING, studious, yet fun roommate to share two-bedroom furnished apartment. $150/month, one block east of campus. Nice land-ings, call 537-8552 after 5 p.m. (21-24)

TWO ROOMMATES needed. Three-bedroom house. $150/month. 539-7002. (22-24)

CRYPTOQUIP

9-23
B W J T D Y W A , Y D W A R O -
H J O T W V : " G R ' Q R P W J Q C V
P C Y Y T R T G J H A O W C C B . "
Yesterday's Cryptquip: DOWN AT THE BEACH. A FEW SICK SEA BIRDS TOOK A TERN FOR THE WORSE.

Today's Cryptquip clue: P equals F

K-STATE STUDENTS & FACULTY Welcome To Manhattan

AND TO

Prices Effective
Thru
Sept. 29, 1987.

Dillon Potato Chips & Snacks

8 oz. Plain, Rippled, BAR-B-Q, Sour Cream, No Salt, 7.5 oz. Thick Cut, 8 oz. Baked Cheese Puffs, Fried Cheese Krisps, Nacho Flavored Tortilla Chips or 10 oz. Corn Chips

FREE!

With
Coupon

Rocky Top Pop

Asst.
Flavors
2 Liters

39¢

With
Coupon

12 Pack Coors, Coors Light, Coors Extra Gold, Budweiser, Bud Light, Miller High Lite, Miller Lite, Miller Genuine Draft, 15 Pack Stroh or Stroh Light

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

Any 12" Deli Pizza

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

One Whole 8 Piece Golden Fried Chicken or One Whole WonderRoast Chicken

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

Del Monte Golden Ripe Bananas

19¢

Lb.

With
Coupon

Any 6" Blooming or Foliage Plant or 8" Hanging Basket

$1.00

OFF With
Coupon

Rent One Video Tape
Get One

FREE!

WITH COUPON
BELOW!

—Dillon Coupon—

WRITE AMOUNT HERE

Limit 1 Tape With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

Rent One Tape Get One

FREE!

WITH THIS
COUPON

—Dillon Coupon—

Dillon Potato Chips & Snacks

8 oz. Plain, Rippled, Bar-B-Q, Sour Cream, No Salt, 7.5 oz. Thick Cut, 8 oz. Baked Cheese Puffs, Fried Cheese Krisps, 8 oz. Nacho Flavored Tortilla Chips or 10 oz. Corn Chips

FREE!

With
This
Coupon

—Dillon Coupon—

Rocky Top Pop

Assorted Flavors, 2 Liter

39¢

With
This
Coupon

—Dillon Coupon—

12 Pack Coors, Coors Light, Coors Extra Gold, Budweiser, Bud Light, Miller High Lite, Miller Lite, Miller Genuine Draft, 15 Pack Stroh or Stroh Light

$1.00

With
This
Coupon

—Dillon Coupon—

12" Deli Pizza

$1.00

With
This
Coupon

—Dillon Coupon—

One Whole 8 Piece Golden Fried Chicken or One Whole WonderRoast Chicken

$1.00

With
This
Coupon

Dillon Coupon—

Golden Ripe Bananas

Del Monte

19¢

With
This
Lb. Coupon

Limit 1 Lb. With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

With This Coupon

—Dillon Coupon—

Any 6" Blooming or Foliage Plant or 8" Hanging Basket

$1.00

With
This
Coupon

Limit 1 Plant With This Coupon.
Limit One Coupon Per Customer.
Coupon Good Thru Sept. 29, 1987.
Coupon Not Included In Double
Coupon Program.

Senate Decision

After five years, the future of the Holton Hall renovation project could be determined by Student Senate tonight. See Page 7.

Weather

Mostly sunny today, high in low to mid-80s. Mostly clear tonight, low around 50. Mostly sunny Friday, high mid- to upper 70s.

Making the Most

...was never an All-
Kansas State Historical Soc
Ath: Newspaper Section
122 West 18th
Topeka, KS
66612

Thursday

September 24, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 23

Kansas State Collegian

Biden withdraws from '88 campaign, says he'll run again

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sen. Joseph Biden ended his quest for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination "with incredible reluctance" on Wednesday, saying the "exaggerated shadow" of mistakes made it impossible to continue his candidacy.

Biden withdrew from the campaign after a week in which his campaign was rocked by admissions of plagiarism and false claims about his academic record.

The Delaware Democrat is the second candidate to be forced from the race by questions of character and integrity.

"I made some mistakes," Biden, his wife at his side, told a room crowded with reporters. "Now the exaggerated shadow of those mistakes has begun to obscure the essence of my candidacy and the essence of Joe Biden."

Biden said he had to choose between continuing his presidential campaign and chairing the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on the Supreme Court nomination of Robert H. Bork.

"And although it's awfully clear to me what choice I have to make, I have to tell you honestly I do it with incredible reluctance and it makes me angry. I'm angry with myself for having been put in the position — put myself in the position — of having to make this choice," he said.

"And I am no less frustrated at the environment of presidential politics that makes it so difficult to let the American people measure the whole Joe Biden and not just misstatements that I have made."

Biden refused to take reporters' questions and returned to the Judiciary hearings, where he was lauded by his fellow senators.

"I would like to say the Democrats have now lost their most articulate spokesman," said Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the ranking Republican on the committee.

Biden's rivals for the Democratic nomination were quick to react to his withdrawal.

"I'm very saddened by it," Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis said in Iowa. "It takes a lot of courage to do what he has done — to put the Judiciary Committee's responsibilities ahead of his future."

"It's one more down note," Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo. "And I think we all get tarnished by that type of news."

Biden's staff said the former candidate would travel to Iowa and New Hampshire on Thursday to thank his supporters.

Reading from his statement, Biden said, "You know this is presidential politics where you press folks ask me, 'Biden, what's going to happen when the white-hot heat turns on?' 'You warned me what it was going to be like. I thought I knew.'"

Former chief justice supports nomination

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Retired Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, stirred by what he called unprecedented disinformation, declared on Wednesday that Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork is not "an extremist any more than I'm an extremist" and deserves confirmation.

Burger, in an extraordinary appearance for a sitting or former member of the high court, told the Senate Judiciary Committee, "If Judge Bork is not in the mainstream then neither am I. It would astonish me to think he's an extremist any more than I'm an extremist."

In particular, he criticized paid newspaper advertisements that have suggested dire consequences for the nation if Bork's nomination is confirmed.

The hearings, despite Burger's appearance and a heated exchange later between committee chairman

Joseph Biden, D-Del., and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, were overshadowed to some extent by Biden's midday announcement that he was withdrawing from the presidential race.

Biden took time out from presiding over the hearings to tell a news conference he was quitting the campaign in the wake of damaging disclosures that he committed plagiarism and exaggerated his academic accomplishments.

He said he couldn't expend the effort to get his candidacy back on track and still be closely involved in the hearings on Bork, whose appointment he said would "profoundly affect our future."

Biden, who opposes the nomination, said of the fight over Bork, "I intend to be deeply involved in that battle. I intend to attempt to bring it to victory."

At the hearings, Burger reiterated his previous endorsement of Bork.

State receives high marks

Jean Krahn Nickel of Kansas Advocacy and Protective Services in Manhattan believes that limited guardianship, in which wards retain certain rights that might normally be taken away, is not utilized as much as it could be.

Staff/Andy Nelson

Officials: Guardianship laws good

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Ellene Davis, executive director of the Northwest Kansas Area Agency on Aging, was concerned after attending an out-of-state conference a year or so ago.

"The main thrust of two or three workshops," she said, "was that as people who work in the field of aging, we must do whatever we could to protect older people from the guardianship laws."

But after she got back home to Hays, some of her concerns were allayed.

"I talked to our legal service people and they said we could feel really good that we had changed our laws — done what other people are going to have to do — to protect our elderly," Davis said.

Others echo the view that Kansas moved in the right direction in revising the guardianship-conservatorship provisions of the state Probate Code in 1983.

The changes included a more functionally based definition of who should be subject to the law, some restrictions on the powers of guardians — they can't, for example, prevent a ward from marrying — and a requirement that wards be placed in the least-restrictive setting reasonably available.

There is also a provision for limited guardianship, in which wards retain certain rights that might normally be taken away — something still not used as much as some advocates would like to see.

"There is much more room for that than is being provided," said Jean Krahn Nickel of Kansas Advocacy and Protective Services' guardianship program. "Still, every once in a while it's a pleasant surprise to hear of a judge who suggests to an attorney, 'Maybe this would be a place where a limited might be appropriate.'"

The law also requires periodic review, possibly with a full hearing, to determine if a guardianship-conservatorship should continue, change or terminate.

"I think we've probably got one of the better guardian-conservator codes of any state right now," said Bourbon County District Magistrate Judge Sam Mason of Fort Scott, a member of the Judicial Council panel that studied the old law in 1982.

Doris Stout finds a lot of guardianship-related problems in her job as long-term care ombudsman with the Kansas Department of Aging.

"I just didn't understand people could be so greedy or so uncaring about a human being until I got into this profession," she said. "I used to take complaints in a corrections facility but I have never run across people who are quite like this. 'Respectable' people who do terrible things."

Still, Stout feels Kansas rates highly in the basic structure of its guardianship-conservatorship law, if not always the application.

Adds Martha Hodgesmith, an attorney with Kansas Legal Services in Topeka: "We have a system that represents a major step, forwarding not only our national legal heritage but a concept I think Kansans are particularly proud of. That is that we take care of our own and if you allow people the right opportunity they will live their lives in a happy and productive way."

Shawnee County Associate District Judge Mary Schowengerdt of Topeka said the Kansas law protects due process rights.

"But you always have to recognize that having the law and implementing it are two different things," she said. "I'm very aware that no matter what kind of system you have on the legal side, if you don't have the facilities — good care homes and hospitals — it's just a little bit futile."

"I think we took care of the most flagrant abuse problems we were aware of and it looks like we addressed a number of due process and protective services issues," said Mildred Schroeder of Flint Hills Legal Services in Manhattan.

However, she said, "We're still ■ See ELDERLY, Page 10

Committee seeks new associate dean

Present officeholder planning to retire

By Brenda Badostain
Collegian Reporter

A search committee has been formed to look for a new associate dean of the graduate school, said Robert Reeves, professor of foods and nutrition and chairman of the search committee.

Reeves said a replacement is being sought for Associate Dean John Noonan, who is retiring.

The graduate school is structured so the dean of the graduate school

"oversees the whole operation of the graduate school — the graduate faculty," Reeves said.

Two associate deans work with the dean, he said.

"Dr. John Noonan is the associate dean of the academic programs," Reeves said. "Basically, (the job entails) supervising the academic programs — looking at the courses that are offered for graduate credit and making sure that they comply with what has been established by the graduate council."

Associate Dean Robert Lowman works with grants and research programs, Reeves said.

Reeves said the committee is using various methods to advertise the position, and a great deal of effort has been made to ensure the committee advertises in areas where minorities will have an opportunity to see the announcement.

He said position announcements would go to "black universities such as Howard University in Washington D.C. It's a very strong school — it has a very strong graduate program."

The position will also be published in "Black Issues in Higher Education," a newsletter going to black institutions, he said.

Reeves said the committee is also making an effort to contact women "so that women will have an equal opportunity."

Reeves said the position announcement has also been mailed to all graduate programs in the United States and will be advertised in "The Chronicle of Higher Education."

This is a newspaper "that deals with issues in higher education," Reeves said. "Often they do have position announcements in them. That's a very common place to advertise for this type of position that's not focused in a particular discipline."

Reeves said the committee will be looking for "someone who has a very strong academic record which would warrant that person being at the full professor level."

"We're also looking for someone who's had experience in graduate education — some idea of graduate policy, graduate administration," Reeves said.

The candidates should also be familiar "with students coming from diverse backgrounds," he said. "In graduate school, you have students coming from all cultural backgrounds. A lot of foreign students come to our graduate school."

Oct. 30 is the deadline for applications, Reeves said. The committee will then review the applications and identify the candidates who will be invited to K-State for interviews.

"I think the committee tentatively would like to see that the process be completed by the end of this (fall) semester," Reeves said.

He said the search committee would not make the final decision on the candidates.

"I don't know for sure who's going to make the final decision," Reeves said. "Usually the search committee's responsibility is to identify a list of the top three candidates. I suspect the provost, in conjunction with the Dean of the Graduate School, will make the final selection."

Reeves said the search committee was appointed by Robert Kruh, dean of the graduate school. The committee consists of faculty from graduate programs in the University.

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Goetz: No sentence suggested

NEW YORK — The city Probation Department has recommended that subway gunman Bernhard Goetz be spared a prison sentence after being convicted on a weapons charge but acquitted of attempted murder, a defense lawyer said Wednesday.

Goetz, a 39-year-old electronics specialist, was convicted June 16 of third-degree possession of a weapon in connection with the shooting of four youths on a Manhattan subway train Dec. 22, 1984.

The jury acquitted him on more serious charges, including attempted murder and assault.

Goetz is scheduled to be sentenced Oct. 7, and faces up to seven years in prison.

Mark Baker, one of Goetz's lawyer, confirmed the sentencing recommendation but refused to elaborate, saying it would be "inappropriate."

Probation Department spokesman Gerald Migliore refused to comment. It could not be immediately determined whether any other type of sentence was recommended.

Four sets of doubles enroll

CRESO, Pa. — They're seeing double at Monsignor McHugh Elementary School. And double and double and double.

Four sets of 5-year-old twins are enrolled in the 58-pupil kindergarten class.

A Maine elementary school reported earlier this month having five sets of twins among 160 kindergarteners. School officials and parents here, however, claim the unofficial twins-per-capita record.

Alan M. Argondizza, principal of the Longfellow Elementary School in Maine, conceded the record.

"We were just overwhelmed with the prospect of having five sets of twins," he said Tuesday. "But four sets out of 58 ..."

No progress in NBC strike

WASHINGTON — The union representing 2,000 striking producers, writers and technicians said Wednesday it will fight NBC attempts "to bust this union" and will continue the walk-out as long as the network stands by its final offer.

"This strike is going to be a lot more bitter," John Krieger, a spokesman for the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians, said the day after government-mediated talks to resolve the strike broke off.

"It is very clear and obvious to the membership that this dispute is a concentrated effort on the part of the General Electric Co., the parent of NBC, to bust this union and we will not permit it. We're not coming back to work under the terms that are on the table," he said.

Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service mediators met with representatives of the two sides for about six hours into the evening Tuesday but made no progress, Gayle Winewriter, special assistant to the director of the agency said in a statement after the talks ended.

"Both sides are extremely firm in their respective positions and the meetings were recessed subject to call," he said.

NBC spokeswoman McClain Ramsey said the union focused the session on a Sept. 10 letter from NBC President Robert C. Wright to employees on the status of the negotiations.

Fergie and Andy want house

LONDON — The Duke and Duchess of York have asked for permission to build a two-story house near Windsor Castle on the site where Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip were to have made their first home.

Prince Andrew and the former Sarah Ferguson want to build a gabled house in the walled garden of Sunninghill Park adjoining Windsor Great Park, 22 miles west of London, Buckingham Palace announced Wednesday.

The garden originally surrounded a house built in 1770 which was to have been the first home of then Princess Elizabeth and her new husband, but it burned down in August 1947, three months before their wedding.

The queen will pay for the house for her second eldest son and daughter-in-law, but Buckingham Palace said it wasn't able to disclose the price. The London Evening Standard said it could cost $825,000.

The duke and duchess now live in Andrew's former quarters in Buckingham Palace in London and in a rented 19th-century home, near the Royal Navy base where he is a helicopter warfare instructor.

Loretta Lynn hospitalized

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Country music star Loretta Lynn has been hospitalized with bleeding ulcers and has been forced to cancel four concerts, a spokeswoman said Wednesday.

"She was hospitalized last night with two bleeding ulcers," Lorene Allen said in an interview from Lynn's hospital room at HCA-Park View Medical Center. "She's done very well, but the doctors were concerned about the degree to which the ulcer's had progressed."

Lynn, 52, canceled concerts this week in Augusta, Maine; Fredrick, Md.; Binghamton, N.Y., and Worcester, Mass.

She has been hospitalized with bleeding ulcers at least once.

"The doctor thinks that if she stays quiet and takes her medication he can get it turned around," Allen said, adding that surgery is not anticipated.

Earlier this year, Lynn announced that she would cut back on performing to spend more time with her husband, Mooney Lynn, and other members of her family.

Humorist writes travel book

MINNEAPOLIS — Humorist Garrison Keillor says he hopes to write stories that will enable Midwesterners from small towns to go to foreign places, just as he has done.

"I hope to be able to tell stories on their behalf. I would like them to be brave, courageous," Keillor said Tuesday.

Keillor, who now lives in New York and Copenhagen, returned to Minnesota to autograph his new book, "Leaving Home." It was one of his first public appearances in the Twin Cities since June 13 when he ended his public radio program "A Prairie Home Companion" and moved to Denmark.

Horowitz and music honored

NEW YORK — Vladimir Horowitz and classical music got their due at Carnegie Hall.

The pianist was named "artist of the year" and his "Horowitz in Moscow" won record of the year in what organizers say was the first award show devoted to classical music.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

STUDENTS INTERESTED IN ATTENDING LAW SCHOOL in the fall of 1988: The late deadline for registering for the next LSAT test is today. See the pre-law adviser in Eisenhower Dean's office for registration information.

APPLICATIONS FOR STUDENT LECTURERS are available in Anderson 112, New Student Programs. Deadline for submitting the applications has been extended to Sept. 30.

ARTS AND SCIENCES COUNCIL applications are available in Eisenhower Dean's office. They are due Sept. 28.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "On The Verge" by Eric Overmyer at 8 p.m., Sept. 24-26, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1-3 at Nichols Theatre.

STUDENT TEACHERS FOR SPRING 1988 should pick up and return student teaching assignment request forms to Blumont 13 before Sept. 25.

TODAY

ALPHA EPSILON DELTA meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 206. There will be a general meeting and a speaker will present interviewing tips.

ICHTHUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 8 p.m. in Union 212.

SAILING CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 208.

ENGINEERING AMBASSADOR EXECUTIVES meet at 6:15 p.m. in Durland 163.

AG AMBASSADORS meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137.

GAY AND LESBIAN RESOURCE CENTER meets at 7:30 p.m. at St. Francis Campus Ministries, 1402 LeGore Lane, for elections and welcome back party.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF BLACK ENGINEERS meets at 6:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for Royal Purple picture.

COLLEGIATE 4-H meets at 8 p.m. at Putt Golf Course.

WOMEN'S SOCCER CLUB meets at 5 p.m. at Memorial Stadium for practice.

PARACHUTE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 207.

PUERTO RICAN STUDENT ORGANIZATION meets at 8:30 p.m. in Union Little Theatre.

PI SIGMA EPSILON PLEDGE MEETING at 6 p.m. in Union 205.

EATING DISORDER SUPPORT GROUP meets at 7 p.m. in Union 204.

STUDENT CHAPTER OF ASSOCIATED GENERAL CONTRACTORS OF AMERICA meets at 4:30 p.m. in Union Forum Hall.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

ORDER OF OMEGA meets at 4:30 p.m. at Kite's.

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS OF KANSAS DELEGATES meet at 6 p.m. in Union Student Governing Office.

Collegian Classifieds
Cheap, but Effective

THE ICECREAM SOCIAL
Ice cream cakes & pies
Freshly baked cookies
Popcorn gift canisters
Open 7 days a week
1439 Anderson 537-7079
South of McCain Auditorium

The Ladies Club
For Women Only!
Check It Out!
1104 Waters 776-6469
Manhattan

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Slices
OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers—Aggieville

THURSDAY
BREW
and BBAMB

1.50 MIXED
DRINKS
(ANY BRAND)

$1.25 BBAMB
BURGERS, BURGERS
AND MORE BURGERS,
$1.25 BURGERS, 5-11

619 N. 12th, Aggieville
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

The Fishbowl is Back!

GRAND OPENING
Sat., Sept. 26, open 10 a.m.

•Prizes•Drink

& Fishbowl Specials

•Giveaways•Lots of Fun

105 N. 3rd•Downtown•539-9904

THURSDAY

is
IMELDA MARCOS NIGHT
at

Win one pair of shoes every month for three months. Register every Thursday.

Candlewood Shopping Center

Shoes compliment of Brown's Shoe Fit

539-1571

1987

Attention

Flag Football Teams

Enter the

6th Annual "Score For Charity" Football Tournament

When: Oct. 2, 3 & 4

Where: KSU Old Stadium

How: Send Team Roster

& $60 Entry Fee to

Phi Delta Theta Fraternity

508 Sunset, Manhattan, KS.

This is a double elimination tournament with trophies going to the top three places. All-Star shirts awarded to outstanding players. Tournament party Friday night at the Phi Delta house featuring the band, The Catch.

Last year's champs: Men—Tau Kappa Epsilon
Women—Alpha Zeta

Top Fundraising Group—Pi Phi

All proceeds go to the National ALS Foundation
(Lou Gehrig's disease)

Entry Deadline is Sept. 24 at 5 p.m.

EMR — What is it?

A revolutionary skin care system developed in Europe to help minimize: stretch marks, small scars, fine red lines, age lines, wrinkles & other minor skin faults. Also, programs for reduction of skin reddening & minimization of cellulite.

Call Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
Ask for the Skin Care Dept.

Crum's beauty college
512 poyntz avenue manhattan, kansas

776-4794

Voting in the Union
September 28, 29, 30

Vote for your favorite candidate!

Proceeds to benefit cystic fibrosis

Director of budget to be named soon

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

Four finalists for K-State's director of budget have been chosen. Interviews with the finalists during open meetings will be held throughout the next week.

"I'm looking for a person who will be creative and innovative," said Thomas Schellhardt, assistant vice president for administration and finance. "They need to understand the role of a land grant university and be service-oriented."

He said the person should also relate with and find out what the departments and deans are needing, rather than "sitting behind the desk."

Schellhardt formerly held the director of budget position from April 1986 to June 1987. When he moved to his new position of assistant vice president for administration and finance, Douglas Elcock, assistant budget director, was appointed acting budget director.

The director of budget participates in the University planning process and prepares an operation budget request which is forwarded to the Board of Regents for approval. Schellhardt said. From the Board of Regents it goes to the legislature and then the governor for approval.

He said the director of budget follows this legislative process for funding until the budget is approved. After receiving funds, the director of budget coordinates the University's annual budget.

The director of budget must "interface with the Board of Regents, the budget analysis and legislature research staffs in Topeka," Schellhardt said. "He answers questions during the process of the budget request."

Sixty applicants have been screened for the position since July 15, Schellhardt said. Criteria for selection include experience as it relates to the position regarding state government experience with the Regents, higher education or legislature; work experience with computer systems; understanding financial or budgeting systems.

The four finalists for the position and their interview dates are: Kenneth Stafford, fiscal officer in the college of agriculture, University of Idaho, 2:15 p.m., today, Union 208; William Marshall, director of financial affairs, South Dakota Board of Regents, 2:15 p.m., Friday, Union 208; Douglas Elcock, assistant budget director, K-State, 2:15 p.m., Monday, Union 206; and John Struve, vice president for finance, Wayne State College, 2:30 p.m., Thursday, Blumont 111.

Funding forces cancellation of upper-level signing class

By Chuck Homer
Collegian Reporter

Lack of funding forced the cancellation of one section of the fall semester Manual Communication class, said Harold Nichols, head of the Department of Speech.

Approximately 20 students enrolled in the 7-9:30 p.m. section of the 400-level speech pathology class discovered it had been canceled when they arrived for the first class meeting, said Kate Bromley, manual communication instructor. Because the other section was already full, there was little or no possibility for the students to transfer to the other section, she said.

The class provides instruction in the American Manual Alphabet and vocabulary for about 700 signs, and students learn background information in the use of sign language, Bromley said.

Students who had enrolled in the class during preregistration in May received enrollment confirmation during registration in August — leading them to believe that the class would be conducted as scheduled, Bromley said.

Two class sections were initially included in the line schedule due to the degree of interest generated by this class during previous semesters, Nichols said.

There was hope that adequate funding would be available to support both sections, he said.

As early as June there was some indication one of the sections would have to be canceled. However, cancellation was postponed because it was hoped that funds would still become available, Nichols said.

The class is taught by a temporary instructor, and the funding for the instructor is not in the budget, he said.

The class section was canceled only at the last minute and only after consultation with William Carpenter, then acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, Nichols said.

"No one wanted to cancel the class section, but the funds were just not available," he said.

There is an effort to get funding for this class in the budget cycle, Nichols said.

The maximum class size for a section is 23 students, Bromley said. The number of students is limited because of the amount of student-instructor visual interaction in the class.

Class sections that have been conducted during previous semesters have normally been filled to capacity, Bromley said.

Bromley said there has been and continues to be an intense interest in the class by students from many of the colleges.

"I hope in the future it will be possible to meet the needs of all interested students," she said.

Downtown mall jobs available

By The Collegian Staff

The Manhattan Job Service Center, 621 Humboldt St., is taking applications and conducting interviews for positions available in the Manhattan Town Center.

Karolyn Kitchener, human resource specialist at the agency, is the direct contact for the mall stores. She and other specialists will keep the applications and conduct the interviews.

The mall stores will contact the agency, and Kitchener will recommend applicants for the positions.

The Job Service is open 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Applications are taken all day except from noon to 1 p.m. There is no charge for the service.

Mickey Thompson, advertising and marketing director for the mall, advises students to watch the classified advertisements for interview times and dates when shops will have representatives in town.

One of the mall's biggest retailers, J.C. Penney Co. Inc., still has a few part-time jobs available, said Sherri Sylvia, personnel specialist for Penney's. Sylvia said applications for Penney's are being taken in the store's personnel office, located at 4th and Houston streets.

Sylvia will direct the applications to the store's merchandiser, who will conduct interviews and do the hiring.

Starting pay for sales positions ranges from $3.50 to $3.70 per hour.

The mall's grand opening is set for Oct. 26. Penney's plans to remain at its present location until the mall is ready to open.

"The store has condensed (its stock) down and looks really empty," Sylvia said.

Bus merger supported

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Kansas Corporation Commission has given its support to a proposed merger of the nation's two largest bus companies, Greyhound and Trailways, saying the state would benefit if federal regulators allowed the merger.

In testimony filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission this week, the KCC said the federal agency should approve the merger because Greyhound is financially stronger than troubled Trailways. Greyhound announced in June it wants to buy Trailways for $80 million and operate the line.

In July, the federal agency approved the joint operation on a temporary basis, until it makes a final decision.

"A denial of application will certainly result in Trailways continually seeking to abandon its less profitable rural routes," the KCC said in its testimony.

In Kansas, Trailways is the largest intercity passenger bus system. However, last year it asked both the KCC and the federal agency for permission to abandon its Kansas routes.

The KCC rejected the request, and the ICC allowed the company to drop only one of five routes it wanted to abandon.

In its testimony the KCC said the merger would allow the towns Trailways serves to keep bus service.

Collegiate International Trade Association

4:30 Friday
September 25th
Union Room 207

Darrel Hosler
Internation Division
Burns & McDonnell

Will speak on technical services in international trade and compare between doing work in Taiwan and China with a slide show

619 N. Manhattan
Come Party at Aggieville's
Largest Beer
Garden
THURSDAY

Bar Office
539-9081 776-6638

Blue River Pub

TONIGHT

Female Strippers "SHEER DELIGHT"
$3 Cover Charge

FRIDAY & SATURDAY NIGHT

The Pub Presents AMETHYST
Next to Tuttle Creek Will play from 10 p.m.-1 a.m.

FRIDAY

Make reservations for dinner BEFORE the McCain concert
(seafood buffet or menu orders)

AFTER, come dancing to the sounds of
"Lite 'n' Lively"
(appearing Friday & Saturday night)

University Club
Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Rocky Mountain BONKERS

PRESENTS
Sept. 25—DOW JONES and the Industrials
Sept. 28—DREAM MACHINE

Male Strippers
No males til after 11:30 p.m. Call 537-9591 for reservations

WHAT ARE YOU DOING SEPTEMBER 26TH?
WHY NOT TAKE THE TIME TO...

TAKE THE STEPS TO Leadership
THE ALL-CAMPUS
LEADERSHIP WORKSHOP!

KEYNOTE ADDRESS: "WHAT CONSTITUTES LEADERSHIP"
Dr. Jon Wefald

September 26, 1987
begins in K-STATE UNION, Rm. 212
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

Sessions on: •stress management, •communication,
•motivation, •K-State & the New Student: How to get involved •and more

... THESE COULD BE THE STEPS TO YOUR FUTURE!

Sponsored by: SGA, UAB and Mortar Board

They couldn't believe it!
They wouldn't believe it!

and then it HAPPENED...

KSU
Student Foundation's

OOZEBALL

Now it will happen
AGAIN! Sept. 26

Contributing Sponsors

Eriksen Sports Medicine Clinic

- Evaluation, Diagnosis, Treatment, Rehabilitation of sports related injuries and problems
- Determine Body Fat Percentages
- Heat Stress Information
- Information and advice on Fitness, Injury Prevention, Health Effects of Exercise
- MUCH, MUCH MORE

Walk-in Clinic
8-9:30 a.m. Mon.-Fri.
1-2:30 p.m. Mon.
1-2 p.m. Tues., Thurs., Fri.

For Appointments
532-7880

Lafene Health Center

IRONMAN '87 CHAMPS ATQ

Thanks to
ΒΟΠ ΣΦΕ ΣΑΕ ΘΕ ΣΧ ΤΚΕ CCC
Sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, September 24, 1987 ■ Page 4

Joe Biden has learned hardest political lesson

And another one bites the dust. More than just a lyric from an old "Queen" song, this phrase is becoming more and more a description of the 1988 presidential campaign — especially among the Democratic candidates. After suffering as much humiliation as his conscience and/or voters would allow, Sen. Joe Biden of Delaware officially pulled out of the race Wednesday.

And, to steal a phrase from a television commentator, so it goes.

Anyone aware of the controversy surrounding Biden in recent days shouldn't be shocked by this news. Nor should fans of integrity be saddened.

Biden was proving quickly that integrity was at a premium with him. Among his gaffes revealed recently: It was reported that Biden had lifted campaign speech material from British politician Neil Kinnock. Biden apparently delivered a Kinnock anecdote as if it were his own.

And Monday, it surfaced that he had lied about his academic accomplishments in comments issued last spring. He said he had finished in the top half of his law school class. Unfortunately for him, records didn't support his claim. They indicated he finished near the bottom.

In any other year and any other campaign, Biden's "oversights" probably would be ignored. But after the Gary Hart debacle, voters and the media have become much more sensitive to candidates who either compromise their standards or show that they had no standards in the first place.

But the question is: How far should the media go in "uncovering" candidates' personal lives? That is a question to which there are no apparent or easy answers.

In the case of Hart and Biden, the media were justified in presenting the stories. Hart's reported affair with then-unknown actress/model Donna Rice was inexcusable. Not only did it degrade his wife and family, but it also insulted American voters.

A man of Hart's caliber doesn't belong in the White House — or in any politics at all.

In Biden's case, the instances of judgment lapses are less damning. But they do tell us something about him and his character. And when eight candidates are actively vying for the nomination, any factor possible may be used to narrow the field.

The U.S. media shouldn't let up on their mission — or witchhunt, according to people's views — to keep tabs on candidates for public office. Indeed, the American press can be as much a form of checks and balances as any of the three branches of government.

But by no means should the media consider the Hart and Biden affairs a carte blanche approval to dig just for the sake of being nasty or obnoxious. Certain things are exclusively private matters, and the media should know when to make that determination.

Joe Biden is not a bad man — at least not to the extent Hart is. He simply became a casualty of a higher American conscience.

And democracy has won one more battle.

Agency's enforcement should be supported

The Kansas Alcoholic Beverage Control probably isn't too worried these days about winning students' support, especially in light of the agency's recent Aggieville crackdown on underage drinkers. That lack of worry is probably realistic.

However, despite the wrath of "minors" unhappy with ABC's actions, the crackdown is warranted. Too many underage drinkers frequent Aggieville bars, and anyone who regularly visits Aggieville can attest to that.

In short, it is ABC's job to ensure underage drinkers don't drink illegally. History proves that job can't be entrusted with all bar owners.

Far too many of them are more worried about profit than about the law or the welfare of young, inexperienced drinkers.

And, in a year when at least one underage drinker has already been sent to the hospital because of alcohol poisoning, that possibility is not necessarily a remote one. Granted, that drinker was not in an Aggieville bar, but the case illustrated the dangers of drinking — especially among those who aren't as experienced with alcohol and its effects.

In this light, ABC is doing more than harrasing bar patrons. It is upholding the law and possibly protecting some individuals' safety. For that reason, ABC's duty should be respected by students.

But the agency probably won't be heartbroken if it's not.

Hahn is not the angel she's insisting she is

Ever since the infamous tryst between she and Jim Bakker surfaced several months ago, Jessica Hahn has remained somewhat of an enigma. She has insisted that she's a God-loving victimized ex-church secretary, not the "bimbo" some insist she is.

What better way to prove that than to pose semi-nude for "Playboy" magazine? Surely that will underscore her pure virtues.

If Hahn were truly serious about protecting her image, she wouldn't have agreed to appear in the November issue of the men's magazine.

Despite her supposedly pure qualities, she's learned one hardball lesson well. That's the way, Jessica: Take the money and run.

On parking and football

Raze stadium, create new spots

It seems that this campus has two things on its mind these days: parking and football. Regardless of a visit by a foreign dignitary, war in the Middle East, the signing of agreements with the Soviet Union, and interviews with prospective Supreme Court Justice Robert Bork — all things that could affect the future, our lives, our country, and even humanity — we as an intellectual body seem to be concerned with the lighter side of life. We're concerned with those things that affect us now but which really aren't that important.

Football. The K-State squad has now lost two games in a row. What is interesting to note are the records of the two schools that defeated us. Since Austin Peay defeated us in the opener, they have been defeated twice. The first game they lost was to Tennessee-Martin (whoever that is) by a score of 30-10. The next weekend the Governors lost their home opener to Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, 10-3. The Salukis of SIU are a power in intercollegiate debate, not football. SIU has lost to Delta State, another unknown, and to Southwest Missouri State. SMS in turn lost to Nicholls State, a team that tied Troy State.

Army, on the other hand, is now 1-1. In their opener, they lost to Holy Cross. This is much better, since the Holy Cross team is now 2-0 after their thrashing of Lehigh this weekend. It seems that we are in some very elite company when it comes to the gridiron.

Jeff Sagarin publishes a computer list of the 191 teams in division I-A and I-AA and their rank. At least K-State escaped the bottom twenty this week. We are currently rated the 21st worst team in the nation, at position 171. We are currently between those eastern powerhouses: Pennsylvania and Connecticut. Kansas, on the other hand, after their 0-2 start, is ranked way up there at number 151. Iowa State placed at 120. These are teams that we are supposed to beat this year to establish ourselves in the middle of the Big Eight. What is going to happen when we play Missouri (46), Colorado (35), Oklahoma

Commentary

MIKE KRUEGER
Collegian Columnist

State (31), Nebraska (5), and Oklahoma (2)? Of course, we still have non-conference opponents in Iowa (11) and Tulsa (82).

Things look bleak for the future of this season. Maybe next year we could forget the Big Eight schedule and instead play games against Columbia, Morgan State, Yale, Morehead State, Bethune-Cookman, Prairie View, North Carolina A & T, Montana State, Towson State and Davidson. Unfortunately, if we lost to these teams ranked below us, we would certainly be a laughingstock. I would suggest playing only teams from within the state, but Baker, Bethel, Pittsburgh State, Emporia State and St. Mary's all have had more success than us, so we might lose to those teams as well.

Parking. A rather complex problem. If you happen to be a resident of the northeast residence halls — Moore, Haymaker, Ford, West, Boyd and Putnam — your lots have been oversold. The interesting part is that the Derby and B-2 lots should not be full. Of course, as you all know, they are full if you try to park in them after 10 p.m. The B-3 lot has been oversold. These people live in the residence halls. What do you expect them to do with their vehicles?

The people in the residence halls have very few alternatives. The first alternative is to park in a lot that is not assigned to them. This costs them $8 a night — a rather unfair burden — unless they park in D-1W. They could park on the city streets and get ticketed by the Riley County Police Department. This is not an acceptable solution. People could stay the night with friends if they cannot find a parking spot. This creates an unfair burden on the people imposed upon. Also, the residents are not getting use out of their rooms. They pay $255 a month; they should be able to sleep there. The alternative provided by the K-State police is D-1W parking. It is not fair to make women (no sexism intended; guys aren't raped very often) walk across campus late at night without an escort. The people live in residence halls; the University must provide adequate parking.

Campus police should do something. Several suggestions come to mind. The first suggestion is that freshmen should not be allowed to have cars on campus. This is a practice used at many universities that have parking problems. Another idea is to prevent overselling of lots. Sell only the correct number of spaces on the east side of campus, and then sell the spaces in D-1W. If people expect to park there, then measures should be taken to ensure a safe walk across campus can be made. The campus police should not expect to give tickets every night to make dollars that never seem to be used to increase the number of lots or for lot and street improvements.

There may be another solution to both the problems of the football team and parking. Eliminate football and then raze the stadium, turning it into a huge parking lot. Certainly we could use the money saved from the football expenditures and give it to the rifle team, track, volleyball and other organizations. The parking lot would certainly be big enough to accommodate all of the people desiring a parking space. If for some reason we decided to reinstate the football program, we could use the old stadium. It would not be the best facility, but it would be more aesthetically pleasing to watch the football team lose there than in the new stadium.

Letter

Bork's conservatism

Editor,

Michael Nichols' Sept. 8 editorial on Bork's conservatism needs more research. Most of the points were plainly wrong or half-truths.

For instance, the column attacked Bork for writing a 1971 article in which he said that the First Amendment protects only "explicitly political speech." What the column failed to say was that, in that same 1971 article, Bork stated his views were only "tentative." Bork has since clearly rejected such a limited concept of free speech.

The column also mentioned a 1963 article by Bork in which he opposed some civil rights bills. If the columnist had done his homework, he would have found that Bork has long since abandoned those views admitting that he had been wrong. In fact, the column failed to tell us that Bork has supported equal pay for women, argued that discrimination due to pregnancy was illegal and argued against a certain electoral plan fearing that the plan might weaken the power of black voters.

The columnist's assumptions about Bork and the concept of "original intent" are also unfounded. The column defined the concept of original intent as taking "the Constitution...in a context coherent with the intentions of its framers." There is nothing wrong with this concept, however. If you examine court decisions, you will quickly notice that even the most liberal justices often rely on debates of the Founding Fathers to ascertain the meaning of parts of the Constitution. Also, neither the concept nor Bork "ignore that this is...a nation which has changed radically since the Constitution was written," as the columnist suggests. For example, consider Bork's personal statement arguing that the use of electronic surveillance could constitute an illegal search: "The people who wrote the Fourth Amendment to stop unreasonable searches and seizures by the police didn't foresee electronic surveillance. But the value that they were trying to protect is threatened by electronic surveillance." This illustrates how the concept of original intent works well in our changing society.

Stephen Craig Moore
Graduate student, psychology

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Sundays, Saturdays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the south wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Fair to present art from 12 states

By The Collegian Staff

More than 10,000 people are expected to attend the 12th Annual Arts and Crafts Fair scheduled Sept. 25-27 in Manhattan City Park. The three-day, free event will feature 165 local and national artists from 12 states.

Don Cukjati, coordinator of the fair, said the event is sponsored by the City of Manhattan Parks and Recreation Department and is for both the artists and the public. "The fair is a place for artists to display and sell their wares," Cukjati said. "It's also a place to have a lot of fun, so we planned a variety of everything."

A juried art area, which displays art work selected for its high quality, will be set aside for special artist recognition, Cukjati said.

In addition to the arts and crafts exhibits, the fair will feature Gene Cotton, singer and composer, in two

Saturday shows: at noon and at 3 p.m.

Also held in conjunction with the fair is National Hunting and Fishing Day. From noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, the public can go fishing in the city swimming pool.

The pool will be stocked with fish previously caught from local ponds and lakes. Fishing poles will be provided, and fishers can take home their catch, Cukjati said. Archery, hunting and fishing exhibits, as well as a fish fry, will be located near the pool.

Cukjati said the reason for sponsoring so many events is to include everyone in the fun.

"Our objective is to get people out and have a good time," Cukjati said. "The adults like looking at the exhibits, and the kids think the fishing is a blast. The fair is designed for everyone, and it's something that all ages can enjoy."

House appropriates money for Contras; humanitarian aid to buy food, supplies

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House on Wednesday approved $3.5 million in new "humanitarian" aid to the Nicaraguan Contras, and House Speaker Jim Wright said he expects it to be the last U.S. aid ever sent to the rebels.

The money was part of a stopgap spending bill to keep the government running after the current fiscal year ends Sept. 30. The measure, approved 270-138 after little debate, was sent to the Senate, where it is not expected to encounter major opposition.

The Contra aid money had been worked out in a bipartisan agreement between Wright, D-Texas, and House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois.

The $3.5 million represents the proportion of this year's $100 million in Contra aid money that has been used for food, medical supplies and uniforms and would be needed to sustain the rebels into November in their battle against the leftist Sandinista government in Managua.

The vote came a day after President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica traveled to Capitol Hill to appeal to lawmakers to "take a risk for peace" and eschew further military aid to the Contras at least until Nov. 7, the target date for a regional cease-fire.

Asked whether he believed the new money would be the last U.S. aid to flow to the rebels, Wright said, "Yes, unless some drastic change were to occur in the situation in Central America. The evidence indicates to me reason to be optimistic — still guardedly, but less guardedly than before."

The Reagan administration has signaled its intention to ask for $270 million in new military aid for the Contras over 18 months if the peace plan fails.

Wright cited as signs of progress the pledge by Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega to begin a partial, unilateral cease-fire, the reopening of the opposition newspaper La Prensa, the resumption of broadcasts by a Roman Catholic-operated radio station and the appointment of a reconciliation commission led by Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, a leading government critic.

"All of these give me reason to have hope," Wright told reporters.

The cease-fire announcement from Managua was drawing skeptical responses from the administration, however, with Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams calling it "a trick" to get the Contras to surrender.

In Miami, Aristides Sanchez, one of six members of the Contra political directorate, said the rebels will not respect the cease-fire. "We take it as a simple publicity stunt on President Ortega's part," he said.

But President Vinicio Cerezo of Guatemala, while conceding that the Nicaraguan move could be a ruse, said the United States should "maintain a more open position" toward any peace overtures.

"If they (Nicaraguan leaders) are making a step in favor of peace, we have to discuss this step," Cerezo said on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

Approval of the additional aid came after a brief floor debate, in which Michel argued that approving a stopgap bill whose only omission from last year's spending programs was Contra aid would have "sent exactly the wrong signal at the wrong time."

Contra supporters contend that the military pressure from the rebels on the Sandinistas has been the primary force bringing Ortega to the peace table.

'Futuristic' drama to premiere tonight

By The Collegian Staff

"On the Verge," the K-State Players' season debut performance, opens at 8 tonight in Nichols Theatre.

The play is about three Victorian ladies who travel through time to find out what their world is really about. The play is written by Eric Overmyer and directed by Kate Anderson, associate professor of speech.

Anderson said this is a unique production for K-State due to the fact that a special sound accompaniment has been added, and this is the first college company to perform "On the Verge."

"On the Verge" will be performed Sept. 24, 25, 26, 30 and Oct. 1, 2 and 3 in Nichols Theatre. All performances begin at 8 p.m. Ticket information can be obtained at the Nichols Theatre box office.

K-STATE PLAYERS

Eric Overmyer's
ON THE VERGE

Sept. 24, 25, 26, 30
Oct. 1, 2, 3
Nichols Theatre
8 p.m.
532-6398

Krystallos

"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
Established 1972

This Friday & Saturday
New rock n roll from K.C.
A five piece band called
SIXX

Free Sandwich Bar Friday
Pre-party for Alpha Chi Omega Greek Playboy, Friday afternoon at Charlie's

"The location is where you want to be. The setting is where you need to be."
1800 Claflin 539-9619

The Station

THUR. BIG "C" NIGHT

(that famous mexican beer with a lime on top)

BIG "C" MEXICAN BEERS 99¢

DRINKS (ANY BRAND) - $1.50

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Gamma Phi Beta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Off Campus

Sept. 25: Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Delta, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Heart Attack.
Fight it with a
Memorial gift to
the American
Heart Association.

THE AMERICAN HEART
ASSOCIATION
MEMORIAL PROGRAM

American Heart Association

PI KAPPA ALPHA 6th Annual Lil' Sis Olympics

Calendar of Events

Wednesday, Sept. 23 • Vote for Ideal Greek in the Union

Thursday, Sept. 24 • Vote for Ideal Greek in the Union
• 8:30-11 p.m. Pizza Eating Contest, Fluffy Rabbit Contest
• Ideal Greek Walkthrough

Friday, Sept. 25 • 3:30-6 p.m. Drink off, Vote for Ideal Greek

Saturday, Sept. 26 • 1:30 p.m. games at Ahearn Field House

Sponsors Include:

BUD LIGHT

Welcome Back Students!

1/2 PRICE SWEATER SALE

Buy one sweater at current ticket price and receive a second sweater of EQUAL VALUE or LESS at 1/2 PRICE!

Plus... show us your Student I.D. and receive an Extra 10% Off Entire Store!

Discount expires October 12, 1987

MAURICES
Where Fashion Doesn't Cost A Fortune

116 SOUTH FOURTH STREET • DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN

HOLIDAY STYLE

"The moment she saw that diamond, this Mr. Right could do no wrong."

Own A Masterpiece

OPEN LATE TONIGHT

425 POINTZ MANHATTAN 913-776-7821

Iran pledges retaliation

Warships remove floating mines

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — American warships swept a strip of the central Persian Gulf on Wednesday to recover mines believed planted by the Iranian ship that U.S. helicopters attacked this week.

Commercial ships were warned away from the waters about 50 miles northeast of Bahrain and there were reports that some mines had been found.

Five Iranians were reported killed and 26 were captured in the helicopter raid on the Iranian vessel Monday night. It was the first direct American attack on Iranians in the two months since the United States began protecting shipping in the gulf.

Iran has vowed revenge for the American attack and the Iranian president said in New York that the two nations were moving toward war.

Britain announced it was closing Iran's military procurement office in London and urged a United Nations arms embargo because of Iranian attacks on Persian Gulf shipping.

President Ali Khamenei of Iran, in New York for a U.N. session, said the U.S. government had taken the road to war. "The people of the United States have a right to ask why is their government dragging them toward war," he said.

Despite the increased tension and the possibility of more floating mines, gulf-based shipping sources said a reflagged Kuwaiti gas carrier had begun a southbound voyage under U.S. escort.

The reported departure of the 46,723-ton Gas Prince from Kuwait would be the 10th convoy since President Reagan's program of escorting Kuwaiti tankers went into effect in mid-July.

But Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, asked in a Washington television interview whether a convoy was moving, replied, "Not that I know of."

In Washington, Pentagon officials said threats of Iranian reprisal for the ship attack would not deter Weinberger from leaving as scheduled for a five-day trip to the region.

He was to visit Bahrain, Saudi Arabia, Egypt and U.S. warships. Iranian officials angrily promised retaliation for Monday's attack and U.S. embassies and military bases worldwide were warned to be alert for terrorist incidents.

U.S. officials were discussing how to return the 26 Iranians taken off the ship Iran Ajr to their homeland. The Iranians, described as "detainees" by the Pentagon, were being held aboard navy ships in the gulf.

In the search for mines, there was no official word here on how many were recovered. But shipping executives, speaking on condition they not be named, said the Navy had found eight of the moored, contact-type explosives.

Gulf civilian radio monitors said Navy warships were warning all vessels to keep clear of the channel 50 miles northeast of Bahrain, an area where U.S. naval vessels often anchor when not on convoy duty.

There was new fighting reported in the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war. Iran's official news agency said Iraqi warplanes struck industrial and residential areas at Bakhtara, western Iran, at midday Wednesday and that Iranian artillery bombed Iraqi military and industrial targets in southern Iraq.

The state-run Iraqi News Agency, also monitored in Cyprus, said Iraqi jet fighters flew 87 combat missions during the day.

Stephan files suit against commission

By The Associated Press

WICHITA — Attorney General Robert T. Stephan filed suit Wednesday against the Sedgwick County Commission, claiming the body attempted to circumvent the state's open meetings law by redefining its quorum.

The issue in the Sedgwick County District Court lawsuit is whether the five-member commission can increase its quorum for doing business from three to four. The commission adopted such a resolution in May. Stephan is seeking to have it declared invalid.

Under the Kansas Open Meetings Act, a "meeting" is a prearranged gathering of a majority of a quorum of a public board for the purpose of discussing or transacting official business.

Under the law, the meetings must be open to the public, except for a set of six exceptions.

We need you.

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

September 14-26

k-state union
bookstore

ΑΔΠ Softball Classique

September 26 & 27

A Philanthropy for

Ronald McDonald House

ATTENTION!

Due to a production error, a few of the '87-'88 Programmers have the pages 65-80 missing. Please check your Programmer. If yours is not complete, please bring it to the Activities Center, K-State Union 3rd floor, Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. It will be fixed and returned to you the following day. (Monday if turned in Friday) Corrections will be made through September 30. Thank you for your support and we regret any inconvenience this has caused.

k-state union
upc promotions

Applications Now Available

ARTS & SCIENCE COUNCIL

Eisenhower 113

Due September 28

LIVING ETHICAL WILLS

Union State Room #3

12:00 Noon TODAY

This series gives an excellent opportunity to receive the "bequest" of a campus leader, in terms of what she/he hopes to leave humanity as guiding principles for life.

Joan McNeil
Asst. Prof. of Human Development & Family Studies

Sponsored by CUMENICAL CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES

ATTENTION

YOU CAN STILL MAKE RESERVATIONS

for Organization Group Pictures for the Royal Purple.

Hurry—so you can get the time and date you want!

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

WHAT THE BEST-DRESSED STEREO LOVER IS WEARING!

SPECIAL!

$9.99

Reg. $14.99

ARECA PALM WEeping FIG

4 ft. tall in 10" pot

PLANT TULIPS!! 10 bulbs for $1.00

Fresh Cut Flowers $3.99

Chrysanthemum "Fall Colors" Bouquet

Eastside & Westside Market

east of Manhattan on Hwy. 24 • West Ft. Riley Blvd.

Announcing '87 Greek Playboy Candidates

Acacia

Alpha Gamma Rho

Alpha Kappa Lambda

Alpha Tau Omega

Beta Sigma Psi

Beta Theta Phi

Delta Sigma Phi

Delta Tau Delta

Delta Upsilon

FarmHouse

Kappa Sigma

Lambda Chi Alpha

Phi Delta Theta

Phi Gamma Delta

Phi Kappa Tau

Phi Kappa Theta

Pi Kappa Alpha

Pi Kappa Phi

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Sigma Chi

Sigma Nu

Sigma Phi Epsilon

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Triangle

Bryce Cole

Jeff Ott

Brad Mitchell

Brandon Klsner

Alan Manke

Bill Cragg

Brian Svoboda

Chad Abercrombie

Ryan Swart

Jason Homburger

Mike Brown

Ken Schmidt

Richard Fox

Kirk Winter

Steve Jones

Doug Eshelbrenner

Rusty Binkley

Darrin Ruddy

Scott Binkler

Jim Houck

Gary DeBruyn

Dave Teter

Curt Creason

Ed McConwell

SONY SONY SRF-19 AM-FM Stereo Receiver <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Comes with Headphones</li> <li>• Great for Running</li> <li>• Our most affordable</li> </ul> Sale Price $28.88	SONY SONY SRF-F1 SPORTSBAND WALKMAN WATER-RESISTANT FM STEREO RADIO <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• FM stereo tuner</li> <li>• Water-resistant design, ideal for a wide range of sports</li> <li>• Miniature in-the-ear headphones</li> </ul> Sale Price $49.88
SONY SONY WM-F41 <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• FM-AM Stereo cassette player</li> <li>• Our most affordable</li> <li>• Comes with headphones</li> </ul> Sale Price $49.88	SONY SONY WM-F73 SPORTS WALKMAN WATER-RESISTANT AM/FM STEREO CASSETTE PLAYER <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Durable water-resistant case, ideal for active lifestyles</li> <li>• Auto-reverse</li> <li>• Ultra-mini water-resistant MDR headphones</li> <li>• Highly visible bright yellow color</li> </ul> Sale Price $139.88
SONY SONY WM-F100 II SUPER WALKMAN WITH NI-CAD BATTERY &amp; CHARGER <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Rechargeable battery offers great saving over regular batteries</li> <li>• Auto-reverse</li> <li>• Ultra-light MDR headphones supplied</li> </ul> Sale Price $188	SONY SONY D-3 Portable Compact Disc Player <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Portable use with supplied rechargeable battery</li> <li>• Home use</li> <li>• Car stereo use</li> </ul> Sale Price $259

Quantities Are Limited So, Hurry Down!

1126 Moro 776-5507

Finalizing the Holton Hall renovation

Senators will vote tonight

By Candise Leonard
Government Editor

After five years, the future of the Holton Hall renovation project could be determined by Student Senate tonight. Senate will either approve the $1.069 million plan or choose to send the issue to student referendum in the Nov. 3-4 elections.

The student senators who began the project in 1982-83 said the interior of Holton Hall was "inadequate because it fails to meet relevant safety codes, is inefficiently designed and is aesthetically substandard."

Since the first design proposal, it has become necessary for Mike Blaske, the project's architect, to include more safety improvements and an elevator in the plans in order to make the building accessible to physically limited individuals.

The revised plan amounts to $1.069 million plus financing costs — more than an additional $289,000 in student fees compared to the original budgeted figure.

"I felt obligated to bring it to the Senate for approval," said Michelle Benoit, senior in agricultural economics and Student Senate chairwoman.

The proposed Senate bill would extend the collection of the student services support fee approximately 6 1/2 years. The per semester fee is $3 for full-time students and $1 for part-time students.

Since the fall of 1983, student fees have been collected for the renovation proposal. The total amount of the

Dan Owens, senior in economics, and Justin Sanders, graduate in physics, discuss the issue of the Holton Hall renovation project during a recent Student Senate meeting in the Union support fee is now close to $640,000 — which includes $183,000 allocated by the 1986 student government from the bond refinancing surplus of $700,000.

Big Eight room. The 48 senators, representing eight colleges and the graduate school, meet every Thursday evening.

Senate began consideration of other alternatives for the renovation last spring when it was brought to its attention that the project needed these revisions.

According to Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement, the initial plans did not clearly look at the needs of the people working in the building. Holton Hall houses such services as the Counseling Center, University Minority Affairs, Greek Affairs, Women's Resource Center, U-Learn, Dean of Students office, the Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service, the Academic Assistance Center and various administrative offices.

Senate's decision based on funding commitment

By Candise Leonard
Government Editor

Student Senates since 1982 have been working on the details of the Holton Hall renovation. Tonight the issue may be resolved, said Michelle Benoit, senior in agricultural economics and Student Senate chairwoman.

The renovation plans have been revised to meet additional state safety codes. This has placed the construction over budget.

The original $780,000 renovation budget was based only on a square-footage estimate, according to Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement.

"If you ask me, it was a bogus figure to begin with," Krause said, indicating that the original plan did not take into consideration the needs of the offices located there.

After adjusting the plans to more effectively meet user needs, to account for inflation of construction costs and to upgrade safety standards, the project exceeded its original budget of $780,000.

Last spring, Student Senate requested the administration check into obtaining private or state funding as an alternative for funding the project increase.

"To pretend that is an option would be very misleading," Krause said. "To reverse the decision at this point would mean bumping other priorities that have been identified since that point."

According to Michelle Benoit, senior in agricultural economics and Student Senate chairwoman, the senators wanted to keep within the original budget of $780,000 when they discussed the issue last spring.

"There's no alternative funding because it hasn't been on any capital improvement plans and we can't bump it ahead," Benoit said. "As far as I know, they (University officials) only looked at their budgets to see about covering the increase."

Mike Blaske, project architect, and Larry Garvin, University architect, have proposed a plan to Senate that would renovate the building within the $780,000 amount. This plan calls for changes to be made on the first two floors and leaves the basement open, Benoit said.

"Most senators thought that would be a waste of our money," Benoit said.

Some of the senators took a tour of Holton Hall last spring, and Benoit said it was in poor condition.

"It's embarrassing," she said. "The basement walkways are so short, you have to bend down to get into the tutorial classroom or the computer room."

Another aspect of the renovation plan is the option of moving the Counseling Center to the Lafene hospital space that is to be vacated.

"Moving the Counseling Center makes more space available in Holton," Benoit said. "It's so packed right now."

Krause has called for a task force to consider the matter of combining mental health services, but the renovation plans can be designed to either include or exclude the Counseling Center.

Benoit said Student Senate "should have never been in this funding mess."

"In the beginning, it was just cosmetic changes like painting," she said. "I don't know how it became a renovation project for sure — it wasn't made clear in the first plan."

According to Benoit, the senators are committed to dealing with the building because of the $640,000 in fees already collected.

A few of the student interns, who help the senators research issues, gather early to talk informally about the agenda prior to the Senate meeting.

Student body president sets goals for semester

By Jodi Swengel
Staff Writer

Communication and accessibility to students are the two goals Student Body President Kent Bradley, senior in nutrition science and pre-medicine, hopes he can continue to achieve before the end of his term in November.

Throughout his first semester as student body president, Bradley made numerous speeches to different organizations as well as to living groups both on and off campus. Additionally, he dines in the residence halls three times a week so students can have the opportunity to meet him, express any concerns and ask questions about the University.

Bradley said the main reason for these visits is "to let the different groups know what is going on in SGA (Student Government Association)."

Since the beginning of the semester, Bradley has given more than 15 speeches about student government.

"I always mention the upcoming November elections because I'm afraid people don't know," Bradley said.

Because the elections for student senators and the student body president have been moved from the second week of February to Nov. 3-4 this year, Bradley said it will be difficult for those in student government to finish the projects they have started.

The change is expected to benefit the new senators, however, by giving them more time — and hopefully more experience — in their roles before tentative allocations start in April, he said.

To run for a position in student government, students must complete an application form available from the SGS office in the Union. The applications, which give information on the election and campaign rules, are due Oct. 20.

"I think the election will be non-traditional in the sense that everyone is on a different time frame," Bradley said. In the past, students interested in running for student government could plan for the February election over the Christmas break.

Bradley said candidates will have a more difficult time knowing how to plan and schedule their campaigns, but he is willing to give advice to anyone who asks.

"A couple people have come to talk to me already," Bradley said. "I don't think that's premature; the elections are only six weeks away."

Before the end of his term he would like to see some of the issues he's started "actually put into action," Bradley said.

One of Bradley's proposals is for an increased number of polling locations, which would mean more voting places for students.

It is unique for the Union to be the only place where students vote in elections, he said. He does not think one voting place is accessible enough because not every student passes through the Union on the way to class and not every student goes to the Union every day.

"Those who live on the north side of campus don't go through the Union every day. By placing additional voting polls on that end of campus, it would hopefully increase voter turnout," Bradley said.

The remaining question is where the polls should be placed in order to accommodate the largest percentage of students, he said.

Bradley said the job of student body president takes a great deal of time, and he is often making sacrifices — like missing classes or constantly rearranging his schedule.

"I spent the whole day with President Arias when he was here," Bradley said. "Talking to him was very interesting; he's very personable."

The rewards have made up for the time commitment involved, Bradley said.

"There's a sense of satisfaction from helping solve students' problems and addressing their concerns," he said.

Student Body President Kent Bradley, senior in nutrition science and pre-medicine, dines with students in Kramer Food Center Tuesday afternoon.

Calorie counters may find comfort at session today

By The Collegian Staff

Calorie-conscious Americans interested in having their cake and eating it too may find relief at a sweeteners food symposium in the Union today and Friday.

"The K-State Sweeteners in Foods Symposium will deal with all the sweets' issues, including sensory, and processing and health aspects of the new sweetener products designed to reduce calories," said Karen Penner, associate professor in foods and nutrition and extension food specialist.

The symposium is sponsored by the Food Science faculty and will feature speakers from the food industry as well as universities, she said.

"The faculty chose sweeteners as the theme this year because there are so many types available," Penner said. "Ten years ago there was only white sugar, but now there are things like corn syrup and alternative sweeteners."

NutraSweet is one alternative, she said, adding that a representative from the company will speak about the future of the sweetener this afternoon.

The opening session of the symposium is at 9 a.m. this morning in the Big Eight Room of the Union. The themes of today's sessions will deal with the sensory characteristics of sweeteners, Penner said.

Penner expects about 80 to 100 people to attend the symposium, with the majority of them being food science faculty members and students. Registration fee is $100 and includes the program, Thursday noon luncheon and evening banquet, conference materials and refreshment breaks.

"The symposium will deal with a whole realm of concerns, ranging from why people have an innate desire for sweeteners, to what the food industry and consuming public need to know about the relative safety of the new sweetener products," she said.

AIDS children find home

Public school welcomes brothers

By The Associated Press

SARASOTA, Fla. — Three brothers whose exposure to AIDS made them pariahs in their rural hometown enrolled in a new school Wednesday without incident and with a hesitant welcome from schoolmates and parents.

Deputies patrolled the grounds at Gocio Elementary School. And officials reported that 120 of the 615 pupils stayed home. Up to a dozen pupils were withdrawn. The usual absentee rate is about 3 percent.

But the day had encouraging moments for the Rays — 10-year-old Ricky, Robert, 9, and Randy, 8.

Ricky found welcome cards on his desk, said Clifford Ray, the boys' father.

After school, acting Principal Lee Coose said: "We had a super day, A-OK across the board."

"Everything was positive," said the boys' mother, Louise. "One of (the boys) said they had to assign seats in the lunchroom because everyone wanted to sit next to them."

The boys attended school in Arcadia for a week under federal court order. A boycott that emptied classes, and telephone threats were made against the school and family. They left Arcadia after an Aug. 28 fire gutted their home. The DeSoto County sheriff's department said Tuesday that the fire was arson but said it was "definitely not related" to the community furor.

The Ray family moved to Sarasota because school board policy allows children exposed to AIDS to attend school if they pose no threat to chilren and are undergoing medical treatment.

Charles Fowler, Sarasota County Schools superintendent, said he has asked the state Legislature for a statewide policy, "so you don't end up with parents being shuttled from county to county, looking for a policy."

The Ray boys are "still a little gun shy of school because of what's happened," and will receive counseling, said Mrs. Ray.

The boys gave a shy wave to reporters outside the school Wednesday but waved off questions.

"The Rays are hollering about their civil rights," said Tim Whitworth, who didn't let his daughter go to school. "But they are violating our civil rights by shoving their children down our throats. People will turn violent. They'll end up with another Arcadia if they're not careful."

New New New

CAR WASH

FOUR BAYS

619 N. 3rd St.

Across from Pizza Hut

Brand new and no waiting

7

Movie Quik

is here

Movie Rentals $1.99

Video Players $4.99

OPEN 24 HOURS 1445 ANDERSON

Silver Reed EZ 20

Reg. 199.95 Now 179.95

Multi-Lingual Keyboard

Relocation

Correction Memory

Slip-in Typewheels (Pica or elite)

Hull Business Machines

Wart Treatment

$15 per academic year

Thursday & Friday Only

8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

532-6544 Lafene Health Center

etl d

Brother's

KSU

IN AGGIEVILLE USA

TONITE

The

Veranda's

Celebrate their album release with our shot shooter!

$1.50 wells $1 shots

ROCKY FORD TAVERN

TONIGHT

OLD MILWAUKEE NIGHT

Pitchers $1.60

"It just doesn't get any better than this"

•NO DRESS CODE•

•NO COVER CHARGE•

NOW OPEN ON SUNDAYS

THE FINEST LITTLE TAVERN BY A DAM SITE

Rt. 5 537-3133

Rockport

DresSports.

15% OFF Regular Price

Entire Stock size 7-13

Narrow—Medium—Wide

Black•Cordovan-Taupe•Tan

See our complete selection

Rockport

Marlboro, Mass.

Plus Sign up for

FREE shoes to be given away this week.

Brown's

SHOE FIT COMPANY

311 Poyntz, Downtown

W E E

WILLIE

K-State Union

12 oz. Refillable

WATCH FOR

 k-state union

food service

WILD

WILLIE

K-State Union

34 oz. Refillable

UPC

UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

CHARLOTTE'S WEB

This delightful animated film, based on E.B. White's classic children's book, tells the story of how Charlotte, a spider, spends her whole life trying to save her friend, Wilbur, a good-hearted pig from going to the bacon factory.

Saturday, September 26, 2 p.m. and Sunday, September 27, 2 & 7 p.m.; all shows in Forum Hall. $1.50; KSU ID Required; Rated G.

k-state union

upc feature films

"A delight! Savvy, witty and hawdy... Michael J. Fox and Helen Slater are enchanting."

— Jeffrey Lynn, SNEAK PREVIEW/INN

"Rip-roaringly funny... Michael J. Fox is terrific."

— Gary Franklin, ABC-TV

MICHAEL J. FOX

THE SECRET OF MY SUCCESS

Friday, September 25, and Saturday, September 26, 7 & 9:30 p.m., all shows in Forum Hall. $1.75; KSU ID Required; Rated PG-13.

There will be a drawing for a K-State T-shirt at the following showing: Friday, 7 p.m., (compliments of Varney's Bookstore), and Saturday, 7 & 9:30 p.m., (compliments of the Union Bookstore).

LET'S TALK ABOUT . . .

Students in Solidarity with Central America (S.I.S.C.A.)

TODAY!

Noon

Union Catskeller

k-state union

upc issues & ideas

DOWN BY LAW

This is the story of an unemployed disc-jockey (Tom Waits), a small-time pimp (John Lurie) and a strong-willed Italian tourist (Roberto Benigni) who meet in the confined space of a prison cell in New Orleans and their escape through the dense surrounding swamps of Louisiana. Also starring Ellen Barkin. Songs by Tom Waits.

Today, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre, and 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall. $1.75; KSU ID Required; Rated R.

k-state union

upc kaleidoscope

OPUS BAND COMPETITION

Tomorrow, 5-9 p.m., Union North Lawn

See the following bands compete for over $600 in prizes!

The Moving Van Goghs Witness

That Statue Moved Crosswind

Moneytree Essential Sound Project

S.M. Hanson Music

 & k-state union

upc eclectic entertainment

"LUST IN THE DUST" IS A WICKED MUST...

"LUST" KNOWS HOW TO QUICKLY MINE THE GOLD AND LEAVE 'EM LAUGHING...A HAPPY HOOT." —US MAGAZINE

LUST in the DUST

This is a modern spoof about a frantic search for buried treasure in the old town of Chilli Verde involving wild shootouts and furious chases on horseback. Stars Divine!

Friday, September 25 and Saturday, September 26, Midnight, all shows in Forum Hall. $1.75; KSU ID Required; Rated R.

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, September 24, 1987 ■ Page 9

Staff/Greg Vogel

Stan Weber, former K-State quarterback, can be heard on Wildcat football broadcasts as the color commentator. In 1983, Weber took over the Wildcat's quarterbacking duties midway through the season and in 1984 he started in this position.

Former 'Cat QB adds color to games

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

Ask any ex-athlete, and almost assuredly they will say nothing matches the feeling of competing in sports.

"There's nothing like working together with guys and giving everything you have mentally, physically and spiritually, and having that hard work pay off by winning a game," said former K-State quarterback Stan Weber.

"Those feelings I had in high school and college, there's nothing like that," he added. "I can't get that feeling in the business world."

Though Weber no longer has to worry about defensive linemen harrying him at his regular job as a certified public accountant for a Big Eight Conference accounting firm, he has realigned himself with the sport he loves. On Saturdays, Weber can be heard on Wildcat football broadcasts as the color commentator.

Announcing and sports, Weber said, are somewhat comparable.

"You have your level of ability. ...Some days you have good days and some days you have bad," he said.

"Hopefully, I'm able to give some input on what's going on in a way that some people have never experienced before. I look at things like a fan looks at them, but I also look at things as a quarterback would," Weber said.

But what the fan sees and what the quarterback envisions are often two very different views, as Weber has discovered.

"It looks so much easier when you're watching," Weber said. "You see receivers running and it seems like 'Gosh, he's wide open. That should be an easy pass.' But having been there before, I have to remember that there are 6 (foot) 5 linemen interfering with your vision."

Weber, 25, came to K-State from Goddard High School in the fall of 1980. While at Goddard, he garnered many gridiron honors including All-Chisholm Trail League, Top 11 in the state by both the Wichita Eagle-Beacon and Topeka Capitol-Journal, the Wichita Eagle-Beacon's male athlete of the year and MVP of the 1980 Shrine Bowl.

Though K-State was in the midst of a nine-season losing streak, he chose to wear the purple and white. There were other factors, such as K-State's academic reputation and the surrounding community, as to why this talented athlete chose to play for the Wildcats.

"I took a chance, thinking football wasn't the most important thing of my life," Weber said.

"I think the No. 1 reason I went there is that football is played 11 days out of the year, and those aren't the days that are the most important. The majority of the days are spent on the University and around the community," he added.

Weber's attitude towards scholastic endeavors were well-publicized when he made second-team Academic All-American in 1984. Still, it's tough for a born

■ See WEBER, Page 12

Talks in session; 'scabs' cross lines

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Full-scale talks aimed at quickly ending the NFL strike began Wednesday as players stayed on picket lines and, at two camps, tried to stop busloads of substitutes from going to work.

Among those reporting were two union defectors — Randy White of the Dallas Cowboys and Mark Gastineau of the New York Jets.

The NFL, meantime, said Sunday's games still had not been officially canceled.

Negotiators sat down at 3 p.m. EDT, midway through the second full day of the strike.

The first item of business was expected to be the most critical — the union's demand for free agency for players with four years experience. Owners, so far, have refused to modify the current system under which teams are compensated if a player signs with another team. Only one player in 10 years has changed teams under that system.

"I'm hoping we can get it done. That's why we're here," union head Gene Upshaw said before the bargaining session. "There is no time-frame. Our agenda is to reach an agreement, however long it takes."

Joining Upshaw were members of the union's executive council, including Brian Holloway of the Los Angeles Raiders, who said: "You see how much luggage I have? This isn't for one day."

The owners were represented by Jack Donlan, head of the NFL Management Council and two team presidents — Tex Schramm of the Dallas Cowboys and Dan Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"The next two days are critical. If there's no movement after two days, we're looking at a long one," Donlan said.

Schramm said he thought the talks would last at least through Thursday.

"There's too much ground to cover to get it done in a day," he said.

Settlement or not, owners were planning games for Oct. 4-5 with either the regulars or replacement teams of free agents, retirees and whatever other players they could sign.

Though picketing was peaceful at most NFL camps, some Washington Redskins and Houston Oilers tried to stop substitutes from reporting for work.

At the Redskins' training site at Herndon, Va., three striking players — Darryl Grant, Cliff Enson and Reggie Branch — stood in front of a bus carrying substitutes into camp. As a police officer persuaded the three to move, other Redskins pounded the side of the bus and shouted at the passengers.

A bus company spokesman said two windows on the bus were broken.

A window also was broken on a bus carrying free agents past an Oilers' picket line. The bus was pelted with eggs and a rock as it brought the subs to practice.

"This doesn't surprise me," said quarterback Warren Moon, the Oilers' player representative. "The guys have been calm to this point. It was just a little show of emotion."

At Kansas City, two striking Chiefs' players — Dino Hackett and Paul Coffman — jokingly waved unloaded shotguns outside Arrowhead Stadium before the substitutes arrived.

"We're looking for scabs," they shouted to teammates on the picket line.

At Irving, Texas, White and teammate Don Smerek were cheered by spectators as they rode a pickup truck through the Cowboys' picket line.

"I'm not against the union," said White, a nine-time Pro Bowl player. "I did what I had to do. I respect what they are doing. I hope they respect what I'm doing."

"I'm doing what's best for me and my family. I didn't want to lose one-sixteenth of my salary ($31,000). I'll be paid whether we have a game this week or not."

Gastineau said defying the union "was the toughest thing I've ever gone through in my life." He did not have to cross a picket line because the striking players were not allowed to demonstrate at the Jets' training site at Hempstead, N.Y.

Gastineau said he was continuing to work out of loyalty "to the people who have been paying me for nine years."

Netters, golf team in action

By The Collegian Staff

K-State's women's tennis team will be playing its first dual match of the season today, as it takes on Bethel College at 2:30 p.m. at the L.P. Wasburn Recreational Area tennis courts.

The dual will feature performances by Wildcat freshman Thresa Burcham and junior Sigrid Ivarsson. According to K-State coach Steve Bietau, both Burcham and Ivarsson showed great promise in last weekend's tournament against Drake and Kansas.

Burcham won the top K-State singles spot before the season started, by winning an intrasquad challenge. The challenge was designed to not only determine the best players, but also to spark the competitiveness of the team.

"We played as individuals to find our weaknesses and get some experience," said Bietau. "We are playing as I would expect this early in the year."

Also returning to action today will be the K-State men's golf team. It will compete through tomorrow in the Emporia State Invitational.

The invitational begins tomorrow, with 18 holes of action slated at the par 71 Municipal Golf Course in Emporia. The tourney concludes Friday with another round of 18 holes.

Scheduled to participate for the Wildcats are Todd Fowler, Tim Jennings, Troy Keller, Daran Neuschafer and John Shields.

'Captain Moore' improving on ruggers 'play'

Staff/Brad Fanshier

Captain Richard Moore, coach of the Royal Artillery Rugby Club in Great Britain, works with the K-State team at practice Wednesday. Moore accepted a coaching invitation after seeing the K-Staters play.

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

If you happened to be anywhere in Aggieville last night and heard a large man with reddish hair flirting with the ladies in a strong British accent, don't worry. It's not another British invasion. It was probably Captain Richard Moore, coach of the Royal Artillery rugby club in Great Britain.

Moore, who is an admitted "rugby fanatic," accompanied K-State's rugby players home after they played in the Girdlestone Tournament last weekend, to give them a special clinic.

"I was kidnapped by this lot," Moore said.

"Actually, I was impressed with their play and when they invited me to come up and drill them for a few days, I accepted the invitation," he said.

Moore's own team is spending the remainder of their stay in the United States enjoying the sun and fun in the Gulf of Mexico area. After three days of coaching the K-State squad, Moore will fly down to Texas to link up with his players and then back to Great Britain.

"The young boys went to the Gulf (Coast) to have a good time," Moore said with a devilish smile. "I'm too old for that sort of thing, so I came up here to help this bunch out."

Moore was extremely impressed with the play of the K-State ruggers.

"The potential of this bunch is just enormous. They've all got good hands and they are physically very strong, which is very remarkable at any level of the game."

"They really know how to tackle. When they tackle they hurt someone. My boys haven't been tackled like that in a long time. After we played against them in (Girdlestone), my lads were complaining that they were sore and aching," Moore added.

Moore, who has coached for the last 15 years, has not played in eight years. "I sustained a bad back injury in the sport. I did something really heroic; I came in second best," Moore said.

Moore is planning a return trip to Manhattan in early March to help K-State tune up before their spring season gets into high gear.

"I'm planning on coming back for two weeks in March as long as my colonel doesn't object — and I'm pretty sure that he won't — and as long as you don't send all the girls away. Everyone has just killed us with kindness since we've been here. We've really had a smashing time," Moore said.

The only difference Moore noticed between the British and American styles of play is the Americans use little, if any, strategy during a game. He said Americans rely mostly on strength to get them by. "The problem with the lads is that their tactical play is a little naive. Since I've been here, we've been working mainly on individual and unit skills," Moore said. "I've been trying to work a few simple strategies into their game."

"The raw talent that you find here (in the United States) can't be found in the U.K. If the Americans got really serious about their rugby, there would be no holding them back."

After stretching exercises were completed, Coach Moore asked the team the fateful question: "Are you ready mates?"

After just minutes into the drill, this substitute coach could be heard questioning the players. Moore said he was the one out partying the night before, so why were they (the team members) dragging?

"I'm totally impervious to pain — especially when I'm the one inflicting it. Now move it!" Captain Moore shouted to his American troops.

If Moore has anything to do with it, the "Americans" here at K-State just may improve their play on and off the field.

GUARDIANSHIP: AN AILING SYSTEM

Guardianship used as last possibility

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

Guardianships for the elderly are considered a "last resort" at the Area Agency on Aging, 2601 Anderson Ave., said Director Elaine Johannes. "Guardianships make the elder a child—they cannot vote or have legal rights," Johannes said. "We lean the other way, using guardianships as the final solution."

The Area Agency on Aging is a service that deals with informing older adults about rights and help available for the protection of their financial matters and their lives. The agency helps the elderly gain access to those services, Johannes said.

A family or the agency may notice an older adult needing assistance with making important choices, such as on financial matters, she said. The agency will advise the adult on what to do or not to do with legal matters.

"We help them with guardianships only if the person wants it," Johannes said. "We get the elderly in touch with an attorney."

Guardianships are obtained by any concerned adult, whether it be a family member or a friend of the elderly person, said Jean Krahn Nickel, coordinator of the Kansas Guardianship Program in the Kansas Advocacy and Protective Services Inc. office, 513 Leavenworth St.

A guardianship covers everything, Nickel said. It provides for the elderly's care, medical treatment, housing and education. In contrast, a conservatorship only handles the estate or the financial matters of the elderly, she said.

The concerned person files a petition, a legal document stating who needs the guardianship or conservatorship, why this need exists, and the extent of the estate of the person being petitioned, Nickel said. Next, the elderly person undergoes an extensive evaluation to check mental ability.

Then a hearing is held. The concerned parties attend, and the petitioned adult attends if physically able, Nickel said. The doctor who performed the mental evaluation, other professionals and family members are also present.

After the hearing, the judge makes a finding as to whether the person is disabled, then decides whether the older adult needs a guardianship, a conservatorship or both.

The decision of incompetency can be reversed by the judge using the same process by which the person is declared disabled in the first hearing, said Joel Hayes, attorney for the Area Agency on Aging.

"The person goes back to the judge and proves competency," Hayes said. "But it's hardly ever seen, though."

Legal guardians are concerned, honest people, said Linda Harrold, nursing worker at College Hill Skilled Nursing Center, 2423 Kimball Ave.

"They are loving and caring," she said. "I have not seen anyone try and rip off an elder adult."

Harrold said legal guardians at College Hill are usually family members and are "not out to take advantage or rip people off."

"The intent of the law for guardianships is there to uphold the rights of a person," Nickels said.

State codes differ regarding allowance of multiple wards

By The Associated Press

WICHITA — If you've got your hands full trying to keep your own personal and financial house in order, imagine taking on responsibility for somebody else.

That's what guardians and conservators are expected to do. Not only balancing checkbooks, paying bills and coping with government and health care paperwork, but also calming worries, ensuring rights, providing a shoulder to lean or cry on.

Relatives often take on those duties for an aged parent, uncle or aunt, brother or sister. Or it could be a retarded son or daughter, or one left permanently disabled by an accident.

The guardian may do the personal things — visiting, checking with the doctor — and perhaps let an attorney, or maybe a financial institution if the estate is large, handle financial affairs.

But what about people who have nobody, and no money? Who looks after them?

Some states have public guardianship programs in which government employees take that responsibility, but Kansas hasn't gone that route.

Since 1979, it has had a state-funded program in which the Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services refers indigent people needing guardian-conservators to the Kansas Advocacy and Protective Services and its network of volunteers.

But before that, there were independent persons — more or less professional guardians — who took on these cases, and some still do it today.

When the Kansas guardianship-conservatorship law was under study prior to its revision in 1983, some expressed concern about guardians serving 100 or more wards in some parts of the state, saying they couldn't possibly give them the attention they need.

Although an attempt to limit the number of wards a guardian could serve was unsuccessful, the new law tells courts to consider workload in making appointments, with particular attention to anyone with 15 or more wards.

In Wichita, where several people had a large number of wards, recently retired District Judge Willis Wall said it would have been a big mistake to place a limit.

"Sometimes we have guardian-conservators who are not as sharp as they should be because there just isn't anybody else to serve," he said. "It's a really tough thing to find someone who will devote the time, even sometimes in an estate where there's some money. And then you get the really bad cases, and nobody wants them."

Wall said the people with multiple wards in his county were well qualified because they'd done it for a long time and knew the system.

"You can handle more than 15," he said. "Caseloads mean nothing to me, if they're doing a good job doing what they're doing."

Elderly

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

kind of at the point that nobody's necessarily looking for those abuses, so they could be going on and not coming to the light of day."

"Even though it's improved, even though there are provisions in there that seem very protective of individual rights, from a practical standpoint that doesn't always happen," said Maurice Vorhies of the Senior Citizens Law Project in Wichita.

A court-appointed attorney might see a proposed ward for five minutes and come away without a clear understanding of the circumstances, he said.

"They come back in and there's a routine finding that the presence of the individual is not required," Vorhies said. "You have a medical report saying the person is disabled, often from a physician who is not aware of exactly what the legal requirements are."

"I would say probably eight out of 10 guardianships go through in just that type of situation," he said. "Probably 90 percent of them are fully justified and in the best interest of the proposed ward and conservatee. It's the other 10 percent that worries the hell out of me."

Yet some complain that restrictions in the law can be too burdensome or that due process requirements drag things out.

"I think there are some families out there who feel the statute is too restrictive and invades the province of the legal guardian to a great degree," said Johnson County District Judge Sam Bruner of Olathe. "That has caused some confusion."

Particularly frustrating to some are cases in which guardians want to put wards in a state psychiatric or mental retardation hospital for treatment. A 1986 revision of the mental commitment law has had an impact on guardianship cases.

Topeka attorney Ken Carpenter said that under current law and policy, no one with a guardian can voluntarily admit himself or herself to a state hospital. Further, he said, a guardian cannot place a ward in such a facility as a voluntary patient without going through formal mental illness commitment procedure.

"It takes three or four weeks every time you do it," he said. "And the authority only lasts for that particular hospitalization."

The 1986 change meant a lot of work for Lloyd Hull, a Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services attorney.

"It said each individual in a state institution essentially had to have a guardian and also a hearing to continue placement there," he said.

Whereas only about a third of patients in state institutions had guardians before, now nearly all do, with a few cases still pending, Hull said.

From about September to the end of June, Hull had 600 new guardianships and continued placement hearings for residents of the state institutions, and 500 more hearings to determine if those with guardians still needed treatment.

Although Hull took an active role in these cases, his agency is generally reluctant to petition for guardianship.

Ron Lutz, a social worker in charge of guardianship referrals in the Topeka area SRS office, said that if the agency believes a guardianship is needed to deal with an adult abuse or neglect case, it tries to find a family member or friend to file for guardianship. If there is no alternative — and the person is in danger — then SRS will petition for it.

Some people from hospitals and nursing homes think the state agency should take more initiative in seeking guardianships and talk of asking the Legislature to require it.

FRIDAY: The future of guardianship in the United States.

TV Listings

By TV Data

THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 24, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTKA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Bugs Bunny	Special	Bozo	Nation's Bus	B. Hillbillies
7:30	"	"	"	Flintstones	Mister Rogers	"	SportsCenter	Bewitched
8:00	"	To Be Announced	"	My Little Pony	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook	I Love Lucy
8:30	"	"	"	Brady Bunch	"	Teddy Ruxpin	Racing	Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid	Ghostbusters	Who's the Boss	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Water Skiing	Movie: "Mary Jane Harper"
9:30	"	Card Sharks	G.I. Joe	Mr. Belvedere	"	"	"	"
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's the Boss	Andy Griffith	Body Electric	Waltons	Billiards: Sigel vs. Garcia	Cried Last Night
10:30	Lose or Draw	"	"	Dick Van Dyke	Congress	"	"	"
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec.	Dyke Green Acres	Psychology Exercise/Billie	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
11:30	Wheel-Fortune	"	Ask Dr. Ruth	"	"	"	"	"
12:00	News	Midday	All My Children	Beaver	Sesame Street	News	Pro Boxing	Movie: "20,000 Years in Sing Sing"
12:30	Days of Our	Bold/Beautiful	"	I Love Lucy	"	"	"	"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies	Tenko	Major League Baseball: Phi-	"	"
1:30	Another World	"	"	Bewitched	"	"	"	"
2:00	"	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch	Russia: Off the Record	Philadelphia Phillies at Chi-	Scuba World	Tom & Jerry and Friends
2:30	Santa Barbara	"	"	Zoobilee Zoo	"	"	NFL Yearbook	"
3:00	"	Donahue	Scooby Doo	Smurfs	Cooking On Aerobics	cago Cubs	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones
3:30	Oprah Winfrey	"	Thurnducks	Ghostbusters	"	"	"	"
4:00	"	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game	Jetsons	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	Transformers	Drag Racing: NHRA Quaker	Munsters
4:30	Facts of Life	"	P. Court	M. Bravest	"	"	"	Major League
5:00	3's Company	News	News	Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Good Times	SportsLook	Baseball: Houston As-
5:30	NBC News	CBS News	ABC News	Facts of Life	"	Jeffersons	Horse Mag.	"
6:00	News	News	M*A*S*H	WKRP	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Benson	SportsCenter	trots at Atlanta
6:30	Wheel-Fortune	Truth/Conseq.	Newlywed	Gimme Br.	"	Soap	SpeedWeek	Braves
7:00	Cosby Show	Tour of Duty	Sledge Ham-Charmin's	Hill Street Blues	Adams Chroni-	Movie: "An Eye for an	College Foot-ball: Akron at	Movie: "Zorro"
7:30	Diff. World	"	"	"	"	"	"	"
8:00	Cheers	Wise Guy	Movie: "Ghostbus-	Movie: "Clash of the Titans"	DeGrassi Junior High	Eye"	Temple	"
8:30	Night Court	"	"	"	"	"	"	"
9:00	Unsolved Mysteries	Knots Landing	"	"	"	News INN News	"	Movie: "The
9:30	"	"	"	"	"	"	"	"
10:00	News	News	News	Barney Miller	Nature Business Rpt.	H'mooner Trapper John	NFL Great SportsCenter	Prince and the Pauper
10:30	Tonight Show	Cheers	M*A*S*H	Late Show	"	"	"	"
11:00	"	Adderly	B. Buddies	TBA	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D.	SportsLook	Movie: "Gam-
11:30	Ent. Tonight	"	"	Andy Griffith	"	Movie: "Shaft"	Auto Racing	blit"
12:00	David Letterman	Movie: "Crisis in Sun Valley"	700 Club	Movie: "The Islander"	Sign-Off	"	"	"
12:30	"	"	"	"	"	"	"	"

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

- * Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
- * No abbreviations, please.
- * No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
- * Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
- * Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
- * If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
- * Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
- * The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.20	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____	Phone no. _____
Address _____	Student ID # _____
1 _____	2 _____
3 _____	4 _____
5 _____	6 _____
7 _____	8 _____
9 _____	10 _____
11 _____	12 _____
13 _____	14 _____
15 _____	16 _____
17 _____	18 _____
19 _____	20 _____
21 _____	22 _____
23 _____	24 _____
25 _____	26 _____
27 _____	28 _____
29 _____	30 _____
Date ad begins _____	Amount paid _____
Total days in paper _____	Category _____

VANDERBILT'S

Levi's

HEADQUARTERS DISCOUNT PRICES

SHRINK-TO-FIT

Levi's 501

The original button-fly 501 jeans in shrink-to-fit sizes. First Quality, 38 & 40 Lengths. $18.99

$16.99

Compare to $28.95

Men's Unlined JEAN JACKETS

Rugged heavy-weight denim with double stitched seams, copper buttons and all the quality and durability Levi's are famous for.

$34.99

compare to $49.95

DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY 99)

OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100

VISA MasterCard

Kedzie 103

ClassAds

532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128 (11f)

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours Sixth Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lifts/parties/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure 1-800-321-5911 today!! (20-24)

FREE—TRIP to Daytona plus commission money. Going to Florida? Go for free. Take advantage of promoting the #1 Spring Break trip. If interested call Designer's of Travel 1-800-453-9074. Immediately! (23-24)

ATO—CAR wash, 11 a.m.-2 p.m., Poyntz Pantry Dut-chmald, 1522 Poyntz. (23-24)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken, 539-9469. (2-27)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢
after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON!
539-4888

Bridal Gown

Sale
CHRISTINE'S
THE WEDDING COMPANY
11th & Moro
776-7387

SUN CONNECTION
NOW SELLING $2 SESSIONS
1126 Laramie 776-2426

Bobby's
LATE NIGHT BREAKFAST GRILL
10 p.m.-1 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays
Candlewood Shopping Center 539-1571

Personalized Programs
are our specialty.

Call Today!

776-1750

Support research.

American Heart Association
WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. Please call 776-6566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (20-24)

POOL PARTY EVERY FRIDAY
5 p.m.-8 p.m.
75¢ DRAWS
50¢ BURGERS
& DOGS
$1 WINE COOLERS
WEATHER PERMITTING

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02
FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21f)

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (71f)

TWO-BEDROOM furnished apartment across street from Ahearn. Available October 1st. Phone 776-7559. (20-24)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03
FREE RENT last month of yearly lease. Nine or twelve-month lease. Available now. No pets. 537-8389. (21f)

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (21f)

PRIVATE, ONE-bedroom, no pets, $210. Call 776-0181. (21f)

ROOMMATE NEEDED: $125/month, own room, very nice. Call 539-5406. (23-27)

TWO-BEDROOM, 727 Leavenworth #2, available Sept. 30. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 537-3186. (23-29)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1981 CHEVETTE. New brakes, air, FM/cassette, 59,000 miles. Priced to sell. Call Jarmel: 539-2301. (16-25)

1979 FIAT station wagon, excellent condition, $1,300. Phone 537-4626. (20-24)

1969 MUSTANG, very good condition. Call 776-3758 after 5:30 p.m. (20-24)

MOVING SALE, 1976 Plymouth (Valiant), automatic, in very good condition except rust in some unimportant areas, 86,000 miles. Only $300. 539-6705. Keep trying. (22-24)

1975 VEGA hatchback. Runs, needs work. $200. 776-0240. (22-24)

1982 FIREBIRD, 59,000 miles, 350, all power, IIII cruise, new tires, real sharp, $6,000. 537-4420. (22-25)

MUST SELL: 1976 Ford Mustang, V-8, automatic, power steering, brakes, $850 or best offer. 539-1766. (23-25)

CHILD CARE 07

BABYSITTER NEEDED in my home for 13-month-old evenings and weekends. Must have own transportation. Non-smoker, call 539-8447. (22-25)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN $HUNDREDS weekly in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A.—24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #308, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your fall class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. We prefer to hire work study students and students who are eligible to work 30 hours per week. Food Handler's Card a must. (15-25)

WORK STUDY student to work 10-20 hours a week with university outreach/conference coordinator. Attention to detail, and written and oral communication skills are necessary. Typing and/or word processing experience is required. Position offers good background experience for students in areas of management, marketing, business, education, and conference planning. For more information call 532-5575 (ask for Debi) or stop by the Wareham Building, 1823 Anderson Ave. Application deadline is Sept. 25. (17-24)

MAKE $4,600 monthly stuffing envelopes. For details, send self-addressed stamped envelope to Adeela, P.O. Box 2142, Stillwater, OK 74076. (16-27)

MCDONALD'S AT 815 N. Third is looking for hard-working, motivated energetic people. Breakfast and all-day shift positions are available. The hours are very flexible. Please apply in person. Applications will be taken at your convenience on the 24th. (22-23)

STUDENT SWITCHBOARD operator to work Monday through Friday, 2 to 6 p.m. Applications will be accepted until Friday, 5 p.m., Room 114, East Stadium, by Betty Bubendorf. AA/EOE. (22-24)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work: electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

BANQUET SET up/janitor person. Part-time evenings and weekends. Apply in person, 418 Poyntz. (21-25)

ROCK BAND seeking lead singer. Zeppelin, Stones, Aerosmith, etc. Experience, time, energy required. Call 776-7319. (21-24)

KSU STUDENT employees needed residence hall food centers, $3.35 per hour. The residence hall foodservice centers are hiring student employees. You may choose your hours within the time periods students are needed. Work anywhere from 3 to 20 hours per week—your choice! Jobs still available in Food Production, Service, and Sanitation. No night work (finished by 7:45 p.m. at the latest), every other weekend assigned, and no holiday work expected. Call Pat, 532-6483 (Derby Food Center), Mary, 532-6484 (Boyd Food Center), Sherry, 532-6482 (Kramer Food Center). (21-24)

PART-TIME MOTOR route carrier needed. Hours 2 to 7 a.m. Must have economical, dependable transportation. Only dependable, responsible people need apply. 539-7900. (21-25)

HARDEE'S OF Aggieville is taking applications for delivery drivers, day or night time hours, full or part-time. Can earn five to six dollars per hour. (21-24)

STUDENT DISPATCHER/operator, 15-20 hours per week starting Oct. 1. Students with employment potential of two years will be given preference. Must be willing to work evenings, holidays, summer months, weekends and school recesses. Ranking factors such as GPA, general employment experience as a dispatcher and/or computer operator will be considered. Computer science major not necessary. Applications will be accepted until Thursday, 5 p.m., Sept. 24, Room 23, Cardwell Hall, by Jacques Meisner. AA/EOE. (21-23)

GARAGE AND YARD SALES 11

GARAGE SALE—Car seats, VCR, color TV, winter clothes and coats, sewing machine cabinet, kitchen items. Saturday, 7 a.m.-1 p.m., 3211 Valleydale. (23-24)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

MULTI-BEDROOM HOUSE, stove, refrigerator, central air, fireplace, laundry hookups, garage. Call 537-8389. (11f)

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

THREE-BEDROOM, stove, refrigerator, laundry hook-ups. Available now. No pets. Call 539-5562. (23-24)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

8' x 25' IN Green Valley Trailer Court. $1,000. 539-4205. Keep trying. (19-23)

NICE, CLEAN, 12 x 65, two-bedroom mobile home, air conditioner and furniture if desired, on large shaded lot. 539-5778. (21-24)

MOBILE HOME 12 x 60, $4,500. Northview. Call after 6 p.m., 539-3862. (22-23)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND, ONE kitten about four to six months old, black with white markings on paws. With white flea collar. Write Collegian, Box 11. (21-23)

FOUND—ONE earring between Dickens and Bluemont Halls. Claim by identifying, 261 Bluemont. (23-25)

FOUND: JEAN jacket with keys on sidewalk in front of Weber Saturday. Call Judd at 539-7561. (23-25)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., St. Mary's Surplus Sales, St. Mary's, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records, Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

1976 YAMAHA 175 Enduro. Low miles, excellent condition, great transportation, $400 or best offer. 537-9433. (19-23)

RALEIGH RACER USA, competition 14-speed geometry, 61.5 cm frame, yellow on white colors. $300 or best offer. 537-0162. (20-24)

1984 SHADOW 500. In prime condition. Must sell soon. $1,300 negotiable. Call Ron after 7 p.m. at 532-5277. (21-25)

MUST SELL! 1982 Kawasaki LTD 550, 3,000 miles, garaged, in excellent condition, Vetter helmets. Interested? Call 776-5926. (22-26)

1982 HONDA XL 100. 500 miles. Great school bike. Call 539-3719 evenings. (23-27)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

Hayes House of Music
DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

ROCK BAND seeking lead singer. Zeppelin, Stones, Aerosmith, etc. Experience, time, energy required. Call 776-7319. (21-24)

DRUM EQUIPMENT for sale: Ludwig 14" and Ultra-sound 14" snares. Peavy 50W bass amplifier. All excellent shape. 539-1697 or 539-2328. (22-24)

ALTO SAXOPHONE, Conn student model, good condition. Assessed at $425, will sell for $350. 532-3508. (22-26)

PERSONALS 18

PLP: THANKS for being my best friend, my companion, my lover, my man. You're the best! I'm looking forward to your future. LLP. (23)

BETA BUDDY. Happy 21st! This is your fourth birth day we've celebrated together. They've been wonderful just like all the days between. Thankfully we're finally together at KSU—things couldn't be more perfect. I love you, your Pi Phi pal. (23)

MIMI, WSU Tri Delta misses you and looks forward to seeing you. Geri. (23)

PAULA, YOU are beautiful, caring and wonderful. I am glad we have had a year and a half together. I love you so much! Kevin. (23-24)

AMBER: GOOD luck on the U.S. Politics test. From the guy in the yellow sweatshirt. (23)

AXO—KAREN A, I'm so proud you are my new daughter! I know this year will be filled with fun and surprises. —Love, your new Mom, Andrea. (23)

PIKE'S PIG and Bill—Jamin' O we'll be jammin' with you. Drinking a little "Red red wine" in our Bob Marley "docs." Yes this is a little early we know it's true, but there's no Friday school for you. It's Reggae Republic not the "Banana"—so get psyched because your dates look like Daryl Hanna! Eek! Love, Beth and Lynette. (23)

AXO KRISTA—I'm so glad to have you for my pledge daughter. Get excited for a great year and remember: your Mommy loves you. AX Love, and mine, Nancy. (23)

FILLS SEAN, Ron, Bill and Sean—Thanks so much for coming to watch the football game Tuesday night. AXO KB. (23)

AXO CINDY—Life in Alpha Chi is going to be wild, welcome to the family my little child, Love, Stephanie. (23)

CATHY—I will always love you. Please give me another chance to show you. Love, Ken. (23)

HIGGY MONSTER—This would have made 16 for us, we still have things we should discuss. Long distance love deserves a chance, it might take only one slow dance. Always, Baby Doll. (23)

PETS AND PET SUPPLIES 19

READY NOW! For sale AKC Cocker Spaniel puppies. Very cute. Call evenings and weekends. 776-7262. (22-24)

YOUNG FERRETS for sale, can deliver. Active, playful, easy care, have shots. (316) 653-2675, after 6 p.m. (23-24)

DOMESTIC HAND-fed Senegal parrot. One left, $150. Very tame. 456-2470, Warnego. (23-27)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11f)

ARE YOU CREATIVE

Decisive, Confident, Know your related occupation field. Find out for sure by Handwriting Analysis. Write Mr. Long, 333 N. Valley, KCK 66102

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11f)

PARTY PIC REORDER DAYS

It's your final chance to order party pics from previous events!

SEPTEMBER 23, 24 & 25

11-4:30 p.m.

• no minimum purchase

• no reorder fee

UNIVERSITY PHOTOGRAPHY

711 N. 12th in Aggieville

537-8041

RENTALS 21

SUPPLIES: PRINTER/typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville. 539-7931. (11f)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

EXPERIENCED TYPIST will do any size typing jobs. Call Mary after 5 p.m. at 537-0456. (20-24)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro. 537-7294. (22-24)

PAPERS, RESUMES, cover letters, theses and dissertations entered, stored and completed to your specifications. Letter-quality printer. Come see us. Ross Secretarial Services, 614 N. 12th (across from Kite's), 539-5147. (23-32)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

ONE OR two non-smoking female to share farm-house. Prefer vet or animal science majors. Free stall and pasture for horse, cow, dog, Beef, eggs, firewood furnished, own bedroom. 776-1205, 8-10 p.m. only. (18-27)

ROOMMATES NEEDED, individual rooms, all benefits of a house. $135/month. 776-7905. (20-24)

FEMALE NON-SMOKING, studious, yet fun roommate to share two-bedroom furnished apartment. $150/month, one block east of campus. Nice landlords, call 537-8552 after 5 p.m. (21-24)

TWO ROOMMATES needed. Three-bedroom house, $150/month. 539-7002. (22-24)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
11 Soph's home
5 Detroit product
8 Pollution problem
12 Verdi piece
13 Deceit
14 O'Hara home
15 Rhett's last word
16 TV alien
17 Exploits
18 "Dynasty" nasty
20 NFL team
22 1984 Jack Lemmon film
26 Jordanian capital
29 Four-in-hand
30 Numero
31 College VIP
32 One Cartwright
33 Nick's dog
34 Beast of burden
35 Pub quaff
36 Cornered
37 Aimed at the general public

DOWN
1 Ernst's art
2 Spoken
3 Frost
4 Irish Sea islander
5 Category
6 Be
7 Song section
8 Baffle
9 She kneads you
10 Mine output
11 Mine hazard
19 Author Fleming
21 Be Little?

Solution time: 26 mins.

Yesterday's answer 9-24

CRYPTOQUIP

9-24
N X N J A - X S I S I T Y S J U -
Y S T O Q U J L U I Q U J A O B W U -
Q B X I L O N P P B Y Y P N W U -
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: SAID NOAH, ON A HECTIC DAY: "WE'RE FAIRLY FLOODED WITH CALLS."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: I equals N

Machine makes, bakes bread

By The Collegian Staff
A new high-tech Japanese appliance may soon replace Grandma when it comes to making home-made bread.

The Department of Grain Science and Industry has recently obtained a home bread-making unit that can mix dough, ferment and bake all in the same chamber.

"You can add a mix or your own bread recipe in the chamber and in four and a half hours it will produce a one-pound loaf of bread," said Joseph Ponte, professor in the department of grain science and industry.

Ponte said this is a marked improvement in bread making, considering in the past the process has been an all-day ordeal.
"One of the machine's advantages is that it can be programmed 13 hours in advance," Ponte said. "You can set the timer so that the machine will start up in the middle of the night. Then you can wake up to homemade bread for breakfast."

"You can add a mix or your own bread recipe in the chamber and in four and a half hours it will produce a one-pound loaf of bread."

—Joseph Ponte

Ponte said Kimio Tsuchiya, a K-State graduate student who is on work leave from the Nippon Milling Co. of Japan, obtained the machine for the department.
"His company kindly sent us the home-baking unit which is made by the Sanyo Electronic Co.," Ponte said.
According to a Sept. 8 article in the "Milling and Baking Digest," Matsushita Electronic Corp. of America, a subsidiary of Matsushita Electronic Industrial Co. Ltd., will make its Panasonic Bread Bakery available in the United States in October. The compact, home-baking unit will suggestively retail at $329.
The article also said Toshiba America Inc. and Sanyo Electronic Co. have not decided if they will make their units available in the U.S. market. These companies think the machine's high price and large size may hinder sales.

Kimio Tsuchiya, graduate student in grain science, works with the home bread-making unit which can mix dough, ferment and bake all in the same chamber.

Rural ambulance training debated

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Lawmakers examined Wednesday the need for continued training for rural Kansas ambulance attendants and whether the state should require each county to develop a plan for providing emergency services.
The issues, legislators agreed, are thorny ones.
"Across the nation, everybody is struggling with training for rural areas," said Janet Head, associate director-instructor of Emergency Medical Services at the University of Kansas Medical Center in Kansas City, Kan.

The interim Committee on Local Government, whose chairman is Rep. Ivan Sand, R-Riley, also is taking a look at broader issues surrounding emergency services.

Weber

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9

winner to accept losing.
In his first season as a part-time defensive back, the 'Cats went 4-7. He was redshirted his sophomore year and was forced to sit out the 1982 season with a severe knee injury. That was when K-State made its first and only bowl appearance.
K-State went 3-8 in 1983 with Weber taking over the quarterbacking duties midway through the season. In 1984, K-State was 3-7-1 with Weber as the starting quarterback.
"It hurts that we didn't accomplish what we wanted to in football, but then again I'll never regret going to school there," Weber said.
Weber was never an All-Big Eight performer, but was described by a local sports writer as "making the most of every ability he had." Besides rushing for 113 yards against Nebraska, Weber said recovering from a serious injury was another milestone in his career.
"With that (injury), the doctors didn't know for sure if I would ever play again. I just thank God that he gave me the opportunity. It was in his hands and he determined that I could come back. Other people have the same injury and are not so fortunate," he said.

As for the 1987 version of the Wildcats, Weber said he believes the overall talent has dropped since his playing days. But he added that mental attitude is just as important as physical ability.
"If this team can keep their mind straight and turn their attitudes toward...believing in each other, I think they can accomplish anything," Weber said.
Weber also said the team can actually gain from the season-opening loss to Division I-AA member Austin Peay.
"They (Austin Peay) were so excited like it was the Super Bowl because they wanted to come and upset us, and they took the attitude of the aggressor because they had nothing to lose," Weber said.
"That's the thing I think we need to do. We're going to be the underdogs in almost every game....Why don't we learn from Austin Peay and walk on with an attitude of 'Hey, we have nothing to lose. We came to spoil your party.'"
K-State Coach Stan Parrish has likened the task of playing Saturday at Iowa to the Allies landing at Normandy Beach.

CLIP, KEEP

& SAVE

ALL WEEK

SONY.

SONY SRF-F1 SPORTSBAND WALKMAN

- FM stereo tuner
- Clips on to any standard sweatband
- Ultra-compact—1/2" thick, 1.4 oz.
- Water-resistant design, ideal for a wide range of sports
- Miniature in-the-ear headphones
- Headband and armband supplies
- DCDC charger supplied

$49<sup>88</sup>

See ad on page 6 for our specials.

ROLLING THUNDER

1126 Moro 776-5507

Speedy FREE Delivery

ONE MEDIUM TWO TOPPING PIZZA

$6<sup>50</sup>

WE DELIVER ALL DAY EVERY DAY FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

539-4888

"We Pile It On!"

Now Accepting Visa & MasterCard

Now Serving Thin Crust

Speedy FREE Delivery

ONE LARGE TWO TOPPING PIZZA

$7<sup>99</sup>

WE DELIVER ALL DAY EVERY DAY FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE

539-4888

"We Pile It On!"

Now Accepting Visa & MasterCard

Now Serving Thin Crust

512 Poyntz Ave. Manhattan, Kansas 66502

Crum's beauty college

1/2 OFF Haircut

Mon.-Fri. 10:30 a.m. Appointments ONLY with this coupon

Expires 10-1-87

776-4794

JOYCE'S HAIR

PERM SALE

Gals	Reg.	Now
Apple Pectin	$40	$30
Axiom	$45	$35
Warm & Gentle	$48	$38
Feels So Lively	$35	$25

All Perms Include Cut and Style

539-TAME or 539-8601

Expires 10/7/87

Guys

Curly	$25
Body	$28
Partial	$20

404 Humboldt

Kentucky Fried Chicken.

2 pieces of chicken, biscuit, potatoes & gravy

for only $1.79 with coupon

901 N. 3rd 3002 Anderson

Offer expires Sept. 30

We Do Chicken Right.

1st Visit Free coupon

3232 Kimball—Candlewood Center

The Slender You No-Sweat Workout increases your flexibility, and reduces stress as you take off inches. Exercise doesn't have to be painful and exhausting to be effective. Pay as you go. No membership fee required.

Call Slender You Today 776-3308

Your First Visit's Free

A Buck a Bind for spiral or velo binding with a card stock cover.

Only one coupon per visit Expires 10/1/87

kinko's

Great copies. Great people.

1110 Laramie 537-7340

Mon.-Thur. 7:30-Midnight Fri. 7:30-7 Sat. 9-5 Sun. 10-Midnight

70¢

ENJOY A WHOLE RUNZA SANDWICH AT HALF PRICE!!

Just ... 70¢ (with coupon) regularly $1.40!!

Taste and savor our mouth-watering Runza sandwich on your next visit. It's a delicious blend of ground beef, cabbage, onion and special spices ... baked inside homemade bread

Expires 10/1/87

One coupon per customer per visit. Not valid with any other offer. Come on and get a taste. 10:30 a.m.-9 p.m.

1101 Moro Manhattan

RUNZA DRIVE INN RESTAURANT

70¢ OFF Reg. $3.69 Now $2.99

Cajun Shrimp Dinner

Dinner includes lots of spicy shrimp, fries & fresh cole slaw.

Coupon valid Sun. thru Wed. only. Good at participating shoppes.

LONG JOHN SILVER'S SEAFOOD SHoppES

Not valid with any other coupon or discount

721 S. 3rd 776-9363

Offer Expires 9/30/87

Opening Show

The K-State Players' "A Season to Applaud" raises its curtain this week with the opening of their first play, "On the Verge." See Page 7.

Weather

Mostly sunny today, high around 80. Mostly clear tonight, low in low to mid-50s. Mostly sunny Saturday, high in low 80s.

ers John Williams and Van Hughes this Saturday at Iowa. See Page 11.

Friday
September 25, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 24

Kansas State Collegian

Senate fails to pass increase for Holton renovation project

By Jim Dietz
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate failed to pass a bill that would increase the Holton Hall renovation budget to $1.069 million Thursday in a 23-22 vote. Adoption of this bill required a two-thirds majority — or 31 senators in favor.

After a lengthy debate ending at 11:35 p.m., Senate decided to halt discussion about other funding options for the Holton Hall project.

"We are not abandoning our commitment to Holton Hall," said Dan Owens, senior in economics and student senator. "I will pursue a bill and have it ready for next week's meeting. This is the most important issue we're going to deal with this semester."

During debate, Owens proposed an alternative plan that would use the money paid into the institutional support fee by adding it to the original commitment of $780,000. In this way, "part of the money would be from the administration," Owens said.

Due to adjustments in the Holton Hall plans to cover inflation and additional safety and access standards, architects have now estimated that the complete renovation proposal would cost $1.069 million.

Two bills were proposed by senators. The first bill would install the $1.069 million plan and renovate the entire Holton Hall. The second option called for a student referendum to decide if the money allocated by Senate should be spent on Holton Hall.

After some debate, the second bill was eliminated from consideration, and senators discussed

See SENATE, Page 14

Teams prepare for meets

Staff/Steve Wolgast

Mark Frisbie and George Lorette, juniors in animal science, and Kim O'Brien, senior in animal science, evaluate cuts of pork. Since Weber

Hall, the team's indigenous workout area, is being renovated, the team travels to meat packing plants for practices.

Vessel explodes, sinks in Gulf; 4 thought dead

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Shipping experts said Thursday that a small research vessel exploded and sank in the northern Persian Gulf, supporting the U.S. Navy's contention that Iran has seeded the busy waterway with mines.

American and Kuwaiti officials meanwhile denied reports that one, and possibly two, U.S.-escorted convoys were steaming through the gulf. Also Thursday, Iraq's official news agency said Iraqi warplanes flew 96 combat missions into Iran during the day and that Iran had shelled the port city of Basra, killing 12 civilians. Iran's official news agency denied the report.

Lloyd's Shipping Intelligence Service in London, which monitors shipping around the world, said the 180-ton research survey vessel Marissa exploded and sank early Tuesday.

The sketchy Lloyd's report said there were three survivors and four "casualties," apparently meaning fatalities. Gulf-based shipping executives said the vessel sank without sending any distress signal.

On Monday, a British tanker was ambushed in the same area and U.S. helicopters attacked and disabled an Iranian landing craft caught laying mines 130 miles to the southeast.

American warships and helicopters spent a third day sweeping central gulf waters off Bahrain for mines believed planted by the Iranian vessel, Iran Ajr.

The United States began in July to escort 11 reflagged Kuwaiti tankers to protect them from Iran, which considers Kuwait an ally of Iraq.

The reflagged Kuwaiti tanker Bridgeton hit a mine on July 24 while under U.S. escort, but U.S. Navy searches for mines since then have found no mines.

Senior U.S. officers have said repeatedly that they knew the location of Iranian minefields and have steered the convoys away from those areas.

Iran has said it mined its own waters for defensive purposes but officials in Tehran, and Iranian President Ali Khamenei at the United Nations, denied that the Iran Ajr was sowing explosives in gulf shipping channels.

Five Iranians were reported killed and 26 others, four of them wounded, were pulled from the water. Ten mines were found on the ship's deck, ready for dropping in the water.

President Reagan, again rejecting congressional calls for curbs on U.S. military action in the gulf, defended the attack and said his administration considers "this incident as closed."

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who was to arrive in Saudi Arabia Friday for a five-day visit to the region, said some of the Iranians detained had given information to help in the mine search.

Pentagon sources said the Iranian ship also yielded intelligence data, including a chart showing mine-free routes through the gulf.

See GULF, Page 14

Judging challenging, coach says

By Debbie Lyons
Collegian Reporter

The senior livestock judging team will compete against five other teams in its first meet Saturday at the Kansas Junior Livestock Show in Wichita.

Both the livestock and meats judging teams have been practicing since the beginning of the semester and are ready for their first competition, said Dave Nichols, livestock judging coach.

During the livestock competition, team members judge 12 groups of four animals, evaluating and ranking them according to industry standards. Each judge must make an oral presentation of his decisions on eight of the 12 groups to explain the rankings to an official.

"Judging provides tremendous communication training and persuasion training," Nichols said. "He (the judge) sells how he placed the class."

Nichols said the team members have to work hard.

"I know I demand a lot, but I truly believe that if they're going to be competitive, that's what it takes," he said.

Nine students are vying for the five positions on the livestock judging team, Nichols said.

The meats team is required to rank nine groups of four carcasses or wholesale cuts and give written reasons on five of the nine sets, defending the rankings. Besides the nine groups, there are 15 beef carcasses to be quality and yield graded, and 10 wholesale cuts to be evaluated based on USDA standards.

Unlike the livestock team, the meats team only has the required four members and, hence, is lacking in depth, said Michael Dikeman, meats coach. When a member is unable to compete, the team is disqualified.

Besides the lack of depth, Dikeman said the Weber Hall renovation project is another drawback for the team. It involves the renovation of the meats lab which is closed for the duration.

Since the team cannot work in Weber, it is forced to travel to packing plants in Kansas and Nebraska for its weekly workouts, Dikeman said.

The team should be competitive despite these problems, Dikeman said. They placed second twice and fourth once in last year's meets.

Students on judging teams learn valuable evaluation skills in their field and better communication skills, Dikeman said.

"Judging is a challenging, stimulating experience. It extends classroom training to real industry conditions and environments," he said.

"The students make friendships that will last them a lifetime," Nichols said.

This year the livestock team is assisted by Blake Flanders.

The livestock judging team practices inspecting sheep for fat and muscle. The team's first meet is Saturday.

K-State enrollment highest in 3 years

By Becky Lucas
Managing Editor

Monday marked the 20th day of enrollment at Kansas Regents schools — and the numbers at K-State looked good.

K-State reported a fall enrollment of 18,048 to the Regents Thursday, an increase of more than 2½ percent over 1986 fall enrollment figures of 17,599.

This semester's enrollment is the highest since 1984.

The total enrollment increase included a 24 percent increase in new freshmen on campus and a 20 percent increase in new on-campus undergraduate students at all levels.

"It's really good news for Kansas State and the state of Kansas," President Jon Wefald said.

He said not only is the number of freshmen up 24 percent, but an additional encouraging factor is that the quality of the freshman class is up from previous years.

"We have the best freshman class to ever enroll at KSU," Wefald said.

He said the class is composed of many valedictorians and salutatorians, debaters, 37 National Merit Scholars — more than a 100 percent increase from 1986 — and 104 out of 355 Kansas high school Governor's Scholars, which is the largest number of Governor's scholars to attend a Kansas university.

"It breaks a trend the University was under for three years," said John Fairman, assistant vice president of University relations. "Last year the numbers stabilized, and this year they increased."

Fairman attributes the enrollment increase to two factors: communicating to potential students what K-State has to offer and an increased retention of students, according to preliminary data.

The increased communication includes publications sent to prospective students and the admissions representatives.

"This has created more awareness and interest in K-State," Fairman said.

The increased sensitivity to the needs of students, including programs that help advise students on where they can go for assistance, has helped in retention, he said.

"A trend I see developing in the past two years is an improvement in the quality (of students)," Fairman said.

He added that attracting the best prepared students only improves the overall classroom situation.

"In terms of new students, all colleges showed an increase ranging from 22 in the College of Agriculture to 193 in the College of Arts and Sciences," he said.

Fairman said because enrollment has increased this fall, the University will be forced to approach the state Legislature in January and request additional fees generated by the increased students.

"We're asking for an extra $300,000 to cover shortfalls we have," Fairman said.

"I think we have a good chance for the tuition fee release," Wefald said.

The University is requesting a fee release associated with the increase of 367 students over the budgeted student numbers of 17,285, said Tom Schellhardt, assistant vice president of administration and finance.

The student fee portion of the 1987-88 University's general fund budget was based on the 1987 fall enrollment of 17,285 on the main campus, Schellhardt said. Students enrolled in the College of Veterinary Medicine are not included in these figures.

The number of students enrolled the 20th day on the main campus is

See NUMBERS, Page 10

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Hahn not forced, Wesley says

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Evangelist John Wesley Fletcher said Thursday he did not force Jessica Hahn to have sex with him and does not know if PTL founder Jim Bakker forced himself on her during a 1980 meeting in a Florida motel room.

"Much of what has appeared in magazines and other media has bared only half-truths," Fletcher said in a statement he read after testifying for three hours before a federal grand jury investigating the television ministry. "I told the whole truth, painful as it is.

"I did introduce Jessica Hahn to Jim Bakker, but I have no personal knowledge of what happened after I left," Fletcher said. "I forced no one to do anything." The statement didn't say whether he had sex with her and he refused to answer any questions about it.

Hahn, in an interview with Playboy magazine released this week, said Fletcher set up her meeting with Bakker and forced her to have sex with him after her sexual encounter with Bakker.

Bakker acknowledged the encounter with Hahn in March when he resigned from PTL and turned the ministry over to Jerry Falwell. But Bakker said Hahn seduced him.

Fletcher was asked on his way into the courthouse for a response to Hahn's comments in Playboy that he was "a sick man" who attacked her. Fletcher did not respond, but his attorney, John Norman, sought out the reporter who asked the question after Fletcher had testified.

"When Jessica said that about John Wesley — did she have her clothes on or off?" Norman asked, referring to Hahn's seminude photographs in the magazine. "And was it before or after she got her million dollars?"

Amish concerned by highway

INTERCOURSE, Pa. — Despite being surrounded by sightseers and tourist traps, Pennsylvania's Amish farmers usually manage to avoid the politics and controversy of the rest of the world. Now, a proposal for a four-lane highway through their farmland has stirred them to action.

"I can't buy an argument that puts traffic ahead of farms," said Dave King, an Amish farmer from Gap, dropping the normal rule of public silence at a hearing Wednesday.

Traditionally the Amish tend to avoid involvement with the world outside their community, gathering in large numbers only for funerals, auctions or barn raisings.

But the highway issue was enough to bend tradition when the state scheduled a hearing Wednesday night. The state is considering six possible routes for a new $100 million, four-lane highway east of Lancaster, three of which would cut right through the 800 Amish farms around Intercourse.

Celebration of anniversary

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — Britain's Queen Elizabeth will visit the Netherlands next year to mark the 1688 Dutch military intervention in Britain that led to the end of royal absolutism there, a Dutch royal house spokesman said Thursday.

No date has been set, but the visit is part of the celebrations surrounding the 300th anniversary of the invasion of Britain by Dutch leader Willem III, which kicked off the so-called "Glorious Revolution."

The events 300 years ago are seen as the starting point of modern democracy in Britain. Their anniversary is to be celebrated in the Netherlands and Britain.

Prison population increases

TOPEKA — The state's prison population continues to grow at a dramatic rate state Department of Corrections officials could not have predicted based on past performance, a legislative committee was told Thursday.

In a memo to the Joint Committee on State Building Construction, Corrections Secretary Richard Mills said that during the fiscal year that ended June 30, the population grew by a rate nearly double that of the agency's projections.

"This dramatic jump in the prison population growth rate could not have been predicted based upon the previous five years of actual data upon which the Department of Corrections' population projects are based," Mills said in the memo.

As of Monday, Mills said, the state's prisons were housing 5,603 inmates, or 579 more than the amounts than the systems buildings are designed to hold. In the last fiscal year, the inmate population grew by an average of 55 prisoners a month, Mills said.

In the past, corrections officials have credited tougher sentencing laws, along with tough parole guidelines, with helping spur the increase.

They also have told the Legislature the prison system needs more money for drug and alcohol abuse and mental health counseling so that prisoners can fulfill requirements for parole.

Selleck owns more than cap

DETROIT — Tom Selleck, television's "Magnum P.I.," has become a Detroit Tigers stockholder, the owner of the baseball team said Thursday.

Thomas Monaghan said he gave Selleck 10 shares of secondary stock in the team during a trip last month to Hawaii, where he visited the set of Selleck's show.

The Tigers are privately held, and Monaghan owns 97 percent of the stock. A spokeswoman for Monaghan, Betsy Kanitz, said the value of the stock given to Selleck would not be revealed.

But she said, "He was very ecstatic about receiving it." Selleck has sometimes worn a Tigers baseball cap in "Magnum" episodes, and Tigers Alan Trammell and Lou Whitaker have appeared on the show.

'Airwolf' star forced to land

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Jan-Michael Vincent, star of the U.S. television series "Airwolf," was on a helicopter forced to land at Kruger National Park, it was reported Thursday.

Vincent, 42, is visiting South Africa with his wife, Joanne, on a promotional tour for the Checkers supermarket chain.

The Star newspaper, the country's biggest daily, quoted Vincent as saying upon his arrival Sunday, "I wanted to come to South Africa and they paid."

The Vincents were passengers in the helicopter flying to a game reserve Tuesday night, the South African Press Association reported. A secretary and public relations officer were also in the helicopter when bad weather, darkness and a dwindling fuel supply forced the pilot to land near a lodge in Kruger, the largest game reserve in South Africa, "resulting in a few anxious moments," the news agency said.

The group then completed the trip to Sabi Sabi by road.

Checkers last year bought the "Airwolf" helicopter from the company that produced the show and had been using it in promotions since the program began appearing on South African television.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

APPLICATIONS FOR STUDENT LECTURERS are available in Anderson 112, New Students Programs. Deadline for submitting them has been extended to Sept. 30.

ARTS AND SCIENCES COUNCIL applications for the arts and sciences council are now available in Eisenhower Dean's office. They are due Sept. 28.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "On The Verge" by Eric Overmeyer at 8 p.m. on Sept. 24-26, 30 and Oct. 1-3 at Nichols Theatre.

TODAY

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Charles D. Lambert at 10 a.m. in Waters 329. The dissertation topic is: "Economic Impacts On The U.S. Wheat Sector of Alternative Export Demand Scenarios and Stocks Management Programs Utilizing PIK Marketing Certificates."

STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK will have a display of a wrecked car in the Union courtyard from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. to promote the importance of wearing seatbelts.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF CHEMICAL ENGINEERS (AICHE) meets at 5 p.m. at Tuttle Creek Shelter #4.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213. The topic will be, "Costs and Rewards of Commitment."

SATURDAY

STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK meets at 9 a.m. in Union Forum Hall. Robert Anastas, founder of SADD, is the speaker.

K-STATE PLAYERS meet for a carwash at 9 a.m. at Manhattan Derby at 3rd and Bluemont streets.

NIGERIAN STUDENTS UNION meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 208.

LAMBDA CHI LITTLE SISTERS participating in the Pike Little Sister Olympics meet at 1 p.m. at Lambda Chi house.

SUNDAY

ORTHODOX CHRISTIANS ON CAMPUS meet at 4 p.m. at Tuttle Creek for a fall picnic.

COLLEGE OF HUMAN ECOLOGY COUNCIL meets at 4:45 p.m. in front of Justin Hall to drive to Tuttle Creek.

Notice

The Convocation Lecture with Noam Chomsky scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Monday has been postponed. Attempts are being made to reschedule the lecture at a later date, said Cornelia Flora, head of the Convocation Series.

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

TAKE A CLASSY DATE
TO A CLASSY PLACE
PUTT PUTT GOLF COURSE

ALL
PREMIUM
WELL
Scotch•Bourbon•
Vodka•Gin•Rum
premium liquors
at well prices

plus
TGIF SPREAD
an Hors d'oeuvre buffet
8 varieties
4-7 p.m.

THE COTTON
CLUB

SPAGHETTI
SUNDAY

ALL YOU
CAN EAT
SPAGHETTI
AND GARLIC
BREAD!!
ONLY $3.25
SERVING 5-8 p.m.

SUNDAY LUNCH TOO

THE KITE'S
BAR AND GRILLE
619 N. 12TH, Aggieville

Piñata
Restaurante

CHILE RELLENOS

In English a Chile Relleno means a "stuffed pepper." Ours is a mild Anaheim pepper stuffed with cheese, breaded, & then deep-fried. We then smother it in chili sauce & melt Cheddar cheese on top. Mmmmm! A lettuce salad and a side of rice, sour cream, & salsa finish the meal. This is a truly special taste treat—only at PINATA!

1219 Bluemont
(913) 539-3166

Open Daily
11 a.m.

The Fishbowl is Back!
GRAND OPENING
Sat., Sept. 26, open 10 a.m.
•Prizes•Drink
& Fishbowl Specials
•Giveaways•Lots of Fun
105 N. 3rd•Downtown•539-9904

Beautiful Colors,
Unique Styles,
Great Selection.

A whole wall of sweaters to choose from.

the casual encounter
-men's fashion clothing-
1208 Moro in Aggieville

SPECIAL!

$9.99
Reg. $14.99

ARECA PALM
WEEDING FIG

4 ft. tall in 10" pot
PLANT TULIPS!!
10 bulbs for $1.00
Fresh Cut Flowers
$3.99
Chrysanthemum
"Fall Colors" Bouquet

Eastside & Westside Market
east of Manhattan on Hwy. 24 • West Ft. Riley Blvd.

In Bradley's shoes

President-for-a-day Carolyn Cawley, junior in journalism and mass communications and french, discovers what the job of student body president entails from Robert Krause, vice president of Institutional Advancement, and Kent Bradley, student body president, Thursday afternoon.

Cawley is president-for-a-day

By Nancy Hill
Collegian Reporter

Many students wonder what it would be like to be student body president. Carolyn Cawley, junior in journalism and mass communications and modern languages, had that opportunity for one day.

Cawley began serving her term as student body president-for-a-day Thursday morning. Accompanied by Student Body President Kent Bradley, she toured the Student Governing Association office and Anderson Hall, where she met with administrators including Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement; Charles Reagan, assistant to the president; and President Jon Wefald. Cawley also toured Holton Hall, receiving background information on the renovation project which was discussed and voted upon in in Student Senate.

"I had no idea at all of what he (Kent Bradley) has to do. It's unbelievable," Cawley said. "I don't know how he handles both his office and school at the same time."

According to Bradley, the purpose of the president-for-a-day program is to increase student awareness of how student government is run, and of what student services are provided.

"A lot of people don't understand all the things student government has to deal with," Bradley said.

K-State credit cards a success; 4,000 applications distributed

By Brett Hacker
Collegian Reporter

Student response to the Wildcat VISA and MasterCard introduced in August was greater than was anticipated by the Student Alumni Board.

More than 4,000 applications were distributed, but exact figures will not be known until the 30-day processing time is up, said Kathy Peirce, chairwoman of the board's bankcard committee.

The University of Kansas and The Wichita State University will also be offering cards carrying their schools' mascot on them.

First Bank Card Center out of Wichita is the cards' backer, said Amy Button Renz, director of membership for the alumni association. The contract signed with First Bank was for a three-year term.

Applications are still available at the Hollis House, from alumni members or from Peirce at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house.

Students' cards have an $18 per year service charge and an annual interest rate of 17.8 percent. Sophomores or first-semester juniors are required to have a parent's signature, but upper-level students do not.

The association has had 7,451 cards approved since the beginning of the promotion in May. The project was selected by the association as a way to provide a service to the students and allow them to show their loyalty to K-State, said Renz.

"I think it (the cards) has been very successful, and I think that it's because it is such a good deal. It's not every day a student can get a credit card," Peirce said.

The average credit limit for students is expected to be $500, while alumni cards will vary on personal credit history.

The association's credit card promotion recruited 2,623 new members for the association, Renz said.

Members of the association receive 1-year free membership, and their card has an annual interest rate of 16.8 percent.

The association hopes students will become alumni members if for no other reason than to get the 1-year free service charge and the lower interest rate, said Renz.

The Alumni Association receives a percentage on the amount charged on each card, but Peirce said she's not allowed to tell the percentage.

'Care' program shows results

By Shawn Dorsch
Collegian Reporter

K-State Cares, the newly established phone calling outreach program to freshmen and transfer students, "has shown positive results," said John Flemming, assistant director of admissions.

There were about 3,700 students to contact, Flemming said. Ambassadors from each college who did the calling contacted about 40 percent of this population, another 25 percent will be contacted through a follow-up letter from admissions. The calling began Sept. 15.

Flemming said the off-campus students were the most difficult to get ahold of.

"We'd like to get ahold of them all, but it is just not possible," he said.

This is the first year for the K-State Cares program and "almost everybody reacted positively toward the phone calls," Flemming said.

One problem new students said they had experienced was overcrowded parking at the residence halls. Other than that, there were no complaints about the housing situations, Flemming said.

New students said classes causing the most trouble for them are the math and science classes, Flemming said.

"This is real typical for students to have trouble with these sorts of classes, because many aren't used to this higher level of education," he said.

Students did not have many problems with financial aid, Flemming said. He thinks this is because the financial aid situation had already been taken care of by the time the calls were made.

Most of the students called are pleased with K-State.

'OPUS' band competition today

By The Collegian Staff

Local bands have a chance to show off their stuff at the first "OPUS" band contest from 5 to 9 p.m. today on the north lawn of the K-State Union.

"OPUS" stands for a creative piece of work, especially a musical composition, said Union Program Council member Brad Mitchell, sophomore in business administration. He said the contest will be held in order to give local groups the chance to gain some exposure in the Manhattan area.

"It's the first contest of its kind at K-State," Mitchell said. "And it's loosely based on contests held in Boston, which have had great success."

The six bands competing are Cross Wind, Essential Sound Project, Moneytree, The Moving VanGoghs, That Statue Moved and Witness. Each group will perform three to five songs. Also, cash prizes will be awarded to the top three groups: first place — $300, second place — $200, and third place — $100.

Mitchell said there will be a variety of music played. However, the contest should mainly consist of "pop" music.

The contest is sponsored by the Union Program Council's Eclectic Committee, S.M. Hanson Music and KQLA-FM.

The Ladies Club

For Women Only!

Check It Out!

1104 Waters
Manhattan 776-6469

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS

egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

TONIGHT

Make reservations for dinner BEFORE the McCain concert
(seafood buffet or menu orders)

AFTER, come dancing to the sounds of
"Lite 'n' Lively"
(appearing Friday & Saturday night)

University Club

Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Green Thumb Bike Shop

1105 Waters St.

- Raleigh
- Centurion
- Diamond Back
- General
- G.T.

We service all brands
8-5:30 Mon.-Sat. 539-4751
12-5 Sun.
Just across from Alco

The Station

T G I F

FREE TGIF TERRIFIC BUFFET, JOIN MANHATTAN'S TGIF TRADITION!

No membership needed
For restaurant & bar!
Open To Public!

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

HUNAM Restaurant

1304 Westloop 539-8888
(10 % off with KSU ID)

FRIDAY TGIF

FREE TGIF TOSTADO BAR

50¢ PURPLE PASSION SHOTS

KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE

619 N. 12th, Aggieville

Reebok

Because life is not a spectator sport™

15% off

Regular Price
Our Entire Stock.

Workout Plus

Plus Sign-up for Free Shoes to be given away this week

BP
B
White

See our Complete Selection of Styles & Sizes

Brown's SHOE FIT COMPANY

311 Poyntz, Downtown

KSU WILDCAT

SOCCER

KSU vs KU

date: Saturday, Sept. 26
time: 1 p.m.
place: Old Stadium
COME SEE US

Week-end

Dark Horse

Shot Specials

CAUTION People at Play!

Bar 539-9081
Office 776-6638

They couldn't believe it! They wouldn't believe it!

and then it HAPPENED . . .

KSU Student Foundation's OozeBall

Now it will happen AGAIN! Sept. 26

Contributing Sponsors

KMKE 101+ MAC'S KITE'S McSteak KANSAS WYNDE

EVERYDAY IS TWOS-DAY!

Most restaurants have a "special of the day." That's okay if you want to wait a whole week for a good deal on your favorite meal.

But at Breadeaux, our Special is good everyday. Our pizzas are hot, zesty gourmet meals baked with the finest ingredients: 100% real cheeses, fresh vegetables and the best tasting meats you'll ever find. And when you buy a pizza at our regular price, you get your choice of another pizza of equal value FREE! No tricks. No gimmicks. Just a good, honest value. Everyday.

BREADEAUX PISA

within walking distance of most campus housing 1800 Clifton in FirstBank Center above Charlie's
776-5577

BUY ONE PIZZA GET ONE FREE

- Single Topping Pizza
- Bavarian Pizza
- B.L.T. Pizza
- Hawaiian Pizza
- Taco Pizza
- Bratburst Pizza
- Breadeaux Special Pizza

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, September 25, 1987 ■ Page 4

Tests bring out evil in nearly everyone

Dear Jeff,

I am going crazy. I am only half done with my first round of tests and I do not know if I will survive the other half. For the most part, I enjoy life at K-State. The student body and the faculty are usually very nice to me. But when I am studying for a round of tests, they all turn against me! All of my professors plot together in order to schedule my tests within the same 48-hour period. All of my friends plan their schedules so that none of them have any homework during my peak stress points. While I slave over my books, they taunt me. One will ask me to go to Aggieville. Another will take a nap in front of me. All brag about getting eight hours of sleep every night. Tests drive me crazy! What can I do?

Signed,
All Tested Out

Dear Tested Out,

You have my sympathy. I know you think the entire world is against you. It is not. I am sure that somewhere in this big wide world you could find someone who likes you when you are under stress. I suggest you find this person and marry him or her. Even if it means you would have to change your religion, nationality and/or gender. Then, you would have someone to talk to who actually cares.

In case the marriage does not work, let me suggest a few ways for you to relieve stress while preparing for your tests.

■ Close your books and meditate about a more stressful situation for a moment. Pretend you are trying to get into the "Guinness Book of World Records" by being the first person to swim across the Persian Gulf without a mine sweeper. Three tests in one day

Commentary

JEFF SCHRAG
Collegian
Columnist

may lead to an early death, but there are worse ways to die.

■ You feel stress because you think horrible things will happen if you do badly on a test. Stop studying for a moment and think of all the less fortunate people in the world. People who have no hope for today. People who have no hope for tomorrow — like all the democrats running for president.

At least you can drop out of a class and still retain your dignity.

■ Pretend that you are the James Bond of college education, and everyone in your class is a foreign agent trying to destroy truth, justice and the American way. The only way to stop these evil fiends is to effortlessly ace all of your tests. James Bond is never under stress when he saves the world. Why should you be?

Dear Jeff,

I have been a loyal fan of K-State football for a number of years. I buy season tickets. I cheer for us and boo for the other team. I have even gone to some away football games and worn purple, admitting that I support the Wildcats.

I am finally at the end of my rope. I am tired of the Wildcats' losing streak. My two favorite teams used to be K-State and whoever plays KU. Now I just root for whoever plays KU. I plan to abstain from rooting during the K-State-KU football game. Is there anything an ex-loyal fan can do to help one of his ex-favorite teams? Am I wrong to not give them 10 more chances? Am I the only one who feels this way? Will one of the team members threaten to crush my bones late one night at Country Kitchen because someone read my letter out loud to him?

Signed,
Blue Because of Purple Pride

Dear Blue and Prideless,

No. No. No. And I hope not.

Dear Jeff,

I was walking through the Union the other day and noticed several interesting things. Why does the Employee of the Year get a reserved parking space in the student section of the Union parking lot? Aren't there a lot of faculty/staff parking lots on campus? I never knew that the Union had a bowling alley. Do people actually bowl there? Why is the Union lucky enough to house the ugliest mobile in the world? Why would anyone put three eyes and a bunch of greek letters on a pseudo-wildcat? Are any tickets ever sold at the ticket office next to the Catskeller? Why is the first floor called the ground floor, the second floor called the first floor, and the third floor called the second floor? Do they have an interesting name for the roof?

Signed,

Puzzled over a Familiar Place

Dear Puzzled,

This was a slow week for letters. Nevertheless, I am very happy that you finally opened your eyes while walking through the Union. I can't wait to get another letter from you after you realize that the campus has trees, and the classrooms have desks.

Where do you want the Employee of the Year to park — in the University Inn parking lot? Maybe they could park in the bowling alley. Oh, I guess no one would be able to find it, especially if they renamed all the floors. I am sure that the Union Governing Board will form a "Rename the Floors and Creatively Name the Roof" committee as soon as they make up a batch of tickets to sell in the ticket office. I will also recommend that you receive the pseudo-wildcat mobile for your efforts. It is the least I can do for a concerned student such as yourself.

Students big winners in Senate's decision

Student Senate made one of the wisest decisions Thursday night it is likely to make all semester. After debate for several weeks, Senate opted to maintain its original commitment of $780,000 to the Holton Hall renovation project, about $290,000 less than the administration wanted.

The commitment, made in 1983, was based on the original estimates to renovate the building. The money has been generated by a per semester fee of $3 for full-time students and $1 for part-time students.

However, revised plans indicated that $1.069 million would be necessary to renovate the building. Based on that updated estimate, the building's architect and Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement, approached Senate and asked it to consider appropriating the additional money necessary.

Because Holton Hall primarily houses state-funded agencies, it would have been a mistake to ask for more of the students' money to fund a building very few students use.

It would have been an even graver mistake if Senate had decided to allocate the additional money without the students' approval. Senate was justified in underscoring that it made an original commitment of $780,000 — no more.

Now, the future of Holton really rests in the hands of the administration or the state. Students have already given a considerable amount of money to the building, and it would have been irresponsible to ask them for more.

And it certainly would have been obscene to force it upon them.

On this day, students can be proud of their campus representatives.

Stalling compact issue will only aggravate it

The Central Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact.

The name itself is a long and complicated mess. But then, that's what the entire process has become.

Once again, the decision as to which of the five states in the compact would become host to a nuclear waste dump was postponed as state officials failed to agree on criteria for site selection at their Sept. 22 meeting in Little Rock, Ark. Not surprising, considering the fact that the decision has already been put on hold for 6½ years. This time it was Nebraska's turn to complain. Nevertheless, the other four states in the compact — Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma — voted to allow U.S. Ecology, the developer, to go ahead and make the dreaded choice. The new date set for the decision is Nov. 16, commission members decided. But the question remains: How much longer is this going to go on?

Earlier this year, both Kansas and Nebraska threatened to withdraw from the compact when chances looked good for the site to be built in their states. Now Arkansas is trying the same tactics. Residents of an area that has been identified as a possible disposal site told commissioners

Tuesday they had begun a petition campaign for withdrawal. In the meantime Nebraska and Louisiana, the geographic poles of the compact area, argued that transportation factors should be included in choosing the site. Arkansas is the geographic center, they said.

As officials from each state continue to find reasons for the other states to host the dump site, fingers are pointing and tempers flaring. Obviously, no one wants a dump in their backyard. But in the midst of all the ruckus, people seem to be forgetting one important fact: That waste didn't get there by itself. Perhaps the simplest and most equitable solution would be for each state to be responsible for its own waste disposal. But this solution has hardly been considered.

Sooner or later, the issue must be dealt with. State officials must realize that they can't postpone the decision forever. What began as a possible solution to a controversial situation has turned into a five-state game of hot potato, with the players acting like spoiled children. Officials must realize that stalling the issue is not going to cool off the potato. It will only make it hotter.

Letters

Bork nomination

Editor,

The nomination of Judge Bork by President Reagan to succeed Judge Powell has certainly raised its share of passion. Unfortunately, much of the wind that has been fanning the flame of opposition has been based on naive generalizations. Rattan Nath's column published Sept. 23 was no exception.

While many of Judge Bork's detractors have surely not read any of his judicial opinions, it is increasingly evident that they also do not grasp the intended role of the judicial branch in the federal government, as delineated by the Constitution. Article 3 of the Constitution stipulates the role of the judiciary, and it is clearly the function of the judiciary to decide cases based on interpretation of constitutional law. Judges can do this only with a full appreciation of the Constitution as intended by its framers.

Judge Bork has been roundly criticized for his advocacy of judicial restraint and literal interpretation of the Constitution. Yet this judicial philosophy is precisely what the Constitutional Convention envisioned for the judicial branch. Were Bork's opponents versed in the Constitution, it would become apparent to them that Article 5 establishes the apparatus for changing the Constitution, and nowhere is redefinition of the Constitution left to judicial discretion. Furthermore, the judiciary is not free to develop legal opinion based on failure of the legislature to conform law to popular opinion.

Perhaps the supreme irony is that, generally, liberals are "anti-Bork" and conservatives are "pro-Bork." A justice like Bork who develops legal opinion based on constitutional authority and legal precedent will undoubtedly be preferential to the preservation of the liberalized legislation and judicial opinion of our recent history.

Bernard T. Giefer Jr.
graduate student, chemical engineering

'Man' not sexist

Editor,

Leigh Ann Wheeler seems to miss the point in her further arguments (Sept. 22) that the English language needs to be rid of its "sexist" elements.

I am always happy to be educated, even by a condescending teacher, and it's certainly fun to learn about all these wifmans (wifmen?) and waepmans (waepmen?) and things (I do wonder, though, how Shakespeare made himself understood if he were so far ahead of his time in using words like "man" and "woman").

It is not education, however, to be told that "...when 'man' was adopted as a specific term, it necessarily lost its generic meaning." This is pure propaganda. The evolution of a language follows no such clear-cut rules, and a person of Ms. Wheeler's obvious erudition should know this. If such an assertion were true, no word would have more than a single meaning.

My objection to Ms. Wheeler's goals is not based upon an ignorance or disapproval of evolution in English usage. Rather, I object to the attempt to subvert this normal process by official decree. As a history major, Ms. Wheeler is surely aware of many dark times when a government (or the church) had a virtual stranglehold on the speech and thoughts of the people. It disturbs me that a few supporters of the women's rights movement believe, firstly, that the English language is a real threat to their success, and secondly, that an official limitation on English usage is a step forward of any kind.

George R. Clark II
professor of geology

Letter misinforms

Editor,

Before printing another philological excursus by Ms. L.A. Wheeler, please insist on assurances that it is not so full of arrant nonsense as that appearing in Sept. 22 The Collegian. Whatever one may feel about the campaign to purge our native tongue of its allegedly sexist bias, the argument for doing so seems distinctly diminished when it is founded on misinformation such as that which Ms. Wheeler — a student of history, no less — provides about the history of the English language.

Her attempt to pillory ignorance of Chaucer goes awry, I fear, when she represents that esteemed poet in a language that can only be described as Thanksgiving-Pilgrimage. Furthermore, her observations about 17th-century English indicate that she can never have read anything written in that century, for had she done so, she would know that the curious forms "wifman" and "waepman" are nowhere to be found in English writings of that time.

Get thee to the Oxford English Dictionary, Ms. Wheeler, and perhaps to English 790 as well.

G.R. Keiser
professor of English

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR

Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR

John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291-020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kodzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kodzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Applicant for director details past experience

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

In an open meeting interview Thursday in the Union, budget director candidate Kenneth Stafford told eight people from University departments and offices about his past budgeting experience.

At the University of Idaho, Stafford is currently the fiscal office director of the College of Agriculture and is in charge of agriculture computer services. Stafford said he has held these positions for the past eight years.

Stafford said he is involved in the design of administrative data computer systems at the University of Idaho. He also designs management systems within the college.

The college also has an agriculture career service that includes computer training, personal computer labs for students and design programs for the staff at the university which Stafford said he helps plan and operate.

He said there are 51 computer systems in the state of Idaho which are connected to his computer system at the university.

Stafford said he also has budget writing experience. He said the University of Idaho's funds request is shorter because he has been able to "reduce the document from 100 pages to a six-page report."

Stafford said he is service-oriented to the university by "providing information to the university president, vice president, deans and the people who need information about the university."

"I see what they lack, and fix those problems," Stafford said. "I get into the planning of 'where we'll be in five years' at all levels."

Stafford said his past experience includes working with all state levels of computer systems. He said he also works with the college administration at all levels and knows the needs from the department levels up to the top.

Stafford said he doesn't know what he plans to bring to K-State because "I haven't seen any computers or any systems yet," he said. "I don't know what you have."

Reducing the size of the budget request document at K-State is one of his goals, Stafford said.

"It won't be a hassle since it is two-thirds computer-generated," he said.

He said he plans to put together computer systems and he has the knowledge of the needs and ways to put them together. He said he knows when a program can or cannot do something.

Nebraska center's expansion beneficial to K-State students

By Staff and Wire Reports

Expansion of an animal research center will enable veterinary medicine students from Kansas and Nebraska to receive clinical experience in genetics and population management.

The Roman L. Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center, Clay Center, Neb., will undergo a $3 million expansion beginning in March. Completion is expected in the fall of 1989.

"It is part of ag practices rotation," said Jerry Gillespie, head of the department of surgery and medicine. "What the students will be receiving is greater experience with confined groups of cattle, swine and sheep. They will also be assisting the veterinarian on location."

While serving their two to three week internship, the students will stay in housing provided at the center and may enroll in elective courses, said J.L. Noordsy acting dean of veterinary medicine.

Jack Schmitz, chairman of the veterinary science department at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, told members of the Nebraska Stock

Growers Association board that the hospital will help bridge the gap between research and actual treatment of diseases in animals.

"Right now, we lack clinical work in an academic setting," Schmitz said.

The clinic is jointly funded by UNL and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. A $4 million animal health systems research center will be built at the same time, and will be owned and operated by the USDA.

Scientists in the two facilities will cooperate on some research projects, said Schmitz.

Millions have yet to file W-4 form

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Less than a week before the deadline, millions of American workers have yet to file a new Form W-4 to adjust their tax withholding to conform with the overhauled federal tax code.

Under the law, enacted a year ago, workers must file a new W-4 with their employers before Oct. 1. Those who fail to comply could find their take-home pay sharply reduced.

The Internal Revenue Service,

updating a survey completed by the Roper polling organization in late July, estimates that about 80 percent of workers have filed withholding forms this year. Since the agency was expecting about 94 million to file, that means about 18 million have not.

"It's late, but there is still time to adjust your paycheck," IRS spokeswoman Johnelle Hunter said Thursday. "It might be a good idea, even if you have filed a form earlier this year, to make the calculations again and, if necessary, file a new form to bring withholding in line with liability."

The new withholding forms are necessary because the 1986 tax overhaul made many changes in basic tax provisions that affect many people.

Those who neglect to file a W-4 this year will not be hit with a big fine or jail sentence. But, depending on their circumstances, they could face a big increase in withholding on Oct. 1 or owe the government a lot of money — plus a penalty — when they file their tax returns next year.

Biden says 'future secure'

By The Associated Press

DES MOINES, Iowa — Delaware Sen. Joseph Biden professed "no rancor, no complaints" Thursday as he began shutting down his Democratic presidential campaign.

"I'm a big boy," Biden said. "Every other time in my life when I've faced something where I've lost, I have learned a lesson from it."

Biden withdrew from the race Wednesday following disclosures that he had plagiarized parts of his campaign speeches and misrepresented his academic record.

Biden on Thursday dismissed suggestions that a rival candidate leaked the disclosures.

"Nobody did this to Joe Biden," he said. "There had to be something there for that to stitch together."

"I feel badly, not for me. I feel badly for those people in there," Biden said after a 20-minute closed-door meeting with campaign staffers and backers. "My political future is secure. I'll be back."

Accompanied by his wife, Jill, and sister, Valerie, Biden flew to Iowa to give backers a pep talk on the day after he withdrew from the Democratic presidential field. He was scheduled to fly to New Hampshire for a similar meeting with supporters there.

He described his withdrawal speech as "relatively hard to do" and acknowledged having second thoughts.

"I've never quit at anything, I'm not very good at that," Biden said. "I fought it right up to walking into that room. Halfway through I think some were worried I might say 'And I'm going to continue to run.'

"And I must admit to you that was there," Biden said.

At an impromptu news conference after the meeting with Iowa workers and supporters, Biden took full responsibility for the missteps which doomed his campaign.

"Look, I think you all are just doing your job," Biden told a mob of reporters gathered outside his Iowa campaign office. "I made mistakes. When you make mistakes you pay."

"I think you are zealous, but that's part of the job," Biden said. "We all have our problems. You all have got yours and I've got mine."

"As far as I'm concerned I think you all have treated me fairly," Biden said. "I have no rancor, no complaints. I'm going to be dealing with you all for a long time."

Staffers said the Iowa office would remain open for another couple of weeks as the campaign shuts down. Staffers circulated in the crowd passing out buttons saying simply "'92," a reference to Biden's comments that he might seek the presidency at some point in the future.

A giant poster in a window said "Biden '92."

"I hope we have a Democratic president in 1992," was Biden's response when reporters questioned him about his plans.

Biden was upbeat and smiling as he hugged campaign workers and urged them to stay involved in politics.

"In my background, you don't spend a lot of time dwelling on what's past. You look to what's coming and there's a lot of good that's come out of this for me," he said.

Biden's Iowa staff of more than 30 highly regarded organizers was an immediate lure for other Democratic presidential hopefuls. Attorney General Tom Miller, who backs former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, stopped by to begin that process.

"We'll wait a day or two to recruit," Miller said.

Biden staffers said they were likely to join other campaigns, possibly en masse. "I think they'll move as a block and stay as a block if they find the right candidate," said Lowell Junkins, the 1986 Democratic gubernatorial nominee and a Biden backer.

Workshop teaches leadership

By The Collegian Staff

Time management, motivation, and goal setting are among the sessions planned for students who attend the leadership workshop at the Union Saturday.

The workshop, titled "Take the Steps to Leadership," is offered free to any student interested in assuming a leadership role.

President Jon Wefald will open the 4-hour workshop with a keynote address on "What Constitutes Leadership" at 8:30 a.m.

The rest of the workshop consists of four 45-minute sessions, including committee work, new students and stress management.

"The workshop will be helpful to all students. It will help them to learn new leadership skills or to enhance their current skills," Sally Routson, coordinator of student activities said.

Sponsors for the workshop are Student Governing Association, the University Activities Board and the Mortar Board.

TGIF

free Hors D'oeuvres

Don't miss
Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. @ 9

Next Week
Happy Cole
along w/ Bud Dingman

NEW POSTER

NAGEL

only $35

STRECKER GALLERY

332 Poyntz
... in the 'art of downtown

ATTENTION

YOU CAN STILL MAKE RESERVATIONS

for Organization Group Pictures for the Royal Purple.

Hurry—so you can get the time and date you want!

Purchase your photo receipt and make your appointment in Kedzie Hall 103. Pictures will be taken September 14 through November 6, but you need to make reservations now. Photos will be taken in Fairchild 202 instead of Union 209.

ST. FRANCIS

EPISCOPAL CAMPUS MINISTRY

Sundays:
5 p.m.—Evening Service at Danforth Chapel
6 p.m.—Dinner at St. Francis House

537-0593      1402 LeGore Lane

AGGIEVILLE'S FIRST ANNUAL CHILI COOKOFF, SEPT. 26, 1987

Sponsored by
Stroh's, Stroh's Light, KQLA and the Aggieville Merchants Association

CATEGORIES INCLUDE

- living groups
- competition chili
- homestyle chili
- specialty chili

CONTESTS, FUN, PRIZES

- pinata contest, 11:00am-4:00pm
- live music by "full house," 11am-1:30pm
- pepper eating contest, 1:00pm
- jalepeno pepper toss, 1:30pm
- mr. potentate chili pepper pageant, 2:00pm
- ms. chili pepper beauty pageant, 2:30pm
- live, "back porch country band," 2-4:00pm
- best booth award, 3:15pm
- spirit award, 3:45pm

for all entry information contact, 776-8050

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK

Presents:

ROBERT ANASTAS
Founder of SADD

And

ANDREW O'DONOVAN
Director of Kansas Alcohol and Drug Abuse Services

Saturday, September 26th

8:00-12:00 Noon
Seat Belt Convincer on south side of Kansas State Union

9:00-10:30
Program in Forum Hall, Kansas State Union. People to speak:
Andrew O'Donovan, Director Kansas Alcohol and Drug Abuse Services
ROBERT ANASTAS, Founder of SADD, Marlboro, MA.

10:30-12:00 Noon
"Mock Tragedy" in South Field of Memorial Stadium, across from Kansas State Union (A wrecked car, "jaws of life" demonstration, Manhattan ambulance service, and MAST helicopter)

The goal of this program is to alert Kansas State and surrounding communities to the possible consequences of drinking and driving.

Ad Sponsored by:  CAMPBELL DISTRIBUTORS, INC.

Student Senate to name treasurer by end of October

By Robert Clasen
Collegian Reporter

Budgets for the Student Governing Association will be handled a little bit differently this year — by a treasurer.

In the past, the responsibility of compiling, presenting and defending SGA's budget to the Student Senate Finance Committee rested on the combined shoulders of the Student Senate chairperson, the student body president, the SGA secretary and the coordinator of student activities.

"We didn't feel we needed one (a treasurer) in the past," said Michelle Benoit, senior in agricultural economics and pre-law, and Student Senate chairperson. "We basically did it all ourselves."

She said the appointment of a treasurer would release the student leaders from the task, allowing them to concentrate on other matters.

Like other campus organizations seeking University funding, SGA is required to submit an annual budget for review by the Student Senate Finance Committee.

The responsibilities of the SGA treasurer include:

- working with the coordinator of student activities in preparing the annual SGA budget,

■ representing the budget during the allocation process,

■ presenting to Student Senate any legislation regarding special allocations to SGA,

■ informing the Student Senate of current budget matters of the SGA, and

■ presenting Student Senate with an SGA budget report at its first meeting in January and its first meeting in October.

The treasurer will be appointed by a three-member panel consisting of the student body president, Student Senate chairperson and the coordinator of student activities no later than the last Senate meeting in October. The nominee must be ratified by the Student Senate.

Benoit said she would encourage any student with experience to apply for the position.

"If a person has had any experience, this could be a good opportunity for them," she said.

The position is completely separate from the Student Senate Finance Committee and only involves working with SGA funds, Benoit said.

Applications for the position are due by 5 p.m., Sept. 28, in the SGA office.

Lottery cutoff approaches

Retailers need to apply before Oct. 5

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — State Lottery Director Larry Montgomery said Thursday Oct. 5 is the cutoff date for retailers to apply for certificates to sell lottery tickets when Kansas starts its first instant-win game, but he declined to say how soon that would be.

In fact, Montgomery indicated the first tickets might not be sold until sometime in November.

He said the projected Oct. 1 startup date the lottery has used since last spring was just a target, but there are more important things than meeting a target date.

"We will not start it until we're ready," Montgomery told a news conference held to inform retailers they have until a week from Monday to make application for a provisional certificate to be able to sell tickets on opening day of the state's lottery.

Asked if it was fair to say the lottery wouldn't get started until November, Montgomery said, "I think it's fair to say we're getting close."

The Kansas Lottery, approved by voters last year and implemented by the 1987 Legislature, plans to start with the instant-win games this fall, then progress to on-line games and participation in a multi-state lottery next January or February.

Montgomery steadfastly refused to give a specific date or even an approximate period when he now thinks the lottery will open with the first sale of instant-win tickets at retail outlets. Those are tickets purchased for $1 which have a latex covering that can be scratched off to see if the buyer won any money.

He said he wants first to confer with Gov. Mike Hayden to make sure the date is acceptable to the governor and doesn't conflict with any other events around the state. He tentatively has an appointment Monday with Hayden, who has been away on vacation this week.

"We are close enough now that once I've met with the governor ... once he feels that the date we've selected is correct, we will announce it," he said.

The lottery director said an announcement on when opening day will be could come by the middle of next week.

Asked if his reluctance to provide an approximate date meant the lottery won't get airborne in October, Montgomery replied, "I didn't say that."

"There are other considerations that are more important than that (startup) date," he said, mentioning making certain security of the lottery is guaranteed and that it gets a proper publicity sendoff.

"We obviously are getting closer," Montgomery said. "We obviously wouldn't have set a cutoff date for retailers to sign up if we weren't getting closer."

He said he wants to be absolutely positive the date chosen won't have to be changed because of unforeseen events.

The reason, he said, is the disappointment people eager to buy tickets would experience if a date was set, then changed.

He said the lottery hopes to arrange 20 "gala" celebrations in as many cities on the kickoff date to gain the new instant-win games as much publicity as possible. Sites of those parties will be announced later.

The state Lottery Commission met Thursday to approve rules and regulations for conducting drawings at each of the gala sites. Those drawings will be made from used lottery tickets, with winners at each site awarded a $1,000 prize.

Of about 5,700 applications from retailers to sell lottery tickets, Montgomery said, about 1,680 had been approved for provisional certificates and were being mailed contracts this week.

He said the lottery wants a minimum of 2,000 retailers signed up and approved to sell tickets.

Man receives life for Valley Falls murder

By The Associated Press

OSKALOOSA — A northeast Kansas man was sentenced to life in prison today for his guilty pleas last month in the strangulation death of a Valley Falls man and an attack on a female jogger.

Jefferson County District Judge Gary Nafziger sentenced Steven W. Larkin, 32, of Effingham on five counts he pleaded guilty to Aug. 25 after the start of his murder trial. Other counts against him were dismissed.

Nafziger imposed two life sentences on Larkin in connection with the Valley Falls man's death. The judge declared Larkin a habitual violator and tripled the maximum and minimum sentences on three charges in the attack on the jogger. The judge said Larkin would not be eligible for parole or probation because he used a firearm in the commission of a crime. He also ordered Larkin's sentences to be served consecutively.

Larkin was sentenced to two life sentences for felony murder and aggravated kidnapping in an attack on Larry M. Williams, 40, a rural Valley Falls man who was found strangled in his home June 28.

For an attack on a woman jogger at Nortonville several days before Williams' death, Larkin was sentenced to 15 to 60 years for aggravated battery, nine to 30 years for aggravated assault and 45 years to life for attempted aggravated kidnapping.

Larkin was arrested by Massachusetts State Police in Fitchburg, Mass., July 2 as he stepped off a bus and was returned to Kansas.

Dole may announce candidacy in Russell

By The Associated Press

RUSSELL — Russell is quietly preparing for Sen. Bob Dole's announcement of his presidential candidacy.

Dole's state campaign co-chairman, Lillian Papay of Great Bend, said Thursday that Dole staffers had made three trips to the central Kansas town to pave the way for the announcement.

The latest trips were made last week and on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The staffers will meet again with Russell residents charged with preparing for Dole's arrival next week, Papay said.

No date for Dole's announcement has been set officially, she said, but speculation centers on Nov. 9 as the date for the announcement. That date, she said, is circled on her calendar. But she warned that the announcement date is contingent on what happens in Washington.

"The senator wants to get the Bork question completely behind him before making the announcement," she said of the confirmation hearings for Robert Bork's nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Peter Williams, a Russell lawyer, is coordinating the work of the committees appointed to oversee various aspects of the announcement. "All I know is we have had contacts and have been told the senator has a great deal of interest in announcing in Russell."

He said there is no guarantee when the announcement will be made or if it will be made but agreed speculation centered on Nov. 9. Earlier, he said, Dole staffers had planned on an October date.

"Locally, we have gotten a variety of people organized to do everything from blowing up helium balloons to setting up stages," he said.

Plans call for the announcement to be made in the center of Russell's Main Street, in front of the old Dawson drug store, where Dole once worked. If the weather is bad, the announcement will be made in the high school.

"We plan to give him a good send-off, a send-off that will make him feel good and show him that the people of Russell feel he is the person to lead the nation," Williams said.

"There is a lot of t-crossing and i-dotting yet to be done," he said, "but the thinking has already been completed. Only the physical work has to be done, and that is the easiest. You have to remember that Russell is a community that prepared for the Ford-Dole announcement with two days notice. We could be ready tomorrow."

Dole was Gerald Ford's vice presidential running mate in 1976. The Dole-Ford ticket, which lost to Democrats Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale that November, made its first public appearance in Russell after the Republican National Convention in Kansas City, Mo.

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES
MOVIE INFORMATION 538-1281
IN JUNCTION CITY CALL 762-4094

CAMPUS
HEART OF AGGIEVILLE

THREE KINDS OF HEAT
TODAY AT 7:00 AND 9:00
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 3:00 AND 5:00
RATED R

WESTLOOP CINEMA 6
Westloop Center

HAMBURGER HILL
TODAY AT 4:30-7:00-9:30
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:00 RATED R

STAKEOUT
TODAY AT 4:30-7:00-9:30
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:00 RATED R

DRAGNET
TODAY AT 4:40-7:10-9:20
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:10 RATED PG-13

GREAT LAND OF SMALLMATED 6
TODAY AT 4:40 ONLY MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:10
ROBOCOP RATED R
TODAY AT 7:10 & 9:20 ONLY

PICKUP ARTIST
TODAY AT 4:45-7:20-9:25
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:20 RATED PG

DIRTY DANCING
TODAY AT 4:45-7:20-9:25
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:20 RATED PG-13

ROCKY FORD
TAVERN

Join us this weekend at the "Finest Little Tavern By A Dam Site" NOW OPEN SUNDAYS 12 to 12 Rt. 5 537-3133

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Kappa Alpha Theta, Kappa Delta, Off Campus

Sept. 28: Kappa Kappa Gamma, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Collegian Classifieds
Cheap, but Effective

WOULD YOU LIKE TO USE MORE OF YOUR MIND?

You can! The Silva Method is the largest Mind Development and Stress Control training in the world, with over 5,000,000 graduates in 73 countries.

By learning to consciously control brain waves and mental imagery, graduates report tremendous benefits ranging from reducing stress to developing ESP. People conquer habits, lose weight, enhance relationships, boost their health and energy. Students report improved memory and concentration, enabling them to memorize long lists, having better recall of class material and better test grades. The creative part of your mind can be set free and you can achieve goals you never thought possible.

We can all use more of our minds and make our world a better place. To find out how, attend one of the FREE introductory seminars.

Saturday — September 26th
10 AM — 1 PM — 3 PM
Cotton Club—418 Poyntz

PROCESS SYSTEMS UNIV. PRESENTS
THE SILVA METHOD

IT'S FALL... THINK SPRING!

Flowering shrubs add sparkle to your landscape and now is prime planting time with Fall's cooler temperatures and warm soils.

Snowmound Spirea
2 gal. pot reg. $9.95
$7.49 This Weekend

Goldflame Spirea
2 gal. pot reg. $11.95
$8.95 This Weekend

Cool-season turf needs Fall fertilization for root development and early Spring green-up. Apply Nursery-Pro Turf Food 27-3-3 with 6.8% slow-release nitrogen. 5000 ft.<sup>2</sup> coverage
Regular price $9.95/20 lb. bag

Rainbows of Spring color will be yours with Holland bulbs. We have a wide assortment of the finest quality bulbs. Free! 3 additional bulbs with purchase of 10 This Weekend only.

Replenish shredded hardwood bark now before freezing weather arrives. Regular price $4.95 ea. 3 cu. ft. bag $3.95 ea./5 or more

Horticultural Services • Garden Center •
Mon-Sat 8-6 Friday 8-7:30 Sun 10-6
776-5764
2 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24

Falsetto's PIZZA 539-3830

Falsetto's Pizza Price Buster! The Best For Less Two Pizzas $5.99

MENU

Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
TWO 10"		TWO 14"
Cheese .....		5.99	8.99
1 Item .....		6.94	10.39
2 Items .....		7.89	11.79
3 Items .....		8.84	13.19
4 Items .....		9.79	14.59
Deluxe .....		9.79	14.59
Veggie .....		9.79	14.59
Supreme .....		10.74	15.99
Each Additional Item .....		.95	1.40

1127 Moro - In Aggieville

EntertainmentFriday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, September 25, 1987 ■ Page 7

As they ascend a cliff, Mary, played by Shirlyn Henry; Alex, played by Beth Sherby; and Fanny, played by Tamara Grothaus, travel distance and time in "On the Verge." The play opened last night in Nichols Theatre and continues through Oct. 3.

'On the Verge'

Play travels across time

By Corbin Novotny
Collegian Reporter

The K-State Players' "A Season to Applaud" raises its curtain this week with the opening of their first play

"On the Verge." It will be performed at 8 p.m., Sept. 24-26, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1-3 in Nichols Theatre.

"On the Verge," written by Eric Overmyer and directed by Kate Anderson, associate professor of "This particular production is unique. It is a futurist piece...an up piece. It's about how we learn and know about the future through our own sense of osmosis."

—Kate Anderson

speech, is about three Victorian ladies who set out to solve the mysteries of their world. The play is set in the past and takes the ladies across the land and forward in time for a conquest of answers.

Within their adventure they are confronted with the mysteries of Cool Whip, rock and roll music and Mr. Coffee. One object that keeps appearing throughout their adventure is the evolution of the English language.

"This particular production is unique," Anderson said. "It is a futurist piece...an up piece. It's about how we learn and know about the future through our own sense of osmosis."

Another "uniqueness" about this production is the special sound accompaniment that is being added to the play.

"It allows the audience, like in radio drama, to be able to conceive and imagine whatever they want to," Anderson said.

Anderson called the stage the perfect place for the play because it allows the actors to show the time changes through their performance, environment and sound effects.

"We see it (traveling in time) in TV and movies a lot, but we don't necessarily see it on stage," Anderson said.

Anderson called the play a "challenge" to the actors because of the small stage and the re-creation of many scenarios in different time periods they have to portray.

The K-State Players will be the first college company to perform "On the Verge." It has recently opened Off Broadway and has only been seen in regional theaters.

Cast members for "On the Verge" include: Alex, played by Beth Sherby, senior in theatre; Fanny, played by Tamara Grothaus, senior in music/theatre; Mary, played by Shirlyn Henry, sophomore in theatre; Alphonse, Grover, Yeti, Troll, Mr. Coffee, Madame Nhu, Gus and Nicky, played by Thomas McLaughlin, graduate in rhetoric.

Musicians are Scott Wilber, graduate in rhetoric, and Lara Dillinger, sophomore in special education.

The K-State Union Food Service is offering an Avant La Piece on Oct. 2 and 3 from 6-7:15 p.m. in the K-State Union Bluemont Room. It consists of a pre-show dinner that would portray the food from the time era of the play.

Tickets for the Avant La Piece may be purchased one week prior to the dinner for $8 from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the K-State Union Food Service Office. No tickets are sold at the door, but phone reservations will be made if the tickets are picked up two days prior to the date reserved.

Tickets for "On the Verge" may be bought at Nichols Hall box office, Monday-Friday from noon to 5 p.m. Tickets are $6 for general admission and $4 for students and senior citizens.

Reddy, Chapin begin season

By The Collegian Staff

The 1987-88 McCain Performance Series will begin with a concert featuring the Grammy award-winning Helen Reddy at 8 p.m. tonight in McCain Auditorium.

Reddy, born in Australia, started her career after winning a talent contest in New York in 1966. Five years later she signed with Capital records and released her first chart hit, "I Don't Know How to Love Him."

Reddy's fame began to roll with the release of her song, "I Am Woman," which won her a Grammy award and later became the anthem for the feminist movement. More top 10 songs followed, her records became gold and platinum and her career went international.

The recording studio isn't the only place where Reddy can show her talent. In 1977, Reddy released her film "Pete's Dragon," which still attracts attention to the new generations, and she also owns a production company.

Opening tonight for Helen Reddy is the highly regarded concert performer Tom Chapin, brother of the late singer/songwriter Harry Chapin.

While Tom was earning his college degree, he and his brothers Harry and Steve and his father Jim Chapin recorded the "Chapin Brothers" album.

After college, Chapin decided to use his talent and pursue his interest in music and theater. He conceived and performed the soundtrack of the award-winning documentary, "Blue Water, White Death."

Stage managers

Students' skills used backstage

By Shawn Dorsch
Collegian Reporter

Their job may sound simple: to make things run as smoothly as possible on and off stage. But for the stage managers of K-State Players' productions, the job is more complicated than it may appear.

The stage manager works mainly with the director.

"We reinforce what the director wants," said Wayne Greenlee, senior in speech and drama education and stage manager for "On the Verge."

Besides the director, stage managers also work with the scene director, the lighting director, the technical director, costume designer, prop-master and possibly a sound designer.

Janet Treiber, junior in theatre and stage manager for the production "South Pacific," explained that some of her duties include setting up rehearsal schedules, production meetings and meetings with the costume designers.

"I have to make sure these people work together and everything gets done. I've also got to make sure everyone has the same basic idea of what the final result is going to be," she said.

Treiber said she decided to pursue a stage managing position when she didn't get an acting part she had tried out for.

"I still wanted to be a part of a production, and I like the technical part as well — it's one way to learn a lot about acting and discipline," Treiber said.

Treiber has managed five plays, including "Oklahoma," "Tomorrow from any Window," "Painting Churches," "Tartuffe," and she is the stage manager for the upcoming production, "South Pacific," which will run October 22-24 in McCain Auditorium.

"Tomorrow from any Window," was Treiber's favorite. "The play was surrealistic and that was different to me," she explained.

Although McCain Auditorium seats larger audiences and bigger productions are held there, Treiber prefers to work on the light board of Nichols Theatre because it is completely computerized.

"You just press a button and it goes," she said.

The light board in McCain is more complicated, she said, adding that it takes two people to operate it, whereas one person can handle the job in Nichols.

Treiber plans to attend graduate school or serve an internship after she graduates in December of 1988.

"I wouldn't want to stage manage the rest of my life because I would probably have a nervous breakdown from the pressure and responsibility," Treiber said.

She said continuing her education or serving as an intern would help her to learn more about the professional aspect of stage managing.

"It's a lot different than stage managing at school; there are more rules to follow. For example, if rehearsal runs overtime, professional actors get paid and amateurs don't, so you have to make sure everything runs on schedule."

Greenlee said he decided to get into stage management because he is planning to teach at the high school level and he needed to learn more about the technical aspects of play production such as sound and lighting.

Greenlee stage managed "The Late, Great, Dr. Death," which ran last spring, and he is the stage manager for "On the Verge," which plays tonight, Sept. 26 and 30, and Oct. 1-3.

Greenlee said he is enjoying managing "On the Verge" because it is advanced. It has 150 light cues and most of them are in the first act. Along with his usual stage managing responsibilities, Greenlee took it upon himself to look up and define 26 pages of words that the actors and actresses may have trouble pronouncing.

Greenlee explained that stage managers keep a complete script book containing notes, blocking (where actors should be and when), and a schedule of the rehearsals. Greenlee added that a good stage manager keeps a journal of what happens at each meeting but he doesn't have time to do that while he's going to school.

Victorian Fanny examines a "New York Times" article about President Nixon without realizing it is from another time.

Spotlight

Entertainment for the week ending Friday, Oct. 2.

EVENTS

OPUS Band Competition, 5-9 p.m., Friday, Sept. 25, Union north lawn.

FILMS

K-State Union

"Secret of My Success," 7 and 9:30, Friday, Sept. 25 and Saturday, Sept. 26, Union Forum Hall.

"Lust in the Dust," midnight, Friday, Sept. 25 and Saturday, Sept. 26, Union Forum Hall.

"Charlotte's Web," 2, Saturday, Sept. 26; 2 and 7, Sunday, Sept. 27.

"Decline of the American Empire," 7:30, Wednesday, Sept. 30, Union Forum Hall; 3:30, Thursday, Oct. 1, Union Little Theatre; and 7:30, Thursday, Oct. 1, Union

Forum Hall.

Commonwealth Theaters

Campus

"Three Kinds of Heat," (R), daily at 7 and 9; Saturday and Sunday, 3 and 5.

Westloop Cinema 6

"Hamburger Hill," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2.

Forum Hall.

Commonwealth Theaters

Campus

"Three Kinds of Heat," (R), daily at 7 and 9; Saturday and Sunday, 3 and 5.

Westloop Cinema 6

"Hamburger Hill," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2.

"Stakeout," (R), daily at 4:30, 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2.

"Dragnet," (PG-13), daily at 4:40, 7, and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.

"Great Land of Small," (G), daily at 4:40; Saturday and Sunday at 2:10.

"Robocop," (R), daily at 7:10 and 9:20.

"Pickup Artist," (PG), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20.

"Dirty Dancing," (PG-13), daily at 4:45, 7:20 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday at 2:20.

Seth Childs Cinemas

"Principal," (R), daily at 7:10 and 9:35; Saturday and Sunday, 2:10 and 4:40.

"Fatal Attraction," (R), daily at 7 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday, 2 and 4:40.

"Hell Raiser," (R), daily at 7:20 and 9:40; Saturday and Sunday, 2:15 and 4:45.

"The Big Town," (R), daily at 7:05 and 9:20; Saturday and Sunday, 2:05 and 4:25.

"La Bamba," (PG), daily at 7:15 and 9:25; Saturday and Sunday, 2:20 and 4:35.

"Beverly Hills Cop II," (R), daily at 7:30 and 9:30; Saturday and Sunday, 2:35 and 4:50.

GUARDIANSHIP: AN AILING SYSTEM

Alternatives restricted for the elderly

EDITOR'S NOTE — As troubled as the nation's guardianship system is today, experts say the strains will grow far worse in the future. As the population grays, the outlook for effective guardianship darkens. This, the final part of "Guardians of the Elderly: An Ailing System," looks at the future.

By Fred Bayles and Scott McCartney
Associated Press Writers

MIAMI — Judge Moie Tendrich picks up the telephone in his chambers to conclude guardianship proceedings on a 101-year-old man, bed-ridden and diagnosed as senile and chronically ill.

"Frank," the judge says to Frank Repensek, executive director of the Guardianship Program of Dade County Inc., "can you take somebody for us?"

With a quick phone call and a "hearing" in which he was the only participant, the judge has decided the fate of another senior citizen.

It happens almost every day here. With its booming elderly population, Florida, some say, reflects the demographic future of the nation, a glimpse of what the aging population will look like in 20 years.

"The problem is the courts were never set up and never intended to deal with the volume."

—Frank Repensek

And so in this state rich in retirees, the future of the nation's guardianship system may also be found.

Nowhere is the need for quality care greater for the elderly, yet almost nowhere, experts say, are the probate courts more overburdened with guardianship, the quality of justice so variant, the oversight and due process, in some counties, so suspect.

"The problem is the courts were never set up and never intended to deal with the volume," said Repensek, who added Tendrich's case to his 270 other wards.

"As people get older, there's going to have to be some system for dealing with the legal and personal needs of these people. Guardianship is not the best alternative. But what we're faced with right now is that it's

Their fate often lies in phone call

what's available," he said.

What the probate courts are faced with are numbers. The government predicts that in the next 15 years, the number of older people in the United States will jump 22 percent to nearly 35 million.

The group older than 75, those most likely to face guardianship, according to an Associated Press study, will grow from about 12 million to 30 million by the year 2030, and the group over 85 will triple to 8.6 million people.

Today, those who deal with guardianships, probate courts and the elderly predict that the need for greater oversight and tools such as court investigators will become more critical, and legislatures will be called on to change state laws to improve due process and court care of the elderly.

Already, volunteer programs and alternatives to guardianship are cropping up.

In South Bend, Ind., for example, the task of looking after many of the community's elderly has fallen on tough-minded, cigar-smoking county prosecutor Mike Barnes.

Under Indiana's Adult Protective Service Act, prosecutors like Barnes must minister to abused and neglected old people, prosecuting their tormentors and, more frequently, assisting them to carry on with their lives.

Barnes can get them help to do their shopping, clean their homes and keep track of utility bills.

Of all his tools, the last choice is guardianship.

"That is the least preferable alternative as far as we're concerned," Barnes says. "The whole thrust of this program is that there be reliance and self-reliance."

The prosecutor echoes the thoughts of a variety of nonprofit groups, churches and charities across the country that offer alternatives to guardianship, a process that strips people of all rights and puts their lives in the hands of others.

Advocating options such as power of attorney and social service help like Meals on Wheels, these programs strive to keep the elderly in their homes with rights and dignity intact. The Cathedral Foundation, a Jacksonville, Fla., church charity, has provided services, including money management, to 1,000 old people since 1978. Only 40 ended up in guardianships.

"Guardianship is totally, philosophically the opposite of what we try to do," said Teresa Barton, the foundation's community services director. "The system's way of dealing with it was to remove the person from their home. We said, 'Let's create a support system that lets them stay at home.'"

In some cases, the elderly have come up with their own solutions, even creating programs to blunt guardianship petitions within retirement communities.

"Guardianship-conservatorship is a very impersonal and costly service," said Ralph Raymond, an 84-year-old Tempe, Ariz., retiree who set up a volunteer program for his neighbors. "It's a completely unsatisfactory last resort."

Barnes' office and Cathedral use tools common to other alternative programs, such as durable power of attorney, where specific decision-making powers are assigned to another person, and representative payee, where a person is given limited authority over another's financial matters.

But there is resistance to such alternatives.

Milton Bix, a Minneapolis probate attorney, worries that plans without the court's supervision mandated under guardianship open the door to financial abuses.

"I'm scared to death of it," Bix said of durable power of attorney. "It means less guardianship, so while their civil rights are being protected, their assets are not."

Some states and judges, too, have tried their own mini-reform movements.

In 1981, Minnesota made guardianship hearings mandatory, improved notice sent to proposed wards, changed the standard required for proof of incompetence to "clear and convincing" evidence, instead of the weaker "preponderance of the evidence," and required courts to check on each guardianship annually.

The changes followed the Minneapolis Tribune's exposing of misdeeds by a company appointed guardian of more than 300 people.

"That is the least preferable alternative as far as we're concerned. The whole thrust of this program is that there be reliance and self-reliance."

—Mike Barnes

In Tucson, Ariz., Superior Court Judge Alice Truman took it upon herself to require guardians to report on the welfare of their wards. "After all," the judge said, "the guardian is responsible for the person's life and well-being."

Probate Judge W.F. Spicer has hired two court investigators in Summit County, Ohio, set up a public guardian's office and developed a review process, none of which is required by law.

"If you take your job seriously, and you look at all the responsibilities you have, (guardianship is) probably the greatest responsibility of any of the functions of probate court," said Spicer.

Said Hank Hudson, Montana's state legal services developer for the elderly: "It's not a question of doing away with guardianship. It's a question of finding someone who is willing to do the job well."

A group of judges last year published recommendations for overhauling guardianship, arguing the system needs investigators and auditors to prevent abuse and attorneys dedicated to protecting elderly clients against unwarranted guardianships.

The changes, they say, should be similar to those made in mental commitment procedures in the 1970s, and not unlike safeguards built into the adversarial system in criminal courts.

"It's like deja vu," said Probate Judge Victor S. Pfau of Indianapolis. "This is the same process we eventually went through on the changes in civil commitment procedures. We were far too quick to commit someone to a mental institution, but we fought those changes like crazy, and we used the same arguments."

"And now, you know what? It works."

But with few prospects for a major overhaul of the guardianship system on the horizon, experts on elderly affairs paint a gloomy portrait of the future.

"I fear we'll end up with a caretaker class of people, reduced to the status of children, herded together as 'protected' people and placed into camps," said Justin Clouser, a Las Vegas, Nev., legal aide attorney who has worked with guardianship in Florida and Nevada.

Some say the judges' own reform effort is too little too late.

"(It's) dragging the process of guardianship kicking and screaming into the 1950s," said David Grant, director of the Guardianship Diversion Project in Los Angeles, which advocates less restrictive alternatives to guardianship.

George Alexander, a probate law expert at Santa Clara University in California, led a commission that overhauled state guardianship laws. The changes included a state-funded program of court investigators who visit wards and check-up on guardians.

Yet Alexander's experience has now made him leery that any reform can make the system work.

"I fear that people keep saying, 'Let's throw a little more due process at it and forget about it.' It's dangerous," Alexander said. "Each bit of tinkering has the outcome of helping a few people and also getting people moving on and saying, 'We dealt with that.'"

Alexander recommends individuals draft a durable power of attorney so they can designate their caretakers and financial advisers, even forming a committee to ensure against wrongdoing.

All this, he hopes, will offer alternatives to guardianship.

"I believe," he said, "it's an institution so dangerous and so capable of abuse."

Movie Quik is here

Movie Rentals $1.99
Video Players $4.99

OPEN 24 HOURS 1445 ANDERSON

Rocky Mountain BONKERS

PRESENTS
Sept. 25—DOW JONES and the Industrials
Sept. 28—DREAM MACHINE
Male Strippers

No males til after 11:30 p.m. Call 537-9591 for reservations

NIGHT ON THE Nile
SEPTEMBER 26, 1987

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR

Come meet the 1987
GREEK PLAYBOYS
Today 3:30 p.m. at Charlie's
Voting proceeds go to Cystic Fibrosis

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Falsetto's Pasta House

Family Style Pastas from $3.99 minimum 4 persons

COUPON
$1 OFF Any Entree
Not good with Family Style one per person expires 10-2-87

OPEN: M-Sat. 4-10 p.m., Sun. 11 a.m.-9 p.m.
Now Open to the Public.
Across from the Holidome 537-8443

PASTA

AAU SOFTBALL CLASSIQUE
September 26 & 27

Ronald McDonald House

Contributing Sponsors:

Charlie's Sub & Stuff	Bushwacker's Falsetto's Pyramid Pizza	Swanson's Bakery McDonald's
-----------------------	---------------------------------------	-----------------------------

Sept. 19 collection raises 'significant' money for memorial

By The Collegian Staff

A fund-raising drive for the K-State Vietnam Memorial Sept. 19 was a success, said Bill Arck, adviser of the K-State Vietnam Memorial Committee.

"Operation Combat Boot" was coordinated by the memorial committee. Members of North Central Kansas Chapter #344 Vietnam Veterans of America and the K-State Arnold Air Force used combat boots to collect money for the memorial before the K-State-Army football game at Triangle Park in Aggieville and at Memorial Stadium.

Arck would not say how much money was collected, but said he was impressed with the student response to the fund raising.

"We did really well and raised a significant amount," he said. "We have a long way to go, but it's a good start."

"Movies like 'Platoon' and 'Full Metal Jacket' are helping sensitize students to what really happened there. It was a nightmare and hopefully more and more students can be made aware of it. My fellow Vietnam veteran members were very impressed by the student response. Most of them, even if it was only 20 cents or a quarter that was in their pockets, seemed to give something."

Arck said a committee has been set up to work out a plan for future fund raising.

"We hope to try to go out to residence halls, fraternities and sororities or off-campus groups to see if they'd want to make a donation, do a fund raiser or help with a fund raiser so it really is a student memorial," he said.

Arck said tax-deductible donations to the memorial, which will be located in front of Nichols Hall, can be made to the K-State Vietnam Memorial fund at the K-State Foundation Office in Hollis House.

Horace Edwards claims expenses; Kansas foots bill for private trip

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The state paid some of the expenses of Secretary of Transportation Horace Edwards for a trip he took to Alabama last March to attend a board of trustees meeting of a private college, records show.

In a check dated June 30, Edwards received $584.85 from the state to cover the cost of airfare and car rental on the three-day trip for the semi-annual meeting of the board of trustees of Stillman College in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Edwards and Secretary of Administration H. Edward Flentje acknowledged during interviews that the procedure used in obtaining reimbursement did not follow a state law in effect at the time Edwards took the trip and received payment. The law was changed effective July 1, after payment was made.

They also described payment of Edwards' expenses as a minor issue created because of a "gray area" in other state laws.

In addition, the administration of Gov. Mike Hayden released Thursday a memo Flentje sent to all cabinet members this week, giving more guidance to them in considering what expenses the state can reimburse.

Edwards said the incident was the result of an "apparent cultural difference" between his work in the business world and the government sector. Edwards was formerly the chief executive officer of ARCO Pipeline Co. of Independence.

"Obviously, there's no intent to conceal it," Edwards said Thursday. "Now, I understand, and I will behave differently."

The Associated Press obtained copies of the travel voucher Edwards submitted, the check he was issued, and other supporting documents. All such records are open to the public.

The records show that Edwards was reimbursed for his airfare from Topeka to Kansas City, then to Birmingham, Ala., on March 18. He also was reimbursed for airfare from Birmingham to Tulsa, Okla., on March 20. The total cost of the airfare was $439.

Edwards also rented a car in Birmingham on March 18. Edwards said Thursday he used the car to drive to Tuscaloosa, the site of Stillman College. The cost of the car rental was $122.49. The state also paid for Edwards' one-night stay at a Tulsa hotel, which cost $23.36.

The voucher is dated June 30, the last day of Fiscal Year 1987. The check Edwards received also is dated June 30, and it cleared a Topeka bank on July 14.

Stillman College is a private, four-year institution with about 750 students. Edwards has been on its 28-member board, which meets as group twice a year, since 1985.

Edwards said, "The (business) culture from which I come treats part of my executive responsibility to include involvement in the life of the larger community. I would have used the company jet and gone there, and I did."

Edwards, who has been secretary of transportation since Feb. 1, said when he was recruited, Flentje and other administration officials encouraged him to continue his activities on the college's board.

Flentje said such activities are of added value to the state, noting that Edwards might have discussed state business during the trip and increased his department's visibility.

"Knowing Horace, I can't imagine the idea of recruiting doesn't enter his mind," Flentje said.

Kathy Peterson, Hayden's press secretary, said the incident was the result of a "miscommunication" that had been partly clarified by the memo to cabinet heads from Flentje, which was dated Tuesday. The AP obtained a copy of the voucher on Edwards' reimbursement from the Division of Accounts and Reports that same day.

However, Flentje and Edwards said they had discussed the situation previously.

"Drawing a line between reimbursable and non-reimbursable travel requires judgment in certain instances, and those cases which raise questions in your own mind should likely not be reimbursed as official travel," Flentje's memo said.

Under Kansas law, it is a misdemeanor for a state official to ask for reimbursement of expenses he or she did not incur or to exaggerate such a request.

However, state laws, administrative rules and the Department of Administration's procedures manual do not list exactly what travel expenses can or cannot be reimbursed.

"When you say it's a gray area, it sure as hell is," Flentje said.

Dioxins found in paper products, EPA announces

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Tiny amounts of dioxin, a potent cause of cancer in lab animals, are found in many paper products — such as coffee filters, napkins and tampons — bleached by the kraft process, the Environmental Protection Agency announced Thursday.

But the agency said it believes there is no health hazard from using those products.

John T. Moore, assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances, told a news conference that the extra risk of cancer to humans, according to 'armchair calculations,' appeared to be around one in a million, which he called "negligible risk."

"I'm not going to change my lifestyle habits or purchasing patterns of products made from bleached paper," Moore said.

The American Paper Institute said in a statement by its president, Red Cavaney: "Consumers can continue to have the utmost confidence in the safety and integrity of all paper products." The statement pledged the industry to resolving the problem "in an open and forthright fashion."

Dioxins are formed as an inevitable by-product of the manufacture of certain chemicals, notably pesticides, using chlorine. There are 210 dioxins and related chlorine-containing compounds, but most of the concern arises from one, called 2,3,7,8-TCDD.

This is the most powerful cause of cancer in laboratory animals ever tested, with minute amounts causing tumors at several sites. It has not been shown to cause cancer in humans, but the EPA classifies it as a probable cause of human cancers.

Environmentalists say it also cause birth defects, miscarriages and damage to the liver and immune system, but these conclusions are all hotly debated.

Moore's new conference was called to release a nationwide study of dioxin contamination ordered by Congress in 1984. Some of the results have been coming out for months — the agency reported high dioxin concentrations in fish in and around the Great Lakes during the summer.

Moore said the EPA found these fish disproportionately in rivers used by kraft paper mills, and a study of five mills found trace amounts of 2,3,7,8-TCDD in the pulp, a few parts per trillion.

The kraft process uses chlorine as a bleach, and the agency believes this is the origin of the dioxin. Moore said the EPA and the industry would "take a hard look at that process" to see if it could be modified or replaced, and try to pin down better the extent of dioxin production at the nation's 90 kraft mills.

Moore said the biggest risk, as shown by a consultant's calculation, would be from using coffee filters. This could mean an extra risk of cancer to a coffee drinker of about one in 10,000, Moore said, but the calculation assumes that all of the dioxin in the filter is transferred to the coffee, and "that's probably too conservative."

The environmental organization Greenpeace, which released some findings on Wednesday, has accused the EPA of conspiring with the paper industry to cover up the findings to avoid regulation.

Michael Cook, director of the agency's Office of Drinking Water, said he found the accusation puzzling because the agency had given the group "20,000 pieces of paper" as the dioxin study proceeded.

Other results from the study: ■ Only 100 chemical production and disposal sites contaminated with dioxin could be found, as opposed to the 400 to 500 expected.

■ Dioxin was found in stack gases from 13 ordinary combustion sources.

Regents change in-state tuition policy

By The Collegian Staff

Because of changes made by the Kansas Board of Regents, more students may qualify for in-state tuition.

The changes allow Kansas high school graduates whose parents have recently moved to another state, or graduates whose parents recently moved to Kansas, to qualify for in-state residency.

The changes went into effect Aug. 19.

According to the old regulations, the residency of a person under 18 years of age was determined by the residence of the person's custodial parent or parents.

Now spouses and children of people recruited by a business to Kansas qualify as in-state residents.

In the past, a person had to live in the state for 12 months prior to enrollment before qualifying for in-state tuition. Now there is no waiting period, said Dianne Urban, student attorney.

"The legislature saw fit to institute this to increase economic growth," said Stanley Koplik, executive director of the Kansas Board of Regents. "It helps firms recruit people to Kansas."

"This (the change) has the potential to help some people," Urban said. "My concern is that no one will look into it to see if they qualify. They will just figure they are from out of state and won't check to see," she said.

These changes come at a time when the Regents are working on a policy of selective admissions.

According to an article in the Sept. 17 issue of the Collegian, the selective admissions policy "would require Kansas residents to complete Regents recommended, high school curriculum with a 2.0 grade point average, score 23 or higher on the American Collegiate Testing or rank in the top one-third of their high school graduating class."

Koplik said the in-state residency changes and the closed admission policy are not related.

"They are two separate policies," Koplik said. "One is to promote economic growth and the other is to strengthen admission policies."

Wart Treatment
$8 per semester
Thursday & Friday Only
8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.
532-6544 Lafene Health Center

Collegiate International Trade Association
4:30 Friday
September 25th
Union Room 207

Darrel Hosler
International Division
Burns & McDonnell

Will speak on technical services in international trade and compare between doing work in Taiwan and China with a slide show

GREEN THUMB Pet Shop
1105 Waters St.
Fish, Birds, Small Animals
All Pet Supplies

8-5:30 Mon.-Sat.
12-5 Sun.
539-4731
Just across from Alco

Hair Unlimited

Welcomes Patty to their staff of Hair Care Professionals. Formerly of Joyce's Hair Tamers. She welcomes all previous and new clients to stop by.

For appointment call
537-4528 1330 Westloop

SUNDAY SUPPER
Sept. 27
5:30 p.m.
Topic: Religion- "Guilt & Grace"
Speaker: Evelyn Fischer
(50¢ donations or free if needed)
1021 Denison
The building with the two red front doors

Sponsored by
CUMENICAL
CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES

20% OFF

- RUNNING & AEROBIC TIGHTS
- m mistral SWEATSHIRTS
- COTTON SWEATERS
- WOOL PLAID SHIRTS

Sale ends Sunday

M-Th 10-8
F-Sat. 10-6
Sun. 1-5

K-STATE PLAYERS
ON THE VERGE
a comedy by Eric Overmyer
Sept. 25, 26, 30, Oct. 1, 2, 3
Nichols Theatre—8 p.m.
532-6398

AVANT LA PIECE
Turn Of The Century Dining
Bluemont Room, KSU Union, Oct. 2 & 3
Call 532-6580

Vichyssoise, Romaine with Blue Chees & Sour Cream, Vinaigrette and Capers, or Avocado and Yogurt Dressings, Gaspacho Gelatin Mold, Shrimp De Jonghe, Ham Loaf Supreme with Mustard Sauce, Sautéed Fresh Spinach with Bacon, Winter Squash with Onion and Butter, Swedish Limpa Rye, Ice Box Rolls, German Sweet Chocolate Cake

Tickets may be purchased at the K-State Union Food Service Office for $8.00 the week prior to the Avant. Phone reservations will be taken for tickets only if payment is made for the tickets 2 days prior to the date for which you reserve. Reservation forms available through K-State Players, Nichols Ticket Office and other selected locations. Contact K-State Union Food Service Office at (913) 532-6580 for additional information.

Employment seminar to help women

By Chuck Homer
Collegian Reporter

If the need to bolster a sagging bank account or if sheer survival instincts will soon prompt you to enter the job market, then University for Man has the class for you.

UFM, together with the K-State Single Parent/Displaced Homemaker Program, is co-sponsoring a "Preparing for Employment" seminar each Monday, Sept. 28 through Oct. 19, said Eunice Dorst, campus/community relations director for UFM.

The seminar group will meet four times, on each of four consecutive Mondays from 7-9 p.m., she said. The seminar is designed to give participants an edge in the job market, Dorst said.

Topics include identifying skills and interests, learning how to complete job application forms, writing a resume, interviewing techniques, and developing a job search plan, she said.

Dorst said the course is targeted primarily at women who have not been in the work force for an extended period, or have never been in the work force. The primary focus will be on helping them recognize needed job skills, and translating learned experiences into resume content, Dorst said.

Similar seminars have been conducted previously with positive feedback, especially in the areas of resume writing and job interviews, she said.

People wanting to register for the seminar can do so at UFM, 1221 Thurston Ave., Dorst said. The course fee is $5, which goes to UFM for facility use, advertising, and other associated costs, she said.

The seminars are conducted semi-annually in a seven-county area serviced by the K-State Single Parent/Displaced Homemaker Program.

The counties include Marshall, Geary, Riley, Pottawatomie, Washington, Wabaunsee and Clay counties, said Tracey Fraser, program coordinator and seminar instructor.

The seminars are conducted as a part of the charter set forth in the Carl Perkins Vocational Grant, which provides the funding for the K-State Single Parent/Displaced Homemaker Program, Fraser said.

Fraser said participants will receive one-on-one assistance in resume preparation, and should have a completed resume by the end of the course.

Job search plan instruction will be techniques-oriented, with emphasis on identifying resources available to job seekers, Fraser added. Mock interviews will be conducted to acquaint participants with what to expect in an interview situation, she said.

Fraser said she envisions seminar participants acquiring job-search techniques that will last a lifetime and enhanced confidence in their ability to sell themselves to potential employers.

Party chairman files suit

Libertarians say 'won't play dead'

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Douglas Merritt, state Libertarian Party chairman, said Thursday he filed suit in federal court seeking to have three sections of state election laws declared invalid as a message to the Kansas Legislature that, "We're not going to go away."

Merritt, an attorney who lives in Atchison and practices law in Missouri, said in a telephone interview state Libertarians and members of other minor parties believe the Legislature has imposed legally unreasonable requirements for them to gain official recognition and be allowed to place names of their candidates on the state ballot.

The Legislature is made up entirely of Democrats and Republicans. "This is aimed at the Legislature," Merritt said of the suit filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court here. "We want them to know we're not going to roll over and play dead."

"We want them to know we're out here. We're not going to go away. We're not going to accept second class citizenship."

The lawsuit seeks to have declared illegal sections of state law that deny members of minor parties the right to declare a party affiliation when they register to vote; require them to have a party member in every precinct of the state in which they seek to collect signatures for petitions to nominate candidates, and require them to nominate a candidate for president before Democrats and Republicans have to do it.

Merritt said he met with representatives of the American, Conservative and Prohibition Parties, who formerly were recognized political parties in Kansas, and they are supporting the Libertarians' lawsuit but declined to become plaintiffs because of the legal costs involved.

All four parties lost their ballot position in Kansas in 1984, when they failed to garner 5 percent of the vote in that year's general election. The 1984 Legislature imposed the 5 percent requirement for them to retain official recognition. None of them met the requirement.

Also, the 1984 law requires parties seeking to regain official recognition — so they can nominate candidates for public office and have their names placed on the state ballot — to collect the signatures of 2 percent of the voters who cast ballots in the last governor's race. None of the four minor parties has done that since losing recognition three years ago.

If the parties were to gather the petitions and regain their ballot position, they would be required under the '84 law to get at least 1 percent of the vote in each general election in the future to retain that position.

Merritt said the Libertarians did not challenge those requirements because they generally have been upheld in court challenges in other states.

"We want them to know we're not going to roll over and play dead. We want them to know we're out here. We're not going to go away. We're not going to accept second class citizenship."

—Douglas Merritt

However, he said the party believes the three sections it is challenging are indefensible by the state. He also said he thinks other requirements imposed on minor parties in Kansas law could be challenged, but the Libertarians are limiting their attack at this time to the three sections cited.

Merritt said his No. 1 goal in the lawsuit is to win the right to have minor party members declare their affiliation when they register, and to have a record made of it. They ought to be allowed to file a party affiliation statement even if the party is not officially recognized, he said.

The reason the minor parties want that, Merritt said, is to maintain a record of who their members are, so they can communicate with them.

"We should have equal standing with the major parties as far as having a way to know who our members are," he said. "It is a tremendous tool for the major parties, to know who their members are and where they live."

"We are not unaffiliated. We are affiliated with the Libertarian Party nationally and locally. There are 300,000 unaffiliated voters registered in Kansas and we should be able to learn which ones of them consider themselves Libertarians. Under the present system, the state denies us that right."

Since the 1984 law was passed, minor party members must register as "unaffiliated."

Lone defendant in the lawsuit is Secretary of State Bill Graves, who administers state election laws. He will be defended by the attorney general's office.

Plaintiffs are Merritt and six other Libertarian Party members — Jerry D. Busch, Bill D. Earnest, John D. Foster and Dan Reagan, all of Wichita; Walter F. Lineberger, Topeka, and Marion E. Nunemaker, Hutchinson.

Income tax hike may be delayed in KC school case

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY — An attorney for the plaintiffs in the Kansas City school desegregation case said Wednesday that he will join school district attorneys in asking a federal judge to clarify and alter an order increasing income taxes to raise money for the desegregation plan.

Arthur A. Benson II said he also will ask U.S. District Judge Russell G. Clark to delay implementation of the 1.5 percent income tax surcharge.

Clark ordered the school's levy rate increased from $2.05 to $4 per $100 of assessed value and a 1.5 percent state income tax surcharge imposed on persons who work in the district. Corporation taxes were also targeted.

Benson said he would ask Clark to clarify exactly how corporations would be affected.

Benson could not say how long a delay he would request or whether the income tax surcharge, if delayed, would be retroactive to Friday, the date Clark made his order effective.

Parties in the case have until next Tuesday to file their motions for altering Clark's order, he said.

The Kansas City Board of Education instructed its attorneys Tuesday night to suggest that lower-bracket taxpayers be exempted from Clark's order, and that $150 million in capital improvement bonds be backed with the property tax increase, instead of the income tax surcharge, to make the bonds more marketable.

Benson, who was present during the school board's closed meeting with its attorneys, said he supported the district's moves.

The board also told its attorneys to take legal action, if necessary, to force Jackson County to collect the property tax increase. County Executive Bill Waris has said he will refuse to collect it.

Board President Carl Struby said the district needs clarification from Clark on who the surcharge applies to, before it can proceed to notify employers that they must begin withholding the surcharge from employee paychecks.

Michael J. Fields, an assistant Missouri attorney general, said today the state will file a motion or appeal.

Numbers

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

17,661 — an increase of 376 students who pay an average student fee of $530 per semester, he said.

"The University will request approval from the Legislature to release that additional fee revenue. Based upon last year's formula, the University could expect a fee release amounting to 75 percent of the additional fee revenue," Schellhardt said. "This would result in a state increase in student fee authorization of approximately 300,000 for the full academic year."

The process K-State will go through to receive the funding is similar to the action taken by the University of Kansas after its enrollment increased last year.

The increased enrollment should not pose any funding problems, Schellhardt said.

"If we didn't obtain additional resources, it would certainly adversely affect how we teach those additional students," he said.

When first-day enrollment figures were released, Robert Krause, vice president for institutional management, said the 20th day figures will help set goals for the following year.

Brother's
KSU
IN AGGRIEVILLE USA

TGIF
$2.75 pitchers
Friday and Saturday
1120 Moro 539-9064

You've thought about it.

You've tried to imagine what it would be like.

You know it would be exciting. And a challenge. And quite possibly the most rewarding experience of your life...

Three Americans overseas in Asia, Africa and South America speak frankly on what Peace Corps life is like for them.

It isn't easy and it isn't for everyone—they'll tell you that up front. But if you've ever considered going overseas in the Peace Corps, then now is your chance to see and hear for yourself what could be "the toughest job you'll ever love."

Note: Former Peace Corps volunteers will be on hand to answer questions following the 25 minute film. And it's free!

BRING A FRIEND!
Sept. 29th 5:00 pm
Room 207 Student Union
Call Jim Akin at 532-6506 for information

U.S. Peace Corps
The Movie
"The Toughest Job You'll Ever Love"

Now the Best Pizza in Town Has the Best Price!

Two Pizzas for Only $5.99!

Now you can have two delicious 10" pizzas for the price of one. They're custom-made with your choice of toppings on each—they don't have to be the same! And we use only the freshest ingredients and 100% real cheese.

You're not seeing double. It's just our latest way to say that Domino's Pizza Delivers. And we deliver at no additional charge in 30 minutes or less. That's the Domino's Pizza guarantee.

No coupon necessary.

Call Us!
Manhattan
539-0561
517 N. 12th Street
Hours:
4pm-1am Sun.-Thurs.
4pm-2am Fri.-Sat.

Domino's Pizza Delivers® Doubles.

Prices do not include tax. Our drivers carry less than $20.00. Limited delivery area.

	PEPPERONI	SAUSAGE	HAM	JALAPENOS
	MUSHROOMS	BLACK OLIVES	GREEN PEPPER	EXTRA THICK CRUST
	GROUND BEEF	ONIONS	PINEAPPLE	EXTRA CHEESE
Menu	TWO 10"		10" & 14"	TWO 14"
CHEESE	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 ITEM	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 ITEMS	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 ITEMS	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 ITEMS	9.79	12.99	14.59
DELUXE *	9.79	12.99	14.59
VEGI 	9.79	12.99	14.59
EXTRAVAGANZZA 	10.74	14.24	15.99
EACH ADDITIONAL ITEM	.95	1.25	1.40

*DELUXE — 5 items for the price of 4. Pepperoni, Sausage, Mushrooms, Onions & Green Peppers.

**VEGI — 5 items for the price of 4. Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Black Olives & Extra Cheese.

***EXTRAVAGANZZA™ — A special blend of 9 items for the price of 5. Pepperoni, Ham, Ground Beef, Sausage, Black Olives, Green Peppers, Onions, Mushrooms & Extra Cheese.

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Friday, September 25, 1987 ■ Page 11

'Cats to face No. 19 Iowa

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

Even without the services of wide-receiver John Williams this Saturday against the Big Ten Conference powerhouse Iowa, K-State quarterback Gary Swim is ready to send the football in the air.

The Wildcats and Hawkeyes kick off their battle at 1:05 p.m., Sept. 26 in Iowa City, Iowa.

"Gary knows he's going to get the opportunity to do a lot of passing this weekend," assistant coach Jim Epps said. "We believe Gary is going to get better and better every week. He's worked with the receivers this week and has a lot of confidence in his abilities."

Defending the pass may be the only weakness of Iowa's defense that K-State will have a chance to capitalize on. But what was it K-State coach Stan Parrish said before the season started?

"Although it hurts me to do it, Air Parrish is somewhat grounded," said K-State coach Stan Parrish in a pre-season interview. Could it be time to revive it already, or has it been around all along?

The Wildcats' offensive rushing ranks a distant sixth in the Big Eight Conference. But on the flip side, the passing game is a much stronger fifth and has averaged 15.5 more yards per game. It may not be a big difference, but with Swim ranking as the 16th most efficient quarterback in the nation and receivers Tony Jordan and John Williams being two of the ten best receivers in the conference, it looks like passing is what's in store at Iowa this weekend and the coaches and players know it.

"We worked on passing this week in practice. The best way to neutralize Iowa is to throw the ball," Epps said. "We have to be patient and move via the pass. Obviously we aren't going to throw strikes every time, but we can work the middle and short routes."

Unfortunately, Williams has not yet fully recovered from an ankle injury sustained last Saturday against Army and will not be playing for the Wildcats. K-State wide receiver Dan Hughes still has a strained quad and also will not be playing.

"They're not quite ready," Parrish said after Thursday's practice session. "It is a difficult thing to do, but we don't want any reinjuries."

Wildcat wide receiver Eric Blades will hold on to his against Iowa. Blades will be backed up by wide receiver Todd Cowings. Lawrence Tolbert, another wide receiver, will start in place of Williams. Tailback Terry Richards will have the second-string duties at that position and will also play as a running back.

Richards will also fill in for kick-off returns along with junior Mark Austin. Offensive lineman Rob Goode will be out due to a strained knee.

Even if Parrish was fortunate enough to have healthy a squad, it might still take a miracle to defeat the Hawkeyes. But that doesn't have Parrish or the team down.

"It would take a great effort to beat Iowa," Parrish said about this Saturday's opponent. "We are a huge underdog in this game. I'm kind of looking forward to playing Iowa this week. They are a top 10 kind of team. For us, we will have a chance to improve in several areas. It will also give us a chance to build our confidence. If our players know that we can be successful against Iowa, it will carry over to the remainder of our season. We want to shoot to eliminate our mistakes this week and play error-free football. That will be a challenge against a top-level team such as Iowa."

K-State is going into the weekend with an 0-2 record. Both losses were at home. The Hawkeyes are coming off a 48-9 demolition of Big Eight member Iowa State and are looking to extend their 2-1 record.

Saturday is Letterman's Day at Iowa as well as the home opener. K-State will be on the road for the first time this season.

Wildcat quarterback Gary Swim tosses the ball Thursday in KSU Stadium in preparation for Saturday's game against Iowa.

Local Hawkeye shares insight

By Tom Morris
Sports Writer

Steve Heston, radio station KQLA's sales manager — alias Steve Todd, "Q-Sports Guy" — is the closest thing we can find in Manhattan as an authority on University of Iowa football.

Today's subject: The Hawkeyes and their upcoming game with K-State. Or, more appropriately, everything you wanted to know about Iowa football but were too afraid to ask.

Heston, who attended Iowa during the 1980-81 school year, said there is a similarity between the gridiron programs at Iowa City and Manhattan. Both were once habitual losers.

"For 20 years, Iowa was the doormat of the Big Ten (Conference)," Heston said. "It reached a point to where Bobby Cummings, who was the son of head coach Bob Cummings, was injured in a game and 60,000 fans stood and cheered."

But that's where the likeness ends.

"Even when they were enduring 20 straight losing seasons, there were 60,000 fans in the stands," he said. "It's the only game in town...It's back the Hawks until you die."

Enter Hayden Frye and the beginning of a love affair with the state of Iowa. During his first season as head football coach at the University of Iowa in 1979, Frye wasn't exactly a big hit with Hawkeye fans when his squad went 5-6.

"Hayden stepped on a lot of toes his first year. He said 'We're the worst football team in the country.' And he went out and surprised a lot of people by how well the team played," Heston said.

In Frye's second year, the Hawks were 4-7 but the coach started to realize the potential was there. He worked on the offensive and defensive lines, and started recruiting skill people with the sales pitch that "we've got people that will keep you from getting hurt."

It worked. In 1981, Iowa was 8-4 and repeated that record in 1982, earning a berth in the Rose Bowl.

"From that moment on, Hayden Frye replaced (former head coach) Lute Olson as 'God' in the eyes of most of the Iowa people," Heston said.

And the the love affair hasn't ended. Prior to the 1983 season, Frye said 60,000 fans weren't enough in Kinnick Stadium. The school responded by adding 7,700 seats. And when Frye threatened to leave Iowa unless an indoor practice facility was built, Heston said the alumni raised the money within a week.

"The support is just fanatic. Crazy," Heston said.

Frye also struck it big with the local fans by placing the "ANF" (America Needs Farmers) logo on the Hawkeyes' helmets.

"He's a (public relations) genius," Heston said. "Here he is making almost $100,000 annually coaching a football team, and yet he's still popular with farmers who are losing their butts (financially)."

When comparing Frye to K-State Coach Stan Parrish, Heston said the only similarity would be the use of junior college players to rebuild the program. Otherwise, their styles are quite different.

"Frye brought in the Tiger Hawk emblem and immediately outfitted (Iowa) in Pittsburgh Steeler-style uniforms," Heston said.

■ See HAWKEYE, Page 14

Senior harrier Anne Stadler stretches Thursday during practice. The K-State cross country team will open its season this weekend at the Iowa State invitational tournament.

Harriers to start season

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The cross country teams open up their seasons with an invitational tournament at Iowa State this weekend. The men will be led by junior Rob Hays, while the women will be led by seniors Anne Stadler and Alysun Deckert.

The men will be trying to get in shape to improve on their fifth place conference finish of last year. The women will have their work cut out for them as they try to grab the top spot in the conference after finishing second to Colorado last year.

Beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday at Veenker Golf Course, the men will run a five-mile course. The Wildcats will be competing against the University of Kansas, Drake, South Dakota, Central Missouri State, Augustana-South Dakota, South Dakota State and Iowa State.

Inexperienced is the word cross country coach John Capriotti used to describe his men's cross country team.

"With mostly freshman and sophomore runners on the squad with only one junior we are extremely inexperienced," Capriotti said.

"This will definitely be a rebuilding season for my men's squad. I'm hoping that my (younger) guys won't get down if they don't win a lot of meets. I am going to be judging them by how well they compete against the younger guys on other squads," he said.

Losing his three best runners — Jim Knuteson and Ron Stahl, who finished their eligibility in cross country, and Jan Jonsson, who has to serve a year of military duty in his homeland of Sweden — Capriotti was faced with redshirting his better younger runners to build a team that would have a chance to be competitive both in the Big Eight and on the national level.

Capriotti decided to redshirt five runners, including Pat Hessini, a standout on last year's squad. "With those two guys (Knuteson and Stahl) gone and Jan not here, Nebraska and Iowa State will pretty much fight for the title," Capriotti said.

"I brought four freshmen in last year and I have four really good freshmen this year, so in a year or two we look to be really strong, probably in the top five or ten in the country," he said.

While conceding the top two spots in the conference, Capriotti added that the other spots are up for grabs.

"Iowa State and Nebraska will probably finish one and two. Colorado has a pretty strong team after winning the conference the last couple years, but after that any team could fill any of the next five spots," Capriotti said.

Capriotti's women's team will return a more experienced squad this year with two seniors and two juniors leading the squad. While the men look to be tough contenders down the

■ See DISTANCE, Page 14

Crew team to travel abroad

By Paula Selby
Collegian Reporter

K-State men's varsity rowing team, celebrating its 25th Anniversary this season, will compete in the Hindley Royal Regatta next July.

This single-elimination regatta, held in Hindley, England, is as prestigious to rowers as the Wimbledon tournament is to tennis players, said Don Rose, crew coach.

"It's royal because a member of the Grand Marquis is supposed to go...every third year to that particular event," Rose said.

Other countries competing in the regatta are Russia, Great Britain and Germany. Also present will be Yale University, "the best" according to Troy Kolb, president of the K-State team's executive committee. Last year, Harvard rowed against Russia in the regatta final.

On the trip to England, the eight team members will be accompanied by two alternates — the coach and a faculty adviser.

"We're doing it ourselves," Kolb said. "We're raising the money. Basically, each one of the individuals that go is expected to put up at least half of the costs. The rest of the money will be raised by men's varsity and sponsorships from companies, corporations, grants, families, etc."

The team is hoping to raise $26,000 before they go. The week-long stay in England is expected to cost $2,000 per person, he said.

The K-State Crew will start fundraising to purchase a new eight-man racing shell. Kolb said they need "one that is up with current technology and is competitive against other racing shells. All of the racing shells we have now are basically outdated...It will be the first new racing shell we've had in the boathouse in over 15 years."

"Our racing shells average 64 feet, or 720 inches. We propose to sell each inch at $15," he said. The team hopes to raise $10,800.

"Racing shells cost anywhere from $9,000 to $12,000, plus shipping to get it back to this part of the country," Kolb said.

"We're really still in the process of putting everything together," he said.

"I say by the end of the year we'll have (the fundraising) in full swing."

The team will kick off its spring season by traveling to Austin, Texas, for a week of training during spring break.

"At the conclusion of the week, we race against Texas University, the University of Minnesota, KU, Washburn, Wichita State, Nebraska, Notre Dame and Tulane," Kolb said.

K-State Crew will compete in the Head of the Des Moines River Regatta Saturday. "If you're the 'head', you're number one. We — the Kansas State men — are the champions. We've won two years in a row," Rose said.

The regatta in Des Moines is a 3-mile race, but most races only last 2,000 meters or 1 1/4 miles, Kolb said. "It's actually twice as far as usual, so it's a test of endurance as well as technique," he said.

K-State Crew usually races every weekend during the season, but on Oct. 24 it will have its annual class day races.

That day the team has intrasquad

■ See CREW, Page 14

Team headed in right direction

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

For baseball coach Mike Clark, this year's version of the 'Cats is a step in the right direction for next spring.

"This fall we've got an outstanding group of recruits and all will make a challenge for every starting spot on the team," Clark said. Deciding which players will get the starting spots in the skill positions will be tough, he said.

This year's version of the team will be a little bit more wide open. The team speed, according to Clark, is much faster than that of last season's team.

"We've got some new kids that really fly," he said. "This will be a hit and run club, not a home run hitting club like last season."

"Last season our three, four and five hitters accounted for about 30 homeruns. This season will be more aggressive...taking the extra base, stolen bases and just run and run."

Clark added that the team speed will help bolster the defensive part of the game.

"We'll be running down a lot more fly balls," Clark said. "Every outfield position is faster than last season's."

The big plus for K-State will be the added depth in the pitching corps.

"Last season we had a five-man staff, with two of those guys being converted pitchers," Clark said. "This year, though, we've got 11 kids who do just pitching and only pitching. We've got kids that can go the extra innings if need be. If they get tired, then we can bring in some kids who can shut the opponents down."

"Last year we lost a few games because we didn't have anybody left in the bullpen," he said. "We lost those games by scores of 15-6, 14-3. This year we expect the kids to keep the score around 5-3, 4-2...to keep us in the ball game."

Clark admitted that the ball club has a lot of work to do before the opening game next spring.

"This fall we've had a few kids injured and the substitutes have come in and done a good job," he said. "We've had a chance to see everybody play and we're still a long way from where we need to be on opening day."

Clark said that the attitude in the team is much better this season and will play an important role in the success of this year's team.

"Last season we were learning how to win," he said. "This year they know what it takes to win and we're working hard to ensure that the season will be a good one."

Two more Kansas banks fail this year

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Mayfield State Bank in Sumner County and the Murdock State Bank in Kingman County both were closed at noon Thursday by the state banking commissioner but will reopen Friday as branches of banks in Harper and Norwich.

State Bank Commissioner W. Newton Male and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. jointly announced the failure of the banks shortly after they were closed.

Both banks were owned and managed by Bradley Noll of Cheney, said Michael Heitman, an aide to Male. The banks had common management although they are located 40 miles apart.

Noll was not available Thursday. His wife told those who tried to call him at his home that he would have no comment.

Heitman said an investigation into the causes of the banks' failure was continuing and should take about a week. Male issued a lengthy statement saying the reason for the banks' failure was speculative securities trading and not economic conditions in the rural areas served by the banks.

"Massive losses in both banks' securities accounts completely destroyed the entire capital structure of these two institutions," said the statement issued here by Male. "Not only was the capital reduced to zero, but in addition the losses brought about a combined deficit capital amounting to over $4 million."

The FDIC said the two banks would reopen Friday morning, with the Mayfield bank becoming a branch of the First National Bank in Harper and the Murdock bank becoming a branch of the Farmers State Bank of Norwich.

The federal agency said depositors in the banks whose accounts did not exceed the $100,000 limit would have their checks honored by the reopened branches. Depositors can continue to conduct their banking transactions for 18 months. However, an FDIC spokesman said customers of the banks are encouraged to visit the new branches Friday to discuss whether to continue as depositors.

They were the fifth and sixth banks to fail in Kansas this year, following the Talmage State Bank in Dickinson County last Thursday. They also brought to 133 the number of bank failures nationally so far this year. Texas leads with 39 failures in 1987.

Male, who took charge of assets of the two banks at the closings, said they the failures could not be blamed on the farm economy.

"Instead, the problems were in the area of speculative securities trading," he said in his statement. "Specifically, the banks purchased long-term government securities, including 'stripped bonds' of principal only or interest only, by engaging in 'pair offs.'"

The term "pair offs" is applied to a practice in which the prospective purchaser receives the verbal assurance of the broker that the security will not have to be accepted for delivery, Male said. The commitment requires no investment on the part of the purchaser because the security is to be sold and settled before settlement date, he added.

"In a rising market, it can generally be sold at a profit. In a falling market, such as has been the case in recent weeks, banks can become liable for the purchase of large amounts in excess of prevailing market at settlement date," Male said.

In an effort to avoid the losses it was absorbing because of the long-term bond market, the two banks accepted delivery of numerous securities and financed the purchases by utilizing repurchase agreements and brokered deposits, Male said.

"When these practices are carried out by bankers, the bond account can become a virtual dumping ground for unscrupulous security dealers."

Male said the two banks reported combined assets for about $16 million on June 30, and an Aug. 28 examination revealed combined total assets of about $85 million.

"These speculative activities are violations of law and endanger any bank which might be engaging in such practices," the bank commissioner said.

He urged all Kansas bankers to know the people who sell them securities, and to deal only with local reputable dealers and invest only in "sound, authorized investments."

FDIC spokesman Bill Olcheski said from Washington that the federal insurance agency will assume from the Mayfield bank $7.8 million in assets and from the Murdock bank $7.5 million.

He said the FDIC would hold the assets to see if the acquiring banks want to buy them. If nobody wants them, the FDIC will liquidate those assets, he said.

The insured deposits of the banks will be funded by a equivalent cash payment from the FDIC.

The Harper bank paid a premium of $51,750 for the transferred deposits and will purchase other assets of the Mayfield bank worth $11.2 million.

The Norwich bank will pay a premium of $138,750 and purchase other assets of the Murdock bank worth $13.2 million, Olcheski said.

Heart Attack.
Fight it with a
Memorial gift to
the American
Heart Association.

THE AMERICAN HEART
ASSOCIATION
MEMORIAL PROGRAM.

American Heart
Association

TV Listings

By TV Data

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 25, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Bugs Bunny Flirtstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00 " "	TBA	" "	My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs Teddy Ruxpin	SportsLook Tractor Pull	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00 Hour Maga-zine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	Incredible Hulk	Auto Racing: NASCAR Winston Cup 500	Movie: "For Me and My Gal"
10:00 Jeopardy! Lose or Draw	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Andy Griffith Dick Van	Body Electric The Africans	Waltons	" "	" "
11:00 Password Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Painting	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00 News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	College Football: Akron at Temple	Movie: "The Silence"
1:00 Lives As the World Turns	Guiding Light	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Bewitched	Mystery: Sherlock Holmes	Major League Baseball: St. Louis Cardinals at Chicago Cubs	PGA Tour: Ryder Cup Golf	Woman Watch
2:00 Santa Barbara	Donahue	Scoby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	" "	" "	" "
3:00 Oprah Winfrey	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravest	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	Transformers	" "	Munsters Laverne
4:00 3's Company	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Good Times Jeffersons	SportsLook Racing	Alice Carol Burnett
5:00 News	News CBS News	M*A*S*H Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Benson Soap	SportsCenter Magic Years	Andy Griffith Major League
6:00 Rags to Riches	Dallas	Full House Dora	Hill Street Blues	Washington Wall St. Wk.	Movie: "The Jerk"	PGA Golf: Ryder Cup	Baseball: San Diego Padres at Atlanta Braves
7:00 Miami Vice	" "	Max Headroom	Movie: "Revenge of the Pink Panther"	Moneybags	" "	Boxing (Top Rank)	" "
8:00 Private Eye	Beauty and the Beast	20 / 20	" "	Innovation Market	News INN News	" "	Baseball
9:00 News	News Cheers	News M*A*S*H	Barney Miller Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	H'mooner Trapper John	SportsCenter	Night Tracks: Power Play
10:00 Tonight Show	Solid Gold in Concert	B. Buddies Nightline	Movie: "My Darling Clementine"	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	M.D. Movie: "Phantom of the Paradise"	Australian Rules Football	Night Tracks
11:00 Ent. Tonight	Discover	700 Club	Blood Runs Cold	Sign-Off	" "	" "	" "
12:00 David Letterman	" "	" "	" "	" "	" "	" "	" "

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 26, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Gummi Bears	Hello Kitty Mighty Mouse	Care Bears My Little Pony	Kidsons LovelyLocks	" "	Farm Report World Tom.	Tennis: International	Bonanza
8:00 Smurfs	Muppet Babies	Pet Monster Puppies	Popples Get Along	Adventure People-Adventure	Charlando People-Adventure	Championships of Spain	National Geographic Explorer
9:00 Fraggle Rock	Pee-wee Play. Visionaries	The Wizard of Oz	Bugs Bunny and Porky Pig	Cliffhangers Old House	Minority Business League	(Semifinals) Tennis Cont.	" "
10:00 ALF	Popeye & Son Teen Wolf	Flintstones Bugs	Woody Power	Motorweek Animals	The Hugga Bunch	Sports SportsCenter	NWA Super Bouts
11:00 Stan Parrish Tom & Jerry	Storybreak Bob Valasente	Jem Golf	Wonder Woman	Painting Garden	Twilight Zone Lead Off Man	Saturday Horse Show	Pre-Game College Football
12:00 Can't Take It Baseball	News Your Question	" "	Movie: "Terminator 2: The Judgment Day"	Sesame Street	Major League Baseball: St. Louis Cardinals at Chicago Cubs	American Gold Cup	ball: Auburn at Tennessee
1:00 Major League Baseball	Sports Spcl. College Foot-	" "	Sky	Tax Changes '87	Louis Cardinals at Chi-	Fishin' Hole	" "
2:00 Teams to be Announced	ball: Ohio State at LSU	Coll. Football College Foot-	Star Trek	Bodywatch Wonderful	cago Cubs	Drag Racing: World Finals	" "
3:00 " "	ball: Nebraska at Arizona	Battlestar Galactica	Collectors Calligraphy	Soul Train	College Football: Miami at Bonanza	" "	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies
4:00 National Geographic	" "	State	Buck Rogers	Focus/Society Focus/Society	At the Movies Good Times	Arkansas	" "
5:00 Wild Kingdom	Back Yard CBS News	" "	Black Sheep Squadron	Health Century	Bustin' Loose Charles	" "	World Championship Wrestling Major League
6:00 Hee Haw	Mama It's a Living	Guinness Rec. B. Buddies	National Geographic on As-	Swing Choir Invitational	It's A Living Mama	College Foot-	baseball: Penn State vs. Bos- Francisco
7:00 Facts of Life	Movie: "Gunsmoke: Return to Dodge"	The Sheriff 9 to 5	Werewolf Beans Baxter	Tales of the South	Movie: "The African Queen"	ton College	Giants at Atlanta Braves
8:00 Golden Girls	" "	Movie: "Splash"	Chance Duet	Austin City Limits	Queen	" "	Portrait of America
9:00 " "	Jake and the Fatman	" "	Rich & Famous	Country Cliffhangers	News INN News	" "	" "
10:00 News	News Sex Symbols	News Movie: "First Born"	The Sheriff It's a Living	Movie: "Pat and Mike"	Way West	Sportscenter Championship Wrestling Pro Boxing	Night Tracks: Charabusters
11:00 Night Live	At the Movies	" "	Way Back Solid Gold in	Rock & Roll	" "	" "	" "
12:00 Siskel & Ebert Muppets	Dallas	News	Concert NCTV	Sign-Off	" "	" "	" "

SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 27, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 James Kennedy	Jerry Falwell	Jimmy Swagart	Superfriends	" "	R. Schuller Heritage-Faith	Tennis: International	Tom & Jerry and Friends
8:00 L. Lundstrum Robert	Discovery Herald-Truth	Kenneth Copeland	All Star Wrestling	Sesame Street	Sunday Mass Popeye	Championships of Spain	Cont'd Andy Griffith
9:00 Schuller Jimmy Swagart	Oral Roberts Larry Jones	Week With David	Wild, Wild West	Mister Rogers Special	Bugs Bunny Power	(Finals) Cont'd Good News This Week in	Movie: "Battle Cry"
10:00 gart Muppets	CBS News Sunday Morn-	David Brinkley All Star Wres-	Black Sheep Squadron	Sesame Street	Superman Lone Ranger	Sports SportsCenter	" "
11:00 NFL Live	NFL Today	ting Golf	Star Trek	Reading Y.E.S. Inc.	Rawhide	Sunday Tennis: Int.	" "
12:00 NFL Football: Regional Cov-	NFL Football: New York	" "	Movie: "Tarzan Finds a Son"	Washington Wall St. Wk.	Wild, Wild West	Jr. Chall. Volleyball: Pro	Sanford
1:00 erage	Giants at Miami Dol-	" "	" "	Adam Smith Computer	Major League Baseball: St. Louis Cardinals at Chicago Cubs	Beach Tour. Auto Racing	Major League Baseball: San Francisco Giants at Atlanta Braves
2:00 " "	phins	Tennis	Movie: "Dennis the Menace"	Presidency and Constitution	Louis Cardinals at Chi-	Auto Racing: Formula One	Francisco Giants at Atlanta Braves
3:00 NFL Football: Regional Cov-	TBA	" "	ace	America's Children	cago Cubs	Grand Prix of Spain	" "
4:00 erage	Game Show Biz	Fame	Movie: "Heidi's Song"	Vintage Years Vistas	Kung Fu	Louisiana Super Derby	Sanford Championship Wrestling Carol Burnett
5:00 " "	CBS News News	News Football	" "	Bradshaw on the Family	Puttin' on Hits	Hydroplane Racing	" "
6:00 Our House	60 Minutes	"Alice in Wonderland"	21 Jump Street	Wild America Nature	Star Search	NFL Prime Time	Movie: "Man Without a Star"
7:00 Family Ties	Murder, She Wrote	Spenser: For Hire	Married... With Children	Nature	Windy City Celebration	" "	" "
8:00 Movie: "The Terminator"	Law and Harry McGraw	Dolly	Tracey Ullman Mr. President	Masterpiece Theatre	Twilight Zone	Spirit of Adventure	National Geographic Explorer
9:00 " "	" "	Buck James	To Be Announced	William McGlaughlin	News INN News	" "	" "
10:00 News	News Marblehead	News Movie: "Life-guard"	Mama Hardcastle	Debut	H's Heroes Dempsey & Makepeace	SportsCenter Sunday	Sports Page Jerry Falwell
11:00 Entertainment This Week	Rich & Famous	" "	Lou Grant	Drugs Tony Brown	TBA	NFL Prime Time	World Tom.
12:00 Happy Days Sign-Off	Sybervision Sign-Off	Fame	Sign-Off	Sign-Off	At the Movies Fame	NFL's Greatest Moments	Jimmy Swagart

Religious Directory

American Baptist Campus Ministry
Evening Gathering
Sundays - 7 p.m.

Baptist Campus Center
1801 Anderson 539-3051

- Study Sessions
- Social issues resources
- Personal consultations

Campus Minister - Dave Stewart

Manhattan Jewish Congregation
Shabbat Services 8 p.m.
1st and 3rd Friday
Religious School
9:30 Sundays
Rides Available
Sponsor B'nai B'rith Hillel at K-State

1509 Wreath Ave. (temple)
539-8462

Campus Adviser,
David Margolies 532-6154

The Assembly
Manhattan's Assembly of God

Sunday Praise Hours
10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m.

- Sunday School—9:30 a.m.
- Collegiate Bible Class
- Transportation available

Office ..... 537-7633
Seth Childs Rd. at Gary Ave.

Mike Wall, Pastor. 537-7967

Come share the Spirit!

Lutheran Campus Ministry
Worship 11 a.m. Study 9:45 a.m.
Sundays Danforth Chapel (campus)
Lutheran Student Movement 5 p.m.
Sunday - Lutheran Student Center
Don Fallon, Pastor
1021 Denison 1539-4451

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
801 Leavenworth
537-0518

Worship 8:30 & 11 a.m.
Church School 9:30 a.m.

- College Outreach (Tuesdays, K-State Union)
- Weekday programs for youth
- Nursery available

Senior Minister
Rev. Dr. Philip S. Gittings III

GREAT COMMISSION
Church of Manhattan
Campus Bible Study
Sunday Worship
10:30 a.m. Sundays
at University Inn

WESTVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH
WORSHIP 8 and 10:30 a.m.
College Class 9:30 a.m.
Kennedy's Chain side entrance
Sun. Eve. Worship 6 p.m.
1st, 3rd, and 5th Sundays
CARE CELLS (Small Groups)
6 p.m. 2nd and 4th Sundays
Office at 2607 Allison Ave.
3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
8:45 a.m. Communion
(first Sunday of the month)
9:45 a.m. Church School
8:45 & 11 a.m. Worship
Nursery provided for all services

John D. Stoneking, Pastor
612 Poyntz 776-8821

Trinity Presbyterian Church
Church School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.

- Nursery Provided
- Handicap Accessible
- Rides Available

Pastor James Cramer
1110 College Ave. 539-3921

UNIVERSITY CHRISTIAN
2800 Claflin
8:30 & 11 a.m. Worship
9:45 Sunday School
(College Class Meets at Mr. Steak)
6:30 p.m.
Sun. Eve. Service
Handicapped Accessible
776-5440

COLLEGE AVENUE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
Sunday School — 9:30 a.m.
(College-age Class)
Worship Service — 10:45 a.m.
1609 College Ave. 539-4191

STUDENT WELCOME! COLLEGE HEIGHTS BAPTIST CHURCH
8:30 a.m. First Worship Service
9:30 a.m. Sunday School
11 a.m. Second Worship Service
6 p.m. Training Hour
7 p.m. Evening Worship

2221 College Heights Rd. 537-7744

FLINT HILLS FULL FAITH Church
Sunday School 9:15-10 a.m.
Worship 10:15-11:00 a.m.
Home Group Bible Studies
217 Seth Childs—Church Location
(Bent. of Raoul's Escondido)
809 Houston ..... 537-0256

Manhattan Mennonite Fellowship
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
KSU Student Group 6:30 p.m.
Dorothy Nickel Friesen, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4079

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Worship at 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Sunday School — 9:45 a.m.
(Collegiate Class)

10th & Poyntz 537-8532

BLUE VALLEY MEMORIAL UNITED METHODIST
Sunday School 9:15 a.m.
Morning Worship 10:30 a.m.
835 Church Ave. 539-8790

First Baptist Church
SUNDAY WORSHIP 11 a.m.
CHURCH SCHOOL 9:45 a.m.
2121 Blue Hill Rd. 539-9881

ST. LUKE'S LUTHERAN CHURCH
WORSHIP Sat. 6 p.m.
Sun. 8 and 10:45 a.m.
SUNDAY SCHOOL 9:30 a.m.
COLLEGIATE FELLOWSHIP as scheduled
539-2604 330 N. Sunset

St. Isidore's
Catholic Student Center
Sunday Masses
9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 5 p.m.
Saturday - 5 p.m.
Daily Mass - 4:30 p.m.
711 Denison 539-7496

Crestview Christian Church
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m.
Collegiate Sunday School 9:30
776-3798
4301 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
(on Hwy. 24, across from State Park)

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Church School—9:45 a.m.
Worship—8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.
Disciples of Christ

115 Courthouse Plaza 776-8790

CHRISTIAN CAMPUS MINISTRY
A Ministry Of The Church Of Christ
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Classes 9:30 a.m.
& Wed. 7:30 p.m.
2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581

COME AND WORSHIP! MANHATTAN CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE
College Class 9:30 a.m.
Worship Services 10:50 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Study & Prayer Wed. 7 p.m.
10th & Fremont 537-4936

Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan
former Lusk High School Juliet St. and Piene
Worship 9 a.m.
Sunday School 10:15 a.m.
776-0259 Nursery provided 537-8526

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)
Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken, 539-9469. (2-27)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

HELP CHILDREN learn. The Friendship Tutoring program needs more tutors. Please call 776-6566 if you are willing to volunteer to help a child on Thursday evenings. (20-24)

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours Sixth Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lifts/parties/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure 1-800-321-5911 today!! (20-24)

FREE—TRIP to Daytona plus commission money. Going to Florida? Go for free. Take advantage of promoting the #1 Spring Break trip. If interested call Designer's of Travel 1-800-453-9074. Immediately! (23-24)

ATO—CAR wash, 11 a.m.—2 p.m., Poyntz Pantry Ditch, 1522 Poyntz, Sunday, the 27th. (23-24)

DOMESTIC AND imported cheeses at co-op prices. Available at People's Grocery Co-op, 811 Colorado. Open to everyone. Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, 10 a.m.—6 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m.—5 p.m. (24-27)

THE CONVOCATION Series featuring Noam Chomsky scheduled for Monday, September 28, 1987 at 1:30 p.m. in McCain Auditorium has been postponed. It has been rescheduled for Tuesday, November 17, 1987 at 7:30 p.m. in McCain Auditorium. (23-25)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (71)

TWO-BEDROOM furnished apartment across street from Ahearn. Available October 1st. Phone 776-7559. (20-24)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211)

PRIVATE, ONE-bedroom, no pets, $210. Call 776-0181. (221)

ROOMMATE NEEDED: $125/month, own room, very nice. Call 539-5406. (23-27)

TWO-BEDROOM, 727 Leavenworth #2, available Sept. 30. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 537-3186. (23-29)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1981 CHEVETTE. New brakes, air, FM/cassette, 59,000 miles. Priced to sell. Call Jarrett 539-2301. (16-25)

1979 FIAT station wagon, excellent condition, $1,300. Phone 537-4626. (20-24)

1969 MUSTANG, very good condition. Call 776-3758 after 5:30 p.m. (20-24)

MOVING SALE, 1976 Plymouth (Valiant), automatic. In very good condition except rust in some unimportant areas. 86,000 miles. Only $300. 539-6705. Keep trying. (22-24)

1975 VEGA hatchback. Runs, needs work. $200. 776-0240. (22-24)

1982 FIREBIRD, 59,000 miles, 350, all power, tilt/cruise, new tires, real sharp, $6,000. 537-4420. (22-25)

MUST SELL: 1976 Ford Mustang, V-8, automatic, power steering, brakes, $650 or best offer. 539-1768. (23-25)

1981 CHEVROLET El Camino Road Knight. Dark blue paint, exceptionally clean, loaded, sunroof. (913) 273-5492. (24)

CHILD CARE 07

BABYSITTER NEEDED in my home for 13-month-old evenings and weekends. Must have own transportation. Non-smoker, call 539-8447. (22-25)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN $HUNDREDS weekly in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your fall class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. We prefer to hire work study students and students who are eligible to work 30 hours per week. Food Handler's Card a must. (15-25)

MAKE $4,600 monthly stuffing envelopes. For details, send self-addressed stamped envelope to Adeela, P.O. Box 2142, Stillwater, OK 74076. (18-27)

WORK STUDY student to work 10-20 hours a week with university outreach/conference coordinator. Attention to detail, and written and oral communication skills are necessary. Typing and word processing experience is required. Position offers good background experience for students in areas of management, marketing, business, education, and conference planning. For more information call 532-5575 (ask for Deb) or stop by the Warehouse Building, 1623 Anderson Ave. Application deadline is Sept. 25. (17-24)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

BANQUET SET up/janitor person. Part-time evenings and weekends. Apply in person, 418 Poyntz. (21-25)

ROCK BAND seeking lead singer. Zeppelin, Stones, Aerosmith, etc. Experience, time, energy required. Call 776-7319. (21-24)

KSU STUDENT employees needed residence hall food centers, $3.35 per hour. The residence hall foodservice centers are hiring student employees. You may choose your hours within the time periods students are needed. Work anywhere from 3 to 20 hours per week—your choice! Jobs still available in Food Production, Service, and Sanitation. No night work (finished by 7:45 p.m. at the latest), every other weekend assigned, and no holiday work expected. Call Pat, 532-6483 (Derby Food Center), Mary, 532-6484 (Boyd Food Center), Sherry, 532-6482 (Kramer Food Center). (21-24)

PART-TIME MOTOR route carrier needed. Hours 2 to 7 a.m. Must have economical, dependable transportation. Only dependable, responsible people need apply. 539-7900. (21-25)

HARDEES of Aggieville is taking applications for delivery drivers, day or night, full time, full or part-time. Can earn five to six dollars per hour. (21-24)

STUDENT SWITCHBOARD operator to work Monday through Friday, 2 to 6 p.m. Applications will be accepted until Friday, 5 p.m. Room 114, East Stadium, by Betty Bubendorf. AA/EDE. (22-24)

LUNCHTIME WAITRESSES wanted. See Rusty at Kite's. Apply after 1 p.m. (24-26)

STUDENT RECEPTIONIST wanted to work Monday—Thursday mornings, 8 a.m. to noon. Contact speech department, 532-6875 or apply in person, 129 Nichols. (24-26)

Share gifts of good health, earn extra money for the holidays

Shaklee, the Nation's Number One Nutrition Company, now offers Gifts of Good Health and Good Taste for the holidays. Earn extra cash just for introducing them to your friends. No capital required, no inventory. To see how easy it can be, call 316-685-0875

BOB OLIVERA
1157 S. WEBB
WICHITA, KS
67207

GARAGE AND YARD SALES 11

GARAGE SALE—Car seats, VCR, color TV, winter clothes and coats, sewing machine cabinet, kitchen items. Saturday, 7 a.m.—1 p.m., 3211 Valleydale. (23-24)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31)

THREE-BEDROOM, stove, refrigerator, laundry hook-ups. Available now. No pets. Call 539-5562. (23-24)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

NICE, CLEAN, 12 x 65, two-bedroom mobile home, air conditioner and furniture if desired, on large shaded lot. 539-5778. (21-24)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND—ONE earring between Dickens and Blue-mont halls. Claim by identifying. 261 Blumont. (23-25)

FOUND—JEAN jacket with keys on sidewalk in front of Weber Saturday. Call Judd at 539-7561. (23-25)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, camouflaged workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.—5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

WE BUY—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie in Aggieville. (16-24)

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

TANS TO GO
$2 Sessions
1214-C Moro-Aggieville
776-7874
(must be used by 10-31-87)

FRIDAY
Fried Chicken or Spaghetti w/meat sauce all you can eat $3.95 with salad bar
111 S. 4th

ARE YOU CREATIVE
Decisive, Confident, Know your related occupation field. Find out for sure by Handwriting Analysis. Write Mr. Long, 333 N. Valley, KCK 66102

THE CHIEF
LATE NIGHT BREAKFAST GRILL
10 p.m.-1 a.m. Fridays and Saturdays
Candlewood Shopping Center 539-1571

TEDDIES
now at
UNDERCOVER
1224 Moro Aggieville
Open 7 days
Free Gift Wrap

PARTY PIC REORDER DAYS
It's your final chance to order party pics from previous events!

SEPTEMBER 23, 24 & 25
11-4:30 p.m.

- no minimum purchase
- no reorder fee

UNIVERSITY PHOTOGRAPHY
711 N. 12th in Aggieville
537-8041

LEE'S WESTERN WEAR
913-776-0715
Just Arrived
New Shipment of
WRANGLER PRO RODEO JEANS
2 mi. east of K-Mart Hwy. 24
Manhattan, KS. 66502
776-6715
Mon.- Sat. 9-5:30
Thurs. 9-8:30

SUN CONNECTION
NOW SELLING $2 SESSIONS
1126 Laramie 776-2426

POOL PARTY EVERY FRIDAY
5 p.m.-8 p.m.
75¢ DRAWS
50¢ BURGERS & DOGS

$1 WINE COOLERS
WEATHER PERMITTING

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Bat wood
4 Thin coin
8 Food fish
12 Tax-time asst.
13 Do film work
14 Mine field
15 Stub-bornly resistant
17 Actor Thick
18 Twofold
19 "The Below" (movie)
20 Pittsburgh output
22 Desire
24 Attila's group
25 Difficulty fellow
30 Categorizes
31 Fruit cooler
32 Computer printout
34 Grats
35 Knocks

DOWN
36 Source
37 Saw
40 Talon
41 Tel —
42 Sailor's biscuit
46 Descartes
47 On the sheltered side
48 Caviar
49 Energy units
50 Lascivious look
51 Souffle ingredient
DOWN
1 Teutonic cry
2 Health club
3 Strengthening agent
4 Car sticker
5 Object of adoration
6 "Bei — Bist Du Schoen"
7 Seine season
8 Inclines
9 Golf goal
10 "Bonanza" son
11 Refuse
16 Club cost
19 Football linemen
20 Old Irani head
21 Band instrument
22 Bends
23 Pretentiously esthetic
25 Basketball target
26 Handy-man's needs
27 — fix
28 One type of pressure?
30 Swindle
33 Propels
34 Decree
36 One with seniority
37 Stallion's mate
38 State
39 Delecting
40 Canadian Indian
42 Actor Linden
43 Porter's cousin
44 Gear part
45 Beer bash need

Solution time: 24 mins.
DORM CAR SMOG
ARIA LIE TARA
DAMN ALF USES
ALEXIS RANS
MASSAPPEAL
AMMAN TIE UNO
DEAN BEN ASTA
ASS ALE TRIED MASSMARKET
ATOZ UNDOES
TACO BELK EDIT
AFRO BELK CORA
BLEED SEA OLEG
Yesterday's answer 9-25

WATERSKI AND Windsurf this fall and next spring. Buy a wetsuit or drysuit on sale now from Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

USED SAILBOARDS from $325, demo sailboards, sails, wetsuits, etc. all on sale at Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

RALEIGH RACER USA, competition 14-speed geometry, 61.5 cm frame, yellow on white colors. $300 or best offer. 537-0182. (20-24)

1984 SHADOW 500. In prime condition. Must sell soon. $1,300 negotiable. Call Ron after 7 p.m. at 532-5277. (21-25)

MUST SELL! 1982 Kawasaki LTD 550, 3,000 miles, garaged, in excellent condition, Vetter helmets. Interested? Call 776-5926. (22-26)

1982 HONDA XL 100. 500 miles. Great school bike. Call 539-3719 evenings. (23-27)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

ROCK BAND seeking lead singer. Zeppelin, Stones, Aerosmith, etc. Experience, time, energy required. Call 776-7319. (21-24)

DRUM EQUIPMENT for sale: Ludwig 14" and Ultra-sound 14" snares. Peavy 50W bass amplifier. All excellent shape. 539-1697 or 539-2328. (22-24)

ALTO SAXOPHONE, Conn student model, good condition. Assessed at $425, will sell for $350. 532-3508. (22-26)

FOR SALE: Small Peavey PA system includes amp head, two cabinets. Excellent condition. 539-5987. (24-28)

Hayes House of Music

DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

PERSONALS 18

PAULA, YOU are beautiful, caring and wonderful. I am glad we have had a year and a half together. I love you so much! Kevin. (23-24)

HAPPY BIRTHDAY Dr. Simons. Can we still have a party? From Albert and The Elements. (24)

AGR DATES: We're going to a pig farm, a long ways away. So set your alarm. It's "A Lay in the Hay!" Love, your Theta dates. (24)

SNU GABBY—There's an emergency on Friday at the club, I hear. But first let's party with tool kits and beer. Trislie. (24)

PIKE—MALCOM? The last 4 weeks have been a blast, definitely more than friends at last! Crazy is what we'll be Saturday night, so you'd better be ready to party till light! From your X-sibling. (24)

STUDMUFFIN, TRASHMAN, and Spike: Your night off from the trough is this Saturday, when with your Theta dates you'll be layin' in the hay. There'll be drinkin' and dancin'—we'll party all night. So get ready for the fun "boys", we'll do it up right. Love, Bullfrog, Skippy, and Peachy. (24)

TO BRYAN and Mat: Our Men of Mariati, your dinner is served. You bring the steak, we'll bring the milk, and we'll all go romping in the hay. See you tonight and bring your appetite. The Partyin' Innocent and Checks. (24)

DELT SOFTBALLERS: Saturday's the day, we'll all go out to play, softball's the game, and we stink at rhyming, so anyway—good luck! Your ADPI batgirls—Glenda, Ronda, Lori, and Amy. (24)

FARMHOUSE—GOOD luck this weekend! We're behind you all the way! Your ADPI batgirls. (24)

BETA DATES, Andrew, David, and Scott—Your doctors are on call, we are prepared for an emergency! Love, your Chi-O's: KG, KC and KA. (24)

A.G.R.'s KYLE, Ted, Jeff. Get excited to M-A-S-H with the Alpha Chi's! Love, Lesley, Jenny, Sami. P.S. Sandy wishes Doug could go! (24)

FUJI—DAN, James, and Bill, I-one, I-one, tonight we will date one. Kammanawanna M-A-S-H with you. Don't forget your grenades because tonight will be a blast. Oh yea, and smile when I speak to you boy! Love, AXO Kim, Nancy, Kelley. (24)

OPUS ACKUS! Shanon's nineteen. Hide Bob and Sue! Break out the extortion series! The loose woman survives another year. —MC and Pita. (24)

CHRIS Mc.—Student Foundation appreciates outstanding job with Oozeball '87! Good show! oozefully yours, "oozecommittee". (24)

FUJI's MUTE, Top Smack and Turd: You can't talk to him, he can't hear you anyway; you can't fly high with him, he thinks he's too cool for the rest of the boys; you can't lay em, cuz the pot's already full. Get ready to roll in the hay, this party will be one you'll all definitely want to remember. Love, Mari, Pam and Melissa. (24)

JOHN—WEEKENDS aren't the same without you. I miss you! Just think about me before you "meet chicks and babes!" I'm thinking about you—"Don't forget." Love, Mari. (24)

DELTS—JIM, John, Woody, Marshall, and Craig: Are you ready to M-A-S-H with an Alpha Chi? —Your Hot Lips dates: Andrea, Karen, Karla, Julie, and Sherry. (24)

PUNKY—HAPPY Birthday from Denver. We miss you. Love, the three K's and two J's. (24)

KAT—190 and counting. It gets better all the time. Happy birthday. Love, BIPH. (24)

LAMBDA CHI softball players: Get psyched for this weekend. We're going to have fun. By the end of the tourney, we'll be number one. Love, your ADPI batgirls. (24)

DU STUDS—Saturday's game is soon to be here, so get out your mits and we'll be ready to cheer. Good luck. Love, your batgirls. (24)

SIGMA CHI Softballers: A win Saturday is what we'll see, so get psyched and #1 you'll be! Love, your batgirls, Robin, Erin, Mandy, Chris, Cheri. (24)

PHI DELT Softballers: We know you guys are the best. You're a hit above the rest. The ADPI tournament will be lots of fun, cause you guys will be #1! Beth, Amy, Missy, Wendy. (24)

TO THE PHI DELT 48-hour parties: The party is about to roll, by Sunday the alcohol will have taken its toll. We know you all can make it thru, the Delta parties have faith in you! (24)

THETA HOUSEBOY party dates: In Alta Vista we'll be kicking up our heels. Any that better than servin us meals? Love, the Thetas. (24)

THETA BARN party dates: Saturday night we'll do it up right, with dancin and "swingin" out in the moonlight. Those Thetas can party the whole night away, so get ready for fun, "Layin in the Hay!" (24)

"OPUS" IS finally here! I just want to say thank you to everyone who worked so hard to make this possible. Electric Electric Entertainment Committee you're super! I love you all, your stressed-out leader, Lydee. (24)

FUJI's: LET'S do it again this year. #1 all the way. Love, your ADPI batgirls. (24)

FROM The sewers and gutters they come, the Kappa and Phi Kaps as burms, in from the streets they stumble and fall, to function at the Phi Kap house—one and all! (24)

PIKE LIL sis's: Even though you can't participate in Lili Olympics we still think you're the best. See ya Sunday, 6:30. Love, the Pikes. (24)

DOOBERHEAD—At last! You're the best, but I need TLC because that's what boys are supposed to do. Thanks for everything. I love you tons—Pookie. (24)

SIS—I'm sorry about the way things have been going. Let's work together and be friends. Have a happy birthday! Love ya lots! JKN. (24)

KD JULES—Happy birthday mash queen. Paris with Spuds and Chester Chee, partying with meatloaf and godzil tonite. Me and the Joe love you. ruf-ruf—Minder. (24)

ADPIs—JUST start to cheer 'cuz the time is finally here. It's the softball classic and our teams will be fantastic. We'll have fun in the sun and find out which team's #1. (24)

MEN'S AND women's cross country teams—Let's start the season off right tomorrow at Iowa State—it can be a great year! (24)

HEY BATTER batter batter—swing. The Phi Tau's are going to be the ones to win. Good luck, your ADPI batgirls. (24)

LAMBDA CHI's Bob, Tim, Scott, Tim, Ken, and Theta Xi's Bob, Jim, David: We'll bug out to Tuttle for M-A-S-H, then it's back to your Neighborhood bash. Mr. Rogers says he can hardly wait 'cause Alpha Chis are the best party dates. (24)

THETA XI dates: The beer will be flowin on Saturday night. We be cotton-eyed Joeir and oh what a sight in Alta Vista we'll play in the hay, we will all be partying the night away. Love, your Theta dates. (24)

HEY BATTER batter batter—swing. The Phi Tau's are going to be the ones to win. Good luck, your ADPI batgirls. (24)

LAMBDA CHI's Bob, Tim, Scott, Tim, Ken, and Theta Xi's Bob, Jim, David: We'll bug out to Tuttle for M-A-S-H, then it's back to your Neighborhood bash. Mr. Rogers says he can hardly wait 'cause Alpha Chis are the best party dates. (24)

THETA XI dates: The beer will be flowin on Saturday night. We be cotton-eyed Joeir and oh what a sight in Alta Vista we'll play in the hay, we will all be partying the night away. Love, your Theta dates. (24)

HEY BATTER batter batter—swing. The Phi Tau's are going to be the ones to win. Good luck, your ADPI batgirls. (24)

LAMBDA CHI's Bob, Tim, Scott, Tim, Ken, and Theta Xi's Bob, Jim, David: We'll bug out to Tuttle for M-A-S-H, then it's back to your Neighborhood bash. Mr. Rogers says he can hardly wait 'cause Alpha Chis are the best party dates. (24)

THETA XI dates: The beer will be flowin on Saturday night. We be cotton-eyed Joeir and oh what a sight in Alta Vista we'll play in the hay, we will all be partying the night away. Love, your Theta dates. (24)

HEY BATTER batter batter—swing. The Phi Tau's are going to be the ones to win. Good luck, your ADPI batgirls. (24)

LAMBDA CHI's Bob, Tim, Scott, Tim, Ken, and Theta Xi's Bob, Jim, David: We'll bug out to Tuttle for M-A-S-H, then it's back to your Neighborhood bash. Mr. Rogers says he can hardly wait 'cause Alpha Chis are the best party dates. (24)

THETA XI dates: The beer will be flowin on Saturday night. We be cotton-eyed Joeir and oh what a sight in Alta Vista we'll play in the hay, we will all be partying the night away. Love, your Theta dates. (24)

HEY BATTER batter batter—swing. The Phi Tau's are going to be the ones to win. Good luck, your ADPI batgirls. (24)

LAMBDA CHI's Bob, Tim, Scott, Tim, Ken, and Theta Xi's Bob, Jim, David: We'll bug out to Tuttle for M-A-S-H, then it's back to your Neighborhood bash. Mr. Rogers says he can hardly wait 'cause Alpha Chis are the best party dates. (24)

THETA XI dates: The beer will be flowin on Saturday night. We be cotton-eyed Joeir and oh what a sight in Alta Vista we'll play in the hay, we will all be partying the night away. Love, your Theta dates. (24)

HEY BATTER batter batter—swing. The Phi Tau's are going to be the ones to win. Good luck, your ADPI batgirls. (24)

LAMBDA CHI's Bob, Tim, Scott, Tim, Ken, and Theta Xi's Bob, Jim, David: We'll bug out to Tuttle for M-A-S-H, then it's back to your Neighborhood bash. Mr. Rogers says he can hardly wait 'cause Alpha Chis are the best party dates. (24)

THETA XI dates: The beer will be flowin on Saturday night. We be cotton-eyed Joeir and oh what a sight in Alta Vista we'll play in the hay, we will all be partying the night away. Love, your Theta dates. (24)

Man found guilty for tampering

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, N.J. — A physics prodigy and former Princeton University graduate student was convicted Thursday of placing a cyanide-laced teabag on the shelf of a supermarket near the school.

Dragoljub Cetkovic, 32, of East Windsor, was found guilty of product tampering and communicating false information in the Feb. 10 incident, which the defense said was part of a desperate suicide attempt.

He faces up 15 years in prison when sentenced Nov. 10.

Cetkovic, whom Princeton banned from its campus four years ago, was accused of calling a Super Fresh market in Princeton Township and telling the manager some cheese had been tainted with cyanide. The school is located in adjacent Princeton borough.

The caller claimed to be a newspaper reporter who received an anonymous tip, and said that as proof the threat was real, a single teabag could be found with the poison. The manager removed it and the cheese, which was found to be untainted.

Telephone records traced the call to Cetkovic's apartment, where a search six weeks later turned up a vial of potassium cyanide.

Cetkovic took the stand in the two-day trial and said his action was part of a suicide plot. He said he wanted the authorities to test the cyanide to determine if the dose was lethal, and that he would learn about the test from reading the newspapers.

Three chocolate candies with signs of tampering that authorities found in a cedar chest with the cyanide at Cetkovic's apartment were allegedly to be used in the suicide.

Gulf

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

U.S. officials were expected to repatriate the 26 Iranians on Saturday.

Lloyd's terse report on the Tuesday incident said the research survey vessel Marissa "hit a mine ... while on voyage from Kuwait to Dubai. Vessel sunk. Three survivors and four casualties."

There was no word on the whereabouts of the survivors nor the nationalities of any of those aboard. The ship, used for surveying channels and water depth readings, is owned by Raneses Shipping Co. of Panama.

The incident brought to at least 10 the number of people killed in mining incidents in and near gulf waters in the last two months.

It occurred less than 20 miles from tiny Farsi Island, used by Iranian forces for armed speedboat forays against ships, and a few miles from where a British-flag tanker, the 102,799-ton Gentle Breeze, was badly damaged in an attack by the Iranian gunboat commandos just a few hours earlier.

The damaged tanker arrived under tow at Bahrain on Thursday for repairs. One member of its crew was killed in the attack, which drew cries of outrage from the British government.

unidentified American warship traveling along.

A U.S. military source, refusing to be identified, said, "There are no U.S. convoys at this time," and a source at the government-owned Kuwait Oil Tanker Co. also denied that any convoys of its reflagged tankers were moving in either direction.

The U.S. warships are assigned only to escort U.S.-flagged ships, specifically the Kuwaiti tankers that have been re-registered in the United States.

The official Iraqi News Agency, monitored in Cyprus, said Iraqi warplanes raided two power stations deep inside Iran, without giving their geographical regions.

INA reported that Iran shelled the southern port city of Basra, killing 12 civilians and injuring others, but Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency denied the city had been shelled.

The Tehran agency said Iranian long-range artillery only shelled Iraqi border towns in retaliation for earlier Iraqi air raids on Iranian industrial targets.

Senate

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

the option of extending student fees to cover the additional amount needed for the $1.069 million plan.

"We can be proud of the services there," said Matt Queen, senior in chemical science and student senator. "We should pass it for $1.069 million; and we can be proud of what we're doing."

Some senators expressed concern about the unwillingness of the administration to cooperate in finding alternative means of funding since last spring.

Crew

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

racers. The freshmen race the sophomores while the juniors take on the seniors.

Following the class day races will be the annual Captain's Banquet in the Union Ballroom. At the banquet, the team selects new men's and women's captains for the season.

Parents also attend the banquet to meet the coach and the other team members.

"We've gone at least six years in a row," Rose said. He added that the crew did not race the first two years they went.

"It's critical training...and a lot of conditioning. We camp out all week down there and everybody has a good time," he said. "It's sponsored financially by the crew, each member pays his own way."

Hawkeye

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

said. "Parrish came in with the 'plain-jane' uniforms and was more or less results-oriented instead of image-oriented."

If there is a bad side to Frye, it's his habit to run up the score against weaker opponents to impress the pollsters. After losing to Tennessee in the season opener and scoring only 15 points in a win against Arizona, Heston said Frye probably believes he "needs to make an impression" against the Wildcats.

But one thing is guaranteed Saturday when the Hawkeyes battle with the 'Cats: it will be a party atmosphere, similar to when Nebraskans flock to thier Memorial Stadium on game day to watch their beloved Cornhuskers.

"One of the guys on our (dormi-ory) floor (during) my freshman year (at the University of Iowa) was a metals major and we designed a wheelchair that would hold an eight-gallon keg," Heston said. "Then we would wheel one guy in each week with a blanket over his legs."

"The ushers used to joke with us about how interesting (it was that) a different one of us was crippled each week," he said.

And similar to Nebraska, Iowa City is draped with black and gold and the city is packed with fans before and after the game — win or lose.

"The whole state goes black and gold," Heston said in reference to the Hawkeyes' impact on Iowa.

And what about the people in Ames, Iowa, where the Iowa State University Cyclones reside?

"If the truth were known," Heston said, "in Ames, most of the people are sitting there watching the Hawks on TV."

Distance

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

road, the women anticipate improving on last year's top 10 NCAA finish.

The women begin the 5,000-meter course at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. Along with the Wildcats, the Univrsity of Kansas, Drake, South Dakota, Central Missouri State, Wisconsin-LaCrosse, Augustana-South Dakota, Minnesota, South Dakota State, Iowa and Iowa State will have teams competing.

Capriotti expects both Iowa State and Colorado to be major contenders in the Big Eight women's standings. Iowa State returned its entire women's squad and Colorado won the crown a year ago.

"I'm really looking forward to facing the tough competition that we'll see at Iowa State. It will give my young men's squad a chance to see how they stack up and it should also be a good test for my women," Capriotti said.

Krystallos

"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR

New Supply of Conchos, Beads & Leather Strips

Open Daily 8-5:30, Sat. 8-1
Thurs. 8-8
Drive Up, Convent Road
401 Humboldt
776-1193

FREE DELIVERY

HUNAM Restaurant

1304 Westloop

10% off with KSU ID

539-8888 539-0888

Manhattan Milling Co.

- K-31 Fescue $26.50/50 lbs.
- Fertilizers
- 13-13-15 $6.50 lbs.
- 34-0-0 $6.50 lbs.
- Weed & Seed $6.60/20 lbs & $2.50/40 lbs
- Sulfur Salt $1.20/50lbs

Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

Until now, beer this real came only from a keg.

Draft beer is as real as beer gets. Since it's not heat-pasteurized, heat can't change its rich, smooth, real taste.

Miller Genuine Draft is as real as that. It's not heat-pasteurized like most other beers in bottles and cans. Instead, it's cold-filtered so it's as rich and smooth as only real draft beer can be.

As real as it gets.

Performance Series

Playing their oldest and newest material, Tom Chapin and Helen Reddy performed Friday at McCain Auditorium. See Page 9.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with a 40 percent chance of thundershowers, high 70 to 75. Clearing tonight, low 45 to 50. Mostly sunny Tuesday, high in low 70s.

Mike Clark got a chance to fine tune his team for its upcoming season with a solid 19-6 victory. See Page 6.

Monday
September 28, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 25

Kansas State Collegian

Staff/Jim Dietz

Mangled Bicycle

Riley County Police Officer Daina Moore examines the bicycle ridden by K-State student Robert Lamar, who was injured at 10:18 p.m. Sunday. Police said Lamar was struck by a car driven by Gerald Fischer, freshman in English, at 17th Street and Anderson Avenue while riding his bicycle. Lamar was riding without lights but was not cited. At press time, Lamar was listed in serious condition with a fractured leg and facial lacerations, according to a spokeswoman at The Saint Mary Hospital.

Moslem faction threatens death

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem faction holding foreign hostages in Lebanon on Monday threatened to kill Tunisian government leaders if seven fundamentalist convicts are executed in that North African Arab nation.

The threat came in a typewritten Arabic statement issued by Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War, and delivered to a Western news agency in Beirut along with a photograph of American hostage Terry A. Anderson.

"We consider this step as a declaration of war on Moslems not only in Tunisia but throughout the world."

—Islamic Jihad

The black-and-white photo showed Anderson in a dark striped shirt looking straight at the camera. The picture was similar to five other photos of Anderson released in November and December of 1986 and January and February 1987.

Anderson, 39, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, is the longest held hostage among the 23 foreigners missing and believed kidnapped in Lebanon. He was abducted March 16, 1985.

In addition, Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite is missing after he vanished last January during a mission to attempt to mediate the release of some of the hostages.

Islamic Jihad, which claimed responsibility for Anderson's abduction, also holds another American and at least three Frenchmen. The group's new statement made no threats against the hostages.

The release of Anderson's picture appeared to be only meant to authenticate the statement.

"The price for the execution of our struggling brothers will be big heads of the leaders of the Tunisian oppressive regime," the statement said.

Tunisia's state security court on Sunday passed death sentences on seven Shiite Moslem fundamentalists accused of trying to overthrow the Tunisian government with Iranian help. But only two are in prison; the other five were tried in absentia.

"We consider this step as a declaration of war on Moslems not only in Tunisia but throughout the world," Islamic Jihad's statement said.

"Unless the Tunisian regime reverses its unjust sentences and releases all the imprisoned strugglers, it will bear the responsibility for this step which will only end with the uprooting and elimination of the regime."

"Either freedom for the strugglers or war which we will not confine to a specific time or place."

The Tunisian trial involved 90 defendants charged with attempting to overthrow the government of President Habib Bourguiba.

Two defendants were sentenced to life imprisonment. One is Rachid Ghannouchi, head of the Islamic Tendency Movement, a group that the Tunisian government said has links with Iran's fundamentalist Shiite regime.

Iraq attacks 4 tankers Oil shuttled for 20 hours

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraq said its war jets attacked with missiles four tankers shuttling oil along the Iranian coast in a 20-hour span ending Sunday night, as Baghdad kept up pressure on Iran's vulnerable oil lifeline.

The attacks coincided with a new warning by Iraq of all-out war if Iran fails to accept a cease-fire demanded by the United Nations.

Iraq retorted that it would pursue its "holy war" against Iraq's secular government until President Saddam Hussein was toppled. The Persian Gulf neighbors have been at war since September 1980.

Shipping officials based in the Persian Gulf confirmed the first three Iraqi attacks.

They could not immediately verify a fourth raid that the official Iraqi News Agency said was carried out after dark Sunday against a "very large naval target" off Iran.

That phrase usually means a tanker sailing between terminals on Iran's gulf coastline. INA, monitored in Cyprus, said all the warplanes returned safely.

Iraq also accused the United States of mistreating 26 Iranian seamen who were repatriated to Tehran on Sunday after U.S. helicopter gunships attacked and disabled their minelaying landing barge in the gulf.

Iraq's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the U.S. Navy kept the captured Iranians bound and "savagely imprisoned" below decks on U.S. warships, and that the Americans tried to induce the prisoners to defect.

IRNA was also monitored in Cyprus.

"For political propaganda purposes, the Americans offered to give the crew members political asylum, but they were met with a negative response by the Iranians," Ali Rabi-zadeh, an Iranian navy petty officer, was quoted as saying.

In Washington, the State Department said it did not know of any offer of asylum, but said all 26 Iranians returned willingly on Saturday, along with the bodies of three comrades killed in Monday's U.S. attack.

A U.S. navy demolition team blew up and sank the 1,662-ton Iran Ajr Saturday, hours before its crew was handed over to Iranian diplomats in the neutral sultanate of Oman.

Iraq denied that the Iran Ajr was planting mines, although the Americans displayed about nine black explosive globes on the deck of the captured ship.

U.S. minehunters have been searching the waters for other mines laid by the ship, but at last report Friday had found and destroyed only one.

SADD founder reinforces ideas of not mixing alcohol, autos

By Sally Neary
Collegian Reporter

Robert Anastas minced no words Saturday in delivering his somber message.

"I'm going to talk to you about life and death, and the death box you're in," said Anastas, founder and executive director of Students Against Driving Drunk.

Anastas, who spoke to about 65 people in Forum Hall, said teenagers, college students and adults are facing the complexity of drinking and driving.

"Every teenager in this country and every college kid who's a freshman, sophomore, junior or senior is living in a death box, but death is so camouflaged here that you can't see it," Anastas said, adding that camouflage comes in two forms.

"There is a lack of communication between you — if you're in high school — and your parents," he said. "Second, there is the peer pressure that relates to everyone sitting in this audience."

Anastas said, in 1981 one person per hour was dying from drunk driving accidents in the 15 to 19-year-old age bracket.

"Since then I've seen the death rate go from 6,000 — 7,000 to 2,000 — 3,000 because you decided you don't want it anymore," he said.

In 1988 Anastas will be campaigning to bring the deaths from drunk driving accidents below 1,000. He said students and adults have to identify the problem of the "death box" and then attack it.

"You have to get people to believe in each other, whether it's roommates, mother and father, anyone," he said. "We have to get a chain, a network of support, across the country where people believe in each other."

Anastas talked about SADD's Contract For Life, which is designed for teenagers and their parents. The contract says that if the teenager is in a situation where he or she has been drinking, the teenager can call the parent for a ride home.

"The key to the contract is this: that my love for you as a father, and your love for me as a son has to be strong enough to overcome any obstacles that may make you chal-

■ See SADD, Page 14

Colombian mudslide kills 100

By The Associated Press

MEDELLIN, Colombia — A mudslide roared down a mountain Sunday and buried homes in Medellin, Colombia's second-largest city, killing at least 100 people, authorities reported.

Medellin Mayor William Jaramillo Gomez told Radio Caracol that 100 people had died, 200 were injured and 500 were missing. The city morgue said it had received 86 bodies and hospitals reported 14 other people died of their injuries, according to Colombian news reports.

Hospitals said they had treated more than 150 people who were injured when tons of mud and rock rained onto 60 houses at the base of Sugar Loaf mountain. The hospitals said most of the injured were children with multiple fractures and lacerations.

The mayor said the slide occurred at 2:30 p.m. and swept through the Villa Tina neighborhood.

He said mountain creeks burst their banks following heavy rains, sending a stream of water, earth and rocks cascading onto a neighborhood at the foot of Sugar Loaf mountain.

Sugar Loaf is part of a mountain chain that surrounds Medellin. Torrential rains have fallen on the northern Andes for the past week.

"We heard the noise that sounded like an explosion and soon afterward a huge mass of rocks and mud descended upon us," said Mary Mosquera, who lost three daughters in the avalanche. "They were trapped by huge rocks and we couldn't do anything to rescue them."

Among the victims was a group of 30 children who were celebrating their first Holy Communion, said Sister Luz Maria, member of a Roman Catholic order that works in the neighborhood.

Authorities said the number of dead was expected to rise because many bodies were still trapped.

'Network of support' is requested to help encourage sensible action

By The Collegian Staff

For those unconvinced by what Robert Anastas told them in his lecture Saturday, a mock tragedy was staged in the south field of Memorial Stadium following the presentation. The KSU Police Department, Manhattan Fire Department, Fort Riley Public Service Department and Riley County Emergency Medical Services helped sponsor the event.

Eric Ward, paramedic and crew chief for the Riley County EMS, narrated the mock accident. The accident was the result of a drunk driver who lost control of the car and rolled it.

"The victim was not wearing a seatbelt, so the injury was more serious," Ward said.

The fire department was called in because rescuers were unable to get the car doors open. After the fire department sawed the roof of the car open, paramedics were able to start an IV to replace the victim's lost blood. A plastic tube was inserted into the windpipe to take over the victim's breathing. Meanwhile, a helicopter from the Fort Riley Military Assistance for Safety and Traffic was called in.

"It (mock tragedy) took about 45 minutes because we were talking through it so the audience could follow along," Ward said. "Normally our goal is 10 minutes, understanding that it might take longer if the person is trapped."

Chris Rexroad, freshman member of SADD, said, "The mock tragedy was very realistic. It really showed how much time it takes to get a person out of an accident."

Briefly

By The Associated Press

'Husking' contests continue

WASECA, Minn. — Much has changed since the first corn husking championships 60 years ago, like the contestants' running shoes and the spectators' home video cameras.

But the contestants still have to husk corn the old-fashioned way — with their hands.

"Those young guys are tough to beat," said 84-year-old Gerhard Boelter, the oldest husker at Saturday's Minnesota Corn Husking Contest. "I'm always picking against the 75-year-olds. I haven't much of a chance to win. But I generally get the honor of being the oldest man."

He missed the cut and won't be among the first-, second- and third-place finishers going to Marshall, Mo., next month for the national competition.

Corn husking contests started in the United States in the 1920s, when a couple of Iowans bragged to a couple of men from Illinois about how much corn they could pick in one day, said Durward Irvine, 67, of Amboy.

Pretty soon 10 Corn Belt states were sending state champions to a national competition that was supported by then-U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace. The contests drew thousands of spectators.

Irvine finished eighth in the Minnesota contest in 1941, which was the last husking competition until it was revived in Minnesota in 1979. The art of corn husking died when farm mechanization took hold in America during World War II.

Officers refuse to leave barracks

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — At least 150 officers from an army regiment in suburban Buenos Aires confined themselves to their barracks late Sunday to protest the transfer of their commanding officer.

The soldiers, carrying automatic weapons, refused to leave their quarters at Tablada, 9 miles southwest of the capital, at about 10:30 p.m., the government news agency Telam said. The soldiers said they were protesting the transfer of their leader, Lt. Col. Dario Fernandez Maguier, the agency reported.

It appeared to be the most serious military incident since last April, when officers from army regiments in Buenos Aires, Cordoba and Salta mutinied, demanding amnesty for officers accused of human rights abuses during the 1976-83 military regime.

Woman with cancer gives birth

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — An Independence woman who fought cancer and a history of miscarriages was elated after giving birth to a healthy daughter Sunday.

Whitney Lynn Watson, a healthy 6-pound, 2-ounce girl was born "crying and screaming," said her father, Jeff Watson. For Watson's wife, Cheri, her fourth pregnancy was complicated by a series of operations to remove a malignant tumor in her left leg when she was five months pregnant.

Cheri Watson suffered miscarriages during her last three pregnancies.

"After everything she's been through, to see her have a healthy baby is really something," Jeff Watson said.

His wife was very happy Sunday, he said.

"She said she was tired, but she's too happy to sleep," he said.

Poll finds opposition to Bork

NEW YORK — A Louis Harris Survey taken last week found Americans opposed to the nomination of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court by a 2-to-1 margin, according to a published report.

In a telephone survey of 1,249 adults between Sept. 17-23, 57 percent said they were opposed to Bork's confirmation while 29 percent were in favor, the New York Daily News reported Sunday.

The poll, distributed by Tribune Media Services, Inc., found opposition strongest among blacks, where the margin was 71 percent to 15 percent.

Among people who described themselves as conservatives, Bork was supported by 44 percent while 40 percent were opposed.

The margin of error in the Harris survey was not reported.

A New York Times-CBS News poll reported that of 836 adults surveyed Sept. 21-22, after Bork testified, 26 percent said they had an unfavorable opinion of the nominee; 16 percent had a favorable opinion; and 57 percent were undecided or had no opinion.

Dogs maul, kill 2-year-old girl

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Two dogs, a pit bull and a German cattle dog, mauled and killed a 2-year-old girl outside an apartment building Sunday and police charged their owner with involuntary manslaughter.

Police said Shannon Tucker, 2, was attacked by the dogs as she played outside her apartment around noon. She was pronounced dead at Mount Carmel East Hospital.

Homicide Detective James McCoskey said Kenneth Ferguson, 32, who lives in an apartment next door to the victim, was arrested on the scene and charged under the vicious dog ordinance enacted by the Ohio Legislature in July.

Authorities late Sunday afternoon had obtained warrants to seize the two dogs — a pit bull and a rottweiler, which is a German cattle dog, McCoskey said.

"We're not sure what happened exactly, but she was mauled," said Robin Hutchinson, a spokeswoman for the hospital. "She basically bled to death."

Poll shows gas prices dropping

LOS ANGELES — The average price of gasoline dropped eight-tenths of a cent over the past two weeks, the Lundberg Survey reported Sunday.

A poll of 13,000 gas stations across the United States found the average price of gasoline during the past two weeks was 101.34 cents a gallon, said oil industry analyst Trilby Lundberg. The most recent survey was completed Friday and was compared with data from the Sept. 11 survey.

The price includes all grades and taxes.

At self-service stations, which account for 79 percent of sales, prices per gallon were: regular unleaded, 94.88 cents; regular leaded, 91.58 cents; premium unleaded, 108.48 cents.

At full-service stations, prices were: regular unleaded, 121 cents; regular leaded, 117.01 cents; premium unleaded, 130.71 cents.

"Retail drops may continue in coming weeks as a result of a turnaround at the wholesale levels, responding to a strong pull in the spot markets," Lundberg said.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

TUESDAY

PHI UPSILON OMICRON activities carnival will be Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in Justin Hall lounge.

GERMAN TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2. Anyone interested in German conversation is welcome.

APPLICATIONS FOR STUDENT LECTURERS are available in Anderson 112, New Students Programs. Deadline for submitting them has been extended to Wednesday.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Paul E. Maneth at 10 a.m. in Blumont 364. The topic is: "Faculty Development Practices at Kansas Community Colleges: An Analysis of Their Perceived Effectiveness."

ARTS AND SCIENCES COUNCIL applications are now available in Eisenhower Dean's office. They are due today.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Sandra S. Adams at 10:45 a.m. in Blumont 368. The topic is: "A Developmental Approach to Guard Against a Procrustean Kindergarten."

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "On The Verge" by Eric Overmyer at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Friday at Nichols Theatre.

TODAY

ENHANCING RELATIONSHIPS GROUP meets at 6:30 p.m. in Holton 103. Sign up in Holton 103 or call 532-6927.

ALPHA ZETA meets at 8 p.m. in Waters 137 for group pictures.

GYMNASTICS CLUB meets at 9 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

PEACE CORPS meets at 5 p.m. in Union 206. The scheduled film is "Life In The Developing World."

ENGINEERING STUDENT COUNCIL meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 208.

PEACE CORPS meets at 5 p.m. in Union 207. The film scheduled is "The Toughest Job You'll Ever Love."

ALPHA KAPPA PSI PLEDGES meet at 6 p.m. in Union 206.

STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT CABINET meets at 10 p.m. in Student Government Office.

FARMHOUSE LITTLE SISTERS meet at 9 p.m. at Farmhouse.

SOCIAL WORK ORGANIZATION meets at 5:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3. Jackie Merston will speak on Alzheimers disease.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 207.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI meets at 8 p.m. in Union 207.

SENATE COMMUNICATIONS COMMITTEE meets at 8 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

BUSINESS COUNCIL meets at 4 p.m. in Union 206.

Notice

Today is the last day to drop a full semester course without a "W" being recorded.

Brother's
KSU
IN AGGRIEVILLE USA

TONITE

$1 pitchers
$2 cover

Every Monday and Tuesday!

Mark's Horse
KSU

$1.25 Imports
$2.00 Pitchers
$1.50 Wells
$1.00 shot of the week

Bar 539-9081
Office 776-6638

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

Fashion Show Models

Men and women... be a member of the ongoing Team Board. Bring brief model history and photo to Mall Office, (located at Service Area B by Dillard's) on Friday, October 2, from 9-4.

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Kappa Kappa Gamma, Off Campus

Sept. 29: Kappa Kappa Gamma, Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Top hair designer with 15 years experience, LOLA specializes in Long hair and as a color artist. For introduction LOLA is offering 50% off cut with styles through Oct. 10th. Call LOLA for your personal appointment.

TINA/
Studio 32
FOR HAIR

776-8830 Candlewood

Auntie Mae's Parlor

MONDAY'S HIGH ROLLERS
Any call or premium liquor drink
$1.75

Tuesday Import Beer
only $1.25
Pitchers $2.25

Now Serving Sandwiches
Kitchen open til 1 a.m.
616 N. 12th 539-8976

A BREAKFAST BREAKTHROUGH

99¢ BISCUIT SANDWICH

No time to fix breakfast? No problem. Swing by Vista and start off your busy day the easy way with our hearty Vista biscuit sandwich. Now just 99¢ each—with your choice of ham, sausage or bacon. Vista's big biscuit sandwiches are breakfast pleasures!

Ham, sausage or bacon biscuit sandwiches, 99¢ each for a limited time. Cheese and egg extra.

Vista
RESTAURANTS

1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

K-STATE MARKETING CLUB
presents:

F/M/A

Fletcher/Mayo Associates
(advertising agency)

on

September 28, 1987

Union Big 8 room
7 p.m.

AMERICAN MARKETING ASSOCIATION

RUSHWACKERS
THE FUNDRIKERY

DISCOVER THE FUN
Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. at 9 p.m.

Tonight

Happy Cole
along with Bud Dingman

Show 9 p.m.
Office
539-4321

Tickets $2
Bar
539-9727

Candidate talks about change

K-State budget director search continues

By Dana Brummelt
Collegian Reporter

The second candidate for K-State's budget director believes the position should be more service oriented.

William R. Marshall, director of financial affairs for the South Dakota Board of Regents, spoke to nine people from University departments during an open interview Friday in the Union.

"I'm being drawn into administration and that's why I'm here," Marshall said. "I've come to a time in my life that I don't feel I have to be an executive. I want to stay in budgeting, because I enjoy it. I think it's fun."

He said budgeting is more than just calculating, and he is willing to "roll up his sleeves" and help with the little problems. He likes to hear from people and find out what they're all about.

"I would go out and talk to the people and get to know them and find out what their budget problems are," Marshall said.

Marshall senses a need for better integration of K-State's budgeting with the real world.

"The budget document is well thought out, but there needs to be a connection with a marginal excellence plan," Marshall said.

"A budget is as alive as any plan and is used throughout the year," he said. "It's the administrative foundation of any institution."

Marshall said he is capable of getting things done and will make changes as they are warranted.

"As the budget director, I would assess what we need and find the weaknesses if there are any. That's what I'm good at," he said.

He suspects there is room for change at K-State.

Marshall said one criticism of the South Dakota Board of Regents is that it fights for its money, but the board doesn't monitor it closely enough.

"I don't feel that the budget director should monitor the day-to-day process — that should fall back on the dean and president," Marshall said. "The director's duty is to see that it gets done."

Marshall has been with the South Dakota Board of Regents for six years. Formerly, he was involved with the South Dakota State Legislature as its chief fiscal analyst and was also on the Legislative Research Council, whose primary emphasis was higher education. He was also a member of the Joint Committee on Appropriations.

Marshall started out in psychology before moving to an administrative position where he had his first exposure to accounting.

"I found I had a natural ability with numbers and decided I'd give it a try," he said.

Economic outlook shows sluggishness

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III gave an optimistic view of the world economy Sunday after a gloomier one from the International Monetary Fund.

The fund's "World Economic Outlook" said sluggishness early this year roused concern that activity would slow down this year and next.

It added that this concern was increased by large surpluses and deficits in trade and growing friction on the issue, fears of a further decline of the dollar in Europe and Japan, low prices for goods produced in the Third World and the decline of bank lending to the area.

"In the United States we expect real growth in excess of 3 percent for both 1987 and 1988," Baker told the fund's Interim Committee, which makes its major decisions.

"Other countries are also putting into place policies to promote global growth and a reduction of external imbalances. Japan, for example, is moving to implement a stimulative fiscal package and tax reform, both of which should support domestic demand."

Baker's statement was made to a closed-door meeting and a prepared text was given to reporters.

The IMF, meanwhile, issued a report saying the U.S. budget deficit would shrink significantly this year but will rise through 1990, despite predictions to the contrary by the Reagan administration.

"There continues to be uncertainty about the timing and extent of future fiscal corrections because compromises between the U.S. administration and Congress on ways to cut deficits have proved to be extremely difficult to achieve," the IMF staff said in its annual economic outlook issued for meetings of the 151-nation IMF and the World Bank in Washington this week.

The report was referring to the conflicting fiscal positions staked out by President Reagan and congressional Democrats. Reagan steadfastly opposes tax increases and is trying to stave off military spending cuts demanded by the Democratic majority in Congress.

Compared to a 1986 U.S. budget deficit of $220.7 billion, the IMF staff published a table showing estimated deficits of $163 billion for fiscal 1987 ending this week.

Reagan says deficit-reduction bill forces military cut or tax increase

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III predicted Sunday that the Reagan administration can avoid seeking a tax increase to help balance the federal budget, while Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger warned against military cutbacks.

Yet President Reagan says the deficit-reduction bill he plans to sign will force him to make the choice between a tax increase or reductions in military spending — or do both.

The president announced this weekend he had decided to sign legislation restoring the automatic budget-cutting provisions of the Gramm-Rudman Act, because the amendment was attached to urgently needed legislation to increase the Treasury's debt limit.

A temporary debt bill expired last week. Unless the Treasury were authorized to resume its borrowing by Oct. 1, the government could default for the first time in its history.

The president said in his Saturday radio address the decision was an agonizing one, because the measure would force him to either "sign a tax bill or accept massive cuts in national defense — or both."

He criticized Congress for the move to "force my hand" by bringing the government "to the edge of default."

The revised Gramm-Rudman law would bring back the threat of automatic, across-the-board spending cuts if Congress and the president fail to reduce the deficit. It would require $23 billion in deficit reduction in fiscal 1988, which begins Oct. 1.

Baker, asked Sunday whether the administration can cut the $23 billion from the budget without a tax increase, replied, "Yes."

"I think you can, and we'll see whether or not you can over the next few weeks," he said in an interview on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation."

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, asked on another program about the prospect of major military cutbacks, warned of dire consequences if Pentagon spending were deeply reduced.

"The kind of condition that we were in...when the president took over...We were virtually the laughingstock of the world and we didn't have any allies who regarded us as a reliable friend," he said on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley."

"If, through congressional intention to force the president to ask for a tax increase, we're going to go back to those bad old days of neglect in the '70s, you will, indeed, have reversed one of the principal accomplishments of the president," Weinberger said.

Weinberger: 'Absurd' to ban military aid

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Sunday a congressional move to restrict U.S. military operations in the Persian Gulf would be the "height of absurdity."

Weinberger, who is in the Persian Gulf inspecting the American flotilla, was asked by television interviewers about a plan by Senate Democrats to amend a Pentagon budget bill to include congressional review of the refueling and escorting of Kuwaiti tankers.

"What we're talking about now is an amendment...that would provide that we must keep a strong presence in the gulf but we can't do anything. We have to unflag the ships that have been flagged according to proper American legal procedures, and we're not allowed to convoy. So what in the world would we do? It is, I think, the height of absurdity," the defense secretary said.

The amendment, somewhat similar to the War Powers Act, would require a report from Reagan within 30 days after the law takes effect, justifying his policy of protecting 11 Kuwaiti tankers with U.S. flags and Navy convoys.

Within 90 days of enactment, the refueling and convoys would have to halt unless both the House and Senate vote in favor of their continued presence.

President Reagan has threatened to veto the defense appropriations bill if it contains the amendment.

"When you talk with sailors and the airmen and the soldiers and the others who are out here, you get quite a different perspective than when you listen to a lot of very sterile debate about...whether or not somebody is being notified," said Weinberger, who was interviewed from Bahrain via satellite on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley."

"We're doing things that are essential to maintain the freedom of the seas. ...That's what I think we should continue to do...under the direction of the president," he said.

No time has been set for a vote on the Democrat-sponsored amendment, which was proposed Thursday night, and Republicans have threatened to filibuster the measure.

Research works.

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

American Heart Association

etl nd

Hair Unlimited

Welcomes Patty to their staff of Hair Care Professionals. Formerly of Joyce's Hair Tamers. She welcomes all previous and new clients to stop by.

For appointment call
537-4528 1330 Westloop

WE DELIVER

5 p.m.- Midnight (M-S)
Noon - Midnight (Sun.)

Sub8Stuff
Sandwich Shop

537-DELI

KEEP THE BIG FREEZE OUT!
WINTERIZE YOUR CAR NOW.

Radiator Flushes $24<sup>95</sup>
includes anti-freeze

WAYNE'S QUICK LUBE

2304 Sky-Vue Lane
539-5431

ATTENTION!

Due to a production error, a few of the '87-'88 Programmers have the pages 65-80 missing. Please check your Programmer. If yours is not complete, please bring it to the Activities Center, K-State Union 3rd floor, Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. It will be fixed and returned to you the following day. (Monday if turned in Friday) Corrections will be made through September 30. Thank you for your support and we regret any inconvenience this has caused.

k-state union
upc promotions

WE ARE ONLY A
PHONE CALL AWAY

Medical advice is as close as your telephone. If you are uncertain whether your condition is something you can take care of yourself or whether you need to see a physician, you can call LAFENE HEALTH CENTER, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Our professional staff will advise you on the best course of action—either home care or medical care at our facility. The next time you are uncertain what to do, call 532-6544—we are only a phone call away.

The Station
STADIUM
NIGHT
MONDAY

$1 STADIUM
BEERS
(32 oz.)

25¢ BAR
BURGERS
OR 6 FOR $1.39, 5-12 p.m.

Taco Tuesday
Tomorrow!

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

INSTANT
REPLAY
MONDAY

2-FER
STEINS

99¢ LATE
NITE
NACHOS
(REGULAR), 11-12

Grill open till
1 a.m. nitely!

Open to Public!

KITE'S
BAR AND GRILL

619 N. 12th, Aggieville

Lafene Health Center

Services available

Outpatient Clinic
Lafemme (Gyn) Clinic
Allergy Clinic
Mental Health Clinic
Laboratory
Physical Therapy
Pharmacy
X-Ray Department
Dietary Counseling
In-Patient Hospital
Sports Medicine Clinic
Wart Clinic

Clinic Hours • 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

532-6544

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, September 28, 1987 ■ Page 4

K-State needs to strive to hire more minorities

Even though the racial protests of the '60s are beginning to fade in memory — and the angry confrontations between blacks and whites are seldom seen — the problem of racism has not been solved.

The problem of unequal treatment for minorities has been acknowledged. Now comes the long process of changing our nation's bureaucracies so that minorities will have an equal chance. And even though this stage of the equal rights movement may not stand out in history like the events of the '60s, it is an equally important part of the process.

Recently, University President Jon Wefald has recommitted K-State to taking affirmative action on the issue of minority equality. Wefald and leaders of the Kansas National Association for the Advancement of Colored People met to discuss ways in which the University could increase its minority representation.

There are, of course, many obstacles the University must face in the process of trying to increase the representation of minorities on the campus. One of those obstacles, strangely enough, is the availability of qualified minorities for campus positions.

With the new push for affirmative action there has been an increase in competition to hire qualified minorities. The unfortunate reality of this situation is that K-State — which already has difficulties in hiring qualified people because of its low salaries — is hard pressed to acquire minority faculty or staff members.

One of the first solutions to this problem is to boost the salaries of the faculty and staff so that they are competitive with the rest of the nation. Not only would this enable K-State to draw more minorities, it would attract better qualified people in general.

The other more long-ranged solution is for the University to strive to educate more of the minority population. Minorities will never have equal representation on the nations' campuses until there is an adequate supply of qualified people to fill those positions.

Successful recruiting makes K-State proud

When University President Jon Wefald came to K-State last year, one of his goals was to work on recruitment. It is now safe to say he has done this job well. Enrollment is the highest it has been in three years, and it seems Wefald has managed to turn things around.

He has used several tactics in his war against declining enrollment. He hired new admissions representatives, and despite the initial controversy, they look to be quite an asset. They have been spreading the good word about our great school all over the state.

In addition to spreading the word about K-State at every high school in Kansas, the representatives also spent time encouraging higher education — an especially commendable action.

Not only is enrollment up, but the new students are a smart lot. Thirty-seven National Merit Scholars and 104 Governor's Scholars help make up what Wefald describes as "the best freshman class ever to enroll at KSU." This recruiting was helped along by offering full-ride scholarships for academics — the first full non-athletic scholarships to be offered.

And Wefald is making sure these new students remain at K-State. The K-State Cares program is contacting new students to make sure they are doing all right. This is a nice touch to help these new students and show them that K-State really does care. Classes have also been offered to incoming freshmen to help make a successful transition from high school to college, and also make their experience at K-State the best possible.

So congratulations, President Wefald. Keep trying to make K-State better. Is 20,000 your next goal?

Aid no answer for hungry

Commentary

KIRK CARAWAY
Collegian Columnist

You see them on television late at night and on weekends. We may see them more often with the football players' strike. They are the poor, desperate, hungry people brought to you by groups like World Vision and Save the Children. They remind us that in a world of plenty, there are people who would give anything to eat the food we throw away.

Have we outgrown our tiny planet? One might assume this to be the case given the preconceptions most Americans have about overpopulation and hunger. However, even though there are now 5 billion people on this planet, production figures show we produce enough food to feed 7 billion people. Moreover, all of this food is produced on only 60 percent of the world's cultivable land according to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, with much of this land being underutilized. With the technology available today, we could realistically feed 40 billion people if we fully utilized our resources. So you can see we have a long way to go before we outgrow the planet.

So if we have the food to feed the billions of people already here, and the resources to feed billions more, why does starvation exist?

The sad fact is that we have more to do with it than nature. Agriculture has become big business, which is more concerned with profits than hunger. Food is sold to the highest bidder, not to the people who need it.

Take Latin America for example: They export huge quantities of agriculture products, yet they have rampant starvation. Many of the crops they grow are non-food or luxury products for export, like coffee and cut flowers.

These crops are grown mostly on large plantations owned by corporations and absentee landlords. They monopolize the land and resources and manipulate the system for their own profit. These profits rarely make it back to the peasants who produce the goods. Most of it is spent on luxury goods from outside the country. There is no "trickle down" here, only misery.

The problem is not a scarcity of resources, but who controls these resources. Large landowners force small farmers off their land to make way for cash crops, with theft and violence not being uncommon means of getting rid of these small operations. These now-landless peasants then become a ready source of labor for the large plantations, who pay them slave-labor wages to farm land that may have once been theirs. They accept these wages, because slow starvation is better than no food at all.

If you think these patterns of ownership exist because "big is better," think again. The big plantations may be the most productive, but are far from being the most efficient. In Colombia, for example, large landowners who control most of the good land cultivate only 6 percent of it. In Bangladesh, the resources available would allow for two or three rice crops a year, but the landowners grow only one crop a year and even export rice to other countries while many starve at home.

The United States has been trying to help these nations develop, but has usually succeeded only in exacerbating the problem. Economic aid to these countries rarely helps the hungry, going instead to benefit large landowners. The much-heard "Green Revolutions" in Mexico and India only succeeded in driving half of the rural populations off their land and into poverty. America may be well-meaning, but it many times does more harm than good.

But isn't this market system good in keeping food prices down? Well, it definitely doesn't help those producing the food and doesn't really help the American consumer either. Take for instance the pineapple operations of Dole and Del Monte. When labor prices rose in Hawaii during the sixties, these companies started moving their operations overseas. Dole, which produced all of its pineapples in Hawaii in 1959, now produces only 25 percent there. But it charges the same prices for its foreign-grown pineapples as it does for the ones grown in Hawaii. In fact, the small Maui Pineapple Company, which sells only Hawaiian fruit, has lower prices.

The Institute for Food and Development Policy concludes that all nations have the technology and resources to feed their own people. The problem isn't overpopulation or lack of fertile land. It is the system. Aid isn't the answer; change is. Food is more than a commodity to be bought and sold like VCR's and home computers. Food is more important than that. It is life.

The NFL owners will be fielding substitute teams.

You — yes, you: Are you ready to help people who need you?

Hi. Do you know someone who went to bed hungry last night? Do you know an elderly person who sits and wastes away because he or she feels no one cares? If you know someone like this, or someone who does not even have a bed to sleep in, or who is at another disadvantage, there is a way for you to help. Yes, you.

The Kansas Community Service Organization was formed in 1986 to meet the needs of the hungry, elderly, homeless, handicapped, and disadvantaged youth. By working steadily over the past 18 months on projects such as Big Brothers/Sisters and helping statewide food banks, KCSO is reaching out to more and more campuses across the state. This is where you come in.

We need you and your organization — whether it be religious, greek, or secular — to join forces in a K-State chapter to meet the needs of those less fortunate.

Many individual groups at K-State perform various service projects throughout the year, but with KCSO they now have the opportunity to work together — Kansans strengthening their community through service projects, such as: the Hunger Cleanup, where students collect pledges from local businesses and work three hours cleaning up areas in the community that need some care;

Commentary

TIMOTHY POTTORFF
Collegian Columnist

spending time fishing or shopping with an older person; tutoring juveniles who need more guidance.

Taking part in just any of these will show that, yes, you care.

The progress described above begins soon. October is Hunger Awareness Month, with the theme "A Harvest for the Hungry." Activities include a canned goods collection dance and trick-or-treating for canned goods. World Food Day is Oct. 16, and instructors are asked to discuss the problem of hunger in their classes this day. November is set aside as "Home(less) for the Holidays," and the rest of the target months occur next spring. The KSU chapter of the Kansas Community Service Organization will be slightly different than most other campus organizations. While having the usual officers, the membership will consist of representatives of campus groups and all others interested in helping to alleviate the problems those less fortunate than ourselves face.

The state office of KCSO will then work with the KSU chapter, and for the target months, suggest various activities the local chapter organizations can work on together. This will give the KSU chapter the freedom to tailor its activities and programs to the needs of this area, such as providing escorts on the Senior Citizen Bus during icy and snowy weather.

While the Kansas Community Service Organization consists of many student leaders, it also has an impressive board of directors, including State Treasurer Joan Finney, and Kansas Secretary of State Bill Graves. These people and more believe in KCSO, but we need you.

The way for you to become involved with KCSO is coming soon. A meeting has been set for 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 29, at the Ecumenical Christian Ministries, 1021 Denison Ave. As President of KCSO, I ask you to please attend; you might just save a life. Timothy Pottorff is a senior in industrial engineering.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielzer

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
CAMPUS EDITORS
Jenny Chaulek
Chad Sanborn

SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR
Judy Lundstrom

FEATURES EDITOR
Susan Staggberg

AGRI/BUSINESS EDITOR
Janet Swanson

GOVERNMENT EDITOR
Candy Leonard

ARTS/ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR
Becky Howard

SPORTS EDITOR
Jeff Rapp

COPY EDITORS
Peggy Aeschliman
Betty Edwards
Lori Siegrist

STAFF WRITERS
Tom Denzel
Jennifer Dorsch
Lori Lindstrom
Alison Neely

COLUMNISTS
Judd Annis
Kirk Caraway
Doug Folk

REVIEWER
Gary Leffler

SPORTS WRITERS
Chase Clark
Bill Lang

Patti Paxson
Jodi Swengel
Debbie Whitson

Mike Krueger
Mike Nichols
Jeff Schrag

Tom Morris
Chris Wilhelm

SPORTS COLUMNISTS

Tom Porritt
David Svoboda

PHOTOGRAPHERS

Brad Camp
Jim Dietz
Brad Fanshier
Brett Hacker
Gary Lytle

GRAPHIC ARTIST

Mary Ward

ADVERTISING GRAPHIC ARTIST

Alex Menez

EDITORIAL BOARD

Jeff Bielzer
Kirk Caraway
Christine Doll
Deron Johnson
Chad Sanborn

ADVERTISING MANAGER

Judy Goetz

ASST. ADVERTISING MANAGER

Jada Allenhailigen

REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVE

Bill Shorbert

CAMPUS/TEAR SHEET MANAGER

Barry Steffen

SALES REPRESENTATIVES

Donna Adelhardt
Stacey Darrell
Cathy Doud
Jennifer Kopp
Melissa Paul
Eric Snell

CLASSIFIED SALES REPS

Tracy Mayhew
Jackie Clements
Janelle Dennis

DIRECTOR

Dave Adams

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR

Gloria Froiland

NEWS ADVISER

Connie Fulkerson

GRAD. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR

David Svoboda

ADV. PRODUCTION COORDINATOR

Wanda Haynie

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 332-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. All letters must be typewritten or neatly printed and signed by the author. They should not exceed 300 words.

Letters may be brought to Kedzie 116 or mailed to the Collegian.

Disabled children compete, win

By Shawn Dorsch
Collegian Reporter

It was a day of fun and thrills for preschoolers to participate in games and races of all kinds, giving disabled children an opportunity to be competitive athletes as they tossed water balloons, ran foot races and navigated a daring obstacle course.

But best of all, they were all winners for the day.

The Big Lakes Developmental Center's sixth annual "Special Games Day" was held in Junction City Friday. Big Lakes is an organization that serves the developmentally disabled in Riley, Geary, Pottawatomie and Clay counties.

Each year, Big Lakes hosts a "Special Games Day" in which preschoolers from the Wamego, Manhattan and Junction City children's developmental centers participate in a variety of activities.

Jean Carson, developmental specialist for the Junction City center, explained that the area Big Lakes take turns hosting special events such as game days and parties.

Some of the activities this year included foot races, wheelchair races, walker races, wagon pulls, an obstacle course and a water balloon toss.

The activities are designed so that each child can participate to the best of his or her ability. Big Lakes is the only facility of its kind in Kansas that offers this type of activity for preschool children.

Sevann Moore, Manhattan, has a daughter, Juanita, who is in the Big Lakes program. Moore said Juanita has been a part of the Big Lakes program since she was 2 months old. She's now 4.

"She has a blast at these things," Moore said.

Participants were apparently full of energy. While running in the foot race, a lot of them didn't stop when they reached the finish line — they just kept on going.

There were contests for every child, even those who are wheelchair bound, as well as for those who are completely immobile.

The children who can walk and run pulled their immobile riders in wagons to the finish line. Drivers carefully maneuvered their precious cargoes with the riders watching their race partners carefully to make sure they made it across the finish line.

Brothers and sisters of the developmentally disabled also participated in the day of activities.

Janet Sylvester's son, Aaron, attends the Wamego preschool center two days a week for speech therapy. She brought along her daughter Charlotte to the Special Games Day, and Charlotte learned to ride a tricycle.

Aaron strutted around, proudly showing off the stickers he had received from all the events he had entered.

Many of the children sported "kitty" faces and clown faces that they had received at their request.

In the bean-bag toss, children were to toss bean bags through a suspended hoop at one of the volunteer workers. Many of the children enjoyed the chance to throw bean bags at someone.

Children received snacks and balloons after the first set of events. Of course, many of the balloons managed to slip from the grasp of their holders.

"Well, I just let my balloon go so I could run in a race," said Jamie Dodd, Junction City.

The last event, the hurdle race, was made easier by some of the participants when they discovered it was faster just to kick the hurdles out of the way instead of jumping over them.

"Big Lakes serves 175 developmentally disabled children and adults on a daily basis," said Sue Frady, community relations coordinator for Big Lakes.

"Big Lakes clients may be physically handicapped, mentally retarded, or just developmentally delayed," she said. "We try to bring the developmentally delayed children to the level they should be for their age group."

"For some reason, people get a bad image of programs that work with the mentally retarded and physically handicapped. We want to show what good we can do."

April Cameron gets some directional help from her mother, Esther, at Special Games Day Friday in Junction City.

White-collar crime rises 18 percent over last 5 years

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The number of federal convictions for white-collar crime rose 18 percent in the first five years of the Reagan administration while convictions for other types of crime went up more than twice as fast, the government said in a report released Sunday.

The study, the first national survey of its kind issued by the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics, also found that white-collar criminals were less likely than other types of criminals to be sentenced to prison.

The bureau reported that 10,733 defendants were convicted of federal white-collar crimes in 1985, up about 1,600 from 1980. Meanwhile, federal convictions of non-white-collar crimes rose 43 percent from 1980 to 1985, to about 30,000.

The average length of a prison sentence for a white-collar criminal rose 20 percent to 29 months in 1985, compared with two years in 1980, the report concluded. The average length of a prison sentence for other types of federal criminals was 50 months in 1985, about the same as it had been five years earlier.

Tax fraud convictions of organized crime figures and drug dealers contributed to the trend of somewhat longer sentences for white-collar criminals. The study cited an 86 percent increase in the average length of prison sentences handed out to those convicted of tax fraud from 1980 to 1985, from 11 months to 21 months.

On the incarceration rate, the bureau found that 40 percent of convicted white-collar criminals were sentenced to prison in 1985, compared with 54 percent of the non-white-collar criminals. The rate for white-collar criminals in 1985 was about the same as in 1980.

Other types of offenders were more than twice as likely as white-collar criminals to receive sentences of more than five years.

The median length of a prison sentence for a federal white-collar criminal in 1985 was 15 months, meaning half the defendants were sentenced to less than 15 months in prison and half were sentenced to more than 15 months. In 1980, the median prison sentence was a year. Meanwhile, the median sentence for a non-white-collar offender was 24 months in 1985, unchanged from 1980.

Federal convicts generally serve about two-thirds of their sentence if they are well-behaved while in prison.

The study concluded that financial losses due to white-collar crime dwarf the amounts lost through other types of crime.

The report said that two years ago, 140 people were charged with white-collar offenses, each estimated to involve more than $1 million and 64 others were charged with offenses involving more than $10 million apiece. Meanwhile, total bank robbery losses were less than $19 million and all robbery losses reported to police amounted to slightly over $300 million.

Of the white-collar convictions two years ago, 55 percent were for fraud, 19 percent for forgery, 16 percent for embezzlement, 5 percent for counterfeiting and 5 percent for white-collar regulatory offenses.

About 30 percent of the criminal suspects investigated by federal prosecutors are suspected of having committed white-collar crimes.

Have story or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

WHAT THE BEST-DRESSED STEREO LOVER IS WEARING!

SONY
SONY SRF-19
AM-FM Stereo Receiver

- Comes with Headphones
- Great for Running
- Our most affordable

Sale Price
$28.88

SONY
SONY SRF-F1
SPORTSBAND WALKMAN
WATER-RESISTANT FM STEREO RADIO

- FM stereo tuner
- Water-resistant design, ideal for a wide range of sports
- Miniature in-the-ear headphones

Sale Price $49.88

SONY
SONY WM-F41

- FM-AM Stereo cassette player
- Our most affordable
- Comes with headphones

Sale Price
$49.88

SONY
SONY WM-F73
SPORTS WALKMAN
WATER-RESISTANT AM/FM
STEREO CASSETTE PLAYER

- Durable water-resistant case, ideal for active lifestyles
- Auto-reverse
- Ultra-mini water-resistant MDR headphones
- Highly visible bright yellow color

Sale Price $139.88

SONY
SONY WM-F100 II
SUPER WALKMAN WITH NI-CAD
BATTERY & CHARGER

- Rechargeable battery offers great saving over regular batteries
- Auto-reverse
- Ultra-light MDR headphones supplied

Sale Price $188

SONY
SONY D-3
Portable Compact Disc Player

- Portable use with supplied rechargeable battery
- Home use
- Car stereo use

Sale Price $259

ROLLING THUNDER

Quantities Are Limited
So, Hurry Down!

1126 Moro
776-5507

Wichita
Family Planning Inc.

Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services

Free Pregnancy Testing

Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

SPECIAL THANKS TO:

KSUARH

Goodnow HGB

Goodnow NSC

Goodnow Receptionists who helped make our Street Dance a Big SUCCESS!

*Goodnow Staff

The Ladies Club

A UNIQUE WOMEN'S FITNESS CLUB
offering:

- Over 30 Weekly Aerobics Classes
- Personalized Individual Instruction
- Nursery
- Upper & Lower Body Fitness Equipment
- Sauna
- Tanning Bed

AND MORE!

MEMBERSHIPS ON SALE NOW!
Aerobics Classes begin Oct. 1st

Call Or Visit Today

The Ladies Club
1104 Waters
Manhattan

776-6469

Optometrists

Dedicated to Optometry
in a friendly manner

K-State, we'd like to be your optometric office

- Extended wear, gas permeable, tinted extended wear, tinted soft contact lenses
- Contact lenses competitively priced
- Doctors in office for FREE consultation and trial fitting
- Approx. 5,000 contact lenses in stock
- Evening and Saturday appointments available

Drs. Price, Young, Odle and Horsch
1119 Westloop 537-1118

SCHLIEBE
WORKOUT CENTERS

Voting in the Union
September 28, 29, 30

Vote for your favorite candidate!

Proceeds to benefit cystic fibrosis

SportsMonday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Monday, September 28, 1987 ■ Page 6

Wildcats suffer 38-13 setback, gain breath of new life

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

IOWA CITY, Iowa — The plain purple and white uniforms were the same, the roster was the same and the coaches were the same, but the K-State football team that went out Saturday on to the AstroTurf of Iowa's Kinnick Stadium was not the same.

The Wildcats — playing with enough heart for probably all of the 67,700 onlookers — battled and frustrated the Hawkeyes instead of proving the oddsmakers right and being blown out. In fact, the 'Cats held on into the fourth quarter with only eight points separating them from the No. 19 team in the nation.

The outcome was familiar, Iowa 38-K-State 13, but even though K-State lost and dropped to 0-3, the roughed-up Wildcat squad proved it is much better than it showed in the first two outings.

"All the people in Manhattan who were listening to (the game) on the radio probably thought they were listening to the wrong team most of the day," K-State head coach Stan Parrish said.

"We played hard and did it under very adverse conditions. We'll walk out with our heads held up high. We played real hard and we improved. When we review the film (Sunday), I think we'll have a whole lot of positive things to build on with our football team and our football program."

"I was proud of our effort. We played our hearts out today. From an effort standpoint, I thought we played as good as we could play, and when a coach feels that way about his team, I don't think you can ask much more of them. We were severely outmanned today. That crowd was pretty quiet for most of the day at Kinnick Stadium and that doesn't happen here that often," Parrish said.

The stadium was sold out for the 42nd straight game and not a seat was empty, as all 67,700 tickets were collected at the gate. Listening to the crowd though, one might have thought only a few attended the game. Only a few times during the game — mainly after Iowa scores — did the crowd make their presence known.

"(Iowa head coach Hayden Fry) even came over after the game and said we battled harder than he thought we could against them. The kids were proud of that. I don't think the final score is indicative of the battle," Parrish said.

"Battled" is a good word to describe the game from both sides of the field. Iowa, ranked 19th in the nation and expected to win by anywhere from 42 to 77 points, found out either K-State hadn't taken the predictions to heart or they didn't read newspapers or listen to the radio.

The 'Cats came out strong and for three quarters found ways to get out of almost any precarious situation without Iowa adding points to the board. The Hawks had every thing to lose, K-State everything to gain and in the end both squads knew the win or loss didn't really matter. Iowa was very unhappy with its play.

"Kansas State really hustled and hit hard," Fry said. "This was quite a frustrating game. I don't recall any time as a head coach where I have had a team score 38 points, win a game and have such an empty feeling."

Meanwhile, K-State felt they had played just about as well as was humanly possible and definitely better than anyone — but themselves — thought they would play. Now they feel they just about have it all together and are looking forward to recording a win against Tulsa next Saturday in Manhattan.

"This game is going to set an example for us," K-State sophomore linebacker Dewayne Baziel said. "Next week (against Tulsa), the offense and defense will all come together. We aren't down yet. We're still motivated. Even though we've been losing, good things have been coming out of (the losses). The problems in the past have been we haven't been playing as a team."

The squad wasn't so confident about its chances to compete well against Iowa earlier last week, though.

"I told them (at halftime) what I told them Monday night, and they thought I was an idiot then," Parrish said. "I held them up after practice and said 'to architect an upset you must make it a thirty minute game.' At halftime I said, 'folks we're in it.' We still had a chance at the end of three quarters — we were in it."

The K-State defensive secondary, the same secondary that has been mauled by the media for its performance against Army and Austin Peay, intercepted six passes from three different Iowa quarterbacks — Chuck Hartlieb, Tom Poholsky and Mark McGwire — and recovered one fumble. 'Cat sophomore defensive backs Marcus Miller, Erick Harper and linebacker Baziel each came away with two pass thefts.

"Our defense played their rear ends off," Parrish said. "Our defensive backs played like they played last year. We keep playing like that, we'll win some games, no question about it."

The opening kickoff looked like the old K-State, as they found themselves starting from deep in their own territory at the 8-yard line. But from there, the new K-State took over.

Behind the efforts of junior quar- ■ See IOWA, Page 7

K-State, Parrish 'thank' the media

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Many times it has been said that we live in a cruel world and life is not fair. Or sometimes it is said the media has a habit of picking on certain people or groups — Gary Hart, Jim Bakker, Joseph Biden and the K-State football team.

The Wildcats arrived in Iowa City Friday feeling like they were to be the main course in a banquet. At least, that is what everyone was saying.

"We came into town...the guy said it was going to be 77 to nothing and we have the worst team in the world and it's a shame I ruined a great coaching career by coming to Kansas State and taking this job," K-State head coach Stan Parrish said. "We were ridiculed in the newspapers."

"We were really motivated by those 77-0 and 62-6 predictions. I want to thank them for doing that. I know I went over the game plan one more extra time for them," Parrish said.

The local Iowa newspapers weren't the only ones saying the Hawkeyes would swoop down on the purple prey and rip it apart. Some newspapers reported K-State to be a 42-point underdog Friday. Even Iowa appeared to be listening the media and taking it easy, expecting a repeat of last week's 48-9 blowout of Iowa State.

"We heard they hadn't practiced much for us," K-State sophomore defensive back Dewayne Baziel said. "So that kind of got us going. We were more fired up than normal. I wasn't really surprised (with our performance). Going into the fourth quarter, I still thought we had a chance to win it."

"Nothing really changed (from last week), we just got more ready to play. We just all had in it our minds that we ready to win. I believed we would have been more pleased if we had won," Baziel said.

The defensive secondary had gone through the first two games of the season without forcing a turnover. In Saturday's outing, it turned that around early, forcing seven turnovers — six interceptions and one fumble.

"The defensive backs got kind of down on on ourselves," sophomore defensive back Marcus Miller said. "Last year at this time, we had nine turnovers."

Spikers win one out of two

By The Collegian Staff

The K-State volleyball split its weekend Iowa road trip, losing to Iowa State in its Big Eight Conference opener on Friday and defeating Drake University for the second time this season on Saturday.

Friday's match against Iowa State went only three games, 13-15, 11-15, 15-17, with K-State coming out on the losing side even though they held a five point lead in all three games and needed five or less points to win.

Rebounding from the tough loss to Iowa State, the Wildcats defeated Drake, 16-14, 10-15, 15-2, 16-14. K-State coach Scott Nelson said he was pleased with the performance of the team in both matches. K-State's record stands at 8-4 overall and 0-1 in conference play. All four losses have come on the road.

Even though this Wildcat baseball player was tagged out by a Butler County player before reaching second base, many of the baseball team members made it to home plate in the 'Cats' 19-6 victory Saturday afternoon at Frank Myers field.

Baseball team tromps over Butler

By The Collegian Staff

K-State head baseball coach Mike Clark got a chance to fine tune his team for its upcoming competitive spring season with a solid 19-6 victory over Butler County Community College, Saturday, at Frank Meyers Field.

The 'Cats collected 19 hits against Butler County pitching, including a five-run offensive explosion in the bottom of the first inning.

The action-packed inning was highlighted by a pair of two-run home runs by the Wildcats.

K-State will next take on Iowa Western Community College Saturday.

Championship banners flutter in wind no longer

The championship banners lie limp on the flag poles beyond the left field wall.

An organization that has thrived on nothing but success for the last decade has faced a myriad of battles in the last 12 months, and there is no energy left in it—no wind left to whip the banners into flight.

The battle that was 1987 has been fought. It was a fight marred by the death of a loved one and a circus-like atmosphere surrounding a pampered rookie.

It was a fight that could have no victor—at least no victor in Royal blue.

The Kansas City Royals, long major league baseball's model of consistency and class, fought that battle. And while they were able to overcome several trials and tribulations along the way, the war was ultimately lost.

That's too bad. When Dick Howser finally lost his battle to cancer in June, the Royals had lost their leader. They had also, it would turn out, lost a lot more.

Howser's brilliance in the dugout had enabled Kansas City to bring home its first world championship in 1985.

It was unfortunate that such a fine and gentle man had been taken from this Earth—and from us—at this point in the fight.

But, as Howser would have wanted it, the organization moved on.

The Royals swept Toronto on the weekend dedicated to No. 10, and it looked as if memories alone might just propel Howser's men to yet another improbable finish.

But it just wasn't to be, and the Minnesota Twins clinched a tie for the American League Western Division title Sunday in Minneapolis by downing the Royals 8-1.

This Royal club was one surrounded by distractions—those before and after Howser's death, and those that came to a rather ugly head one fateful night north of the border.

Vincent Edward Jackson was the 1985 winner of the Heisman Trophy, presented to college football's most outstanding player.

He was drafted by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and appeared headed for stardom—and big bucks—in the National Football League.

But something about the 6'1", 220-pounder they call "Bo" just didn't want to suffer through losing in Tampa.

It was then that the multi-sport star began looking in earnest at an offer to play professional baseball.

Svoboda on Sports

DAVID SVOBODA
Sports Columnist

It was an offer made by the Kansas City Royals.

It was an offer that never should have been made. Hindsight, it has been said, is 20-20.

Jackson spurned the onlookers and signed a contract with Kansas City, saying that baseball had become his top priority and that the Royals were a classy organization allowing him to make a living at something he enjoyed so much.

And we all bought it—hook, line, and sinker.

Bo Jackson is an incredibly talented athlete, and he no doubt could be the best at anything he so desires—providing he makes up his mind just what it is he wants.

John Schuerholz, the Royals General Manager, took a gamble that Jackson would direct all of his energies to baseball, and for a short time the gamble appeared to be paying off.

But it never seemed right below the surface. How many athletes can you name that get a chance to determine whether they open the season in the major leagues or riding the buses in the minors?

None in the Royals organization had ever made that choice. Until Vincent Edward Jackson, that is. Mistake No. 1 by Schuerholz.

As the season rolled on and Jackson's early tear gave way to a serious assault at the major league record for strikeouts, Bo became moody. Trouble loomed on the horizon.

Toronto, Ontario, Canada was the place. Bo Jackson, Avron Fogelman, and Al Davis the players.

In the end, it was the rest of the Royals that got bit parts in this soap opera of sorts—that got the shaft while Jackson took all of the gold in the mine.

That Fogelman, the Royal co-owner, would allow Jackson to sign a contract with the Los Angeles Raiders—the team that had acquired his rights in the 1987 NFL draft—during the middle of a drive to a division title was absolutely ludicrous.

Even more ludicrous was the idea that an unproven rookie was allowed to break his existing contract and renegotiate in mid-season.

Why not just allow George Brett to modify his contract so he could go sky diving without a parachute or let Bret Saberhagen change his so he could sharpen lawn mower blades blindfolded. Bo's hobby was a strange—and dangerous—one indeed.

Schuerholz had a partner in crime in Mistake No. 2. His home is in Memphis, Tenn.

After the "fiasco in Toronto," Royal players, justifiably upset at Jackson's seemingly endless control over the front office, became distracted and the battle was lost.

Sure, the team did make a run at the Twins and appeared to be in the race again in early September, but the problems in Toronto, coupled with a poor decision in the retaining of Billy Gardner as manager, effectively killed all chances the Royals had at giving Howser a final gift, of sorts.

That's a shame.

And those flags beyond the left field wall will never again flutter proudly in the wind if something isn't done to right some wrongs immediately.

Stability is something this organization needs a great deal of now.

Treating veteran players who have given the organization so much like they're no more important than the dirt on a well-groomed pitcher's mound is no way to go about establishing that stability.

The move to hire John Wathan as manager was a step in the right direction. The "Duke" knows the organization, and if he doesn't allow himself to become Schuerholz's "yes man," he just could be the man that helps KC add another flag to the collection.

But he can't do it alone. Anyone who has watched the Royals in recent months knows the team has glaring weaknesses at shortstop, catcher, and in the bullpen.

Unless Schuerholz can make some off-season moves to shore up the team in these areas, the Twins will likely run away and hide from the pack for the next several years.

The starting pitching is sound, the team has proven talent in the Nos. 1-5 spots in the batting order, and there is a great deal of tradition on this team's side.

It's too bad the fight of 1987 had to be contested. Baseball lost a fine man when Dick Howser died. Let's just hope the organization he served so well didn't just die along with him.

The 1988 fight has already begun, and Dick Howser is watching and waiting along with all of us.

Let's hope we all like what we see.

No. 2 Cornhuskers won't stand for tie game

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska players did not want to provide college football fans with their third tie of the day among Top Ten teams.

So, after allowing Arizona State to get back into the game with two turnovers, junior quarterback Steve Taylor ran 3 yards for a touchdown with 3:37 left, giving the second-ranked Cornhuskers a 35-28 victory at Tempe, Ariz.

"After they tied the game, we knew we had to come back and show what we could do. It was for pride," Taylor said. "We had to go ahead and take care of business and we knew we could do it."

Auburn and Louisiana State couldn't do it. Third-ranked Auburn tied 20-20 with 11th-ranked Tennessee, and No. 4 LSU tied 13-13 with No. 7 Ohio State. Top-ranked Oklahoma, meanwhile, continued to roll through its schedule, beating Tulsa 65-0.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 5 Miami beat No. 10 Arkansas 51-7, No. 6 Florida State defeated Michigan State 31-3, No. 8

Notre Dame beat Purdue 44-20 and No. 9 Clemson defeated Georgia Tech 33-12.

TOP TEN

No. 2 Nebraska 35, No. 12 Arizona St. 28
Nebraska, 3-0, went 82 yards in four plays for the game-winning score. I-back Keith Jones had a 62-yard run that took the ball to the Arizona State 8-yard line.

Arizona State, ranked 12th, rallied to tie the score 28-28 after Sun Devils' safety Nathan LaDuke recovered a Taylor fumble at the Nebraska 13. That set up Darryl Harris' 1-yard TD run with 4:55 to play.

A third-quarter Taylor fumble had allowed Arizona State to tie the score 21-21, but Nebraska went ahead on a 12-yard scoring pass from Taylor to Rod Smith with 11:12 to play.

No. 3 Auburn 20, No. 11 Tennessee 20
Tennessee, 3-0-1, rallied from a 20-10 deficit with eight minutes to play on a 24-yard field goal by Phil Reich and a 7-yard scoring run by freshman Reggie Cobb with 1:20 left, tying Auburn, 2-0-1, in a Southeastern Conference game.

Reich kicked the extra point that tied the score after Cobb's touchdown.

No. 7 Ohio State 13, No. 4 LSU 13
David Brownkye kicked a 40-yard field goal with 6:25 to play that helped LSU salvage a tie with Ohio State after the Tigers blew a 10-3 halftime lead on turnovers. LSU, 3-0-1, lost a fumble and three interceptions in the second half. Ohio State is 2-0-1.

LSU defensive end Karl Dunbar blocked a 47-yard field goal attempt by Matt Frantz of Ohio State on the game's final play. Ohio State cornerback Greg Rogan intercepted an LSU pass and returned it six yards to the LSU 39 with 27 seconds left to set up the attempt.

No. 1 Oklahoma 65, Tulsa 0
Reserve quarterback Charles Thompson scored three touchdowns and threw for another as Oklahoma rolled over Tulsa, raising its record to 3-0. Thompson's 68-yard scoring run was the longest of the year for the Sooners. He also scored on runs of 7 and 10 yards, and he threw a 21-yard scoring pass to Artie Guess for Oklahoma's fourth touchdown of the third quarter.

Starting quarterback Jamelle

Holieway scored twice and also hit tight end Keith Jackson on a 47-yard scoring pass before leaving the game in the third quarter.

No. 5 Miami 51, No. 10 Arkansas 7
Sophomore quarterback Steve Walsh guided Miami to five touchdowns in a 12-minute span as the Hurricanes took a 38-0 halftime lead en route to handing Arkansas its worst defeat at Little Rock since the Razorbacks started playing there 80 years ago. It was Arkansas' worst defeat in the state since a 63-7 loss to Tulsa in 1919.

Miami, 2-0, had 353 yards offense in the first half, and Walsh passed for 135 of his 215 yards before intermission. He wound up completing 20 of 28 passes. Arkansas fell to 2-1.

No. 6 Florida St. 31, Michigan St. 3
Flanker Ronald Lewis caught one touchdown pass and ran 56 yards on a reverse for another as undefeated Florida State won its fourth game. Lewis also caught an 8-yard scoring pass from quarterback Danny McManus to put the game out of reach.

McManus also threw for another touchdown, a 25-yard screen pass play late in the game to Sammy Smith.

No. 8 Notre Dame 44, Purdue 20
Fullback Anthony Johnson ran for three touchdowns, helping Notre Dame overcome a 17-10 Purdue lead. Johnson scored on a 6-yard run in the first quarter and his 1-yard TD with 36 seconds left in the first half tied the score 17-17. He also scored from 8 yards out to put Notre Dame ahead 24-20 with 4:45 left in the third quarter.

Notre Dame is 3-0, its best start since opening the 1982 season with four straight victories.

No. 9 Clemson 33, Georgia Tech 12
Joe Henderson returned a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown, and Donnell Woolford scored on a 78-yard punt return, helping Clemson begin defense of its Atlantic Coast Conference title.

The Tigers, 4-0, had never scored on a kickoff and punt return in the same game. It was Clemson's first kickoff TD since 1962 and its first punt return for a score since 1970.

AP Top 20

By The Associated Press

How The Associated Press Top Twenty college football teams fared this week and schedule for Oct. 3:
No. 1 Oklahoma (3-0-0) beat Tulsa 65-0; at Iowa State.
No. 2 Nebraska (3-0-0) beat No. 12 Arizona State 35-28; vs. South Carolina.
No. 3 Auburn (2-0-1) tied No. 11 Tennessee 20-20; at North Carolina.
No. 4 Louisiana State (3-0-1) tied No. 7 Ohio State 13-13; vs. Florida.
No. 5 Miami, Fla. (2-0-0) beat No. 10 Arkansas 51-7; at No. 6 Florida State.
No. 6 Florida State (4-0-0) beat Michigan State 31-3; vs. No. 5 Miami, Florida.
No. 7 Ohio State (2-0-1) tied No. 4 Louisiana State 13-13; at Illinois.
No. 8 Notre Dame (3-0-0) beat Purdue 44-20; idle.
No. 9 Clemson (4-0-0) beat Georgia Tech 33-12; idle.
No. 10 Arkansas (2-1-0) lost to No. 5 Miami, Fla., 51-7; at Texas Christian.
No. 11 Tennessee (3-0-1) tied No. 3 Auburn 20-20; vs. California.
No. 12 Arizona State (2-1-0) lost to No. 2 Nebraska 35-28; vs. Texas-El Paso.
No. 13 UCLA (3-1-0) beat Arizona State 34-24; at Stanford.
No. 14 Michigan (2-1-0) beat Long Beach State 49-0; vs. Wisconsin.
No. 15 Penn State (3-1-0) beat Boston College 27-17; vs. Temple.
No. 16 Texas A&M (2-1-0) beat Southern Mississippi 27-14; at Texas Tech.
No. 17 Alabama (3-1-0) beat Vanderbilt 30-23; vs. Southwest Louisiana at Birmingham, Ala.
No. 18 Washington (3-1-0) beat Pacific U. 31-3; at Oregon.
No. 19 Iowa (3-1-0) beat Kansas State 38-13; vs. Michigan State.
No. 20 Georgia (3-1-0) beat South Carolina 13-6; at Mississippi.

Rugby team slips by South Dakota squad

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The K-State rugby team was able to slip by a tough South Dakota University squad at home last Saturday with a 9-6 decision. The difference in the game was a successful penalty kick by the Wildcats' fullback, Bob Crow.

All of K-State's points came early in the second half of the match when they had the wind behind them. Wing forward, Jim Pitts was able to score a try and Greg Barnes was successful on the extra point attempt to knot the score at 6-6.

Crow was able to make a penalty kick, giving the K-Staters their final margin of victory at 9-6. The ruggers had been unsuccessful on two other penalty kicks before Crow was able to nail his kick for the go-ahead score.

The low score was due in large part to the teams not being able to play aggressively on offense while they had the wind advantage.

"A low score indicates a sloppy game," said Dave Todd, club president. "We had a chance to score two other tries, but we blew them. South Dakota had a chance to score another try also, but they couldn't capitalize on it."

"South Dakota really played us tough. It came down to whoever scored more points when they had the wind with them would win. They scored six points when they had the wind in the first half, and we scored nine when we had it in the second half. We were able to come out on top. That's all that matters."

Although several players on the K-State side had to leave the game with injuries, Todd said that none of the injuries were serious and that all of his players should be ready for next week's contest against Kansas City.

"Next week we will have all of our players back from Dallas and the guys who are out with injuries should all be ready to go by next week," Todd said.

K-State rugby club member Pat Sherman is tackled by a University of South Dakota player during the second half of Saturday afternoon's home game at the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area. The team won the contest 9-6 with a penalty kick by fullback Bob Crow.

Staff/Brad Fanshier

Crew team wins, fails to post time

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The K-State men's heavyweight rowing team was able to win for the third time in three tries at the head of the Des Moines River in Des Moines, Iowa, last Saturday. Although they weren't able to post the fastest time of the day, their 16:30 was good enough to beat other competitors University of Kansas, The Wichita State University, St. John's College and the Des Moines Rowing Club.

"We had a pretty good showing this weekend," said rowing coach Don Rose. "Obviously I'm disturbed with lightweights beating our heavyweights' time. I'm going to work them pretty hard and take some pounds off, and maybe that will make the difference."

The Kansas State Rowing Association's women's novice eight was able to capture the silver medal, finishing almost a full minute behind KU with a time of 21:16. The team, composed of seven local high school women and two K-State students was "pretty impressive in their class," Rose said.

The varsity women were able to post a third place finish out of the five teams that competed. KU won the event in a time of 18:55.1 followed closely by Washington University of St. Louis in 18:58.2, K-State in 19:01.3, and way back in the pack was the University of Chicago in 21:16 and the University of Nebraska in 22:01.

K-State also entered a mixed-doubles team composed of six women and two men that would normally have four men and four women. The makeshift team was able to take third out of six teams, finishing in a time of 19:22. Washington University won the event with a time of 18:05 followed by the University of Chicago in 19:19. The last three teams were the Waterloo Rowing Club with a time of 20:39, McAlester College in 21:38 and the University of Nebraska in 24:06.

"I am very pleased with the start of our 25th year," Rose said. "Even though it was a good outing for us we will continue to do what it takes to improve."

The crew is in its 25th season at K-State and plans to celebrate by competing in the Hindley Royal Regatta in England, next July. The team will compete in England against crews from Russia, Great Britain and Germany. Also competing will be Yale University.

Runners successful in Iowa State meet

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

The opening meet for the K-State cross country teams proved successful as the men came home with a first place finish and the women a second place finish in the Iowa State Invitational.

Coach John Capriotti was pleasantly surprised with team results as a whole.

"We are really excited about the results," he said. "I thought we really competed well considering this is supposed to be a rebuilding year for us."

"If this is supposed to be a rebuilding year when we run like that, then we shouldn't be doing that bad all season long."

The men, in a field of seven teams, were paced by sophomore David Warders, who turned a time of 25:35 on the five mile course for a fourth place finish. Following Warders were, David Keller (6th, 25:39), Phil Byrne (8th, 26:00), Rob Hayes (10th, 26:14) Daryl Reichard (12th, 26:22), Jeff Shelar (18th, 26:41) and Joe Bonneau (20th, 26:45).

On the women's side of competition, the 'Cats were paced by the first place finish of junior Laura Haggerty. Haggerty posted a time of 17:35 on the 5,000 meter course, as she defeated the Cyclones Renee Doyle who placed seventh at the national meet last season.

The women's meet was tougher than most thought it would be at first though, and Capriotti felt this helped his team.

"At first we were looking for a low key meet," he said. "Then Arkansas, Minnesota and Wisconsin all joined in the field late and made the race a much tougher one than we thought it would be. I'm extremely pleased with the women's performance."

Following Haggerty were, Anne Stadler (8th, 18:06), Alysun Deckert (9th, 18:07), Jenny Faunce (16th, 18:35), Marge Eddy (19th, 18:44), Becky Ives (28th, 19:02), Tammy Van Laeys (34th, 19:18).

The next meet for the cross country runners will be Oct. 9 when they travel to the University of Oklahoma Sooner Invitational. Capriotti expects to see his runners improve.

Iowa

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

terback Gary Swim and senior tailback Tony Jordan, the Wildcats drove the ball down to the Iowa 41 before a deflected Swim pass was intercepted by Iowa.

Then the defense came out for K-State and left again two plays later when Miller intercepted a pass thrown by Hartlieb and returned it to Iowa's 15-yard line.

Four plays later, Swim connected with Jordan for a 4-yard touchdown pass. Junior kicker Mark Porter converted on the point after to give K-State a 7-0 lead with 7:49 left in the first quarter.

The Hawkeyes then found themselves in a third-and-32 hole after being called for two penalties and being stuck with a 15-yard sack by Baziell. The Hawks rose to the occasion, though, when Hartlieb connected with Kevin Harmon for 32 yards and a first down by measurement.

From there it looked like Iowa might take control and put K-State away, as they scored on that possession and also their next two possessions to take a 21-7 lead with 11:27 left in the first half.

Then the unexpected happened. Iowa tried an onside kick which was recovered by Hawkeye Craig Clark. But once again the defense took an early exit as Harper intercepted a Hartlieb pass and returned it to the Iowa 45-yard line. Five plays and one penalty later, Porter booted a 41-yard field goal to make it 21-10.

K-State kicked off to Iowa to start the second half, only to find themselves with the ball at the Iowa 20-yard line after "Cat sophomore defensive back Tyreese Herds recovered a fumbled Iowa ball.

Five plays and one penalty later, Porter sent his second field goal of the game through the uprights from 34 yards out to make it 21-13 with 12:41 left in the third quarter. From there, the weary K-State offense was unable to produce any additional points.

The Wildcat defense held Iowa from scoring in the second half until 5:05 had expired in the fourth quarter. McGwire connected with Quinn Early for a 14-yard scoring pass on a three play Iowa drive after K-State quick-kicked from their own end zone.

The battered Wildcats were no longer a match for the depth of the Hawkeye squad. Iowa scored two more times in the fourth quarter, to come out with a 38-13 victory.

"We were physically exhausted," Parrish said. "Our front line was exhausted. We don't have a second line to rotate in. Our linemen were dead at halftime."

The passing game proved to be most effective against Iowa. Swim completed 15 of 31 passes for 104 yards and one touchdown.

Golfers return to links

By Staff and Wire Reports

Fresh from a second place finish at the Emporia State Invitational last week, the Kansas State men's golf team journeys to Oklahoma City, Okla., today to open play in the Oklahoma City University Invitational.

Play begins with 36 holes of action today with a final round of 18 holes slated for Tuesday at the Westbury Country Club.

Competing for the Wildcats will be Todd Fowler, Troy Keller, Daran Neuschafer, Jeff Sedorek and John Shields.

Approximately 20 teams are scheduled to compete in the 54-hole tournament.

In their tournament at Emporia, the Wildcats were once again led by Troy Keller, who carded rounds of 73-70 for a 143 total over two trips on Emporia's par 71 Municipal Golf Course.

Other K-State individual scores were Daran Neuschafer (76-73=149), John Shields (75-75=150), Todd Fowler (76-75=151) and Tim Jennings (81-85=166).

K-State tallied 18-hole rounds of 300-293 for a 36-hole total of 539 which tied the 'Cats with Central State of Oklahoma for second place. Cental State fired rounds of 294-299 for its 593 score. Host Emporia State claimed the team crown.

Allergy sufferers need not lose their heads

Staff Illustration/Steve Rasmussen

By Shawn Dorsch
Collegian Reporter

Autumn is prime time for allergies to manifest themselves in unlucky sufferers. Lafene Student Health Center's allergy clinic may offer salvation for those who find themselves blowing their noses, sneezing, or going through a box of facial tissues every two days.

"Students really have it made because they can come in and have us write a prescription for an antihistamine," said Dr. Daniel Martin of Lafene. The clinic also provides allergy consultations and skin tests. Trial and error determines the most effective antihistamine for each patient.

About 20 percent of the population has antibodies against hayfever-causing agents, Martin said. The rest of the population has an antibody called IGE, which is formed along the mucus membranes.

He said IGE releases many histamines, causing the sufferer such symptoms as sneezing, a runny nose and itchy eyes.

Antihistamines stop histamines from being released which, brings relief to the allergy sufferer.

From September 1986 to September 1987 Lafene administered a total of 5,287 allergy injections. Martin said Lafene sees most of its allergy patients during the fall when ragweed is pollinating.

Because the pollen count is high this fall, allergy sufferers are many. He said 20 percent of his patients this year have been allergy sufferers.

In the spring most allergic reactions are from tree pollens carried by the wind, Martin said. A person won't become allergic to trees that have blossoms, because the bees pollinate them.

Trees such as pines and ashes are pollinated with the help of the wind; therefore, they tend to cause allergic reactions, he said.

One form of relief available to allergy sufferers is the cortisone shot. This shot takes two to three days to become effective, Martin said. Its effectiveness, however, lasts from three to six weeks.

This shot is not given to all allergy sufferers because it can make a patient more susceptible to ulcers, he said. It also restricts the body's function to make its own cortisone, which fights disease and infection.

Some allergy sufferers haven't had allergies all of their lives, Martin said.

"We don't understand why the body fails to fight against allergies all of a sudden," he said. "But once it starts, you're probably going to have allergies for good."

Lafene does allergy testing to determine what substances cause people to have reactions, Martin said.

In one type of allergy skin test, the patient's back is scrubbed with alcohol, a grid is drawn on the patient's back and the squares are numbered one through 60.

The skin is scraped in each one of the squares — not hard enough to hurt, just enough to create an abrasion, Martin said. A drop of liquid extracted from trees, fungi, spores, plants or animals is applied to the scrape.

He said in most cases a welt will appear if the patient has an allergic reaction to any of the solutions.

The entire test takes 90 minutes and costs $65, compared to more than $300 for the test from an outside allergy clinic, Martin said.

Collegian Classifieds
Cheap, but Effective

45 Years Serving America's Children

Support the
March of Dimes
BIRTH DEFECTS FOUNDATION

Green Thumb
Bike Shop
1105 Waters St.

- Raleigh
- Centurion
- Diamond Back
- General
- G.T.

We service all brands
8-5:30 Mon.-Sat. 539-4751
12-5 Sun.
Just across from Alco

MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR

New Supply of Conchos, Beads &
Leather Strips

Open Daily 8:30, Sat. 8-1
Thurs. 8-8
Drive Up Convenience
401 Humboldt
776-1193

GREEN THUMB

Pet Shop

1105 Waters St.
Fish, Birds, Small Animals
All Pet Supplies

8-5:30 Mon.-Sat. 539-4731
12-5 Sun.
Just across from Alco

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt

that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!

—FREE SAMPLES—

I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Slices

OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers—Aggieville

Put your degree

to work

where it can do

a world of good

Your first job after graduation should offer more than just a paycheck.

If you're graduating this year, look into a unique opportunity to put your degree to work where it can do a world of good. Look into the Peace Corps.

Find Out More About
Peace Corps Opportunities
Sept. 29th and 30th
At the Student Union
9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

The toughest job
you'll ever love

PEACE CORPS

THE ANSWER IS—
PUTT PUTT GOLF
WHEN LOOKING FOR
SOMETHING TO DO.

K-STATE PLAYERS

ON THE VERGE
by Eric Overmyer

Wed.-Sat.

Nichols Theatre 8 p.m.
12-5 532-6398 M-F

NEED A NEW IMAGE?
INTERVIEWING?
CHANGING JOBS?

CAREER ENHANCEMENT SEMINAR
FOR WOMEN IN TRANSITION

Learn to create a positive image
How to develop an interview wardrobe
How to accessorize (new tricks with scarves and jewelry)
New hair and makeup techniques
To sell yourself to the interviewer
What prospective employers look for
when they interview

THURS., OCT. 1, 7-9 p.m.
Wareham Room—Cotton Club
418 Poyntz

WIN A COMPLETE GLAMOUR MAKEOVER!
REGISTRATION $3 at the door

Presentations by:
Fashion: Laurie Siders
Hair: Jacqui Grace & Co.
Makeovers: Cassandra Mary Kay
Interviews: Rick Mann Ka St. Bank

OPEN 24 HOURS

1445 ANDERSON

32 oz. Big Gulp fountain drink 69¢
(doesn't apply w/Super Big Gulp)

Frito Lay Grab Bag potato chips 59¢

Lakeshore chili cheese dog $1.29
Regular $2.47

Now Only $1.49

HERO

Kick-off Week Sept. 28-Oct. 2

Eriksen Sports Medicine
Clinic

- Evaluation, Diagnosis, Treatment, Rehabilitation of sports related injuries and problems
- Determine Body Fat Percentages
- Heat Stress Information
- Information and advice on Fitness, Injury Prevention, Health Effects of Exercise
- MUCH, MUCH MORE

Walk-in Clinic

8-9:30 a.m. Mon.-Fri.

1-2:30 p.m. Mon.

1-2 p.m. Tues., Thurs., Fri.

For Appointments
532-7880

Lafene Health Center

A day's worth of reasons for joining

HOW MANY CALORIES ARE IN THIS PICTURE?

WHO CARES?

If you've eaten any of this stuff in the past week, chances are good you're still carrying it around. But you could leave it at

NAUTILUS-Manhattan's Weight receptical

Join Now for our Annual Renewal
Rate and Save almost 30%.
Come in TODAY Your first visit's free.

Nautilus 776-1654

Entertainment

Production prompts patrons' laughter, stimulates thoughts

By Becky Howard
Arts and Entertainment Editor

The place: Terra Incognita. The time: en route from 1888 to 1955 and beyond. A funny, enlightening adventure through time and the English language can be found in "On the Verge," a K-State Players' production which runs Sept. 30 through Oct. 3 at Nichols Theatre.

Play Review

For those who feel their imagination has become stale with the bombardment of television reruns and the endless barrage of box-office blunders, a witty, fun, humorous live performance that challenges the senses and stimulates the philosophical juices is wrapped up in Eric Overmyer's thoughtfully intelligent, wonderfully hysterical play.

The story revolves around three Victorian ladies who strike out on a trip and find themselves journeying through time, making discoveries about the future — and themselves — along the way.

The ladies are aptly and excellently portrayed by three talented women: Alex by Beth Sherby, Fanny by Tamara Grothaus and Mary by Shirlyn Henry. Their mannerisms and language in their portrayals of the frivolous, talkative, inquisitive and slightly dingy women of the past were so convincing, I found myself believing they were real and that their lives would continue after the final act.

The relationship among the three characters is wonderfully funny. It begins as they pack the "necessities" for their trip, which include beads, peacock feathers and sherry. Their language is chaotically Victorian, but the chaos adds to the humor and charm of the story.

Sherby's character, Alex, is a strong-willed Victorian version of a woman's libber. As the women journey

See VERGE, Page 10

'Cats' performance 'purr'fection in KC

By Deron Johnson
Editor

Live theater in Kansas City, Mo., will likely never compare to that in New York, but the Kansas City production of "Cats" came as close as any other river city production is likely to do.

"Cats," which ended an 11-day run Sunday at the Midland Theater for the Performing Arts in downtown Kansas City, was just as crisp and energetic as its New York counterpart. The Kansas City performance was undertaken by one of several troupes currently touring the country.

"Cats," a musical, is based on T.S. Eliot's 1939 book, "Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats." The majority of the play's lyrics come from Eliot's book of poems.

Play Review

The play is set in a junkyard elaborately and imaginatively decorated with everything from a 6-foot-tall stove to an oversized, personalized license plate reading "NAP 10," the significance of which wasn't apparent.

Although most of "Cats" is comprised of unrelated vignettes, a loose story line is woven into the 2½-hour production. All the cats in a junkyard are hoping to be the feline chosen by Old Deuteronomy — the oldest and wisest cat — to be "reincarnated."

With few exceptions, the entire company sang wonderfully. The one notable exception was Beth Swearingen as Rumpelteazer, whose singing was mediocre at best and offensive at worst. But by no means did her sour performance taint the overall production.

Leslie Ellis — who played Grizabella and sang "Memory," the most popular song from the musical — was simply brilliant. With seemingly little effort and an abundance of intensity, her voice filled the cavernous Midland Theater with absolutely no problem.

On a par with Ellis was Larry Small as Old Deuteronomy. His voice, complete with resonant bass, was a delight, as was his overall performance.

Although the singing wasn't 100 percent, the dancing was. All the members of the company performed both fluid motions and energetic acrobatics with equal ease.

Of particular note — and particular appeal to the audience — was the performance of Brian B.K. Kennelly as The Rum Tum Tugger, a cocky ladies' man among cats.

His actions and dancing conveyed the personality of the cat instantly.

Another noteworthy quality of the play was the mannerisms of the performers. It wasn't difficult to think of them as real cats, particularly as they swished their tails and preened as cats are prone to do.

The biggest drawback to the performance was the theater itself. It was simply too big. Even midway back in the seating it was difficult to understand all the lyrics, especially at the beginning when it was difficult to hear anything.

Those at the back of the theater surely were frustrated.

It was apparent that some of the performers — primarily the ones whose enunciation skills were at a premium — are used to New York's Winter Garden Theatre, a small, intimate venue where "Cats" has played since its debut.

Technically, the show was flawless. Lights were perfectly timed with action, and the huge tire that rose at the show's climax prompted gasps from the audience.

In addition, the live, offstage orchestra delivered a sterling performance that was well choreographed with the onstage performers.

Reddy says persistence has kept her in business

Entertainer Helen Reddy performs at McCain Auditorium in the first show of the 1987-88 McCain Performance Series season. Singer Tom Chapin was first on stage at the Friday night show.

By Corbin Novolny
Collegian Reporter

Playing their oldest and newest material, Tom Chapin and Helen Reddy performed Friday at McCain Auditorium to start off the 1987-88 McCain Performance Series season.

First on stage was Tom Chapin and his acoustic guitar. With no band to back him up, Chapin entertained the audience with his sense of humor and his ability to play the guitar and sing.

Reddy then set the mood for her portion of the show by starting off with the top 10 hits "Take it Uptown," "You and Me Against the World" and "Angie Baby."

Reddy said that the past year was very special to her. She celebrated two anniversaries — her 20th year in the United States and her 40th year in show business.

She put together a medley of her old top 10 hits which included

"That Ain't No Way to Treat a Lady," "Delta Dawn," "I Don't Know How to Love Him" and "Ruby Red Dress."

She ended the concert with one of her favorite songs, "I Am Woman," which she wrote 17 years ago and which became the anthem for the American women's movement.

Reddy was born into an Australian show business family. Her mother started before the age of 4, her father around 5, and Reddy herself started at 4. The family all had different talents.

"We all did different things, so we didn't compete with each other," she said.

In 1966, Reddy and her 3-year-old daughter came to the United States after winning a contest which promised the winner an audition with an American record company. Shortly after arriving in New York, she didn't get her audition because she was a female.

"They wouldn't take any more females because there were already some on the chart," Reddy said. Reddy stayed in the United States and finally got her chance with Capitol Records.

"It's persistence that makes it," Reddy said. "It's a myth about getting a break. You have to go forward and backward to succeed." This prejudice was also one of the factors that helped Reddy think of the song "I Am Woman."

"It was nice to think that it could have a positive effect on the new generation," said Reddy. Recently, Reddy decided it was time to move on, so she quit recording to spend most of her time with her film production company. She has also finished touring and only likes to perform one weekend a month.

She is finishing up her first full-length movie in Australia about Australia's discovery and settlement.

Actress Mary Astor dies at 81

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Mary Astor, who survived a steamy Hollywood scandal and went on to play the treacherous temptress Brigid O'Shaughnessy in "The Maltese Falcon" and star in dozens of other films, died Friday. She was 81.

She died of respiratory failure due to pulmonary emphysema, said Motion Picture and Television Country House and Hospital spokeswoman Jean Ferris. The actress had been a longtime resident of the actors' retirement complex.

Astor made her screen debut in the silent era at age 14, and was almost a casualty of the transition to talkies. She also fell victim to drink and drugs. But both times she found the strength to make a new start.

"People like that don't grow old in spirit. She was always like a young woman; she laughed like a girl," recalled actor-director Jose Ferrer, who appeared with Astor in one of her last films, 1961's "Return to Peyton Place."

Ruby Keeler, who was an actress with Astor during the 1930s at Warner Bros., said, "She was a fine actress and a beautiful lady. I say 'lady,' and I mean it. I'm very sorry to hear of her death."

Astor's films included "Dodsworth" with Walter Huston; "Prisoner of Zenda" with Ronald Coleman; and "The Great Lie," with Bette Davis, which won her a supporting actress Oscar.

But she was best known as the scheming adventuress who killed Sam Spade's partner amid intrigue over the treasure of "The Maltese Falcon." The 1941 John Huston film, co-starring Humphrey Bogart, Sydney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre, became a classic.

"You're good — you're very good," Bogart, as Spade, tells Miss O'Shaughnessy. He falls for her, but won't "play the sap" to keep her out of prison.

"The chances are you'll get off with life. That means if you're a good girl, you'll be out in 20 years. I'll be waiting for you. If they hang you, I'll always remember you."

Astor was born Lucile Vasconcellos Langanke in Quincy, Ill., on May 3, 1906, an only child. Her father, a German immigrant who worked as a poultry farmer, window decorator and teacher, was quick to realize the money-making potential of his beautiful daughter. He moved the family to Chicago, where Lucile took drama lessons, and then to New York and Hollywood. She got a contract and a new name in 1920.

Critical recognition came with a two-reeler called "The Beggar Maid." More action two-reelers lay ahead before she was cast in her first feature-length movie, "John Smith."

John Barrymore then spotted a picture of the pretty teen-ager in a magazine and cast her opposite him in "Beau Brummel." But a series of generally unmemorable films followed, enlivened by "Two Arabian Knights" and "Dressed to Kill."

As the industry made the transition to sound in 1929, Astor found herself out of work for 10 months.

'OPUS' band competition attracts audience of 500 to campus Friday evening

By The Collegian Staff

A strong beat made its way through the K-State campus Friday evening, making windows in the Union shake and the walls of campus buildings vibrate.

Perhaps if Kansas had instead been California, people might have been seeking shelter thinking it was the beginning of an earthquake.

But at this particular event, the estimated 500 onlookers just sat intently and enjoyed the evening.

And the music. The throbbing rhythmic beat came from the sound of six bands competing in Friday night's "OPUS" band competition held on the north lawn of the Union.

The contest was sponsored by the Union Program Council's Eclectic Entertainment Committee, S.M. Hanson Music and KQLA-FM.

"I was very impressed with how organized and how smooth the contest was run. We were a little disappointed in the number of people, but the weather was great, and since this was only the first one, we are considering it to be a success."

— Lydee Hawkins

First place of $300 went to a group called Moneytree. A tie for second and third went to Essential Sound Project and The Statue Moved. These two groups each received a $150 cash prize.

"I was very impressed with how organized and how smooth the contest was run," said Lydee Hawkins, senior in elementary education and eclectic entertainment chairwoman.

"We were a little disappointed in the number of people, but the weather was great, and since this was only the first one, we are considering it to be a success," she said.

"OPUS" is a word signifying a creative piece of work, especially a musical composition, said Union Program Council member Brad Mitchell, sophomore in business administration.

He said the contest is held in order to give local groups the chance to gain some exposure in the Manhattan area.

Mitchell said it is the first contest of its kind and is loosely based on contests in Boston, which have had great success.

Other bands competing were Crosswind, The Moving VanGoghs and Witness.

John Money, lead vocalist for Moneytree, performs during the "OPUS" band competition Friday evening on the north lawn of the Union. Moneytree took first place out of six competing bands.

Staff/Brad Camp

Collegian/Sarah Bradshaw

Off the deep end

Jonathon Schumm, 2, son of Walter Schumm of Manhattan, fishes in the City Pool as part of National Hunting and Fishing Day at the 12th annual Arts and Crafts Fair in City Park. The Kansas Fish and Game Commission filled the pool with catfish.

Verge

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9

ney through jungles and swamps, Alex longs for trousers instead of the heavy skirts and petticoats she is wearing. She also has a fascination with words, she revels in them, but scolds herself for her frequent, yet hysterical, misuse of them.

Grothaus' character, Fanny, is Alex's opposite, and the two often disagree in various matters, including trousers. Fanny is a slightly prissy, feminine wonder who claims a petticoat is the only thing in which to travel.

Henry's character, Mary, is the middleground element. Her sarcastic humor and stinging comments simmer the other two characters' extremes and add a strong lead for the trio. This can be exemplified as the ladies first enter a "jungle," and Mary decrees, "Ladies, shall we bushwack!" Then the characters begin to battle the unseen flora of the forest with their parasols.

During their journey, the women encounter many things. They find themselves saying, to their surprise, words and terms from the future. They also stumble across various items from the future, including an "I Like Ike" button and a hand-turned egg beater, which they eloquently name a "marsupial motorcycle."

Most enjoyable are the ladies' encounters with various characters along the way, beautifully portrayed by actor Tom McLaughlin. McLaughlin plays everything from a cannibal who takes on the mannerisms of his cuisine to a macho nightclub owner named Nicky. In playing eight different roles in the play, McLaughlin shows superb versatility and his grasp for comedy adds even more fun to the show.

Although the play uses very few props and no scenery, the lighting and added music elements by Lara Dillinger and Scott Wilbur help stimulate the audience's imagination. The punctual timing and creative use of the sound effects were a helpful, innovative addition to the play.

For those who enjoy comedy and the complicated intricacies of the language we all know and love, this play is a definite must. In a world of unchallenging and unprovocative entertainment, this delightful creation of both humor and intellect will offer something both entertaining and useful.

Support
research.

American Heart Association

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR
YOUR LIFE

Wart Treatment

$8 per semester

Thursday & Friday Only
8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

532-6544 Lafene Health Center

China's premier defends party's actions

By The Associated Press

BEIJING — Premier Zhao Ziyang defended the Communist Party's purge of dissident members, but said in an interview broadcast Sunday that intellectuals are free to voice their opinions outside the party.

"I don't think this is a crackdown," Zhao told NBC's Tom Brokaw in a rare interview. It was taped last week and broadcast in the United States on the Sunday morning program "Meet the Press."

Zhao has also been the party's acting general secretary since Hu Yaobang was ousted last winter. He said he does not want the job permanently.

"I think I'm not that fit to be the general secretary," Zhao said. "I'm more fit to look after economic affairs."

Zhao has made similar statements in the past, but nonetheless is widely expected to be given the top party post at the 13th party congress, which begins Oct. 25.

"There is a regulation in the Communist Party of China that the party member should observe the direction from the party, and I think this matter will be finally decided upon" by the congress, he told Brokaw.

Hu lost his post as general secretary after being criticized as too soft on pro-democracy student demonstrators. Both Hu and Zhao rose to power as proteges of top leader Deng Xiaoping.

As premier, Zhao has been the main implementer of market-force economic reforms advocated by Deng to reduce the role of central planning.

Zhao, 68, has given few interviews to Western reporters since taking office in 1980. The "Meet the Press" program begins a week of special NBC coverage of China during which the "Today" show and "NBC Nightly News" will be broadcast from Beijing.

Get Personal
in Collegian Classifieds

BE A K-STATE AMBASSADOR

Applications available in
Anderson Hall, Rm. 122

Applications due Monday, Oct. 5

RECORD—TAPE SALE

Now In Progress!

CLASSICAL ROCK FOLK
JAZZ COUNTRY

Records start as low as $1.98!
Cassette tapes as low as $2.98!

Varney's
BOOK STORE
IN AGGIEVILLE

9-9
MON.-SAT.

12-5
SUN.

On the edge of campus, in the heart of Aggieville.

PASTA

Fulsetto's
Pasta House

2 for 1
Dinner

Monday, Sept. 21 only
Good for any menu item

Family Style Pastas
from $3.99
minimum 4 persons

OPEN:

Mon.-Sat. 4-10 p.m., Sun. 11 a.m.-9 p.m.

Now open to the public.

Across from the Holidome
537-8443

"Her loveliness
I never knew until she smiled
at me."

Henry Hartley

Smile enhancement by the professionals

Teeth cleaning from $20

SAGER DENTAL ASSOCIATES, P.A.
514 Humboldt Plaza Hygiene Department 913-537-8823

Oongas triumphant in 'dirty' contest

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

Volleyball teams battled in the mud all day Saturday, but the Mighty Oongas rose above the muck and were victorious in the third oozeball tournament at the KSU Foundation's Technipark.

"Once the mud gets off your mind, it's like any volleyball tournament," said Jeff Grimm, senior in agricultural engineering. "You get in there and get dirty."

The oozeball tournament attracted 67 teams, but only 40 could participate, said Glennis Carlson, Foundation administrative assistant and Student Foundation adviser. Teams were accepted on a first-come, first-served basis, she said.

Teams consisted of eight members — three men, three women and two alternates. One member of the team had to be associated with K-State as a student, faculty or staff member.

The double-elimination tournament consisted of 7-minute games with the teams battling for the best two out of three games, she said.

Mud-covered bodies lined up to use the garden hoses available to wash themselves off and to add water to the oozeball pits.

First-time player Elizabeth Waite, junior in apparel and textile marketing and communications, thought it was fun.

"We came really close to winning our second game, but we ran out of time," she said. "I would play again though."

"They really have fun," said Carlson. "It's amazing."

The oozeball tournament began in the spring of 1986 when two students brought back the idea from the national student foundation convention, Carlson said. A survey after the first tournament showed the students wanted to move the tournament to the fall.

"We've been improving upon it each year," Carlson said. "It's going smoothly now. We're at the point where we can dig more pits or go back to the spring with another tournament."

Carlson said 10 sponsors donated $50 each to create two $250 KSU Student Foundation Oozeball scholarships. Participants from the oozeball tournament are the first choice for eligibility for the scholarships, she said.

The funds from the entry fees covered the expenses of the tournament, and the remaining amount goes back into the Student Foundation, Carlson said.

"This is our first year to go in the black," she said. "The money goes back into the student organization for more events or for the national convention."

The winning team received a trophy and the top four teams received T-shirts. The Diffuse Encephalomalacia placed second, the Mud Hens finished third and the Net Hangers placed fourth.

Collegian/Sarah Bradshaw
ABOVE: Mudslingers team members use a car wash to blast mud off after the tournament.
BELOW: Tom Hanes, junior in fisheries and wildlife biology, takes a break between matches.

Staff/Gary Lytle
Sledge Hammer team member Cassie McIntyre, senior in apparel and textile marketing, returns a mud-covered volleyball.

BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND

Hours

Mon.-Thurs.
11 a.m.-2 a.m.

Fri.-Sat.
11 a.m.-3 a.m.

Sunday
11 a.m.-12 a.m.

BUY 1
GET 1
FREE

Any size
Pizza!

We deliver...
FAST and
Friendly-like.

Delivering All
Day Every Day
For Your Convenience

Offering Thin
Crust or Our
Original Golden
Braided Crust

UPC ARTS COMMITTEE PRESENTS
An Exhibition and Sale of Fine Art Reproductions and
Laser Photographs

THIS WEEK
ONLY!

Many New Prints Available

Monday - Friday Sept. 28-Oct. 2
9am-5pm K-State Union
1st Floor Concourse

$6.00 each
or 3 for $15.00

Cars,
Cities,
Animals
Scenery &
Travel Posters,
etc.

Many new prints
available!

Hundreds to choose from!

M.C. Escher
Picasso
Van Gogh
Dali
Renoir
Seurat
and many more

Plastic bags available.
k-state union
upc arts

Paved roads rejected Town rebukes proposal

By The Associated Press

NEW MILFORD, Conn. — It would probably mystify the average pot hole-plagued motorist, but hundreds of homeowners are rallying against plans to pave the town's last remaining dirt roads.

Opponents of the road improvements, many of them affluent New Yorkers who own second homes here, have gathered enough petition signatures to force a Board of Selectmen vote on a proposed "scenic road" ordinance to protect many of the dirt roads from ever being paved or widened.

"Basically, we're trying to preserve some evidence that New Milford was once, in fact, a charming, quiet bucolic town," said Dr. George Clahr, a retired New York eye surgeon and amateur highway engineer.

Clahr, who organized the petition drive, said he and most of his allies chose their homes precisely because they were located on narrow, winding dirt roads.

"There is much less traffic and what traffic there is goes a lot slower," said Clahr, who lives in a 200-year-old farmhouse on 90 acres along Indian Trail Road, a 14-foot-wide, two-mile-long path that resembles a long driveway more than a road.

"You feel like you're in the country, which is where you want to be if you grew up in the Bronx," he said.

Clahr charges those who want the roads paved are motivated by "old-fashioned, unadulterated greed." He accuses local officials of caving in to "mercantile interests" that want the roads paved to foster further development in town, something he doesn't want.

Town officials counter that New Milford's 31 miles of dirt road are expensive and difficult to maintain, plagued by ruts and potholes and frequently wash out after a heavy rain, stranding those who live on them.

Clahr says that's because the town doesn't know how to maintain the roads and stop water from creating ruts and potholes.

New Milford, a fast-growing town of 21,000 people in western Connecticut, has more miles of unpaved road than any other town in Connecticut, according to state Department of Transportation figures.

A public hearing will be held Monday on the proposed ordinance, which would designate 13 scenic roads in New Milford under a state law enacted in 1981.

The state law allows towns to protect roads from development as long as landowners accounting for 51 percent of the frontage on a given road agree. New Milford apparently would be only the third town to do so, according to the Connecticut Conference of Municipalities.

In letters to the local newspapers, Clahr calls the town's highway superintendent, Donald Marsh, the "Prince of Destruction" and says Marsh's preference for asphalt is symptomatic of a "chronic edifice complex."

Marsh, who has publicly advocated paving dirt roads, did not return telephone calls to his office last week.

Looking for an apartment?
Check Collegian
Classifieds

New New New
CAR WASH
FOUR BAYS
619 N. 3rd St.
Across from Pizza Hut
Brand new and no waiting

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

Casey knew about Contra aid money, Post reporter says

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Former CIA Director William Casey, on his sickbed, told investigative reporter Bob Woodward of The Washington Post he knew all along about diversion of money to the Nicaraguan Contras, according to galley of Woodward's forthcoming book obtained by U.S. News & World Report.

Woodward's book, "Veil: The Secret Wars of the CIA," seems to shed light on a mystery that has stumped investigators for almost a year. Former White House aide Oliver North is the only other person to have said that Casey knew about the diversion of funds from arms sales to the Iranians.

Investigators have been unable to reach a firm conclusion on what Casey knew about the affair, despite interrogations of top-level officials in the Reagan administration.

Casey died May 6 of pneumonia after being hospitalized for months because of brain cancer.

Woodward visited Casey in the hospital "and asked, almost rhetorically, whether he knew all along about the Contra diversion," the U.S. News & World Report article says. "Casey nodded a frail yes," the report says.

When Woodward asked why, according to the magazine account of Woodward's book, Casey replied twice, "I believed." Casey nodded off to sleep before Woodward could complete his questioning.

"I didn't get to ask another question," Woodward is quoted as writing.

The article does not specify when Woodward's hospital visit occurred. U.S. News released its article on the book late Friday. It will be in the magazine's issue on newsstands today.

The book, published by Simon & Schuster, is to be released this fall. According to the magazine, the book also reveals:

■ "At one time or another," the CIA listed the late Lebanese President Bashir Gemayel and Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte among its "assets." Gemayel's Christian Militia received $10 million in covert aid. Duarte was more than a casual informant but was not fully controlled, the magazine says.

■ The agency had more than 25 spies in the Soviet Union and Warsaw Pact nations as a result of Casey's determination to improve intelligence gathering.

■ The CIA paid a $2 million bribe to Sheikh Fadlallah to halt acts of violence against American interests by his Hezbollah Party in Lebanon.

■ A CIA investigation into the car bombing of the American Embassy in Beirut in 1983 came to a halt after a suspect died under too vigorous interrogation with a cattle prod.

■ The CIA under Casey launched at least a dozen covert operations around the world.

■ Despite his loyalty to Ronald Reagan, Casey found the president too passive and indecisive. Casey believed that Reagan was comparatively friendless except for his wife, Nancy.

■ Casey aspired to be Secretary of State and once suggested in a classified letter to Reagan that Secretary of State George P. Shultz be fired.

■ The so called "second channels" that North and others used in the Iran-Contra affair were a nephew of Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of the Iranian parliament, and the director of intelligence in the Iranian prime minister's office. That official was not named.

■ Aid programs, especially those to establish modern communications networks and strengthen security and palace defense forces, were used to increase CIA penetration in countries.

■ The CIA had information that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who was assassinated in 1981, abused drugs and suffered anxiety attacks.

Patricia Schroeder plunges into 1988 presidential fray

By The Associated Press

DENVER — Rep. Patricia Schroeder is poised for the plunge into the 1988 Democratic presidential fray, and will announce her political aims Monday in her home state.

Schroeder has spent most of the past three months "testing the waters," traveling from state to state to determine if there is philosophical and monetary support for her.

She often has sounded like a candidate. In the video shown nationwide at her "Run, Pat, Run" parties on Sept. 20, she told viewers, "When I am president, we never again will be caught with our mine sweepers down."

Yet Schroeder, 47, denied as late as Friday that she had come to a decision about her candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The congresswoman has promised a hard-hitting, formidable candidacy if she makes the cut.

"I will not run as Tinkerbell," she said during a meeting of the National Conference of State Legislatures last summer. "Either people are ready for it, or I don't want to be any part of it."

With former Sen. Gary Hart in the race, the idea of becoming a presidential candidate wasn't a real option for Schroeder, a fellow Coloradan.

TV Listings

By TV Data

MONDAY SEPTEMBER 28, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Bugs Bunny Flintstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00 " "	" "	" "	My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs Teddy Ruxpin	SportsLook Auto Racing	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00 Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Tennis: Intl. Champion-	Movie: "The Other Man"
10:00 Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Andy Griffith Dick Van	Body Electric Instructional	Andy Griffith Soap	ships of Spain Windsurfing	" "
11:00 Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Programming Drugs	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00 News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	College Football: Penn	Movie: "20,000 Years in Sing Sing"
1:00 Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Bewitched	Nature	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	State vs. Bos-ton College	" "
2:00 " "	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoobilee Zoo	Nature Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters	" "	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00 " "	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00 " "	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravestarr	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe BraveStarr	Racing: IHRA Spring Natts.	Munsters Laverne
5:00 Family Ties	News CBS News	News ABC News	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers Barney Miller	SportsCenter NFL Monday	Andy Griffith Major League
6:00 News	News CBS News	M.A.S.H. Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers Barney Miller	NFL Matchup NFL Monday	Baseball: Atlanta Braves
7:00 ALF	ALF Valerie's Fa-	MacGyver	Hill Street Blues	Antarctica	Movie: "The Main Event"	Series Auto Racing	Movie: "Can-ny Row"
8:00 Movie: "As-sault and Ma-	Movie: "As-sault and Ma-	NFL Football: Denver Bron-	Movie: "Coal Miner's Daughter"	America By Design	" "	Auto Racing: IMSA GTP	at Cincinnati Reds
9:00 trimony	trimony	cos at Cleveland Browns	" "	American Masters	News INN News	Series Auto Racing	Movie: "Can-ny Row"
10:00 News	News Cheers	" "	Barney Miller Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	H'mooner Magnum, P.I.	SportsCenter	" "
11:00 " "	Diamonds	News Nightline	" "	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Movie: "The Nun's Story"	SportsLook NFL Theatre	National Geo-graphic Explorer
12:00 David Letter-man	Till Mother Gets Home	700 Club	Movie: "The Hindenburg"	Sign-Off	" "	NFL Great	" "

NU WEIGH

BODY TONING SYSTEMS

NEW! EXCITING APPROACH TO EXERCISE SHAPE UP THE NU WEIGH

Time is running out on the September Special of 8 sessions for $3600

STRENUOUS EFFORT STRAIN FATIGUE TAXING HOURS OF EXHAUSTING EXERCISE MEMBERSHIP

NO: So call 537-0817 NOW to make an appointment for your FREE 1st session

MEDICAL DIRECTORY

General Medicine

LAFENE Health Center
Charles Bascom, M.D.
General Practice
532-6544

LAFENE Health Center
Paula Davis, M.D.
General Practice
532-6544

LAFENE Health Center
Robert Ecklund, M.D.
General Practice
532-6544

LAFENE Health Center
Dennis Elliott, R.P.A.C.
General Practice
532-6544

LAFENE Health Center
Daniel Martin, M.D.
General Practice
(Allergy/Dermatology Specialist)
532-6544

LAFENE Health Center
Larry Moeller, M.D.
General Practice
532-6544

LAFENE Health Center
Thomas Ryan, M.D.
General Practice
532-6544

General Medicine

LAFENE Health Center
Guy Smith, M.D.
General Practice
(Sports Medicine Specialist)
532-7880

Dentists—Orthodontists

Pat M. Dreiling D.D.S. M.S.
MEMBER OF AMERICAN ASSN. OF ORTHODONTISTS SPECIALIST IN CHILD & ADULT ORTHODONTICS
Building D
Manhattan Medical Center
1133 College Ave. 537-0136

Hospital

LAFENE Health Center
full hospital service for your health needs
24-Hour Service
532-6544

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

For all your health care needs.
EMERGENCY CARE CENTER
Available 24 hrs.
7 days a week
913-776-3300
across street from campus
Working Together For a Healthier You.

First Semester Special

Now $27
Dr. Eric J. Wisdom D.D.S.
Family/Dentistry
•Dental exam
•2 x-rays
•Complete cleaning
1445 Anderson
776-1771
333-1771
Toll Free
Call for Appointment

YOU'RE OUR NO. 1 CONCERN

- 24 Hour Emergency Care
- Women's Life Center
- Educational Programs
- Physical Therapy Programs

the saint mary hospital
1000 College Avenue Manhattan, Kansas 66108

First chili cook-off draws cooks, peppers into contest Saturday

By Janet Swanson
Agri/Business Editor

Peppers. All kinds of peppers. Every imaginable kind of pepper was brought into Aggieville Saturday morning as cooks prepared their secret recipes to enter in the first Aggieville Chili Cook-off.

"The whole idea is to promote business in Aggieville and keep events happening in the area," said Julie Hanes, member of the Aggieville Merchants Association, one of three sponsors of the event.

Other sponsors were KQLA-FM and Stroh's Beer. In addition, spectators could donate to United Way for a sample from the bubbling pots.

Pinatas were strung across Moro Street and children took their turns swinging long sticks. Full House, the Back Porch Country Band, KQLA and the individual booths provided a variety of music.

Entries had to be prepared and cooked on site by no more than four cooks. The only fudging allowed by judges was for canned tomatoes and tomato paste, beverages, peppers and pepper sauce.

The 15 entrants set up shop by 8 a.m. and had their final products ready for the seven judges by 3 p.m. Winners of each category were invited back for next year's competition to defend their title, with the overall winner advancing to the state competition.

Rip & Mo's was the overall winner, with Lone Star XXX first runner-up.

First place in the competition chili category was Lone Star XXX, second place went to Malo Macho y Mexican and third place was won by the University Inn.

First place in the homestyle category was Firehouse Chili, second Rock-a-Belly Deli and third Campfire Chili.

First place in the specialty chili category was Rip & Mo's and second was Team Tombstone.

First place in the living groups category was Kappa Kappa Gamma, second Phi Delta Theta alumni and third was Alpha Tau Omega.

After a short beauty pageant, Ewing Evans, Manhattan, was crowned Mr. Potent Chili Pepper, and Violet Garcia, Manhattan, was named Ms. Chili Pepper. They were both awarded gift certificates from members of the Aggieville Merchants Association.

Malo Macho y Mexican also won the Best Apron Award, while Best Booth went to Rock-a-Belly Deli.

New Smithsonian museum subterranean

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a city of monuments that reach for the sky, the Smithsonian Institution's newest museum is a buried treasure.

Visitors who stroll into the quadrangle behind the Smithsonian's old red sandstone Castle building on the Mall will find a tranquil Victorian garden and two low buildings in gleaming granite fronted by modest pools and fountains.

But what they can't see is what they get.

Descending for 60 feet underground is a $73.2 million complex housing the Arthur M. Sackler Gallery of Asian and Near Eastern art — the Smithsonian's 14th museum. Also included in the complex are an international study center and the new home of the National Museum of African Art, which moved from a rabbit warren of row-houses on Capitol Hill.

Under construction for four years, the complex will open to the public today.

Among the inaugural exhibitions are nearly 1,000 masterworks of Asian art that were given to the Smithsonian in 1982 by Sackler, a wealthy research psychiatrist, publisher and art collector from New York. Sackler, who died last May, also contributed $4 million to help build the gallery.

The new museum complex was conceived in the late 1960s by S. Dillon Ripley, former secretary of the Smithsonian, who wanted to expand the institution's focus to include non-Western cultures.

The quadrangle site was a natural, because of its proximity to the world-renowned Asian art collection of the Smithsonian's Freer Gallery of Art. Besides, the Smithsonian already had developed nearly all its vacant land on the Mall.

ClassAds

532-6555

Kedzie 103

CLASSIFIED RATES
One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken. 539-9468. (2-27)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

DOMESTIC AND imported cheeses at co-op prices. Available at People's Grocery Co-op, 811 Colorado. Open to everyone. Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. (24-27)

THE CONVOCAION Series featuring Noam Chomsky scheduled for Monday, September 28, 1987 at 1:30 p.m. in McCain Auditorium has been postponed. It has been rescheduled for Tuesday, November 17, 1987 at 7:30 p.m. in McCain Auditorium. (24-25)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (71)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211)

ROOMMATE NEEDED: $125/month, own room, very nice. Call 539-5406. (23-27)

TWO-BEDROOM, 727 Leavenworth #2, available Sept. 30. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 537-3188. (23-29)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1981 CHEVETTE. New brakes, air. FM/cassette, 59,000 miles. Priced to sell. Call Jarmet. 539-2301. (16-25)

1982 FIREBIRD, 59,000 miles, 350, all power, tilt/cruise, new tires, real sharp, $6,000. 537-4420. (22-25)

MUST SELL: 1976 Ford Mustang, V-6, automatic, power steering, brakes, $650 or best offer. 539-1768. (23-25)

1978 CHEVY, 3/4 ton, 4 x 4 pickup, 350 engine, power steering, power brakes, air-conditioning, automatic transmission, dual fuel tanks and set up for stock trailer. 456-8472 after 5 p.m. (25-29)

FORD LTD 1977. Excellent condition, low mileage, runs great. $1,500 or best offer. Call Salah in 636 Moore or Sonny in 533. 532-2362 after 6:30 p.m. (25-29)

CHILD CARE 07

BABYSITTER NEEDED in my home for 13-month-old evenings and weekends. Must have own transportation. Non-smoker. Call 539-8447. (22-25)

EMPLOYMENT 09

LUNCHEMENT WAITRESSES wanted. See Rusty at Kite's. Apply after 1 p.m. (24-26)

EARN SHUNDREDS weekly in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

PAY DAY! Apply now for student positions (all shifts, all hours). Including ice cream, Mexican, pizza, cook, baker, waiter, waitress and more! Bring in your fall class schedule today and fill out application in K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place where you work with other students. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. We prefer to hire work study students and students who are eligible to work 30 hours per week. Food Handler's Card a must. (15-25)

MAKE $4,600 monthly stuffing envelopes. For details, send self-addressed stamped envelope to Adele, P.O. Box 2142, Stillwater, OK 74076. (18-27)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work: electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

BANQUET SET up/janitor person. Part-time evenings and weekends. Apply in person, 418 Poyntz. (21-25)

PART-TIME MOTOR route carrier needed. Hours 2 to 7 a.m. Must have economical, dependable transportation. Only dependable, responsible people need apply. 539-7900. (21-25)

Earn holiday cash sharing gifts of good health and good taste

Immediate profits can be yours just for introducing your friends and neighbors to Shakee Good Harvest Gift Collections—delicious assortments of deluxe fruit and Shakee Nutritional Products. No inventory required. To begin earning money for the holidays, call: BOB OLVERA 1157 S. WEBB WICHITA, KS 67207

STUDENT RECEPTIONIST wanted to work Monday-Thursday mornings, 8 a.m. to noon. Contact speech department, 532-6875 or apply in person, 129 Nichols. (24-26)

FULL AND part-time retail help needed. Sports page—Town Center. Send resume to: Steve Webb, 224 Regent Estates, Manhattan, KS 66502. (25-29)

FALSETTO'S PASTA house is seeking energetic people to fill head waiter, bus person and cook positions. Apply in person, 2304 Stagg Hill Road. (25-26)

HOURLY STUDENT office help, prefer work study freshman or sophomore. Immediate start date, 10 plus hours a week. Must be able to work summer 1988 and have good typing and telephone skills. Call Pam at International Trade Institute, 532-6799 for interview. (25-27)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31)

FOR RENT two-bedroom mobile home with space for four horses. 539-5778. (25-29)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

BY OWNER nice, clean, two-bedroom mobile home with or without furniture set up on large shady lot. 539-5778. (25-29)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND—ONE earring between Dickens and Blue-mont halls. Claim by identifying, 261 Bluemont. (23-25)

FOUND: JEAN jacket with keys on sidewalk in front of Weber Saturday. Call Judd at 539-7561. (23-25)

FOUND TAXATION book and spiral notebook in Ackert parking lot. The name Julie Morrow was on the notebook. Pick up at Anderson 21 or call 532-6281. (25)

FOUND VETERINARY medicine book on Sept. 24. Call after 6 p.m., 776-6096 to identify. (25-27)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales. St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

WATERSKI and Windsurf this fall and next spring. Buy a wetsuit or drysuit on sale now from Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

Bridal Gown Sale
CHRISTINE'S
THE WEDDING COMPANY
11th & Moro
776-7387

NO PAIN NO GAIN
October Special
Unlimited Number
of Sessions for
only $50

Slender You
Figure Salons
No membership fee—first visit free
Candlewood Plaza-3232 Kimball Ave.
776-3308

TEDDIES
now at
UNDERCOVER
1224 Moro Aggieville
Open 7 days
Free Gift Wrap

MONDAYS SHRIMP NIGHT
THE COTTON CLUB
15¢ shrimp
$1 draws
418 Poyntz $2.75 pitchers 4-7 p.m.

TANS TO GO
$2 Sessions
1214-C Moro-Aggieville
776-7874
(must be used by 10-31-87)

PYRAMID PIZZA
All Slices 99¢
after 5 p.m.
WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

SUN CONNECTION
NOW SELLING $2 SESSIONS
1126 Laramie 776-2426

USED SAILBOARDS from $325, demo sailboards, sails, wetsuits, etc. all on sale at Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

FOUR FLEETWOOD Mac tickets for sale. Great seats. Kemper Arena. Call 539-8100, ask for Joni. (25-26)

FLEER 1987 update sets now available. We buy—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records, Manhattan Coins and Collectables. 1130 Laramie. 539-1184. (25-29)

PENTAX PC35AF camera, auto focus and built-in flash. $80. Call 539-2912 evenings. (25-27)

FOR SALE: Dining table with leaf and four chairs, $75, entertainment center, $50, brown rocker-recliner chair, $75. Call 532-6735 during day; 776-1665 at night. (25-26)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

MUST SELL! 1982 Kawasaki LTD 550, 3,000 miles, garaged, in excellent condition. Vetter helmets. Interested? Call 776-5926. (22-26)

1982 HONDA XL 100, 500 miles. Great school bike. Call 539-3719 evenings. (23-27)

FOR SALE: Men's red Schwinn 10-speed. Extras and in excellent condition. Call 532-2233 after 7 p.m. (25-29)

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (25-29)

FOR SALE: Huffly 10-speed bike. Good condition, $80 or best offer. Call 776-7685 after 5 p.m. (25-27)

RALEIGH CUSTOM USA—Competition 14-speed geometry, custom built. Diamondback Meanstreak—Mountain bike, 15-speed, new components. Both $300 or best offer. 537-0182 evenings. (25-29)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

ALTO SAXOPHONE, Conn student model, good condition. Assessed at $425, will sell for $350. 532-3508. (22-26)

FOR SALE: Small Peavey PA system includes amp head, two cabinets. Excellent condition. 539-5987. (24-28)

Hayes House of Music
DOD Guitar Effects
30% Off

327 Poyntz 776-7983

PERSONALS 18

STEPHANIE—WOWEE—two years! I still love you. —Jeffrey. (25)

THI DEET Lor Bor—So you think you're all grown up now. Happy B-Day Love, Jai!bait. (25)

BUCKWHEAT—YOU'VE made the last year and a half the best of my life. Alfalfa. (25)

PETS AND PET SUPPLIES 19

DOMESTIC HAND-REARED Senegal parrot. One left, $150. Very tame. 456-2470, Wamego. (23-27)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (111)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180, 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (111)

RENTALS 21

SUPPLIES: PRINTER/typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville. 539-7931. (111)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

PAPERS, RESUMES, cover letters, theses and dissertations entered, stored and completed to your specifications. Letter-quality printer. Come see us. Ross Secretarial Services, 614 N. 12th (across from Kite's), 539-5147. (23-32)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

ONE OR two non-smoking female to share farm-house. Prefer vet or animal science majors. Free stall and pasture for horse, cow, dog, Beef, eggs, firewood furnished, own bedroom. 776-1205, 8-10 p.m. only. (18-27)

SPORTING/RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT 25

USED SAILBOARDS from $325, demo sailboards, sails, wetsuits, etc. all on sale at Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

WATERSKI and Windsurf this fall and next spring. Buy a wetsuit or drysuit on sale now from Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

Collegian Classifieds Cheap, but Effective

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Old MacDonald had a farm.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Rachel's sister
5 Ending for pine or ultima
8 — Beach, Florida
12 Irk
14 Joliet's discovery in 1669
15 Where to see the Great Mosque
16 Camp shelter
17 Make lace
18 Believers in God
20 Take place
23 — of speech
24 New Mexico resort
25 Young maidens
28 California fort
29 Danube feeder
30 Jose's "hurray"
32 Rich fabrics
34 Like some grapes?
35 East African tribe
36 Aquatic animal
37 Cut molar 40 Poem
41 Hop kiln
42 City in Egypt
47 Sea eagle
48 Eternal
49 Winter vehicle
50 John Hancock's need?
51 Glut DOWN
1 Cover
2 A concern of NOW
3 Ending for fore or fire
4 Gap in a sequence
5 Diplomat's need
6 Maori wages
7 More than one madame
8 Diminutive
9 War god
10 Linen
11 New York ball club
13 Peter or Ivan
19 Formerly
20 Indian
21 One type of trick
22 Musical passage
23 Hooded jacket
25 Served the food
26 Plunder
27 Swing on a pivot
29 Window part
31 Blunder
33 Tangled
34 Swift mounts
36 He reigns at Valhalla
37 — the mark (conforms)
38 Nobleman
39 Early serif
40 Portent
43 French donkey
44 Maria's aunt
45 High explosive
46 Vital statistic

CRYPTOQUIP

R P K B M N O S Y T ' D R O S Y D
L K T U P K L N Y L L Y T Z U
O C Z F C - T Z D Y N K Z B M Z U F ?
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: MY HELPFUL PRINTER
HERE IS USUALLY A FONT OF INFORMATION.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals B

SADD

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1
 lenge death," Anastas said.

Kate Sack, Riley County EMS, participates as a victim in a mock tragedy Saturday south of Memorial Stadium. The tragedy was staged to bring awareness to the consequences of drinking and driving.

The game of life and death is real, Anastas said. His campaign for 1988 is "Challenge '88, Celebration of Life."
 "We can get the death rate under 1,000 by 1988 if I'm standing here — and I'm real," he said. "If you believe the way I do, then you are powerful."

Andrew O'Donovan, state commissioner of the Kansas Alcohol and Drug Abuse Services, was the keynote speaker for the program. He recognized the K-State chapter of SADD and told its members to keep up the good work.

"It's terrific to see these chapters in the colleges because there are too many lives lost, too much tragedy," he said.

As state commissioner, O'Donovan evaluated a number of K-State students who had been arrested for drinking and driving. Last year more than 100 students were arrested.

"What I tell them is that they are the lucky ones," O'Donovan said. "They got out of it without having a serious accident, and therefore don't have to be in that position again."

"The reality is that we all know many more could and should have been arrested, and that's always the tip of the iceberg," he said.

Connie Garrison, president of K-State's SADD chapter, said, "It's important the community recognizes that drinking and driving is a problem."

The community tends to keep its eyes shut, she said, and citizens should be aware that drinking and driving is hazardous.

"We need to break the chain of peer pressure," she said. "Students need to back each other up by having a designated driver or calling a BADD (Bartenders Against Drunk Drivers) cab."

"It's a good idea to ban together for this cause," said Mandy Sawyer, freshman in business administration. "I believe in my friends. You can have a good time as long as you know that someone is there that you can call or take you home."

The program attracted SADD chapter members from Wichita East High School.

"What Anastas said really hit me," said Joey Flowers, Wichita East SADD chapter sponsor. "There should be a sense of responsibility among students to look out for each other. We're in there to help other people."

A lack of K-State student participation in the event was disappointing to some.

"I hope this doesn't reflect the attitudes of how K-State students feel about drinking and driving," said Cindy Riemann, freshman member of K-State's SADD chapter. "It's more serious than people see it is."

Chris Rexroad, freshman member of SADD, said, "I feel people care, but they didn't want to take the time to go to the event on a Saturday morning."

Looking for an apartment?
 Check Collegian Classifieds

Ask About Our
 Weight Control
 Classes
 Fall Schedule:
 Monday
 3:30-4 p.m.
 Wednesday
 3:30-4 p.m.
 Lafene Health Center
 Room 122
 For more information
 call 532-6544

You will hear Paul perform complete compositions where he performs all the parts from his guitar.

MUSICIANS ANNOUNCING An Electronic Music Workshop/Performance PRESENTING

An Amazing Presentation And Performance Featuring
 The Latest In MIDI Electronic Musical Instruments

FEATURING

Paul Youngblood, Los Angeles-based studio and performing musician, in an exciting demonstration of the latest in electronic musical instruments.

NATIONWIDE TOUR

As part of a nationwide tour, Paul will be demonstrating how guitarists, keyboard players, vocalists, and wind instrument players can now play synthesizers, samplers, drum machines, sequencers and more, using MIDI controllers.

K-STATE
 This Thurs., Oct. 1
 3-5 p.m.
 ALL FAITHS CHAPEL

For More Information Call

FREE JOIN US S M HANSON MUSIC 776-3000

Firestone

GRAND REOPENING SALE

Sept. 28 thru Oct. 3

Our Best Tire
 Supreme TU White Wall

Size	Sale	This Week
17580R13	49.95	39.95
18580R13	53.95	42.95
19575R14	60.95	49.95
20575R14	66.95	52.95
20575R15	68.95	54.95
21575R15	70.95	56.95
22575R15	73.95	58.95
23575R15	75.95	59.95

Economy Radial Falcon II

White Wall	Price
15580R13	25.95
16580R13	27.95
17580R13	28.95
18580R13	30.50
19575R14	31.59
19575R14	32.95
20575R14	33.95
20575R15	34.95
21575R15	37.95
22575R15	38.95
23575R15	39.95

FREE Balancing Set of Four

Come in and Register-Free Drawing

FREE
 REFRESHMENTS
 Pop & Cookies

90 DAYS SAME AS CASH on revolving charge at Firestone stores and many dealers. Minimum monthly payment required. All finance charges refunded when paid as agreed. We also honor VISA, MasterCard, Diners Club, Carte Blanche and American Express. Prices and credit plans shown are available at Firestone stores. Use your independent dealers for their prices and credit plans. See starred (*) locations for MasterCard service.

Across from Dillards—Town Center Mall

307 N. 3rd. Mon.-Fri. 7:30-5:30
 Sat. 8:00-4 p.m. Ph. 776-4849

W E E
 WILLIE
 K-State Union
 12 oz. Refillable

WATCH FOR

k-state union
 food service

WILD
 WILLIE
 K-State Union
 34 oz. Refillable

UPC UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

Illustrations
 by Tom Bookwalter
 Today through
 October 9
 Union
 2nd Floor Showcase

k-state union
 upc arts

Rock Climbing and Rappelling
 in Columbia, Mo.

Sat. & Sun.,
 October 10-11

4 meals, equipment, demonstration provided!

Cost: $26

Sign up today through October 6

K-State Union Activities Center, 3rd Floor

k-state union
 upc outdoor rec.

Winner of the New York Critics Award for Best Foreign Film of 1986, this film is an erotic comedy about love and sex. Eight French Canadian intellectuals gather at a lakefront cottage in Quebec for the weekend. While the women exercise and the men prepare the dinner, each group discusses their sexual exploits with amusing candor. Rated R. $1.75; KSU ID Required.

Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
 & Thursday 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre and 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall

"A comedy that entertainingly and successfully expresses itself through intelligent characters. It's spontaneously funny..."
 —New York Times
 "A gift package of glittering entertainment. An absolutely delightful surprise."
 —New York Times
 "Delightful and illuminating... a provocatively down-to-earth movie about sex."
 —New York Times
 "Brilliant. A triumph... This is as splendid a comic-dramatic ensemble as the one in 'Hannah and Her Sisters'."
 —New York Times
 "Brilliant, witty and entertaining... 'The Big Chill' with a P.D."
 —New York Times
 "Delicious decadence."
 —New York Times

k-state union
 upc kaleidoscope

We're Off...

to the

Horse Races in Lincoln, NE

October 10, 1987

Cost $15, includes general admission ticket and round trip transportation.

Sign up today through October 8

K-State Union Activities Center, 3rd Floor

k-state union
 upc travel

Industrial Ties

K-State is undergoing an intensive self-evaluation process identifying strengths that can be tied to industry. See Page 5.

Weather

Sunny today, high in low to mid-70s. Winds northwesterly 10 to 20 mph. Clear tonight, low in mid-40s. Mostly sunny Wednesday, high in mid-70s.

K-State's volleyball team opens Big Eight Conference play Wednesday when the Wildcats host the University of Kansas. See Page 7.

Tuesday

September 29, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 26

Kansas State Collegian

ASK plans to better education quality

By Staff and Wire Reports

TOPEKA — Associated Students of Kansas announced Monday its campaign to improve the quality of education at state universities while maintaining an open admissions policy to allow all Kansas high school graduates the opportunity to attend college.

Named the "Higher Education Rescue Operation" — or HERO — the program was unveiled at the Statehouse by spokesmen for ASK, which represents student governments at the six state universities. "Kansas universities still deliver a good education, but it could and should be better," said Troy Lubbers, junior in marketing and chairman of ASK's Board of Directors and legislative assembly.

"It is easy to see that if these trends (of diminishing quality) continue, a real crisis may be upon us when it is

Admissions policy to be preserved

too late to do anything about it," Lubbers said. "ASK believes Kansas must reaffirm its commitment to higher education now."

During the past five years, Lubbers noted, state funding for higher education has risen 17.6 percent, while inflation rose 30.1 percent and tuition increased 56.5 percent.

Under the HERO program, ASK is supporting three things:

■ An endorsement of the Board of Regents "Margin of Excellence" program.

This is designed to increase the funding of Kansas universities to 95 percent of what their peer institutions receive for operations and to boost faculty salaries to the same level as their colleagues at peer institutions. The three-year cost of this program is $47 million, $20 million of which is scheduled to come from tuition increases.

ASK officials said they are not taking a position on the admission of Washburn University to the Regents system, and they don't see how it can take place because of the existing budget crunch.

■ An increase in student salaries and the off-campus Kansas Career Work Study program of $300,000 over the next three years.

ASK leaders said they are "deeply disappointed" the Regents haven't endorsed this proposal that would help off-set increases in student tuition.

■ The development of two student assistant programs.

One program is designed to help families and individual students save for college expenses through tuition savings accounts and prepayment of tuition costs.

According to Jennifer Leeds, junior in political science and economics and the ASK campus director at K-State, the older, non-traditional student or the parents of a pre-college student can purchase a certain number of credit hours at the institution of their choice and collect interest on that investment until the credit hours are used.

The second plan develops more scholarships and other forms of financial aid for "at risk" and disadvantaged students.

In regard to open admissions, Leeds said ASK was generally in favor of the selective admissions proposal drafted by the Student Advisory Committee. The SAC is composed of student body presidents from the Regents institutions. Leeds indicated she felt the issue of open admissions had been rushed at the ASK meeting.

Leeds pointed out the Regents have not taken enough time to explore all the consequences of the select admissions policy. "For example, fall semester of 1991 is too soon to implement the proposal," Leeds said.

She said the Regents believe a more selective admissions policy would correlate directly with the Margin of Excellence proposal, but ASK is not sure the correlation is quite so clear.

State leaders of ASK said they support enhanced requirements for students admitted to state universities if in-state students are not denied the opportunity to get a college education. ASK advocates the requirements of a core curriculum for high school students in order to prepare them for college, as well as remedial programs at the local level for lacking certain courses.

ASK leaders said it is important to address preparatory deficiencies of high school graduates, but they do not want to end the open admissions policy. They also want the higher standards applied at all regents schools, not just the University of Kansas, K-State and The Wichita State University, as proposed by the Regents.

"Students believe the goal of any policy change in admissions must be to improve all students' chances of success, not reduce student opportunity," Lubbers said.

Riley County water, solid waste projects receive no money

By Judy Lundstrom
Special Projects Editor

Two Riley County projects suffered financial blows over the weekend as state officials named six Community Development Block Grant Award winners.

Neither the Solid Waste Management Committee nor the Fairmont Water Project were on the list.

"We were pretty close," said County Planner Monty Wedel. "They funded six and we were seventh and eighth."

The block grants are federally funded Housing and Urban Development awards, but are allocated by the Department of Commerce in each state, Wedel said. Riley County commissioners approved requests for the two $30,000 grants at their Aug. 27 meeting.

One grant would have been used to hire a consultant to work with the Solid Waste Management Committee, which was mandated by the Kansas Department of Health and Environment in its landfill closure order. The committee is in charge of revising the Solid Waste Management Plan.

The other grant would have been used to hire an engineering firm to examine water conditions in the Fairmont Addition area, southeast of downtown Manhattan. Residents in that area have repeatedly complained about the water's bad taste, and 1986 water tests conducted by KDHE detected contamination in several residents' wells.

Cities receiving the grants were Oswego, Parsons, Almena, Grandview Plaza, Edgerton and Hays, said Terry Manning, field representative for the Small Cities Program at the Department of Commerce.

Manning said the applications are ranked according to a point system that is partially based on per capita personal income, unemployment rate, tax revenues and need.

"Riley County was at the dividing line," she said. "Both applications were next in line to be funded. We just ran out of money."

The Grandview Plaza grant was awarded for the investigation of water sources in the area, Manning said.

Harden said he had no idea why the Riley County grants were not approved.

"We have the highest low- and moderate-income population numbers in the state, which I thought would be significant," Harden said. "I don't think there's anybody that can touch our need. As far as I know, we're the only landfill under closure

■ See GRANT, Page 6

Staff/Brad Camp

Dishing up Willie

Paulette Karlin, Colby, paints a Willie the Wildcat on a satellite dish owned by E.J. Sisk, 3213 Windbreak Circle, Monday evening.

Karlin expects to finish the project this evening. Today's temperature will see a high in the low to mid-70s.

IFC to implement dry rushing policy

By The Collegian Staff

A dry rush policy for K-State fraternities was passed Monday night at an Interfraternity Council meeting at the Kappa Sigma house.

The motion was passed by a 22-3 vote in favor of the policy, which will take effect on the first day of the 1988 spring semester. The council is comprised of fraternity presidents.

"I am very pleased with their decision," said Barb Robel, Greek Affairs adviser. "It shows responsibility and maturity in light of the laws of Kansas."

Prior to this implementation, Interfraternity Council had no specific dry rush ruling. The policy requires that no alcoholic beverages be consumed by or served to fraternity members or non-members during rush parties, which are held to recruit fraternity members.

Any fraternity found in violation of the policy will be brought in front of an IFC board of directors and sanctioned accordingly.

Robel said no sanctions are listed in the policy.

"I feel the policy can only be a positive statement," said Kevin Ney, senior in finance and president of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. "Our house implemented dry rush three years ago and it has not hampered our rushing ability at all."

Robel said the council passed the policy due to a need for an alcohol policy which is consistent with Kansas liquor laws.

Education Article revision urged

By Staff and Wire Reports

TOPEKA — Former Gov. Robert F. Bennett Monday urged submission of an amendment to revise the Education Article of the Kansas Constitution, while spokesmen for students and education groups endorsed raising standards for admitting students to state universities.

Bennett was among panelists discussing higher education governance and the whether the state Board of Education's powers under the constitution should be clarified at the annual Conference on Postsecondary Education sponsored by the Legislative Educational Planning Committee.

Another panel tackled the controversial question of setting certain college preparatory requirements for Kansas high school graduates to meet before they automatically are admitted to the state's six universities.

Bennett, governor of Kansas in 1975-79, and a former president of the state Senate, was co-author of an amendment altering the state's Education Article which was adopted by state voters in 1966.

Bennett said it was never the intent of lawmakers to give the state Board of Education any powers except those delegated to it by the Legislature, but a state Supreme Court ruling in 1973 said the state board held certain "self executing" powers under the '66 amendment which it could exercise without legislative approval.

No constitutional confrontation has developed between the board and the Legislature in the years since the court ruling, although the board has adopted rules and regulations relating to school accreditation and teacher certification under its constitutional powers rather than under legislative authorization.

Hal Rowe, Superintendent of Manhattan Unified School District 383, said the state Board of Education was "better off with broad powers rather than specific limitations."

The Legislature submitted proposed amendments in 1974 and 1986 to remove the conflict over the "self executing" powers issue, but state voters rejected them both times.

Bennett described the 1966 amendment as a compromise between those who wanted only to say the duty to provide an educational system for the state's young people is vested in the Legislature, and those who wanted to insert language into the Constitution delineating virtually the entire educational structure.

"One way doesn't necessarily argue for education better than the other," said David Byrne, dean of the College of Education.

Although Bennett helped craft the compromise amendment, he said he now views it "with alarm," because of the '73 court decision which handed the state board more power than was intended. He blamed "sloppy language" in the amendment for creating the problem, and said a new amendment should be offered which would clarify what is meant when the Constitution says the state board shall have "general supervision" of education in Kansas.

"The time is now to make a change and, hopefully, a dramatic change in our Education Article," Bennett told nearly 100 conference participants.

Of the four states he has worked in, Byrne said he has had the best working relationship with the Kansas state department of education. The education system in Kansas is analogous to those in the other states he has worked in.

Bennett said he believes the Board of Education should be appointed by the governor, as the Board of Regents is, and that the governor also should appoint the state education commissioner. The 10 members of the Board of Education are now elected, and they hire the education commissioner.

■ See BENNETT, Page 10

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Chernobyl report due soon

VIENNA, Austria — The Soviet Union will present a detailed report on the Chernobyl nuclear plant accident during the one-week International Conference on Nuclear Power Performance and Safety which began Monday.

Morris Rosen, director of the security department of the International Atomic Energy Agency, said the study to be presented Wednesday will be "more informative than earlier reports."

The agency is sponsoring the conference.

Rosen told journalists covering the conference that the new Soviet report would contain the latest data on the environmental consequences of the April 26, 1986 accident, the world's worst nuclear plant disaster.

Moscow said the explosion and fire at the plant killed 31 people. Radiation spread worldwide and forced the evacuation of more than 100,000 Soviets.

The IAEA sponsored a Chernobyl accident review meeting in August 1986, at which scientists discussed a Soviet report on the disaster. Experts praised the Soviets' openness.

The role of the 113-nation U.N. specialized agency increased considerably as a result of the nuclear disaster in the Ukraine.

Councilman bans fight song

LANSING, Mich. — City Councilman Sid Worthington, a fervent Michigan State fan, has taken the law into his own hands and banned rival University of Michigan's famed fight song from the streets of Lansing.

Worthington said "The Victors" — described by John Phillip Sousa as one of the greatest marches ever written — is noise pollution, pure and simple, so he had it banned under the city's new traffic code.

"There's nothing melodic about that tune," Worthington said, tongue planted firmly in cheek.

But at least one judge isn't laughing about Worthington's jab at Michigan State's bitter intrastate rival, which is located in Ann Arbor. Michigan State is in East Lansing.

"I think the law is not a joking matter," said Chief District Judge William Collette. "If we treat our laws as a joke, others will too, even more than they do already."

Worthington headed a three-year project that recently completed the first major revision of the city's code book of ordinances.

"All we did was have a little fun after 2½ years of hard work," he said. "After 1,200 pages of good law — cleaned up and straightened out — why can't we have one little ringer in there?"

Students injured in explosion

NEWARK — A test tube of alcohol exploded in a high school science classroom Monday, injuring five students and a teacher, the school principal said.

Three other students in the advanced-chemistry class were sent home because glass from the explosion penetrated their clothing, said Paul Gallagher, principal of Newark High School. Eight students were in the class.

Gallagher said the explosion resulted from a routine lab procedure involving distilled alcohol in a test tube that was on a burner. He said no toxic substances were involved.

The five seniors, all 17, and the teacher were taken to Licking County Memorial Hospital where they were treated for minor cuts and bruises.

Japanese to film Kansas ad

TOPEKA — Officials of Japan's largest merchandise retailer have arrived in Kansas to film advertising commercials they plan to use to sell Kansas beef back home later this year.

Seven officials of Daiei, Inc., most of them public relations officers, arrived in Kansas on Sunday for a five-day visit. They also plan to meet with Gov. Mike Hayden, his office announced Monday.

Daiei has been actively promoting Kansas beef in Japan in cooperation with its American supplier, Excel Industries of Wichita. The delegation will be filming a commercial to be used in connection with a planned promotion of Kansas beef in December.

The officials plan to spend Tuesday filming at a ranch outside of Eureka, where they will observe a cattle-raising operation. The group also plans to rent a helicopter to fly over pastures in the area.

The delegation will meet with Hayden on Thursday, and the governor will prepare a videotaped message to be used in the promotion.

Budig 'mad' about proposal

LAWRENCE — University of Kansas Chancellor Gene Budig said he was "damn mad" about a proposed new health care package for state employees.

Secretary of Administration Ed Flentje announced last week that the Employees Health Care Commission has recommended the state increase its contribution toward its employees's health care benefits by 20 percent next year.

But some KU employees are angry because the proposal requires those with single memberships in the plan to contribute to their premiums. That contribution, which the state had formerly paid, will cost employees anywhere from $1 a month for nonsmokers who earn less than $17,000 to $20 for a smoker who earns $30,000 or more.

Budig, saying "we are mad, damn mad" about the proposed changes, wants the Board of Regents to enter the controversy.

When asked for further comment last week, the chancellor's assistant, Jim Scally, responded: "He didn't have anything further to say. He said he's said it all."

Flentje said 89 percent of the employee groups in the nation pay part of their insurance premium, and the proposal brings the state employees group in line with national practices.

He added that the proposal seeks a substantial increase in the state's contribution to health benefits from Gov. Mike Hayden and the Legislature.

Fight over ball ends in death

BEIJING — Two air force men were arrested and face court-martial for allegedly beating a university student to death in a fight over a basketball, the official Xinhua News Agency reported Monday.

It said the incident occurred Sept. 21 at an air force base in Changsha, Hunan province, and that the base commander was dismissed for allowing slack discipline.

The report said Meng Yanfang and Jian Xiubing, whose ranks were not given, got into the fight with Hunan University freshman Jiang Gaohui when he and two fellow students walked past the base barracks.

Xinhua said the fight was over a basketball, but gave no details.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS can be picked up in Anderson 122. They are due Oct. 5.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON activities carnival today and tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in Justin lounge.

APPLICATIONS FOR STUDENT LECTURERS are available in Anderson 112, New Students Programs. Deadline for submitting them has been extended to Wednesday.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

GERMAN TABLE meets at 12:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2. Anyone interested in German conversation is welcome.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Paul E. Maneth at 10 a.m. in Blumont 364. The topic is "Faculty Development Practices at Kansas Community Colleges: An Analysis of Their Perceived Effectiveness."

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Sandra S. Adams at 10:45 a.m. in Blumont 368. The topic is "A Developmental Approach to Guard Against a Procrustean Kindergarten."

GERMAN CLUB meets at 4 p.m. in Union 212. There will be a discussion about Oktoberfest plans.

ALPHA ZETA meets at 8 p.m. in Waters 137 for group pictures.

PEACE CORPS meets at 5 p.m. in Union 206. The scheduled film is "Life In The Developing World."

PEACE CORPS meets at 5 p.m. in Union 207. The scheduled film is "The Toughest Job You'll Ever Love."

STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT CABINET meets at 10 p.m. in Student Governing Office.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON meets at 6:30 p.m. in Union 207.

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Shellenberger 301.

NATIONAL AGRICULTURE MARKETING ASSOCIATION (NAMA) meets at 7 p.m. in Union 206.

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

ALL STUDENTS INTERESTED IN ATTENDING LAW SCHOOL IN 1988 meet at 2:45 p.m. in Union 204 for an essential meeting on deadlines and application requirements.

TEACHERS OF TOMORROW meets at 7 p.m. in Blumont 112. The topic is student teaching.

HORTICULTURE THERAPY CLUB meets at 6 p.m. in Waters 18A. The guest speaker is "Doc" Fedder on creative drama.

GAY/LESBIAN SUPPORT GROUP meets at 7 p.m. in Holton 111. The topic is women in entertainment.

SPURS meets at 9 p.m. in Union 213 to pay dues.

AGRICULTURAL COMMUNICATORS OF TOMORROW meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

HOSPITALITY MANAGEMENT SOCIETY meets at 4 p.m. on east side of mall for a tour.

KANSAS ASSOCIATION OF RESIDENCE HALLS (KSUARH) meets at 7:30 p.m. in Ford Hall.

LAMBDA CHI LITTLE SISTERS meet at 9:30 p.m. at Lambda Chi house.

UNIVERSITY FOR MAN meets at 10 a.m. in Union main floor for fall class registration.

WEDNESDAY

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

GYMNASTICS CLUB meets at 9 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Karen Greathouse at 10:30 a.m. in Justin 247. The topic is "Financial and Operational Parameters Affecting Selection of Food Service Systems."

CIVIL LIBERTIES ORGANIZATION meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213. Anyone interested is welcome to attend.

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL meets at 7:45 p.m. at University for Man.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF PROFESSIONAL ENGINEERS meets at 4:30 p.m. in Durland 173.

Corrections

Due to a photographer's error, Andrew Burgen, Eskridge, was incorrectly identified in a photo outline in Monday's Collegian as Jonathan Schumm, Manhattan.

Due to incorrect information given a photographer, it was reported in a outline in Monday's Collegian that Robert Lamar is a K-State student. Lamar, who was listed in good condition Monday at The Saint Mary Hospital, is not a K-State student.

If only typewriters let you proofread your work before they printed it on the page.

What a mess!

You've just proofread your term paper and it's got typos, spelling errors and misplaced paragraphs.

Now, you can't hand in a paper like this. So no matter how tired you are, you've got to retype the entire thing.

That is, unless you typed it on a Videowriter.*

The Videowriter solves all your typing problems.

Take the most obvious one: typos.

On an ordinary typewriter it would mean a bottle of white-out and a frustrating interruption.

On a Videowriter it just means pressing the key marked "delete." That's all. Because you type your work on a screen before you print it on a page.

It edits.

And how about those bigger problems like wanting to rearrange paragraphs?

On an ordinary typewriter you have to "cut and paste" them.

On a Videowriter you only have to press the key marked "move" and then indicate the area you want it moved to. It's that simple.

It spells.

What happens when you're typing and you come to a word you can't spell?

On an ordinary typewriter you have to stop typing, find a dictionary and look it up.

Not so on a Videowriter. Spelling problems can be corrected simply by pressing the key marked "spell."

It counts words.

If you've ever had a teacher tell you to write a thousand word essay, you know what a pain it is trying to count your words.

On an ordinary typewriter you have to do it with your finger.

But on a Videowriter you can press a mere two buttons and it does the counting for you.

It makes multiple copies.

From time to time you want a copy of what you've typed, right?

Well, if you use a Videowriter you won't have to go to the school library to look for a copier machine.

All you'll have to look for is the button marked "print." Press it and the Videowriter will make another original.

And because your work is automatically stored on a standard 3½" floppy disk, you can make those copies whenever you want.

It obviously does a lot more than type.

That's because the word processing features just go on and on.

What's more, we sell the Videowriter® Word Processor for around the price of a good electronic typewriter.

And that's quite a bargain when you consider the amount of time it'll save you. Time you can spend doing the work for your other classes.

You would do that, wouldn't you?

Videowriter® is a registered trademark of North American Philips Consumer Electronics Corp.

MAGNAVOX
Smart. Very smart.

Voting in the Union
Sept. 29 and 30

VOTE FOR YOUR FAVORITE PLAYBOY

Acacia	Bryce Cole
Alpha Gamma Rho	Jeff Otatt
Alpha Kappa Lambda	Brad Mitchell
Alpha Tau Omega	Brandon Klsner
Beta Sigma Psi	Alan Manke
Beta Theta Pi	Bill Crisqui
Delta Sigma Phi	Brian Svoboda
Delta Tau Delta	Chad Abercrombie
Delta Upsilon	Ryan Swart
FarmHouse	Jason Hornburger
Kappa Sigma	Mike Brown
Lambda Chi Alpha	Ken Schmidt
Phi Delta Theta	Richard Fox
Phi Gamma Delta	Kirk Winter
Phi Kappa Tau	Steve Jones
Phi Kappa Theta	Doug Eshelbrenner
Pi Kappa Alpha	Rusty Binkley
Pi Kappa Phi	Darlin Ruddy
Sigma Alpha Epsilon	Scott Bleker
Sigma Chi	Jim Houck
Sigma Nu	Gary DeBruyn
Sigma Phi Epsilon	Dave Teter
Tau Kappa Epsilon	Curt Creason
Triangle	Ed McConwell

Final judging at Charlie's Partydome in Aggieville (previously Mannequins)

Wednesday, Sept. 30

Proceeds to benefit Cystic Fibrosis

Commission to discuss dogs

By The Collegian Staff

Pit bulls and kennels are the two issues Mayor Gene Klingler and Commissioner Nancy Denning want to discuss at this afternoon's public hearing. The Manhattan City Commission will hear discussion on the proposed health ordinances concerning animal shelters, cats, dogs and vicious animals.

"I'm going to do what I can to get a handle on pit bulls. There really is no socially redeeming value to them," Klingler said. He indicated he will do everything he can to get the animals banned in Manhattan.

"I'm not sure what I can do constitutionally," Klingler said.

Denning said kennels need to be regulated "like any other business."

"When I buy a puppy or a kitty, I expect to have a healthy puppy or kitty," Denning said, "not one that is going to get sick two months after I buy it."

City Manager Mike Conduff said the ordinances are proposed through the recommendation of the Riley County-Manhattan Health Department. The objective is to provide unified animal control ordinances throughout Riley County.

"It's a model ordinance, and it has to be fitted to the unique circumstances of the community," Conduff said. He expects a large turn-out for the hearing at 4 p.m. today.

Staff/Greg Vogel

Stable Condition

William Everett, senior in political science, is lifted by a Riley County EMT Monday afternoon at the intersection of Sixth Street and Poyntz Avenue. Everett was riding a bicycle eastbound when he was hit by a southbound vehicle. He was listed in stable condition Monday evening at The Saint Mary Hospital.

Collegian classifieds, cheap but effective

Tuesdays & Thursdays
55¢ draws

Coors Light
&
Budweiser
on tap
at the 3rd St. Pub

Help Wanted

Need sharp person for receptionist-secretarial work, including billing coordination. EOE.

KMAN-KMKF Radio, 2414 Casement Road, Manhattan, KS

Optometrists

Dedicated to Optometry
in a friendly manner

K-State, we'd like to be your optometric office

- Extended wear, gas permeable, tinted extended wear, tinted soft contact lenses
- Contact lenses competitively priced
- Doctors in office for FREE consultation and trial fitting
- Approx. 5,000 contact lenses in stock
- Evening and Saturday appointments available

Drs. Price, Young, Odle and Horsch

1119 Westloop

537-1118

RUSHWACKER'S
THE FUNDRIKERY

DISCOVER THE FUN
Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. at 9 p.m.

Tonight

Happy Cole
along with Bud Dingman

Show 9 p.m.

Office
539-4321

Tickets $2

Bar
539-9727

PEOPLE POWER IN DEMAND

if you:

- find other people interesting
- like variety and excitement in your work
- require a flexible schedule
- need some extra cash

THEN BECOME A PART OF A
NATIONALLY-RECOGNIZED TEAM.

Interested individuals contact:
Boyd Food Center (532-6484).
Derby Food Center (532-6483).
Kramer Food Center (532-6482).

Yom Kippur

High Holiday Services

Kol Nidre

Friday Evening

Oct. 2

7:30 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 3

Morning Service 10 a.m.

Memorial Service 6 p.m.

Break-the-fast following

at

Manhattan Jewish Congregation
1509 Wreath Ave.

Students who wish to share supper with a local Jewish family may call

Matt-532-6096 or Dave-539-6177
(evenings)

March of Dimes
SAVES BABIES

619 N. Manhattan

Tall Boy
TUESDAY

$1.00

16 oz. Tall Boys

$1.50 Wells

Bar Office
539-9081 776-6638

The Station

TACO
TUESDAY

featuring those freshly prepared crisp flour shells

$1.25
MARGARITAS

99¢ HOT
SHOOTERS

99¢ TACOS
OR 3 FOR $2.75

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, September 29, 1987 ■ Page 4

Commission's quorum threatens meetings act

It's hard to work when everybody is watching.

So proclaimed the Sedgwick County Commission last May when it took the seemingly harmless action of increasing the size of its quorum from three to four. A quorum is the number of members who have to be present before a meeting may begin.

As a rule, the size of a quorum is fixed at the number of members necessary to approve a motion. Normally, for a five-member entity like the county commission that number would be three.

When the commissioners increased the size of their quorum, they also challenged the protection provided to voters by the Kansas Open Meetings Act.

Last Wednesday, state Attorney General Robert Stephan filed a lawsuit against the Sedgwick County Commission because of the impact their action would have on the Open Meetings Act.

Passed by the Legislature in 1972, the Open Meetings Act requires all political and tax supported entities to conduct their business openly. All meetings of the members of these bodies, at which the business of the organization is discussed, must be open to the public and media.

To safeguard against unscheduled private meetings among members, the act requires that no business of the entity be discussed by a majority of the quorum of the body.

For a five-member body like the Sedgwick County Commission this number would be two, if the quorum is three. From 1972 until last May no two members of the commission could discuss county business privately without being in violation of the law.

Currently, with the increased quorum, two members of the commission could, in private, discuss county business. One of these two commissioners could then talk to another commissioner and, if all three were in agreement on a matter, a decision affecting the citizens of Sedgwick County would have been made.

Under this arrangement, commissioners would not have to hear voters' opinions on a tax increase or a change in county zoning and voters would not be able to hold commissioners accountable for actions which voters did not favor.

It is up to the Sedgwick County District Court to decide if the law is being circumvented by the county commission. Both sides have said their dispute will not end until the Kansas Supreme Court has rendered an opinion.

Until that time, Sedgwick commissioners have been instructed by their attorney not to discuss matters privately, just in case they are later charged for violating the law, which carries a $500 fine.

This alone shows a great deal about the commissioners. They are only obeying the law now because their lawyer has told them to; not because they believe in the spirit of the law. Most of all, it shows voters they can control their government only as long as they can see what it is doing.

Reagan should reassess U.S. action in gulf war

Ever since President Reagan sent the U.S. Navy to protect Persian Gulf shipping, two things have been recurrent: One, blame for mining the waters is passed from Iran to Iraq and back again, and two, the possibility of eminent hostilities in the area is great.

When the Navy was sent, one of Reagan's reasons for not invoking the War Powers Act was that the forces were there to protect shipping, not engage in the war between Iran and Iraq. After the one trip through the gulf and one damaged tanker, Reagan said the United States was still there to protect shipping, but U.S. forces could use whatever means to protect themselves.

After attacks on the tanker Bridgeton and the USS Stark, the possibility of eminent hostilities became very real months ago.

Last week, the U.S. forces engaged in action with Iranian forces for the first time. This time, actions were taken between two forces as would happen between foes in a war where hostilities are the name of the game.

This was not an incident involving foggy, mysterious motives or players. U.S. arms were brought to quell an Iranian threat, property was lost and people were killed.

History has shown the Iranian government and factions associated with that government are vigorous in their efforts to seek revenge. Not only are they vigorous, they have shown to be extremely violent.

Recent reports from the gulf have shown the violence continues, including the Iraqi bombing of Iranian naval targets and more mines that were found in major gulf shipping lanes. U.S. officials suspect they were put there by Iran in retaliation for last week's attack on a minelayer.

Reagan has never given any indication what he might consider a possibility for eminent hostility, but incidents in the Persian Gulf during the past seven years should prove the hostilities are eminent.

Now, U.S. forces have directly attacked forces from another country and two things have been proven: Iranian forces are at least partially responsible for mines in the gulf, and hostile action is needed in the gulf to protect shipping there.

If Reagan doesn't consider the crossfire of a war, danger from mining international waters or involvement of U.S. troops against another nation as providing a possibility for eminent hostilities, then maybe it is time for him to re-think his policy for invoking the War Powers Act.

If he refuses to do so, it's time for Congress to impose its own definition.

Admissions plan needs scrutiny

"Since 1979 a current has swept across our nation revealing a predominant trend among major four-year public institutions toward increased selectivity in admissions."

—Stanley Koplik

On this note, Stanley Koplik, executive director of the Kansas Board of Regents, has seemingly found it his obligation to make Kansas part of this nationwide trend. In his proposal titled "Selective Admissions: Toward a Distinctive System of Kansas Universities," he suggests a radical reversal of our state's open admissions policy. In simple terms, he is trying to make it much harder for the average freshman to gain admission to K-State, the University of Kansas or The Wichita State University.

His plan advocates that freshmen must have at least a 2.0 grade point average in a curriculum recommended by the Regents, receive a composite ACT score of 23 or higher, or rank in the top one third of their high school graduating class. This does not seem very restrictive but, under close examination, it has many loopholes.

Take the 23-point ACT score requirement, for example. It is bad enough to judge one's achievement only on a Saturday morning exam, but to make the minimum 23 points? Since the average composite score in the state of Kansas is 19.2, the Regents are asking that we deny access to a very large number of freshmen. Or suppose you did reasonably well in high school, but your graduating class was very small and you were unable (due to a numerical disadvantage) to be in the top third of your class. What is a freshman to do then?

Worst of all, however, is the mandatory curriculum to be determined by the Board of Regents. Koplik's plan requires, among other things, a minimum of two high school units of a foreign language. What happens to the graduates of the small high schools in Western Kansas which do not offer these courses? Are they then denied access to our larger state universities?

An argument Koplik uses in the proposal

Commentary

MICHAEL NICHOLS
Collegian Columnist

itself is that his plan will reduce the rate of attrition in Kansas universities. In other words, less freshmen would supposedly drop out of school after one or two semesters. At K-State, for example, about 28 percent of freshmen fail to return for their sophomore year. Koplik's argument is that by raising the standards for admitting students, the quality of raw material entering the universities will be raised. These high-achieving students will have a higher rate of degree completion, so we will consequently lose less students.

This seems to follow a logical pattern and may even prove to be a practical reality, but while we are keeping students in, we are still making it more difficult to accept them. What is the use of reducing attrition rates if, at the same time, less students are being admitted to our institutions?

By creating selective admission standards, the Regents would be discriminating against certain groups of applicants, more specifically, those in the lower strata of society. As Pat Bosco, vice president for institutional advancement and dean of student life, pointed out in a report to the Legislative Educational Planning Committee: "A variety of social and economic factors have been shown to impact more heavily on these groups, resulting in lower high school performance and altering their motivation and interest in attending higher education."

Isn't it the duty of a land grant institution to be as accessible as possible to all the residents of its state? The requirements suggested by this plan bring a nagging fear to mind, possibly best described as "elitism." Koplik denies such characterizations by stating that a policy of selective admissions cannot be elitist if it allows access to individuals based on performance.

But what about the people whose performance does not meet the criteria of selective admissions? Will they have no option but to enroll in a junior college or smaller state university unaffected by this plan?

At the moment, this university's administration is still studying the Regents' proposal. Our student body president, Kent Bradley, is not in favor of Koplik's proposal in its entirety, endorsing instead a recommendation by the Student Advisory Committee to the Board of Regents.

SAC's proposal is titled "Enhanced Open Admissions" and is a less restrictive version of the Regents' plan. Most notably, in SAC's plan there is a greater amount of flexibility in admitting students, creating various methods for circumventing the Regents' curriculum recommendation. For example, in the SAC proposal, the foreign language requirement can be fulfilled during one's freshman year at a university, if one's high school failed to offer such a course.

Perhaps the most important factor to consider about this plan is that it is merely a proposal. Any decision regarding a change in the admissions policies of public institutions in Kansas has to be made in the Kansas Legislature. At the earliest, this plan will be voted upon in January of 1988, but probably not until April. If there is any dissatisfaction with this proposal, the best recourse is to contact your local state representative.

The Regents' recommendation, if accepted, could have a serious impact on our graduating high school students and their immediate future. Public opinion should be a very important factor in determining any such changes.

'Big Apple' comparison lacking

For years I have wondered why Manhattan, led by its Chamber of Commerce, is so enamored with New York City. Sure, it shares the name "Manhattan," but why such pride in calling itself the "Little Apple" in comparison to the "Big Apple?"

The big red apple painted on the water tower overlooking the city broadcasts the fact to visitors from the East. The local charter bus company uses the little apple logo on its equipment and spreads the word far and wide. At last count, no fewer than six local businesses used the name "Little Apple." It must be pride that leads a business to use the name, since surely one like the "Little Apple Driving School" doesn't wish to convey the image that it's teaching its students how to drive like the notorious New York City cabbies.

To claim we have the vitality and glamour of the Big Apple is something that could only have been thought of by someone who has never been there. To ignore the garbage and the trash on the streets of the Big Apple at midnight, the pitifully demented beg people babbling to themselves on the sidewalks and the rudeness that strikes when least expected, and then to say that you want to be recognized as New York's "little sister" is to play the fool.

To be sure, there are former residents of this area living in New York City who love it and wouldn't think of leaving. But for most of us, New York City is a classic example of "a great place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there."

If that wasn't bad enough, we now have spot ads on TV showing a map of Kansas with the words, "Kansas — America's Central Park." What a great image we project to motorists from the East traveling through our state on I-70 — they are going to be going through Central Park! Has this love affair between Manhattan, Kan., and Manhattan, N.Y., now spread throughout the entire state?

Commentary

JUDD ANNIS
Collegian Columnist

But to those from the Big Apple, Central Park at night is another matter.

Nobody from New York City would even think of going through Central Park at night, so we scare them into spending the night in Salina or Hays. We even have the sheriff of one of our western counties advising motorists not to stop at the I-70 rest areas because the risk of being shot, stabbed or robbed (or all three) is too great. The motel business in Oakley and Goodland should boom.

The possibilities go far beyond the motel and restaurant business there for the picking. With the out-of-state motorists scared to death at the thought of going through Central Park and within hailing distance of the "Little Apple," we might be able to promote a "hired gun" service at the borders.

On the serious side, public relations campaigns like these reinforce the image that Kansans are naive and uninformed. Our fellow Americans on the eastern seaboard aren't impressed, and the average guy drinking coffee at the local cafe has heard or seen enough of the Big Apple that he doesn't appreciate the comparison.

If we can't get rid of the "Little Apple" epithet, let's inject some authenticity into it. First, we have to recognize that the only difference between a big apple and a little apple is size and that the little apple is just as likely to have rotten spots and worm holes as the big apple.

Let's start with a sidewalk pretzel vendor and a couple of guys selling watches from a display pinned to the inside of their coats.

And we need street musicians offering everything from rock to jazz to the classics, with their instrument cases ready to catch a much appreciated quarter. On Sunday afternoons, how about a mime performing for loose change on the courtyard of McCain Auditorium, as they do on the steps of the Metropolitan Museum in the Big Apple?

Next, we're going to have to change our downtown image. The mall can stay, but the area of Poyntz Avenue leading into it will have to be jazzed up with bright lights, 10-story neon billboards (preferably advertising Japanese cameras), discount stereo shops, XXX-rated movie houses and a gang of muggers. With all the vacant storefronts that appear imminent, an ad in the New York Times offering the usual incentives to new businesses to move to our city should do the trick.

A re-opened Wareham Theatre would represent the legitimate Broadway show houses. Note that I said "re-opened", not "re-modeled." Most of the theaters on Broadway look like they hadn't been refurbished or remodeled for years.

To complete the Little Apple image, we need to rename Poyntz Avenue "Little Broadway" and the mall plaza can be "Little Times Square." If we're going with the Little Apple/Big Apple analogy, let's do it up right.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Business Tuesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, September 29, 1987 ■ Page 5

The K-State Foundation's Technipark, at Claflin and Browning Road, is being considered as an industrial site in a development study.

City, county combine with K-State

By Janet Swanson
Agri/Business Editor

K-State is looking for a partner in marriage — in as many areas as possible. The University is undergoing an intensive self-evaluation process identifying strengths that can be tied to industry.

"We need to determine the University's strengths and weaknesses and find any marriages that can be made between the public and private sectors," said Bill Muir, director of economic development at the KSU Foundation.

The comprehensive study will determine the University's strengths. Compiled by Arnold and Porter, a Washington D.C., law firm, and Freilich, Leitner, Carlisle and Shortlidge, a Kansas City, Mo., law and urban planning firm, it's the first of its kind for the University, Muir said.

"Everybody has their own ideas on the University's strengths, but we have never had a non-biased third party decide," he said.

The $97,500 study is being financed by the Foundation, the City of Manhattan and the Riley County Commission, Muir said. The Foundation is giving $48,750, the city is contributing $13,750 and $35,000 is being donated by the commission. "It's an effort in good faith by all of the parties. Everyone is in this together," he said.

Park's feasibility studied

The University Economic Development Study will be a "top to bottom study of the University." It will evaluate strengths that can be profitably tied to industry to determine if a research park is feasible in Manhattan, Muir said.

"Once a program is determined as being a strength, the study will determine that program's marketability to industry," he said.

He listed the American Institute of Baking as an example of ways that the University can tie in with industry.

"The institute moved its headquarters here from Chicago," he said. "One of the main reasons they did was because we have the only milling program in the United States."

But preliminary plans for the research park include more than just a technical center.

"It will not only serve industry, but it will also have recreational facilities," Muir said. "It might have a golf course or something along those lines."

Once the links to industry are mapped out, the study will recommend what type and size of research park would benefit the project the most, Muir said.

Three main sites are being considered in the study: the Technipark, an 826-acre tract and 1,100 acres owned by the Foundation.

The Technipark, located at Claflin Road and Browning Avenue, is owned by the University and was built in 1980 to be expanded into an industrial park. But the plan was never developed, Muir said.

"We never actively marketed it," he said. "It doesn't have any room for expansion since it's surrounded by neighborhoods. It's too big for some companies and too little for others."

But the $400,000 Technipark does have an advantage over the other two sites, Muir said.

"The Technipark does already have utilities and streets — the others don't. The study will make a recommendation as to whether or not we should dispose of the park or keep it," Muir said. "But, it will be very expensive to run utilities out to the other sites."

The other two sites are both west of Manhattan.

The Chamber of Commerce has an option to buy an 826-acre tract, Muir said. The cost of the tract is $2.2 million.

The last site is 1,100 acres owned by the Foundation. If that site is recommended by the study, Muir said the cost of the land would be considered as a portion of the Foundation's contribution to the project.

The idea of a research park is not a new one. The North Carolina Research Triangle and Stanford Research Park in California are both successful parks, he said.

"But, there have certainly been more failures than successes," he said.

But since the study will recommend a 10- to 20-year marketing plan, Muir said he's confident Manhattan could support a research park.

"As long as you have access to an airport (the Manhattan Municipal Airport) and a major highway (I-70), there is every possibility for success," said Steve Chinn, member of the Freilich, Leitner, Carlisle and Shortlidge firm.

"With the strengths that we have in agriculture and biology, I'm sure it could succeed," Muir said. "The project's possibilities are only as limited as the minds working on it."

The preliminary study is scheduled to be completed Dec. 1, with the final report due by the end of January.

Chamber centers on economic issues

Commentary

TOM WHALEN
Guest
Writer

At the beginning of this year, the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce, at its annual planning retreat, outlined the objectives for each of its committees — the '87 plan. It was suggested that the Chamber is the center for progress in Manhattan. With still more than a quarter of the year remaining, some impressive results have been achieved toward that plan.

Focusing on the Chamber as a center for economic development, we

Committees work toward meeting goals set in plan

■ began the implementation of a targeted industry marketing program and are currently working with several prospects,

■ printed, in cooperation with McCall Pattern Company, a new and unique brochure for economic development use,

■ proposed and achieved funding for a $90,000 study with the KSU Foundation on the feasibility of developing a research/industrial campus on the Miller ranch or alternate locations,

■ held joint executive committee meetings more than six times with Junction City Chamber

■ prepared development proposals of new facilities for nine prospective new firms ranging in size from 20 to 200 employees,

■ created the structure of a venture capital corporation and prepared investment prospectus for the start-up of a biotech research company.

Focusing on the Chamber as a center for profitability, we

■ hosted monthly business after-hour informal get togethers with average attendance of 250. Hosts to date have been St. Mary's Hospital, Schawb-Eaton, the College of Business, KQLA, Brent Bowman, Kansas Crop Improvement Association and Westloop Merchants,

■ lobbied extensively for business viewpoints in Topeka. Some of the major issues included economic development, unemployment compensation, highways and higher education funding,

■ lobbied at all sessions of the Governor's highway task force for highway improvements in Manhattan,

■ hosted Eggs & Issues breakfast series,

■ co-hosted Gov. Mike Hayden's town meeting on highway improvements.

Focusing on the Chamber as a center for community relations, we

■ hosted two joint golf outings with the Junction City Chamber,

■ sponsored two golf exchanges with Fort Riley,

■ sponsored the Welcome Back Coupons' Books distributed to 16,000 students with 67 participating merchants,

■ sponsored a new faculty barbeque with 90 faculty in attendance and 65 sponsoring businesses,

■ supported CrimeStoppers which has solved 4 cases in 1987. The crime prevention program has solved 172 cases, convicted 70 defendants, and recovered $121,985 in stolen property and narcotics since its inception in 1981,

■ sponsored 15 individuals in the leadership development program, Future Manhattan,

■ formed an education committee that prepared a 30-page resource directory for printing,

■ sponsored two Little Apple Brigade luncheons with Fort Riley,

■ conducted numerous community tours for prospective KSU faculty members,

■ sponsored a farewell luncheon for retiring City manager, Don Harmon.

Focusing on Chamber development, we

■ welcomed over 50 new and expanded businesses to Manhattan,

■ upgraded our newsletter to "The Business Journal,"

■ created new administrative systems, including computerized line-item budgeting, comprehensive financial reports, and a membership audit system.

Focusing on the Chamber as a center for conventions and visitors, we

■ participated as a "Linger Longer" sponsor of Kansas tourism promotion, ■ hosted 75 conventions and tournaments,

■ proposed and achieved a Big Splash promotion cooperative effort with Junction City to promote Tuttle Creek and Milford reservoirs. Over 2,000 people registered for free weekends at the Lincoln and Omaha sports shows. Ads and billboards were placed for the promotion,

■ had 39 citicard sponsors that enabled 5,700 discount cards to be distributed to convention delegates,

■ initiated "Manhattan Visitors Guide" - now going to press, 20,000 to be printed bi-annually, distributed through convention packets, available at area motels, restaurants and attractions, sent to visitors requesting information and were handed out at the State fair and sports shows,

■ continued work on securing a new marina at Tuttle Creek State Lake.

Tom Whalen is the general manager of the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce.

Institute benefits due to relocation

By Julie Key
Collegian Reporter

Despite Manhattan's rural location, the American Institute of Baking's move to Manhattan has proven to be a wise choice, said John Cannon, communications coordinator at the American Institute of Baking. AIB has expanded in the 10 years since it relocated to Manhattan, he said.

"Our operating budget has substantially increased since the move," he said.

"When we were located in Chicago, we had less than 10 programs. Now we offer about 50," Cannon said. "I feel they made a good choice (by moving). AIB continues to do well," he said.

AIB was established in Chicago in 1919 and moved to Manhattan in April of 1978.

Both the company and Manhattan have benefited from the relocation. "AIB brings in a lot of revenue for Manhattan," Cannon said.

Many of the Institute's students train for one to two weeks and stay in hotels, frequent restaurants and spend their entertainment money here, he said.

A study of Manhattan was completed by Midwest Research Institute for AIB before their relocation. It listed 17 advantages for the move and six disadvantages.

One of the advantages cited in the study was the academic environment provided by the University. Another was that Manhattan is a center for cereal grain research.

Most of the baking industry was in favor of the move, Cannon said. The study said industry members would save $387,000 a year in contributions and non-tuition expenses by moving to Manhattan.

Because of K-State's milling and grain science departments, the USDA Grain Marketing and Research Center and the Kansas Wheat Commission, an AIB publication stated that there was "no better place for AIB."

"When we were located in Chicago, we had less than 10 programs. Now we offer about 50. I feel they made a good choice (by moving). AIB continues to do well. AIB brings in a lot of revenue for Manhattan."

—John Cannon

"The AIB and K-State complement each other," Cannon said.

By moving here, he explained, they would have access to K-State's facilities and the institute's staff would have the opportunity to update their skills. AIB and K-State also share professors, Cannon said.

The institute conducts cooperative research with the University. This semester, they are working on a study of the effect of fiber in cereal (grain) products on serum, cholesterol and triglycerides, said James Vetter, vice Mark Haun, rear, and Brian Lanners, baking technology students at the American Institute of Baking, remove bread from an oven. The institute president, technical, at AIB.

"It is expensive to relocate a business," Cannon said. The cost of constructing and equipping the Institute's new facility was about $4.3 million.

Cannon said the move created some geographical problems.

"Manhattan isn't as easily accessible as large urban areas," he said.

People must fly into Kansas City or Wichita and then take a commuter flight to Manhattan or rent a car and make the two-hour drive, he said.

According to a publication produced by AIB, it has become one of the leading institutions in the world for training in the milling and baking industries.

Classes at the institute are open to anyone, Cannon said. But, they are geared toward individuals with experience in the industry, he said. Classes range from electrical troubleshooting to cookie and cracker technology to a "hands-on" pizza production lab.

Cannon said he doesn't know of any type of business that would not profit in Manhattan.

"There is a wide variety of businesses here," he said.

Staff/Steve Wolgast

Students have lobbyist thanks to ASK

By Karen Allen
Collegian Reporter

Students at K-State have their own lobbyist to the Legislature in Topeka — through the Associated Students of Kansas.

ASK is a lobbying organization for all state universities in Kansas. Each student at K-State is considered a member of ASK.

Besides representing the students' concerns to the governor and legislators, ASK cooperates with the Board of Regents and other state-level agencies. By monitoring current policies, ASK determines the legislative proposals that would effect students the most and works to make students' concerns known. The organization also conducts research on various educational issues.

Student body presidents from each university appoint a campus representative to sit on the ASK Board of Directors. This board serves as a governing body for the organization.

Troy Lubbers, junior in business, is K-State's representative and currently chairs the board.

Lubbers works with the ASK campus director, Jennifer Leeds, junior in political science, in communicating the views of students to the state ASK directors. Leeds reports to the state directors once a week, and she attends monthly board meetings with Lubbers.

Leeds said she is excited about the organization this year.

"ASK is in a better position than it ever has been," she said. "We are well organized and ready to kick off the new year."

Each year, ASK adopts a platform of student issues as a basis for its lobbying efforts. This year, the HERO campaign — Higher Education Rescue Operation — will be one of those issues, Lubbers said.

"The platform is adopted in late November," he said. "In the past, ASK has been very successful in achieving its goals."

ASK has a history of lobbying for student financial aid and employment. Major efforts include the creation of the Kansas Higher Education Loan Program and increasing the minimum wage for campus jobs. ASK successfully lobbied last year to make the Kansas Career Work Study Program become a state law.

"Now the money for work study has to be there every year," Lubbers said. In the past, the universities were fortunate to receive it yearly, he said. K-State receives about $1.5 million each year for the program.

As one project for the new year, ASK is sponsoring the HERO campaign. ASK believes the quality of education is declining in Kansas due to lack of funding by the state. It wants to motivate people to voice their concerns to the Legislature.

"Our goal is to convince the Legislature that quality education and sufficient funding go hand in hand," Leeds said.

The HERO campaign is asking volunteers to lobby for the funding of higher education. Volunteers write letters or make phone calls to their own senators and representatives. In addition, ASK is planning student trips to Topeka to lobby while the Legislature is in session — between January and April.

According to Leeds, ASK is recruiting volunteers from every part of campus, including students, faculty, administration, alumni and parents.

"We want the Legislature to realize there is an entire mass of people who believe in this cause," Leeds said. "And, all of them are potential voters." She wants to involve people concerned about maintaining high-quality education.

During October, ASK wants to hold a campus forum on education with speakers from the administration, faculty and student body. State legislators will also be invited to attend.

"We will be inviting legislators to spend a day on campus. We want them to have a chance to meet and talk with the average college student," Leeds said.

By visiting campus organizations in November, ASK hopes to encourage more group participation in the phone and letter drive.

"We want the Legislature to be flooded with opinions," she said.

Leeds encouraged any students who are interested in taking part in the campaign or becoming involved in the lobbying activities to contact the ASK office in the Union.

Grant

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

order right now. We were pretty confident going into this thing."

"We thought we had a pretty good application put together," Wedel said. "But it was my understanding that they have never funded any plans other than comprehensive plans up to this point."

Both Riley County applications, he said, were not comprehensive, but specialized.

Manning said there was no stipulation. "Some of (the awards) were not for city-wide comprehensive plans," she said.

Harden said now the county will probably use funds from the general revenue sharing account to hire a consultant for the waste committee.

Wedel said though the grants are awarded annually, he wasn't certain whether further action would be taken on the Fairmont Water Project.

"I don't think the county is going to take any further action on that one," he said. "That was kind of cream — if we could get it, fine, but I don't think the commissioners are going to put any additional money into it."

Harden said the county may reapply for the Fairmont grant next year.

But Katie Smith, chairman of the Fairmont Community Task Force, said she won't wait.

"We have no intentions of dropping the issue," said Smith, whose goal is to set up a city water district for the Fairmont Community. "I'll do everything I can to keep it going and keep it public."

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

The sandwich that launched a chain of restaurants.

The famous Runza sandwich. Good eating. Good nutrition. And impeccably good taste. Here's why.

Lean 100% American ground beef-fresh, not frozen. Small, young heads of cabbage hand-picked to guarantee perfect flavor and texture. Tender dough made fresh every day with 100% durum flour. The finest in imported and domestic spices.

Choose an original Runza or one of our cheese or Italian varieties. Add an order of fries or a garden-fresh salad. It's a good meal for the entire family.

The Runza sandwich. So good we named our restaurants after it.

At Runza, we start fresh so everything ends up good.

1101 Moro
AGGIEVILLE

K-STATE PLAYERS

ON THE VERGE

by Eric Overmyer

Wed.-Sat.
Nichols Theatre 8 p.m.
12-5 532-6398 M-F

Manhattan Milling Co.

- K-31 Fescue $26.50/50 lbs.
- Fertilizers
- 13-13-13 $6/50 lbs
- 34-0-0 $6/50 lbs.
- Weed & Seed $6.60/20 lbs & $12.50/40 lbs
- Sulfur Salt $2.50/50lbs

Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Kappa Kappa Gamma, Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha, Off Campus

Sept. 30: Lambda Chi Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

Good Luck To All Greek Playboy Contestants From

Tomorrow at 8 p.m.
at
Charlie's Party Dome
in Aggieville
(previously Mannequins)

You will hear Paul perform complete compositions where he performs all the parts from his guitar.

FREE

JOIN US

MUSICIANS

ANNOUNCING An Electronic Music Workshop/Performance
PRESENTING

An Amazing Presentation And Performance Featuring
The Latest In MIDI Electronic Musical Instruments

FEATURING

Paul Youngblood, Los Angeles-based studio and performing musician, in an exciting demonstration of the latest in electronic musical instruments.

NATIONWIDE TOUR

As part of a nationwide tour, Paul will be demonstrating how guitarists, keyboard players, vocalists, and wind instrument players can now play synthesizers, samplers, drum machines, sequencers and more, using MIDI controllers.

K-STATE

This Thurs., Oct. 1
3-5 p.m.
ALL FAITHS CHAPEL

For More Information Call

S M HANSON MUSIC 776-3000

4th Annual

MANHATTAN MERCHANTS GIFT BOOK

Sponsored by 50 of the local Manhattan merchants

$1000 Value
Gift Certificate Book for only $39<sup>95</sup>

Our operators
may be contacting you
537-9022

Falsetto's PIZZA

539-3830

For the Best "Homemade"
Pizza in town with the Best "Hometown" Price
Two Delicious Homemade Pizzas

$5<sup>99</sup>

Free Delivery

MENU

Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
		TWO 10"	TWO 14"
Cheese .....	5.99	8.99
1 Item .....	6.94	10.39
2 Items .....	7.89	11.79
3 Items .....	8.84	13.19
4 Items .....	9.79	14.59
Deluxe .....	9.79	14.59
Veggie .....	9.79	14.59
Supreme .....	10.74	15.99
Each Additional Item .....	.95	1.40

Prices do not include tax
1127 Moro•In Aggieville
We accept checks

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Tuesday, September 29, 1987 ■ Page 7

Volleyball team to renew rivalry

'Cats to try to even conference record

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

K-State's volleyball team opens its home Big Eight Conference play at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Ahearn Field House when the Wildcats host the University of Kansas.

After opening Big Eight play with a three-game loss Friday to Iowa State in Ames, the Wildcats, 8-4 overall, are looking to improve on last year's 2-8 conference mark.

Kansas is 4-9 overall and 0-2 in conference play, with the losses coming to Iowa State and Nebraska. Saturday night, the Jayhawks went down in five games to Iowa State. On Sunday, Kansas dropped another five-game match, this time to Northern Iowa.

K-State is 8-4 overall and possesses an 0-1 conference record.

"We are looking forward to opening our conference play at home on Wednesday," K-State coach Scott Nelson said. "It's a real important match for us. Not only because it's Kansas, but also because they are a Big Eight team that finished third in the conference last year."

The Wildcats hold a 27-25 lead in the series against Kansas and have done well against the Jayhawks in recent years. Last year, though, the Jayhawks defeated the 'Cats two of the three times the squads met.

"They are a team that we've handled the past few years, although last year they defeated us two of the three times we played," he added. "They are a good volleyball team."

K-State recorded its only conference wins last season at home against Kansas and Iowa State in five games matches. Kansas defeated the 'Cats in Allen Field House in four games and in five games in the first round of the Big Eight's postseason tournament.

Nelson said he expects this match may also go the limit.

"I wouldn't be surprised if it went beyond three games. When I look on paper, the two teams are very close. What I don't know is which teams have made the most strides since last year, us or them," he said.

"When I reflect back on our season record so far, I then make comparisons to teams we played last year — beating them in four games instead of five, beating them in three games instead of four and playing tough at Iowa State — I feel good about our progress, but I'm sure Kansas has improved too."

Even though the 'Cats split matches against Iowa State, losing 13-15, 11-15, 15-17, and defeating Drake University, 16-14, 10-15, 15-2, 16-14, Nelson feels good about the team's play.

"I was pleased with our performance," Nelson said. "Of course, I was disappointed with the loss. I think our performance was solid though. We still need to improve on our mental toughness late in the match. That's a lesson we learned against Iowa State."

K-State outside hitter Mary Kinsey tied a school record for digs in a 4-game match by getting 40 digs against Iowa State. Kinsey leads the team with 90 kills and is second in digs with 122. 'Cat outside hitter Shawnee Call is the team leader with 138 digs.

Wildcat Kristin Martin leads the squad with 217 sets in 520 attempts for a .417 percentage. But K-State setter Leslie Kull is right on Martin's heels with 480 sets and a .369 percentage.

In the serving and blocking department the hot hand still belongs to 'Cat middle hitter Kristi Jacquart. Jacquart leads the team with in aces with 37 and also in blocks with 53.

As a team, the Wildcats are averaging 12.1 kills per game versus 9.7 for their opponents. With 3.1 service aces per game, the Wildcats are outdistancing their opponents' 1.7 service aces per game. K-State is getting 16.7 digs a game while their opponents are only averaging 14.6.

Shawnee Call dives for a ball during practice Monday afternoon in Ahearn Field House. The volleyball team is busy preparing for its Wednesday evening contest against the University of Kansas.

Staff/Greg Vogel

Soccer club defeated by Kansas

By The Collegian Staff

The K-State soccer club suffered its first loss of the season at the hands of the University of Kansas soccer team, Saturday at Memorial Stadium.

The Jayhawks outscored K-State 3-2, balancing the Wildcats' record at 1-1.

Freshmen David Nicodemus and Pat Bonnell kicked in scores for the Wildcats, but a lack of intensity was the key to the 'Cats first loss this season, according to first year head coach and professional soccer player Ian Anderson.

"We did not play with intensity throughout the match," Anderson said.

Anderson said the relentless offensive threats by KU proved to be too much for the Wildcats, yet there is still hope for the future.

"Our defense was under constant pressure by the 'Hawks. Our offense was sluggish, but we still got two goals, so the potential is still there," he said.

Anderson, a Scot who has played professional soccer for the last 16 years, was a stand-out player the last two seasons with the Wichita Wings of the Major Indoor Soccer League and is currently playing for the Canton Invaders.

Now coaching for K-State and playing at the same time, Anderson has aspirations to coach full time.

"When I don't feel I'm enjoying (playing) anymore...then I'll get out," Anderson said, prior to the 1987 Invader season.

For now, though, Anderson will continue to coach K-State on a part-time basis, as the 'Cats will next see action against Wichita State University.

Tennis team dominates Bethel College

By Russ Ewy
Sports Writer

The women's tennis team showed total domination in their fall dual opener with an impressive 9-0 lashing of the Bethel Threshers last Thursday at the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area tennis courts.

The Wildcats tallied nine love sets and were not extended to three sets in any of the nine matches. Both Marijke Nel and Valerie Rive posted 6-0, 6-0 victories in their respective singles divisions with the duo combining at No. 2 doubles to also blank their Bethel opponents.

Theresa Burcham, K-State's No. 1 singles player, defeated Bethel's No. 1 singles player 6-0, 6-4, in what coach Steve Bietau called the toughest match of the day.

"I would say if there was one performance on the team that was very strong it was at No. 1 singles, because that's the one spot in Bethel's lineup that they are the strongest. They drop off quite a bit after that," Bietau said.

"In singles they are noticeably stronger at No. 1, so Theresa Burcham really played a solid match, even though the score was 6-0, 6-4; she played the best match of the day right there."

Despite the fact that Bietau said he felt the Wildcats faced a squad of lesser athletes, he was happy with the overall play of his team.

"The team play was good. It was a match where we played a weaker opponent and it's not a type of a match where the opponent is going to motivate you to play well, you have to do it yourself and from that standpoint we played very well. It's tough to have a great match unless you have a great opponent," Bietau said. "If the opponent is weaker, it's a deal where you have not a lot to gain, but you may have a lot to lose and none of our players let that situation come about, they just went out and took care of business."

"I was pleased with the fact that none of our players gave Bethel a chance to get in a match," Bietau said. "We knew going into the match that Bethel was a team we should defeat. Across the board, I thought we maintained a good level of intensity."

Bietau also expects the 'Cats to do well in matches against better opponents in the future.

"When we start to play Big Eight teams, I don't think we're going to see scores like we saw against Bethel, but one thing I've learned about these girls is not to underestimate what they are capable of. This team, more than any other I've coached, has the potential to do great things," he said.

K-State 9, Bethel 0

Singles:

No. 1 — Theresa Burcham, K-State def. Susan Loepp 6-0, 6-4.

No. 2 — Annika Emmelt, K-State def. Joni Graber 6-1, 6-2.

No. 3 — Marijke Nel, K-State def. Lori Pauls 6-0, 6-0.

No. 4 — Valerie Rive, K-State def. Julie Colberg 6-0, 6-0.

No. 5 — Milste Britner, K-State def. Stephanie Geringer 6-1, 6-1.

No. 6 — Tara White, K-State, def. Andrea Friesen 6-0, 6-1.

Doubles:

No. 1 — Sigrid Ivarsson-Emmelt K-State, def. Loepp-Graber 6-3, 6-2.

No. 2 — Nel-Rive, K-State, def. Colberg-Geringer 6-0, 6-0.

No. 3 — Burcham-Bitner K-State, def. Pauls-Denetta Decker 6-1, 6-0.

Strike in week No. 2; TV hearings proposed

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The NFL strike entered its second week Monday with the two sides locked into immovable positions, no negotiations in sight and union head Gene Upshaw suggesting that the next talks be televised.

Upshaw, who met with players from six teams in Los Angeles on Sunday, made the suggestion in Cleveland, where he talked with the Browns and other players who live in the area. He also went to Chicago and planned to meet with the Atlanta Falcons and the New York Giants on Tuesday.

"We have nothing to hide by putting them on television," Upshaw said. "We think the public should see that we are making movement at the table and they could really see what the owners think and do at the table."

However, John Jones, a Management Council spokesman, said such a meeting would be defined as an unfair labor practice by the National Labor Relations Board. Each side has already filed complaints against the other with the NLRB.

Union counsel Dick Berthelsen suggested that Tuesday's meeting of the Management Council's executive committee might result in overtures for new negotiations. "Every time they meet, they usually make overtures to us and we're hoping they might again this time," he said.

But the owners still say they will talk only if the union gives up its demand for unrestricted free agency.

Meanwhile, there appeared to be little chance of resuming talks until next week, all but ruling out any resumption of play this weekend by regulars.

"I think that if we play on Sunday and we're successful, that does create additional pressure on the players," said Jack Donlan, executive director of the Management Council. "By the same token, if we're unsuccessful, we'll probably have a little egg on our face because we tried to play."

"But where are the players? The players are still out and the owners are still not going to give up free agency if the games on Sunday don't get off the ground. A week will go by, or two or three, and they still don't have paychecks."

Jones said the union needs to "substantially reconsider its proposal."

"I think Jack made the point that meeting for meeting's sake is pointless. Whenever the union has reconsidered its proposal, we can sit down again."

That seemed to ensure that games will go on this weekend with what the union calls "scab teams," and will, the NFL insists, count in the regular-season standings.

CBS has said it will televise its regular games Sunday; ABC said it will broadcast next Monday night's game between the San Francisco 49ers and the Giants; and NBC is still undecided.

The only union defection Monday was veteran linebacker Reggie Williams, who said he will play for the Cincinnati Bengals against San Diego on Sunday.

"I hope I'll be playing with the guys who are on this field today," he said as the striking Bengals worked out at a high school. "But if I'm not, then I'll play with whatever players are wearing the Bengals uniform."

But most coaches seemed resigned to playing without players like Williams. Many likened it to running rookie mini-camps.

Joe Walton of the New York Jets released a depth chart that had David Nourie, released in training camp, as the starting quarterback for Sunday's game with Dallas. But he said he only did it "because somebody has to start."

"We can see progress but compared to what?" Walton asked. "It's obvious our game plan will be a lot more limited."

From a football fan's perspective, the 'Iowa tradition' is a great one

Just wondering if it's too late to stop work on the Fred Bramlage Coliseum instead of moving out of Ahearn Field House, and using the money to renovate Memorial Stadium for K-State football...

No, it's not financially feasible, but it's a thought to keep in mind if one could have witnessed the pregame atmosphere that accompanies University of Iowa football.

Believe me, it's tradition. And it's what college football is — and should be — all about.

I took a vacation of sorts this weekend. Instead of covering the Wildcat-Hawkeye clash from the press box at Kinnick Stadium in Iowa City, I witnessed K-State's best outing this season from a fan's point of view. I'll admit I was one of the media members that believed Iowa would win going away. But even if the 'Cats had been skinned alive Saturday, it wouldn't have changed

Tom on Tuesday

TOM MORRIS
Sports Writer

my first impression of "Iowamania."

My roommate and I arrived for the game about 1½ hours before kickoff. Since we didn't have a clue as to where the stadium was, we simply parked the car in a convenient spot and followed a horde of Iowa fans who looked like they knew what was going on. When we got to within five or six blocks of the stadium, the party was in progress.

The events taking place outside the stadium would be similar to strolling down the midway of a state fair. We first arrived at a corner booth that sold "authentic Iowa bratwurst" and a drink. I thought that was handy since it was still quite a ways from the field, and sometimes prices inside the stadium are a bit high.

But when we turned the corner, there was a virtual sea of economic opportunity bordering the stadium.

Sure, it was a bunch of people out to make a fast buck. But then again, the salesmen weren't at all pushy. If you wanted to stop and browse, fine. But if you didn't, there were at least four or five others who were willing to look. Selling Iowa football is probably the easiest job in the state.

The carnival atmosphere before the game made K-State-Iowa far and away a better road trip than going to Nebraska. Sure, Nebraska fans dress up in the school's colors and flock to the game in massive hordes just as Iowans do, but that's where the similarity ends.

Another positive factor I noticed is that Iowa fans have a great deal of respect not only for their team, but the opposition as well.

Iowa fans are just as supportive of their team, but they do show respect for the opposition unless it happens to be Iowa State.

I can only wonder if the Wildcats would have stayed at Memorial Stadium, if something similar to Iowa City wouldn't be taking place on game day in Manhattan.

With the renovation of the locker and weight rooms, KSU Stadium is now one of the class acts of the Big Eight Conference. And upon completion of the Coliseum, the Wildcat sports complex will be somewhat comparable to the home of the Kansas City Chiefs and Royals.

Still, it's a shame when the measure of success and progress overshadows tradition.

K-State's lecturers offer topic variety

By Chuck Homer
Collegian Reporter

Knights, Knaves and Provability; Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde in Evolution; Environmental Dimorphism and its Effects; and Catfish and Neon Signs: Small Town Revitalization! Jargon, you ask? Not at all. These are but three of the more than 200 titles of presentations available to Kansas high schools and community colleges as a part of the Presidential Lecture Series, said Marilyn Trotter, director of new student programs. Members of the faculty, selected by their department heads, will travel throughout the state making presentations on topics in their area of expertise, she said. The lecture series, initiated by President Jon Wefald, is entering its second season. The series was not started until the 1987 spring semester, Trotter said. More than 6,000 people heard the lectures given during the abbreviated first season. Feedback about presentations made last year was very positive, she said. The number of requests for lectures this year has been significant. The type of presentations are as

"We hope to significantly increase the number of presentations given this season. K-State students can assist us in our effort to increase the awareness...."

—Marilyn Trotter

varied as the list of topics, Trotter said. Lecturers have innovated a myriad of audio-visual aids to augment their presentations.

Lectures are presented at no expense to high schools or community colleges, she said. Funding is provided by the KSU Foundation, and new student programs makes the necessary arrangements for lodging and transportation. Trotter said the primary goal of the lecture series is not recruitment; rather, it is to provide Kansas high school and community college students with the opportunity to hear and see K-State faculty members speaking on topics in their area of expertise. If students are impressed with what they hear and see, then recruitment may be an added bonus, she said. There is an ongoing effort to increase awareness of the series with Kansas educators, Trotter said. Informational brochures are being sent to every Kansas high school principal and to administrators of every community college. "We hope to significantly increase the number of presentations given this season," she said. "K-State students can assist us in our effort to increase the awareness by informing their former high school or community college teachers about the series," Trotter said. Trotter said the lectures are made available on a first come, first serve basis. Informational brochures will soon be available in Anderson 112 if students want to pick one up to take back to their hometowns, she said. High schools or community colleges wanting to arrange for a lecturer can do so by calling on a toll free line, 1-800-432-8270, or by writing to Presidential Lecture Series, 112 Anderson Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Gorbachev's absence mysterious

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet capital is puzzling over the seven-week absence of Communist Party leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev. The energetic, 56-year-old leader has constantly been in the public eye since he took charge of the Kremlin in March 1985 following the deaths in the previous 2½ years of Leonid I. Brezhnev, Yuri V. Andropov and Konstantin U. Chernenko. But he has not been seen on television or in public since Aug. 7, when he met in the Kremlin with a group of American teachers of Russian. His absence is a main topic of conversation among foreigners and their Soviet contacts, and journalists who live along a major route often used by Kremlin leaders keep watch for Gorbachev's motorcade. Pyotr Starchik, one of the publishers of the Express-Chronicle, an unofficial journal of dissident activities, said Monday that if Gorbachev's absence meant a change of leadership it would mean trouble for dissidents. "If (Yegor K.) Ligachev takes over, everything will be different," he said, referring to the Politburo member who generally is regarded as the Kremlin's No. 2 man. But there has been no evidence of a power struggle in the Kremlin. Foreign news reports have offered possible explanations including an attack of food poisoning and complications from appendix surgery for Gorbachev's wife. Soviet officials insist nothing is wrong. Foreign Ministry spokesman Boris Pyadyshchev told reporters last week that the Soviet leader "is on vacation and that he is in good health — excellent health."

Gorbachev has not missed any meeting or event that protocol would require him to attend as Communist Party leader. His name has been on all official greetings and messages sent by the Kremlin in his absence, and he is said to have written a article about two weeks ago on a comprehensive system of international security. Documents have been issued in the past in the name of leaders who were seriously ill, but Gorbachev has championed greater openness in Soviet society. "Everyone asks us the same question," said one diplomat in Moscow, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "We just don't have any information...that anything is wrong." "As far as we know he's in the Crimea and everything else is rumor," the diplomat said Monday. There has been unofficial information that Gorbachev was vacationing in Kerch, located on the extreme eastern end of the Crimean peninsula, the diplomat said. News reports about Gorbachev's absence began a week ago with a report in the West German newspaper Bild that he suffered an attack of food poisoning during his vacation. Bild said the food poisoning may have been an attempt to kill Gorbachev. It cited no sources for its story. The Stockholm newspaper Expressen reported Sunday that Soviet eye surgeon Svyatoslav Fyodorov told a Swedish colleague Friday that Raisa Gorbachev had suffered serious complications from appendix surgery, and that her husband had stayed with her for 14 days.

Landon in hospital for additional tests

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Former Gov. Alf M. Landon was hospitalized Monday for additional tests after complaining over the weekend of internal pains. A family spokeswoman, Reta Dwight, said Landon was admitted to Stormont-Vail Regional Medical Center for further tests after he was found to have a gall stone last week when he was taken to the office of his physician, Dr. John Cray, for tests. She said it was not known how long Landon would be in the hospital. She said Landon's vital signs were good. The 1936 Republican presidential nominee observed his 100th birthday on Sept. 9 and went to Lawrence Sept. 19 to be honored by the University of Kansas.

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

TV Listings

By TV Data

TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 29, 1987

KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00 Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Bugs Bunny Flintstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00 " "	TBA	" "	My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook Sports	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00 " "	" "	" "	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Tennis: Intl. Champion-	Movie: "The Disorderly Or-
10:00 Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Andy Griffith Dick Van	Body Electric Congress	Andy Griffith Soap	ships of Spain derly	" "
11:00 Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Instructional Programming	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Sanford Major League
12:00 News	Midday Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Basketball (International):	Baseball: Atlanta Braves
1:00 Lives Another World	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Bewitched	Masterpiece Theatre	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	U.S. vs. Philip-pines	at Cincinnati Reds
2:00 " "	Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch Zoo	Mod. Maturity Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters	Auto Racing	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00 " "	Donahue	Scooby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00 " "	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jeans M. Bravestar	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe BraveStarr	Racing: IHRA Summer Natl.	Munsters Laverne
5:00 " "	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsLook Surfing	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00 " "	News NBC News	News M*A*S*H Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	Cheers Major League	SportsCenter Bill Dance	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00 " "	Matlock	Jake And The Fatman	Hill Street Blues	Nova	Baseball: Chicago Cubs at	Water Skiing	Movie: "Wild Rovers"
8:00 " "	J.J. Starbuck	" "	Moonlighting	Movie: "White Heat"	Pittsburgh Pirates	Surfer Mag. Volleyball: Pro	" "
9:00 " "	Crime Story	Law and Harry McGraw	Thirtysomething	" "	Not All Parents	Beach Tourn. Billiards	Movie: "Beach Red"
10:00 " "	News CBS News	News M*A*S*H	Barney Miller Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	INN News Magnum, P.I.	PGA Tour SportsCenter	" "
11:00 " "	Ent. Tonight	Hunter	B. Buddies Nightline	Dating Game	MacNeil / Leher Newshour	SportsLook Water Skiing	Portrait of America
12:00 " "	Late Night With David	"Sweet Revenge"	700 Club	Movie: "Viva Zapata!"	Sign-Off	Illustrated Man	Goliath/Giants

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.) The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

* Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.

* No abbreviations, please.

* No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.

* Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

* Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

* If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.

* Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.

* The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.80	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.20	4.80	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.65	4.50	5.10	5.45	1.10
18	2.70	3.85	4.75	5.40	5.80	1.15
19	2.85	4.05	5.00	5.70	6.15	1.20
20	3.00	4.25	5.25	6.00	6.50	1.25
21	3.15	4.45	5.50	6.30	6.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.65	5.75	6.60	7.20	1.35
23	3.45	4.85	6.00	6.90	7.55	1.40
24	3.60	5.05	6.25	7.20	7.90	1.45
25	3.75	5.25	6.50	7.50	8.25	1.50
26	3.90	5.45	6.75	7.80	8.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.65	7.00	8.10	8.95	1.60
28	4.20	5.85	7.25	8.40	9.30	1.65
29	4.35	6.05	7.50	8.70	9.65	1.70
30	4.50	6.25	7.75	9.00	10.00	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Situation Wanted
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Sublease
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Welcome
14 Lost and Found	28 Other

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1 _____ 2 _____ 3 _____ 4 _____ 5 _____

6 _____ 7 _____ 8 _____ 9 _____ 10 _____

11 _____ 12 _____ 13 _____ 14 _____ 15 _____

16 _____ 17 _____ 18 _____ 19 _____ 20 _____

21 _____ 22 _____ 23 _____ 24 _____ 25 _____

26 _____ 27 _____ 28 _____ 29 _____ 30 _____

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS

egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Micro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

JOYCE'S HAIR THERAPY

Haircuts
HERS ..... $10.50
Includes Shampoo & Style
$7.50

539-TAME or 539-8601
404 Humboldt

JUDY, creative designer, brings you four years experience. She specializes in men's styling and as a perm artist, too. For introduction, JUDY is offering 50% off cut with style through Oct. 10th. Call JUDY for your personal appointment.

TINA'S Studio 32
FOR HAIR
776-8830 Candlewood

TACO TUESDAY

60¢ GIANT TACOS
all you want plus
$1 Margaritas
4-7 p.m.

LUNCH SPECIAL
2 Tacos & Salad Bar
only $2.99
$1 Margaritas

THE COTTON CLUB
418 Poyazz Manhattan

STRESS

Not Managed Adequately Will Often Be Transformed To Physical Illness

(50-80% of all illnesses are closely associated with and perhaps even caused by excessive and/or poorly handled stress.)

LEARN TO MANAGE YOUR STRESS
CALL 532-6550

Lafene Mental Health Center

PLYMOUTH CAREER SEARCH WORKSHOP

PRESENTED BY CAREERS

Everything You Need to Know About Getting A Job

- RESUME WRITING—
- INTERVIEW TECHNIQUES—
- DRESSING FOR SUCCESS—
- NEW CAREER OPPORTUNITIES—

ALL PARTICIPANTS WILL RECEIVE A FREE
CAREER SEARCH WORKBOOK, RESUME GUIDE, AND MUCH MORE!
DON'T MISS IT!

FREE AND OPEN TO EVERYONE

Thursday, October 8, 8:30 a.m.
10:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m., 3:30 p.m.
Kansas State Union Room 212

Family killed in shooting spree buried

By The Associated Press

MARSHFIELD, Mo. — Friends and relatives of seven family members killed during a teen-ager's shooting rampage clung to each other and wept as the family was buried Monday in a small country cemetery.

"If there's anything to be learned from all this, it's to learn to seek someone to talk to if we're in trouble, and to have the ears to hear when someone cries out," the Rev. Wilburn Steward, the minister at the church, said after a brief burial service at Timber Ridge Cemetery.

Lining the front of the First Baptist Church were the flower-draped caskets of Steve Buckner, 35, and his family — his wife Jan, 36; sons Kirk, 14, Dennis, 8, Timothy, 7, and Michael, 2 — and Steve Buckner's sister, Julie Schnick, 30.

Authorities believe 14-year-old Kirk Buckner went on a rampage with a .22-caliber Saturday Night Special before dawn Friday. Authorities have not determined a motive for the shootings, but neighbors said the boy may have been frustrated about his family's financial situation.

About 500 people attend services

About 500 people, including 34 pallbearers, attended the memorial service before following five hearses to the cemetery, located only a few miles from the Buckners' dairy farm.

Steward, a longtime friend of the family, told mourners during the church service that the incident shows how frail people can be.

"Everything man makes has a breaking point. In mankind, there's a point of breaking, too," the minister said. "Something in Kirk had reached that point, and he just snapped."

The Rev. Jerry Cooney, who was among four ministers at the church service, paid tribute to the family and said they had been involved in many community activities. He described Kirk as a youngster who loved to fish and hunt and enjoyed his activities in 4-H and Little League.

"This family was a very close group who thoroughly enjoyed one another. They shared many laughs and there will be a great void in the surviving family members," Cooney said.

Investigators said Kirk Buckner, a quiet boy who had just started his freshman year in high school, apparently shot his younger brothers in the head as they slept, shot his mother and father outside their small farmhouse and then drove to the farm of his aunt and uncle, Jim and Julie Schnick.

Julie Schnick was shot to death in her bed. Jim Schnick was wounded when he ran into the house from farm chores and confronted Kirk Buckner, who died of gunshot or stab wounds in the struggle with his uncle. Schnick was listed in good condition Monday at a Springfield hospital.

Steward said it was hard to understand why the tragedy happened.

"Be sure of this," Steward said at the service, "Kirk is loved by all his family and friends. If there's a weakness here, a failure here, it is on you and I as a society."

Steward urged those in attendance to watch their loved ones to see if they were in danger of losing control. He warned them to seek help if they felt themselves getting into dangerous situations.

"This is an example of when someone has been driven by life to the edge. When he reaches the edge, there is no hand to reach for," he said. "If you are about to take a fall, try to talk to someone and, people, try to be ready to listen."

The Rev. Bob Perryman said during the service he didn't know what to say to the surviving family members in the aftermath of the slayings.

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

"O.K. Which one of you morons installed this?"

Kedzie 103

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications. Deadline is noon the day before publication, noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
One day: $4.75 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-318 Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (11f)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken. 539-9469. (2-27)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

DOMESTIC AND imported cheeses at co-op prices. Available at People's Grocery Co-op, 811 Colorado. Open to everyone. Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. (24-27)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

AVAILABLE OCT. 26, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (71f)

ONE-BEDROOM, furnished. Close to campus. Available immediately. 776-8918 after 5:30 p.m. (26-30)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211f)

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

ClassAds

532-6555

ROOMMATE NEEDED: $125/month, own room, very nice. Call 539-5406. (23-27)

TWO-BEDROOM, 727 Leavenworth #2, available Sept. 30. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 537-3186. (23-29)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 CHEVY, 3/4 ton, 4 x 4 pickup, 350 engine, power steering, power brakes, air-conditioning, automatic transmission, dual fuel tanks and set up for stock trailer. 456-8472 after 5 p.m. (25-29)

FORD LTD 1977. Excellent condition, low mileage, runs great. $1,500 or best offer. Call Salah in 636 Moore or Sonny in 533. 532-2362 after 6:30 p.m. (25-29)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN THUNDREDS weekly$ in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

MAKE $4,600 monthly stuffing envelopes. For details, send self-addressed stamped envelope to Adeela, P.O. Box 2142, Stillwater, OK 74076. (18-27)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

LUNCHTIME WAITRESSES wanted. See Rusty at Kite's. Apply after 1 p.m. (24-26)

STUDENT RECEPTIONIST wanted to work Monday-Thursday mornings, 8 a.m. to noon. Contact speech department, 532-6875 or apply in person, 129 Nichols. (24-26)

FULL AND part-time retail help needed. Sports page—Town Center. Send resume to: Steve Webb, 224 Redbud Estates, Manhattan, KS 66502. (25-29)

FALSETTO'S PASTA house is seeking energetic people to fill head waiter, bus person and cook positions. Apply in person, 2304 Stagg Hill Road. (25-26)

HOURLY STUDENT office help, prefer work study freshman or sophomore. Immediate start date, 10 plus hours a week. Must be able to work summer 1988 and have good typing and telephone skills. Call Pam at International Trade Institute, 532-6799 for interview. (25-27)

HARDEE'S OF Aggieville is taking applications for delivery drivers, day or night time hours, full or part-time. Can earn five to six dollars per hour. (26-29)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable. Location near campus. No pets. 537-6559. (21f)

FOR RENT two-bedroom mobile home with space for four horses. 539-5778. (25-29)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

BY OWNER nice, clean, two-bedroom mobile home with or without furniture set up on large shady lot. 539-5778. (25-29)

LOST AND FOUND 14

FOUND VETERINARY medicine book on Sept. 24. Call after 6 p.m., 776-6096 to identify. (25-27)

LOST: REALISTIC tape recorder Wednesday, Sept. 23. Reward. Call 776-6741 after 7 p.m. (26-29)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS. Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

WATERSKI AND Windsurf this fall and next spring. Buy a wetsuit or drysuit on sale now from Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

USED SAILBOARDS from $325, demo sailboards, sails, wetsuits, etc. all on sale at Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

FOUR FLEETWOOD Mac tickets for sale. Great seats. Kemper Arena. Call 539-8100, ask for Joni. (25-26)

FLEER 1987 update sets now available. We buy—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records, Manhattan Coins and Collectables, 1130 Laramie. 539-1184. (25-29)

PENTAX PC35AF camera, auto focus and built-in flash. $80. Call 539-2912 evenings. (25-27)

WANTED TO buy—Two tickets to U2 concert in K.C. Please call Stacie, 539-8695. Price negotiable. (26-29)

TWO HANK Williams, Jr. tickets, one-half price, call 539-1029 after 9 p.m. (26)

McCAIN TICKETS Amsterdam Guitar Trio Oct. 3. Two orchestra seats, $12 for both. Call evenings, 537-0787. (26-28)

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 One Waugh
5 Son of Jacob
9 Four-poster
12 Half a South Pacific island?
13 Pearl Buck heroine
14 One—time
15 Orchestra platform
17 It might be hard to crack
18 Joan Crawford film
19 Pakistan's neighbor
21 Lhasa is its capital
24 Check end
25 Harlem rooms
26 Certain parties of the first part?
30 Inscribe
31 Seed coats
32 Totem pole

DOWN
1 Monastery head: abbr.
2 Mauna—
3 Sea bird
4 Frame-works
5 French novelist
6 Dash
7 Actor Heflin
8 Puts in writing
9 Models carry them
10 Needle case
11 Computer food?
16 Kind of test
20 Therese of Lisieux

Solution time: 26 mins.

LEAH TUM PALM
IRRITATE ERIE
DAMASCUS TENT
TAT DEISTS
OCCUR PART
TAOS DAMSELS
ORD SIRET OLE
DAMASKS SOUR
ASHA OTTER
TEETHE ODE
OAST DAMIETTA
ERNE UNENDING
SLED PEN SATE

21 Spinners
22 Nice notion
23 Narrow pennant
24 Dregs
26 War god
27 Ending for pop or gob
28 Word after tax or birth
29 Town, in South Africa
31 Good-natured
34 Annoy
35 Frustrated
37 In favor of
38 Gasp for air
39 Exchange premium
40 Give the cold shoulder
41 Egyptian skink
44 A red dye
45 Water, in Paris
46 Double curve
47 On pension: abbr.

CRYPTOQUIP

O P L L A U - P O G N D Y Y D N S ' J
Z A D U K G X D J S T B Y T J S Z A
O D S S A N X L S T B K L A D S
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: COULD BAKER'S CAKES
TURN OUT BETTER IN A HIGH-RISE BUILDING?

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals G

Bennett

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Bennett said having the governor and his administration more directly involved in running public education would bring more attention to education issues.

Byrne said an advantage of Bennett's proposal of gubernatorial appointment would be "to give the governor more direct capacity to engineer education in the state." However, throwing the issue of board appointments into the political arena would be a disadvantage, Byrne said.

"The final authority is with the people," Byrne said. "The schools are the people; they seem to like it (the system) the way it is."

Bennett also said he believes only elementary and secondary education should be administered by the Board of Education and only higher education should be administered by the state Board of Regents, with the state's 19 community colleges administered by some new board. The two-year colleges now fall under supervision of the Board of Education.

Another panelist, H. Edward Flentje, said the education governance issue is tied to state funding of education — whether more money should be pumped into public education when questions exist about whether the state system is run as efficiently as it can be.

Flentje, secretary of administration and Gov. Mike Hayden's chief policy adviser, said the issue of education finance dictates that the governor and the Legislature take another look in the 1988 session at the issue of who governs what aspects of the state's educational system.

The House passed an educational governance bill during the 1987 session and it rests in the Senate Education Committee heading into the 1988 session.

Other panelists at the Postsecondary Education Conference said if the state would increase admissions standards at the universities, students would come to them better prepared and education in the state in general would improve.

The regents currently are studying proposals for increasing standards at the University of Kansas, Kansas State University and The Wichita State University; at KU and K-State; and at KU only.

Currently, all graduates of Kansas high schools are eligible for admission to the six state universities and Kansas Technical Institute in Salina, regardless of standing in their graduating classes or test scores.

One part of the regents' study proposal would require students to complete a suggested preparatory curriculum with a 2.0 grade-point average on a 4.0 scale.

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL orientation for new members
at 7 p.m.
general meeting at 7:45 p.m.
WED., SEPT. 30 at UFM
For more info, call 539-3546

Elcock applies for budget director's job

By Cindie Baldwin
Collegian Reporter

Having filled in as acting budget director for three months, Douglas A. Elcock believes he has a "feel for what the campus departments want" and has the "background and knowledge over the other candidates" applying for the job.

Elcock spoke about his plans for the budget office and what the job entails during an open interview with nine people Monday in Union 206.

Elcock served as assistant budget director at K-State for four years under Tom Schellhardt. When Schellhardt was moved up to assistant to the vice-president of administration and finance, Elcock filled in for Schellhardt as acting budget director.

Because of this, Elcock thinks he is most qualified for the job.

"I have a lot of understanding of what the budget office does," Elcock said. "The office needs to be progressive. We must not take anything for granted and we must plan ahead, both in long-term and short-term planning."

The role of the director, Elcock said, is that of "an adviser and communicator."

"As an adviser, the director must advise the staff on the implementation of decisions and to make sure they are made correctly," he said.

If Elcock is hired for the position, he will continue as budget director.

If not, Elcock will resume his former position as assistant budget director.

NEED A NEW IMAGE? INTERVIEWING? CHANGING JOBS?

CAREER ENHANCEMENT SEMINAR FOR WOMEN IN TRANSITION

Learn to create a positive image
How to develop an interview wardrobe
How to accessorize (new tricks with scarves and jewelry)
New hair and makeup techniques
To sell yourself to the interviewer
What prospective employers look for when they interview

THURS., OCT. 1, 7-9 p.m.
Wareham Room—Cotton Club
418 Poyntz

WIN A COMPLETE GLAMOUR MAKEOVER!
REGISTRATION $3 at the door
Presentations by:
Fashions—Laurie
Hair—Jacquie
Makeovers—Consultants
Interviews—Rick Mann

Congratulations from Phi Alpha Theta

Stephen J. Atherton
Jennifer Bond
Debra Couture
Steven D. Floray
Michael Honeycutt
Lloyd W. Johnson
Katherine E. Miller
Anita Specht
and
Leigh Ann Wheeler

OPEN 24 HOURS

1445 ANDERSON

32 oz. Big Gulp fountain drink 69¢
(doesn't apply w/Super Big Gulp)

Frito Lay Grab Bag potato chips 59¢

Lakeshore chili cheese dog $1.29
Regular $2.47

Now Only $1.49

SHEAR DYNAMICS
CUSTOM HAIR DESIGN 776-9100

VISIT US AT OUR NEW LOCATION

15%
OFF
ALL PERMS
SEPT. 28-OCT. 3

1125 Laramie, ground floor, Laramie Plaza

WE DELIVER

5 p.m.- Midnight (M-S)
Noon - Midnight (Sun.)

Sub8.Stuff
Sandwich Shop

537-DELI

If you make that WRONG STEP!

Lafene Health Center
can help get you back on your feet.

PHYSICAL THERAPY

Helps sports injuries, low back pain, neck pain, postsurgical rehabilitation, and more.

Referral
from Physician

First 3 visits
FREE,
Then $5
Per Visit.
(1/4 the cost elsewhere in Manhattan.)

Robert Mortimer, P.T.

JAZZ UP YOUR OLD FAVORITE SPORT COAT.

We wouldn't mind if you wanted to buy a new sportcoat. But if you want to put a "new lease on life" on an old stand-by, try adding
• Pleated, cuffed trousers
• A new shirt in designer styles
• A Paisley Necktie or Bow Tie

We're fully stocked with new fall and winter merchandise. Add a little pizzazz to your wardrobe
NOW while the selection is still good!

We have Big & Tall sizes, too.
Locally Owned

BORCK
Brothers

1100 Westloop Place (913) 537-8436
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat. til 8:30 Thurs.

RECORD—TAPE SALE

Now In Progress!

CLASSICAL ROCK FOLK
JAZZ COUNTRY

Records start as low as $1.98!
Cassette tapes as low as $2.98!

Varney's
BOOK STORE
IN AGGIEVILLE

9-9
MON.-SAT.

12-5
SUN.

On the edge of campus, in the heart of Aggieville.

You Can't Pay More than $44.95!

Complete Eyeglasses

SINGLE VISION $24.95

BIFOCALS $34.95

Our only Extras: Cox Coating (scratch guard)-$10 and Photo Gray Extra (lenses that darken)-$10.

Payless Optical Outlet

1210 Moro, Manhattan
537-1574

M-F 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

W E E
W I L L I E
K-State Union
12 oz. Refillable

WATCH FOR

k-state union
food service

W I L D
W I L L I E
K-State Union
34 oz. Refillable

SL

Some Like It Hot

A wide variety of chili recipes where entered Saturday in the first Aggieville Chili Cook-off. See Page 11.

Weather

Sunny today, high 75 to 80. Winds northerly 5 to 15 mph. Clear tonight, low mid-40s. Sunny Thursday, high upper 70s to around 80.

Last year there was some doubt that Tim MacDonald would ever wear a K-State uniform again. See Page 11.

Wednesday
September 30, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 27

Kansas State Collegian

Senate, campus undecided over Bork

'No opinion' tops nomination poll

By Candice Leonard
Government Editor

While the Senate Judiciary Committee continues to examine the nomination of Robert Bork for U.S. Supreme Court justice, a poll of the campus revealed that almost half of the K-State community currently has no opinion on the nomination.

The undecided group comprised 49.5 percent of those polled. The respondents who had decided to support or oppose the nomination were nearly equally divided, with 21.7 percent supporting the nomination, and 28.8 percent saying they were opposed to Bork's nomination.

In a telephone survey conducted by the Collegian Sept. 24 and 25, participants were asked: "Do you support, oppose or have no opinion about the Bork nomination?"

Related stories/Page 5

The sample population was chosen randomly through a counting method from the 1986 student phone directory. Therefore, freshmen were excluded from the survey unless they have the phone listing of a former student. The 1987 student directory is not yet printed.

The poll surveyed 312 females and 233 males — resulting in a polling of 43 percent females and 57 percent males.

Paul Nelson, statistics professor, said the margin of error for the total survey population is 4.3 percent in 19 times out of 20.

Ann Pollock, secretary for the Speech and Hearing Center in the speech department, said she was undecided.

"I haven't been following it closely enough," she said. "I'm not really into politics."

Some respondents said certain issues were the basis for their opinion.

"He's really opposed to women being equal, and I really think women should be equal," said Colleen Dalton, freshman in speech pathology and audiology.

"I would probably support Bork because my views tend to be more conservative," said Peggy Aeschliman, graduate in journalism and mass communications. "For example, I support his anti-abortion views."

More females responded that they were undecided (53 percent) or opposed (32 percent) to the nomination than males who answered the poll in a similar manner.

The greater support for the nomination came from the males who were surveyed. While 30 percent of the men said they were supportive, only 15 percent of the women questioned said they would be in support of Bork.

When examining the figures for females and males separately, the survey's margin of error increases to roughly 6 percent, Nelson said.

Praise given to Bork for conduct

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Robert H. Bork was accused Tuesday of rewriting history to make himself "the hero of Watergate," while former Attorney General Elliot Richardson vigorously defended the Supreme Court nominee's conduct in the firing of the Watergate special prosecutor 14 years ago.

Richardson told the Senate Judiciary Committee, "I think the nation owes Robert Bork a substantial debt."

But members of the special prosecution team that investigated the Watergate scandal made it clear they felt otherwise.

Meanwhile, Sen. Alan Cranston, the Senate's second-ranking Democrat, said support for Bork's confirmation has slipped so much that "I think he's licked."

At the White House, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Bork himself has been meeting with senators individually as part of the continuing effort to win confirmation.

Fitzwater also said President Reagan intends to lobby senators, personally as well as on the telephone.

"We have four or five weeks before the vote; there is plenty of time," he said.

The spokesman said Reagan is not considering whom he might nominate if Bork is rejected and "gets angry at the very thought of even mentioning a replacement."

At the hearings, which are nearing an end in the same Senate room where the Watergate hearings were conducted, the Judiciary Committee heard once again differing versions of what occurred on Oct. 20, 1973, and in the following days.

On that Saturday night, in rapid succession, Richardson resigned rather than obey President Nixon's order to fire Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox, Richardson's top deputy was fired and finally Bork, the third-ranking Justice Department official at the time, carried out Nixon's command.

Bork testified two weeks ago that after Cox was gone Bork immediately tried to find a strong new prosecutor to replace him and make sure the investigation would proceed.

But Henry Ruth and George

Frampton, members of the special prosecution team, challenged Bork's account on Tuesday.

"I don't want to see history rewritten just to confirm a Supreme Court justice," Ruth testified.

Frampton said that, in the wake of Cox's firing, Bork was "a leaf floating on a hurricane" and was at the mercy of the Nixon White House in determining the outcome of the Watergate probe.

"By 1987 he's claiming to be the hero of Watergate," Frampton said.

Ruth and Frampton questioned whether Bork had the inclination or power to replace Cox with a strong successor who would pursue the truth. They said Leon Jaworski, Cox's successor, was named because

■ See BORK, Page 5

Lack of money delays remodeling of former post office location

By Brenda Badostain
Collegian Reporter

Lack of funding has delayed the remodeling of the area once occupied by the campus post office, said George Miller, vice president for administration and finance.

The area in Anderson Hall will eventually be used to expand the admissions office. However, that expansion won't occur anytime soon, Miller said, adding he has no projections for the cost of the project.

When the expansion is completed, it should improve traffic flow in the admissions area, he said.

"Part of the intention here, eventually, is to help reduce the congestion in that area (admissions)," he said. "It's like a maze — a lot of temporary structures, people crowded."

Miller said the admissions office doesn't give incoming students a particularly favorable impression.

"It's really pretty shabby; it's really the worst I've seen," he said. "Certainly it doesn't give a good first and lasting impression for the parents as well as the prospective students who come in to visit Kansas State."

Renovations will be a natural expansion of the admissions office, he said.

"There is already a door leading into that area (from admissions to the former post office area)," Miller said. "Years ago, apparently, it was closed off for some reason or another."

The campus post office was moved to Dykstra Hall in December 1986.

"We were very sensitive in the relocation of this (post office) to serving the various patron needs," Miller said.

Dykstra was chosen not only because space was available in the building, but also because it is more physically centralized to the campus than Anderson, said Fred Ferguson, former director of physical facilities.

"If you look at the campus as a whole, you see that there isn't a lot of the campus on the north side, but in Dykstra's case, it is by far more centrally located physically than Anderson," Ferguson said.

Miller said the Dykstra complex is convenient in terms of where most people are, "especially for the people who are in the residence halls."

At least one K-State student agrees.

"I like it because it's a lot closer (to the residence halls) and it's easier to find," said David Schaefer, fifth-year student in architecture.

Miller said almost all the normal services such as buying stamps and mailing packages can be done at the Union. The postal service has also installed a mail-drop box between Anderson and the Union.

"We now have a balance approach. We have something in Dykstra which is very close to residence halls (and) the Union basically has a full service operation," he said. "We think it turned out very well."

Some students do not agree that the Union's services are the answer.

"The last time I was in the Union to get a stamp, the machines were broken and I had to walk all the way

■ See OFFICE, Page 14

Sunlit drawing

Doug Huwer, freshman in architecture, finds enough sunlight coming through the trees on the north side of Anderson Hall Tuesday afternoon to work on a sketch for his drawing and visual perception class.

Staff/Gary Lytle

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Firm says Hallmark copied

KANSAS CITY, Kan. — Greeting card industry leader Hallmark Cards Inc. said in court Tuesday that it had copied cards made by a Colorado firm, but that it was not wrong to do so.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals heard oral arguments on a preliminary injunction obtained by Blue Mountain Arts of Boulder, Colo., prohibiting Hallmark from producing 83 cards in its Personal Touch line.

"We copied the idea. We imitated. We emulated," Robert J. Sisk, an attorney representing Hallmark told a three-judge panel of the appeals court. "Under the law, there's nothing wrong with copying an idea."

Blue Mountain produced a series of cards noted for their homemade appearance, featuring emotional verse, watercolor art and rough paper with a torn edge.

The Personal Touch line developed by Hallmark had many of the same elements.

Blue Mountain alleged the Personal Touch line violated trademark laws, which are used to protect the packaging or look of a product. Hallmark contended greeting cards are not protected by trademark laws, but by copyright laws reserving a particular verse or art work.

"They just went out and — lock, stock and barrel — went out and bought 200 (Blue Mountain) cards and copied them," said Harry G. Melkonian, the attorney for Blue Mountain.

Blue Mountain also said that Hallmark tried to get the company to sell out and copied the greeting cards when Blue Mountain refused. Hallmark denied that allegation.

CIA recruiting sparks protest

MADISON, Wis. — Three Central Intelligence Agency recruiters were sprayed with plastic foam as they left a University of Wisconsin campus building during a protest by about 25 people.

The protesters also removed items from the recruiters' briefcases and ripped up CIA literature while the recruiters were at lunch, said Sandra Arnn, director of the engineering college placement office.

The protesters, who were organized by the Progressive Student Network, occupied the engineering college's interviewing rooms for about a half-hour before leaving voluntarily Monday.

There were no arrests. But Lt. Phillip Dixon of the UW-Madison police and security department said charges could be brought against the protesters who sprayed the recruiters with the non-toxic plastic foam.

Arnn said the recruiters interviewed about 36 students.

The issue of CIA recruiting on campus has sparked a number of protests at UW-Madison during recent years.

Belgrade party leader resigns

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Belgrade Communist Party leader Dragisa Pavlovic formally resigned his post Tuesday after he was ousted from the Serbian Central Committee last week, the state news agency Tanjug said.

Pavlovic was at the center of a feud in the traditionally fractious Serbian party.

Party officials were angered by Pavlovic's statements during a meeting with news media editors Sept. 11. During the interview, he suggested that Serbian nationalism is increasingly apparent in party-controlled Belgrade newspapers, provoking sentiment against ethnic Albanians.

TV station to interview Hall

NORFOLK, Va. — Two southeastern Virginia television stations have rejected overtures from talent agents seeking a TV reporting job for Fawn Hall, the Iran-Contra affair secretary, but a third said it will interview her.

Hal Levenson, news director of NBC affiliate WAVY-TV in Portsmouth, said he plans to interview the former National Security Council secretary to gauge her commitment to journalism.

News directors at WAVY, CBS affiliate WTKR-TV in Norfolk and ABC affiliate WVEC-TV in Hampton received calls last week from the William Morris talent agency inquiring if they would hire Hall as a reporter. The area is close to Hall's parents' home in Annandale.

Stuart Zanger, news director at WVEC, said, "I told them I would call back if I was interested. I'm not interested. I'm not running a school of journalism here."

Carol Rueppel, WTKR news director, said she "told them if I had an interest I would call them back. If I call them back, I will say, 'Thanks, but no thanks.'"

'Space program needs goals'

TUCSON, Ariz. — Former astronaut Richard F. Gordon Jr., the command module pilot for the Apollo 12 moon mission, says America's space program needs new goals and leadership.

Gordon said the space program used to be very dynamic and was exciting, but now needs new goals, such as a Mars mission or a return to the moon.

"There's no purpose...goals have not been established," he said Monday.

Gordon, at Tucson to dedicate a new gymnasium at Green Fields Country Day School, was also the pilot of Gemini 11, an orbital rendezvous mission in 1966.

Gordon, now president of an engineering consulting firm in Glendale, Calif., also said there is a lack of strong support from the Reagan administration.

"A lack of goals and definition for a space station has put it in a bad light with Congress and the budgetary process," he said.

Taylor not anxious to marry

NEW YORK — Actress Elizabeth Taylor, who has been married seven times to six men, says she now enjoys being alone and is not anxious to get married again.

Despite rumors of blossoming romances with actor George Hamilton and publisher Malcolm Forbes, she says she's unhitched and happy since her last marriage, to Sen. John Warner, R-Va.

"This is the longest I've been single in my adult life," she said in an interview in the October issue of Vogue magazine.

"But I'm not looking to get married. That's a difference; I always needed a man in my life. Now, I enjoy time alone, the quiet moments."

"I'm learning to leave myself open and be receptive to new things. ...I'm sort of beginning to grow up," said Taylor, 55.

A star at age 12, she says she didn't have much of a childhood.

"I didn't see my first baseball game till last year. I never went to a senior prom. ...I wasn't a normal teen-ager. I wasn't doing the things my brother was doing or the girl across the street."

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

LAW SCHOOL ADMISSIONS TEST meets at 2:45 p.m. in Eisenhower 225 for all who will be taking the LSAT in October or during the current school year.

GOLDEN KEY HONOR SOCIETY deadline acceptance letters is Oct. 5.

AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS can be picked up in Anderson 122. They are due Oct. 5.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON carnival today from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in Justin lounge.

APPLICATIONS FOR STUDENT LECTURERS are available in Anderson 112. Deadline for submitting them has been extended to today.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS RETURNING TO SCHOOL meets at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

GYMNASTICS CLUB meets at 9 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Karen Greathouse at 10:30 a.m. in Justin 247. The topic is "Financial and Operational Parameters Affecting Selection of Food Service Systems."

CIVIL LIBERTIES ORGANIZATION meets at 7 p.m. in Union 213. Anyone interested is welcome to attend.

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL meets at 7:45 p.m. at University for Man.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF PROFESSIONAL ENGINEERS meets at 4:30 p.m. in Durland 173.

BLACK STUDENT UNION meets at 5:30 p.m. in Union 212 for a planning meeting.

THURSDAY

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

PI SIGMA EPSILON pledge meeting at 6 p.m. in Union 203.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF PROFESSIONAL ENGINEERS meets at 7:40 p.m. in Throckmorton 132 for a discussion on engineering ethics.

SAILING CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 207 for a manual review and a written test.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8 p.m. at ATO house.

GAY AND LESBIAN RESOURCE CENTER meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 205 for program scheduling.

COLLEGIATE 4-H meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 206.

PRE-VET CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Trotter 201 to take yearbook pictures.

SPORTS CLUB COUNCIL meets at 5 p.m. in Union Student Government Services office. Representatives from all clubs are invited to attend. Rugby, men's and women's soccer, parachute, sailing and rodeo are required to attend.

"Hair Unlimited"

The full service salon
•Super Hair Cutting •Chemical Processing
•Scientific Skin Care
1330 Westloop 537-4528

Green Thumb Bike Shop
1105 Waters St.

- Raleigh
- Centurion
- Diamond Back
- General
- G.T.

We service all brands
8-5:30 Mon.-Sat. 539-4751
12-5 Sun.
Just across from Alco

HUNAM EXPRESS

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0886

THE ICECREAM SOCIAL

Join us for our 6th Sale
Celebrating our 6th anniversary

- Buy one scoop of ice cream at regular price & get 2nd scoop for 6¢. Cone or dishes (excluding Edy's)
- Buy any size pop at regular price - get 2nd one (of equal value) for 6¢.
- Register for our gift certificates—cookies & popcorn gift canisters.

(Prices effective Thur. Fri. & Sat.)

537-7079 1439 Anderson

BUSHWACKERS
• THE FUNDRIKERY

TONIGHT
Introducing New Wine Coolers
Wine Coolers *1 Well Drinks *1 Draws 80'
KSU Showcase of Talent Auditions
Oct. 11 & 12
Call Scott Jones, 776-7852

Bar 539-9727 531 N. Manhattan Office 539-4321

Career Update

Woody's ladies

1225 Moro Aggieville Open M. S. 9:30 5:30 Thurs. til 8:30

Hoodoo gurus

Tickets on sale NOW,
at UPC office, 3rd floor Union—$10

Concert Sunday, October 4, 8 p.m.
Kansas Union Ballroom
University of Kansas

Presented by SUA SPECIAL EVENTS

Alpha Chi

AX2

K S U

P L A Y B O Y

Charlie's in Aggieville
(previously Mannequins)

Tonight at 8 p.m.

Special thanks to our sponsors

Charlie's	Campbell's Distributors
Body by Schliebe	Audio Enterprise
Holiday Inn	KQLA
Tropical Tan	Special Touch Photography
Kistner's Greenhouse	La Ride Limousine
Balloon Boutique	RC/7-Up

*Everyone's welcome—no IDs required!

Weber Hall renovation complete

By Shawn Dorsch
Collegian Reporter

All offices, classrooms and labs have been completely renovated in Weber Hall, said Melvin Hunt, professor of animal sciences and industry.

The $7.2 million renovation added 23,000 square feet of usable space to the hall, Hunt said.

He cited several reasons for the reconstruction of Weber.

"Enrollment (in the College of Agriculture) went up 400 or 500 percent since the building was built," he said. "Faculty in the College of Agriculture has increased four or five times."

"We needed teaching space designed for modern agriculture, and there was a major need for the expansion of research facilities," he added. Another reason for the Weber reconstruction was the meat lab was not in full compliance with United States Department of Agriculture meat inspection requirements, Hunt said.

"In the old structure, we were in danger of not passing federal inspection which would have put us before the state board, and if we didn't pass that we could have been shut down," he said.

"A major improvement was made in not only the quantity (of Weber), but also the quality," Hunt said.

Simpson & Son Construction, Wichita, was the contractor and Gould Evans Partnership, Lawrence, was the designing architect for the project.

"Weber arena was not a part of the renovation project; just Weber Hall," Hunt said.

Several entrances to the building have been made handicapped accessible, and a new entrance was added because of the east addition to Weber.

"In the old structure, we were in danger of not passing federal inspection which would have put us before the state board, and if we didn't pass that we could have been shut down. A major improvement was made in not only the quantity (of Weber), but also the quality."

—Melvin Hunt

Additional concrete and parking lot work still needs to be done, but the construction is not at that stage yet,

Hunt said, adding that the parking lot work will be a part of the K-State parking lot renovation plan.

The reconstruction of Weber started in January 1986. Hunt said faculty offices were moved out during spring break of 1986. Some of the faculty members are now sharing offices in Call Hall. Previously, their offices were in the basement of Moore Hall, but that space was needed for residents when the fall semester began.

Hunt says he thinks the faculty will move into the new offices in Weber sometime late this semester.

He and the other faculty members in the College of Agriculture are looking forward to their new offices, as are students.

"Nobody is more excited than the undergrads. They are anxious to get in and make use of the new facilities," he said.

Pet ordinance to include 'cat leash law'

By Erwin Seba
Collegian Reporter

City commissioners discussed the city's pet ordinance during their work session Tuesday afternoon.

Chuck Murphy, director of the Riley County-Manhattan Health Department, told the commission the proposed ordinance, which contains a "cat leash law," was different from existing laws in Manhattan.

"The major differences that are in the proposed ordinance are that cats would be vaccinated, licensed and required to remain on the property of the owner," Murphy said. "The Board of Health was not strongly unanimous on the last portion of that — that being a leash law for cats."

Murphy said the health board wrote the ordinance to unify animal regulations throughout Riley and Pottawatomie counties, both of which will use the new regional animal shelter supervised by the board.

Commissioner Richard B. Hayter was concerned that cats were not covered under current animal control ordinances.

"Right now the city has no control over cats," Hayter said.

Murphy explained the proposed law would make it easier for animal control officers to pick up stray cats.

"The argument in favor of the animal-at-large provision is that it is easier to enforce," Murphy said.

Even with the stray cat regulation, animal control officers would not chase after all stray cats, Murphy said.

"Technically, you are only going to get the cats that are being a nuisance that someone calls in a complaint on," he said.

Commissioner Kent Glasscock said he is not sure if the cat control law was necessary.

"I guess the only thing I'm wavering on is the cat leash ordinance. On the other hand you're not going to have cat vigilantes chasing around after all the stray cats," Glasscock said.

"I hear the commission trying to keep this thing as simple as possible while trying to get some control," said Mayor Gene Klinger.

Following the discussion, City Manager Mike Conduff said city staff would begin drafting a final form of the ordinance.

Senate votes to ban all Iranian imports

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted 98-0 Tuesday to ban all Iranian imports into the United States.

The United States has imported $500 million to $600 million worth of products annually from Iran in recent years, according to the proposal offered by Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Iranian oil sales to the United States are skyrocketing this year. The Commerce Department reported Monday that imports of oil and petroleum products from Iran went from $498 million in all of 1986 to $819 million through July of 1987.

The vote attached the amendment to a pending bill authorizing the Pentagon budget for the fiscal year which begins Thursday. The only senators not voting were two contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sens. Albert Gore of Tennessee and Paul Simon of Illinois.

The Iranian shipments amount to more than 11 percent of the total oil imported by the United States in July, and that provided Iran with about one-third of its total oil revenues.

ASK adopts plan for HERO program

By Karen Allen
Collegian Reporter

The Associated Students of Kansas at K-State launched the organization's Higher Education Resource Operation — or HERO — campaign Tuesday at an all-campus press conference. HERO is a campaign by state university students in Kansas for continued excellence in higher education.

ASK's legislative assembly adopted the HERO program as its platform for the year, said Jennifer Leeds, junior in political science and ASK campus director.

Leeds encouraged students to take an active part in the program this fall. She said ASK has organized campus forums, receptions for legislators and letter-writing drives to increase public awareness of the campaign issues.

The culmination of the semester's events will be a HERO day in mid-January, Leeds said, adding that ASK representatives from all universities will be in Topeka that day to lobby for the campaign.

"We can make a difference with the HERO campaign," Leeds said. "Actions we take now will improve the status of the University and the quality of life in Manhattan."

Those actions include supporting an endorsement of the Board of Regents "Margin of Excellence" program, she said.

Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement, commented on the three-year funding program which is designed to make Kansas institutions more competitive with their peers.

"It is time to take a look at funding if we wish to remain a comprehensive research institution," Krause said.

Take a Break
Play Putt Putt Golf!

Krystallos
"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

Coed Guest DJs
Tonight

Meet Tonight's
BAR DIRECTORS

$2 PITCHERS
at Back Bar

$1 SHOTS
KAMIKAZIS etc...

$1.25 SHOTS
WATERMELONS etc...

$1.50 SHOTS
B-52s etc...

KITE'S
BAR AND GRILL

FULL MEAL DEAL

$1.99

Single Burger
French Fries
Drink

5 oz. Sundae

Try Our Drive-Up Window
12th & Moro Aggieville 1015 N. 3rd
Manhattan

Reg U S Pat Off Am D O Corp
Copyright 1974 AM D O Corp

The Fishbowl

Home of the FISHBOWL Manhattan, KS.

The Fishbowl is Back!
Daily Drink Specials
Kitchen Opening Soon!

Stadium Pizza

FREE New York
Style Pizza
Wed., 5-11 p.m.
Drink Specials

Old Town Mall • 523 S. 17th St.
537-1484

Brother's
KSU
IN AGGIEVILLE USA

Coming tomorrow to a bar near you!

BLIND DATE

RIP & MO'S
AUTHENTIC
NEW YORK DELI

We're open for lunch and dinner, serving whole and half sandwiches, homemade potato chips, homemade cheesecake, pasta salads and MORE!

mon.-thurs. 11am-11pm
fri.&sat. 11am-1am
sun. 11am-10pm

Also visit the Back Door Bar (entrance at the rear of Rip and Mo's), open at 5pm nightly, and Saturday at noon.

RIP & MO'S
new york deli

710 N. Manhattan, Aggieville tel. 539-9706, OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

PEOPLE POWER IN DEMAND

if you:

- find other people interesting
- like variety and excitement in your work
- require a flexible schedule
- need some extra cash

THEN BECOME A PART OF A
NATIONALLY-RECOGNIZED TEAM.

Interested individuals contact:
Boyd Food Center (532-6484).
Derby Food Center (532-6483).
Kramer Food Center (532-6482).

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, September 30, 1987 ■ Page 4

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kedzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Bicyclists, motorists deserve equal respect

Two bicyclists have been sent to the hospital in the past three days due to car-bike accidents. This should be a warning to motorists: Pay attention.

While bicycle riders are supposed to obey the same rules of the road as automobile drivers, they might not. This does not, however, give motorists the right to hit a biker simply because they "didn't see the bicyclist" or "he wasn't obeying the rules anyway." As much care and attentiveness should be given to bicyclists as anybody else using or crossing Manhattan streets.

But, on the other hand, bicyclists should also remember to use the designated bike paths on campus.

People would look aghast and call for at least a traffic citation if someone in a car decided to drive from Holtz Hall to Waters Hall via the sidewalks. Why should bicycle riders ignore those rules? They shouldn't.

Similar to the way a car is heavier and can cause serious damage to a bike and injury to a rider, bicycles can cause serious injury should they run into pedestrians.

Manhattan has a great deal of pedestrian and bicycle traffic, and everyone should feel safe in taking whatever mode of transportation they choose. If everyone stays alert and obeys the rules intended for their safety, there should be fewer accidents and less of a chance for injury.

Football strike hurts game's loyal fans most

The NFL players' strike has spelled an end to football for now. Sure, the team owners are planning to still hold games, using what striking players call "scabs," but few will watch these games except for comic relief. By the way, if you have talent — any talent — the NFL needs you. No experience necessary.

While that may be stretching the situation just a little, there are many serious issues surrounding this non-serious subject. With the ill-fated USFL gone, the NFL has control again. It conspires to keep the salaries of the players down, a much easier task now that there is no competition. Players play for what the NFL pays or they don't play at all, because, like it or not, it's now the only game in town.

It's hard to feel sorry for these players who make millions of dollars a year, but they do have some legitimate concerns. They don't like the fact that they can't sell their services to the highest bidder — known in sports lingo as free agency.

The owners say they don't want to compete against each other for players, an interesting contradiction given their business and the capitalistic environment in which it survives.

But what about the poor fans? They are now forced to do other things on Sunday afternoons, not to mention Monday nights. So you boys better resolve your differences fast, or you might find that people have found better things to do on weekends, like discovering themselves.

Letters

Individual impact

Editor,

I was pleased to read Michael Nichols' article on Amnesty International. Too many people are unaware of the crimes committed against humanity every day. Those who are aware believe they can't do anything about it. How many times have you heard, "But I'm only one person. What can I do?"

You can help free a prisoner of conscience. You can help feed and care for that prisoner's family. You can help abolish torture. It doesn't take any heroic act or Herculean effort. It can take as little as a letter a month. Your letter along with millions of others create enough political pressure on governments to reduce prison sentences, to provide better, more humane treatment of prisoners, and in many cases to free political prisoners. It may seem unreal or overly optimistic that one letter a month from one individual could have such widespread effects, but it's true.

Amnesty International, through its letter writing efforts, petitions and special campaigns, has proven itself to be the most impartial, accurate and effective protector of the human condition. It's important that we realize that civil liberties and human rights must be fought for. Although guaranteed here in the United States, violations of civil and human rights are brought before courts daily. And in other countries where there are not these constraints on the government, human rights are even more endangered.

So join Amnesty. Or at least make it your business to know what's going on in the world. You may be surprised.

Mary Hale
sophomore in history

Players slighted

Editor,

Re: Pat McGranahan's scathing condemnation of studious football players.

While being sympathetic to Pat's suffering, I do not think his letter is deserved. It conjures up all sorts of stereotypes of athletes that just aren't always true.

First realize that not all football players are required to spend time in the library. Only freshmen, transfers and players having a bit of difficulty in their studies must "do time" in Farrell. If there is a problem being caused, be sure that it isn't representative of the entire team. I am confident that the players I know have never accosted any women. Come now, Pat. That's quite a weighty allegation.

Second, the noise problem (which I admit does exist) is not caused exclusively by football guys. Dorm residents, frat men and other campus factions are equally deserving of Pat's wrath.

Finally, if the noise is such a problem for Pat, why doesn't he ask the "offending parties" to hush up? Granted, some players cut an imposing figure, but they are human. Ask and ye shall receive! If all else fails, he could speak to a library official rather than aggravating some rather large men. Surely he isn't that frightened. (But maybe he should be....)

Lyle Tuck
sophomore in secondary education

Financing education

College plan needs second look

In the midst of what promises to become a knock-down, drag-out battle for the limited funds of this state, yet another contender has entered the ring. In a recent letter to the Holton Recorder (my hometown newspaper), and presumably other papers across the state, Paul D. Adams, a member of the State Board of Education, outlines the board's proposal to the legislature calling for an increase in the level of state funding of community colleges from 25 percent to 40 percent of their costs. He argues that this will result in a decreased financial burden on the counties.

When the concept of the community college was first conceived, it was envisioned as a local institution, supported by and serving the county or community in which it was located. Residents of the area would be able to receive an inexpensive post-secondary education, and the institution could provide certain services for that community.

Adams states in his letter that the mission of the community college has changed significantly. He says they are no longer "serving a limited community as they began." Unfortunately, this appears to be true. Community colleges are no longer "community" colleges. Adams says that "during the past four decades, these institutions have grown significantly."

While the institutions may see this as progress, the communities they were created to serve are getting left out in the proverbial cold. The institutions want to emphasize that they have assumed many roles of statewide significance. But is this loss of original mission really something to be bragged about?

If the legislature were to concede that the

Commentary

DOUG FOLK
Collegian Columnist

role and mission of today's community college warranted increased state support, a comprehensive long-term plan including improvement, consolidation and elimination of programs and entire institutions would be a must. The system as it stands today is in dire need of coordination among the community colleges themselves and with the state universities.

Geographically, the community college system is an unjustifiable mess. The locations of these institutions seems to have resulted from politics, tradition and the direction of the wind. Pull out a Kansas map sometime and look at the locations of community colleges Allen County (in Iola), Neosho County (in Chanute), Independence, Labette (in Parsons), Coffeyville and Fort Scott. Almost a third (six of 19) of the Kansas community colleges are located in this small section of southeast Kansas. And Butler County (in El Dorado) and Cowley County (in Arkansas City) aren't too far away.

The quality and type of programs offered by community colleges are other areas in need of work. Most community colleges in Kansas apparently offer a high level of academic instruction. But there are one or two that just aren't getting the job done. For example, students attending these institutions remark how much easier classes are there than in high school. Then, these same students transfer to a state university, find themselves totally unprepared for the classwork and flunk out.

Another situation that frequently arises is the student wishing to transfer to a state university who ends up losing a large amount of credits, simply because the programs of the community college differed from the requirements of the university. Although not entirely the fault of the community college, this problem would need to be addressed in a state-coordinated system.

When the people of Kansas judge the merits of this proposal, they need to consider the possibility of decreased community identification with the colleges, and what impacts this will have on the community. They must also think hard about where the money is really coming from.

It sounds nice to say that the money will be coming from the state and not us, but in reality the funds will either have to be drawn from other areas of the state budget — probably from other areas of the education budget — or they will have to come from increased revenues, i.e. taxes. If the people do decide to support this shift, they need to be sure that it is accompanied by a responsible coordinating plan, and that politics, influence or status quo don't interfere with an effective system of statewide education.

Biden in 1998

Students aren't totally helpless

You are standing in a line that stretches from the basement of Farrell Library to the second floor stairwell. Your completed schedule is in your hand — each class containing five of your closest and most intelligent friends, and no courses before 10:30 a.m. After triumphantly reaching the enrollment center at some time during the day, the computer-terminal person regretfully informs you all sections of Introduction to Underwater Basket Weaving — the only class you need to graduate — are closed. Why? Well, there are only two sections offered next semester, although twelve were offered previously. You know, budget cuts.

How often have members of the student population been confronted with this brick wall? Those students in journalism and mass communications, for example, believe their degrees are in jeopardy as their department lost its accreditation this summer. The K-State Union may be forced to raise its prices more as a result of the Institutional Support Fee, and Farrell Library is reputed to be one of the worst in the Big Eight.

These are not all the problems associated with budget cuts, but I am certain you get the idea. Most students and faculty turn to the administration in their frantic search for a scapegoat. Bureaucratic red tape and office

Commentary

JENNIFER LEEDS
Guest Columnist

politics, however, are only a small part of a much larger problem in Kansas higher education.

The Kansas Legislature has not made a commitment to the state's university system, in particular the Regent's Institutions (KSU, KU, PSU, ESU, FHSU and WSU). Legislators in Topeka do not believe students are a significant constituency; that is, students do not care enough to vote a legislator out of office for his views on funding state universities. So next time you are sitting around getting incensed because you have an 8:05 class and will be graduating a year later than you anticipated, don't sigh and say, "I wish those student government people would do something about this." Students should ensure they will receive a quality education, one with well-funded programs and services.

Now you are thinking the only way K-State will receive any substantial funding is if a graduate invents something on a par with perforated paper and makes a million dollars. That individual then decides he or she was inspired by the Kansas State University environment and leaves all the wealth to our esteemed institution of higher learning.

Since the chance of all the above transpiring is slim, it is the responsibility of the University community to increase state funding for higher education.

This semester, a group of concerned students, faculty, alumni and administration have organized to form HERO — The Higher Education Rescue Operation. We are planning events in the next few months designed to make legislators in Topeka more aware of the problems in the state university system. This effort is being coordinated at Regent's Institutions statewide, and you, yes you, can be a part of this huge campaign. Attend the events planned for this semester, write a letter to your state legislator or even make a trip to Topeka with the HERO delegation.

Jennifer Leeds is ASK campus director for K-State.

Manhattan Right to Life supports Court nominee

By Candice Leonard
Government Editor

If the nomination of Robert Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court is not approved by the Senate, Billye Martin believes "a very bad precedent" would be set. Martin is the founder of the Manhattan Right to Life organization.

"He might or might not do anything that makes a difference to our group," Martin said. "But that should not be the reason for or against his appointment."

Martin said the approval process should not place so much emphasis on the politics surrounding the nomination, but rather should be based solely on Bork's qualifications as a judicial officer.

"The Senate should only deny (the appointment) if there's not a qualified choice," she said. "It should not be because of his personal or political views."

The Right to Life group in Manhattan is supporting Bork's nomination, Martin said, because it thinks Bork will effectively balance the Supreme Court.

"We're for him because we think the Court has leaned dramatically in a liberal direction," Martin said. "It has operated on an anti-family viewpoint, and we think Bork will help balance the scales."

Martin pointed out she did not have high hopes for an overturned ruling by the Court on the Roe vs. Wade decision, the 1973 ruling that legalized abortion.

"We think it's unconstitutional, and he probably does too," she said. "We think it will be turned back to the state legislatures." Martin said this would allow each state to individually decide on the abortion-on-demand law.

Martin said "the other side" is portraying Bork as a radical, yet she does not think his record shows evidence of that.

"I think he's moderate," Martin said. "It's a very good appointment. Our president is intelligent enough to know that the appointment of some ultra-conservative wouldn't be approved."

Martin criticized the recent efforts to use the media as a political tool, and said she thought the issue was "being blown way out of proportion."

"There's been a lot of media hype about his discrimination against women," Martin said. "But, I haven't seen any evidence of that."

To show their support of Bork, members of Martin's group were part of the demonstration in front of McCain Auditorium Sept. 8 for Sen. Nancy Kassebaum's, R-Kan., Landon Lecture three weeks ago.

"We always turn out whenever Nancy Kassebaum is in town because she has not been supportive of her president or her party's stance on the life issue," Martin said. "We want her to support more pro-family legislation."

Because Kassebaum has indicated her support of the Bork nomination, the pro-life group wanted to be at the lecture to encourage her to maintain that stance, Martin said.

"We wanted her to know we're pleased," she said, adding that the Right to Life group saw it as a good sign when the National Organization for Women also picketed.

"Kassebaum is probably still pro-choice," Martin said. "If she is, then that says something if she's still willing to approve Bork. What do they really have to protest?"

NOW opposes Bork

'U.S. could digress 20 years'

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

The slowing, stagnant movement of women's rights could continue for the next 15-20 years if Robert Bork is confirmed as a justice to the U.S. Supreme Court, said Phyllis Wisneski, president of the local chapter of the National Organization for Women.

"There has been a slowing of women's, gays' and minorities' rights over the last six years since Reagan came into office," said Wisneski. "We'll continue to see this if Bork is elected to the Supreme Court."

NOW opposes Bork's nomination because "he has clearly demonstrated he has conservative viewpoints," Wisneski said, and he will quickly decide an issue if his viewpoint would be served.

"He uses judicial restraint when it serves his viewpoint," she said. "He said that you should take away restraints on businesses because it interferes with private domain and private enterprise, but yet he doesn't feel it is 'private domain' when discussing contraceptives."

Wisneski said if Bork is confirmed to the Supreme Court, there is "a great possibility" of abortion becoming illegal, and affirmative action moving backward.

"I see us going backward about 20 years, and we'll have to fight even harder for what we've lost," she said.

"He said that the original intention of ERA (Equal Rights Amendment) wasn't that the government didn't have the right to discriminate, but that the court didn't have the right to establish legal precedent in private domain," she said. "Basically, he's giving the public the right to discriminate and, given the choice, they will."

Wisneski said that when restrictions and limitations are put on people, the whole society feels the effects.

"We may not see much change in Kansas, because it's pretty conservative out here," Wisneski said. "But you're going to see a lot of changes in some of the other areas of the country."

NOW conducted a demonstration outside McCain Auditorium Sept. 8, when Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., gave her Landon Lecture. The group wanted to persuade the Kansas senator to vote against Bork, Wisneski said.

In responding to a question about the nomination, however, Kassebaum indicated she would vote to approve Bork as a justice to the Supreme Court at this point.

"Well, I guess the demonstration didn't serve a lot with Kassebaum, but I think it raised a lot of awareness on campus," Wisneski said. "I had people asking me, 'Who's Bork?'"

The biggest problem concerning Bork's nomination, according to Wisneski, is the general lack of awareness about the issue.

"People don't know what's going on. People don't understand until it hurts them personally," she said. "College-age women have grown up having equal rights and they don't realize what they can lose."

Wisneski said Bork's election is pending on the media's treatment of the issue, because she believes the media can be used to influence people's decisions.

"The media needs to give information to the public so that people can make informed decisions, not just based on hearsay," she said.

Bork

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

the Nixon administration bowed to "a firestorm" of public opinion and congressional pressure.

Elsewhere at the Capitol, Cranston said Bork's support is slipping steadily.

"According to my latest head count, 49 senators are likely to vote against Bork, and 40 are likely to vote for him, leaving 11 unpredictable," said Cranston, D-Calif. He said that represented a loss of five favorable votes since a headcount before Bork began testifying.

Also Tuesday, Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., said the Judiciary Committee would be ducking its responsibility if it sent Bork's nomination to the full Senate without a recommendation to confirm or reject him.

"I want to vote on it, vote up or down. Every senator knows he will have a large segment of the state opposed to the way he votes," said Leahy, a committee member.

Leahy told reporters he disagrees with a suggestion by Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., that the committee should conclude its deliberations on Bork without taking a position on whether he should be approved.

Byrd, also a committee member, said he wants to withhold judgment on Bork until the nomination fight reaches the Senate floor.

Besides Byrd, there are three other committee members who say they are undecided — Sens. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Arlen Specter, R-Pa.

The committee expects to conclude its hearings Wednesday.

SAFEWAY
222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson
539-3226 776-5202
New Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week
Specials Sept. 30-Oct. 6
Cragmont Pop ..... 49¢
2 liter, assorted flavors
Chub Pack Ground Beef..... 99¢/lb.
5 lb. packages
Large Eggs ..... 99¢
1½ dozen
Coors Beer ..... $2.49
6/12 oz. cans, regular or light
Check cashing with student I.D.

Petland
It's Coming Oct. 26—Manhattan Town Center
snip n' clip MIDWEST'S FAVORITE HAIRCUTTERS HAIRCUT SHOPS®
WORLD'S GREATEST HAIRCUT $6
OSCAR WINNING CUTS, STYLES, PERMS
Under 12 KIDS KUT $5
OPEN NIGHTS & SUNDAYS. JUST DROP IN!
36 LOCATIONS—VILLAGE PLAZA—MANHATTAN 539-4043

WE DELIVER
5 p.m.- Midnight (M-S)
Noon - Midnight (Sun.)
Sub & Stuff
Sandwich Shop
537-DELI

Falsetto's PIZZA
539-3830
For the Best "Homemade" Pizza in town with the Best "Hometown" Price
Two Delicious Homemade Pizzas
$5.99
Free Delivery

MENU
Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
TWO 10"		TWO 14"
Cheese .....	5.99		8.99
1 Item .....	6.94		10.39
2 Items .....	7.89		11.79
3 Items .....	8.84		13.19
4 Items .....	9.79		14.59
Deluxe .....	9.79		14.59
Veggie .....	9.79		14.59
Supreme .....	10.74		15.99
Each Additional Item .....	.95		1.40

Prices do not include tax
1127 Moro • In Aggieville
We accept checks

ALCO
DISCOUNT STORE
Prices Good Wed., Sept. 30- Sunday, Oct. 4
PLANTS PLANTS PLANTS!
TRUCKLOAD PLANT SALE
9.99 REG. TO 19.97
10" FLOOR PLANTS
3.99 REG. TO 6.97
6" HOUSE PLANTS
53¢ REG. 77¢
5.99 REG. 9.97
8" HANGING BASKETS
99¢ REG. 1.97
4" HOUSE PLANTS
VITA HUME POTTING SOIL
4 lb. bag. ready to use.

ANNIVERSARY SALE
Sale starts Oct. 1st
■ Acid, Stone, Overdyed
Denim Selected Styles ..... 25% Off
■ Turtle-necks ..... 2 for 9.99
■ Corduroy Trousers ..... 22.99
■ Stonewashed Dresses ..... 19.99-29.99
■ Stonewashed Pants & Skirts ..... 19.99-29.99
■ Cotton Sweaters ..... 25% Off
■ Genesis & Mexx (Selected Groups) ..... 25% Off
■ Jr. Fall Coats & Jackets ... 25% Off
■ Large selection of fall merchandise . 50% Off
Mon.-Sat. 10-6
Thurs. 10-8:30
Sun. 1-5
1215 Moro
Aggieville
539-4511
carousel.

Ambassadors find official job duties varied, yet hectic

By Paula Selby
Collegian Reporter

During the past year, Jada Allerheilgen, senior in journalism and mass communications, and Mark Buyle, senior in marketing, have done more than the average K-State student.

Buyle and Allerheilgen have served as K-State's Ambassadors. They will be giving up their positions to newly elected ambassadors at K-State's Homecoming Oct. 17.

"Our official title is a representative of the student body to both alumni and prospective students," Buyle said. "There are a lot of alumni gatherings that are held on campus, throughout the state and throughout the nation. It's just our responsibility to go and keep the alumni informed of what's happening (at the University) and to give them the student's perspective of what's happening. They want to know what the students are doing."

"For the prospective students, we just go out and tell them what a great place K-State is," he said. The ambassadors said their responsibilities varied throughout the year.

"We worked with the Alumni Association and New Student programs," Allerheilgen said. "We helped out on a lot of University functions toward the last part of fall."

The ambassadors have attended even more events this year than usual due to President Jon Wefald's emphasis on recruitment, they said. They worked more with admissions representatives because additional funds were available this year.

"I think that's the biggest thing we did — we went out and actually recruited students because more opportunity was there," Buyle said.

The ambassadors pointed out the new importance the Alumni Association has taken on in working with ambassadors.

"I think this year there were a lot more alumni gatherings," Buyle said. "It seems like Amy Button Renz, Lew Jene Schneider and the Alumni Association have been trying to get people around the state excited, so we had a lot more events to go to."

"In a lot of the alumni events now, they are bringing in prospective students also," Allerheilgen said.

This allows the students an inside view of K-State, she said. Not only can the students meet people at K-State, but the alumni can show them the kind of pride they have in the University they attended.

Buyle said anyone can apply to be an ambassador, provided they have attended K-State for one year.

He said the ambassador selection committee looks for students who know a lot about the University; thus, ambassadors are usually juniors or seniors.

Buyle and Allerheilgen share one characteristic setting them apart from other ambassadors in the past — they are both from Manhattan.

"It's good to say 'We weren't set on coming to K-State.' We had our doubts just like any other student," Allerheilgen said.

"I also think it helped a lot that we were able to give the pros and cons (to prospective students) of living at home or living in a dorm," she said.

Buyle and Allerheilgen said they met a wide cross-section of students through their trips around the state and the open houses the University hosts.

"There are so many people coming from small towns and large towns," Allerheilgen said. "You have (to be able) to adapt to their needs, interests and what they need from a University."

Both ambassadors said they have enjoyed and learned from their experiences during the last year.

"Overall it's very interesting," Allerheilgen said. "I would do it again in a second. I loved getting out, meeting people and having the chance to help people."

Soviet leader Gorbachev returns to public sight following absence

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — After seven weeks out of public view and with the Soviet capital buzzing about his long absence, Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev resurfaced Tuesday for a Kremlin meeting with a French delegation.

The 56-year-old Communist Party chief was last seen in public Aug. 7, when he received a group of American teachers of Russian language in Moscow. His whereabouts was a main topic of conversation among foreigners and their Soviet contacts.

His prolonged absence prompted reports by some foreign newspapers that either he or his wife, Raisa, were ailing. Soviet officials repeatedly said Gorbachev was on vacation.

Gorbachev met Tuesday morning with a group of 370 French politicians, clergymen, cultural figures and other members of the "Initiative 87" visit to Moscow.

French television, which had a cameraman and correspondent present during a photo session, showed Gorbachev smiling and gesturing as he listened to a speech by the delegation leader, former Socialist Premier Pierre Mauroy.

Mauroy told The Associated Press after the two-hour meeting that Gorbachev seemed "in excellent health and in good form."

He said the Soviet leader remarked that he had been working on a book during his monthlong vacation.

Reporters at the picture-taking said Gorbachev was apparently referring to a book scheduled to be published simultaneously this fall in the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain.

Harper & Row, the U.S. publishing house, announced last week that it will print Gorbachev's book, titled "Perestroika: Our Hopes For Our Country And The World."

Perestroika is the Russian word for restructuring, and has more widely been used to describe the changes that have occurred in the Soviet Union since Gorbachev came to power in March 1985.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Boris Pyadyshev told reporters at a regular news briefing that reports Gorbachev had been ill were "false and nonsense, and have absolutely no grounds."

However, the long absence was uncharacteristic of Gorbachev, who has been in the public eye regularly since becoming party general secretary.

His disappearance became the talk of Moscow, which had seen Gorbachev's three predecessors — Leonid I. Brezhnev, Yuri V. Andropov and Konstantin U. Chernenko — vanish from view and then die.

Last week, the West German newspaper Bild reported without attribution that Gorbachev had been stricken by food poisoning in what might have been an assassination attempt.

The Swedish newspaper Express-en said Sunday that Raisa Gorbachev had been seriously ill with complications following an appendectomy.

Tuesday editions of the Spanish newspaper El Pais quoted unidentified Soviet diplomatic sources as saying Gorbachev suffered two heart attacks, one in August and the other in September.

The Spanish daily also quoted Alexander Medvedev, the press attaché at the Soviet Embassy in Madrid, as saying Gorbachev's lack of public activity was due to a change in the handling of his schedule.

"Now he will only make public appearances when he has to make a statement or for some serious business," Medvedev was quoted as saying.

Pyadyshev told reporters in Moscow that Gorbachev had been on vacation from Aug. 24 to Sept. 24.

When asked about Raisa Gorbachev's health, Pyadyshev said: "I want to assure you that the whole Gorbachev family feels just fine."

Bush tours Nazi camps of 'horrible past'

By The Associated Press

OSWIECIM, Poland — A somber Vice President George Bush on Tuesday toured Nazi concentration camps where 4 million people died, and expressed the hope that the children of the future "be spared the agony of this horrible past."

Both the vice president and his wife, Barbara, were visibly moved as their Polish guide, who was imprisoned at the Auschwitz camp for five years, explained how the Nazis systematically and sadistically gassed or shot their victims.

Walking together under threatening skies, the Bushes saw the small, dark cells where prisoners were left to die standing up, the gas chambers where millions of men and women were killed and the "Wall of Death" where victims were shot through the head.

"They're big on crematoriums, there's one over here, one over there," Bush said grimly as he walked past the crumbling ruins of the building where the Nazis burned their victims' bodies.

Bush, completing a four-day visit to Poland, placed a floral wreath at a stone memorial in nearby Birkenau. "Never again. The American people," said a white ribbon attached to the wreath.

Signing a guest book, Bush quoted a saying, "In remembrance lies the secret of redemption."

He added, "May the children of the future be spared the agony of this horrible past."

During his stay in Poland, the vice president met with government officials, church leaders and leaders of the outlawed Solidarity union movement.

Have story
or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

FAJITAS

Heard the talk? Fajitas have come to PINATA, and are they ever worth the wait! Chunks of marinated steak, or chicken, with fresh onion slices served sizzling on a hot skillet. Comes with a wide array of toppings for your choosing: guacamole, shredded lettuce, sour cream, salsa, chopped tomatoes & fresh grated cheese. A serving of rice, refried beans, & tortillas complete your meal. Don't miss out, try our Fajitas today!

1219 Bluemont
(913) 539-3166

Open Daily
11 a.m.

The Greek Playboy will be chosen tonight at 8 p.m. at Charlie's Party Dome

(previously Mannequins above Brother's)

COME JOIN THE FUN!
Proceeds to Benefit Cystic Fibrosis

Edelaine's
421 Poyntz
776-4498

- Wedding Gowns
- Linen Rental
- After Five Wear
- Dyable Shoes
- Gloves or Handbags
- Rhinestone Jewelry

10-6 M-F
10-6 Sat., 7-5 Sun.

LAFEMME
(GYN/Family Planning)
CLINIC:

Available Services

- * Birth Control
- * Information & Prescriptions
- * Pregnancy Counseling & Referrals
- * Pregnancy Testing
- * Routine Gynecological Exams
- * Self Breast Exam Instruction
- * Sexuality Information
- * Sexually Transmitted Disease Information

LAFENE
HEALTH CENTER
"Your Medical Facility"
532-6554

McCain International
87-88

AMSTERDAM GUITAR TRIO

"One of the finest guitar ensembles in the world." —Gramophone

Saturday, October 3
8:00 p.m.
McCain Auditorium

General Public: $12
Students/Seniors: $8

Box Office open 12 noon to 5 p.m.
Monday-Friday and from 3 p.m. on Saturday, October 3
Call 532-6428 to charge tickets to MasterCard or VISA.

This program is presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

K

RECORD—TAPE SALE

Now In Progress!

CLASSICAL ROCK FOLK
JAZZ COUNTRY

Records start as low as $1.98!
Cassette tapes as low as $2.98!

9-9
MON.-SAT.

12-5
SUN.

On the edge of campus, in the heart of Aggieville.

OPENING CONCERT
KANSAS STATE ORCHESTRA
Adrian Bryttan
Conductor and Violin Soloist

Thursday, Oct. 1, 8 p.m.
McCain Auditorium

FREE
ADMISSION

Food Wednesday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, September 30, 1987 ■ Page 7

Chili cooks dish it up hotter than ever

Perhaps the screaming fire engine that rushed past Aggieville that morning should have warned judges what they were getting themselves into that afternoon, but somehow they missed their cue.

They approached the four tables with the 15 chili entries placed in their respective categories: competition, living groups, homestyle and speciality. Pulling their sombreros a little lower on their head, they began the task at hand.

Several pitchers of ice water later, the judging at the first Aggieville Chili Cook-off was complete.

"You don't want to make it too hot in a competition, because then the judges can't taste the chili," said entrant Tom Wheatley, Manhattan.

But, that's not to say that there weren't plenty of peppers to be found in Aggieville last Saturday.

"Peppers, lots of peppers. Every imaginable kind of pepper," said Mark Smith, sophomore in horticulture, of the ingredients in his chili.

But other than the full-range of spices and seasonings, each of the 15 cooks had that little something to make their's a prize winner.

"Put in anything that burns," said Carrie Garcia, senior in political science. "But, I do have a rot gut."

"A molcahett (mexican grinder)," she said. "It's essential so that you can smash the peppers, onions and garlic. When they're smashed it releases the flavor more than if they were just cut up."

"I'm using just a little bit of chocolate and peanut butter in mine," said

Debra Hubbard, cook for the Alpha Chi Omega fraternity. "You'll find that Mexicans put chocolate in a lot of their sauces."

Other groups were less scientific in their approach to chili cooking.

"Just give it a lot of lovin'," said the five alumni from Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

"The guys at work (the Manhattan fire station) like to sweat. They like it hot," said Ewing Evans, Manhattan.

A variety of meats were used by competitors. Some used chicken, others tried hand-cut steak and pork. "We've marinated our meat in catalina dressing," said Mike Walker, chef for the University Inn.

"Our meat is also special," Smith said. "I sent a few friends to Lawrence last night to get what they thought was prime Jay Bird. Well, to say the least it was gristly. But, we're going to make do."

Quality lean meat will improve the chili's flavor, said Bud Coxs, consulting chef from Austin, Texas, to the Lone Star Cafe.

"The better the grade of meat, the less cooking time it takes," he said.

"My secret ingredient? If I told you, it wouldn't be secret," Evans said. "But, let's just say that it's the meat I'm using that's special."

The judges must have agreed since Evans won first place in the homestyle category.

"Boy do I feel good," he shouted to the crowd as he strutted to get his plaque.

And he had every reason to. All 15 of the entrants did.

Starting as early as 8 a.m., the cooks prepared and cooked their entries on-site. The final products were judged at 3 p.m.

Chefs often stopped to explain to spectators why their chili was different from what is many times considered chili.

"Chili doesn't have beans in it. At least, what the Mexicans consider chili doesn't. We wouldn't consider that chili though," said Pat Bell, Manhattan.

For that reason, chili prepared in the competition category was void of beans or spaghetti.

The contest's official cooking rules define competition chili according to the International Chili Society rules. "Any kind of meat or combination of meats cooked with chili peppers, various other spices, and other ingredients with the exception of items such as beans or spaghetti, which are strictly forbidden," it states.

"Our meat is also special. I sent a few friends to Lawrence last night to get what they thought was prime Jay Bird. Well, to say the least it was gristly. But, we're going to make do."

—Mark Smith

The homestyle category allows beans, but specialty chili is cooked with starches other than beans. Entries in the living group competition are fraternities, residence halls and sororities cooking in any of the three categories.

All of the chefs agreed that the first requirement to create good chili is patience.

"The longer it cooks the better it tastes," Hubbard said. "But, be sure to have a lot of homegrown ingredients also."

A majority of the chefs suggested that cooks pass the time with friends drinking and having fun.

"The more beer you drink the better it tastes," said Bell.

"Cooking chili is a serious business," Coxs said. "You should always go back and taste your chili and make sure it's coming along how you want it."

First-time cooks should be sure not to over-season their chili, he said.

While some recipes were handed down from Indian scouts on the Oklahoma Territory, others had been obtained from sisters the day before the competition.

"Well, we've never tried this recipe before," said Walker.

But despite everything, cooking chili is a simple matter of finesse.

Stories by Janet Swanson
Photos by Chris Assaf

Crowd creates 'hot' mood

A pepper eating contest, spirit and apron awards, and children swinging sticks at pinatas set the scene for the First Aggieville Chili Cook-off.

Participants in the pepper eating contest said that bragging rights were what they were after, but the $25 provided an incentive.

Seven hot bannana peppers and one minute later, Scott Howard, Manhattan, had clinched those rights and the money.

After a short beauty pageant, Ewing Evans, Manhattan, was crowned Mr. Potent Chili Pepper and Violet Garcia, Manhattan, was named Ms. Chili pepper. They were both awarded $200 in gift certificates from members of the Aggieville Merchants Association.

Malo Macho y Mexican also won $25 for the Best Apron award, as did Rock-a-Belly Deli for the Best Booth Award. Pettie's Porkers won a keg of Stroh's beer and $25 for winning the Most Spirited Group and Best Name categories.

Rip & Mo's was the overall winner in the cook-off, with Lone Star XXX first runner-up.

First place in the competition chili category was Lone Star XXX, second place went to Malo Macho y Mexican and third place was won by the University Inn.

First place in the specialty chili category was Kappa Kappa Gamma, second was Phi Delta Theta alumni and third was Alpha Tau Omega.

Kenny Tan, senior in electrical engineering, finds out how hot hot banana peppers are. Tan tied for second in the pepper eating contest.

A little tequila is all Carrie Garcia, senior in political science, needs to make her Malo Macho y Mexicano chili perfect. Her chili placed second in its category at the Chilifest Saturday in Aggieville.

Gut-wrenching, prize-winning recipes

University Inn's Four Alarm Chili Third place in competition chili

3 onions
5 tomatoes
4 green peppers
2 cups cilantro
1 lime's juice
24 ounces beer
¼ cup tequila
¼ cup butter
1 no. 10 can of tomato paste
¼ cup red wine vinegar
4 pounds chicken meat
4 pounds flank steak
3 teaspoons garlic
¼ teaspoon white pepper
3 teaspoons cumin
1 teaspoon thyme
1½ teaspoon oregano

3 teaspoons beef base
4 green chilies
1½ tablespoons durkey hot sauce

Marinate the meat in catalina dressing. Combine all of the ingredients but the meat and simmer over a medium heat for two hours. Brown the meat, thinly slice and add to the sauce. Simmer for another hour.

Makes three gallons.

Come and get it
—don't forget it

First place in living groups chili

3½ pounds ground chuck roast
3 white onions
½ large green bell pepper

½ large red bell pepper
13 garlic cloves
4 fresh jalapeno peppers
1 tablespoon paprika
1½ tablespoon cumin
4 tablespoons chili pepper
1 tablespoon cayenne pepper
3 tablespoons durkey red hot sauce

Braise the meat with all of the ingredients and let it cook for 30 minutes. Add 1 quart of water mixed with 2 tablespoons of beef base.

Add 1 quart of red kidney beans with 1 quart of chef style canned tomatoes. Combine and simmer for as long as possible.

If time allows, refrigerate and allow the grease to rise to the top. Remove the grease, reheat and serve.

Rid your kitchen of fats: Throw out the Twinkies

Lurking in your kitchen may be some of your hips' worst nightmares — chocolate covered Oreos, Ding Dongs, cupcakes, and worst yet, Mom's homemade chocolate cake.

Not a pretty sight for those of you who run to the recreation center weekly to

Food for Thought

SUSAN STAGGENBORG
Features
Editor

jiggle those nasty pounds off your body. It is hardly worth the run if you continue to stock your kitchen or dorm room with potato chips and Twinkies.

The best place to start ridding your food supply of these future fat deposits is to throw out all of those tempting "foods" and start all over.

Shop for foods lower in calories. Buy more fruit, and eliminate the need to snack by not providing the snacks. It is a hard thing to do. Going cold turkey from chocolate covered peanuts to yogurt covered raisins is not my idea of a food feast either.

After recovering from the less than exciting trip to the grocery store, take a look at new and different ways to prepare the normal foods you keep on hand. Magazines are full of low-calorie versions of everyday meals.

Buy chicken, fish and red meats — the leaner cuts, of course.

It has also been reported that the equipment used to prepare your meals can partially determine the calories. Use the kind requiring less oil and fats and thus, lowering the caloric content.

Weighing your food is much like weighing your body. You hate to do it, but you need to in order to guide you in your weight-loss venture. A kitchen scale will help keep the calories in check and the portions down. Do not weigh fudge sundaes or cakes.

ECM's minister new to position, enjoys students

By Brad Fanshier
Collegian Reporter

The Rev. Al Zimmerman returned to Manhattan Aug. 1 to do what he loves — work with students.

"I like to help students grow," Zimmerman said of his new position as campus minister at Ecumenical Christian Ministries Inc. "I can't think of anything I'd rather do than be in campus ministry."

"I like to have fun. The problem is that when there is suffering in the world it's hard to have fun knowing other people don't have it so well."

—The Rev. Al Zimmerman

Zimmerman first came to Manhattan in 1969 with his family from Louisville, Ky., where he was a student at the University of Kentucky. He transferred to K-State where he met his wife, Cindy. Zimmerman graduated in 1973 with a bachelor's degree in history and secondary education.

After graduation, Zimmerman and his wife worked in the Manhattan area until they "got tired of the rat-race," he said.

"We had a house on the lake, but it seemed like we worked all the time to pay for it," he said.

The couple then began traveling around the country.

"We saw about every friend and relative we ever had," Zimmerman said. "We went from Maine to Florida."

In 1980 he returned to Louisville to attend a Presbyterian seminary. He interned as a campus minister at Oregon State University. After graduation from seminary, he became minister of the Presbyterian Church in Odessa, Mo.

Zimmerman heard about the opening at ECM at K-State and applied.

The best part of his new job is working with students, he said.

"I like it when people keep questioning things and keep growing. And that's what college is all about," he said.

Zimmerman also enjoys the youthful spirit of the college campus.

"I like to have fun," he said. "The problem is that when there is suffering in the world it's hard to have fun knowing other people don't have it so well."

He entered the ministry to help people and improve the world. As a teenager, he was influenced by the turmoil of the '60s and the Vietnam War.

"I can remember watching Huntley-Brinkley and every night they would say how many Americans were killed and how many communists were killed. It was a weird time," he said.

Zimmerman credits his father, also a Presbyterian minister, with a strong influence on his career decision.

However, Zimmerman's attitude toward religion is somewhat unconventional.

"We're not so much concerned with saving souls for a future life as we are with making life good in this world," he said.

ECM has several things for students. Sunday supper is very popular, especially with residence hall members since the food centers do not serve meals Sunday evenings, he said.

The meals are followed by programs ranging from the Soviet Union to environmental problems. ECM also holds movie nights, sponsors concerts in the Catskeller, and fields intramural teams.

The Rev. Al Zimmerman is happy to be back at K-State and to be campus minister at Ecumenical Christian Ministries Inc.

Survey plans made to check radiation

By The Associated Press

BURLINGTON — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission will soon begin a routine aerial survey of background radiation in a 100-square-mile area that includes the Wolf Creek nuclear generating station, a plant spokesman said Tuesday.

Ron Smith, spokesman for the Wolf Creek Nuclear Operating Corp., said the NRC survey will take about two weeks. Its purpose is to measure existing radiation to establish a base line, he said.

The effort is part of an ongoing research and environmental radiation monitoring program the NRC has been conducting for more than 20 years, Smith said. No date for the survey has been set.

A helicopter flying at an altitude of 300 feet will carry instruments to measure and map radiation.

OPEN 24 HOURS

1445 ANDERSON

32 oz. Big Gulp fountain drink 69¢
(doesn't apply w/Super Big Gulp)

Frito Lay Grab Bag potato chips 59¢

Lakeshore chili cheese dog $1.29
Regular $2.47

Now Only $1.49

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Lambda Chi Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Off Campus

Oct. 1: Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Kappa Tau, Phi Kappa Theta, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

U.S. ships escort tanker toward gulf

By The Associated Press

MANAMA, Bahrain — U.S. warships on Tuesday escorted a Kuwaiti tanker toward a major Persian Gulf shipping channel where British mine sweepers were searching for explosives believed planted by Iran.

U.S. officials said the Navy would respond strongly if Iran continued "intensified" war activities they said increased after U.S. helicopters attacked an Iranian minelayer.

"We're not looking at routine operations," said one U.S. source who spoke on condition of anonymity. But he said the Navy's gulf-based resources were already seriously strained.

Iraq said its warplanes attacked a ship off Iran and bombed a weapons and ammunition factory in the suburbs of Tehran, a large power plant near the Iran-Soviet border and an oil pumping station in the south.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said a number of people were killed in the raids and in Iraqi shelling of the southern cities of Khorramshahr and Abadan. It said Iranian artillery shelled the southern Iraqi port city of Basra in retaliation.

The United States began to escort 11 Kuwaiti tankers through the gulf in July to protect them from attack by Iran, which considers Kuwait an ally of Iraq in the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war. Kuwait insists it is neutral.

On Sept. 21, the Navy attacked and captured the landing craft Iran Ajr and said it was caught in the act of laying mines. Iran said the vessel was not carrying any military cargo and vowed revenge.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, back in Washington after a trip to the gulf, said Tuesday that the United States would not hesitate to attack any other Iranian vessel caught sowing mines.

Iran's Foreign Ministry said similar statements by Weinberger on Friday in Bahrain were "hostile and provocative."

Help Wanted

Need sharp person for receptionist-secretarial work, including billing coordination. EOE.

KMAN-KMKF Radio, 2414 Casement Road, Manhattan, KS

Call 532-6550
for appointment

Feel like your life is getting out of control???
Lafene Health Center's Mental Health Clinic can help!!!

OFFERING:

- Individual & Group Counseling
- Marital/Relationship Therapy
- Biofeedback
- Stress Management
- Psychological Testing

The JEAN STATION

$19.88

Prewashed, Stonewashed, Bleached
These jeans are pre-washed and pre-shrunk to take the guess work out of buying Levi's® button-fly jeans. The pair that fits just right when you try them on will still fit just right after you wash them.

Register for $500 Wardrobe
Drawn Oct. 1, 8 p.m.

Hours: 10-6 M-Sat, 10-8:30 Thurs., 1-5 Sun. Aggieville, Manhattan

CLOTHING

BLOW-OUT SALE

25% to 70% OFF

— EVERYTHING —
Thursday, Friday and Saturday Only

- ★ HAGGER
- ★ JOHN HENRY
- ★ LEVI'S
- ★ SERO

- ★ MUNSINGWEAR
  - ★ CAREER CLUB
  - ★ LE TIGRE
  - ★ J.J. COCHRAN
- Plus many others

the casual encounter
—fashion clothing for guys—

—1208 Moro—

10-6 Mon. - Sat.
10-8:30 Thursday

Indians fascinate Germans

Pat O'Brien, professor of anthropology, recently returned from Germany where she instructed a minicourse last June at the University of Munich about the ancient cultural systems of plains Indians.

Professor teaches minicourse

By Stacey Schumacher
Collegian Reporter

Kansas — the land of adventure, romance and the plains Indians.

"This is the view Germans have of the plains," said Patricia J. O'Brien, professor of social anthropology and social work. "It's all a matter of a point of view."

O'Brien taught a minicourse on the ancient cultural systems of plains Indians to German students last June at the University of Munich.

"They (the German people) have a long tradition of interest of the Indians on the plains," O'Brien said. "Their vision of the Indian is the plains warrior."

O'Brien knew of the Germans' interest in the plains Indians, and after talking with visiting German professor Horst Helle, director of sociology at the University of Munich, she decided she wanted to teach a class about the plains Indians in Germany.

"The Germans played an early intellectual role in the study of the plains Indians, and I knew that. I also knew something about plains Indians and their pre-history," she said. "I thought it would be neat to go to the University of Munich. So I wrote a letter telling them I would like to teach a class, and I received one back asking me to come."

O'Brien said she was surprised at how quickly she received a response to teach the class.

"I was thinking maybe next summer, but they asked for this summer," she said.

Because the German universities have different schedules than American universities, classes for the regular semester were still in session when O'Brien arrived. Students came to O'Brien's class when they had free time. She said the class ranged from six to 11 students.

"The students were really good. They were enthusiastic and bright," she said. "They were generally a little older than ours, very serious and had a good command of English."

O'Brien said the German students view Kansas in a completely different manner than the people living here.

"They see Kansas as the land of the Indians and adventure. You realize that you live in kind of a neat place, but you just didn't know it," she said.

Creating a type of teaching exchange was also one of the goals of the trip, O'Brien said. Because the schedules of K-State and the University of Munich overlap, there are periods when classes will still be going at one university.

Automobile industry leader Henry Ford II dies Tuesday

By The Associated Press

DETROIT — Henry Ford II, who at age 28 took over and rescued the auto company founded by his grandfather, died Tuesday from pneumonia complications at a hospital bearing the family name. He was 70.

Ford died at 7:21 a.m. after 2½ weeks in Henry Ford Hospital, where heart and kidney problems complicated pneumonia he contracted while traveling recently in Europe.

Ford won recognition for his advocacy of corporate contributions to social progress, for his backing of Detroit's Renaissance Center and for his tempestuous dealings with such corporate lieutenants as Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca, whom he fired as company president in 1978.

His successes included recruiting a young management team dubbed the "Whiz Kids" that returned the company to profitability after World War II. He introduced the successful Mustang, but his failures included the Edsel, a car he named for his late father.

He also rejected Iacocca's idea for a minivan while Iacocca was Ford president. Iacocca took the idea to Chrysler and made it into a huge success.

Divorced twice and married three times, Ford lived a full and colorful life, but friends said he sometimes tired of the fame that accompanied his name. Although generally polite and gracious, he could also be outspoken and sometimes even cruel in his dealings with subordinates.

Ford's son, Edsel B. Ford II, cried Tuesday as he told reporters gathered at his father's childhood Grosse Pointe estate that he wanted to thank doctors who labored to save the auto industry magnate.

"My father was a great industrial leader, a respected statesman and a dedicated supporter of civic and humanitarian causes. But he also was a loving husband, father and grandfather," said Edsel Ford, 38, who is general sales manager for Ford's Lincoln Mercury division.

Edsel Ford said details of his father's burial would remain private, but a memorial service for friends and associates will be held in about two weeks.

Iacocca praised Ford in a statement.

"Our industry, and all of American business, has lost a true leader. His vision and hard work transformed Ford into a great company, but he will be remembered as well for his many civic contributions," Iacocca said.

"Henry Ford and I were friends and colleagues for a lot longer than we were adversaries, and my sympathy goes to his family and friends," Iacocca said.

Henry Ford II was born Sept. 4, 1917, in Detroit, the oldest of four children of Edsel Ford and Eleanor Clay Ford. He graduated in 1936 from Hotchkiss School in Lakeville, Conn., and attended Yale University until 1940 but did not graduate.

Edsel, the elder Henry Ford's only child, took over the presidency of the automaker in 1919, and died in 1943. The senior Ford then resumed the post.

However, in 1944, President Franklin D. Roosevelt feared that the company would collapse because of mismanagement by the elder Ford and his subordinates and recalled Ford, then a young Navy officer.

Henry Ford II was just 28 in 1945 when his grandfather retired. He assumed the job over some opposition from his grandfather, who died two years later.

Ford began reorganizing the company in 1944 while executive vice president.

Enjoy smooth, creamy
Frozen Yogurt
that tastes like Ice Cream
but with 80% less fat!
—FREE SAMPLES—
I Can't Believe It's
YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores
OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sundays
Nebraska Towers—Aggieville

GREEN THUMB
Pet Shop
1105 Waters St.
Fish, Birds, Small Animals
All Pet Supplies
8-5:30 Mon.-Sat.
12-5 Sun. 539-4731
Just across from Alco

BOOK SALE

Sponsored by:
Friends of the Libraries

DONATIONS for the sale can be left in the purple boxes in the lobby of Farrell Library
at KSU from Sept. 14
to Oct. 16

NEED A NEW IMAGE? INTERVIEWING? CHANGING JOBS?

CAREER ENHANCEMENT SEMINAR FOR WOMEN IN TRANSITION

Learn to create a positive image
How to develop an interview wardrobe
How to accessorize (new tricks with scarves and jewelry)
New hair and makeup techniques
To sell yourself to the interviewer
What prospective employers look for
when they interview

THURS., OCT. 1, 7-9 p.m.
Wareham Room—Cotton Club
418 Poyntz

WIN A COMPLETE GLAMOUR MAKEOVER!
REGISTRATION $3 at the door

Presentations by:
Fashion: Laurie Seider
Hair: Jacqui Grace & Co.
Makeovers: Consultants Mary Kay
Interview: Rick Mason Ka. St. Bank

KEEP THE BIG FREEZE OUT! WINTERIZE YOUR CAR NOW.

Radiator Flushes $24<sup>95</sup>
includes anti-freeze

WAYNE'S QUICK LUBE

2304 Sky-Vue Lane
539-5431

BE A

HERO

Putting Students & Government Together
Higher Education Rescue Operation

Find out how you can be a hero at our table in the Union.

Fabulous Savings on Lenox®

Place settings, sets, accessories plus
Lenox Crystal on sale through November 2.

Now you can purchase fine Lenox China and hand-blown full lead
Lenox Crystal on sale at fabulous savings.

Save 20% off Lenox China patterns when you purchase 5-piece Complete Place Settings and 20-piece sets for four. You can also save 15% on 5-piece Serving Sets, all other accessories and serving pieces and Lenox China Buffet & Service Plates.

And save 15% to 25% on all Lenox
Crystal when purchased by the individual piece.

All active patterns
(except Holiday™) are on sale through November 2.

•Use our Bridal Registry
Poyntz & Fifth 1227 Moro
776-9067 539-1891
Downtown Aggieville

You will hear Paul perform complete compositions where he performs all the parts from his guitar.

MUSICIANS

ANNOUNCING An Electronic Music Workshop/Performance
PRESENTING

An Amazing Presentation And Performance Featuring
The Latest In MIDI Electronic Musical Instruments

FEATURING

Paul Youngblood, Los Angeles-based studio and performing musician, in an exciting demonstration of the latest in electronic musical instruments.

NATIONWIDE TOUR

As part of a nationwide tour, Paul will be demonstrating how guitarists, keyboard players, vocalists, and wind instrument players can now play synthesizers, samplers, drum machines, sequencers and more, using MIDI controllers.

K-STATE

This Thurs., Oct. 1
3-5 p.m.

ALL FAITHS CHAPEL

For More Information Call

FREE

JOIN US

S M HANSON MUSIC 776-3000

12 HOURS OF MADNESS AT HARPERS

1/2 OFF ALL REGULAR PRICE FALL FASHION!

STORE OPEN 9:30-9:30 THURSDAY OCT. 1

—SALE ONE DAY ONLY—

OPEN
Sunday 1-5
M-Sat. 9:30-5:30
Thurs. Til 8:30

331 Poyntz
Manhattan
945 Mass.,
Lawrence

Students partake in unusual study

By Jim Vader
Collegian Reporter

Now, here's the offer: Earn $25 to participate in a diarrhea study. No, don't laugh. Don't even snicker. This isn't a fluke.

Dan Martin, staff physician at Lafene Student Health Center, is coordinator of the diarrhea study students may have seen advertised in the Collegian.

Martin, who graduated from the University of Kansas Medical School with a degree in internal medicine and pharmacology, has been doing these surveys for many years.

"I used to do these surveys for a living, and still like to keep up on new medicines and research," Martin said.

The diarrhea survey is sponsored by the Miles Corp., which gives funds to K-State to conduct the survey, Martin said. He said "at least two or three" other student health facilities around the nation are taking part in similar studies.

Martin said he had to get clearance to conduct the study from K-State's Human Use Committee, which approves all experiments involving humans, he said.

Martin said Miles Corp. thinks there is a market for palatable diarrhea medicine.

"This new product contains the same medicine as the old ones except that the new one has a Gatorade-type of electrolytes and Tang for flavoring," he said.

"The product seems to be working for the most part," Martin said. "But it must go through the Federal Drug Administration before it can be sold to the public over the counter."

To qualify for the advertised $25, a student must have diarrhea with no vomiting.

"They come in and do a little bit of paper work and take a brief physical exam," Martin said. "Then they are taught to take the medicine and fill out a diary they must keep during the next couple of days. After they are cured, they come back in to finish up."

Reagan revives budget law

Bill signed to avoid higher taxes

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan on Tuesday signed legislation reviving the Gramm-Rudman budget balancing law and vowed that "the big spenders in Congress will have a fight on their hands."

In a Rose Garden ceremony, Reagan put his signature to a bill that would require $23 billion in deficit reductions in the fiscal year that begins Thursday, and a balanced budget by fiscal 1993. It would cut military and domestic programs across-the-board if its goals are not met.

The president complained bitterly about the legislation, saying Congress was seeking to raise taxes or cut the Pentagon budget to comply with it. He had no choice but to sign it, he said, because it included an urgently needed increase in the national debt limit.

"I will not allow the American people to be blackmailed into higher taxes," Reagan said, repeating his call to trim "pork-barrel spending" that he said was at the root of the deficits.

"The big spenders in Congress will have a fight on their hands," he said, adding that those who expect him to agree to tax hikes or defense cuts were "nuts."

Reagan's harsh words at the ceremony contrasted sharply with his statements earlier Tuesday before an audience of international financiers critical of the huge U.S. deficit.

There, he praised the bill as "a signal that America is not backing down from its responsibilities."

In a speech to a joint meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, the president called for a cooperative effort among the world's financial powers to help Third World nations solve their debt crisis. But he said he cannot lecture others without dealing first with America's own problems.

"It is imperative that the United States consistently reduce its federal deficit spending," Reagan said, taking note of the Gramm-Rudman bill.

"It should be seen as a signal that America is not backing down from its responsibilities," he said. He then called on Japan and West Germany "to find the political gumption to stimulate their economies without reigniting the fires of inflation."

Reagan's support helped the original Gramm-Rudman become law in 1985. At that time, it included the automatic spending cuts later thrown out by the Supreme Court.

The president's enthusiasm for the law has cooled since the Democrats took control of the Senate this year. He said Democrats were trying to use it to force him to accept a tax increase or cuts in military spending.

House Democratic leaders said Tuesday that Reagan could no longer dodge the deficit issue.

"What he signed, in effect, says, 'No, Mr. President, you're at the end of the rope,'" said Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., the majority whip. "The fact that he signed the bill says, yes, he's going to talk about it."

House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, said that even if domestic spending was eliminated entirely, "you still wouldn't balance the budget."

Reagan said he was signing the measure mainly because it was attached to the urgently needed legislation to increase the federal debt limit.

The Treasury needs to borrow to finance the government's deficits, and without the debt bill was in risk of default later this week. Even before the signing, the government was holding auctions of its securities.

The bill increases the debt limit to $2.8 trillion, the largest single boost in the statutory debt in history, up from the old limit of $2.111 trillion. Reagan had sought the $2.8 trillion figure.

Even with the revived Gramm-Rudman law, the deficit for fiscal 1988, which begins Thursday, would be about $144 billion. By bipartisan compromise, the bill relaxes the law's original deficit-reduction schedule — leaving most of the deficit-cutting for after next year's elections.

Kansas State University Evening Classes at Fort Riley

For Military Personnel and Civilians
October 13 - December 5, 1987

Main Post Classes

8-week Courses

COURSE TITLE

Monday/Wednesday 1800-2100

Writing Lab
English Composition I
Public Speaking I
Introduction to Cultural Anthropology
Small Business Operations
Ecology of Environmental Problems
Industrial Psychology
**The Legislative Process
Seminars in Adult Education
Tuesday/Thursday 1800-2100
Intermediate Algebra
World Regional Geography
English Composition II
Intro to Social & Political Philosophy
Managerial Accounting
Introduction to Music
U.S. History to 1877
United States Politics
Business Law I
The Prison & Other Correctional Inst.

Monday/Tuesday/Wednesday/Thursday 1645-1745

Fundamentals of Computer Programming

Monday/Wednesday 1800-2000

BASIC Language Laboratory

Tuesday/Thursday 1800-2000

PASCAL Language Laboratory

Monday/Wednesday 1645-1745 and Saturday 0800-1200

Public Speaking I

**Course may be taken for Graduate or Undergraduate credit

COURSE NUMBER	CREDIT HOURS	BLDG/ ROOM
---------------	--------------	------------

ENGL 030	2	36/209
ENGL 100	3	35/234
SPCH 106	3	36/206
ANTH 200	3	36/205
MANGT 202	3	35/235
BIOL 303	3	36/B-4
PSYCH 560	3	35/B-29
POLSC 611	3	35/226
EDAO 892	3	35/230
MATH 010	3	35/230
GEOG 100	3	36/B-6
ENGL 120	3	35/234
PHILO 135	3	35/235
ACCTG 221	3	36/B-4
MUSIC 250	3	36/B-29
HIST 251	3	36/205
POLSC 325	3	35/226
MANGT 390	3	36/206
SOCIO 663	3	794/4

CMPSC 200	2	36/205
-----------	---	--------

CMPSC 206	2	36/202
-----------	---	--------

CMPSC 207	2	36/202
-----------	---	--------

SPCH 106	3	36/206
----------	---	--------

CUSTER HILL

COURSE TITLE

Monday/Wednesday 1800-2100

Intermediate Algebra
College Algebra
Economics I
Introduction to Sociology
Sociology of the Criminal Justice System

Tuesday/Thursday 1800-2100

English Composition I

Mathematics Its Form & Impact

Social Problems

Tuesday/Thursday 1815-2115

General Psychology

OCTOBER 13, 1987 - DECEMBER 12, 1987

Tuesday/Thursday 1645-1745 and Saturday 0900-1200

General Psychology

OCTOBER 13, 1987 - DECEMBER 5, 1987

Camp Funston, MATES Building 1460

Monday/Wednesday 1630-1930

U.S. History Since 1877

Tuesday/Thursday 1630-1930

Public Speaking I

For more information call 239-3061, ext. 14 at Fort Riley, 532-5566 at the Division of Continuing Education in Manhattan, 1-800-432-8222, surrounding area.

Learn Today: Be a Leader Tomorrow

THURS. ONLY!

9 a.m.—9 p.m.

FALL SPORTSWEAR, COATS & DRESSES

15%—
30% OFF

at

Broune's
Ladies Store

323 POYNTZ

CATS vs. KU

TONIGHT

7:30 p.m., Ahearn Field House

Adults: $2
Students: $1

Children under 12: Free
Senior Citizens: Free

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Wednesday, September 30, 1987 ■ Page 11

Attitude, spirit may bring win to football team

Mid-Week Commentary

TOM PERRIN
Sports Column

K-State may have found out in Saturday's 38-13 loss at Iowa just what it's going to take to win some football games this year.

A 25-point loss isn't usually the type of game used to build a season upon, but for 0-3 K-State, last week's Iowa game may turn into an exception.

After a pair of games where it appeared some K-State players took their bodies onto the field, but left another part of them in the lockerroom, Coach Stan Parrish called the Iowa game "a breath of fresh air."

"We've got some young kids with a lot of pride," Parrish said Saturday. "We hadn't played well at all in the first two weeks and I think we came out here today to play our best and improve."

One of the many areas where K-State made a quantum improvement was in their overall effort and attitude. It's difficult to imagine any one of the 67,700 fans leaving Kinnick Stadium Saturday saying the Wildcats didn't play exceptionally hard and give Iowa a pretty good scare as well.

"You're darn right I was proud of our effort," Parrish said. "I thought we played our hearts out today. From an effort standpoint, we played as good as we can play."

K-State players seemed to sense the difference on the team as well.

"I think we can look at ourselves and see that we came together as a team," quarterback Gary Swim said.

Offensive tackle Russ Stange went a step further.

"If we would have played like we did today in the first two games, we would be 2-1 right now," he said.

But what brought about this change in K-State? What gave the Wildcats the competitive spark that seemed absent in the Austin Peay State and Army games? Two things in particular stand out.

First of all, it seems Iowa was taking for granted a win against the Wildcats, instead looking ahead to their Big Ten Conference opener this Saturday.

"I think their main concern was playing Michigan State," Stange said. "The coaches told us early in the week they were practicing for (Michigan State) and looking past us. They thought we were going to come out there and just play dead. We didn't."

Another significant motivator was the Iowa City media's disrespectful treatment of K-State. A story in The Daily Iowan student newspaper predicted the Hawkeyes to romp over the Wildcats 62-6.

"It made us play a lot harder," strong safety Erick Harper said. "Saying that we're 60-, 50-, 40-point underdogs, that doesn't sit well with us. They're men just like we are. They put their pants on the same way we do. There's no team in America that much better than another."

Said Parrish of the writers predicting an Iowa blowout: "I know I went back and went over the game plan one extra time for them."

"If you're a competitor, that stuff is nauseating. It's negative. I don't think there's a place for it in writing. People that get off on that stuff had better get themselves redirected."

And speaking of redirection, it appears the K-State football team may have achieved just that in Iowa City. With only one more week left until the start of the Big Eight Conference season, the timing couldn't have been much better.

Tulsa, 0-4, and the Wildcats' next opponent Saturday afternoon at KSU Stadium, should provide a gauge as to whether the intensity K-State showed at Iowa is here to stay. If K-State is mentally ready for the game, they should pick up a win over the Golden Hurricane, which lost to powerful Oklahoma 65-0 last week.

"We're going to beat Tulsa, I'll tell you right now, flat out," Stange said.

MacDonald removes doubt

By Kenny Harrison
Collegian Reporter

Last year there was some doubt that Tim MacDonald would ever wear a K-State uniform again.

Today, though, he's back with the football team and starting at defensive tackle for the 'Cats.

Not only is MacDonald starting, but he reported to the renovated Wildcat weight room this fall with a vengeance in his eyes and became a dominant force.

Weighing in this season at 268 pounds, he bench pressed 481 pounds and squatted 692 pounds. Both are the heaviest weights lifted on the K-State team in their respective categories. MacDonald also has the team high in the incline bench press at 427 pounds, as of the beginning of the season.

Wildcat strength coach Jerry Palmieri said MacDonald has been given a natural talent — which is to lift a large amount of weight.

"Tim's got a lot of genetic strength. In other words, he's been blessed by the good Lord with strength. During the off-season, he stayed here (in Manhattan) all summer, and I know he was very excited about the upcoming season," Palmieri said.

MacDonald quit the team last year on Sept. 12 — one day before K-State played Division 1-AA, Northern Iowa.

"We were in a rebuilding stage and that game was very important," coach Stan Parrish said.

Parrish had talked to MacDonald the Friday before the game to try to change his mind, but the decision was already made to leave the team.

"I was concerned about him because it was a critical decision for him to have to make by himself. I just tried to explain to Tim that quitting wasn't a solution to anything in life," Parrish said.

Looking back on the decision, MacDonald admitted he had made a wrong one. At the time, though, it was something he had to do.

"The reason I left is, I felt like I was giving 100 percent in practice but I wasn't accomplishing anything on the field," he said. "So I felt like I was letting the team down. Along with that and other personal reasons, it made it hard for me to stay."

Two weeks after leaving the team, MacDonald wanted to return. Watching the team play on television and listening to them on the radio made him realize how much he missed the game, MacDonald said.

The coaches denied MacDonald's request to return to the team for the remainder of that season.

"We felt at that point, Tim had put us in a bad position and it would be hard for us to let him back on the

Staff/Gary Lytle

Although Tim MacDonald quit the Wildcat football team last year the day before K-State played Northern Iowa, he is the starting nose guard this year and is one of the strongest players on the team.

team," Jerry Hartman, defensive coordinator said. "It wouldn't have been fair to the rest of the players."

Following the conclusion of the season, the coaches reviewed MacDonald's situation and allowed him to become a member of the team again.

"Tim had to swallow a lot of pride to ask for a second chance," Parrish said.

"Although MacDonald was allowed to return to the team, he would have to start at the bottom of the list and work his way up," Hartman said. "He went through the entire winter and summer conditioning and did an outstanding job."

MacDonald is comfortable on the field now that he's back in the swing. "Being away from the team made me realize where my priorities were.

It makes me realize what life is meant to be," MacDonald said.

Trying to make his last year as a Wildcat special, MacDonald has set one main goal for himself.

"If I play to the best of my ability, no matter what the situation is, and people remember the good things that Tim MacDonald did, then everything else will fall into place," MacDonald said.

Harriers on road to 'unexpected' success

By Bill Lang
Sports Writer

For cynics who say a team can't win with in-state talent and youth, John Capriotti has but one thing to say to that: "Bull."

"When we ran this weekend we had two freshmen, two sophomores and three juniors and a walk-on," K-State cross country coach Capriotti said. "We went up there not knowing what these guys were going to do and they end up coming home with a first place finish."

That first place finish was over a team considered to be one of the tougher teams in the nation, Iowa State University.

"We just took a bunch of little guys from Kansas and went up and ran tough," Capriotti said. "It's obvious Iowa State was thinking they could beat us, and they left their number two runner out of the race. We ran tough and several of our younger kids just ran super times and we beat them (Iowa State)."

Yes, the Kansas products did just fine at the invitational — along with one athlete from just across the border in Missouri.

Hesston sophomore David Warders finished fourth, Hutchinson sophomore David Keller finished sixth, Independence, Mo., freshman David Byrne finished eighth, Topeka junior Rob Hays finished 10th and Williamsburg junior Daryl Reichard finished 12th.

This whole season, though, is one

Staff/Brad Camp

Junior cross country team member Rob Hays, who is one of the top-running veterans on the squad, stretches in preparation for practice Tuesday at Memorial Stadium. Hays and his youthful teammates placed first at the Iowa State Invitational meet last Saturday, surpassing the expectations of everyone but the K-State runners and Coach John Capriotti.

Blecinski leaves team

By Staff and Wire Reports

K-State women's basketball coach Matilda Mossman announced that Tracey Blecinski has decided to leave the team for personal reasons.

"I want to pursue other goals," Blecinski, a junior from Shawnee Mission, said. "They are educational goals that I have."

Blecinski was the only starter returning from last season's team.

"She will be greatly missed, but...I think everyone in this life has to do what is best for them down the road, and this is something that Tracey feels will benefit her in the long run."

"We will miss Tracey not only as a basketball player but as a person," Mossman said. "I have a lot of respect for Tracey and I know this decision wasn't easy for her."

Blecinski will be focusing her attention on pursuing a degree in magazine journalism.

"Coach Mossman cares what happens on the court, but more about what happens off the court, so she has been supportive of my decision," Blecinski said. "She wants what's best for all her players, and I think what I am doing is best for me."

Officials say Wedtech received millions

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A former Small Business Administration official who was instrumental in Wedtech Corp.'s receipt of $135 million in no-bid Navy contracts testified Tuesday he was offered a $12,000 payoff by a middleman representing the defense contractor.

H. Robert Saldivar said he rejected the offer by Steve Denlinger, a former president of the Latin American Manufacturers Association, but never reported it to any government investigative agency.

Saldivar approved crucial extensions in 1983 and early 1984 for Wedtech so it could continue as a minority contractor in an SBA program.

The company's status was in doubt because it had offered stock for sale to the public and was no longer majority-owned by its Hispanic founder, John Mariotta.

Within a few months of the extensions granted by Saldivar and other SBA officials, Wedtech was awarded the first of what ultimately would be $135 million in contracts to build pontoon bridges for the Navy.

Denlinger's attorney, Terrence O'Donnell, was not immediately available for comment.

In other testimony to the Senate subcommittee on oversight of government management, two former Pentagon officials said their criticism of Wedtech on the Navy contract was disregarded by their superiors.

Capt. David de Vicq, a retired Navy acquisitions manager, said a plan proposed by one of his superiors, L. Wayne Army, on behalf of Wedtech was "insane. It was a license to steal."

Under the plan urged by Army, the Navy's principal deputy for shipbuilding, Wedtech in late 1984 was to be allowed to continue building pontoons, with the cost to be negotiated later.

Army's boss, Everett Pyatt, the Navy's assistant secretary for shipbuilding, rescinded part of the plan after protests from de Vicq and others. Nonetheless, the Navy extended Wedtech's pontoon contracts in 1985 and 1986 without competitive bidding.

De Vicq said a 1984 tour of Wedtech facilities was "frightening."

The company, he said, proposed to build pontoons in a South Bronx, N.Y., warehouse with no roof, no electricity and no plumbing.

When it began turning out pontoons, "they weren't square," he added.

"They had to use sledgehammers to try to get some of the pontoons to fit," testified Col. Don Hein of the Defense Contract Administration.

"Never during my tour of duty was a single (pontoon bridge) delivered on time and in accordance with the contract schedule," said Hein, former commander of the Defense Contract Administration in New York. "Quality control and workmanship were very poor. ... This was not new technology, but World War II, 1940s technology."

Hein said that because of his continued criticism of Wedtech, the company threatened to sue him, his Navy superiors cut him out of the decision-making process on the company and one Navy official told him to stop going to meetings involving the company.

On the alleged $12,000 payoff offer, Saldivar said Denlinger "indicated that certain friends wished to give me a gift."

Denlinger "was reluctant to reveal the source, but later he said it was from some of the people at Wedtech," including "John Mariotta and (Wedtech executive vice president) Mario Moreno," said Saldivar.

Saldivar, interviewed recently by the U.S. attorney's office in Manhattan, which is investigating the Wedtech scandal, said offers of payoffs "happened a lot, a number of times" when he was at the SBA.

Saldivar said Denlinger's offer was made in a "jovial manner" and that while he knew the offer was improper he "never saw any money on the table" and therefore didn't consider it a "bribe."

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., the subcommittee chairman, asked Saldivar whether he ever raised the subject of the $12,000 in dealings with Mariotta or other Wedtech officials. Saldivar responded that he did not.

The subcommittee released documents showing Wedtech consultant E. Robert Wallach, a friend of Attorney General Edwin Meese III, wrote memos touting Saldivar as a friend of Wedtech.

One of the memos was written to Meese, giving the then-White House counselor a status report on Wedtech's progress in obtaining government contracts. Meese's involvement with Wedtech is under criminal investigation.

Saldivar's superior, Henry Wilfong, told the subcommittee that his boss, SBA administrator James Sanders, bypassed him in the decision-making process regarding Wedtech.

Wedtech was supposed to be one of several contractors sharing in the pontoon contract. But Wilfong said he was told by John Grayson, a Wedtech competitor, in July 1984 that "the fix was on."

Officials propose higher natural gas rates

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Officials from a Hays gas and electric power cooperative and the Kansas Corporation Commission's staff agreed Tuesday to a proposed 4.36 percent increase in the company's natural gas rates.

However, the agreement between Midwest Energy Inc., and the KCC staff is not binding on the three-member commission. Steve Menaugh, a commission spokesman, said the KCC has until January to make a decision but probably will act next month.

If the KCC approves the stipulation, the company's residential customers would see a 4.24 percent rate increase and its commercial customers, a 6.51 percent increase, but rates for its industrial customers would not increase.

A typical Midwest residential customer would see his or her bill increase from $31.15 to $32.50. Also, the monthly charge for commercial customers would increase from $5.75 to $7.50. However, monthly charges for industrial and residential customers would not increase.

The stipulation the company and the KCC staff was close to the utility's original request of a 4.44 percent rate increase. Earlier this month, the KCC staff recommended a 3.47 percent increase in rates.

However, Menaugh said, the staff found an error in some data supplied from the company. The agreement was reached after a technical hearing

Tuesday.

In filing its request, Midwest Energy officials said the cooperative need the rate increase because of increasing investments in physical facilities, declining gas sales and interest and property tax expenses.

The company provides natural gas to 9,000 residential customers, 1,350 commercial customers, and 27 industrial customers in western Kansas, including those in Hays, Ellis, Ogallah and WaKeeney.

Landon in hospital, testing to continue

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Former Gov. Alf M. Landon continued to undergo medical tests Tuesday, after being hospitalized at Stormont-Vail Regional Medical Center Monday.

Landon told a visitor he felt tired, but otherwise was doing all right.

He was hospitalized after complaining of internal pain over the weekend.

Landon was found to have a gall stone last week, but additional tests are being conducted during the hospitalization.

It was not known how long Landon would be in the hospital.

The Men of Beta Sigma Psi would like to formally congratulate their newly tapped Little Sisters of the Golden Rose

Rebecca Birt
Leslie Bookout
Angie Brauer
Stephanie Brummet
Shelly Clark
Deborah Crawford
Richelle Daubert
Melonie DeMent
Susan Dick
Jennifer Donnelly
Angie Edmonds

Kim Forrest
Sheryl Funk
Marsha Gribble
Angie Hager
Kelly James
Sarah Johnson
Carrie Jost
Kelly Keeton
Coreena Kim
Lisa Knop
Lisa Korff
Ulu Medici

Beverly Meehan
Sherry Miller
Tammy Morgan
Juli Nuspl
Janine Overbaugh
Julie Pyle
Roberta Pyle
Amy Reece
Jen Rempel
Rachel Ring
Michele Rooney
Steffani Sammons

Sharon Schaffer
Shelly Schultz
Brenda Schwartz
Wendy Shipp
Valerie Steffen
Anne Marie Stevens
Colette Stevens
Tammy Taphorn
Rebecca Vest
Tresa Walters
Emilie White

UPC ARTS COMMITTEE PRESENTS

An Exhibition and Sale of Fine Art Reproductions and
Laser Photographs

LAST THREE DAYS!

Many New Prints Available

Monday - Friday Sept. 28-Oct. 2

9am-5pm K-State Union

1st Floor Concourse

$6.00 each

or 3 for $15.00

Cars,
Cities,
Animals
Scenery &
Travel Posters,
etc.

Many new prints
available!

Hundreds to choose from!

M.C. Escher
Picasso
Van Gogh
Dali

Renoir
Seurat
and many more

Plastic bags available.

K-state union
upc arts

TV Listings

By TV Data

WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 30, 1987

	KSNT 2	WIBW 15	KTKA 3	KSHB 3	KTWU 11	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Bugs Bunny Flintstones	Special Mister Rogers	Bozo	Nation's Bus. SportsCenter	B. Hillbillies Bewitched
8:00	"	"	"	My Little Pony Brady Bunch	Sesame Street	Smurfs Teddy Ruxpin	SportsLook Windsurfing	I Love Lucy Hazel
9:00	Hour Maga- zine	$25K Pyramid Card Sharks	Ghostbusters G.I. Joe	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Sesame Street	H's Heroes Twilight Zone	Horse Show: American	Movie: "Jump- ing Jacks"
10:00	Jeopardy! Lose or Draw	Price Is Right	Who's Boss Mr. Belvedere	Andy Griffith Dick Van	Body Electric Instructional	Andy Griffith Soap	Gold Cup Billiards	"
11:00	Password Wheel-Fortune	Young and the Restless	Love Connec. Ask Dr. Ruth	Dyke Green Acres	Programming	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
12:00	News Days of Our	Middy Bold/Beautiful	All My Child- ren	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	British Colum- bia Lions at	Movie: "Des- tination Tokyo"
1:00	Lives Another World	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	B. Hillbillies Bewitched	Nova	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	Saskatchewan Roughriders	"
2:00	"	Guiding Light	General Hos- pital	Brady Bunch Zoobies Zoo	McLaughlin Learn to Read	Beaver Ghostbusters	Auto Racing World Sports	Tom & Jerry and Friends
3:00	"	Donahue	Scoby Doo Thundercats	Smurfs Ghostbusters	Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	AWA Wres- tling	Flintstones Flintstones
4:00	"	Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game P. Court	Jetsons M. Bravest	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact	G.I. Joe BraveStarr	Racing: NHRA Northern Natl.	Munsters Laverne
5:00	Family Ties NBC News	News CBS News	News ABC News	Diff. Strokes Facts of Life	Sesame Street	Facts of Life WKRP	SportsLook PGA Tour	Alice Carol Burnett
6:00	News Wheel-Fortune	News Truth/Conseq.	M*A*S*H Newlywed	WKRP Gimme Br.	MacNeil / Le- rner Newshour	Cheers Major League	SportsCenter Sports	Andy Griffith Sanford
7:00	Highway to Heaven	Oldest Rookie	P. Strangers Head of the	Hill Street Blues	Survival Spe- cial	Baseball: Chi- cago Cubs at	Karate: North American Wel-	Sanford Major League
8:00	Year in the Life	Magnum, P.I.	Hooperman Slap Maxwell	Movie: "Tom Horn"	Lily Tomlin	Pittsburgh Pir- ates	AWA Cham- pionship	Baseball: At- lanta Braves
9:00	St. Elsewhere	Equalizer	Dynasty	"	"	"	Wrestling	at Houston As- tros
10:00	News Tonight Show	News Cheers	News M*A*S*H	Barney Miller Late Show	Nature Business Rpt.	INN News Magnum, P.I.	Tractor Pull SportsCenter	Movie: "Gold"
11:00	"	Diamonds	B. Buddies Nightline	"	MacNeil / Le- rner Newshour	Movie: "Hud"	SportsLook Sports	"
12:00	Late Night With David	The Cheyenne Social Club	700 Club	"September 30, 1955"	Sign-Off	"	Karate: ISKA World Cruiser-	James Dean

MOTOROLA INC.

Semiconductor Products Sector

We'll be on campus

October 12, 1987

Qualified college students are invited to meet with us and explore the career opportunities... the innovative technology... the industry leadership that is Motorola's Semiconductor Products Sector.

On-campus interviews will be held for ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING MAJORS.

We will also accept resumes for MECHANICAL ENGINEERING, COMPUTER SCIENCE, MANUFACTURING ENGINEERING and CHEMICAL ENGINEERING positions.

For more information, stop by your College Placement Office or write to Manager, College Recruiting at the appropriate address below.

Arizona Opportunities

Motorola's Semiconductor Products Sector
725 South Madison
Tempe, AZ 85281
(602) 994-6394

Texas Opportunities

Motorola's Semiconductor Products Sector
1112 W. Ben White Blvd., Suite 200
Austin, TX 78704
(800) 531-5183

An Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer

Lottery executive creates confusion over candidacy bid

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A Maryland man hired to an executive position with the Kansas Lottery told Baltimore reporters Tuesday he's still a candidate for public office in Baltimore, but state lottery Director Larry Montgomery said the man told him he's pulled out of the race.

The confusion was created by the public statements of the new Kansas Lottery employee, Larry Gray.

After talking to Gray by telephone following Gray's news conference, Montgomery said he's convinced the Maryland man has abandoned his bid for the office of city comptroller in Baltimore and is now the full-fledged director of administration for the Kansas Lottery.

"He's not a candidate any more as far as we're concerned," Montgomery said. "That's what he's told me, and I've got to believe him."

Montgomery confirmed he hired Gray last Thursday, and planned to announce it next week.

Gray has been investments analyst for the Maryland state lottery.

He also has been the Republican candidate for city comptroller in Baltimore's municipal elections this fall, challenging a Democrat who has held the job for about 25 years. With Democrats holding a 4-1 advantage in registrations in Baltimore, Gray was not favored to win.

Gray told reporters at the Baltimore news conference that his family and campaign aides would continue to campaign in Baltimore and that if he wins the race, he will resign his new Kansas job to take the city position.

When asked if he had told that to Kansas lottery officials, he said the matter hadn't been brought up.

However, Montgomery said Gray's statements were a surprise to him, and that Gray had told him he'd already given up his campaign for comptroller.

"We knew he was running for office," Montgomery said after being informed of Gray's news conference statements. "But he said he would step out of the race to accept the job here. That's exactly what he told us."

Montgomery called Gray in Baltimore following the news conference. Based on that conversation, the Kansas Lottery director said, he was convinced Gray had given up his Baltimore campaign and was permanently with the Kansas Lottery.

Montgomery said it was too late for Gray to withdraw as a candidate so his name will be on the Baltimore ballot.

Nancy Zogelman, information officer for the Kansas Lottery, said a news release announcing Gray's employment would be prepared and distributed to the news media, probably next week.

As director of administration, Gray will have charge of purchasing, personnel, computers, budgeting and fiscal matters and internal auditing for the Kansas Lottery.

Gray was expected to return Tuesday night from Baltimore, Montgomery said.

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

Kedzie 103

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (111)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

ASK ME about Mary Kay Cosmetics! Janet Milliken. 539-9469. (2-27)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

DOMESTIC and Imported cheeses at co-op prices. Available at People's Grocery Co-op, 811 Colorado. Open to everyone. Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. (24-27)

ATTENTION!

Due to a production error, a few of the '87-'88 Programmers have the pages 65-80 missing. Please check your Programmer. If yours is not complete, please bring it to the Activities Center, K-State Union 3rd floor, Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. It will be fixed and returned to you the following day (Monday if turned in Friday). Corrections will be made through September 30. Thank you for your support and we regret any inconvenience this has caused.

K-state union
upc promotions

DANCE, DANCE, DANCE.

to the sounds of the

"OVAL-TEENS"

the best '50s & '60s
music in town
Friday & Saturday
9 p.m.-1 a.m.

University Club
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

NO PAIN NO GAIN

October Special
Unlimited Number
of Sessions for
only $50

Slender You
Figure Salons

No membership fee—first visit free
Candlewood Plaza-3232 Kimball Ave.
776-3308

ClassAds

532-6555

The Ladies Club

Now Open!

Memberships

Available!

Classes begin

Oct. 1

First Visit Free

776-6469

1104 Waters, Manhattan

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED

ONE-BEDROOM, furnished. Close to campus. Available immediately. 776-8918 after 5:30 p.m. (26-30)

LARGE, ONE-bedroom, furnished apartment, two balconies, air, $295 plus utilities. Across from Ahearn. Available Oct. 1. Call 539-5021; 539-2166; or 776-1712. Ask for Pam. (27-29)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211)

ROOMMATE NEEDED: $125/month, own room, very nice. Call 539-5406. (23-27)

TWO-BEDROOM, 727 Leavenworth #2, available Sept. 30. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 537-3186. (23-29)

AVAILABLE OCT. 15, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid, can be furnished. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (271)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE

1978 CHEVY, 3/4 ton, 4 x 4 pickup, 350 engine, power steering, power brakes, air-conditioning, automatic transmission, dual fuel tanks and set up for stock trailer. 456-8472 after 5 p.m. (25-29)

FORD LTD 1977: Excellent condition, low mileage, runs great. $1,500 or best offer. Call Salah in 636 Moore or Sonny in 533. 532-2362 after 6:30 p.m. (25-29)

1975 CHEVY wagon, air conditioned, cruise, runs well, clean, $490. 539-2892 between 5-10 p.m. (27-29)

1974 MAVERICK: Engine runs great, new battery. Must sell this week. $500 or best offer. 539-8455. (27-28)

1978 BLUE Monza: Nice body, excellent engine, 30 miles per gallon on highway. Leave message for Sheikh, 533 Moore Hall, 532-2362. (27-31)

FOR SALE: 1977 full-sized Oldsmobile wagon. Terrific condition, new paint, air, cruise, FM stereo, 112,000 miles. Call 776-9898 after 5 p.m. 1521 Jarvis. (27-29)

EMPLOYMENT

EARN $HUNDREDS weekly in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

MAKE $4,600 monthly stuffing envelopes. For details, send self-addressed stamped envelope to Adeela, P.O. Box 2142, Stillwater, OK 74076. (18-27)

Earn extra cash for the holidays

A few hours each week can earn you cash for the holidays. No inventory and no capital required. Just introduce your friends to Shalee's holiday gift collection — fine fragrances and toiletries for men and women — traditional Christmas gifts — exclusive — not available in stores. No experience necessary. We train. Call 634-0875. BOB OLIVERA 1157 S. WEBB WICHITA, KS 67207

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work: electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

FULL AND part-time retail help needed. Sports page — Town Center. Send resume to: Steve Webb, 224 Redbud Estates, Manhattan, KS 66502. (25-29)

HOURLY STUDENT office help, prefer work study freshman or sophomore. Immediate start date, 10 plus hours a week. Must be able to work summer 1988 and have good typing and telephone skills. Call Pam at International Trade Institute, 532-6799 for interview. (25-27)

HARDEE'S OF Aggieville is taking applications for delivery drivers. day or night time hours, full or part-time. Can earn five to six dollars per hour. (26-29)

TRACK-ORIENTED student with conditioning and form with talented fourteen-year-old. One or two evenings a week. Hours negotiable. Frank, 532-5634. Evenings, 494-8318. (27-29)

FINANCIAL SERVICES

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Aye no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 Poyntz, 9-9. (27-35)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT

ADULT COURT for serious students. One, two, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (311)

FOR RENT two-bedroom mobile home with space for four horses. 539-5778. (25-29)

HOUSE WEST of campus, two bedrooms, attached garage. For couple, single person, person with one child. Call 539-2860. (27-28)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE

BY OWNER nice, clean, two-bedroom mobile home with or without furniture set up on large shady lot. 539-5778. (25-29)

LOST AND FOUND

FOUND VETERINARY medicine book on Sept. 24. Call after 6 p.m., 776-6096 to identify. (25-27)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS: Camouflage clothing, overcoats, raincoats, combat boots, jungle boots, sleeping bags, carhartt workwear, much more! Open Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. St. Marys Surplus Sales. St. Marys, KS. 1-437-2734. (9-27)

WATERSKI and Windsurf this fall and next spring. Buy a wetsuit or drysuit on sale now from Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

TANS TO GO

$2 Sessions

1214-C Moro-Aggieville

776-7874

(must be used by 10-31-87)

USED SAILBOARDS from $325, demo sailboards, sails, wetsuits, etc. all on sale at Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

FLEET 1987 update sets now available. We buy—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables. 1130 Laramie. 539-1184. (25-29)

PYRAMID PIZZA

All Slices 99¢

after 5 p.m.

WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

PENTAX PC35AF camera, auto focus and built-in flash. $80. Call 539-2912 evenings. (25-29)

WANTED TO buy—Two tickets to U2 concert in K.C. Please call Stacie, 539-8695. Price negotiable. (26-29)

SUN CONNECTION

NOW SELLING

$2

SESSIONS

1126 Laramie 776-2426

McCAIN TICKETS Amsterdam Guitar Trio Oct. 3. Two orchestra seats, $12 for both. Call evenings, 537-0787. (26-28)

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE

1982 HONDA XL 100. 500 miles. Great school bike. Call 539-3719 evenings. (23-27)

FOR SALE: Men's red Schwinn 10-speed. Extras and in excellent condition. Call 532-2233 after 7 p.m. (25-29)

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (25-29)

FOR SALE: Huffy 10-speed bike. Good condition, $80 or best offer. Call 776-7685 after 5 p.m. (25-27)

RALEIGH RACER USA—Competition 14-speed geometry, custom built. Diamondback Meanstreak—Mountain bike, 15-speed, new components. Both $300 or best offer. 537-0182 evenings. (25-29)

DIAMOND BACK mountain bike, 27", excellent condition, extras included. Call after 7 p.m., 776-9371. (27-29)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

FOR SALE: Small Peavey PA system includes amp head, two cabinets. Excellent condition. 539-5987. (24-28)

GIBSON ACOUSTIC guitar, $110. Call 537-2946. (27-31)

PERSONALS

ATO SOFTBALLERS—We couldn't have asked for a more jammin' team. You made us so proud we just couldn't help but to scream. Even though 2nd place made you holler and cuss, you'll always rate #1—first and finest—with us. Love, ADPI Batgirls—Lisa, Tina, Tasha, Dona. (27)

MARSHALL—WANNA chup and pit? Ahh—just ccheckin'! Have a happy 23rd with love and penquin kisses. Lisa. (27)

STEVE—KALA is my wife now, I suggest you leave her alone or Angelica will have your left (you know). Your ill-ridden brother Jack. (27)

THE TIME is nearing. Pi Phi are cheering, Beau and Arrow is almost here! It will be a grand ball, a good time will be had by all. Beau and Arrow—The party of the year! (27)

DELTA SIG Brian—Good luck with Greek playboy. Can't wait for the legs contest. AXO KB. (27)

JAS, HAPPY 21st. Congratulations on catching up with your I.D. Love ya, Jackie. (27)

KALA—DIVORCE the corpse and leave with Steve. Who'd want "Bullethead" for a mother-in-law, anyway? —Spike. (27)

JULIE—HAPPY 21st. Have a great day and an even better night. Love, Phil. (27)

"Many thanks for the cards, thoughts, visits, and prayers. Knowing your love and caring is behind me is a welcome source of strength. Thank you all."

Love,

AREX EHRSAM

c/o KU Medical Center

Room 4405

39th and Rainbow Blvd.

Kansas City, KS 66103

CHI-O BABY Dana—Tonight is the night and you will see just who your new mommy really will be! I have blonde hair and am a ton of fun and am so excited because I think you're #1!!! Bundles of Love—your new Mommy. (27)

PETS AND PET SUPPLIES

DOMESTIC HAND-fed Senegal parrot. One left, $150. Very tame. 456-2470, Wamego. (23-27)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (111)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (111)

Hair Shack

415 N. 3rd

776-7421

Affordable Prices!

Sebastian and Redken products used.

RENTALS

SUPPLIES: PRINTER—typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (111)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE

PAPERS, RESUMES, cover letters, theses and dissertations entered, stored and completed to your specifications. Letter-quality printer. Come see us. Ross Secretarial Services, 614 N. 12th (across from Kite's), 539-5147. (23-32)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro. 537-7294. (27-29)

EXPERIENCED TYPIST: Will do any size typing jobs. Call Mary after 5 p.m. at 537-0456. (27-29)

ROOMMATE WANTED

ONE OR two non-smoking female to share farm-house. Prefer vet or animal science majors. Free stall and pasture for horse, cow, dog, Beef, eggs, firewood furnished, own bedroom. 776-1205, 8-10 p.m. only. (18-27)

ROOMMATE OCTOBER—June. Nice house, close to campus, washer/dryer, own room, only $135, 776-7905. (27-29)

SPORTING/RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT

USED SAILBOARDS from $325, demo sailboards, sails, wetsuits, etc. all on sale at Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

WATERSKI and Windsurf this fall and next spring. Buy a wetsuit or drysuit on sale now from Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

ROOM FOR RENT

GIRL WANTED to rent room without board, $80/month, bills paid. Close to campus. No pets. 539-8608. (271)

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Old crone
4 — Marian
8 Social group
12 Storm center
13 Home of the leprechaun
14 Israeli dance
15 Be a stool pigeon?
16 Fleet canine
18 Role for Pat Morita
20 Weaken
21 Imitates
24 O.T. prophet
26 Hunting dog
32 Verne's captain
33 French soul
34 Squirrel nests
36 — canto (singing style)
37 Night light
39 Norwegian dog
41 Palm cockatoo
43 Sly, sidelong look
44 Dangerous curve
46 White cliffs
50 Irish or Russian
55 TV actor Robert
56 — vera
57 Away from the wind
58 Cain's land
59 Diary word
60 Equal
61 Printer's measures
DOWN
1 Popular sandwich
2 Nurse, in India
3 "I — Kick Out of You"
4 Fancy name for Bigfoot?
5 Word before base or brake
6 Anger
7 Actress Susan
8 Polish composer
9 Role for Ed Asner
10 Footed vase
11 Rotten filler
17 Sandwich
19 College cheer
22 River in France
23 Fishhook line-leader
25 Philippine island
26 Hemsley sitcom
27 " — Back the Dawn"
28 White House pet
29 Khayyam
30 Arctic gull genus
31 Dick Van —
35 Cat or dog, perhaps?
38 Choose
40 Spanish gold
42 Hardwood tree
45 Daytime TV fare
47 Hollywood crosser?
48 Orwell's school
49 Taylor and Cameron
50 Small mass
51 Barcelona bravo
52 Mauna —
53 Rubber tree
54 Society page word

CRYPTOQUIP
B O S K N Y K V B K S D E U
Q O I N E R I ? N K U G E I D U ' Q
V Y R I F S F I G K V E U I
Yesterday's Cryptoquip: PUFFED-UP BRAGGI
HEADY BOASTING IS THE PATTEN OF TINY FEAT.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals N

Glickman appeals for aviation revision

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., appealed to a House panel on Tuesday to approve legislation revising product liability laws governing the general aviation industry.

Glickman, in testimony to the House Public Works aviation subcommittee, said the proposal he sponsored was needed to cope with rising insurance costs.

He and other proponents of the ## Laws will affect liability insurance

measure, including the General Aviation Manufacturers Association, said liability insurance costs average $100,000 for each new plane. Industry-wide sales have dropped from 17,000 planes in 1979 to 1,495 last year.

"This problem doesn't just affect manufacturers," said Glickman. "It is a problem for general aviation users who are faced with aircraft prices which have become prohibitive to many. This in turn creates a safety problem because it keeps some aircraft flying that should be retired."

Glickman's legislation, which is being considered by three House committees, would establish a uniform federal standard for handling lawsuits against aircraft companies involving allegedly defective or dangerous products.

Reform advocates contend that current laws, which are state matters, have created a web of inconsistent legal standards across the state. Expanded legal theories of liability have added to the problem by causing rapid increases in lawsuits and damage awards, proponents say.

Opponents, mainly the Association of Trial Lawyers of America and several consumer groups, say the legislation would hurt victims of aircraft accidents. They contend it would narrow the liability of manufacturers and make it more difficult for people bringing lawsuits to prove that a product was defective.

A House Energy and Commerce subcommittee held a hearing on Glickman's bill in July.

In the past, supporters have been unable to move the bill or other broader product liability overhauls out of the House because of opposition from Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, which also has jurisdiction over the measure.

Kansas Supreme Court awarded $10,000

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Kansas Supreme Court has been awarded $10,000 from a national foundation for its ability the past six years to dramatically reduce the case backlog in the state's judicial system.

The award, which will be accepted by Chief Justice David Prager at a ceremony Oct. 24 in Atlanta, comes from the Foundation for Improvement of Justice.

The foundation is privately endowed for $1 million with its awards recognizing and rewarding those who make improvements in the judicial system.

It was founded by Judson W. Chapman, a newspaper editor who died in 1952, and his wife, Zena, who is continuing his work.

The Kansas Bar Association nominated the Kansas Supreme Court for the award "in recognition of the court's significant progress in reducing delays in the state's trial courts," said a statement.

Office

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

to Dykstra for that single stamp," said Jeff Spear, fifth-year student in architecture. "So sure the Union may have everything — but if the machines don't work, it's inconvenient."

Students are buying fewer stamps at Dykstra than they did at Anderson, said Nell Piper, office assistant at Dykstra.

"We've checked and we have dropped off in stamp sales," she said. But when students buy stamps at Dykstra, she said, they are buying them in larger quantities.

She said other services such as package mailing seemed about the same but they would know more as the Christmas season approaches and more people are mailing packages.

Runners

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

in which Capriotti has planned on. "When I first came here I thought of recruiting some junior college kids," he said. "Then I decided that they wouldn't be here long enough to get what I wanted out of them. You've got to have four to five years to build a solid program, not one or two."

"I was lucky enough to land the top runners in the state and they are talented enough to win in the Big Eight and on the national level," he added. "Everyone says you can't win with the kids in Kansas. How do they know if they haven't given them a chance?"

That plan is going a lot better than anyone expected — except for Capriotti and his runners.

"Everyone was more or less writing us off last weekend," he said. "I knew these kids could win and they knew they could win, but no one else did. They've worked hard in practice and were ready to run and went out and did what they had to do. I couldn't be any prouder."

For Capriotti, the practices are where the winners are determined and the losers are labeled.

"When I go out to practice I expect them to give 2 1/4 hours of undivided attention," he said. "I'll work them hard, that way I'll know they'll be ready to run when they step on the starting line."

"Before the season started I had goals of finishing in the sixth, seventh or eighth spot," he said. "After this weekend I feel that we can finish within the third, fourth or fifth range."

It's Capriotti's tough practice regimen that the coach believes helps shape these young men into responsible adults.

"The reason I work them so hard is because it's not easy to just go out there and run five miles and expect to win," he said. "I'm trying to help these kids realize responsibility, not only to their schools but to themselves, to make sure they work hard for everything."

"There is only one person that will know whether they have worked hard and ran hard after the race," he said. "That's the runner himself and these kids are doing exactly that."

PRSO

Meeting This Wednesday
September 30
8:30 p.m.—Union Room 212

Don't quit while you're ahead.

Whether you've got a few months or a few years, don't quit until you've got that college diploma you've worked so hard for. Because without it, you'll miss out on a lot of opportunities. One of the greatest of which is being a Marine Corps officer. A rare opportunity indeed. After all, not everyone can be one of us. College undergraduates can call 1-841-1821 (collect) for details.

Wichita Family Planning Inc.

Absolutely Confidential Abortion Services

Free Pregnancy Testing

Immediate appointments, days, weekends, and evening hours.
3013 E. Central Wichita, KS., 67214 (316) 688-0107

ROCKY FORD TAVERN

Tonight

Pitchers $2.10
Draws 85¢

On tap: Coors Light,
Budweiser, Old Milwaukee

"Your Discount Beer Barn"

Now Open on Sundays

Rt. 5 537-3133

"The Finest Little Tavern By A Dam Site"

ALITY SILKSCREENING—FRIENDLY SERVICE—COMPETITIVE QUALITY

TEE'ZERS

Aggieville's Newest Fun Store
620 N. Manhattan 776-5621

Come in and register for our
WEEKLY GIVEAWAY
THIS WEEK: SPUDS MACKENZIE

MYLAR BALLOONS
only $1.90

B.A.S.K.E.T WORKS
DISTRIBUTOR

QUALITY SILKSCREENING—FRIENDLY SERVICE—COMPETITIVE PRICES—FRIENDLY SERVICE

GUITAR and AMP SALE

Hayes House of Music

"We Will Not Be Undersold"

776-7983 327 Poyntz, Manhattan

UPC

UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

UPC Issues and Ideas presents:

A Panel on Robert Bork
Oct. 6, 7 p.m. Little Theatre

The panel will consist of four panelists and will include the opportunity for questions from the audience. Panelists include: Dr. Orma Linford (Professor of Constitutional Law, KSU), Dr. Bill Rich (Professor of Law, Washburn Univ.), George Erikson (Topeka attorney), Dr. Emil Tonkavich (Professor of Law, Washburn Univ.)

k-state union upc issues & ideas

We're Off...

to the

Horse Races in Lincoln, NE

October 10, 1987

$15

includes general admission ticket and round-trip transportation

Sign up now through October 8, 1987
Union Activities Center, 3rd Floor,
8 a.m.-4 p.m.

k-state union upc travel

HANG LOOSE!

ROCK CLIMBING and RAPPELLING
In COLUMBIA, MO.
OCTOBER 10 - 11

4 meals, equipment, demonstration provided!

Cost: $26
Sign up now through
October 6, 1987 in Union Activities
Center 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

k-state union upc outdoor rec.

RISING ARIZONA

A comedy beyond belief.

Nicolas Cage and Holly Hunter star as an unconventional couple—she's a cop and he's a convenience store bandit. Their overwhelming desire for a child leads them to redefine the rules of parenthood when they kidnap one of a set of quintuplets.

Friday and Saturday, Oct. 2 & 3, 7 & 9:30 p.m. Forum Hall, $1.75, KSU ID required. Rated PG-13.

k-state union upc feature films

"Big laughs! Brilliant! One of the most inventive, original comedies in years."
—Joel Siegel, ABC-TV, NEW YORK

Eight French Canadian professors of History gather at a lakefront cottage in Quebec for the weekend where they discuss their sexual exploits with amusing candor. Director Denys Arcand exposes the psyches of his middle-aged subjects, all of whom have been painfully frustrated in their quest for fulfillment through sexual expression.

Today and Tomorrow
September 30 & October 1
Today: 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
Tomorrow: 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
$1.75; KSU ID required.

k-state union upc kaleidoscope

"A comedy that entertainingly and successfully expresses itself through intelligent characters. It's spontaneously funny..."
—Vincent Canby, NEW YORK TIMES

★★★★
A gift package of glittering entertainment. An absolutely delightful surprise."
—William Moseley, GANNETT NEWS SERVICE

"Delightful and illuminating... a provocatively down-to-earth movie about sex."
—David Ansen, NEWSWEEK

"Brilliant... A triumph... This is as splendid a comic-dramatic ensemble as the one in 'Hannah and Her Sisters'..."
—Michael Wilmington, LOS ANGELES TIMES

"Brilliant, witty and entertaining... 'The Big Chill' with a PhD."
—Molly Haskell, VOGUE

"Delicious decadence..."
—Andrew Sarris, VILLAGE VOICE

The Decline of American Empire

Grand 'Ole Opry

The Little Apple Jamboree, formerly known as the Manhattan Grand 'Ole Opry, is located in a refurbished car body shop. See Page 7.

Weather

Sunny today, high 80 to 85. Partly cloudy tonight, low 45 to 50. Partly cloudy Friday, high near 70.

Wednesday in Aneam Field House the University of Kansas and K-State met on the volleyball court for a grueling match. See Page 9.

Thursday
October 1, 1987

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 94, Number 28

Kansas State Collegian

Housing not option for visitors

By The Collegian Staff

K-State's increased enrollment has caused the discontinuance of a new-student program aimed at letting prospective students experience K-State.

Prospective students and their parents can no longer stay on campus due to an increase in students living in campus housing, said Dana Jaax, K-State admissions representative.

Last year prospective students could stay on one of the then-vacant floors in Moore Hall when visiting the campus, she said. Visitors could stay in the dorms Sunday through Thursday for $9.50 per person per day. The fee included dinner and breakfast at Derby Food Center.

"IFC is trying to stay equal with the residence halls. They might make an exception, but they are trying to stay equal."

—Dana Jaax

"We stressed it (staying on campus) last year," Jaax said. "This year we just haven't mentioned it."

The Interfraternity Council has also decided not to permit prospective students to stay in the fraternities, Jaax said.

"IFC is trying to stay equal with the residence halls," she said. "They might make an exception, but they are trying to stay equal."

Panhellenic Council has decided not to let prospective female students stay in sororities either, said Barb Robel, adviser for Greek Affairs.

Several hotels had contacted the admissions office about offering reduced rates to prospective students and their parents, Jaax said.

The University Inn offers three packages, said Nancy King, director of sales. The packages are a bed and breakfast package, a family package and a student bus tour package.

"With the situation in the dorms, there will definitely be a use for it this year," King said.

Holidome director of sales Eileen Roufa said the Holidome offers a discount room rate but only 10 people to 15 people responded to the offer last year. She doesn't think there will be much more response this year.

Staff/Greg Vogel

Fractured collarbone

Jane Burkhart, freshman undecided, is assisted by emergency personnel after being struck by a car shortly after 6 p.m. Wednesday on Claflin Road in front of Throckmorton Hall. The car was driven by Karen Mullen, freshman in pre-veterinary medicine. Both were on their way to a meeting at the Pi Beta Phi house. According to the KSU Police Department, Mullen's vision was hindered by the setting sun. Burkhart was listed in stable condition Wednesday evening at The Saint Mary Hospital with a fractured clavicle.

Court to hear case 'Dramatic impact' foreseen

By Lori Lindstrom
Staff Writer

A case that will have a "dramatic impact" and will be a "serious threat to the freedom as well as the quality" of student publications will soon be reviewed by the U.S. Supreme Court, said Mark Goodman, executive director of the Student Press Law Center in Washington, D.C.

The lawyer spoke Wednesday night in Kedzie Hall library at a joint meeting of the Society of Professional Journalists and the Society for Collegiate Journalists.

The case Goodman is referring to is Hazelwood vs. Kuhlmeier, which deals with the censorship of a public high school newspaper in St. Louis.

"The case is the most significant thing to happen to student publications," Goodman said.

Goodman said the case involved the principal of Hazelwood East High School censoring the student paper by removing two of its pages prior to publication. Goodman said the stories on those pages dealt with teenage pregnancy and the impact of divorce on students.

School district officials claim authority to control the content of the paper through school funding and use of the paper for journalism class, while students claim the paper is created for the students to write stories of interest and to express opinions, he said.

If the school district wins this case in the Supreme Court on Oct. 13, "student newspapers will no longer be what they are today," Goodman said.

"High school papers will go back to being 'rah, rah' sheets. Censorship would make teaching journalism in high schools impossible," he said. "Students will lose the responsibility to make their own mistakes. They won't be prepared as journalists."

Goodman said student publications will be losing the creation of the First Amendment, and "all will suffer from the result of it."

"College papers have the same risk to a lesser extent," he said.

Goodman also cited five other cases during his presentation. The cases involved issues of censorship, editorial and First Amendment rights, and access to public university document records.

Goodman has been with the Student Press Law Center since May 1985.

President believes Bork has enough votes to win

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan on Wednesday disputed a Democratic headcount showing his nomination of Robert Bork in trouble and exhorted the Senate to choose "statesmanship over partisanship" in voting on the embattled Supreme Court nominee.

Reagan said he is optimistic Bork will be confirmed, and both he and White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr. challenged Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston's tally showing at least 49 senators now against confirmation.

Baker acknowledged the administration can count only 40 votes for Bork — the same figure Cranston has — but the Reagan aide said there are just 30 sure votes in opposition and about 30 undecided "souls yet to be saved."

Cranston had said of Bork on Tuesday, "I think he's licked." But his Republican counterpart, Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., predicted on Wednesday that Bork would be confirmed.

By his count, Simpson said, "we're four up with about 20 to two dozen undecided." He said of Cranston, "Al might have cooked his numbers a bit; that's not the kind of trend we see."

Reagan and top-ranking administration officials, reacting to statements by Bork critics that the nomination is endangered, took the offensive as the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings wound to a quiet close on Capitol Hill after 12 days and more than 100 hours of testimony.

In other developments Wednesday:

■ Reagan's predecessor, Jimmy Carter, announced his opposition to Bork's confirmation, saying the nominee's views on civil rights are "particularly obnoxious."

■ Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden announced the panel will vote Tuesday on sending Bork's name to the Senate floor. Still to be decided is whether the nomination will be forwarded with a recommendation of approval or disapproval or with no recommendation.

Cranston, at the Capitol, said a vote of no recommendation would be "a setback to Bork's candidacy" because most nominees receive a favorable recommendation.

Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., has said the full Senate likely will not take up the nomination until around Nov. 1, but Cranston predicted the date would be earlier.

At the outset of the final day of hearings on the 60-year-old Bork, a judge on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, Biden said that 1,925 deans and professors, from 153 of the nation's 172 law schools, have signed letters to the committee opposing Bork.

Dukakis accepts 2 resignations after Biden flap

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — Two days after issuing a denial, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis said Wednesday he had learned that his campaign was the source of a videotape that showed Sen. Joseph Biden lifting part of a speech from a British politician.

Dukakis, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, at first refused to accept the resignation of campaign manager James Sasso, who distributed the tape, but Sasso and another staffer resigned Wednesday afternoon.

"Although I had no knowledge of this, as a candidate in this campaign I accept full responsibility for it."

—Michael Dukakis

The disclosure came two days after Dukakis said he had interviewed all of his paid staffers and was assured none was the source of a videotape showing that Biden had borrowed, without attribution, a moving and apparently personal passage from a speech by British Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock.

"Although I had no knowledge of this, as a candidate in this campaign I accept full responsibility for it," a grim Dukakis said at a morning news conference.

Dukakis called Sasso's action "a very, very serious error in judgment," but had added, "I think his contributions as a public servant outweigh the mistake."

However, Sasso told reporters later that he persuaded Dukakis to accept his resignation. Dukakis also accepted the resignation of Paul Tully, the campaign issues director who was aware of the video distribution, Sasso said.

Tully had joined the Dukakis campaign after working for former Sen. Gary Hart.

Leslie Dach, a campaign communications specialist, was appointed acting manager of the campaign.

Dukakis said he telephoned Biden early Wednesday and apologized.

Biden withdrew from the race last week amid controversy over the tape and other incidents of borrowed rhetoric, and over disclosures that he had misrepresented his law school career.

In Washington, Biden had nothing to say. "I think you ought to talk to the governor. I have no comment at all," the Delaware senator said.

Among the other Democratic candidates, former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, who happened to be in Boston, said the disclosure is "not going to sink (Dukakis's) campaign." But he said he would have fired Sasso. "It simply cannot be tolerated. If there are rules and they are broken, you've got to go," Babbitt said.

Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, whose campaign had been falsely implicated in the video incident, said through an aide, "I hope we can now close the book on this incident and get on with the campaign."

Although supplying reporters with damaging information about political rivals is a common tactic in Massachusetts politics, the Democrats running for president have all stressed their commitment to "positive" campaigns.

It was the second time that Sasso, who took charge of Dukakis' last two campaigns for governor, caused his boss political problems.

Sasso also embarrassed Dukakis in 1982, when he was attempting a political comeback in a tough gubernatorial primary against former Gov. Edward J. King.

A Dukakis supporter obtained a campaign radio spot featuring King's wife, Jody, in which she praised her husband for helping her overcome polio.

The supporter edited the tape to give it a sexual connotation, and Sasso played the edited version for several reporters. When the incident was revealed, Sasso apologized.

Dukakis, who has campaigned on his reputation as an effective manager, addressed reporters' questions about his command over his own staff by saying no chief executive can be aware of all his staff's actions.

"You try to be in control, and yet you try to delegate at the same time. That's what a chief executive tries to do," Dukakis said. "But all of us have been surprised from time to time. I certainly have as governor. What you must do is follow up as quickly as possible when you have found the information."

Briefly

By The Associated Press

Japanese royalty cancel visit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A visit to Manhattan and the Kansas City area this month by Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko of Japan has been canceled.

Hideo Numata, the consul general of Japan in Kansas City, said Wednesday that a visit by the couple to the United States had to be trimmed because of a recent operation on 86-year-old Japanese Emperor Hirohito.

The prince, 54, is Hirohito's eldest son and heir to the 2,600-year-old throne.

The prince and princess will arrive in Boston on Saturday and travel to Washington and New York before departing Oct. 9.

They had planned to be in the Kansas City area Oct. 11-13 and visit a Kansas farm, K-State and the Crown Center complex in Kansas City.

The couple also has canceled visits to Charleston, S.C.; Atlanta; Los Angeles; San Francisco; and Honolulu.

The planned visit was viewed by local and state economic development officials as an opportunity to promote the region as an area for Japanese investment.

CBS morning show to change

NEW YORK — Kathleen Sullivan, now with ABC, will be joining CBS as co-anchor of its revised morning news program, the network announced Wednesday.

Sullivan will join CBS effective Nov. 30, CBS News President Howard Stringer announced.

CBS said Monday that it would scuttle its low-rated "The Morning Program" as of Nov. 30. Co-hosts Rolland Smith and Mariette Hartley and producer Bob Shanks will not be involved in the new broadcast.

The return of the 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. time period is a victory for the news division, which had tried in vain for years to make ratings inroads against NBC's "Today" and ABC's "Good Morning America."

Sullivan joined ABC in 1982, anchored its Olympic coverage in 1984 and currently is substituting as a host on "Good Morning America."

Her co-anchor was not announced.

Bryant, one of few in Kiwanis

ATLANTA — Singer-songwriter Anita Bryant was among 21 women who joined the Atlanta Kiwanis Club as it ended its 69-year-old tradition of all-male membership.

"I didn't quite agree with the Supreme Court ruling that forced them (civic clubs) to take women," she said following her induction Tuesday night. "But it's quite an honor for me to be among the first women."

The other women included a state appeals court judge, a city councilwoman, a newspaper columnist and the governor's press secretary.

Bryant said she joined the Kiwanis because of their reputation for "unselfish service."

Members of the Atlanta chapter, the world's fourth largest Kiwanis club, voted last month to admit women following a similar vote by the international organization.

Bryant, a 1959 Miss America runner-up and former orange juice pitchwoman, was embroiled in controversy in the 1970s when she fought a homosexual rights law in Florida. She moved to Atlanta in 1984.

PTL born again in court

COLUMBIA, S.C. — PTL Chairman Jerry Falwell said Wednesday that the embattled ministry could be out of bankruptcy court by Jan. 1 if those out to "rule or ruin would step aside." Founders Jim and Tammy Bakker, meanwhile, continued their telephone campaign against Falwell.

Falwell, saying PTL is "within shouting distance of victory" as it prepares to file its reorganization plan Thursday, said on the televised "PTL Club" program that the plan is a "good one and a fair one."

PTL filed for reorganization in June under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, which gives it protection from creditors.

Falwell said the law prohibited him from discussing details of the plan to deal with PTL's $69 million debt, but reporters had been told previously that the organization would be split into non-profit and for-profit operations.

Bakker expanded his TV ministry to include a Heritage USA theme park in Fort Mill, S.C., a 2,300-acre community with homes, a water slide, a 16-store shopping mall, hotels, outdoor religious drama and campgrounds.

Falwell took over March 19 after Bakker admitted to a sexual encounter in 1980 with former church secretary Jessica Hahn. At the time, Bakker said he had asked Falwell to step in to protect PTL against a "hostile takeover."

Ellington celebration to begin

NEW YORK — Cabaret pianist Bobby Short, who is spearheading a drive to raise $900,000 for a statue of jazz great Duke Ellington, will play and sing at a "Salute the Duke" gala Oct. 19.

The Lincoln Center gala will also feature opera soprano Jessye Norman, and will be followed by a dinner dance.

The 20-foot-high statue by sculptor Robert Graham will depict the late big-band leader standing at a piano with one hand resting on the keys and the other raised as if to conduct an orchestra.

It will be placed at the northeast corner of Central Park. The statue was Short's idea.

"Duke Ellington was monumental among Americans and particularly among black Americans," said Short. "I think that having a tribute of this proportion for many years to come will inspire young people and remind them of what went on in the past."

Gene Autry a baseball star?

LOS ANGELES — After 80 years, a little boy still rides in the heart of Gene Autry, the singing cowboy whose love of baseball led him to become owner of the California Angels.

"I'm as big a fan as I ever was," said Autry, who marked his eighth decade Tuesday.

He said he dreamed of becoming a major-league baseball star when he was growing up in Tioga, Texas.

As a teen-age shortstop with the local American Legion team, he was offered a contract with the St. Louis Cardinals farm club in Tulsa, Okla.

But Autry said he was concerned about his hitting abilities and the pay — his $150 a month job as a telegraph operator paid $50 more per month than the team offered.

Campus Bulletin

ANNOUNCEMENTS

LAW SCHOOL ADMISSIONS TEST information meeting at 2:45 p.m. in Eisenhower 225 for all who will be taking the LSAT in October or during the current school year.

EMERITUS FALL DINNER will be at 5:30 p.m., Oct. 8, in the Union Ballroom. Tickets are $7.50 and are due to George Larson, 419 Oakdale Drive, Manhattan, before 5 p.m. Oct. 3. Robert De Bruyn, Master Teacher, Inc., will be the featured speaker.

CHIMES HONORARY PARENTS applications are due at 5 p.m. Friday in the Union Activities Center.

GOLDEN KEY HONOR SOCIETY deadline for acceptance is Monday.

AMBASSADOR APPLICATIONS can be picked up in Anderson 122. They are due Monday.

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD registration forms are due Oct. 15 in the Student Government Office.

TODAY

OMICRON NU meets at 6 p.m. in Justin 254.

RODEO CLUB meets at 8 p.m. in Acker 221.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF BLACK ENGINEERS meets at 6 p.m. in Durland 161 to talk about fundraising, national conference and attendance criteria.

CAMPUS CRUSADE FOR CHRIST meets at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

PI SIGMA EPSILON pledge meeting at 6 p.m. in Union 203.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF PROFESSIONAL ENGINEERS meets at 7:40 p.m. in Throckmorton 132 for a discussion on engineering ethics.

SAILING CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Union 207 for a manual review and a written test.

DELTA UPSILON LITTLE SISTERS meet at 8 p.m. at the DU house for tapping.

GAY AND LESBIAN RESOURCE CENTER meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 205 for program scheduling.

COLLEGIATE 4-H meets at 7:30 p.m. in Union 206.

PRE-VET CLUB meets at 7 p.m. in Trotter 201 to take yearbook pictures.

SPORTS CLUB COUNCIL meets at 5 p.m. in Union Student Government Services office. Representatives from all clubs are invited to attend. Members from these clubs are required to attend: rugby, men's and women's soccer, parachute, sailing and rodeo.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS meet at 8 p.m. in Union 203.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF CHEMICAL ENGINEERS meets at 1:30 p.m. in Acker 120.

Blue River Pub

EATING & DRINKING ESTABLISHMENT PRESENTS

FRIDAY & SATURDAY NIGHT

"THE FOXX"

Next to will play top 40 dance rock
Tuttle Creek Dam from 10 p.m.-1 a.m.

537-9877

AMSTERDAM GUITAR
TRIO

"One of the finest guitar ensembles in the world." —Gramophone

Saturday, October 3
8:00 p.m.

McCain Auditorium

General Public: $12
Students/Seniors: $8

Box Office open 12 noon to 5 p.m.
Monday-Friday and from 3 p.m.
on Saturday, October 3
Call 532-6428 to charge tickets to MasterCard or VISA.

This program is presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

THUR.
BIG "C"
NIGHT

(that famous mexican beer with a lime on top)

BIG "C"
MEXICAN BEERS 99¢

DRINKS (ANY BRAND) - $1.50

1115 Moro, Aggieville 776-0030

"Hair Unlimited"

The full service salon
•Super Hair Cutting •Chemical Processing
•Scientific Skin Care 537-4528
1330 Westloop

TONIGHT

All
Mixed
Drinks
$1.50

531 N. Manhattan

Office:
539-4321

Bar:
539-9727

619 N. Manhattan
Come Party at
Aggieville's
Largest Beer
Garden
THURSDAY

Bar Office
539-9081 776-6638

MANHATTAN
TOWN CENTER

Fashion Show Models

Men and women... be a member of the ongoing Team Board.
Bring brief model history and photo to Mall Office, (located at Service Area
B by Dillard's) on Friday,
October 2, from 9-4.

OPENING CONCERT

KANSAS STATE ORCHESTRA

Adrian Bryttan
Conductor and Violin Soloist

Thursday, Oct. 1, 8 p.m.
McCain Auditorium

FREE
ADMISSION

RECORD—TAPE SALE

Now In Progress!

CLASSICAL ROCK FOLK
JAZZ COUNTRY

Records start as low as $1.98!
Cassette tapes as low as $2.98!

Varney's
BOOK STORE
IN AGGIEVILLE

9-9
MON.-SAT.

12-5
SUN.

On the edge of campus, in the heart of Aggieville.

Refillable cups available Union settles sanitation question

By The Collegian Staff

Refillable cups are now available at the K-State Union despite questions about sanitation.

"I didn't check with the health department, but we've had no complaints," said Union Food Service Director Malley Sisson.

The cups made of heavy plastic are manufactured by Aladdin Synergetics, Inc. and are dishwasher safe, said a sales representative for the company.

"I can't think of a regulation that would prohibit the sales of the cups on campus," said K-State Sanitation and Public Safety official Carl Kunish.

The practice of selling the cups was questioned because of a similar situation that occurred at Johnson County Community College. JCCC wanted to make refillable cups available, but was unable to because of city health regulations.

These regulations, applying only to Overland Park, prohibit all sales of refillable cups in the city, said Dennis Day, director of auxiliary services and student activities at JCCC.

He said the city health department prohibited sale of the cups because there is a "possible occurrence of transmission of a disease by using the same vessel."

These regulations do not apply to Manhattan, and the cups are now available in the Union cafeteria, Sisson said.

"We got the idea (for refillable cups) last year when we polled students about the flavor-view clear cups," Sisson said.

The clear cups, intended as space-savers, met with student dissatisfaction because they were not insulated to keep beverages cold and they dripped condensation. The clear cups were replaced with foam cups the Union had used before.

"This is not a money-making project at all," Sisson said.

The refillable cups are not only convenient for students but also provide good K-State promotion as the cups have K-State printed on them, he said.

Senate to discuss ad hoc findings

By The Collegian Staff

Student Senate will hear final reports from two committees concerning Senate representation and activities from previous years at tonight's Student Senate meeting in the Union Big Eight room.

The Representation Ad Hoc committee will be the first to present its committee report. This committee was formed in April to work on an overall improvement in students' perceptions of campus issues.

"This report is a seven-page report covering many topics concerning Senate representation," said Eric Crowell, junior in business management and committee chairman. "Some of the topics we will be discussing are about increasing communication and multi-polling places. We also want to discuss a plan to try to provide for a division of Senate which would bring more off-campus students into the picture."

Senate will also hear from the Constitution Revision Committee, which will report about changes that could be added to the constitution.

Senate will be voting on two bills. The first bill concerns the approval of the newly appointed Senate treasurer, and the second bill requests the approval of seven students as members of the 1988 Student Governing Election Committee.

A first reading will be heard concerning the Utilization and Termination of Student Services Support Fee.

"This bill states that the administration needs to come up with the difference between the $780,000 and $1.069 million proposal for a student services support fee (for the renovation of Holton Hall)," said Michelle Benoit, senior in agricultural economics and Senate chairwoman.

"The students would only be paying for the $780,000 and the financing to get that money," Benoit said.

Special 'anti-coup' force defends Manila

By The Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — Soldiers backed by tanks encircled Manila on Wednesday to block any further attempt to topple President Corason Aquino, but they withdrew after the military said no mutineers tried to enter the city.

Col. Emiliano Templo, chief of staff of the Capital Regional Command, said hundreds of battle-ready soldiers and marines rushed to the edge of the city late Tuesday after receiving reports "that rebel soldiers were coming to Manila."

But Templo said Brig. Gen. Ramon Montano, commander of a new "anti-coup" force, ordered the troops back to the barracks about 18 hours later after no mutineers showed up.

Aquino was swept to power in February 1986 in a "people's power" uprising that deposed President Ferdinand Marcos, who had ruled for 20 years. Marcos now lives in exile in Hawaii.

Wednesday's alert came nearly five weeks after a bloody Aug. 28 coup attempt. At least 53 people were killed in the military mutiny and hundreds wounded, including Aquino's only son, Benigno III.

The latest coup scare set in motion a chain of rumors about "unauthorized troop movements" that highlighted command and control problems within the divided, poorly trained armed forces.

Templo said constabulary troops at a roadblock southeast of Manila intercepted 37 soldiers heading for Manila in private passenger jeeps. Constabulary sources said the soldiers said they were traveling to military headquarters to complain about an officer who "treated them like animals."

Students to attend workshop today

By The Collegian Staff

More than 1,200 high school students and advisers will be attending the annual fall high school journalism workshop today.

This is the sixth year the Department of Journalism and Mass Communications and the Kansas Scholastic Press Association are sponsoring the event.

Registration for the workshop begins at 10 a.m. in the Union. Sessions on newspaper, yearbook, photography and advertising will continue throughout the day in the Union and Kedzie Hall.

Among the workshop guests is keynote speaker Mark Goodman, executive director of the Student Press Law Center and Washington, D.C., lawyer.

Goodman will speak today at 10:55 a.m. in the Union Little Theater about newspaper legal and ethical rights and responsibilities of students and advisers.

Eighty schools are scheduled to attend the workshop.

Haircuts $6
Perms $35

HAIR AFFAIR
Designs for Men & Women
465 E. Poyntz in Town East Center
776-5488

THE ICECREAM SOCIAL

Join us for our 6th Sale
Celebrating our 6th anniversary

- Buy one scoop of ice cream at regular price & get 2nd scoop for 6¢. Cone or dishes (excluding Edy's)
- Buy any size pop at regular price -- get 2nd one (of equal value) for 6¢.
- Register for our gift certificates—cookies & popcorn gift canisters.

(Prices effective Thur. Fri. & Sat.)

537-7079

1439 Anderson

BREADEAUX Piza
French Style PIZA
I'LL GIVE YOU TWO PIZZAS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE.
No tricks. No gimmicks.
776-5577
COUPON

ROCKY FORD TAVERN
TONIGHT
OLD MILWAUKEE NIGHT
Pitchers $1.60
"It just doesn't get any better than this"
• NO DRESS CODE •
• NO COVER CHARGE •
NOW OPEN ON SUNDAYS
THE FINEST LITTLE TAVERN BY A DAM SITE
Rt. 5 537-3133

THURSDAY BREW and BBAMB

1.50 MIXED
DRINKS
(ANY BRAND)

$1.25 BBAMB
BURGERS, BURGERS
AND MORE BURGERS,
$1.25 BURGERS, 5-11

KITES
BAR AND GRILLE
619 N. 12th, Aggieville
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

BE A K-STATE AMBASSADOR

Applications available in
Anderson Hall, Rm. 122

Applications due Monday, Oct. 5

Brother's KSU
Presents
BLIND DATE
TONITE AND TOMORROW

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
THIS FRIDAY & SATURDAY
"LIVE BAND"
FRIDAY—FREE SANDWICH BAR
STARTING AT 4
Tonight the "ORIGINAL"
$ DAZE $

SALES & CLEARANCES!

FASHION COMPANY
AUTHENTIC
FORENZA
SPORTWEAR

BRAND NAMES FOR LESS!

$24<sup>99</sup>

FORENZA & OUTBACK RED
COTTON-BLENDED SWEATERS
VALUES $39.49

NOW $13<sup>99</sup>

Lee CLAUDE
BRITTANIA
& OTHERS
DENIM JEANS & SKIRTS
(Junior & Misses 5-14)
VALUES $27.40

NOW $13<sup>99</sup> LIMITED
EXPRESS
STONEWASHED
COTTON SHIRTS
VALUES $28.29

NOW $13<sup>99</sup>

Hunters Run
15-BUTTON HENLEY TOPS
VALUE $25

DESIGNER AND NAME BRAND FASHIONS FOR LESS!!

IN MANHATTAN
OPEN HOURS:
Mon.-Fri. 10 am - 9 pm
Saturday 10 am - 6:30 pm
Sunday Noon - 5:30 pm

• FREE LAYAWAYS
• RETURN & EXCHANGE PRIVILEGES

Fashion Company

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, October 1, 1987 ■ Page 4

Case will determine student press freedom

Bells rang around the country two weeks ago on the anniversary of the U.S. Constitution. Those bells may well turn to bells of mourning if the U.S. Supreme Court case Hazelwood School District vs. Kuhlmeier is ruled in favor of Hazelwood.

The case deals with the First Amendment freedoms, specifically freedom of the press.

In 1983 at Hazelwood East High School in St. Louis, Mo., a group of high school students, through a class, produced a newspaper. The newspaper contained articles dealing with teenage pregnancy and marriage, and how divorce affects children.

Students at the high school were interviewed, and with their consent, were quoted throughout the articles under pseudonyms. The principal pulled the articles because they were "too sensitive" for high school students.

Censoring the Spectrum, the high school newspaper, led three staff members to file a suit against the school district. A district court ruled in favor of the school district in 1985.

This ruling was overturned by the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals. The Court of Appeals said the student newspaper was a forum for student expression and also that the administration could not show that the articles would disrupt the normal activities of the school or result in financial liability for it.

The school district then appealed the case to the U.S. Supreme Court, and as a result will hear arguments on Oct. 13.

But the ruling will affect more than those three students.

The case will affect high school and college press around the country. This decision could result in high school newspapers which no longer train students in the rudiments of journalism, but rather become administrative mouthpieces.

How will students learn to become investigative reporters — or just good reporters — if they learn during high school that an administration can say "No, you can't print that"? What happens later in their journalistic career when a public official says the same thing? Would the journalist happily say "OK, we won't print that," or would he say "Don't infringe on my First Amendment right to freedom of the press"?

If we raise journalists to accept "no" and allow administrations to restrain their writing, where does it stop? Will this restraint slowly creep into today's press, and will a sleepy, complacent society accept the "administration's" regulations and actions without question?

If the U.S. Supreme Court fails to uphold the Court of Appeals decision, the bells that recently rang in the celebration of the Constitution's bicentennial and in support for all the freedoms it upholds, may well toll for the First Amendment and freedom of the press.

U.S. not ready to elect female president in '88

'Tis a sad state of affairs.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., announced earlier this week she would not run for president of the United States in 1988. Besides bringing down the hopes of many voting Americans for the possibility of a woman president, her decision to not run brings up a painful but true point.

The American voting public is not yet ready to elect a woman president.

She gave many reasons for her decision. Schroeder said she didn't want to succumb to the inevitable artificiality and isolation of a campaign. If this is the case, she shouldn't have even teased the public with her possible candidacy.

She said starting late in the "convoluted and complex" delegate-selection system would have hindered her campaign. Again, she is experienced enough not to have whetted our political tastebuds.

Schroeder's failure to raise enough money (her goal was $2 million of which her campaign raised no more than $1 million) is a legitimate reason for not even getting into the starting blocks. However, she said this was not an important factor in her decision not to run.

If she is wise enough to have been aware of the first two excuses before hand and the third she concedes was not a factor, what, then, caused Schroeder to quash the hopes of her supporters?

Schroeder was testing the waters. A legitimate presidential campaign is a huge investment. It is not something to be entered into lightly. People donating money and time, including the candidate, expect something in return.

It would seem Schroeder's pollsters had bad news. The majority of the voting American public will not elect a woman president of the United States of America.

Rather than waste money she didn't have — unlike fellow Coloradoan Gary Hart — on a futile campaign, Schroeder made a pragmatic economical and political decision.

"I will not run as a Tinkerbell," she said during a meeting of the National Conference of State Legislatures last summer. "Either the people are ready for it, or I don't want to be any part of it."

Obviously she believes the people are not ready for it.

It would seem this is not a set back to the future of equality of the sexes or to the chances of future female presidential candidates, but rather an example of the current sad state of affairs of the two.

The shame lies not in that Schroeder would not run for president because a woman can't be elected. Her story is but one small blemish in this nation's history. The shame lies in the cancerous fact that NO woman can be elected president.

Campus apathy runs rampant

The headline in Wednesday's Collegian said it all. "No opinion" tops nomination poll," the words read.

For those who missed the issue or saw the word "Bork" and immediately skipped to the next story, this is what a poll conducted by the Collegian revealed: Of the 545 students and faculty members surveyed, 28.8 percent oppose the nomination of Robert Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court, and 21.7 percent want to see him as its newest member.

And 49.5 percent had no opinion — meaning they either didn't know who Robert Bork is or didn't care if he's confirmed or whatever other reason falls into that broad "no opinion" definition.

But, regardless of rationale, that apathetic 50 percent is basically saying one thing: Leave the decisions to someone else.

And that pervasive attitude is frightening, especially considering this is the educated community. What about the "general" public? How much higher must the apathy be nationwide?

When Collegian staff members conducted this survey, the general ignorance of people was simply astounding. Of course, the number of people who had no opinion was surprising, but the number of respondents who replied "Who is Bork?" was amazing.

Where have these people been? How have

Commentary

DERON JOHNSON
Editor

they not heard of the man who's been displayed prominently in newspapers and on television for weeks?

...the number of respondents who replied "Who is Bork?" was amazing.

I'm sure a lot of you are thinking that it's easy for me — a journalist — to say everyone should know someone who's been in the news lately. I'm also sure a lot of you are thinking that another column on apathy is going to solve nothing.

And, unfortunately, those people are probably right on both counts.

But that doesn't make the ignorance on this campus any more acceptable. According to statistics professor Paul Nelson, the Collegian survey, which was conducted using a scientific formula, was accurate to plus or minus 4.3 percent. So, the survey is a fairly accurate picture of the campus as a whole.

More than frustrating, the survey results are puzzling. Political observers agree that the Bork nomination has generated more controversy than any other in recent years, and people have been lining up on both sides of the issue for weeks.

Conservatives and so-called "pro-family" people are pushing for Bork's confirmation because his political ideology is such that they think he will help restore old-fashioned values via conservative interpretations of the Constitution.

Liberals want him out of the Court because they believe he will set U.S. society back a decade or two.

Regardless of how people feel about Bork, one thing is true: There's a lot to think about with his nomination.

Yet this campus — and much of America, I suppose — insists on foundering in its own ignorance, confident that others "will handle it."

And the distorted fantasy lives on.

Educational system destructive

In our educational systems today, two things inhibit its efficiency. The retention of compulsory education in our school system is as anachronistic as corporal punishment, forcing the school to be narrow-minded. Also, learning is not promoted because educators insist on packaging instruction with testing. To learn means to acquire a new skill or insight, while testing depends on an opinion which others have formed.

Our current educational system is destructive. William Evans, a professor at Michigan State University, explains why compulsory education causes alienation. "The enforced, threatening quality of education in America has taught people to hate school, to hate the subject matter..." He goes on to say most children are so adverse to reading that they learn not to read instead of to read, and after graduation they seldom pick up a book. In fact, the current learning process does not develop in the individual the capacities for cooperation, autonomy and judgment.

The best bet for our system is to stop compulsory education. America's commitment to compulsory education is as futile as Reagan's pretended commitment to the democratization of the Contras. Conventional schools obviously cannot succeed. The reasons are varied.

First, the culture of schools can impede rather than facilitate the educational values we embrace. Second, its authoritarian means are similar to those found in a slave state, with the diplomas, credentials, grades and especially compulsion. Next, schools disable learning by promoting custodial care, social role selection, and indoctrination.

By succumbing to these temptations, the aims of educational theory reduce themselves to a sad mockery in everyday practice. This can be seen by examining the school systems. The schools are failing to teach what they pretend to teach. They are failing in their

Commentary

MIKE KRUEGER
Collegian Columnist

attempt to teach science, math and English.

The last problem with schools are grades. The value is implicit within the schools in terms of hierarchy. Schools reflect a dominant value and maintain the stratification process. They make it seem natural and inevitable that hierarchies are inherently correlated and cannot be independent of each other. It denies consciousness of the individual.

Compulsion and institutionalization in our educational system are detrimental. By decreeing the only knowledge of any intrinsic worth be institutionally sanctioned, schools create the illusion they are indispensable. As an opiate of the people, it is highly successful. It creates a self-fulfilling prophecy. Thus, we lose freedom in action and thought. Schools make people dependent on them through monopoly, compulsory attendance, and by issuing credentials that are "essential" for employment.

Additions to curriculum multiply these atrocities. These additions give the impression that classrooms are the only place that subjective matter can be made interesting for and assimilated by students isolated from the phenomena of daily living. As a result, the world is full of people who believe themselves mentally dumb because they have never recovered from the long-term effects of going to school.

Obligatory schooling polarizes society. It grades everyone and every country according to an international caste system. Countries and people are put into castes according to the number of years the citizens were educated. We need a profound shift in educational goals if we are to survive in this world. "Ere long, humankind will face grave difficulties that will need to be approached on a global scale."

Education is not moving rapidly enough to provide the knowledge about the outside world and the attitudes toward other people that may be essential for human survival in the generations to come. The social revolution demands schools be replaced with new learning contexts — humane, loving, supportive and integrated with on-going life. They must encompass old and young together, rediscovering each other, life processes, and their relation to the earth and fellow people. The antiseptic school world as it is now must be abandoned.

The plan of action that should be taken adopts a non-standard of academics; i.e., banning grades. Compulsory attendance should be abolished. Discrimination based on standards (tests) should be eliminated. This shift in policies would allow the "free-schools" to be able to teach effectively.

If education is to reflect the pluralistic society in which we live, our need is not for standardization, but for an opening of the possibilities for experimentation with ways of teaching, learning and living. When motivation to learn is the person's own and not something forced on him/her, her/his curiosity, absorption and responsibility for progress is immeasurably greater than when a person is required to learn and proceed at someone else's behest. The diversification of education could provide structure for an educational system that would be more effective.

Kansas State Collegian

EDITOR
Deron Johnson
MANAGING EDITOR
Becky Lucas
NEWS EDITOR
Jeff Bielser

PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR
John Thelander
ADVERTISING MANAGER
Judy Goetz

EDITORIAL BOARD: Kirk Caraway, Deron Johnson, Becky Lucas, Judy Lundstrom, Alison Neely, Patti Paxson, Chad Sanborn and Erwin Seba.

THE COLLEGIAN (USPS 291 020) is published by Student Publications Inc., Kansas State University, daily during the fall and spring terms except Saturdays, Sundays, holidays and University vacation periods. OFFICES are in the north wing of Kodzie Hall, phone 532-6555. SECOND CLASS POSTAGE paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: calendar year, $40; academic year, $35; semester, $20; summer term, $10. Address changes and letters to the editor should be sent to the Kansas State Collegian, Kodzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Family Center offers free counseling

By Brenda Badostain
Collegian Reporter

People having problems with roommates, spouses, or lovers, or who just need to talk don't need to seek expensive, outside counseling. Help that doesn't cost a fortune is available, confidential and right here at K-State.

The Family Center, located in Ellen Richards Lodge northwest of Justin Hall and southeast of King Hall, is a teaching, research and training center, said Tony Jurich, director of marriage and family therapy.

It has existed since 1972 when "a bunch of us (in human development and family studies) decided that we needed an outreach arm," he said.

When the center was started it was split into two components — marriage and family therapy and family life education, Jurich said.

Eventually other services were added as part of the center's offerings, he said.

Family life education and marriage and family therapy are still the services used most frequently, Jurich said.

In the marriage and family therapy component, "we deal with relationship things and issues that come out of relationships," Jurich said.

"We work with people who want to improve relationships," he said. "We work specifically with things like communication — we do premarital counseling."

He said engaged couples at the point of breaking up have come to the center for help.

Many times, he said, they've "worked together for a short time, stayed engaged, got married and are doing fine."

"Some couples have gone ahead and broken up, but they understand why and they're better equipped for the next relationship."

He said the center also deals with divorce.

"If one of the student's parents are going through a divorce, we'll help him through it. We work with divorce in terms of boyfriends — girlfriends breaking up," Jurich said.

He said the center also works with people "in terms of family of origin."

"If you have a student who's being hassled by his parents and doesn't know what to do about it, we're the people he should come and see because we'll sit and work with him," Jurich said.

"We have several cases right now where we're working with students and when we come to a certain place we sit there and say now would be a good time for the parents to come; and the parents are invited and we work with the students and the parents," he said.

The center deals with various roommate situations, Jurich said.

"We had a whole sorority one time," he said.

Jurich said the center's family life education component is a preventive and educational service.

He said the center takes "contracts and requests for any kind of speeches or programs that have to do with the content that we specialize in."

"For instance, Wamego School District wanted people to go over and talk...on self-esteem and kids and how teachers and parents can deal with that," he said. "We went over and did the program for two months — once a week for two months."

Jurich said most of the work done at the family center is done by students.

"We are a teaching and research and training center — we do services, but we do services as part of the training for our students," he said.

The students who do therapy are second-year master's students or doctorate students, he said.

"Most of our Ph.D. students are people coming back to school to pick up a Ph.D., and most have been counselors in agencies all over the country," he said.

The students must go through two screenings before they can do therapy, Jurich said. One screening is through the graduate school and the other is through the family center.

In addition, all students who do any therapy must have a supervisor, he said. The supervisors are former doctorate students or the three faculty members on staff at the family center.

The Family Center is open to students, faculty, staff, the people of Manhattan and the people from this region of the state, Jurich said.

"We have a case that comes regularly from Washington, Kan.," he said. "We have another that comes from Clay Center. For some people, going (for counseling) in their home-town's not going to be the easiest thing to do."

"We're very confidential — it does not go on your student record," he said.

He said the center's form of payment is based on a sliding fee scale.

"The sliding fee scale goes as high as $60, down to $5," Jurich said. "Students on a student income — we're talking $5 to $10."

Looking for an apartment? Check Collegian Classifieds

Tuesdays & Thursdays
55¢ draws
Coors Light & Budweiser on tap at the 3rd St. Pub

FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK

HUNAM EXPRESS
egg roll & fried rice $1.25
1116 Moro 11 a.m.-1 a.m. 537-0896

NEED A NEW IMAGE? INTERVIEWING? CHANGING JOBS?

CAREER ENHANCEMENT SEMINAR
FOR
WOMEN IN TRANSITION

Learn to create a positive image
How to develop an interview wardrobe
How to accessorize (new tricks with scarves and jewelry)
New hair and makeup techniques
To sell yourself to the interviewer
What prospective employers look for when they interview

THURS., OCT. 1, 7-9 p.m.
Wareham Room—Cotton Club
418 Poyntz

WIN A COMPLETE GLAMOUR MAKEOVER!
REGISTRATION $3 at the door
Presentations by:
Fashion: Laurie Grete & Co.
Hair: Jacquie Grete & Co.
Makeovers: Consultants Mary Kay
Interviews: Rick Mann Ka. St. Bank

KU hires Carlin as consultant

By The Associated Press

LAWRENCE — John Carlin, who turned to the academic world after leaving the governor's mansion early this year, is taking on a role at a second state university.

The former governor, a professor of urban affairs and public administration at Wichita State University, is also serving as a part-time consultant at the University of Kansas on international economic development and local government affairs. He said he will spend about one day a month at KU.

Frances Horowitz, vice chancellor for research and graduate studies, said Carlin will be paid $500 a month as an economic development consultant for KU's Center for International Programs and a government consultant for the Institute of Public Policy and Business Research.

Carlin, who went on several trade missions to Europe, Japan and China during eight years as governor, will work with George Woodyard, associate vice chancellor of academic affairs, in the center for international affairs.

Yom Kippur
High Holiday Services
Kol Nidre
Friday Evening
Oct. 2
7:30 p.m.
Saturday, Oct. 3
Morning Service 10 a.m.
Memorial Service 6 p.m.
Break-the-fast following at

Manhattan Jewish Congregation
1509 Wreath Ave.
Students who wish to share supper with a local Jewish family may call
Matt—532-6096 or Dave—539-6177 (evenings)

BUD LIGHT

1987
Attention
Flag Football Teams
"Do it for Lou" Weekend
Friday: 3 p.m. First round of games
8 p.m. "Do it for Lou" party at Phi Delt house. Featuring "The Catch."
Saturday: Second round of games
Sunday: Last round of games and presentation of trophies.
Don't forget to get your raffle tickets for dinner for two and an evening at the University Inn. All proceeds go to the National ALS Foundation. (Lou Gehrig's Disease.)

THIS IS AN
ALL-UNIVERSITY PARTY.
I.D.s REQUIRED.
$1 DONATION
AT THE DOOR.

BUD LIGHT

Falsetto's
PIZZA
539-3830

For the Best "Homemade" Pizza in town with the Best "Hometown" Price
Two Delicious Homemade Pizzas

$5.99
Free Delivery

MENU
Italian Sausage Pepperoni Ground Beef	Mushrooms Black Olives Onions	Jalapenos Pineapple Green Peppers	Ham Extra Cheese
		TWO 10"	TWO 14"
Cheese .....	5.99	8.99
1 Item .....	6.94	10.39
2 Items .....	7.89	11.79
3 Items .....	8.84	13.19
4 Items .....	9.79	14.59
Deluxe .....	9.79	14.59
Veggie .....	9.79	14.59
Supreme .....	10.74	15.99
Each Additional Item .....	.95	1.40

Prices do not include tax
1127 Moro • In Aggieville
We accept checks

Yearbook Portraits

TODAY: Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Kappa Tau, Phi Kappa Theta, Off Campus

Oct. 2: Phi Kappa Theta, Pi Beta Phi, Off Campus

Be a part of it! Get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple yearbook. Take your stamped fee card to UNION 209. To make your appointment call 539-5229. If you live in organized housing, follow the Collegian for photo schedules.

HOLIDAY STYLE

"The moment she saw that diamond, this Mr. Right could do no wrong."

Own A Masterpiece

DANENBERG'S
Holiday
JEWELLERS

OPEN LATE TONIGHT
425 POYNTZ MANHATTAN 913-776-7821

AUTUMN Spectacular

Sale starts Oct. 1st

- Winter Sportswear
- Wardrobe from Kenar, J.G. Hook, Claiborne, J.G. Hook, Ruth Hewn ..... 1/4 to 1/3 Off
- Exciting Novelty Fall Wool Sweaters ..... 25% Off
- Cotton Turtle Necks ..... 2 for 20.00
- Shaped Wool Flannel Trousers ..... 25% Off
- Denim Jeans and Short Denim Skirts ..... 25% Off
- Silk Blouses, Short & Long Sleeve ..... 25% Off
- Corduroy, Button Front Full Skirt ..... 25% Off
- Wool Coats and Novelty Sweater Coats ..... 25% Off
- Selected Jewelry ..... 25% Off
- Twill Safari Dresses ..... 25% Off

*Not all items available at all stores
Relocating to Manhattan Town Center Oct. 26

SCOT'S LTD.
1223 Moro—Aggieville M-S 10-6, Thurs. 10-8:30, Sun. 1-5

Reagan denounces book

Casey's widow receives support

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, after telephoning the widow of CIA Director William J. Casey to offer his support, on Wednesday denounced as "an awful lot of fiction" a book that says Casey arranged for a Middle Eastern assassination attempt.

The president, in an exchange with reporters, also said he did not and would not authorize any assassination attempts and does not believe Casey undertook any covert operations without his knowledge as related in the book by Bob Woodward.

Woodward, an assistant managing editor of The Washington Post, said in an interview published Wednesday by the Los Angeles Times that his hospital meeting with Casey, in which he described Casey as indicating he had known about the diversion of Iranian arms sale profits to Nicaragua rebels, was "not 100 percent conclusive."

"On the reporter level, I don't have evidence. I have a nod," Woodward said. "I would not describe Casey as completely lucid."

Woodward's four-minute hospital interview with Casey, disclosed in his new book, "Veil: The Secret Wars of the CIA, 1981-1987," has brought denials from Casey's widow, Sophia.

Mrs. Casey said Sunday, "That is untrue. It's a lie. He never got in to see my husband."

Woodward said he was barred from visiting Casey on Jan. 22, but was admitted on a later occasion.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan telephoned Mrs. Casey, who lives in Roslyn, N.Y., Monday night. "He called her to offer his support," Fitzwater said.

Reagan was asked about Woodward's allegations after a ceremony in the White House Roosevelt Room, where he celebrated the administration's privatization of government loans. At the ceremony, the president received a mock-up of a $3.45 billion check, representing profits from the sale of government loan portfolios.

"I think that there's an awful lot of fiction about a man who was unable to communicate at all and is now being quoted as if he were doing nothing but talk his head off," the president said.

Woodward reports in the book that Casey circumvented normal CIA channels and personally arranged for three covert operations, including an assassination attempt that went awry and resulted in the death of 80 people when a car bomb exploded in a Beirut suburb on March 8, 1985.

The object of the alleged assassination attempt was Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, the leader of a Shiite Moslem faction known as the "Party of God."

Woodward also says that Casey's deputy, John N. McMahon, opposed the operation on grounds that Reagan had issued an executive order expressly forbidding assassination.

Reagan, asked if he had signed a directive that led to the deaths in Beirut, said, "No. And I have a copy of the measure that I signed."

"It was nothing but that we were all approving a plan requested of us by the government of Lebanon to help them encounter terrorism," he said. "Never would I sign anything that would authorize an assassination. I never have and I never will and I didn't."

When asked whether Casey carried out any covert operations without his knowledge, Reagan first said, "Not that I know of" and then said, "No, I think I did know, and there are a lot of things he's being charged with right now. ... And I don't think any of them have a basis in fact."

Proposal features changes for 34 KCC rural cooperatives

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Corporation Commission tentatively approved Wednesday its staff's proposal to change the way the KCC regulates 34 of Kansas' rural electric distribution cooperatives.

Staff members told the commission at its weekly administrative meeting the plan would improve the rate case filing procedure for the RECs without deregulating them.

The main features of the change would be a reduced time frame and lower expenses for the cooperatives when they file for rate increases, and greater customer involvement in the cooperatives' decisions.

The plan would replace the present KCC rule which permits cooperatives' rate cases to receive expedited treatment under certain conditions.

Once the KCC gives its final approval to the proposal, it will be submitted in regulation form to the Department of Administration and will be the subject to public hearing. If approved by the secretary of administration and attorney general, the new regulation would take effect next May 1.

The 34 RECs affected by the proposed regulation serve 141,000 electric customers in the state. The big Sunflower Electric Cooperative and Kansas Electric Power Cooperative, who sell electricity at wholesale to distribution cooperatives, could not use the new procedure.

K-STATE PLAYERS

ON THE VERGE
by Eric Overmyer

THURS.-SAT.
Nichols Theatre 8 p.m.
12-5 532-6398 M-F

GUITAR and AMP SALE

Hayes House of Music
"We Will Not Be Undersold"

776-7983 327 Poyntz, Manhattan

Burke's
404 Poyntz
Downtown Manhattan

THURSDAY MADNESS
Thursday, October 1, 9 AM-9 PM

15% OFF STOREWIDE SAVINGS

SHOES FOR MEN WOMEN CHILDREN

OPEN SUNDAYS 1-5

Live Entertainment
Every Friday & Saturday
Appearing This Week
OVAL TEENS
9 p.m.-1 a.m.

University Club
Restaurant and Drinking Establishment
17th & Anderson, 539-7531

*****

We are really excited to have you as our new dots!

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA 1987 PLEDGE CLASS

Brenda Allen	Debbie Doctor	Mary Kunkel	Kim Ryan
Janel Allerhellen	Tracy Dorr	Mary Lett	Jennifer Sandberg
Peggy Anderson	Tammy Golladay	Alaina Martin	Stephanie Scott
Jeanette Bales	Sheila Graber	Melanie Martin	Shannon Seely
Jenny Barenberg	Beth Hileman	Molly McCluskey	Deborah Seibold
Nichole Beaudry	Angela Holliday	Diana Ott	Sandy Skelton
Angie Brauer	Char Hoppe	Elisha Perry	Kelli Taylor
Suzanne Brown	Stephanie Hortsman	Stacy Pfeiffer	Kathy Tryon
Kelly Buttron	Diane Howe	Diane Pulford	Christine Wallace
Connie Coltrane	Kristin Johnson	Carl Richert	Sommer Weelborg
Alex Dean	Mary Kate Jordan	Christina Ross	Nancy Weigand
Julie Dibble	Kim Kincaid	Jill Royer	Jennifer White

L & L, The Kappa Actives

REX'S TIRE CO.

CORDOVAN CRITERION ALL SEASON 29<sup>95</sup>
P155-80R13

SIZE	REPLACES	REG. PRICE	SALE
P155-80R13		56.33	29.95
P165-80R13	AR 78X13	57.69	32.77
P175-80R13	BR 78X13	51.11	34.78
P185-80R13	CR 78X13	61.25	35.13
P185-75R14	DR 78X14	66.18	37.27
P195-75R14	ER 78X14	67.39	38.27
P205-75R14	FR 78X14	73.29	41.62
P215-75R14	GR 78X14	76.82	43.73
P205-75R15	FR 78X15	74.11	42.18
P215-75R15	GR 78X15	79.38	45.09
P225-75R15	HR 78X15	81.67	46.39
P235-75R15	LR 78X15	87.04	49.44

—SPECIAL PURCHASE—
HIGH PERFORMANCE RADIALS

P185/70R13	49 <sup>28</sup>
P195/70R13	52 <sup>41</sup>
P215/70R14	52 <sup>80</sup>
P225/70R14	62 <sup>50</sup>
P225/70R15	64 <sup>72</sup>
P235/60R14	69 <sup>72</sup>
P235/60R15	69 <sup>31</sup>

RADIALS
60's — LIMITED STOCK — 70's

90 Days Same As Cash
when purchased on our "Money Express" card

YOU CAN'T BUY THE RIGHT TIRE IF YOU DON'T HAVE A CHOICE

REX'S TIRE Co.

IN MANHATTAN
1001 North 3rd
2829 Anderson
HOURS: 8:30 to 6:00 Mon. thru Sat. Thursday 8:00

PEOPLE POWER IN DEMAND

if you:

- find other people interesting
- like variety and excitement in your work
- require a flexible schedule
- need some extra cash

THEN BECOME A PART OF A NATIONALLY-RECOGNIZED TEAM.

Interested individuals contact:
Boyd Food Center (532-6484).
Derby Food Center (532-6483).
Kramer Food Center (532-6482).

InFocus Thursday

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, October 1, 1987 ■ Page 7

A Little Bit Country

The Little Apple Jamboree is located off Tuttle Creek Boulevard.

It's not quite Nashville — there's no Minnie Pearl or live commercials, just a small-time theater full of big-time enthusiasm and genuine musical talent.

The Little Apple Jamboree, formerly known as the Manhattan Grand 'Ole Opry, is located off Tuttle Creek Boulevard in a refurbished car body shop.

Blue gingham curtains adorn the windows, enhancing the country atmosphere. Five spotlights shine on the small stage and comfortable old theater seats fill the room.

A bulletin board filled with pictures of past guests hangs proudly next to the small concession stand.

It doesn't have the grandeur the Nashville Grand Ole Opry has, but it does give local performers an opportunity to be heard, which is exactly what partners Bobby Pugh and Paula French want it to do.

Bobby Pugh refuses to give up music after spending 21 years in the business. He spent eight years on the road in a band with agent problems. After tiring of the routine, he decided to give others a chance to perform and opened up the Jamboree.

On March 20, 1987, the Little Apple Jamboree opened its doors to give Manhattan a taste of some local talent in a relaxed, alcohol-free atmosphere.

Since operations began, the music hall has been known as the Manhattan Grand 'Ole Opry, but that has changed.

Opryland, located in Nashville, Tenn., sent a name change request to the Opry. The request stated the local establishment could not use the name "Opry" within their official title due to the Grand 'Ole Opry seal.

They suggested new name possibilities and encouraged the Manhattan Grand 'Ole Opry to change.

Brainstorming produced the name of "Little Apple Jamboree," which encompasses all phases of music, not just country.

Pugh and his partner, Paula, spend every Friday night and Saturday night at the Jamboree.

"Family entertainment at it's finest, a toe-tapping good time — truly something for everyone," is the advertised guarantee. Different shows each week offer a variety of entertainment to the patrons.

K-State students such as Garth Gardiner, "You Can Be A Star" participant, and Andy Newbrey, nationally recognized clogger, have been entertainers at the Jamboree.

Newbrey has danced his way from Manhattan to Branson, Mo., to Nashville where he has performed on both "Hee Haw" and the "Grand 'Ole Opry."

Noted performers are not unusual to the Jamboree. Bobby Holbrook, well-known Nashville songwriter, stopped for a visit en route to Colorado.

Age has no bearing on performing at this music hall. Performers have ranged in age from five to 83. On any Saturday night, five-year-old Nicki Woellhof plays a mean tambourine and sings her favorite "Hey Good-Lookin." She joins her mother, Shirley, and father, Darrel, who sing and play guitar in the regular back-up band.

The performers practice each Saturday prior to the following week's show. The local band backs up the evenings scheduled performer.

Pugh generally plays drums, bass and lead and is the emcee. Other band members include Vic Carlton, lead guitar; Jimmy Hinz (who is also blind), piano; and Darrel Woellhof, bass. Shirley Woellhof often sings lead and plays tambourine.

"We try to get variety — not just country," said Pugh. He pointed out that the Jamboree doesn't want to limit itself to just country and gospel music.

One unique feature about the Little Apple Jamboree is that any person connected with the University receives a discount.

Any form of college ID, whether student, faculty or staff will get a $1 discount off the $4 price.

The owners maintain their show offers two good hours of family entertainment.

"We are always done by 10 p.m. and that still leaves time for someone to go out if they want," said Pugh.

Even though the Jamboree offers an alcohol-free atmosphere, the owners are not against alcohol. They feel it is in their best interest not to obtain a liquor license.

It's one big happy family, all working together to put on an entertaining show. The only paid staff members for the Jamboree are the musicians who perform for a flat rate. Volunteer workers fill in at the concessions and ticket sales.

An unexpected feature of the hall is the gift shop at the entrance, which sells hand-crafted items. Patrons can purchase "a little bit of country" at the shop.

Minnie Pearl may not be there to say "Ya'll come back now." However, you can bet Bobby Pugh will thank you for coming to visit the Little Apple Jamboree and ask you to come again to listen to some of the "best strummin, singin' and fiddlin' in the land."

The hall is open on Friday and Saturday nights from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Blind band member Jimmy Hinz plays piano for the band as well as providing vocals.

Story by: Janette Poole

Photos by: Steve Rasmussen

Above: Performers for a given evening's entertainment provide the audience with a variety of music ranging from country to gospel. Right: Tad Albright watches his wife, Linda, perform onstage as their two-year-old son, Elijah, focuses his attention elsewhere.

Fire in crowded house kills 12 people

By The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — One of the worst fires in the city's history swept through an overcrowded two-story house in a poor neighborhood Wednesday, killing 10 children and two adults who were about to be evicted for failing to pay rent.

Eleven of the dead were found on the second floor, trapped there when flames destroyed the main staircase, officials said. The ages of the children ranged from 11 months to 8 years.

Three adults who escaped the fire also lived in the home, located on

Blaze possibly Milwaukee's worst

Milwaukee's North Side, official said.

"The children were so friendly," said Dottie Brewster, a neighbor who lived in an adjacent house which was damaged by the fire. "They were happy all the time."

Lt. Charles Grisham of the Milwaukee Police Department said the deaths appeared to be caused by smoke.

The fire, reported at 4:42 a.m., started in the first floor of the house, apparently in the kitchen, said James Rechlitz, a fire battalion chief. Investigators did not know the cause immediately, but tentatively ruled out arson.

"We had enough people but because of the intensity of the fire it took several minutes to knock it down before we could begin search and rescue operations," Rechlitz said.

"We never expected to see this much fire in an occupied home,"

Rechlitz said. "If it was a vacant building, that was one thing, but this was full of people."

The owner of the building, Emmett Echols, said the residents were about to be evicted because they were two months behind on their rent.

The rental agreement, Echols said, provided that four people were to live in the house. He said he learned there was more than that number after a workman doing renovations at the single-family, wood-and-brick home reported seeing several families inside.

"I didn't know they were all living there," Echols said. "They had too many people living in the house. They should have never moved in."

Rosella Ramthun, the mother of one survivor, Jill Schreck, said her daughter was due in court Wednesday to fight the eviction notice, but the residents nonetheless were preparing to leave the house.

"They had everything packed. They were going to move," said Ramthun, who lives down the street from the house.

Ramthun said the residents complained about faulty wiring in the home, but Echols said the electrical system was safe.

A building inspection on Sept. 8 found 21 code violations, including several defective electrical fixtures. But Robert Peterson, supervisor of building code enforcement for the city, said he doubted the fire was related to the violations.

KPTA asks for state funds

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — State funding of transportation for the elderly and handicapped would enhance those services in rural areas, lawmakers were told Wednesday.

Kent Hall, representing the Kansas Public Transit Association, told the Special Committee on Transportation that state funding would improve the "patchwork" system of public and private nonprofit agencies that provide rides for older Kansans and the handicapped.

"What we have now is not a network," Hall said.

A central state office that would coordinate transportation services would brighten the lives of many elderly and handicapped Kansans, especially those living in isolated, rural areas, he said.

"It wouldn't take a lot of money to make a difference on the system," Hall told the committee. "A couple of hundred thousand dollars a year could make an impact over a three- or four-year period."

Kansas does not earmark money for transportation for the elderly and handicapped, one of 10 states in the nation that provides no funding. Most of the agencies in Kansas that provide rides for the elderly receive federal funds with local matching dollars.

Europe to ban meat imports

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., called on the Reagan administration today to redouble its efforts to head off a plan by the European Economic Community to ban imports of U.S. meat treated with growth hormones.

The proposed ban is scheduled to take effect Jan. 1, unless some compromise is reached with the 12-nation EEC, or Common Market.

"We cannot afford to let this directive go unchallenged," Kassebaum said in a letter to U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter.

The United States is the main foreign supplier of "variety meats"

Krystallos
"Beautiful Objects from the Earth"

8855 E. Hwy. 24
(By the L.W. Wilson Cabinet Shop)
Thurs.-Sun. 10:30-6 539-0360

New New New
CAR WASH
FOUR BAYS
619 N. 3rd St.
Across from Pizza Hut
Brand new and no waiting

 Petland
It's Coming Oct. 26—Manhattan Town Center

 SCHLIEBE
WORKOUT CENTERS

OVER 30 HIGHLY MOTIVATING SPORTS
FITNESS CLASSES INSTRUCTED DAILY

- OLYMPIC FREEWEIGHTS
- FULL LINE OF EUROPEAN DAVID EQUIPMENT
- AEROBICYCLES
- WOLFF TANNING BEDS
- LOCKER ROOM FACILITIES
- FREE NURSERY

PERSONALIZED PROGRAMS
ARE OUR SPECIALTY

3236 Kimball 776-1750

AXΩ

Alpha Chi Omega
would like to thank all the houses that helped make Greek Playboy such a great success!!

Fraternities:	Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Acacia	Sigma Chi
Alpha Gamma Rho	Sigma Nu
Alpha Kappa Lambda	Sigma Phi Epsilon
Alpha Tau Omega	Tau Kappa Epsilon
Beta Sigma Psi	Triangle
Beta Theta Pi
Delta Sigma Phi	Sororities:
Delta Tau Delta	Alpha Delta Pi
Delta Upsilon	Alpha Gamma Delta
FarmHouse	Alpha Xi Delta
Kappa Sigma	Chi Omega
Lambda Chi Alpha	Delta Delta Delta
Phi Delta Theta	Gamma Phi Beta
Phi Gamma Delta	Kappa Alpha Theta
Phi Kappa Tau	Kappa Delta
Phi Kappa Theta	Kappa Kappa Gamma
Pi Kappa Alpha	Pi Beta Phi
Pi Kappa Phi	Sigma Sigma Sigma

LIVING ETHICAL WILLS
Union State Room #3
12:00 Noon
TODAY

This series gives an excellent opportunity to receive the "bequest" of a campus leader, in terms of what she/he hopes to leave humanity as guiding principles for life.

William W. Sutton
Professor of Biology

UPC
UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL

FILMS INCORPORATED PRESENTS

The Decline of the American Empire

TODAY!
3:30 p.m. Little Theatre
7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
$1.75 KSU I.D. Required

"A comedy that entertainingly and successfully expresses itself through intelligent characters. It's spontaneously funny..." — Vincent Canby, NEW YORK TIMES

"★★★★ A gift package of glittering entertainment. An absolutely delightful surprise." — William Hall, CANNETT NEWS SERVICE

"Delightful and illuminating... a provocatively down-to-earth movie about sex." — David Karger, NEW YORKER

"Brilliant... A triumph... This is as splendid a comic - dramatic ensemble as the one in 'Hannah and Her Sisters'..." — Michael Wilmington, LOS ANGELES TIMES

"Brilliant, witty and entertaining... 'The Big Chill' with a PhD." — Andy Kamen, VARIETY

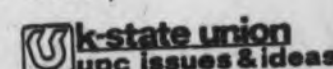

"Delicious decadence..." — Andrew Sarris, VILLAGE VOICE

Frustrated in their quest for fulfillment through sexual expression, eight French Canadian professors gather at a lakefront cottage for the weekend where they discuss their sexual exploits with amusing candor.

PANEL ON ROBERT BORK
7 p.m., Tuesday Oct. 6
LITTLE THEATRE
FREE ADMISSION

Panelists include:
Dr. Orma Linford
(Professor of Constitutional Law, K-State)
Dr. Bill Rich
(Professor of Law, Washburn Univ.)
George Erickson
(Topeka Attorney)
Dr. Emil Tonkavich
(Professor of Law, Washburn Univ.)

"Big laughs! Brilliant!
One of the most inventive, original comedies in years."
— Joel Siegel, ABC-TV, NEW YORK

"★★★★ A wonderful one-of-a-kind comedy!"
— Mike Clark, USA TODAY

RAISING ARIZONA
A comedy beyond belief.

Stars Nicholas Cage & Holly Hunter
Rated PG-13, KSU I.D. Required
Tomorrow & Saturday, 7 p.m. & 9:30 p.m.
Forum Hall, $1.75

* HORSEPACKING ***
OCT 24-25 IN THE BEAUTIFUL OZARKS

$35 PRICE INCLUDES
1) RENTAL OF TRAIL HORSES
2) 3 DELICIOUS MEALS
3) CAMPING FACILITIES

INFO MEETING
TUES. OCT. 6
7pm. RM. 207 UN.

SIGN UP
WED. OCT. 7 8am
UN. ACTIVITIES CENTER

OCT. 7 Sign-up open to
OCT. 8 Sign-up open to
OCT. 8-9 Sign-up open to all!

Sports

Kansas State Collegian ■ Thursday, October 1, 1987 ■ Page 9

NCAA commission says no to college playoff system

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The NCAA Presidents Commission, as expected, voted Wednesday to oppose a Division I-A football playoff because it would not be "in the best interests of intercollegiate athletics," Maryland Chancellor John Slaughter said.

An NCAA subcommittee chaired by Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds has requested that the NCAA Council place a resolution before the 105 I-A members at the next convention in January asking whether they want to vote on a one-game playoff at the 1989 convention.

Slaughter, chairman of the Presidents Commission, said his group would not ask the Council to ignore the subcommittee's recommendation, but would require a roll-call vote if the resolution is introduced.

Slaughter also said he disagrees with incoming NCAA executive director Dick Schultz, who believes a playoff at some point is inevitable.

"I don't think it's the feeling of the commission to tell them not to introduce it. But we're sending a very clear signal as to what our feelings are," Slaughter said. "We believe it's a matter that is likely to come up for consideration. We want everyone to be very clear where we stand."

Slaughter said the 11 presidents of I-A schools on the 44-member commission, including the heads of Ohio State, Nebraska and Alabama, voted unanimously to oppose the playoff concept.

"There are enough games," Slaughter said. "There are enough post-season opportunities. We believe there is nothing to be gained other than satisfying the egos of a few people will be able to say, 'I won the game that identified me as the champion.'"

"I think it's a sort of hollow and meaningless designation. We believe football has matured to the level where there are ample opportunities for teams to demonstrate their abilities," he said.

More players cross picket lines

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Another eight players, including quarterback Danny White and eight-time Pro Bowl center Mike Webster, crossed picket lines Wednesday as union chief Gene Upshaw criss-crossed the country trying to prevent more defections.

That made it 33 players on 13 teams who have returned to practice camp since the NFL strike started nine days ago, according to an Associated Press count. The union has 1,585 players under its jurisdiction.

Joining White and Webster were wide receiver Roy Green and defensive end Curtis Greer of the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh running back Earnest Jackson, and three New Orleans Saints, including two starting defensive linemen, Bruce Clark and Tony Elliott.

Upshaw, meanwhile, met for 2½ hours with the Steelers then returned to his offices in Washington, bringing to nearly 8,000 miles the air time he has logged since Sunday.

No negotiations were planned. In Washington, however, union and management lawyers met with the National Labor Relations Board to discuss procedural points.

Staff/Greg Vogel

Kristie Jacquart spikes a ball during a match against the University of Kansas Wednesday evening in Ahearn Field House. The 'Cats won the match by winning the fifth and decisive game 15-11.

'Cats shut down KU

By Chase Clark
Sports Writer

The battle lines had been drawn. All the elements of an epic war were present.

Bitter rivals were standing at opposite sides of the towering wall, fiercely protecting their territories from the speeding white projectile that sent many of the bodies crashing to the floor, each knowing only one side could arise from the rumble as the victors.

This isn't a tale from Camelot and the days of King Arthur. This event happened Wednesday night in Ahearn Field House.

The rivals were the University of Kansas and K-State, the battle lines were the boundaries of the volleyball court in Ahearn and the projectile was a volleyball. When it was all over, the Wildcats had claimed victory, 11-15, 15-5, 15-7, 15-17, 15-11, in a grueling five-game match.

"It was a great win," K-State volleyball coach Scott Nelson said. "We needed something like this...to re-establish ourselves that we can win under pressure. The crowd was a great benefit at the end."

More than 1,650 fans showed up to cheer on the intrastate rivals. Most of the people stayed throughout the two and a half hour match that took its toll on both squads.

"I'm glad to have this match over with now because I feel they (Kansas) are going to start racking up wins real quick. Kansas was an excellent volleyball team. They are much better than 4-10," Nelson said.

In the first game, the 'Cats jumped out to a 5-0 lead, but the Jayhawks came back strong to tie it at 9-9. Kansas then went on to win, 15-11.

In the second game, Kansas jumped out to a 4-0 lead, only to see the 'Cats answer with eight unanswered points to win the game 15-5 and even the match at one game each.

After losing the third game 15-7, the Jayhawks held off a late rally by the 'Cats to win the fourth game, 17-15 and even the match up at 2-2.

In the final game, Kansas took a 2-0 lead, but K-State won the game 15-11 to win the match.

The 'Cats are now 9-4 overall and 1-1 in conference play.

Wildcat Football — Stan Parrish, Head Football Coach

Football Office, 2201 Kimball Avenue, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66502, (913) 532-5876

September 30, 1987

I've now been your head football coach for 21 months and 14 games and there are some fundamental things in developing our program that I would like to share with you. Let me preface this by saying I know athletics and football are surely not overly important to many, many people. But to those of you who are interested we must unite and let the many positive people in our community and campus be heard!

We are in the midst of battling an attitude of "can't win, can't do, never get it done." Being negative is easy, being positive takes conviction. But "being part of the solution and not part of the problem" is what I am searching for. We desperately need a support base and after going to Iowa last weekend and being cheered by our fans and their great effort, it only reinforced my beliefs that we can conquer the attitude problem.

Our team needs your support to help us become winners. Granted we haven't played so well as we had hoped so far, but we have eight games left. We can't give up now.

Surely in a student body of 18,000 more than 4,000 students care and more importantly want to help their fellow students succeed! There is nothing wrong with being positive and helping us to endorse and help our program. I hope all of those who do care will come out this Saturday and help us continue to build an attitude in our players that will motivate them to a higher level of play.

I knew when I came to K-State I was tackling a most difficult job. I'm totally committed to building a competitive program, but our coaches, players, and administrators can't do it alone. We need your support, so stand tall and let the positive people in Manhattan and Kansas State be heard this Saturday and every Saturday.

Respectfully yours,

 Stan Parrish
 Head Football Coach

Kansas State University, Kansas State University, Oklahoma State University, University of Colorado, University of Kansas, University of Missouri, University of Nebraska, University of Oklahoma

Stan Parrish: making the most of a difficult situation

Read the above letter. Now read it again — carefully this time.

I've read the letter at least 50 times, analyzing, repeating the phrases in my mind and trying to put my finger on just what is going on in Stan Parrish's mind.

Now, I suppose I could take the typical negative "cheap shots" any red-blooded (or should I say cold-blooded) American sports editor might take. But that type of comment is not appropriate in this or any situation. In fact, that type of comment, by now, has become rather trite and cliché.

I've been attending K-State for five years. I know, I know, delaying graduation is nothing to be proud of, but it has given me an opportunity to see many situations evolve at K-State. These include the building of upgraded facilities on campus, the hiring of new administration, the raising of enrollment numbers, and the acquisition of a better attitude among the student body.

Heck, I've even seen a University president who cares so much about this place that he stops and picks up unsightly scraps of trash on his stroll across campus en route to the president's home. It's an awakening scene to see a stately man in a suit pick up a candy bar wrapper and put it in a purple trash can. And I mean that.

But you know, that's what going to K-State is all about nowadays. That's one thing I've seen evolve in my lengthy stint in Manhattan on my way to my degree.

One other major thing I've seen change is the game of football and the way it's played in Wildcatland.

Whether you, or your neighbor in your residence hall, or the people across the hall in your apartment complex, or your best friend in your greek house want to believe it, there have been some unbelievable changes in the football program.

Let's talk about the attitude adjustment the older members of the team have taken on. Let's talk about the more than $100,000 raised in a few

Sports Rapp

JEFF RAPP
Sports Editor

short months to drastically upgrade what used to be a really shabby locker and weight room facility.

Let's talk about the possibility of having natural instead of artificial turf in KSU Stadium next season. Let's talk about football that's actually exciting to watch, rather than what I referred to during the Dickey coaching era as "an afternoon in hell."

On second thought, I guess we shouldn't talk about all that stuff you've heard about so much. Let's get back to the above letter you've been staring at.

Through my meticulous examination of the document, something jumped out from the paper and practically slapped me in the face.

What struck me is that Parrish — a man who not three years ago was just an outsider to the Wildcat football program and to the whole K-State atmosphere — is now sincerely concerned about the welfare and image and esprit de corps of the entire University. Not just the football program.

What I see is a man who wants K-State to get behind something as a student body and as a University community, hopefully to a successful end. And believe me, K-State has a darn good chance of knocking off the 0-4 Tulsa Golden Hurricane Saturday afternoon.

It only stands to reason that the more K-Staters who see that potential win, the greater the whole atmosphere will be at this University and so on, and so on, and oh, you can figure it out. It's an endless chain.

I say to you people who have never been to a football game to try it out. Why not? Even if we lose, you'll be really surprised at the charge you'll get out of being there with your buddies in your purple clothing with the stands full and rockin'.

I hate to refer to the Iowa game again, but even when the Iowa Hawkeyes were the doormat of the Big Ten Conference, the stands were always completely packed with 60,000 outrageously loud onlookers. That, folks, is at a University where enrollment is 29,000 students.

Now you may say, "Hey, they have 11,000 more students than K-State does." I say to that, "Hey, we have 13,000 less seats to fill."

Parrish described the letter as one necessary step he chose to make.

"It was just something that had to be done," Parrish said. "We don't have a support base, and when you go somewhere where they do have one and your kids respond to it all...we need everybody's help."

"All they (the students) have to do is come out and watch. Our team is playing hard," Parrish said.

Parrish said, referring to the letter, "Someone has to communicate it. Someone has to take a stand. It just can't roll along the way it's rolling along."

"I think there are some people around here that give a damn and care," Parrish said. "Those people need to be heard."

In response to the coach's remarks, I'll say I've never missed a K-State football game while attending college and there are a good number of people here in Manhattan who are in the same boat. And when K-State chalks up what will more than likely be a hard-fought win against Tulsa this Saturday, we'll be the happiest bunch of campers in town.

You know the great feeling you get and the fun you have when you feel the animosity toward the KU Jayhawks and when the stands are completely full at KSU Stadium?

It can be like that for every home game. And I mean that.

Unemployment attains 6-year low, attributed to fewer job applicants

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Kansas' unemployment rate reached a six-year low in August when it dipped to 4.2 percent, the Department of Human Resources reported Wednesday.

The state's jobless rate had hit a five-year low at 4.4 percent last May, then inched upward to 4.6 percent in June, fell back to 4.4 percent in July and declined to 4.2 percent last month.

That is the lowest rate in the state since 1981, when the rate fell below 4 percent. It was 3.7 percent in June 1981, and was lower than that in some months the late 1970s.

The state's highest unemployment rate according to records was 6.9 percent in the summer of 1971 and in January 1983.

Kansas' jobless rate in August 1986 was 5.2 percent.

Dennis Taylor, secretary of human resources, said both the number of Kansas workers employed and those looking for jobs declined in August.

"Partly, the change is the result in seasonal declines in farm work activity, fewer self-employed, unpaid family workers and students seeking summer work," Taylor said in a statement issued by Human Resources.

There were 1,185,461 people working in the state last month, compared with 1,198,527 in July and 1,165,164 in August of 1986.

The number seeking jobs was 52,581 in August. That compared with 55,644 in July and 52,581 in August 1986.

Taylor said the "good news" is that 20,000 more Kansans were working in August of this year than during the same month a year ago.

He attributed those additional gains to increased jobs in the services, retail trade and manufacturing industries. Of significance, Taylor said, was the addition of 1,200 jobs in the oil fields over the past year. The oil industry has been hard hit by the low price of crude oil.

At the other end, the number of government jobs declined 8,000 in the state the past year, Taylor said.

Between July and August, the secretary said, there were modest employment gains in manufacturing, transportation, public utilities and trade, but small losses in government, finance, insurance and real estate.

In the major Kansas employment areas, Wichita's unemployment rate dropped from 4.5 percent in July to 4.3 percent in August, with only small gains and losses during the month. The Wichita jobless rate was down from 6.1 percent in August 1986, with the major gains over the year in manufacturing, construction and services.

Topeka's unemployment rate inched downward from 4.3 percent to 4.2 percent between July and August, with slight job gains in trade and government. The capital city's jobless rate a year ago in August was 4.8 percent, with the number of jobs growing by 1,600 during the past year, mostly in trade, services, finance, insurance and real estate.

Lawrence had a 3.4 percent jobless rate in August, down from 4.1 percent in July and .5 percent below the August 1986 rate of 3.9 percent. The gain was attributed to the rehiring of school employees off during the summer months.

The Kansas City metropolitan area is in a different statistical area than that reported by the state.

However, Human Resources' county-by-county figures showed Wyandotte County, which includes Kansas City, Kan., had the state's highest unemployment rate in August, 7.9 percent. That was down from 8.0 percent in July.

Neosho County, which in most months during the past year has had the state's highest jobless rate, was second behind Wyandotte with 7.8 percent unemployed. That was down from 8.4 percent in July.

Lowest county rates were in Republic County, 1.3 percent; Smith and Kiowa Counties, 1.9 percent; Nemaha and Ness Counties, 2.0 percent; and Harper County, 2.1 percent.

Other August county jobless rates included:

Atchison 5.0 percent, Leavenworth 3.9, Johnson 2.9, Douglas 3.4, Shawnee 4.2, Franklin 5.3, Miami 4.3, Allen 5.9, Bourbon 5.0, Crawford 5.4, Labette 5.3, Montgomery 5.5, Cowley 3.8, Sumner 3.8, Sedgewick 4.3, Butler 4.4, Harvey 5.5, Lyon 3.6, Geary 4.3, Riley 2.9, Clay 3.3, Dickinson, 4.3, McPherson 3.8, Saline 4.6, Cloud 2.8, Mitchell 2.7, Rice 4.4, Reno 5.4, Pratt 3.5, Barton 5.2, Russell 3.5, Ellis 4.3, Ford 2.9, Seward 3.8, Finney 3.1, Thomas 3.0 and Sheridan 3.7.

Computer program allows creations of clothing design

By Jackie Brazzle
Collegian Reporter

Fashions change with the seasons. With a new computer program developed by Bernard Rueschhoff, professor of clothing, textiles and interior design, the art of creating and updating these constantly changing fashions has been made easier.

It is a low-cost, computer-aided design system which allows the user to make clothing patterns and to change pattern piece sizes, Rueschhoff said.

Rueschhoff uses a micro-computer to link already-existing software for apparel design to a complementing program for pattern grading and marker making. However, he only has one of the two phases completed.

Phase I of the program has been incorporated into Rueschhoff's classes who design lines of clothing.

"The system gives students a better chance in the marketplace and enhances the students' creativity skills," he said.

Once Rueschhoff completes the second phase, he plans to sell the program to small apparel businesses.

"It will help small apparel manufacturers to improve efficiency and lower production costs because, currently, pattern grading is done by hand or machine," Rueschhoff said.

Because of its low cost, the program will allow smaller businesses to compete with larger manufacturers who already have similar but more expensive systems. The larger systems cost around $100,000 while this system costs only $20,000.

"With the development of the new low-cost system, small firms will be able to use this technology and be more competitive," he said.

This system is the only one of its kind in universities having clothing and textiles departments, Rueschhoff said.

It is not currently being used by other collegiate educators or by small apparel firms, but he said he hopes to be able to finish phase II of the program and get it exposed to the public by the summer of 1988.

By conducting seminars on the system for apparel businesses and educators, Rueschhoff hopes the program will gain immediate popularity and will be used extensively in the future by both groups.

Chippendale appearance evokes protest

By The Associated Press

SALINA — When five male strippers perform at the Bicentennial Center Oct. 9, it will be off-limits to females under 21, as well as to all men.

Announcement of the appearance by the Chippendales had touched off protests from clergymen and other citizens, including about 25 people who picketed outside the auditorium last Saturday. City officials and businesses have received a stream of phone calls about the show.

Bill Harris, interim city manager, announced Tuesday that he and The Space Agency of Wilson, Wyo., promoter of the show, had agreed to the minimum age limit of 21, with identification to be checked at the door.

Because the Bicentennial Center had an open date, it could not deny a promoter from bringing legal entertainment to the center, Harris said, and the contract with the promoter did not set a minimum age limit.

Not everyone was happy about the age limit — after it was announced, the Bicentennial Center got a call from a woman who was upset that she couldn't bring her 18-year-old daughter to the show, Harris said.

Any female younger than 21 who's already bought a ticket can return it for a refund.

Some men have purchased tickets for their wives or girlfriends, but if any man tries to get in, "he's out of luck," Harris said. The promoters own the show, and thus can set rules against men attending.

The show consists of jazz dancing, mostly on stage.

TV Listings

By TV Data

THURSDAY OCTOBER 1, 1987

	KSNT	WIBW	KTCA	KSHB	KTWU	WGN	ESPN	WTBS
7:00	Today	Morning Program	Good Morning America	Scoby Doo	Special	Bozo	Nation's Bus.	B. Hillbillies
7:30				Flintstones	Mister Rogers		SportsCenter	Bewitched
8:00		To Be Announced		My Little Pony	Sesame Street	Smurfs	SportsLook	I Love Lucy
8:30				Brady Bunch		Teddy Ruxpin	Racing	Hazel
9:00	Hour Magazine	$25K Pyramid	Ghostbusters	Who's Boss	Sesame Street	H's Heroes	Auto Racing	Movie: "Johnny Be-
9:30		Card Sharks	G.I. Joe	Mr. Belvedere		Twilight Zone	Formula One
10:00	Jeopardy!	Price Is Right	Who's Boss	M.T. Moore	Body Electric	Andy Griffith Soap	Grand Prix of Spain	linda
10:30		Lose or Draw	Mr. Belvedere	Dick Van	Congress
11:00	Password	Young and the Restless	Love Connec.	Dyke Green Acres	Instructional Exercise/Billie	Geraldo	Aerobics Getting Fit	Perry Mason
11:30	Wheel-Fortune		Ask Dr. Ruth
12:00	News	Middy Bold/Beautiful	All My Children	Beaver I Love Lucy	Sesame Street	News	Boxing (Top Rank): Harold	Movie: "Fight-ing Father"
1:00	Lives	As the World Turns	One Life to Live	Andy Griffith B. Hillbillies	Tenko	Van Dyke Andy Griffith	Knight vs. Anthony English	Dunne
1:30	Another World
2:00		Guiding Light	General Hospital	Brady Bunch	Living Learn to Read	Beaver	NFL Yearbook	Tom & Jerry and Friends
2:30	Santa Barbara			Zoobies Zoo		Ghostbusters	AWA Wrestling	Flintstones
3:00		Donahue	Scoby Doo		Cooking On Aerobics	Jem Transformers	Drag Racing: IHRA World	Flintstones
3:30	Oprah Winfrey		Thundercats			G.I. Joe M. Bravestar		Laverne
4:00		Magnum, P.I.	Dating Game	Jetsons	Square 1 TV 3-2-1 Contact		SportsCenter	Alice
4:30	3's Company		P. Court	M. Bravestar			SpeedWeek	Carol Burnett
5:00	Family Ties	News	ABC News	News	Diff. Strokes	Sesame Street	Baseball: Chicago Cubs at	Sanford
5:30	NBC News	CBS News		News	Facts of Life	WKRP	Major League	Major League
6:00	News	News	M*A*S*H	WKRP	MacNeil / Le-rer Newshour	Major League		Sanford
6:30	Wheel-Fortune	News	Truth/Conseq.	Gimme Br.
7:00	Cosby Show	Tour of Duty	St. Hammer	Hill Street Blues	Adams Chron-icles	Baseball: Chi-cago Cubs at	College Foot-ball: Long	Baseball: At-lanta Braves
7:30	Different		Charmings			Pittsburgh Pir-ates
8:00	Cheers	Wiseguy	Movie: "Proud Men"	Movie: "First-born"	Mystery/Lord Peter Wimsey		Beach State at Fresno	at Houston As-tros
8:30	Johnny Car-
9:00	son 25th An-niversary	Knots Landing			DeGrassi High	News
9:30					Newt's Apple
10:00	News	News	News	Barney Miller	Profile/Nature	INN News	State	Better World
10:30	Late Night	Cheers	M*A*S*H	Late Show	Business Rpt.	Magnum, P.I.		Society
11:00	With David	Adderly	B. Buddies		MacNeil / Le-rer Newshour		SportsCenter	Movie: "Ac-ross the Wide
11:30	Ent. Tonight		Nightline	Dating Game		Movie: "The 12:00	Late Night	Movie: "It's Alive"	700 Club	Movie: "The River's Edge"	Sign-Off	French Con-nection	Water Skiing	Missouri"
12:30	With David

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

* Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.

* No abbreviations, please.

* No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.

* Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

* Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

* If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.

* Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.

* The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.25	3.25	4.00	4.50	4.75	1.00
16	2.40	3.45	4.20	4.70	5.10	1.05
17	2.55	3.60	4.35	4.85	5.25	1.10
18	2.70	3.75	4.50	5.00	5.40	1.15
19	2.85	3.90	4.65	5.15	5.55	1.20
20	3.00	4.05	4.80	5.30	5.70	1.25
21	3.15	4.20	4.95	5.45	5.85	1.30
22	3.30	4.35	5.10	5.60	6.00	1.35
23	3.45	4.50	5.25	5.75	6.15	1.40
24	3.60	4.65	5.40	5.90	6.30	1.45
25	3.75	4.80	5.55	6.05	6.45	1.50
26	3.90	4.95	5.70	6.20	6.60	1.55
27	4.05	5.10	5.85	6.35	6.75	1.60
28	4.20	5.25	6.00	6.50	6.90	1.65
29	4.35	5.40	6.15	6.65	7.05	1.70
30	4.50	5.55	6.30	6.80	7.20	1.75

Over 30 words

Classified Categories

01 Announcements	15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
02 Apartments for Rent — Furnished	16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
03 Apartments for Rent — Unfurnished	17 Musical Instruments
04 Automobiles for Sale	18 Personals
05 Automobile Rentals	19 Pets and Pet Supplies
06 Card of Thanks	20 Professional Services
07 Child Care	21 Rentals
08 Computers	22 Resume/Typing Services
09 Employment	23 Roommate Wanted
10 Financial Services	24 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
11 Garage and Yard Sales	25 Sublease
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent	26 Welcome
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale	27 Other
14 Lost and Found

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____	Phone no. _____
Address _____	Student ID # _____
1 _____	2 _____
3 _____	4 _____
5 _____	6 _____
7 _____	8 _____
9 _____	10 _____
11 _____	12 _____
13 _____	14 _____
15 _____	16 _____
17 _____	18 _____
19 _____	20 _____
21 _____	22 _____
23 _____	24 _____
25 _____	26 _____
27 _____	28 _____
29 _____	30 _____
Date ad begins _____	Amount paid _____
Total days in paper _____	Category _____

FREE SAMPLES!

Ed Irvine's HOMEGROWN Huge-Popping Popcorn & Cider (Fresh Cider, that is)

NEW CROP — JUST HARVESTED!

THIS FRIDAY, SATURDAY, & SUNDAY 9AM to 8PM!

New Crop Apples! Wisconsin MacIntosh & Cortland

Missouri Jonathan or Golden Delicious $8.99 bushel

Eastside & Westside Market
east Manhattan on Hwy. 24 • west K-18 by Holiday.

Kedzie 103

ClassAds

532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES
 One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.25, 15 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $3.25, 20 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.50, 30 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.
 Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY FOR Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates
 One day: $4.95 per inch; Three consecutive days: $4.75 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.50 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.25 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)
 Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

ANNOUNCEMENTS 01
 MARY KAY Cosmetics—Skin care—glamour products. Free trial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible. (1-75)

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Hugh Irvin, 532-6311 or 539-3128. (111)

WANTED—100 overweight people to try new chocolate, vanilla, and strawberry herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor approved. 100% guaranteed. MasterCard and Visa accepted. Call 776-5114 or 776-1465. (1-30)

VW OWNERS! Bring your bug to the bug doctor at J & L Auto Service. Import car repairs and VW salvage. 1-494-2388, seven minutes east. (13-32)

LET'S GO skiing over Christmas Break! Sunchase Tours Sixth Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks to Vail/Beaver Creek, Steamboat, Breckenridge and Winter Park for five or seven nights including lifts/parties/picnics, races and more from only $154! Optional round trip air and charter bus transportation available. Call toll free for your complete color ski break brochure 1-800-321-5911 today!! (28-34)

WRESTLING
 Intramural Deadline
 Today—5 p.m.
 Rec Services Office
 532-6980

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—FURNISHED 02

ONE-BEDROOM, furnished. Close to campus. Available immediately. 776-8918 after 5:30 p.m. (26-30)

LARGE, ONE-bedroom, furnished apartment, two balconies, air, $295 plus utilities. Across from Ahearn. Available Oct. 1. Call 539-5021; 539-2166; or 776-1712. Ask for Pam. (27-29)

APARTMENTS FOR RENT—UNFURNISHED 03

FOUR-BEDROOM, basement, 1 1/2 blocks from campus. Available now. 539-1498. (211f)

TWO-BEDROOM. 727 Leavenworth #2, available Sept. 30. Call after 5:30 p.m. at 537-3186. (23-29)

AVAILABLE OCT. 15, nice, large two-bedroom apartment, water, trash, three-fourths gas paid, can be furnished. Laundry facility. $340/month. 539-2482 after 4 p.m. (271f)

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE 04

1978 CHEVY 3/4 ton, 4 x 4 pickup, 350 engine, power steering, power brakes, air-conditioning, automatic transmission, dual fuel tanks and set up for stock trailer. 456-8472 after 5 p.m. (25-29)

FORD LTD 1977. Excellent condition, low mileage, runs great. $1,500 or best offer. Call Salah in 636 Moore or Sonny in 533. 532-2362 after 6:30 p.m. (25-29)

1975 CHEVY wagon, air conditioned, cruise, runs well, clean, $490, 539-2892 between 5-10 p.m. (27-29)

1974 MAVERICK. Engine runs great, low battery. Must sell this week. $500 or best offer. 539-8455. (27-28)

1978 BLUE Monza. Nice body, excellent engine, 30 miles per gallon on highway. Leave message for Sheikh, 533 Moore Hall, 532-2362. (27-31)

FOR SALE: 1977 full-sized Oldsmobile wagon. Terrific condition, new paint, air, cruise, FM stereo, 112,000 miles. Call 776-9888 after 5 p.m. 1521 Jarvis. (27-29)

FOR SALE 1982 Chevrolet—$2,400 and 1983 Chevrolet—$2,200. Nice! Call 537-4083 after 5 p.m. (28-32)

1974 VW, new paint, low miles, $700 or best offer. Inquire basement Kedzie, 12-1 p.m. only. Ask for CB. 238-3874 evenings. 1980 Buick Riviera, loaded, $3,000, trade up to $1,000. (28-30)

CHILD CARE 07

FULL-TIME student with child wants another student with child to exchange babysitting spring semester. Phone 539-6430. (28-32)

COMPUTERS 08

ALMOST NEW NEC Multispeed laptop computer, MS-DOS compatible. Carry case, PD software. $1,595. Call: 537-7173, 9 a.m.—4 p.m. weekdays. (28-30)

EMPLOYMENT 09

EARN THUNDREDS weekly$ in your spare time. United Services of America is looking for home-workers to perform mail services. Incentive programs available. For information send large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to U.S.A., 24307 Magic Mountain Parkway, Suite #306, Valencia, CA 91355. (7-34)

EXCELLENT WAGES for spare time assembly work; electronics, crafts, others. Information, (504) 641-0091 Ext. 1837, open seven days. Call now. (20-42)

TRACK-ORIENTED student to work with conditioning and form with talented fourteen-year-old. One or two evenings a week. Hours negotiable. Frank, 532-5634. Evenings, 494-8318. (27-29)

THE AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION MEMORIAL PROGRAM
 WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE
 American Heart Association
 This space provided as a public service.

FULL AND part-time retail help needed. Sports page—Town Center. Send resume to: Steve Webb, 224 Redbud Estates, Manhattan, KS 66502. (25-29)

HARDEE'S OF Aggieville is taking applications for delivery drivers, day or night time hours, full or part-time. Can earn five to six dollars per hour. (26-29)

Sub 8 Stuff Sandwich Shop

Applications now being accepted for following positions. Daytime, late night, and delivering. No phone calls. Apply between 2-5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.
 12th & Moro in Aggieville

FINANCIAL SERVICES 10

NEEDED IMMEDIATELY—Six enthusiastic telephone operators for local sales promotion. Start $3.65 per hour plus bonuses. Age no barrier. Evening or day shift available. Apply now! 431 Poyntz, 9-9. (27-35)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR RENT 12

ADULT COURT for serious students. One-, two-, three-bedroom, very reasonable, quiet location near campus, no pets. 537-8389. (31f)

FOR RENT two-bedroom mobile home with space for four horses. 539-5778. (25-29)

HOUSES AND MOBILE HOMES FOR SALE 13

BY OWNER nice, clean, two-bedroom mobile home with or without furniture set up on large shady lot. 539-5778. (25-29)

HOUSE WEST of campus, two bedrooms, attached garage. For couple, single person, person with one child. Call 539-2860. (28-29)

LOST AND FOUND 14

LOST: JEAN jacket in Seaton 63 on Monday morning. If found, please call 776-6241. (28-29)

MISCELLANEOUS MERCHANDISE 15

WATERSKI AND Windsurf this fall and next spring. Buy a wetsuit or drysuit on sale now from Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

FLEER 1987 update sets now available. We buy—sell coins, jewelry, gold, silver, toys, comic books, rock records. Manhattan Coins and Collectables. 1130 Laramie. 539-1184. (25-29)

WANTED TO Buy—Two tickets to U2 concert in K.C. Please call Stacy, 539-8695. Price negotiable. (26-29)

PYRAMID PIZZA
 All Slices 99¢ after 5 p.m.
 WE PILE IT ON! 539-4888

SUN CONNECTION
 NOW SELLING
 2 SESSIONS
 1126 Laramie 776-2426

POOL PARTY EVERY FRIDAY
 5 p.m.-8 p.m.
 75¢ DRAWS
 50¢ BURGERS & DOGS
 $1 WINE COOLERS
 WEATHER PERMITTING

University Club
 17th & Anderson, 539-7531

TANNING SPECIAL
 GRAB A FRIEND AND RECEIVE
 TWENTY 30 MIN. SESSIONS
 FOR ONLY $30!
 OFFER ENDS OCT. 15th
 NON-MEMBERS WELCOME
 776-1750

NO PAIN NO GAIN
 October Special
 Unlimited Number
 of Sessions for
 only $50

Slender You
 Figure Salons
 No membership fee—first visit free
 Candlewood Plaza-3232 Kimball Ave.
 776-3308

MOTORCYCLES/BICYCLES FOR SALE 16

FOR SALE: Men's red Schwinn 10-speed. Extras and in excellent condition. Call 532-2233 after 7 p.m. (25-29)

1985 YAMAHA Riva 125 scooter, red, low miles. 537-2987, not home leave message. (25-29)

RALEIGH RACER USA—Competition 14-speed geometry, custom built. Diamondback Meanstreak—Mountain bike, 15-speed, new components. Both $300 or best offer. 537-0182 evenings. (25-29)

DIAMOND BACK mountain bike, 27", excellent condition, extras included. Call after 7 p.m., 776-9371. (27-29)

MOPED HONDA Express 1980, low mileage, excellent condition. Negotiable! Phone 539-8887 or 537-1395. (28-32)

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS 17

FOR SALE: Saxon Power PA system includes amp, head, two cabinets. Excellent condition. 539-5987. (24-28)

GIBSON ACOUSTIC guitar, $110. Call 537-2946. (27-31)

DRUM EQUIPMENT for sale: Ludwig 14" and Ultra-sound 14" snares. Peavy 50W bass amplifier. Boss electric drum pad. Alpine cassette deck. All excellent shape. 539-1697 or 539-2328. (28-30)

MUST SELL: Crate 10-watt guitar amplifier. Three months old—warranted for five years! 532-5217. (28-32)

PERSONALS 18

TO BARB Robel—A person who deserves a lot more credit than she gets. Thanks again for all the help during the week of May 13. (28)

CHI-O-JODI: Last night I gave birth to a cute little tot. Just want you to know that I love my new tot. Jill. (28)

ERIC A.—"Ice creamed" the first time I saw you and yelled "Hot dog" when we met. This "foolish roiled" for joy when you asked me out and mailed like "chocolate" that "sweet" summer night when you held my hand. I love you "cupcake." Confectionately, Large Marge. (28)

SUNSHINE—GOOD luck with your interview. I'm looking forward to our "quiet time." As always, Black Sheep. (28)

G-PHI MONICA, Dom Perignon, shattered glasses in the street, too much vodka? Gather the team y'all, who forgot the cooler? Swing dancin, where's my tie? Thanks for the best Kappa Sig banquet ever. Tim. (28)

PEPPERONI: THERE'S an I.N.L. meeting tonight at Charlie's. Bring the stick-o-butta and I'll bring the cheese and rice. I won't spill the citrus blend if you'll keep the donuts away from your nose. You're more than just a yellow brick. (28)

PIKE STEVE R.—Saturday night at the beach was terrific. Hair was "saucy"? Mariboro's were great. Loved the old movie and had a great time. —Tiger. (28)

JANNELL W., Always said you would end up at K-State. Come and see me. —Battle Ax. (28)

"PHI GAM" car owner—if you are available, I would like to know you better. Please respond. (28-29)

WE'RE TWIDDLING our thumbs, waiting for Friday to come, can we make it through one more day? We can't wait till tomorrow, it will end all our sorrows, as Pi. This prepare to Party! (28)

BUSTERS BUDDY—Thanks for a wonderful year. XXXXXX. Buster. (28)

KALA—DUMP your husband, marry your true love. It worked for us. Hope and Bo. (28)

DU PLEDGES: David, Alan, Tim, Craig, John. Come Thursday night to see who your fun-loving moms will be. Soon the secret will be out and then there will be no doubt. Love, your Moms. (28)

BLONDE MALE, art building Monday-Friday, 8:30 a.m.—The one with big, blue and sometimes green eyes, a bent nose and a C.P. chin. Your "darling" and I can't wait till our B and A date. (28)

PROFESSIONAL SERVICES 20

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. 913-841-5716. (11f)

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25. (11f)

RENTALS 21

SUPPLIES, PRINTER-typewriter. Rental typewriters available, correcting and non-correcting. Hull Business Machines, 715 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-7931. (11f)

RESUME/TYPING SERVICE 22

PAPERS, RESUMES, cover letters, theses and dissertations entered, stored and completed to your specifications. Letter-quality printer. Come see us. Ross Secretarial Services, 614 N. 12th (across from Kites), 539-5147. (23-32)

ARE YOU prepared for interviews? Call Resume Service for your resume, data sheet or cover letter needs. 1211 Moro, 537-7294. (27-29)

EXPERIENCED TYPIST: Will do any size typing jobs. Call Mary after 5 p.m. at 537-0456. (27-29)

ROOMMATE WANTED 23

ROOMMATE OCTOBER-June. Nice house, close to campus, washer/dryer, own room, only $135. 776-7905. (27-29)

WANTED: Two female roommates—Nice two-bedroom apartment—furnished, one-half block west of Ahearn. Needed for second semester. Call 537-9370. (28-31)

ROOMMATE WANTED to share house. $160/month. Gas/electric paid. Call 537-4083, after 5 p.m. (28-32)

RESPONSIBLE FEMALE roommate, preferably graduate student or working woman, needed to share three-bedroom house near high school. One-half $385 rent plus utilities. 537-8663. (28-32)

SPORTING/RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT 25

USED SAILBOARDS from $325, demo sailboards, sails, wetsuits, etc. all on sale at Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

WATERSKI AND Windsurf this fall and next spring. Buy a wetsuit or drysuit on sale now from Blue River Sailboards. At Aggie Ski & Sport, 1212 Moro. 539-6470. (24-28)

ROOM FOR RENT 28

GIRL WANTED to rent room without board, $80/month, bills paid. Close to campus. No pets. 539-8608. (271f)

LEGAL NOTICE

(Published in the Kansas State Collegian)
 October 1, 1987

STATEMENT OF OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT AND CIRCULATION OF THE KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN. (Required by 39 U.S.C. 3685)

Date of Filing: October 1, 1987
 Title of Publication: Kansas State Collegian.

Frequency of Issue: Daily except Saturdays, Sundays, and student holidays.

Location of Headquarters or General Business Office of the Publishers: Room 103, Kedzie Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Publisher: Student Publications, Inc., Kedzie Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas. Director, David L. Adams, Kedzie Hall, K.S.U., Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Editor: Deron Johnson, Kedzie Hall, K.S.U., Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Managing Editor: Rebecca Lucas, Kedzie Hall, K.S.U., Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Owner: Student Publications, Inc., Kedzie Hall, K.S.U., Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Extent and Nature of circulation:

Average No. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, total number copies printed, 12,460; paid circulation, sales through dealers and carriers, street vendors and counter sales, 12,011; mail subscriptions, 350; total paid circulation, 12,361; free distribution by mail, carrier or other means, 24; copies distributed to news agents but not sold, none; total distribution, 12,385; office use, left-over, unaccounted, spoiled after printing, 75; total, 12,460.

Actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date: total number copies printed, 15,085; paid circulation, sales through dealers and carriers, street vendors and counter sales, 14,496; mail subscriptions, 480; total paid circulation, 14,976; free distribution by mail, carrier or other means, 29; copies distributed to news agents but not sold, none; total distribution, 15,005; office use, left-over, unaccounted, spoiled after printing, 80; total, 15,085.

PIKE STEVE R.—Saturday night at the beach was terrific. Hair was "saucy"? Mariboro's were great. Loved the old movie and had a great time. —Tiger. (28)

JANNELL W., Always said you would end up at K-State. Come and see me. —Battle Ax. (28)

DAVID L. ADAMS
 Director

Rubes

By Leigh Rubin

"Them was some mighty fine vittles, Maw. But now who's gonna pull the wagon?"

Chasing Reality

By David Krug and Steve Cooper

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
 1 Word before jet or main
 4 Poses
 8 Shoe
 12 Actress
 13 Worshipped one
 14 Business course, for short
 15 Source of wealth
 17 Sell
 18 Dickens boy
 19 Breaks away
 21 Slept in a tent
 24 Average
 25 Ryan's "Love Story" co-star
 26 Fishing need
 28 Showed nervousness
 32 Tossed
 34 War movie extras, perhaps 36 It's found in 15 Across?

37 Capitulate
39 Pester
41 Ending for steer or peer
42 Play by—salesman's question
44 Like some grains
46 Standard of excellence
50 Aries
51 Pub brews
52 Battle-field exploder
56 Baja boy
57 Diabolic
58 Slangy refusal
59 British school
60 "Auld Lang —"

61 In a pig's—DOWN
1 Band's job
2 —Annie, of "Oklahoma!"
3 Place of drudgery
4 Grow furious
5 —Amin
6 Great weights
7 Catch some Z's
8 Quite a few
9 Like some tea
10 "Twilight," for one
11 Football linemen

16 Ice cream parlor serving
20 Pinnacle
21 Actor Grant
22 Jai—
23 Mutt
27 Noisy commotion
29 West Virginia workplace
30 Border
31 Act of derring-do
33 Kramden's portrayer
35 "Casa-blanca" pianist
38 Hammar-skjold
40 Belt's kin
43 Audition puns
45 Hightail it
46 Window section
47 Stepped down
48 Vegas's rival
49 Army's rival
53 Diarist
54 Thumbs down
55 She sheep

Solution time: 22 mins.
 HAG MAID CLUE
 EYE EIRE MORA
 RAT GREYHOUND
 OHARA SIAF
 APES MICAN
 FOXHOUND NEMO
 AME DREYS BEL
 LAMP ELKHOUND
 ARARA LEER
 ESS DOVER
 WOLFHOUD ITO
 ALOE ALBE NOD
 DEAR PEER ENS
 Yesterday's answer 10-1

CRYPTOQUIP
 10-1
 VKT TOFFZKWT HIW KU
 TOSV H MKE XWTT
 GVHG POI SPMZWIBKB
 TPXW TPZW TWHISVKUE
 Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WHY AM I ALWAYS ON THE MOVE? MAN DOESN'T LIVE BY BED ALONE.
 Today's Cryptoquip clue: T equals S

Jeffrey Groff brings his expertise in modern dance to the classroom this year as K-State's "Dance Artist in Residence." Besides teaching modern dance, Groff choreographs dance concerts, assists students with their own choreography and supervises dance productions.

Instructor brings dance expertise

By The Collegian Staff

Jeffrey Groff has always loved to dance — and now he is making it his career. Groff is currently a dance artist in residence in the University's dance program.

Groff came to K-State from Philadelphia and is currently teaching his specialty — modern dance. He teaches the fall and recovery method of modern.

"Last year's modern instructor taught the contraction and release method of Martha Graham, so the students are learning a different type of modern this year," Groff said. Next semester he might also teach Ballet I.

Besides teaching modern dance, Groff choreographs dance concerts, assists students with their own choreography and supervises dance productions.

Groff wants to continue teaching and choreographing at the university level.

"I now consider myself as more of a choreographer than a dancer, even though I still dance," Groff said.

Sharrise Horn, a junior in dance who is in the Modern Dance II class, enjoys Groff's teaching and finds his modern dance style interesting.

"His moves are really different from what I've done before, but I'm having a good time in the class," Horn said.

Groff has been dancing for 14 years after starting at a late age.

"I've always loved to dance," Groff said. "That is why I wanted it as a career."

Groff received his bachelor's degree in music education at West Chester University in Pennsylvania. He received his master's degree in dance at Temple University in Philadelphia.

Groff danced with Deborah Carr's Dance Company in New York from 1977 to 1981, performing works from Doris Humphrey and Charles Weidman. From 1982 to the present, Groff danced with the Ann Vachon Dance Conduit in Philadelphia, performing works from Jose Limon.

Get Personal
in Collegian Classifieds

K-State Orchestra to offer students upbeat music style

By Karen Allen
Collegian Reporter

The K-State Orchestra will offer students a break from contemporary music at its opening concert of the year tonight in McCain Auditorium.

Adrian Bryttan, conductor and violin soloist, encourages anyone who has an interest in music to attend the concert.

"I very carefully picked the music," Bryttan said. "It should be enjoyable for various audiences — especially to those who have never gone to a symphony before."

Selections from Mozart, Beethoven and an Italian opera will be performed, he said, adding that all of the pieces are very upbeat. In addition to conducting the orchestra, Bryttan will play the violin during the Mozart piece.

"Some people think of this music only in terms of listening to a record," Bryttan said. "It is totally different when heard live. I really feel it will be a fun, exciting program."

The concert is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. and admission is free. The program will last about an hour followed by an on-stage reception which the audience is invited to attend.

McCain to host trio of guitar musicians

By The Collegian Staff

The Amsterdam Guitar Trio, made up of Olga Franssen, Johan Dorrestein and Helenus de Rijke, will be performing selections in McCain Auditorium at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The group, which formed in 1978 at the Sweelinck Conservatorium in Amsterdam, interprets contemporary music and brings a new freshness through its transcriptions of Brandenburg Concertos by Bach and Vivaldi's Four Seasons.

In 1985, the group received the Edison Award, which has only been awarded twice before to a guitar recording in its 25-year history.

The trio modifies selections from a variety of compositions ranging from 16th century lute music to piano works by Debussy and Faure.

In 1981, the Trio gave its London debut at Wigmore Hall, which served to launch a career that has resulted in tours of the United States, Canada, the Far East and Europe.

"I don't think we need to open the whole house, so I am only opening downstairs since it is a chamber concert by instruments that are not known for making the kind of volume one gets out of an amplified guitar," said Richard Martin, director of McCain.

Ticket prices for the concert are $12 for the public and $8 for students and senior citizens. The box office is open from noon to 5 p.m. weekdays and at 3 p.m. on Saturday.

CLIP, KEEP
& SAVE
ALL WEEK

70¢
ENJOY A WHOLE RUNZA SANDWICH
AT HALF PRICE!!
Just ... 70¢ (with coupon) regularly $1.40!!
Taste and savor our mouth-watering Runza sandwich on your next visit. It's a delicious blend of ground beef, cabbage, onion and special spices ... baked inside homemade bread.
Expires 10/8/87
One coupon per customer per visit.
Not valid with any other offer.
Come on and get a taste.
10:30 a.m.-9 p.m.
1101 Moro Manhattan

SONY
SONY SRF-F1
SPORTSBAND
WALKMAN
•FM stereo tuner
•Clips on to any standard sweatband
•Ultra-compact 1/2" thick, 1.4 oz.
•Water-resistant design, ideal for a wide range of sports
•Miniature in-the-ear headphones
•Headband and armband supplies
•DCDC charger supplied
$49.88
ROLLING THUNDER
1126 Moro 776-5507

Speedy FREE Delivery
ONE MEDIUM
TWO TOPPING PIZZA
WE DELIVER ALL
DAY EVERY DAY FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE
$6.50
539-4888
"We Pile It On!"
Now Accepting
Visa & MasterCard
PYRAMID PIZZA
Now Serving
Thin Crust

Speedy FREE Delivery
ONE LARGE
TWO TOPPING PIZZA
WE DELIVER ALL
DAY EVERY DAY FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE
$7.99
539-4888
"We Pile It On!"
Now Accepting
Visa & MasterCard
PYRAMID PIZZA
Now Serving
Thin Crust

AL-BASHA الباشا
GREEK & MEDITERRANEAN FOOD
537-7533 1209 Laramie St.
Buy One Gyro Sandwich,
Get the Second at 1/2 Price
(with coupon—offer expires Oct. 7)
Open Daily 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. & 4-9 p.m.
The Most Delicious Treat in Town

JOYCE'S HAIR PERM SALE
Guys
Curly $25
Body $20
Partial $18
Gals
Warm & Gentle $38
Apple Pectin $30
Axiom $28
Feels So Lively $25
539-TAME or 539-8601
404 Humboldt Expires 10-8-87

Crum's beauty college
512 Poyntz Ave. Manhattan, Kansas 66502
1/2 OFF Haircut
Mon.-Fri. 10:30 a.m. Appointments ONLY
with this coupon
Expires 10-8-87
776-4794

Kentucky Fried Chicken.
2 pieces of chicken, biscuit, potatoes & gravy
for only $1.79
with coupon
901 N. 3rd
3002 Anderson
Offer expires Oct. 7
We Do Chicken Right.

kinko's
Great copies. Great people.
Self Serve Copies
3 1/2 ¢
after 6 p.m.
Not including 11x17
exp. date 10/7/87
1110 Laramie 537-7340

20% OFF J. Christopher
Keep cozy when your cheeks get rosy in cuddly J. Christopher sleepwear.
Coupon good today through Sun.
UNDERCOVER
1224 Moro Aggieville M-F 10-5:30 Sat. 10-5 Sun. 1-5
Open until 8 p.m. tonight

GET HEX-APPEAL IT'S TAN-FAST-K!
12 Sessions for $25
Save $5
new BEGINNERS
See our coupon in the Campus Connection 1107 N. 3rd, 537-1007
Offer expires Oct. 31, 1987

